etāsāṁ sarvāsāṁ ṣaṭkoṇaṁ vidyate tadā maṇḍalaṁ sarvasādhāraṇam [k kh: -sādhāram] I evaṁ kramamaṇḍalam I *iha punaḥ dvātriṁśatibhedabhinnasya [kh: -śa * bheda-] kramasya [k kh: kramaṁ] ṣaṭkoṇaṁ dakṣottaravivarjitaṁ [kh: dākṣottarārivarjitaṁ] kārayet* I darpaṇe ṣoḍaśāṅgulaṁ lekhayet I uktaṁ yathā ṣaṭkoṇasya bāhye punaḥ I (ibid.)

There are two jars in the procedure taught here. One is filled with wine (surā). The other one, which is described next, is filled with liquor (ali). The ŚM (9/52ab) enjoins: Wine (vīrapāna) in a (sacrificial) vessel, consecrated with the Samayā Vidyā, should be placed (there) (vīrapānaṁ tu pātrasthaṁ sthāpyaṁ samayābhimantritam). The ŚM refers to the placing of this jar after the worship of one set of contents of the six-sided figure (see below). Presumably, it should be placed on the triangle in the centre in such a way that the corners of it and the six-sided figure that surrounds it are visible. The vīrapātra is normally filled with wine which, as the ŚM confirms, is the case with the jar placed in the maṇḍala.

31. For visualization of Vaṭuka and the Guardians of the Field, see below 47/1-20.

32. Bali is an animal (or substituted animal) offering made to the three protectors of the Krama mentioned in this verse. In practice Gaṇeśa may also be offered bali as the Newars do in the Kathmandu Valley, but he is not at all prominent in these, the early Kaula texts. Bali has been an essential part of Kaula ritual of all schools since their inception and is a practice that was and still is maintained wherever Kaula ritual is performed. It is offered to these beings in order to appease them so that they may not obstruct the course of the rite that is to follow but, on the contrary, assist with their good wishes. These beings are guardians of place. Bhairavas, Yoginīs and guardians who protect the sacred sites (pīṭhas¸ kṣetras, saṁdohas and the like), crossroads, houses, villages, towns, cities where people live, the wilderness, forests, mountains, caves, valleys and plains. They, along with the spirits of the dead (bhūta and preta) to whom bali is also frequently offered, are amongst the supernatural beings who reside in such places throughout India. The adept engaged in his Sanskritic ritual invokes their presence and aid, particularly of those who reside close to where it is being performed.

This is usually either offered three times (tribali) or five (pañcabali). According to the late, probably Bengali Tantra, the Kaulāvalinirṇaya (6/124-128), the extra two are offered to the ghosts (sarvabhūta) and the main deity (in that case Rājarājeśvara). The Tantra states that these offerings must be made when worshipping Caṇḍikā. Vaṭuka's mantra according to the ṢSS (comm. 45/57 ff) is:

HRĪṀ KHPHREṀ RŪṀ (HŪṀ) SAUḤ VAṬUKĀYA TURU TUTU MURU MURU BALIPUṢPANAIVEDYAGANDHADHŪPĀLIPIŚITAṀ GṚHṆA GṚHṆA NAMO 'STU TUBHYAṀ ||

After extracting Vaṭuka's mantra, the ṢSS explains its application and extolls its merit:

> This most excellent mantra which is the dawning of the fruit of all accomplishment has been told (to you). The Yoginīs and Siddhanāthas are very powerful in the seven currents (of the tradition). They are related to the primary and secondary sacred seats and accompanied by the hosts of heroes and mothers numbering eighty-four hundred million. O fair lady, this (mantra) is the king of all of them. Worshipped with this, they are all satisfied along with their servants and attendants, and they bestow boons on the adepts. They fulfill (all) desires (icchāsiddhipradāyaka) by the grace of Vaṭukeśa, the lord of the field and in no other way. By repeating (it) one hundred thousand times, O fair lady, he performs every ritual (karman). O goddess, I have revealed this supreme (secret) to you.

etan mantravaraṁ proktaṁ sarvasiddhiphalodayam |
yoginyaḥ siddhanāthāś ca saptasrotapadodbalāḥ ||
pīṭhopapīṭhasaṁyuktā vīramātṛgaṇair yutāḥ |
caturāśītikoṭīnām eṣa rājā varānane || anena pūjitenaiva saceṭaparivārakāḥ |
bhavanti tarpitāḥ sarve sādhakānāṁ varapradāḥ ||
kulākulavibhāgasya icchāsiddhipradāyakāḥ |
prasādād vaṭukeśasya [k, kh: vaṭa-] kṣetreśasya na cānyathā ||
lakṣajāpād varārohe sarvakarmakaro bhavet |
etat te paramaṁ devi mayā tubhyaṁ prakāśitam || ṢSS 45/66-70

The Ṭīkā (fl. 113b-114a) teaches the following mantra for the bali offerings to Vaṭuka and the guardian of place. The mantra begins with the Five Praṇavas:

> O Lord Vaṭuka, son of the goddess! You who are tawny and have reddish-brown dreadlocks! You whose three eyes shine and whose face (blazes like) fire! Accept, accept, again and again the scent, flowers, incense, lamps, unguent and unbroken rice! (Accept) the bali of liquor and meat! (Accept) the bali offering! ṛ ṛ

KṢAḤ KṢAḤ. Vaṭuka! Made with passion! You who are Bhairava whose face is fire! Impel the Vidyā! (Salutations to you) Lord of all the sacred fields KṢAḤ KṢAḤ HŪṀ PHAṬ SVĀHĀ

AIṀ 5 DEVĪPUTRAVAṬUKANĀTHA PIṆGALAKAPILAJAṬĀBHĀRA-BHĀSURA TRINETRAJVĀLĀMUKHA GANDHAPUṢPADHŪPADĪPA-SAMĀLABHANĀKṢATĀN ALIPIŚITABALIṀ BALYOPAHĀRA.M GṚHṆA GṚHṆA ṚṀ ṚṀ MUHUR MUHUḤ KṢAḤ KṢAḤ MADONMATTA VAṬUKA AGNIMUKHABHAIRAVARŪPIṆO VIDYĀṀ PROCCHĀDAYA SARVAKṢETRĀDHIPATAYE KṢAḤ KṢAḤ HŪṀ PHAṬ SVĀHĀ ǀ

the equivalent mantra in the KJN is:

HRĪṀ VAṬAKĀYA KAPILAJAṬĀYA PIṆGALANETRĀYA DEVĪ-PUTRĀYA MĀTṚPUTRĀYA IMĀṀ BALIṀ MAMOPANĪTĀṀ GṚHṆA GṚHṆA CURU MURU HRĪṀ BALIMANTRA CĀLA CĀLA BHAKṢA ǀ

The mantra for the bali offering to the Lord of the Field begins with the Five Praṇavas. Then comes the syllable KṢĀṀ followed by the short prayer: O Lord of the Field of (this) place, accept, accept the bali, SVĀHĀ.

AIṀ 5 KṢĀṀ STHĀNAKṢETRĀDHIPATAYE BALIṀ GṚHṆA GṚHṆA SVĀHĀ ǀ

The mantra that is uttered when offering bali to the Yoginīs (Ṭīkā fl. 113b) begins with the Five Praṇavas then comes the syllable HSKHPHREṀ followed by the prayer: May all the many kinds of Yoginīs who are on the earth or in the divine sky that have been invoked (niyojita) by me with devotion accept the bali offering. Every Yoginī HŪṀ PHAṬ SVĀHĀ.

AIṀ 5 HSKHPHREṀ DIVYĀNTARIKṢE BHŪMYĀṀ VĀ YOGINYO BAHUDHĀ STHITĀḤ BALIṀ SARVĀḤ PRAGṚHṆANTU MAYĀ BHAKTYĀ NIYOJITĀḤ SARVAYOGINĪ HŪṀ PHAṬ SVĀHĀ ǀ

Concerning bali see intro. vol 1, p. 685 ff. and for the prayer to the Yoginīs and protectors, ibid. p. 696.

33. The Ṭīkā explains that the jar is purified with the same mantra as the one used to install the jar. Clearly, then the King of Weapons is none other than that of Koṅkaṇa, the goddess's weapon. This and the mantra of the Armour is recorded above in the note to 11/30-31ab. According to the Ṭīkā, the Self to which this verse refers is Navātman. Thus the Ṭīkā (fl. 122b) adds that once these two mantras have been uttered and 'the penetration, of the image (of the god into the jar) has taken place by means of his mantra', that is, Navātman, and after having offered a flower (while uttering) KAULĪŚAMŪRTAYAI AIṀ 'AIṀ to the form of Kaulīśa', one should deposit the Vidyā.'

tatas tasya mūrtyāveśena navātmanā mantreṇa kaulīśamūrtayai aiṁ iti puṣpaṁ datvā tataḥ vidyānyāsaṁ kārayet ǀ

O beloved, one should fetch a golden jar. If that is unavailable, (fetch) a silver one or one of copper or of clay, (but it should be) marked with (all the) auspicious characteristics. It (should have a thick) neck like a conch and be beautiful. It should be washed with auspicious water and, having smeared it with sandal (malaya) and the rest, it should then be filled with liquor (ali). It should be installed with the Weapon of Koṅkaṇa and enveloped with the Armour. It has young mango, leaves and is adorned with garlands of flowers along with a cloth and betel-nut. Lamps burn festively (around it). It should be placed in the north-east and consecrated with the Five Praṇavas. The Krama that is in the centre should be worshipped within the sacred seats and the rest, in due order.

ānīyad [k kh g: ānayad] hemakalaśam [kh: -kalasa; g: -kalasaṁ] alābhād raupyajaṁ priye ǀǀ tāmrajaṁ mṛṇmayaṁ [g: mṛnmayaṁ] vātha [g: vādya] śubhalakṣaṇalakṣitam [k: -bhūṣitam; kh: -lāṁkṣitaṁ] ǀ kambugrīvaṁ suśobhāḍhyaṁ kṣālayec chubhavāriṇā [k: kṣālayedabhivāriṇā; kh: kṣālayacchu-] ǀǀ *malayādyaiś carcitaṁ [k: * * * dyaiś-] kṛtvā pūrayed [kh: -yad] alinā [g: -nāṁ] tataḥ* ǀ sthāpayet [kh: -yat] koṅkaṇāstreṇa [k: kavacāstreṇa] kavacenāvaguṇṭhayet ǀǀ cūtapallavasaṁyuktaṁ puṣpamālāvibhūṣitam ǀ vastratāmbūlasaṁyuktaṁ dīpotsavasamujjvalam [kh: -samākulaṁ; g: -samujvalaṁ] ǀǀ īśānakoṇagaṁ [kh: īśāṇa-] sthāpyaṁ pañcapraṇavamantritam ǀ madhyasthaṁ ca kramaṁ [kh g: krasaṁ] pūjyaṁ [k kh g: pūjya] pīṭhādau ca yathākramam [kh: -kramai] ǀǀ ŚM 9/45cd-49

34. The Ṭīkā comments at length on the first deposition of the Vidyā which is done on the body of the officiant, supplying the name of the goddess of each syllable and where it should be placed. We have seen that the names of these goddesses differ in our text, which simply says that they should be worshipped in their own particular places without specifying where they are. This deposition concludes and completes the preliminary rites of installation, purification and propitiation of the guardians. Once the Vidyā is inside the officiant, it can be projected into the maṇḍala. This act marks the replacement of the Vidyā in the Yoni from which it originates; a return, in other words, of the goddess to her source which is herself in the more basic, less differentiated form she assumes as the source of all things. Once this is done, the adept can begin to worship the Krama. According to the Ṭīkā the Vidyā is projected into the hexagon, not the triangle. There we read:

> Then one should perform the worship of the Krama (kramārcana) in due order. Then, one should offer a handful of flowers to the lord, Kaulīśanātha, the Lord of the Yoni (bhagīśa) who is in the middle of the Yoni. (Then) 'outside the Vidyā and in conjunction (with it), (deposit) the six sacred seats.' One should worship each sacred seat with the root Vidyā until the (entire) group of six sacred seats is worshipped. Where? Outside the triangle on the mirror where the hexagon, without a southern or northern corner, has been fashioned. The group of six sacred seats is there along with the root Vidyā.

tataḥ [kh: tata] kramārcanaṁ krameṇa kuryāt | tatas trikoṇamadhye bhagīśasya [k: bhageśasya] bhagamadhyasthitasya īśvarasya kaulīśanāthasya [k kh: kolī -] puṣpāñjaliṁ dāpayet | saṁyogena tu vidyayāḥ [k kh: vidyāyā] pīṭhaṣaṭkaṁ tu bāhyataḥ || iti vidyā mūlavidyayā [k kh: -vidyā] saha pratyekaṁ pīṭhaṁ [k: -ṭha] pūjayet yāvat pīṭhaṣaṭkaṁ [k kh: -ka] pūjitam | kutra [k kh: kotra] | trikoṇabāhye darpaṇe yatra ṣaṭkoṇaṁ [k: -ṇa] kṛtaṁ dakṣottarakoṇavarjitam | tatra mūlavidyayā [k kh: -vidyā] saha pīṭhaṣaṭkaṁ | Ṭīkā fl. 122b

35. The Ṭīkā comments:

> '(The Vidyā) conjoined with the Five Praṇavas . . . ' In this way one should worship the group of six sacred seats along with the Five Praṇavas and the root Vidyā consisting of thirty-two syllables. Where? Thus: 1) Oḍiyāṇa in the southern corner. 2) Jālandhara in the south-east. 3) Pauṇḍravardhana in the south-west. 4) The sacred seat of Kāmaru in the east. 5) The sacred seat Tisra (also) called Mātaṅga in the north-west, and 6) Koṅkaṇa, (also) called Candra, in the north-east. One should worship the group of six sacred seats in the six corners and the three, namely, the Siddhas of the lineages, that is, those of the Eldest, Middling and Youngest, and in the north-east corner, the form of the teacher which is that of Bhageśa. This is the meaning.

pañcapraṇavaṁ [k kh: -va] tathā mūlavidyādvātriṁśadakṣarikāsahitaṁ [k kh: -śākṣā-] pīṭhaṣaṭkaṁ pūjayet [kh: + kotra] | kutra [k kh: kotra] yathā | oḍiyāṇaṁ paścimakoṇe | jālandharam [k, kh: jālā-] āgneye | nairṛtye [kh: nairṭyaṁ] pauṇḍravardhanam [kh: pauḍra-] | pūrve kāmarupīṭham | vāyukoṇe trisrapīṭham [kh: tṛśra-] | mātaṅgākhyaṁ [kh: mātagā-] tathā īśānakoṇe | koṅkaṇe [k: kūṅkaṇe;

kh: kuṁkaṇa] candrābhidhānam | evaṁ koṇaṣaṭke pīṭhaṣaṭkaṁ pūjayet | tathā olisiddhatrayam [k: -siddhāstrayam; kh: -siddhāḥtrayaṁ] jyeṣṭhamadhyamakaniṣṭhakam [k kh: -niṣṭhāḥ] | īśānakoṇe bhageśasya [kh: bhagīśasya] gurumūrtiṁ [k kh: -śuddhiḥ] pūjayed ity arthaḥ | Ṭīkā fl. 122b-123a

Note that Pauṇḍravardhana (in the north-east of India) has replaced Pūrṇagiri. Kāmaru is occasionally found in the Kaula and Bhairava Tantras as an alternative form of the name Kāmarūpa. Indeed, the latter may well be a Sanskritized version of Kāmaru. Concerning the identity of Tisra or Trisrota and Mātaṅga as the fifth sacred seat, see intro. vol 1, p. 105.

The setup in the ŚM (9/53cd-58) is different. The six groups that make up the Sequence of Twenty-Eight are worshipped first in the corners of the hexagon. Then the sacred seats are worshipped in the same hexagon. First, the main four sacred seats are worshipped with their presiding goddess in the downward-facing triangle in the centre in their normal positions (cf. above 26/3). These are: 1) Oḍḍiyāna (here called Oḍī and Oṁkāra) – Oḍāmbā – centre. 2) Jālandhara – Jālāmbā – right corner. 3) Pūrṇagiri – Pūrṇāmbā – left corner. 4) Kāmarūpa – Kāmāmbā – in front. Then four mountains that are considered to be secondary sacred seats (upapītha) are worshipped along with four goddesses. These are: 1) Śrīśaila – Barbarā. 2) Māhendra – Mahantārikā. 3) Kailāśa – Kamalā. 4) Arbuda – Kubjikā. The location in the triangle of the first three is not specified. Arbuda (i.e. mount Abu in Rajasthan) is in the middle and ŚM refers to it as a 'half-seat' (ardhapīṭha). Cf. KRP 4/11cd: There are Śrīśaila, Māhendra and Kailāsa as secondary seats (śrīśailaṁ ca mahendraṁ [kh, g: maheṁdrañ] ca kailāsetyupapīṭhakaṁ |). See intro. vol 1, p. 563 ff..

36. The Ṭīkā explains:

The pentad of the limbs of the Siddhas consists of the group of five faces that is equivalent to the group of six (faces). The upper face is pervasive (and so is not counted). In this way, one should worship the group of five faces, or (just) the sixth in the middle of the hexagon. In the place of the group of six sacred seats (as established by) the previous convention thus: 1) The heart is in the eastern corner which is Kāmaru's place. 2) The Head is Pauṇḍravardhana, and so the Head is in the location of the seat Pūrṇa in the south-west. 3) The Topknot is in the south-east in Jālandhara. 4) The Armour is in the north-west in the location of the seat Tisra. 5) The three eyes are in the west in Oṁkāra, that is, in the seat of Oḍiyāṇa and 6) the Weapon should be worshipped in the north-east in the location of the sacred seat of Koṅkaṇa. In this way, the six limbs should be worshipped where the six sacred seats are located.

siddhāṅgapañcakaṁ vaktrapañcakaṁ ṣaṭkam | ūrdhvavaktraṁ [k kh: -ktra] vyāpakam | evaṁ vaktrapañcakaṁ ṣaṣṭhaṁ [k kh: ṣaṣṭha] vā madhye ṣaṭkoṇasya pūjayet | tataḥ ṣaḍaṅgaṁ pūjayet | yathā pūrvasaṁketapīṭhaṣaṭkasthāne [kh: pūrvapūketa-] | yathā hṛdayaṁ kāmarupīṭhasthāne [kh: -pīṭhaṁ] pūrvakoṇe | śiraḥ [k, kh: śiraṁ] pauṇḍravardhane [k: -vardhanam] | iti śiraḥ [k: śira; kh: śiraṁ] pūrṇapīṭhasthāne [kh: pūrṇṇapīṭha-] nairṛtyakoṇe | śikhā jālandhare [k: jālā-; kh: jālāṁdharai] agnikoṇe tathā kavacam tisrapīṭhasthāne vāyukoṇe | netratrayam .okāra [k kh: uṁ-] oḍyāṇapīṭhe [kh: -oḍyāna-] paścime tathā astraṁ koṅkaṇapīṭhasthāne [kh: kuṁkuṇa-] īśānakoṇe pūjayet | evaṁ pīṭhaṣaṭkasthāne ṣaḍaṅgapūjanaṁ [kh: ṣaḍaṁgapūjaṁ] kāryam | Ṭīkā fl. 123a

In this setup there are six sacred seats. These are worshipped in the hexogram that surrounds the central triangle. These correspond to six 'locations' of the limbs of the goddess's Vidyā that can be tabulated as follows:

10. Table of the Six Limbs and Seats

Directions	Seats	Limbs
West	OṀ	Eye
South-east	Jālandhara	Topknot
South-west	Pūrṇagiri	Head
East	Kāmarūpa	Heart
North-west	Tisraka	Armour
North-east	Koṅkaṇa	Weapon

The corners of the triangle accomodate the three lineages (oli, anvaya) through which three Kramas are transmitted founded by three Siddhas who are Lords of three sacred seats. Oḍḍīśanātha founded the lineage of the elders (jyeṣṭholi) in Oḍḍiyāna, Ṣaṣṭhanātha the Middle Lineage (madhyamoli) in Pūrṇagiri and Mitranātha the Lineage of the Child (baloli) in Kāmarūpa. We generally find that four seats are projected into the central triangle. In that setup Oḍḍiyāna is in the middle of the triangle, Kāmarūpa in the bottom corner and Pūrṇagiri is in the lefthand corner. The extra seat, Jālandhara, governed by Caryānātha, is in the righthand corner. Presuming that the original basic arrangement was maintained, Oḍḍiyāna is in the righthand corner. The triangle of three Siddhas would then be like this:

Diagram 6. The Triangle, Hexagram and Sacred Seats

E Kāmarūpa
NE Pūrṇagiri
Tisra SE
Ṣaṣṭhanātha
Oḍḍīśanātha
Mitranātha
NW Jālandhara
Koṅkaṇa SW
Oḍḍiyāna
W

37. The Ṭīkā explains:

‘Outside that one should worship the deposition of the Twelve Verses.’ There, one type of Twelve Verses is the aforementioned seed-syllable (piṇḍabīja) HSKHPHREṀ, which is called the Twelve Verses. Inwardly, in terms of the activity of the prāṇa and apāna, it extends from the Wheel of the Foundation up to the end of the End of the Twelve. And (this form of the Twelve Verses) is the essence (of the other form) and its nature is (externally) unsustained (nirālamba) (and inwardly self-supported). It consists of two groups of six. Six consist of letters (varṇa) and six are without letter (avarṇa). In this way it consists of six sacred seats with form (sākāra) and six sacred seats without support. In this way, the seed-syllable (piṇḍa) that originates from the twelve sacred seats which is the very life (jīvabhūta) of this Kula system (kuladarśana) is called the Twelve Verses. It should be fashioned in twelve places by the division of the twelve energies (mātrā) (of the vowels) thus:

HSKHPHRAṀ HSKHPHRĀṀ HSKHPHRIṀ HSKHPHRĪṀ HSKHPHRUṀ HSKHPHRŪṀ HSKHPHREṀ HSKHPHRAIṀ HSKHPHROṀ HSKHPHPHRAUṀ HSKHPHRAṀ HSKHPHRAḤ

In this way (the mantra called) the Twelve Verses is on the border (kaṭi) in the form of an enclosure (mekhalā). This is because, in terms of the six sacred seats, it pervades (them) and so should be worshipped outside the sequence of thirty-two divisions and the body. This is the Śāmbhava division. Everything has originated here. Now the Twelve Verses, according to the Śākta division where all the scriptures, śāstras and the rest have originated, will be explained. In this way (the mantra called) the Twelve Verses is on the border (kaṭi) in the form of an enclosure (mekhalā) and should be worshipped outside the Krama (called) of the Bliss of the Great Saying divided into thirty-two divisions.

tadbāhye dvādaśaślokanyāsaṁ pūjayet | *tatra tāvat [kh: tāva ] ślokadvādaśakaṁ prakāram ekaṁ tāvat pūrvoktapiṇḍabījam hskhphreṁkāram tad [kh: ta] dvādaśaślokābhidhānam* | abhyantare [kh: abhyaṁtara] ādhāracakrādidvādaśāntāvadhir yāvat prāṇagatyā apānagatyā ca | sāraṁ ca nirālambarūpaṁ [kh: nirālaṁvaṁrūpaṁ] dviṣaṭkamayaṁ ṣaḍvarṇaṁ [k: ṣaṭvarṇāṁ; kh: ṣaṭvarṇṇā] ṣaḍavaraṇaṁ [k: ṣaṭ avarṇām; kh: ṣaṭ avarṇṇaṁ] | evaṁ sākārapīṭhaṣaṭkamayaṁ nirālambapīṭhaṣaṭkamayam | evaṁ dvādaśapīṭhodbhūtaṁ [kh: dvāda -] piṇḍam asmin kuladarśane jīvabhūtaṁ [kh: jīvambhūtaṁ] dvādaśaślokābhidhānaṁ taṁ punaḥ dvādaśasthāne dvādaśamātrābhedena kārayed yathā*

hskhphraṁ hskhphrāṁ hskhphriṁ hskhphrīṁ hskhphruṁ hskhphrūṁ hskhphreṁ hskhphraiṁ hskhphroṁ hskhphrauṁ hskhphraṁ hskhphraḥ |

iti ślokadvādaśakaṁ kaṭyāṁ [k kh: kadyā] mekhalārūpeṇa | iti pīṭhaṣaṭkagatyā vyāpakarūpakatvād [kh: vyāpakaṁ-; k kh: -tvāt] dvātriṁśadbhedabhinnakramasya [kh: -śabheda-] bāhye pūjyaṁ tathā śarīrasya iti śāṁbhavaṁ [k: -va] bhedam | atra sarvam utpannam | idānīṁ ślokadvādaśakaṁ śāktabhedena yatra sarvāgamaśāstrādikam [kh: sarvāṁgama-] utpannam | tat kathyate yathā [. . .] iti ślokadvādaśakaṁ kaṭyāṁ mekhalārūpeṇa dvātriṁśadbhedabhinnamahāvākyānandakramasya [k kh: -śabheda-] bāhye pūjayet |

The Ṭīkā now reproduces the full mantra as it is in the KMT 18/43 (see above note 44 of chapter 3). As explained there, this mantra is divided into twelve sections of thirty-two syllables each. Thus it is twelve *śloka*s long and is named accordingly. Four letters are embedded in each section, thus making forty-eight letters from A to Sa. The Twelve Verses in the two forms are projected around the border of the hexagon. The letters embedded within it are projected into the three encompassing circles around it. The KMT describes the equivalent deposition of the Twelve Verses onto the body formed by the deposition of the Six Limbs (in this case they differ from those formed from the Samayā Vidyā). The KMT (chapter eighteen) explains:

The supreme body and the supreme sacrifice (adhvara) is (formed) by the Yoga which is the deposition of the six limbs. The Girdle (mekhalā) of the body that has been generated in this way is the Twelve Verses. The Thread of Brahmā should be hung with the Yoga of Tadgraha from the head to the feet and the body adorned with the Five Jewels. Now listen, O Kubjīśā, where the deposition of those parts (pada) takes place. (40-42)

(The Twelve Verses (ślokadvādaśika) are stated in full in twelve prose sections reckoned as 'verse' 43).

(The first) line is the mistress of the Wheel born from (the letter) A (i.e. the vowels). The second extends from Ka and ends with Bha. The third begins with Ma and ends with Sa. The mistress of the gods (sureśvarī) is (formed) with (these) three lines. (44)

(In the following four verses, five syllables are given in the Mālinī code which are, presumably, to be recited with each letter: 1) HRĪṀ 2) AḤ 3) HPHRŪṀ 4) HPHREṀ 5) KṢAḤ. These syllables are recognisibly related to those embeded in each section of the Twelve Verses but they are not the same. The equivalent ones in the Twelve Verses are: 1) AIṀ 2) HAḤ 3) HRŪṀ 4) PHREṀ (+ PHAṬ) 5) KṢAḤ.)

The Kula liturgy (kulapaddhati) abides thus (vai) as (the series of letters from) Śrīkaṇṭha (A) to Bhṛgu (Sa). O goddess, the Kula liturgy is divided in this way. This group of ten and two verses is the plane of supreme nectar. When this is recited the Mothers are always aroused. Immediate possession takes place and (the one who recites it) becomes a poet. Once this is recited, the accomplishment, which is the Piercing of the Command (ājñāvedha) and the rest, takes place. You should not tell (this) to those who are not devotees. This is the Supreme Goddess's Command. This is (the mantra called) Twelve Verses adorned with a garland of fire (vaḍamālā). One should respect it as the Doomsday Fire that starts from the feet and ends with the head. O goddess, this Girdle (mekhalā) should be deposited in the reverse order according to the teaching. Its utterance (uccāra) is the possession (āveśa) that occurs at each place (within the body). This is the protector of the living being. Otherwise (if told to those who are unfit or not recited correctly and regularly), it is damaging. (48-54ab)

The Ṭīkā continues:

And that is said here in this very place: 'Outside that in the enclosure (mekhalā) is the tradition of the Twelve Verses.' In the same way one should know the inner and the outer location of the seed-syllable (piṇḍa) form of the aforementioned Twelve Verses. By what means? This is done by means of Mālinī, who consists of the fifty letters and is (conjoined) with the Twelve Verses. The point is this: that which is made of the fifty letters is the universe consisting of all knowledge and action. Again, here (in this case) one should fashion three encompassing girdles (mekhalā) thus: 1) Four verses (corresponding to the letters) beginning with A and ending with visarga. That is the first girdle (formed) by the sixteen vowels. Then, outside that, the second girdle is (made) with six verses and twenty-four letters beginning with the letter Ka and ending with the letter Bha. Then the third girdle is outside that (made of) two verses and the eight letters beginning with the letter Ma and ending with the letter Sa. Thus these should be fashioned both internally and externally.

tathātraivoktam | tadbāhye mekhalāyāṁ tu ślokadvādaśakānvayam [k: - ye; kh: -kānvayet] | tathā pūrvoktadvādaśaślokapiṇḍarūpamayasya sthānaṁ [k kh: -na] svabāhyābhyantaraṁ jñātavyam | kena kāraṇena | yataḥ ślokadvādaśakena pañcāśadvarṇarūpamālinī [k kh: pañcāśa -] | tena kāraṇena | yathā [k kh: yadā] pañcāśadvarṇamayaṁ [k kh: pañcāśa -] sarvajñānakriyātmakaṁ viśvam ityarthaḥ | atra punaḥ mekhalātrayaṁ kārayet | yathā akārādi aḥkāraparyantaṁ [kh: -paryataṁ] ślokacatuṣkaṁ [k kh: -caturaṁ] bhavati svaraṣoḍaśakena | tat prathamamekhalā | tatas tadbāhye kakārādibhakārāntavarṇacatur-viṁśakena [k, kh: -rāntaṁ-] ślokaṣaṭkena mekhalā dvitīyā | tatas tadbāhye makārādisakārāntavarṇāṣṭakena [k, kh: -hakārānta-] ślokadvayena mekhalā tṛtīyā iti sabāhyābhyantareṇa [kh: savāhyātyaṁtareṇa] kartavyāḥ | Ṭīkā fl. 124a-124b Athough we are not explicitly told so here, the three enclosures represent the Moon, Sun and Fire. The Circle of the Sun that encloses the entire maṇḍala is associated at times with these three (see for example above, 3/42). The Wheel of Khecarī described in ṢSS 25/66 ff. contains a similar arrangement of three concentric circles. These are: 1) The outer circle, which is that of the Moon and consists of the sixteen vowels. 2) The middle circle, which is that of the Sun and consists of the twenty-five consonants from Ka to Ma. 3) The inner circle that consists of the eight letters from Ya to Ha. In this case the letters are embedded in the mantra called Twelve Verses. The KMT refers to this mantra as the Kulapaddhati. There it is projected onto the sides of triangle as it is in the maṇḍala described above in chapter three (see above 3/31-3). According to the KMT (18/44-8), the division of the sections of this mantra, in terms of the letters embedded in them, is 1) A to Ḥ 2) Ka to Bha 3) Ma to Sa. I have edited the text accordingly.

38. The Ṭīkā explains:

One should worship the maṇḍala in this way with garlands of white flowers smeared with vermilion and with sandalwood, all the herbs and sweet-smelling incense. 'Made of wheat etc.' (is said with regards to) the fashioning of the lamps. Thus one should fashion three lamps made of wheat (flour) pastry or (the three lamps may be) made of the five kinds of pastry (pañcapiṣṭikā) and (one should also offer) eight lamps made of clay. (Other offerings include) cooked meat and eight lamps of cooked rice made from wild rice (śāla) mixed with wine (surā) and musk along with three lamps, raw meat and cooked rice. One should worship the Transmission of the venerable one called Kukāra (i.e. Kubjikā) in this way. After that one should make food offerings (nivedayet), that is, one should wave the lamps (nīrājana). Thus, the lamps should be placed there and not eaten. Then once the lamps have been waved, (the offering) should be placed there itself or it should thrown away outside. Thus the procedure with regards to the waving of the lamps has been explained.

evaṁ tan maṇḍalaṁ pūjayet sitapuṣpamālāsragdāmaiḥ [k kh: sata-] kuṅkumacarcitaiḥ tathā candanena tathā sarvauṣadhibhiḥ [k kh: -dhīṣu] tathā sugandhadhūpena pūjayet |
godhūmamayaṁ [k kh: godhūmaya] ca | ity ādi dīpakalpanā | yathā godhūmapiṣṭakāmayam [k: -maya; kh: godhūmapṛṣṭikāmaya] athavā pañcapiṣṭikāmayaṁ [k kh: -pṛṣṭikā-; k: -maya] dīpatrayaṁ kārayet tathā mṛtikāmayaṁ [k: -ye; kh: -yo] dīpāṣṭakaṁ tathā pakvamāṁsaṁ [k kh: -māṁsa] tathā odanaṁ [k kh: odana] śālyodbhavam [k kh: śādbhavam] tathā surāgorocanamiśritena [k kh: -tena] dīpānyaṣṭau tathā āmamāṁ saśālyodanena dīpakatrayam | evaṁ śrīkukārākhyākramaṁ pūjayet | paścān nivedayet [kh: tiredayet] | nīrājanaṁ [kh: nīrāṁjanaṁ] kuryāt [k, kh: karoti] | tatas tatraiva dīpāḥ [k kh: dīpā] sthāpitavyāḥ [k kh: sthātavyāḥ] | na ca prāśayet | āratyāmātraṁ nīrājanaṁ kṛtvā tatas tatraiva sthāpayet | athavā bāhye nikṣipet | iti nīrājanavidhiḥ [kh: nīrāṁjanavidhi] kathitaḥ |
Ṭīkā fl. 124b

39. The Ṭīkā explains:

'After that, one should worship the jar . . .' One should worship the jar in front of the maṇḍala. With what? One should worship it with three handfuls of flowers whilst recollecting the root Vidyā. (After) having worshipped (the maṇḍala), then offer one's self 'as well as water (argha) and flowers numbering thirty-two (as are) the syllables (of the Vidyā)'. Then taking thirty-two flowers in two hands and cupping them together (in prayer) and kneeling, offer a flower from the first onwards with hands folded whilst recollecting the root Vidyā of thirty-two syllables. And offer them, that is, practice breath control (prāṇāyāma) (whilst doing so). Then repeat (the Vidya) the same number of times (yathāsaṁkhyā) (as the offerings). Then, having done that, (one should ask for) a boon (vara) (saying): 'O Mother, Supreme Goddess, give me success (siddhi) in this Krama.'

kalaśaṁ pūjayet paścād ity ādi | maṇḍalasya agre kalaśaṁ pūjayet | kena kena | mūlavidyayānusmaryamāṇayā [k kh: -vidyā-; k: -māṇāyāḥ; kh: -mānāyāḥ] puṣpāñjalibhis tribhiḥ pūjayet | pūjayitvā [k kh: pūjayaśca] tata [k kh: tataḥ] ātmānaṁ [k kh: ātmā] nivedayet | tato 'py arghaṁ ca puṣpāni dvātriṁśākṣara-saṁkhyayā [tato.anyapuṣpa saṁkhyāyāṁ] | ity ādi | tato [kh: tataḥ] dvātriṁśat [k kh: -śa] puṣpāṇi hastadvayena [k kh: -ye] gṛhītvā kṛtāñjalipuṭo bhūtvā jānudvayaṁ bhūmau kṛtvā dvātriṁśadakṣarīmūlavidyā [k kh: -śākṣa-] smaryamāṇā [k: smaryamāṇaṁ; kh: smaryāmānaṁ] ādyādikaṁ puṣpāñjaliṁ dāpayet | nivedayec ca prāṇāyāmaṁ kuryāt | tato [k kh: tataḥ] yathāsaṁkhyā jāpyaṁ kārayet | evaṁ kṛtvā tato [kh: tataḥ] varaṁ yāvat | aho mātaḥ [k kh: -tā] parameśvari [k kh: -rī] asmin krame mama siddhiṁ dehi | Ṭīkā fl. 124b-125a.

Similarly, the ŚM enjoins:

(The adept) should begin the rite of adoration there with the five and nine kinds of sacrificial substances (dravya) along with food offerings (naivedya) of many forms, purified with (offerings of) wheat and clarified butter. (Along with that should be offered) camphor (candra), sandalwood, saffron (kāśmīra), black mustard (kṛṣṇā), musk, fish, meat, spiritous drinks (ali) and mixed male and female sexual fluids (kuṇḍagolaka). I have (thus) told you these nine sacrificial substances. O beloved, the sacrifice should be performed (in the course of both) the regular and occasional (rites with them). The other five sacrificial substances (make up) the group of five Go, Ku, Ga, Ha and Na. O fair lady, (the rite) should be performed (with them) by the adept with a great soul. (Along with this he should offer) three types of meat and many kinds of excellent drink. (This is all) mixed with nine thumb-measures of liquor.

Triangular lamps should be fashioned, in due order according to the lunar days (tithi) etc. Seventeen lamps are arranged there in the directions. Four should be placed in the east and four, O beloved, in the south. Four are located in the west and four again in the north. The ones in the east have a white wick. In the south, it is black. One should know that (the wick) in the west is yellow and the wick in the north, red. O goddess, they are filled and prepared with clarified butter and (offered) along with fish and the rest and (various kinds of) meat. Divine and well-fumigated with incense, (the offerings are) mixed with liquor and camphor.

navapañcavidhair dravyais tatra [g: navaḥ-] pūjāṁ samārabhet [k: samācaret] ||
naivedyair vividhākārair [k: nakhādyair-] godhūmaghṛtasaṁskṛtaiḥ [k: godhūmakṛta-; g: -gaudhūma- -tai] | candracandanakāśmīraiḥ kṛṣṇā gorocanā tathā || [This and following five lines missing in MSs K and KH]
mīnaṁ [g: nīnaṁ] ca piśitaṁ [g: pisita] caiva alibhiḥ kuṇḍagolakam |
etāni navadravyāṇi kathitāni mayā tava [g: tavaḥ] ||
yajanaṁ ca prakartavyaṁ nityanaimittike priye |
anyāni pañca dravyāṇi gokugahanapañcakam ||
kartavyaṁ tu varārohe sādhakena mahātmanā |
māṁsaiś ca triprakāraiś ca nānāpānavarais [kh: -vares] tathā ||
navāṅguṣṭhapramāṇena [khg: yavā-] alinā miśritena [k: miśritaṁna] tu [g: va] |
trikoṇā [g: trikoṇaṁ] dīpakāḥ [kh g: dīpakā] kāryās [kh: kuryā-; g: kāryā] tithyādau ca krameṇa tu ||
saptādaśāni [k: tatraiva saptadaśa] tatraiva [k: ca] dīpā dikṣu vyavasthitāḥ |
catvāraḥ [k kh g: -ri] pūrvato nyasyāḥ [k kh g: nyasya] catvāro dakṣiṇe priye ||
paścimasthāś ca [k: paścime cātha] catvāraḥ [k kh g: -ri] catvāraś cottare punaḥ |
śuklavartis tu pūrve syāt [kh g: ṇa] kṛṣṇā caiva tu dakṣiṇe ||
paścime pītakā [g: pītikā] jñeyā raktā [k kh: rakta] vartis tathottare |
mīnādyaiḥ piśitair [kh g: pisi-] devi pūritā ghṛtasādhitāḥ [k g: ghṛtavodhitā] ||
sudhūpadhūpitā [kh: sa-] divyā alikarpūramiśritāḥ [k: -karpuramiśritā; g: āli-] |
ŚM 9/62cd-71ab

There are two standard sets of sacrificial substances, one of five and the other of nine. One such set of nine has been listed in this reference from the ŚM. The names of the set of five have been abbreviated. The Ṭīkā informs us that these names may not literally denote what they do in common usage but are actually code words. There we read that the nine and five sacrificial substance are as follows.

The five substances are said to be blood, meat, bone, marrow and skin. 1) Scent (gandha), this is sweat. 2) Flower, this is the flower of the Yoni, that is, (menstrual) blood. 3) Water, this is Śiva's water (i.e. urine). 4) Viṣṇu, this is urine. 5) White mustard (siddhārtha), (this is, so called) because it is that which accomplishes (siddhyati) a meaning (artha), that is, word. That which is there, that is, where the tongue is located (jihvāsthāna), is siddhārtha. (Thus this means saliva). 6) Joy (harṣaṇa) is wine (surā). 7) Meat is meat. 8) Camphor (candra) is Indra's sperm (indraśukra). 9) Sandalwood (candana) is fat (vasā). These are the nine (sacrificial) substances.

asṛkpalāsthimajjātvak [kh: -marjjātvaka] pañca dravyāḥ prakīrtitāḥ | gandha iti viśvakṣāram 1 | puṣpam [k kh: puṣpa] iti yonipuṣpaṁ raktam 2 | ambu iti [kh: + iti] śivāmbu 3 | viṣṇur mūtram [kh: sūtraṁ] 3 | siddhārtha iti arthaḥ [k kh: arthāḥ] śabdaḥ [k kh: śabdāḥ] yasmāt siddhyate [k kh: -ti] taṁ jihvāsthānaṁ tatra yad bhavati sa [k kh: sā] siddhārthaḥ [k kh: siddhārthāḥ] 5 | [k, kh: + lālā muditā iti hṛdayaṁ 5 | gaṁdha puṣpaṁ aṁvu siddhārtha |] harṣaṇaṁ iti surā 6 | āmiṣam iti [kh: āmiyaṁ iti] māṁsam [kh: māsaṁ] 7 | candra indraśukraṁ 8 | candanam [k: candana; kh: cadana] iti vasā 9 | iti nava dravyāḥ | Ṭīkā fl. 79a

Virtually the same prayer is found in the ŚM also, but the procedure outlined there requires that it should be uttered after worshipping the virgins (see following verses). The prayer in the ŚM reads:

"O Mother! O Mother! O Supreme Goddess! Give me the Great Accomplishment. I am afflicted. O Nāthā! I am a wretch who has taken refuge at your feet!"

amba [kh: aṁbaṁ; g: aṁvikā] mātar [k: māter; kh g: māte] mahāsiddhiṁ [k kh: -siddhe; g: -siddhi] dehi māṁ parameśvari [g: -rī] ||
dīno 'haṁ [g: dīnāhaṁ] kṛpaṇo [k: kṛpaṇaṁ; kh: kṛpayā] nāthe [kh: nāthai] tvatpādaśaraṇaṁ [g: -saraṇaṁ] gataḥ | ŚM 9/74cd-75ab

40. The Ṭīkā explains:

Once this has been done, one should offer libation to the virgins (kumārītarpaṇa) . . . . (This is done) by worshiping a group of eight, five, six or three virgins, or (just) one. There will certainly be success on the first lunar day (ādyaparva). (One attains) success (siddhi) by worshiping whilst observing a vow of chastity, free from lust or anger. Once done that, one should worship the wheels of energies, Yoginīs and Siddhas attentively. With what (sacrificial) substances? (This is done) with the aforemetioned substances, namely, flowers, incense, rice grains, liquor, meat and the rest. Knowledge comes by worship.

iti kṛtvā [kh: kṛtvāt] | tataḥ kumārītarpaṇaṁ [kh: kumāri-] kārayet [k, kh: + lakṣaṇaṁ kumārikalpāt] | kumāryāṣṭakaṁ pañcakaṁ vā ṣaṭkaṁ vā trayaṁ vā ekā vā pūjanāt ādyapūrve tataḥ siddhir bhavati | na cātra saṁśayaḥ [k: śaṁsayaḥ; kh:

śaṁśayaḥ] | brahmacaryavratena kāmakrodhavivarjitena pūjanāt siddhiḥ | iti kṛtvā tataḥ śakticakraṁ [k kh: -cakra] yoginīcakraṁ siddhacakraṁ ca samāhitaṁ [k kh: samadhitaṁ] pūjayet | kair dravyaiḥ | pūrvoktapuṣpadhūpagandhākṣatālipiśitādidravyaiḥ pūjanāt jñānaṁ pravartate [k kh: -ti] | Ṭīkā fl. 125a

The worship of eight virgin girls is a standard part of many rituals in which the Krama is worshipped. See below 30/29-30 where they are worshipped as a part of the preliminaries to the drawing of the Saṁvartāmaṇḍala and the transmission of the scripture. Also below in 49/50-52ab where they are worshipped in the course of the worship of the Krama (kramārcana). The ŚM (9/71cd-72ab) similarly prescribes that eight virgins should be worshipped with clothes and ornaments along with Yoginīs and young boys (kumāra). (kumāryo 'ṣṭau tataḥ pūjyā vastrālaṅkārakādibhiḥ || yoginyaś ca viśeṣeṇa kumārāś ca tathā priye |) They are worshipped before the prayer is addressed to the goddess. Although it is not specifically stated here, the eight virgins usually represent the eight Mothers who constitute the Octad of Kula (kulāṣṭaka) normally represented on the eight petals of a lotus (see above 11/28cd-29).

Sometimes only one virgin is worshipped (see below 33/41cd-42 and 33/71cd-72). The five virgins may be the five Mahantārikās. The Group of Six is probably the six Yoginīs, Ḍākinī and the rest who are commonly worshipped in the corners of the hexagon. Finally, presumably, the three virgins represent the Vidyās, Aparā, Parāparā and Parā who are worshipped in the corners of the inner triangle. Together these goddesses make seventeen, the last of which is Parā. They are the energies of the Moon in its first phase, that is, the dark fortnight ending with the New Moon which is the 'first lunar transition'. The energy of the New Moon is the hidden seventeenth energy, here, if I have understood correctly, implicitly identified with Parā.

The Ṭīkā adds an interesting section which, although not found in our text, is worth reproducing here. It concerns the worship of the Kaula consort (dūtī) which, according to the Ṭīkā, is the conclusion and hence the culmination of the worship of the Krama in the abbreviated form described here.

The venerable (goddess) Vakrā said: '(The Krama) should always be worshipped in the body of the consort . . . '. 'The consort' is one's own Tantric partner (śakti). This great Krama should be worshipped in her body. With what substance? (The substance) generated from the couple (offered with the body) as the sacrificial vessel (arghapātra). 'Generated from the couple' means the mixture of sexual fluids (kuṇḍagolaka) generated from the sexual union of both. One should worship with that (offered by means of the body which is) the sacrificial vessel. One should exert authority in this, the Western Tradition, with such a Tantric consort. (It is said that) 'There are eight energies (present) during the rite of adoration. . . '

During the rite of the adoration of one's own consort, a group of eight energies (is present). (That is to say that) Brāhmī and the rest (located in the directions) beginning with the east up to the north-east, and one's own consort, should (all) be worshipped (together). Energy is in the middle, while the six Yoginīs (ḍādiṣaṭka) and one's own Tantric consort (dūtī) should be worshipped on the right and the left (respectively). The right is in the north-west, north and north-east. The left is in the south-east, south and south-west. One should contemplate one's own Tantric consort in this way as the Supreme Energy. She is not (just) a common women. One should place (something) in the hand of one's own Tantric consort who is of this kind, namely, the Supreme Energy by nature. What (is put in her hand)? Flowers, sandalwood, lamps and so forth, incense, food (naivedya) and liquid (argha) offerings – having consecrated this group of six (sacrificial) substances (it is placed in her hand). With what mantra (is it consecrated)? It should be consecrated with the mantra of the Vidyā's limbs, as follows: the flower with the mantra of the Heart; the sandalwood with the mantra of the Head; the lamp with the mantra of the Topknot; the incense with the mantra of the Armour; the food offering (naivedya) with the mantra of the Eye; and finally the liquid offering (argha) with meat and wine (is consecrated) with the mantra of the Weapon.

Once (the offering) have been consecrated thus in the prescribed way, it should be placed in the hand of one's own consort. Then, having fashioned a round maṇḍala in front of the Kramamaṇḍala, he should place that collection of (sacrificial) substances along with the consort there. Then he should make her sit in her own place, that is, he should make her sit next to him on the left. How is she? (The consort is one) who 'gives secret substances'. She gives bodily substances, namely, sexual fluids (kuṇḍagolaka) and the rest. She also gives the five and the nine sacrificial substances mentioned earlier. Then, and in no other way, is one's own consort complete (pūrṇarūpā). How else is she? She holds in front (of herself) and offers (alcoholic drink) surā and āsava which she holds and śīdhu and madya that she offers. Surā is a fermented drink. (Piṣṭī) is made from cooked rice and the like. Āsava is made from sweet-smelling substances and so forth mixed with raw sugar, honey and the like. Thus, the Tantric consort (śakti) (is said to) hold surā and āsava. Śīdhu is made with raw sugar mixed with dhātakī (?). Madya is grape wine and the like made from trees. Thus she is the consort who offers surā, āsava, śīdhu and madya. This is the prescribed procedure concerning one's own Tantric consort and the characterizing mark of (ritual) action.

śrīvakrā [k kh: -vakra] uvāca | dūtīdehe sadā pūjyam [k kh: -jyā] | dūtī [kh: dūti] iti svakīyā śaktis tasyā idaṁ [k: -tasyedaṁ; kh: tasya idaṁ;] mahākramaṁ dehe śarīre pūjyam [k kh: pūjyā] | kena dravyeṇa | yugmotthenārghapātreṇa [k kh: yugmācchenārghapātreṇa] | yugmottham iti ubhayamaithunodbhavakuṇḍagolakaṁ tenārghapātreṇa pūjayet | īdṛgvidhāśaktyā saha asmin [kh: asmiṁ] paścimāmnāye adhikāraṁ [k kh: -ra] kartavyam | pūjākāle śaktayo 'ṣṭau [k kh: śaktiyo-] || ity ādi svadūtīpūjākāle śaktyaṣṭakaṁ [k kh: śaktyāṣṭakaṁ] brāhmyādi [kh: vrāhmādi] pūrvādi īśānāntaṁ svaśaktiś [k: svaśakti; kh: svaśaktī] ca pūjyāḥ | [k kh: pūjyaśca] śaktir [k, kh: śakti] madhye tathā ḍādiṣaṭkaṁ [k kh: -ṣaṭka] svadūtī ca [kh: k kh: missing] savyāpasavyayoḥ [k: -savyau; kh: -savyo] pūjyau [k kh: pūjyam] | savya [kh: savye] iti vāyukauvīreśāne | apasavya āgneyayamanairṛtye [k kh: -mā-; k: -tya; kh: -naiṛtye] | evaṁ svadūtīṁ [k kh: -tī] parāśaktisvarūpāṁ [k kh: -pā] dhyāyet | na sāmānyā strīrūpā sā bhavati | īdṛgvidhā parāśaktirūpiṇī svadūtī | tasyāḥ [k kh: tasya] haste dāpayet | kiṁ kim | puṣpacandanadīpādidhūpanaivedyārghakam | evaṁ dravyaṣaṭkam abhimantrya [k kh: drayvyaṁ-] kena mantreṇa vidyāṅgamantreṇa [kh: -matreṇa] mantrayet | yathā hṛdayamantreṇa puṣpam | 1 | śiromantreṇa [k kh: śira-] candanam | 2 | śikhāmantreṇa dīpanam | 3 | [k kh: + dravyāḥ] kavacamantreṇa dhūpam | 4 | netramantreṇa naivedyam | 5 | alipiśitayuktam astramantreṇārgham | 6 | evaṁ vidhikrameṇābhimantritvāt svaśakti-haste dāpayet samarpayet | tataḥ kramamaṇḍalasyāgre vṛttāraṁ maṇḍalaṁ kṛtvā tatra etad [kh: etat] dravyasamūhaṁ saśaktiṁ [k: sā; kh: sā + śā; k kh: śaktiḥ] sthāpayet | tataḥ svadūtīṁ [k kh: -tī] svātmasthāne [k kh: -sthā] svavāmotsaṅge upaveśayet | sā ca kiṁ viśiṣṭā [kh: vi * ṣṭā] | guptadravyapradāyikā | śarīradravyapradāyikā [kh: + śarīradravyapradāyikā] kuṇḍagolakādi tathā navapañcadravyapūrvoktadāyikā | tadā svadūtī nānyathā pūrṇarūpā [k: parṇa -; kh: parṇṇa-] | anyac ca kiṁ viśiṣṭā | agre purataḥ surāsavadharī [k kh: surāsarva-] śīdhumadyapracāriṇī [k: śādhūmadyapracārataḥ; kh: sādhumadyapracārataḥ] | surā iti piṣṭī - annādyodbhavā [k kh: pṛṣṭhī] | āsavam iti sugandhadravyādimiśritaguḍamadyādikaiḥ [k: -madhyādikaiḥ; kh: -madvvādikaiḥ] kriyate tadāsavam [k, kh: -sarvam] | evaṁ surāsavadharī sā śaktiḥ | anyaḥ [k kh: anya] śīdhur iti [k kh: śīdhu-] guḍadhātakīmiśritaḥ [k, kh: -tam] (?) | madya iti vṛkṣodbhavāḥ drākṣādi | evaṁ surāsavaśīdhumadyapracāriṇī sā dūtī | iti svadūtīvidhiḥ karmalakṣaṇaṁ ca |

Ṭīkā fl. 125a-125b

41. This subject is discussed again below 27/60d ff.. This and the following section of this chapter are not mentioned in the first verse of this chapter in which the goddess lists the matters she will expound. It is possible that they have been added after the initial redaction of the text. But as the subject in question at the end of this chapter is continued without break in the following, it is much more likely that the break between these two chapters has been shifted by mistake. There is evidence that some at least of the colophons were not made by the author(s) of the text.

42. The previous verse and this line correspond to ŚM 9/75cd-76ab. It seems that the two lines in the ŚM have been modified here to allow the insertion of the following section (11/55cd-67ab) which is missing in the corresponding passage in the ŚM. The redactor justifies the addition of this passage by distinguishing two ways in which the Vidyā can be recited. One is with the fingers, without a rosary, which is described now. The other is with a rosary and is introduced by line 11/67ab below. But this distinction seems artificial. The passage from 11/67cd onwards is concerned with extolling the fruits of repeating the Vidyā. It makes no real difference if the number of times the Vidyā has been repeated is counted with the fingers or a rosary.

43. Monier-Williams explains that Putraka (Putranjiva Roxburghii), also called putraṁjīvaka literally means 'giving life to children'. Necklaces are made from its seeds that are supposed to keep children in good health.

44. The rosary (according to the SvT) consists of one hundred and eight beads along with the Meru (this is a large bead from which counting begins). It can be of ten types according to the material used: Rudrākṣa, conch, lotus (seeds), Putrañjīva, pearl, crystal, semi-precious and precious stones, gold, or coral. These are the ten rosaries for householders. The Heroes (those who are vīrastha rather than gṛhastha) use a rosary of human bone (mahāśaṁkha), which gives the fruit of all one's desires. The householder should not make use of this rosary as it will disturb his mind. Thus the best of adepts should repeat the Mantra with a rosary made of crystal and the three types of desires, lower, middling and best, can be accomplished. In this way one should worship the pervasive Bhairava in one's heart. In order to make him external as well as internal, one should commence the sacrifice. (SvT 2/147cd ff.)

The following passage from the KMT 5/110cd-136 (= ṢSS 8/109-132ab) deals with the types of rosaries and their benefits. It also discusses the inner rosary.

Those who are well versed in all the *śāstra*s and are marked with the signs of the goal (lakṣalakṣaṇalakṣita) should constantly repeat mantra with this rosary (akṣasūtra). O best of ladies, the repetition of mantra which is done within what is called the world-system (bhuvana) and within Power, according to the division of the movement and upward motion (of the breath), is said to be the best.

The rosary is said to be (made of the) fifty (letters). The thread consists of Śakti who is Śiva. The threading together is the energy Kuṇḍalinī, while the Meru is located at the end of merger. This rosary is Śiva and should be kept most secret. It should not be made public, nor should one cross over the Meru at any time.

O fair-faced lady, rosaries (maṇimālā) are said to be (best made of) conch, crystal, Rudrākṣa, Putrañjīva, Ariṣṭhaka and the like. There (in such rosaries) there is no god, mantra or consciousness (cetanā). O beloved, wherever there is an (inner) rosary there is no defect.

O goddess, once the mantra has been deposited (on the body) it should be kept hidden. But, O fair-faced lady, where can the body be hidden? When the deposition of the mantra is complete the Self is energized (sakalīkṛtavigraha) and (this) should be kept secret. Such is also the case with the rosary (akṣamālikā).

The bead is said to be a sense organ and the thread, Kuṇḍalinī. The goal (lakṣa, which also means '100,000 repetitions') is the subtle and supreme energy that transports the flow of Nectar.

(This energy) is called the 'thread' (sūtrā) because it brings about union (saṁyoga) in the Void. Used for counting (saṁkhyāgrahaṇa), it is (called a) rosary. O fair lady, it is taught that enumeration (saṁkhyā) (applies) to the act of repeating mantras (japakarman).

A conch (rosary) is (for a person) who desires kingly power (śriyā). A crystal one is for liberation. O beloved, (a rosary) made of lotus seeds is said to be the most excellent cause of the fulfillment of glory (śriyāpuṣṭi). (The rosary made of) Rudrākṣas attains success (siddhi), including that other one, namely, the plane of the skyfaring goddess (khecarīpada). O sinless one, one should know that (a rosary made of) Jīvakā (seeds) tied together with (the hairs of a) cow's tail is always (of benefit for all purposes). A coral (rosary) is (used) when others need to be brought under one's control (vaśyakārya). A pearl (rosary) bestows all one's desires.

O goddess, all other (rosaries) are said to be made of gems (ratnaja). They are without a doubt recommended always (for every goal). A rosary made of Ariṣṭa beeds and bone is recommended for rites of black magic (abhicāra). A rosary made of tin (nāga), lead (vaṁga) and iron as well as other (such rosaries) that are said to be 'mixed' (miśra) are prescribed, O goddess, for the magic rites of murder, paralysis, delusion, trembling, and destruction. (Indeed) one should make use of them when performing (any such) magical rite (abhicāraka).

Amongst (these or) any other ones that are mentioned, a (rosary) made of conch shell is the best. It is easy to use for all purposes and is (the one universally) prescribed for the repetition of mantra.

There is a nerve at the end of the Topknot which is circular in shape like the whirl around the mouthpiece of a conch (saṁkhāvartā). Thus, O lord of the gods, (this inner) rosary is said to be made of conch shell.

According to the teaching that comes from the teacher's mouth, a crystal (rosary is effective and is so called because) it manifests brilliantly (sphuṭate) in the head and exits from it twofold into the Void (kha).

The Rudras are said to have a fierce disposition (raudrībhāva) and reside at the front of the palate conjoined with the subtle elements of sound, touch, form, taste and smell. They act because (these subtle elements) undergo transformations.

By stopping (them), the goal (nirodhalakṣa) (is achieved). Thus the repetition of mantra with a rosary of Rudrākṣa is said to be the best.

Placed in the belly, the Kuṇḍalinī of Nectar sleeps like a son (putra). O fair lady, the living being is led up and down by her. Thus she is (this rosary which is accordingly) called 'one who gives life to a son' (putrajīvaka).

There are many portents (ariṣṭa), both pleasant and painful. One always experiences what has been earned in the past. (Thus this) rosary is called 'Ariṣṭa' and its extent cannot be measured within the world of bondage (bhava).

O fair-faced lady, it is said in various scriptures that the rosary made of lotus seeds (padmākṣā) is so called (because it represents the energy that) abides perpetually in the lotus of the heart and awakens (the power of) the letters (akṣa) (of mantras and the senses).

Such are said to be the (inner) meanings (paryāya) of (the various types) of rosaries. O mistress of Kula, they are all said to be related to the Self.

Thus the prescription of those whose know the Kaulika reality regarding the rosary has been properly explained.

45. I suppose the gross form of repetition is done with the rosary and the subtle one with the hand.

46. The Meru of a rosary is the bead in the middle. It is usually bigger than the others and may have a tassle or some other appendage that serves to distinguish it from the other beads. Prescriptions for the manner in which one should count the beads of a rosary when repeating a mantra commonly warn that one should not cross over this bead. This means that when one reaches this bead, one should return back in the reverse direction to the same bead and then start again in the forward one. When the hand is used as a rosary the middle finger is, appropriately, considered to be Meru. Thus we are told in the next verse that this finger should be omitted. The goddess in YKh (1) explains:

The Vidyā I have taught (sūcitā) in this scripture (śāstra) is on the teacher's lips. The teacher is he from whose mouth (the Vidyā) comes forth and by whom it is given (and placed) into another mouth. Given by him from (his own) mouth, it is successful. If taken by one's self, (the Vidyā) brings troubles. It is certainly a transgression of the Command.

guruvaktre [k, kh, gh: -vaktrai] sthitā vidyā mayā śāstre 'smin sūcitā ||
yasya vaktrād viniṣkrāntā [k, kh, gh, ṅ: viniḥkrāṁtā] yena dattā [k, kh, gh: daṁta] mukhāntare |
*sa gurus tasya vaktrāc ca [k, kh, gh: vaktrā ca; ṅ: vaktrāṁte] tena [k, kh, gh: tana; ṅ: * na] dattā [k, kh, gh: daṁtā] sā [k, kh, gh: ; ṅ: ra] siddhyati ||
*svayaṁ [ṅ: sva ] gṛhya [k, kh: grahā; gh: guhā; ṅ: grahāc] ca vighnadā [k, kh, gh, ṅ: vighnaṁsā] ājñābhaṅgaṁ na saṁśayaḥ | YKh (1) 18/32cd-34ab

The rosary of letters is the rosary born of the senses (ākṣa means both the beads of the rosary and 'senses'). The thread is the faultless Khañjī. Meru (the middle large bead) is the unsustained Void. The extraction (of the mantra) is of six kinds. It dissolves away, without break, into the fifth place (sthāna) in the upper Drop. This takes place according to the prescribed method based on the number of repetitions by the path of Śakti. (In this way) the merger of Śiva and Śakti takes place whereby the utterance (of the Vidyā is) within (the reality which is) certainty (niścaya). One (thereby) certainly attains the state of flight in this, the last life.

akṣā indriyajā [k, kh, gh: īṁdriyajā] mālā [ṅ: māyā] sūtraṁ [k, kh: sūnnaṁ; gh, ṅ:] khañjī [k, gh: khaṁji] nirāmayā || [ṅ: + merusūtraṁ khaṁjī nirāmayā]
meru śūnyaṁ [k, kh, gh: sūnya] nirālambaṁ uddhāraṁ ṣaṭprakārakam |
tallayaṁ pañcame sthāne bindūrdhve [k, gh: vidūrddhe; ṅ: viṁdvardve ca] nirantaram ||
japyasaṁkhyāvidhānena [k, kh, gh: -vidhānaṁ na; ṅ: -nidhāmena] śaktimārgeṇa [k, kh, gh: -sārgeṇa] bhairava |
śivaśaktilayaṁ yatra uccārān niścayātmake [k, kh, gh: ucārāni-; ṅ: uccārāntiś ca pālakaiḥ] ||
labhate [kh, ṅ: labhaṁte] cāntime [k, kh, gh: cātime; ṅ: vāntime] janme [ṅ: janma] khecaratvaṁ na [gh: ta] saṁśayaḥ | Ibid. 18/41-44ab

Śrīnātha said: Difficult to attain even by the gods is this divine secret, the prescribed method of enumerating the number of repetitions of a mantra. Now (it is revealed) in the Vakrikā Āgama.

The venerable Vakrikā said: One obtains the 'imperishable thread' (akṣasūtra) by rotating (the rosary) in an anticlockwise direction. O Maheśvara, one begins with the left index finger. One should repeat the mantra as taught by the teacher in accord with the sequence of the number (of repetitions).

(The mantra is repeated) mentally in consonance with the breath (gamāgama). One should concentrate on the mind (manaṁ kalpayet) by means of inhalation and breath retention. Then, having exhaled, (one attains) accomplishment in this world and the next. One should retain the breath in accord with the number of beads (akṣarasantāna). (He thus) brings about the most excellent (form of) possession with the aid of the breath.

śrīnātha uvāca
*rahasyaṁ idaṁ [k, kh: * maṁ; gh: * ma; ṅ: para + maṁ] divyaṁ devānāmapi durlabham* ||
japasaṁkhyāvidhānaṁ tu saṁprāptaṁ vakrikāgame |
adhunā śrotumicchāmi divyasūtrasya nirṇayaṁ [gh: -yaḥ] ||

śrīvakrovāca [gh: śrīvakrāṁvāca] akṣasūtram alābheta [kh: -sūjamalābheta; ṅ: -sūtramalābhena] vāmāvartaparibhramāt [k, kh, gh: -paritramātra] |
tarjanī vāmahaste ca [k, kh, gh: vāmamūlārtha; ṅ: vāmamūlā ca] pūrvārabhya [ṅ: pūrvārasya] maheśvara [gh: -raḥ] ||
uddeśaṁ [k, kh, gh: udeśaṁ; ṅ: upadeśaṁ] gurorvaktrāj japet [k, kh, gh: gurovaktrār jape; ṅ: gurorvaktrā japet] saṁkhyākrameṇa tu |
gamāgamena manasā [ṅ: matasā] hyadrūmena [ṅ: hūhamena] māhātmanaḥ (?) ||
pūrakeṇa svakīyena [ṅ: svakāyena] manaṁ kumbhena [kh: kubhaina] kalpayet | *recayitvā tataḥ siddhir ihaloke [k, kh, gh: siddhiṁ i * loke; ṅ: siddhiṁ ihaloke] paratra ca* ||
yāvad akṣarasantānaṁ tāvat [ṅ: tāva] kuryāc [k, kh, gh: kuryā] ca kumbhakam |
vāyunā saha yogena karoty [k, gh: karobhy] āveśam uttamam || Ibid. 18/44cd-49

47. A concise, but less obscure description of how this should be done is given below in 27/62cd-63. Start from the bottom of the index finger of the left hand. At the top, skip to the ring finger and travel down. Then go up to the top of the little finger to finally return to the bottom of the index finger.

48. That is, by moving forward and backward in conjunction with the breath and with the rise and descent of Kuṇḍalinī. The latter is described in 13/111 ff.; cf. in relation to the alternation between New and Full Moon, see chapter three, note 147.

49. The Vidyā consists of thirty-two syllables. The breath should therefore be retained for a period of thirty-two units. See next note.

50. After what are verses 60 to 62 in the KuKh, YKh (1) continues:

> Having meditated on that, the Lord of Yogis should merge that into the Self. Above that is the supreme state which is known as the Equal One and the Pervasive One. One should dissolve (all things) away at the end of the mind (manānte) by means of the division of subtle Sound. Having attained the Transmental Śāmbhava plane, which is unborn, eternal and beyond the senses, one should not think at all. One should repeat mantra in this way in the three lineages (oli). (Thus) one attains the state on the eternal plane in which the body shakes and the like. Having attained the plane at the end of Kujā (kujānte), who is not freed from bondage?
>
> The thread is the supreme power. The beads are the fields of the senses. The one who repeats the mantra is the Supreme Self, Maheśvara who is the vital breath. When all things are dissolved away in the end, who is not freed from bondage?

tad dhyātvā [k, kh, gh: vatvā; ṅ: vadbhūtvā] tu yogindras tallayaṁ [ṅ: yogīndrastambhayaṁ] kuru cātmani | [ṅ: + kriyāṣaṭka havibhedeyatā]

tadūrdhve [ṅ: nadūrddhe] tu [ṅ: ca] parāvasthā samanā [ṅ: samānā] vyāpinī smṛtā [gh, ṅ: -tāḥ] ||
sūkṣmanādavibhāgena manānte [k, gh: matānte; kh: matonte; ṅ: mano-] tu layaṁ kuru |
unmanatve pade prāpte śāmbhave śāśvate [k, kh, gh: śāsvate] aje [ṅ: ane] ||
karaṇānām [k, kh, gh: kāranānam] atīte vā na kiñcid [kh: kiṁciṁd] api cintayet |
anenaiva vidhānena japaṁ kuryāt [k, kh, gh: kuryā] trayoliṣu [ṅ: triyoliṣu] ||
dhunanādi avasthāṁ ca labhate śāśvate pade |
kujānte tu [ṅ: ru] pade prāpte ko na muñcyati [gh: muṁcyaṁti; ṅ: mucyati] bandhanāt ||
sūtraṁ [ṅ: śūtra] śaktiḥ [k, kh, gh, ṅ: śakti] parā khyātā akṣāṇīndriyagocarāḥ [k, kh, gh: rā; ṅ: akṣoṇīṁdriyagocarāṁ] |
japate tu parātmānaṁ prāṇarūpī maheśvaraḥ [gh: -rī] ||
sarvānte [k, gh: sarvvaṁti; kh: savvaṁti; ṅ: sarvāte] tu layaṁ gatvā ko na muñcyati [k, kh, ṅ: mucyati; gh: muṁcyati] bandhanāt | YKh (1) 18/50-55ab

In his book on prāṇāyāma, Iyengar (1981: 105) explains:

> Kumbhaka is of two types. It is either (a) a pause between an in and and out breath or (b) between an out and an in breath. It is the art of retaining the breath in a state of suspense. It also means the withdrawal of the intellect from the organs of perception and action, to focus on the seat of the Ātmā (puruṣa), the origin of consciousness. Kumbhaka keeps the sādhaka silent at the physical, moral, mental and spiritual levels. [. . .] When the breath is stilled in kumbhaka, the senses are stilled and the mind becomes silent. Breath is the bridge between the body, the senses and the mind. Kumbhakas are performed in two ways: sahita and kevala. When the breath is held intentionally and deliberately, this is sahita. Sahita kumbhaka is the pause in breathing (a) after full inhalation (antara or pūrakakumbhaka), or (b) after complete exhalation prior to starting inhalation (bāhya or recakakumbhaka). Kevala means 'by itself' or 'absolute'. Kevalakumbhaka is the pause in breathing unaccompanied by pūraka or recaka, as when an artist is totally absorbed in his art or a devotee is breathless with adoration. This state is often preceded by body tremours and fear like that of a man on the point of being overwhelmed by the unexpected. Patience and perseverance will overcome this feeling. Kevalakumbhaka is instinctive and intuitive. In this state one is completely absorbed in the object of one's devotion and isolated from the world, experiencing a feeling of joy and peace which passes understanding. One is in tune with the Infinite (Haṭhayogapradīpikā 2/71).

There are two kinds of breath control. One is called samavṛtti – lit. of equal length. The other is viṣamavṛtti – of unequal length. Iyengar explains: 'Sama means equal, identical or in the same manner. By samavṛtti prāṇāyāma an attempt is made to achieve uniformity in the duration of all four processes of breathing, namely, inhalation (pūraka), retention (antarakumbhaka), exhalation (recaka) and retention (bāhyakumbhaka)' (ibid. p. 118).' The other form of breath control is the opposite of this, namely, the duration of these phases are varied. According to Iyengar, the ideal ratio between these process is as follows: 'if full inhalation takes five seconds the breath is held (antarakumbhaka) for twenty seconds, exhalation takes ten seconds, and bāhyakumbhaka five seconds, the ratio being 1: 4 : 2 : 1 (ibid. p. 119)'. Applied to the Vidyā, the number of syllables would be for each unit 4: 16 : 8 : 4.

51. See below, appendix 2, for the forms of the Samayā Vidyā. Iyengar (ibid. p. 115) writes: 'The practice of prāṇāyāma is of two kinds: sabīja (with seed) and nirbīja (without seed). Sabīja prāṇāyāma includes the repetition of mantra . . . The mantra should not be repeated quickly in order to complete a cycle of prāṇāyāma. It should be rhythmic, pacing the flow of the breath equally in inhalation, exhalation and retention. Then the senses are silent. When perfection is achieved, the sādhaka becomes free and pure without the support of the mantra.'

The inner process of purification that takes place in the course of breath retention is described below in chapter thirteen (13/98cd ff.).

52. It is surprising that the text here declares that the repetition of the Vidyā with the aid of the hand is the best, as this section was introduced as being meant for those who could not procure a rosary. This implies that it is second best with respect to recitation with a rosary.

53. The following from 11/65 to 11/71ab appears also in ŚM 9/76cd to 9/82. Then 11/74cd to 11/77ab correspond in their content to ŚM 9/83 to 86ab. For the rest of this chapter the ŚM is similar in sense, but diverges substantially in form. See notes to the translation.

54. According to the ŚM, two thousand recitations bestows Yoga.

55. ŚM: sukham ārogyam – 'happiness and health'

56. ŚM: O you who are praised by the heroes, (recited) nine (thousand times) the secret accomplishment (guhyakī siddhi) arises.

57. ŚM: (Recited) ten (thousand times) one attains accomplishment (siddhi), Nirvāṇa and the Transmission of the Skyfarer (khecarakrama).

58. ŚM: (Recited) twenty (thousand times), the death (of an enemy). (Recited) thirty-two (thousand times), the paralysis (of the enemy) . . . .

59. ŚM: O beloved, mountains are shattered and trees fall and burst apart.

60. The following verses 11/73ab-76 correspond to the ŚM 10/82-83ab: By sixty thousand (repetitions), he brings the eight Vetālas under (his) control. By (reciting it) seventy thousand times he attains the accomplishment (to control) female demons (rākṣasīsiddhi). He gains control of the snake maidens (nāgakanyā) by (repeating it) eighty thousand times.

61. ŚM: And (by reciting the Vidyā) ninety thousand times, he attains Viṣṇu's plane.

62. The ŚM adds: (A veritable) support of the (eight) yogic powers (guṇa), including the power to become small at will and the rest (aṇimādi), he attains the accomplishement of (all his) desires.

63. The chowrie is a sign of power and authority. A vehicle with five of them indicates that the owner is of very high rank.

64. śrīmān may also mean 'venerable one'. An excellent practitioner is called 'śrīmān' – a formal address of respect (see also 13/144a, and 34/48c). The goddess is also addressed this way (see note to the Sanskrit of 3/43d for the references).

65. Verses 11/74cd-77ab and 11/80cd-85ab correspond to ŚM 9/86cd-92, which follows (only significant variants noted):

The Siddha is in the midst of that (entourage around the chariot) and sports with the Skyfarers. (Capable of) assuming many forms, he abides in the midst of the universe. In an instant (he assumes) Śaṅkara's form, in an instant Viṣṇu's, in an instant (he is) Brahmā, Indra, Skanda and Vaiśravaṇa. In an instant, (his is) the form of the Sun, in a moment that of the Moon. O beloved, (his) protean form (becomes) like the multitude of stars.

In an instant, (his) form is that of Vāgbhava (AIṀ), in an instant that of Varuṇa. (He becomes) a bull, an owl and in an instant a deer. In an instant (he becomes) a bird in the sky and in an instant (he assumes) his own form. In an instant (he takes) the form of a monkey and a bird. In an instant (he becomes) a camel, a lion, a tiger, a dog (or) a cat.

He becomes water by means of water and earth by means of earth. O goddess, the adept yoked to the Vidyā assumes many forms.

tanmadhye saṁsthitaḥ siddhaḥ krīḍate khecaraiḥ saha ||
nānārūpadharo bhūtvā tiṣṭhate viśvamadhyataḥ |
kṣaṇena śāṅkaraṁ rūpaṁ kṣaṇād rūpaṁ ca vaiṣṇavam ||
kṣaṇe brahmā ca śakraś ca skando vaiśravaṇaḥ kṣaṇāt |
kṣaṇena sūryarūpaṁ syāt [g: sūryavadrūpaṁ] somarūpaṁ kṣaṇād bhavet ||
tārācakranibhaṁ rūpaṁ nānārūpadharaṁ priye |
kṣaṇena vāgbhavaṁ rūpaṁ kṣaṇād rūpaṁ ca vāruṇam || vṛṣabhaś ca ulūkaś ca kṣaṇena ca mṛgas tathā |
kṣaṇāt pataṅgam ākāśe nijarūpadharaḥ [kh g: tiryagrūpaṁdharaṁ] kṣaṇāt [g: priye] ||
kṣaṇena vānaraṁ [k kh: vāruṇaṁ] rūpaṁ khaga uṣṭraḥ [kh: daṁṣṭrā; g: daṁṣṭrī] kṣaṇād bhavet |
kṣaṇāt siṁhaś ca vyāghraś ca śvānamārjārarūpakaḥ ||

jalena jalatāṁ yāti sthalena sthalatāṁ vrajet |
nānārūpadharo [g: dharā] devi [g: devī] sādhako [g: sādhakā] vidyayā yutaḥ [g: vidyayās tataḥ] || ŚM 9/86cd-92

66. Flight is the attainment of the Śiva's own state on the Śāmbhava plane, which is liberation. The YKh also promises that the adept will achieve this and every other power in this way. There we read:

The reciter of Mantra (who has repeated the Vidyā 100,000 times has the power to) assume the form he desires and wanders about as he pleases. He certainly gets whatever he wants. In an instant (he can assume) the form of Śiva, Rudra, Viṣṇu, Brahmā, the Moon, or Sun. In an instant (he becomes) the faultless (nirāmaya) god. In an instant he is pure as a clear sky and is without stain within water. In an instant he becomes as subtle as the billionth part of the tip of a hair. The reciter of mantra, whose form is invisible, will become my equal (says the goddess). (He is) the stainless (nirañjana) god directly apparent, the inexplicable (anākhya), the supreme plane. He does not die and he has no worries on the plane of the Skyfarer. There is no return for him again. He is the mind (manas) on the Śāmbhava plane.

icchārūpadharo mantrī vicareta yathāsukhaṁ |
yān yān vāñchayate kāmān tān tān labhati nānyathā ||
kṣaṇāc ca śāṅkaraṁ rūpaṁ kṣaṇād raudraṁ [k: kṣaṇārūḍhāṁ] ca vaiṣṇavaṁ |
kṣaṇāt pravartate brahmā kṣaṇād eva niśākaram ||
kṣaṇāt sauraṁ pravarteta kṣaṇād devo nirāmayaḥ |
kṣaṇād ākāśavimalaṁ nirmalaṁ jalakāntare ||
bālāgrakoṭirūpeṇa kṣaṇād eva prajāyate |
adṛṣṭavigraho mantrī mama tulyo bhaviṣyati ||
sākṣān nirañjanaṁ devaṁ anākhyaṁ paramaṁ padaṁ |
maraṇaṁ na bhavet tasya kā cintā khecare pade ||
na tasya punarāvṛtir mano 'sau śāmbhave pade | YKh (1) 18/25-30ab (only significant variants are noted)

The KJN (23/2-6) explains that deities and Yoginīs move around in the world in the form of various animals, including some of those mentioned here but with the important difference that the ones listed in the KJN are all female. As such they cannot be sacrificed and so should also not be eaten (ibid. 23/6), an injunction that reminds us of the totemic character of this belief (see below, 37/48cd-50ab). Again, this ability the accomplished adept acquires to change his form, akin to that of the Yoginīs, is an indication of his godly status. Metamorphosis into a divine or animal form are not at variance.

67. YKh (1) (18/16-24) lists the benefits of repeating the Vidyā in the same ascending order in accord with the number of times it is repeated as follows. 108: purity and the removal of obstacles. 1,000: penetration by the Gesture. 3,000: The dawning of the power of Speech and the Supreme Wheel of Energies; attainment of knowledge. 4,000: mastery of Yoga. 5,000: a great gain. 6,000: the adept becomes a king. 7,000: the City is aroused. 8,000: the adept acquires all wealth. 9,000: accomplishment of one's task. 10,000: one becomes strong. 20,000: checking of an enemy army and victory. 30,000: wealth (lakṣmī) of kingdom, the conquest of the eight Vetālas. 40,000: good luck in hunting and gambling. 50,000: the power to shrink (aṇimā) by the Command. 60,000: the power to increase in size. 70,000: the attainment of one's desire. 80,000: the power to move trees, paralysis, cause mountains to fall and explode stones. 90,000: the planets, deities and the like that exert a negative influence are made to fall with the sound HUṀ. One becomes a lion (king) (siṁhaka) and can change his form at will. 100,000: flight.

68. The text tells us that the adept should repeat this Vidyā in conjuction with niśācāra – 'the nocturnal practice', which involves ritual sexual intercourse (see notes to 6/5, 15/39cd-50 and 16/5). It is also called the Kaula vow and is described below in 15/39cd-50. The ŚM prescribes instead that this should be done in conjuction with the inner practice of the Yoga of Stillness (concerning which see intro. vol 1, p. 100 ff.).

69. ŚM: One should repeat the Vidyā in a cremation ground, (under) a solitary tree, on the bank of a river or a crossroad, in a deserted house, O mistress of the gods, or at the confluence of a river, O mistress of the heroes. (One should repeat it) in a sacred seat, sacred field or a meeting ground.

śmaśāne ekavṛkṣe vā nadītīre.atha catvare |
śūnyāgāre ca deveśi saṁgame vīranāyike ||
pīṭhe kṣetre ca saṁdohe vidyājāpyaṁ samārabhet | ŚM 9/94-95ab

70. For a commentary on this verse, and concerning the householder, see intro. vol 1, p. 513 ff..

71. The First Seat (ādipīṭha) is Oḍḍiyāna. Also called Oṁkāra, it is the original sacred seat from which all the others originate.

72. The following chapter continues with the same topic as this one, giving the impression that the division between these two chapters is artificial. Indeed, the correspondences with sections of the same chapter nine of the ŚM continue. These will be noted as we come to them.

NOTES OF THE SANSKRIT TEXT OF CHAPTER TWELVE

1. All other MSs except घ्, च्, छ्: श्रीवक्रा * * * 2. M → N.
3. ख्: कृदि 4. छ्: –नं. A dual ending is required here. See above, note to 5/46d. 5. क्, ग्: सौर्यवृर्त्तिष; ख्, ङ्, ज्: सौर्यवृर्त्तिषु; घ्, च्, छ्:
–वृत्ति च 6. ङ्: विद्यायात्यसनाद्; all other MSs: विद्या–. DS.
Cf. 11/91cd and 12/29b. 7. छ्: कां 8. All MSs: चिता
9. ŚM ग्: निष्ठा 10. ज्: सिद्ध्य; ŚM: च वक्त्रस्था
11. महन्तारिका and महान्तारिका are the usual forms of this word in this text. In this case the form महतारिका avoids a long fifth syllable. ŚM क्: महतारिका; ग्: महतांरिका
12. ŚM ग्: सिद्धि 13. See above, note to 2/25c.
14. All MSs: ब्रह्महत्यया 15. All MSs except क्, ख्, छ्, ज्: तथान्ते
16. क्, ङ्: मायजा पाया:; ख्, ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: मायजा पापा:; च्: मायका पाया:; other MSs:
मायजो पाया. The second vowel in the word माया has been shortened for the metre. Cf.
13/12a. 17. च्: नश्यते. Cf. above, 5/56a. 18. ख्: * द्या; च्:
विद्यां 19. ख्: दिव्यंभोगं. M → N. 20. ङ्: + विद्यावेशात् प्रवर्त्तते परं तत्वं परावस्थात् 21. A plural ending is required here. 22. Missing in MS ङ्
23. ङ्: स्मरण–; च्: मकृत्स्मरण– 24. च्: विद्याया; other MSs: विद्याया:
25. All MSs: संप्रवर्तते। तत्सर्वं or the like is implied for the verb to be singular.
26. M → N. 27. All MSs except छ्: –पौतृकम्
28. All MSs: परमार्थ 29. The use of the singular here and in the following two verses is analogous to 12/6. 30. M → N.
31. ख्: सौभाग्यभतुलं. IM 6 → 7. 32. M → N. See above, note to 3/46b.
33. ख्: सकृत्सारण– 34a. All MSs: आरुहन्ताश्च 34b. Presumably, तेषां लक्षं विद्यावेशात् प्रवर्तते is understood on the analogy of the loose syntax of the previous three and the following three verses.
35. च्: क्षुत्यन्ति. Here, as in 12/15a, this active verbal form has a passive sense. 36. All MSs except क्, झ्, ञ्: –शान
37. क्: शैवसिद्धो–; ख्, ङ्: –शिद्धान्ता 38. All MSs except झ्, ञ्: –लाकुलातुं–
39. तेषां लक्षम् or the like needs to be added to complete the syntax.
40. ङ्: पवर्तते 41. क्, ग्: तत्र; ख्: तत्र (?); घ्, च्, छ्: तन्त्र; ङ्: तत्रा
42. घ्, च्: स्वतन्त्र– 43. M → N.
44. तत्सर्वम्, or the like needs to be added to complete the syntax.
45. The correlative तत् is missing.
46. All MSs except च्, झ्: सर्वं– 47. ङ्: –त
48. The correlative ते is missing.
49. ख्, ङ्: केच्छास्त्र–; छ्: केचित् छ्यस्त्र–
50. छ्: क्षुत्पन्ति. For the passive sense of this active verbal form, cf. above, 12/11a and note. 51. All MSs: विद्याया: 52. ख्, ज्: –र:
53. All MSs except झ्, ञ्: तावद्
54. ख्: गर् * ति; ग्: गजति; घ्, ङ्, च्, छ्, ज्: गर्जति
55. ग्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: –दाद्यारनेकश:; च्: स्वच्छन्दाघारमेकश:; घ्: स्वच्छन्दाद्याननेकश:; all other MSs: स्वच्छन्दाद्याननेकश:. Below in 12/21d अनेकश: clearly means अनेकविध:. This could well be the meaning here also. 56. See above, note to 3/9c.
57. घ्, ङ्, च्, छ्: कला 58. क्, ग्, च्, ज्: नार्हति; घ्, छ्: नार्घन्ति

59. ङ्: –शी 60. M → N. 61. IC.
62. ङ्: विख्य; all other MSs except च्, झ्, ञ्: –खा
63. ज्: –विद्यया:; all MSs: प्राप्य– 64. घ्: शशियद्धवत्; च्, छ्: शशियद्वत्. See above, note to 5/66b. 65. घ्: माप्यायेत्; च्, छ्: साप्यायेत्। आप्यायते is meant here but is one syllable too long for the metre. स्वयम्, or the like, is implied.
66. ख्: तथैव; ङ्: तथोषा 67. क्, ङ्: पूर्णे– 68. All MSs: दीप्त:
69. ङ्: –र 70. The present active is required here, as it is in the previous line and the following.
71. तथा तेषाम् अज्ञानिनाम् would complete the sense and the syntax.
72. ख्, ग्, ज्: च्छेदयेत्नात्र 73. ख्, ङ्: –कुव्जा– 74. क्, च्: –ने; घ्: वरानेन
75. The root दह् is normally 1P. An ātmanepadī form occurs in the Epics.
76. घ्, च्, छ्: देवस्था; other MSs except क्, ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: देहस्थ
77. घ्, छ्: पुत्रपौत्रया:; च्: पुत्रपौत्रयो:; other MSs: –पुण्ययो:
78. ङ्: सपुजन्मार्जितं; छ्: –जन्मातरार्जितं 79. घ्: यान्ति
80. च्: विभ्या– 81. घ्: केचिच्; च्: केकि; छ्: केचि
82. घ्: छास्त्रघात; च्: छास्त्र–; छ्: च्छास्त्र * घाता
83. All MSs: विद्यान्य–. Cf. above, 12/15d.
84. ख्: कना; घ्, ङ्, छ्: कला 85. घ्, छ्: नार्घन्ति 86. ग्, छ्, ज्: –शी
87. ङ्: युक्तं–. The following section from here to 12/42 is also found in chapter 51 of YKh (1) the colophon of which read there: इति श्रीचतुर्विंशतिसाहस्त्रे
विद्यौघविधाने जपमहात्म्यवर्णे क्रमोदयो नामानन्द:।।. This line reads in YKh (1): मुक्तिमेतत् प्रभावोऽ यम् विद्ययाभ्यसनाद् भवेत्। 88. IC. See above, note to 1/5b and 10/14a.
89. All MSs: सिद्ध्यति 90. ख्: –की; all other MSs except झ्: साधकां.
This line reads in YKh (1): अभ्यासावि कृते देवि न च सिद्ध्यन्ति साधका:।
91. ङ्: कर्मर्थं; च्: –र्थ 92. क्, ग्, च्, झ्: महादेव 93.YKh (1): –य
94. क्, ख्: च्छेत्तुर्मर्हसि; ग्, च्: च्छेतुम्–
95. Missing in MSs घ्, च् and छ्. YKh (1): श्रीवक्रो उवाच. YKh (1) begins with this line which is missing here: सृणु देव प्रवक्ष्यामि रहस्यमतिदुर्लभम्। This passage is also found in chapter 9 of the ŚM. But there, a few verses are not in the same order.
96. YKh (1): क्रूरा:; ŚM: ये च 97. झ्, ञ्: जातिशीला–
98. च्: अगम्यागमोद्यता:; घ्, छ्: अगम्या–; YKh (1): गम्यागम्यकृतोद्यमा; ŚM: अगम्ये च कृतोद्यमा:
99. घ्: अभक्षयभक्षणरता:–; YKh (1): अभक्षमपि भक्षन्ति
100. No corresponding root of the sort कलह् exists. Apparently this verb is derived from the noun कलह–; ŚM: नित्यं ह्यभक्ष्ये भक्षन्ति कलहन्ति यतस्तत:।.
101. च्, छ्: –ता; YKh (1): बहुलौल्यपरायणा: (ग्: –लौलापरायणा:); ŚM: लौल्यार्थे च परायणा:
102. All MSs except झ्, ञ्: –प्रशक्ताश्च
103. YKh (1): –शास्त्राश्च चिन्तका:; ŚM: न च ते सिद्धिभाजना:
104. All MSs: उद्गाहयन्ति. The emendation agrees with the reading in YKh
(1). 105. ख्, ङ्: तत्कार्यं; घ्, झ्: तत्कार्थं 106. The root वद् is 1P but normally becomes ātmanepadī with the prefix वि–. 107. YKh (1): अर्थसंग्रहनेषु च 108. YKh (1):
क्रमर्थं च 109. ख्: निदा; all other MSs and YKh (1) ग्: निन्दा 110. YKh (1) ग्: राग
111. M → N. See above, note to 6/115c. YKh (1) reads the extra line:
मद्यमांसं च सेवन्ति मेथुनं च रमन्ति च। The equivalent of this and the following line in YKh
(1) is: समयद्रोहं प्रकुर्वन्ति गुरुद्रोहपरायणा:।
112. ङ्: –ह; YKh (1): गुरुद्रोह

113. All other MSs except ख्, ग्, ङ्, च्: वरानने; YKh (1): परायणा:
114. YKh (1) ग्: तदा 115. ख्, ग्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: –भ्यसनाद्यपि; च्: विद्याभ्यसनामपि; all other MSs: –भ्यासनाद्यपि; YKh (1): –भ्यसनादपि.
116. क्: तत्र–; all other MS: तप–; YKh (1) ग्: –भ्रष्टो. One could assume that the word तपस् has been thematized (see above, note to 5/22a) but I have chosen to emend in accord with the reading in YKh (1) and the ŚM.
117. ख्, ङ्: –मधोत्सुका:; YKh (1): कामभोग यथेच्छया
118. ख्: अगम्यगमनार्द्; YKh (1): अगम्यागमने
119. YKh (1): न मुक्तिर्विद्यते 120. YKh (1): क्वचित् 121. ख्, ङ्: –रास्ते
122. छ्: –ता; YKh (1): स्वपचाश्चैव चाण्डाला:
123. ङ्: प्राकृ:; झ्, ञ्: प्रकृता: 124. ख्, घ्, ङ्, च्, ज्: स्वान–; ग्, छ्: स्वानकुकूटा:. The stem form of the first member should be शुन–. YKh (1) reads: स्थानपुष्कसा:. The reading in the YKh (1) suggests the emendation –पुल्कसा:. However, the reading here is confirmed by the ŚM. 125. च्: खादति; झ्, ञ्: खदन्ति; YKh (1): भुञ्जन्ति 126. ङ्: स्वेछयां; YKh (1): उच्छया 127. कुर्वन्ति would be better than यान्ति here but is too long for the metre. YKh (1) read this line: गम्यागम्याम् प्रकुर्वन्ति अज्ञानपशुभावनात्।
128. ङ्: वङगपानात्; घ्, छ्: –पानान् 129. क्, ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: –भोक्त्रस्; छ्: –तिच्छाभोक्तेस्–;
घ्: मुक्तितिच्छाभोक्तेस्, all other MSs: –भोक्तस्–; YKh (1): कुतोन् मुक्ति छाभाकुम्
130. All MSs: अगम्याच्च अनाचारात्. This emendation agrees with the reading in YKh (1). 131. All MSs except घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: अभक्षयस्य; YKh (1): अभक्षस्य 132. There are two examples in this line of contracted genitive plurals formed to save syllables for the metre. One is पापिष्ठाम् which is a shortened form of पापिष्ठानाम् and the other is दूषकाम् which is short for दूषकानाम्. See above, note to 4/46d. The Sanskrit of this quarter in YKh (1) is correct, which reads: पापिष्ठानां नराणाञ्च 133. YKh (1): रिद्विष्टो 134. ङ्: तत्रवादि–आ; all other MSs: तत्र–. This emendation agrees with the reading in YKh (1). 135. All MSs: अमार्गेषु; YKh (1): –प्रपन्नानां
136. YKh (1): मुक्ति विद्यते 137. YKh (1): व्रतभ्रष्टा नरा ये च 138. क्: –जोपका:
139. All MSs: साधनं। This line reads in YKh (1): न च मुक्तास्तु ससारे न च ते मुचका:
स्मृता:। 140. All MSs: –गणा:. In YKh (1) this line reads: एवंविधाश्च ये शिष्या आचार्य वाथ
साधका:। 141. ग्, ङ्: सिष्या; ज्: सिष्या: 142. Missing in MS घ्, च् and छ्
143. All MSs: पि. This and the following line are missing in YKh (1).
144. All MSs: भवते 145. Missing in MS घ्, च् and छ्
146. क्, ग्: निलाभा; ख्: निलाभा:; घ्, च्: निर्लोभ; ङ्: विलाभा:; छ्: निर्लोभा; YKh (1): निर्लोभा 147. YKh (1): सदया 148. YKh (1): धन्या. I have not emended to the correct sandhi as it can be optionally dropped between pādas.
149. YKh (1): सदा: 150. YKh (1): शाता श्वती च गम्भीरा: i.e. शान्ता धीराश्च गम्भीरा: 151. तर्कशास्त्रोपेक्षका: would be correct but is too short for the metre. YKh (1) accepts a hiatus in the compound without inserting a filler: बहुशास्त्र – उपेक्षका:
152. घ्, च्, छ्: अनुरुक्ताश्च 153. Instead of this line YKh (1) reads: अपेक्षा
सर्वभावेषु सर्वबीजदयापरा:। 154. YKh (1): एवंभूतगुणा देव शिद्ध्यन्ते निर्विशंकिता:।
155. झ्, ञ्: सद्ध्यते 156. YKh (1): देवा 157. YKh (1): अन्यथा
158. क्, ग्, घ्, छ्: –न: 159. ख्, ङ्: परं–; YKh (1): पारम्पर्यक्रमे
160. घ्: अर्घसस्कार– 161. क्, ख्, घ्: सस्फुटा; ग्, ङ्, ज्: सस्फटा; YKh (1):
सस्फुटा 162. ग्: योवन्न ज्ञात्वा; YKh (1): यावन्नाज्ञा.

163. All MSs: सिद्धिः; YKh (1): सिद्धि
164. YKh (1): भवेत्. See above, note to 4/35b.
165. घ्, ङ्: –था; YKh (1): अन्यतन्त्रं 166. ङ्: दिनिः–
167. ख्: याति–; घ्, च्, छ्: जानि–; ङ्: यामि–. YKh (1): जातयुक्ता न
168. YKh (1): सिद्धिदा 169. झ्, ञ्: च
170. ङ्: विज्ञया. This quarter reads in YKh (1): पूर्णारूपेण सा सिद्धा. The following line is missing in YKh (1). 171. YKh (1): + च 172. ङ्: –से
173. घ्, च्, छ्: –वतारे 174. ग्: –शत्सहसं–; घ्: –शतिस–; छ्: –शतिंशत्–

NOTES OF THE TRANSLATION OF CHAPTER TWELVE

1. This verse is also ŚM 9/93. The reader is referred to the Sanskrit edition for variants here and in other cases where correspondences are found in other sources. It appears that our text is referring to the Samayā Vidyā here as that of the goddess Mahantārikā who is indeed a form of the goddess Kubjikā. This is perplexing because Mahantārikā is also treated separately with her own Vidyā and visualized forms. But there can be no doubt that the identification made here between the Samayā Vidyā and Mahantārikā is intentional. In the previous chapter, the goddess, with reference to her Samayā Vidyā, says that she is the Mahantārikā Vidyā (see 9/26 above). The context in both the ŚM and the KuKh is concerned with extolling the Samayā Vidyā and the right conduct one should take care to maintain while practicing it.

2. Concerning Kubjikā's alchemical and medicinal connection (rasāyana), see note to 6/135.

3. Vāgbhava, that is, the syllable AIṀ, is amongst the most important seed-syllables for all schools of Śaivism. It is especially important for Kaulas as the seed-syllable of creation and representation of the triangular Yoni of the goddess. Of all the Kaula schools, the Western Tradition of the goddess Kubjikā has centred on this syllable in a particularly special way. In this sense, the teachings or school concerned with Vāgbhava is this one.

4. The Nityātantra is linked to the worship of Kālī in the KMT. Kāmeśvarī is called Nityā (KMT 10/41c). YKh (1) refers to a group of Nine Nityās (navanityā). Thus, 'Nityā' is a generic name for a Kaula goddess. So, presumably, the Nityā Tantras are Kaula Tantras centred on the worship of a goddess.

5. Concerning the Lākulīśa Pāśupatas, the Siddhānta, the Vāma Tantras of Tumburu Bhairava, and the Gāruḍa Tantras, see Dyczkowski 1986: 19 ff.

6. Penetration by the Vidyā gives knowledge of all the systems and Tantras because they emanate, along with all the mantras and sacred sites, from the goddess's body. By projecting the Vidyā onto his own body, the adept transforms it into that of the goddess. As he rises through this body, he traverses and contains all the states and levels of being that correspond to all the schools emitted and contained in the goddess's body, from the Buddhist at her feet to the highest – the paścimāmnāya – which, above her head, is above all the others.

7. The goddess is frequently said to be sixfold. The Vidyā is therefore also 'sixfold'. In a general sense this is because it is has six limbs, as do all major mantras. In a special, specific sense it is sixfold because it is the essence of the Krama, which is divided into six groups of mantras.

8. The optimal progressive development through the lower teachings to this, the highest one, takes place over seven lifetimes. In the eighth life the seeker is graced with the initiation which allows him to practice the Vidyā of the goddess. This burns away his past karmas, both those that are accrued by bad actions as well as those from the relatively good actions performed in accord with the lower teachings of the other schools he belonged to in these previous lives. Thus he attains liberation in this, his final life.

9. Most of the following passage up to the end of the chapter is found in the ŚM, although the verses are not in the same order. The number of the corresponding verses (according to my edition) and their variant readings are recorded in the notes to the Sanskrit text. The same passage, with the verses in the same order, is found in YKh (1) with which it has been collated.

10. A prostitute is 'one to whom one should not go' (agamyā). As we shall see in chapter sixteen, the observer of the Kaula vow who goes on pilgrimage to the sacred site where the Mothers reside in the bodies of low-caste women should practise the 'practice of the night'. This involves his union with these women who are considered to be Yoginīs, not prostitutes. The way the adept is admonished here suggests that it is necessary to warn him of the abuse of this practice.

11. Literally 'cookers of dogs'.

12. The ŚM adds: And they speak badly of virgins and, O beloved, they are devoted to bad deeds. How can (one achieve) liberation by much drink? Nor (does one gain any) worldly benefit (from it) at any time. Those who have fallen from the Rule wander about like despised dogs. Devoid of any accomplishment, how can they be liberated? Those who speak badly of the teachers, Yoginīs, Siddhas and the special scriptures (viśeṣa), and who reveal all the secrets (they know), are said to be donkeys. Oneness of food, oneness of action and oneness of knowledge as the third – these three – their reason destroyed by oneness – are devoid of accomplishment.

nindanti ca kumārīṇāṁ kṣudrakarmaratāḥ priye |
bahupānāt [kh g: -pāne] kuto muktir na ca bhuktiḥ kadācana ||
bhramanti samayabhraṣṭā yathā śvānaś ca kutsitāḥ [kh: kukkuṭāḥ] |
sarvasiddhivinirmuktās teṣāṁ muktiḥ kuto bhavet ||
guruyoginīsiddhānāṁ viśeṣāgamanindakāḥ |
nindakā gardabhāḥ proktāḥ [kh g: sarvadevānāṁ] sarvaguhyaprakāśakāḥ ||
bhakṣādvaitaṁ kriyādvaitaṁ jñānādvaitaṁ tṛtīyakam |
trīṇy ete siddhinirmuktā advaitanaṣṭacetanāḥ || ŚM 9/106-109

13. The later Kaula Tantras are notorious for the offerings called the Five Ms : madya – wine, māṁsa – meat, mudrā – snacks eaten with the alcohol, matsya – fish and maithuna – the sexual fluids derived from sexual intercourse. In the earlier period there were only three Ms, the first two and fifth of this series. See note to 46/302.

14. The version in the ŚM (9/127) says: Where is success so long as one does not clearly know the transmission (krama) of the (spiritual) lineage concerning the maṇḍala used to purify Vidyā and mantra.

NOTES OF THE SANSKRIT TEXT OF CHAPTER THIRTEEN

1. घ्: सिवेति. DS. See above, note to 6/153d.
2. ङ्: * थितं; च्: कथिते. M → N.
3. गच्छति is apparently meant here. 4. घ्: अपूर्णभ्यात्
5. घ्, च्, छ्: वि 6. ङ्: भूजते. The root भुज् (7U) is almost always conjugated in this way throughout this text. See 9/76b, 9/78b, 11/76c, 11/78b, 13/53b, 13/89a, 31/97c, 40/29d, 68/41ab (twice), and 68/42b. There are also instances of an equivalent parasmaipadī form, i.e. भुञ्जति (see 7/75d, 10/49b, 13/2b, 13/11b and 13/91d), but this is less common.
7. ङ्: भागान्; च्, छ्: भोगात् 8. क्, ख्, ग्, ज्: संसाररति; च्, छ्: संसारारति
9. क्, ख्, ग्, छ्, ज्: * मासृतः; च्: माश्रितं। तमाश्रितः could be broken up into तम् and आश्रितः in which case तम् would refer to भोगम्. In that case we would have to assume that the required तान्, agreeing with भोगान्, has been treated as singular in order to avoid a long fifth syllable. Another possibility, which I prefer, is to break it up into तम– and –आश्रितः and assume that the noun तमस् has been treated as a thematic noun, as often occurs in this and other Tantric texts. For example, see below, 13/12d, 88c, (possibly) 15/9c, 16/79b, 18/ 84c, 24/7a, 39/36b, and 57/33a. Above in 2/9b and below in 24/11d and 25/36d we find examples of the regular form.
Compare the analogous thematization of रजस् to रज– , for which see above, note to 4/10c. 10. च्: –दि 11. ख्, ङ्: –वक्र उवाच; घ्, च्, छ्: –वक्रोवाच
12. All MSs: स्वरभ्रष्टं 13. ङ्: पर
14. छ्: अवर्ण्णं नत्व–; all other MSs except क्, घ्, ङ्: अवर्ण–
15. See above, note to 3/52c. 16. All MSs: सर्वतो–
17. This line and the next are missing in MS च्
18. छ्: –भुंक्तेश; all other MSs: भुक्तेश 19. घ्: सस्थितं
20. Missing in MSs घ्, च् and छ्.
21. Missing in MSs घ् and च्.
22. घ्, च्, छ्: अरेपञ्; all other MSs: अलेपं
23. All MSs: –द्याः. Cf.12/38c. 24. झ्: –परायणाः; all other MSs: –यणः
25. घ्: –भूति 26. घ्: सर्वागस्थगतो 27. तस्मात्, or the like, is required to complete the syntax. 28. All MSs: कश्चिदशरीर 29. घ्, च्, छ्: चदात्–
30. च्: तद्यासौ 31. क्: तत्त्व 32. All MSs: अधोमूर्तिस्तु
33. ख्: * * (?)युक्ता; झ्: –युक्तो 34. All MSs: याति 35. घ्, छ्: –नां
36. च्, छ्: मूर्तिभूतममूर्तस्त्व; all other MSs: मूर्तिभूतममूर्तस्त्वं
37. घ्, च्, छ्: कर्तृ *; all other MSs: कर्तृत्व
38. The root व्रज् is normally 1P. 39. ख्: व्रजे भेदेन
40. ग्, झ्: –मेलकः; all other MSs: –युक्तमपेलकः IC, IM 6. 41. च्, छ्, ज्: लिप्तस्तु
42. See 13/2a and note. 43. क्: भव; all other MSs: भवे
44. ख्: –धिस्थितम्; all other MSs except झ्: –तं. पूर्वकर्माधिष्ठितः is meant here (cf.
13/49a). Note also that the compound has not only been contracted but the medial vowel between the two words in the compound has been shortened for the metre.
45. All MSs: मायजं. I have chosen to emend even though the same reading appears in the next verse, as there is no reason for the shortening of the vowel here. Cf.12/4c (where metre requires shortening) and 13/13a (where it does not).

46. मल– is listed in the dictionary as both masculine and neuter. It is treated as neuter in the first line of this verse and masculine in the second.

47. क्, ग्, ज्: सत्वोरजस्तमो–; ख्, ङ्, ज्: सत्वोरजस्तमे–. The word तमस् has become a thematic noun. See above, note to 13/2b. The regular form –तमसेरितः does not fit the meter. 48. All MSs: मायजं. Cf. 13/12a.
49. ङ्: –ढ. Cf. 13/3a. 50. All MSs except छ्, ज्: * * शक्त्या *
51. च्, छ्: समरे 52. ङ्: यदत्–
53. क्, ग्: कर्म्मेज–; घ्, च्, छ्: –प्राप्तिं; all other MSs: –संप्राप्ति
54. क्, ग्: कर्म्मेज–. All except ख्, ग्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: –संस्थितिचित्पुरे
55. क्: भूया; all other MSs: भूयो 56. घ्, छ्: –र्याच्; च्: कुर्या 57. घ्, च्, छ्: छक्तिंपातेन
58. See above, note to 9/41c.

59. All MSs: पूर्वकरणं. IM 7. Presumably, पूर्वकरणाक्रान्तम् (agreeing with मलम्) is meant here. 60. च्: अधोर्द्धश्; other MSs except क्, ख्, ग्, छ्, ज्: तथोर्ध्वं. MS ख् adds तु. DS. 61. ग्, च्, छ्: विप–; घ्: विपट्टिदं
62. क्: शक्तिदीप–; घ्, च्, छ्: शक्तिदीपिशि–
63. क्, च्: आनन्दात्व; ख्, ग्, छ्, ज्: आनन्दान्व; घ्, ङ्: आनन्दा च; all other MSs: आनन्दात्वं
64. ख्, ङ्: –मलस्तेत्र 65. च्, छ्: –ध्याने; all other MSs: –ध्वाने
66. छ्: व 67. क्, ग्: लीलेया 68. क्: ऊर्द्धम्
69. क्, ग्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: ऊर्णान्तंतुनिनादवत्; घ्: –निनानवत्; all other MSs: उर्णान्तंतुनिनादवत्
70. IM 6 + 7. 71. ङ्: प्रोक्तनं 72. घ्, छ्: जन्मलं
73. घ्: – शिवेण 74. क्: नीयते 75. घ्, च्, छ्: घोम्नि

76. तदा मल आत्मानं त्यजति यथा (मलस्त्यजति काञ्चनम्), or the like, is required to complete the sense and the syntax. 13/26a reads: शक्तिपातेन संशुद्धिर्. The remaining three *pāda*s of 13/26 are the same as the following three here.

77. All MSs except ङ्, झ्: –धं तु

78. Pādas 13/19d-13/20ab are repeated below as 13/26bcd.

79. This line is missing here in MS ङ्. In that MS, it comes after line 13/22ab. Then the following two lines (i.e. 13/20cd and 13/21ab) are repeated. All MSs: ऊण–.

80. क्: आत्मोत्तोरं; ग्, ज्: आत्मात्तरं; all other MSs: आत्मोत्तरं 81. All MSs: सूर्य्य
82. ङ्: –तं 83. All MSs: –स्थं
84. All MSs except ज्, झ्: पदा
85. घ्, च्: मुंच्येजन्म–; झ्: मुच्येज्जन्म–; all other MSs: मुच्येजन्म–.
86. क्, घ्, च्, छ्: आत्मैचात्मा; all other MSs: आत्मैवात्मा
87. All MSs: शोध्य 88. Cf. below, 13/43b.
89. See above, note to 1/17c; cf. above, 9/42d.
90. ग्, घ्: दहे; ङ्: देह; all other MSs except झ्: देहे
91. ङ्: –त्तमयुक्तम्तु; other MSs: –त्तमयुक्तस्तु 92. घ्, च्, छ्: –पापद्वये
93. घ्: कांचन + नं; ङ्: काचनन 94. ङ्: –संगा 95. ङ्: दिनश्यन्ति
96. घ्: विशुद्धा–; all other MSs: विशुद्धः– 97. All MSs: महामाया
98. ङ्: गति * त्तमा 99. च्: शिवेव
100. घ्, छ्: मलयाक–. M → N. 101. ङ्: स्थुलं 102. ङ्: पर

103. The root द्रु is1P. Here the optative is ātmanepadī to gain a syllable for the metre. 104. घ्: –विनिर्मुक्त सं; all other MSs: –विनिर्मुक्तो सं
105. ङ्: –ष 106. ङ्: योगीणोयं

107. The root चर is normally 1P.
108. All MSs except ग्, झ्: लेयोस्ति 109. ङ्, च्: चेछया
110. ग्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: सिवस्यैव 111. All MSs except झ्: लेयोस्ति
112. क्, च्: योगाभयासात्व; ख्, झ्: योगाभयासात्तु, all other MSs: योगाभ्यासान्व
113. ङ्: –रूपे * 114. क्, ग्: विद्धास्यव; ख्, ङ्, ज्: विद्धास्येव; घ्, च्, छ्:
विद्धास्ये * 115. See above, note to 1/17c; cf. above, 9/42d and 13/23a. 116. The required final anusvāra has been dropped for the metre. Or, one could also conceive this deviation as a change in gender from the regular masculine to neuter.
117. ख्, ङ्: यास्य * 118. ग्: व्युन्क्रमात्
119. ग्: पार्थिव; other MSs: –वं; YKh (1) ङ्: पाथिवे KuKh 13/32cd-39 = YKh (1)
8/8-15ab. 120. YKh (1) ङ्: यानि
121. All MSs: अपो. The word आपस् is normally declined only in the plural.
122. YKh (1) क्, घ्: तेजा 123. ङ्: ह्यग्ने लयं; all other MSs except घ्, ङ्: ह्यग्नेर्लयं 124. ङ्: या *
125. Here, as elsewhere, मारुत् is declined as if it were a thematic stem noun. 126. YKh (1): रासं वै 127. YKh(1): जलमध्ये (घ्: –मध्य)
128. The root व्रज् is normally 1P.
129. YKh (1) घ्: –क। इति, or the like, is required to complete the syntax.
130. YKh (1) ग्: शब्दो; घ्: शव्द; M → N. 131. YKh(1): लीयति
132. ङ्: स्पर्श; YKh (1) घ्, ङ्: स्पर्श वै. M → N. 133. YKh (1): –मण्डले
134. M → N. 135. YKh (1) घ्: and MS ङ्: –मध्य
136. YKh (1) क्, ख्, घ्: ह्यग्निमुखा; ग्: ह्यग्नि–; ङ्: ह्यग्निमुखोद्
137. YKh (1) ख्: ह्नतं; ङ्: गत 138. च्, छ्: गन्ध; YKh (1) ङ्: गत्वं. M → N.
139. YKh (1): तथा (ख्, ङ्: तन्मा) भ्रमति (ङ्: त्रमिति)
140. YKh (1) क्, ख्, घ्: वुद्धिंद्रिगेश्वरी; ग्: बुद्धीन्द्रियेश्वरी; ङ्: वुद्धिंद्रियेषु
141. YKh (1) क्, ख्, घ्: तथे; ग्: नाथ; ङ्: संपर्
142. छ्: पाशि:; YKh (1) क्, ख्, घ्: पाणिं; ङ्: कात्रत्रयं
143. च्: करणं–; YKh (1) ङ्: *यदाभवेत्
144. All MSs: –न्ति. The root ली is listed as 1P, 9 P and 4Ā, the regular forms are thus लयति, लिनाति and लीयते, respectively. The dual number, not the plural, is required here but would not fit the metre. This emendation agrees with the reading in YKh (1). 145. All MSs: वायुर्व्वा; YKh (1) घ्: वायुवै
146. YKh (1) क्, ख्, ग्: –मण्डलै; घ्: –मण्डिले 147. YKh (1) घ्: उपस्थ
148. YKh (1): मध्यस्थं 149. ङ्: –क; YKh (1) ख्: कार्म–
150. घ्, च्, छ्: बुद्धिन्द्रियेषु 151. ङ्: संपक्कात्; YKh (1): संप्रर्का
152. घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: तल्लपं; all other MSs except ग्, ङ्: तल्लेपं; YKh (1): लल्लपं
153. All MSs: यथा; YKh (1): यदा
154. All MSs except झ्: लीयन्ति. A deviant parasmaipadī form takes the place of the regular ātmanepadī form of this verb throughout the next few verses.
Cf. 13/36a. 155. YKh (1) and all MSs: शव्दस्य
156. All MSs: वा पिशितस्य च; YKh (1): चै पिशितस्य च
157. ग्, घ्, छ्: चक्षुली–; YKh (1) क्, घ्: * तुल्लीयति; ख्, ङ्: चतुल्लीयति
158. See above, note to 5/46d. 159. च्, छ्: नाहु–
160. घ्: नाशिका; YKh (1) क्, ख्, ग्, घ्: –कां 161. ङ्: –तत्वतु

162. YKh (1): न 163. ख्: लीयेति
164.YKh (1) क्, ख्, घ्: पिंदौ 165. YKh (1) ङ्: तु
166. ग्, घ्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: धिप:; YKh (1) ग्, ङ्: बुद्ध्यहङ्कार; क्, ख्, घ्: वुद्ध्यंहंकार. The singular (धी:) we expect here is too short for the metre and so has been replaced by the plural. Even so, the text still makes sense.
167. YKh (1): मण्डले 168. YKh (1): –रं
169. YKh (1): गुणे (क्, घ्, ङ्: गुणं; ख्: गुण)याति (क्, ख्, घ्: यांति; ङ्: यति)
170. All MSs: प्रकृति: 171. YKh (1): गुणा: प्रकृतिमण्डले
172. ग्: –वशंगो; घ्, च्, छ्: कर्मकामार्थवशगो; ङ्: –वशागा; all other MSs: –वशगो
173. The regular चतुर्विंशत्यात्मकम् would not fit the metre. See above, note to 3/9c. 174. ख्: नास्ति; ङ्: + च 175. घ्, च्, छ्: –वर्गेश्
176. This and the next two and a half lines are missing in MSs ख् and ङ्.
177. घ्: संयातात् 178. This verb requires an object.
179. A genitive would make better syntax but does not fit the metre and so has been replaced by the instrumental. See above, note to 10/47d.
180. छ्, ज्: कैलासे; all other MSs: कैलास 181. All MSs: मेकमूर्धनि
182. Missing in MSs ख् and ङ्; other MSs: –रिदं. IC. 183. ख्, ङ्: नास्ति
184. Cf. above, 13/40b 185. All MSs: –हतस्य
186. All MSs except झ्: –कल्पे 187. Cf. above, 13/22d.
188. क्, ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: ह्येक:; घ्: ह्येक
189. ङ्: दर्पण; all other MSs: दर्पणं
190. All MSs except घ्, छ्: –सुखं
191. क्, ख्, ग्: अभित्वो; all other MSs: अभित्वा 192. ङ्: प्रविशत्
193. क्: तत्रं 194. All MSs: कुलमन्तर्गत: 195. ङ्: –निर्मुक्त
196. ङ्: मोक्ष. M → N. 197. All MSs: चारु
198. घ्, ङ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –कश्च
199. Cf. 13/31b. जानाति or the like needs to be supplied to the first line and तथा to the second with भवति.
200. ङ्: –यात; all other MSs except झ्: –याते
201. घ्, ङ्, च्, छ्, ज्: वसं 202. ग्: –प्ताप्ते
203. Cf. 12/32c, 13/55a and 13/73a. 204. ङ्: –णे
205. ग्: –हतु– 206. Presumably मुक्ति: is the subject of तिष्ठति which replaces भवति. So that मुक्तिर्न भवति is meant here.
207. All MSs: न विना 208. घ्, ङ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –शोधने
209. पूर्वकर्मवशात् is meant here, cf. 13/11d. 210. All MSs: –ति
211. All MSs: मलस् 212. घ्, च्, छ्: अविधित्वा 213. घ्: परे
214. ग्, ङ्: वद्धा; घ्: वत्यो; च्, छ्: वत्वा 215. क्, ग्: नु; ख्: ने
216. All MSs: व्रतात्मनि शोधिते 217. क्, ख्, ग्: –न; च्: अनसने. IM 5 + 6.
218. क्: श * णागतसंवेधे; ग्: –संवेदे; ङ्: शरणगत– 219. च्: गोत्रहे
220. क्, ख्, ग्: –तेन– 221. ङ्: रणपि 222. All MSs: मुक्तिरिति
223. ङ्: यथा: 224. च्: –श्यति; all other MSs: क्लिष्यन्ति। क्लिश् is generally considered to be 4Ā and so the regular form here would be क्लिश्यन्ते, which would make the fifth syllable long. However, some authorities consider this root to also be parasmaipadī. 225. घ्, छ्: जना

226. The root आप् is 5P, so the regular form of the active present third person plural would be अवाप्नुवन्ति. In this case it appears that the passive form of the verb has assumed the function of the active.

227. All MSs: –गुण। अष्टविधगुणो would be correct. We notice how the suffix –धा serves the function of विध– here as elsewhere. तेषाम्, or the like, is required to complete the syntax. 228. क्, ग्: –शेष; ख्, च्: –शेषे; घ्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: रिणशेषे

229. छ्: मर्य 230. There are several instances throughout our text of the genitive serving as the case of the direct object, as happens here. See above, note to 5/62a.

231. ग्: कर्मे–. See above, note to 1/17c. The regular form appears below, 13/71a and 13/104d. 232. च्: विता

233. क्, ग्: –त्रादन–; ख्, ङ्: –दनस्वासात्

234. See above, note to 3/25d. 235. च्, छ्: गल–

236. All MSs: –प्रत्ययम् 237. All MSs: मुक्तीह cf. 13/46b.

238. Missing in MSs ख्, घ्, and ङ्

239. Missing in MSs ख्, घ्, and ङ् 240. ग्: प्रा–; घ्: प्रकृति

241. All MSs: –धार: 242. क्: स्वकर्म्माणि; ग्: स्वकर्मण; all other MSs: स्वकर्मेण 243. ङ्: इहाच्यते 244. क्: –य

245. घ्, च्, छ्: शून्यामनाशृत्य; all other MSs except क्, ख्, ज्: –मनोश्रित्य. As in many other places, the word मनस् is treated here as if it were a thematic noun (see above, note to 3/134a). Moreover, this compound is irregular in the same manner as is the one at the beginning of the next line. The regular form would be शून्यमनसमाश्रित्य.

246. घ्, च्, छ्: निराशीनि 247. क्, ग्, घ्: –स्वभावयदारुह्य; all other MSs except छ्, ज्: –स्वभावपदारुह्य। नास्तिभावपदमारुह्य does not fit the metre and so the ending of the compound has been dropped and fused with the following verb thus forming this irregular compound. 248. घ्, च्, छ्: –क्ष

249. बहिष्कर्माणि would correct but makes the fifth syllable long.

250. घ्, च्, छ्: –वा 251. क्, ङ्, च्, झ्: शोध्यानेन; all other MSs: शोध्याध्वानेन

252. ख्: –नन्तेमायाकर्मसमुर्च्चेयं; घ्: मायाशृतोनन्तमाकर्म–; all other MSs: –समुच्चयं

253. All MSs: –बीज: 254. ङ्: कथ 255. घ्, च्, छ्: तस्माद्

256. All MSs except झ्: वन्धनं 257. All MSs except झ्: –विमिशृतम्

258. घ्, च्, छ्: पञ्च; ङ्: एव 259. ङ्: –ण

260. M → N. See above, note to 7/12d. 261. ङ्: व्यक्तं–

262. All MSs: यथोदितं 263. All MSs except झ्: –विधिस्वरूपेण

264. All MSs: सर्वत्र 265. घ्, च्, छ्: श्रीवक्रोवाच 266. क्, ग्, च्, झ्: पुरा

267. घ्, च्, छ्: –नन्दिनी 268. घ्: –लन्ति; ङ्: –लंत 269. ङ्: –सेने

270. ख्: रिजु 271. ङ्: –रत् 272. ग्: यानि–

273. घ्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: –मासृत्य 274. The root जल्प् is normally 1P.

275. घ्, च्, छ्: द्व्यगुहान्ते

276. क्, ख्, ग्, च्, ज्: –रेत्; घ्: –रे; ङ्: सस्मरेत्। ताम्, or the like, is required to complete the syntax. 277. ङ्: ज्ञाचनचंद्रण 278. All MSs: –णा

279. All MSs: –वक्रा 280. घ्: नाशि–; ङ्: –काग्र

281. तस्या:, or the like, is required here to complete the syntax.

282. ङ्: वर्तत 283. छ्, ज्: –शनं 284. All MSs: –धारणा

285. छ्, ज्: –पत्तिश्च 286. घ्: कृत्याद्; all other MSs: कृत्वाद्
287. All MSs: मायाविध्वस्त 288. घ्, छ्: समाभ्यासा; all other MSs: सदाभ्यासा
289. ङ्: सोगनिद्रारतो; all other MSs: योगनिद्रारतो
290. ङ्: भवे 291. M → N. 292. क्, ग्: मुकु–
293. घ्, च्, छ्: विभक्त्यर्थ; all other MSs: विभक्त्यर्थं
294. ग्: –भेदे; ङ्: –भेद. M → N. 295. ङ्: –पर 296. All MSs: तश्च
297. All MSs: कर्मात् 298. The use of the imperative here is anomolous. A present or optative would be more appropriate.
299. See above, note to 5/46d.
300. घ्, च्, छ्: आनवे; ङ्: आरवे 301. च्: न्नमे
302. घ्, च्, छ्: श्रीवक्रोवाच; ङ्: श्रीनाथ उवाच
303. Some words need to be supplied to make this statement complete. The intended meaning is, apparently, निग्रहस्य च संशुद्धिः कर्तव्या। निग्रहमन्तर्यागे विशोधयेत्।
304. ख्, ङ्: –ग्रमे 305. All MSs: कर्मक्षयो–. क्: –नन्तदेह; all other MSs: –नन्तदेहे 306. क्: पूर्व
307. All MSs: क्रमार्चनम्. I have made this emendation on the basis of the affirmation made below in 13/140ab that, as one would expect, the Krama is worshipped after the initiate has been purified.
308. ङ्, छ्: क्षय 309. ङ्: तस्ये
310. घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: किमौषधं; ङ्: किमौषधा; other MSs: –धम्
311. घ्, ङ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –मार्ग 312. घ्, च्, छ्: श्रीवक्रोवाच 313. ङ्: –का; छ्: तात्रिका:
314. च्, छ्: –सशुद्धिर्; all other MSs: –संशुद्धिर् 315. ङ्: विन्दति
316. यथा serves to mark the main clause, which is here clumsily counter balanced by the following dependent clause marked by तेन instead of the regular तथा. 317. Missing in MSs ग्; घ्, च्, छ्: वि. 318. Cf. 13/46b.
319. च्, छ्: –ग्राम 320. ङ्: निन–
321. क्, घ्, छ्, ज्: –भू:; all other MSs except ख्, ङ्: स्वयंभु:
322. ङ्: कारण 323. ख्, च्, ङ्: जीव. M → N.
324. All MSs except झ्: चारोचार–
325. ङ्: चैतन्यें; all other MSs except ख्: चार्द्ध–
326. क्: उदयस्तिमनेकत्वं; घ्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: –मनेकत्वे; all other MSs except झ्: –नेकत्वं
327. All MSs: –गतस्य च 328. ग्: –प्रतिबिं *
329. घ्, च्: ताद्यमान:; झ्: ताप्यमान:; all other MSs: नाद्यमान:
330. All MSs except च्, झ्: –व
331. क्, ग्, छ्: –मध्य; झ्: क्षर– 332. All MSs except घ्, ङ्, च्, छ्: यथाष्टतम्
333. M → N. 334. ङ्: तस्य–
335. घ्, च्, छ्: –रिजुरेह्या; झ्: शक्तिरिनु–; all other MSs: शक्तिरिजुरेखा
336. ख्, ङ्: –मा 337. All MSs except झ्: सृष्टिवर्गस्य
338. समुद्भूता would be correct. Cf. above, 13/74b.
339. ग्, घ्, ङ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –धरात्पुत्रा 340. ख्: मनान्मनी 341. क्, च्, छ्: कर्म:
342. छ्, ज्: नि:कलस्य 343. All MSs: समुद्भव:
344. क्: याया–; घ्: –स्थितं; ग्, ङ्, च्, छ्, ज्: यायातत्वोपरिस्थितं 345. ङ्: मल
346. क्, ग्: न 347. क्: स्य
348. All MSs: संहारे सृष्टिस्थितिश्च 349. घ्: संघोरे; छ्: संघारे

350. ग्, ङ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –पासकं 351. ङ्: पंचवौतिकब्रह्माद्या–; ख्: –द्यो; all other MSs except झ्: –द्या 352. All MSs: संसृष्टिमवतारका:

353. च्, छ्: कतृमं 354. घ्, च्, छ्: भौगमा–; ङ्: –बौवेष्टितं

355. IC. 356. ङ्: विदु–

357. Concerning this reduced form of the word जगत् see above, note to 6/134d. The same expression, जगोत्तरे, appears again in 55/2b.

358. च्: सं; all other MSs: स

359. व्यापी is meant to agree with प्रकृति: and so व्यापिनी would be correct but does not fit the metre. A similar deviation is found in KMT 24/116b where the goddess is described as व्योमव्यापी.

360. All MSs: तं 361. ङ्: –वधेन 362. All MSs: आक्रान्तं

363. क्, ख्: कर्मे 364. च्: –वर्णिन:. The regular form (रजो–) would make the fifth syllable long. See above, 4/10c. Moreover, here as often happens with agent nouns formed by the suffix ‘ –in’, the plural has replaced the required nominative singular (i.e. वर्ती) for the metre. See above, note to 4/3c.

365. क्: तमो–। तमसाविष्ट: is too long for the metre. See above, note to 13/2b.

366. घ्, च्, छ्: पायात्; all other MSs: पापात्. N → M.

367. IM 6 + 7. Cf. 13/11b 368. घ्, च्, छ्: अवि * त्वा

369. Cf. 13/22a. 370. घ्, च्, छ्: भुक्ते. Note that this is the first place in our text place where भुज् is correctly conjugated.

371. All MSs except ख्, ग्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: इष्टानिष्ट– 372. ङ्: एव

373. All MSs: धर्म– 374. क्, ङ्: भुजंति; ख्, ग्, घ्, च्, छ्: भुंजंति. Here भुज् reverts back to its irregular form for the metre.

375. All MSs: न 376. छ्: पाप

377. क्, ख्, ग्, ङ्, छ्: गस्यते; all other MSs: गम्यते

378. Missing in MSs घ्, च् and छ् from पशुयोनौ to नरके घोरे in the following line. 379. Missing in MS छ्; ङ्: मृते

380. Missing in MS छ्; क्, ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: पतंति 381. Missing in MS छ्

382. Missing in MS छ् 383. घ्: सृक; छ्: शरीसृक्; all other MSs: शरीसु

384. घ्, च्, छ्: स्वापरेष्वपि 385. क्, ग्: व्यापिकं। व्याप्त: would be correct.

386. All MSs: न 387. च्: –दन

388. ग्: –सा; घ्, च्: चान्यामा; छ्: चात्यामा

389. घ्: भुवनानांतर्–; ङ्: भुवनातर्गत; च्: भुवनातांतर्गतं; all other MSs: –गतं

390. All MSs: भैरवं 391. क्: मायाविध्वस्तेजीवाख्या; ख्, ङ्: –स्तेजीवाख्यो; ग्, छ्: –जीवाख्या. I take this to be an irregular visarga sandhi and have choosen this reading accordingly. See above, note to 3/22b. 392. ज्: तस्ये

393. A complete sentence would be something like : यथा तस्य मलपातो भवेत् तथा
तु कारयेत्. 394. All MSs except झ्: –यन्तं

395. ग्, घ्, ङ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –मोहोद्; other MSs: मोहात्

396. See above, note to 1/17c. 397. घ्, च्, छ्: श्रीवक्रोवाच

398. ख्: मण्डलं– 399. च्: –मुद्रा 400. क्: –यां

401. All MSs except झ्: युतं 402. All MSs except झ्: कुंभकं–; all other MSs: –कं करणाधिष्ठाय। This pāda is one syllable too long.

403. All MSs except च्, झ्: यथेनोर्द्ध्वं

404. All MSs except झ्: व्रजन्मनि

405. च्, छ्: शनै. IM 6 + 7. 406. ख्: शनैःरुपममे; ङ्: शनैःरूपमते; all other MSs except घ्, झ्: शनैःरूपरमे 407. All MSs: रौद्री
408. ग्, घ्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: –वेसेन 409. च्, छ्: –ता. IM 6 + 7.
410. क्: –मेद्वैत; all other MSs: –स्तमनमद्वित

411. A part of the text required to complete the syntax and the sense has been lost here. At the end of this line, MSs घ्, ज् and झ् add मायाविध्वस्तजीवाख्यो, which may well belong to this missing part. The sense, however, is fairly clear nonetheless and appears to be something like तदा मायाविध्वस्तजीवोऽसौ यथा निर्मलं काञ्चनं भवति।

412. च्: धुनाना–. A dual ending is required here. See above, note to 5/46d. The lines 13/101cd-103 are found above in all the MSs after verse 11/63. Deeming them an interpolation in that place, they have been removed from the body of the text and placed in the notes. The readings there have been compared with those found here.

413. च्, छ्: कर्म्यं. M → N. 414. च्: घूर्णि; all other MSs: घूर्मि. As noted already, घूर्णिः is the regular form of this feminine noun. See 5/33d and note.
415. पिपीलिकस्पर्शः is meant here. 416. छ्: –नं. M → N.
417. M → N. 418. क्, घ्, ङ्, झ्: पद

419. All MSs: जीवेवल्. The emendations in this line agree with the readings found in the passage interpolated above after 11/63.

420. घ्, छ्: नश्यति 421. ग्: सर्व्व * र्म्माणि

422. क्, ख्, ग्, घ्, च्: दहनाध्यायय; ङ्: –नाध्यायंभेदेयं; छ्, ज्: –नाध्याय–; all other MSs: दहनाप्यायभेदोयं. The pronoun अयम् connected with a regular sandhi to a previous word or compound, even though it is in its regular masculine gender with respect to the previous word, may function in concord, as if it and the word to which it is linked were neuter (see above, note to 1/5b). At times, but not at as frequently, this deviant form functions as an accusative singular. See 18/109a, 30/52a, 72c and 36/110a.

423. All MSs: कर्म 424. क्, ग्: –क्ता; all other MSs: –क्तो
425. The root पत् is normally 1P. See above, note to 6/201b.
426. M → N. A plural number is required here. See above, note to 1/4a.
427. क्: रा– 428. ज्: चे
429. छ्: मुहुमुहुः. A verb is required here. 430. ङ्: पूजय–
431. ग्: सं * (?) हं. M → N. See above, note to 5/14b.
432. ङ्: कमा–; च्: –सालक्ष– 433. ङ्: र–

434. The subject of this genitive is not explicitly stated; presumably the word लिङ्गम् needs to be supplied.

435. क्, ग्: यथा 436. इति here serves as a filler to gain an extra syllable. 437. ग्, ङ्, च्, छ्, ज्: माया–
438. M → N. 439. ङ्: –ना 440. घ्, च्, छ्: श्रीवक्रोवाच
441. च्, छ्: पुनरेन्य– 442. M → N.
443. See above, note to 5/46d and cf. 28/104b.
444. क्: सिद्धेह्ये; घ्: सिद्धह्ये; च्, छ्: सिद्ध * ह्य; all other MSs: सिद्धेह्य
445. ग्: पूरक्तं; other MSs: –कं। 446. ङ्: –विष्ठेन
447. ग्, घ्, ङ्, च्, छ्, ज्: साधके

448. ग्, ङ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –म् मध्येऽ खण्डचक्रं आरक्तं ज्योतिसन्निभम्; ज्योतिःसन्निभम् would be regular but does not fit the metre. See above, note to 3/52c.
449. ङ्: + कृ 450. क्, ख्, ग्: –श्रमात्
451. ज्योतिःसन्निभम् would be regular but does not fit the metre.
452. IM 5 + 6. 453. ङ्: –र
454. ग्: लान्त–; च्, छ्, ज्: सान्त– 455. घ्, ङ्, च्, छ्: सस्मरेत्
456. Cf. above 1/15b and note. 457. ख्,ङ्: अलोत–
458. च्: शक्तिभी– 459. See above, note to 3/52c.
460. क्: ज्वलिनी. 461. क्, ग्: + रुद्रकोटिसहस्राभा
462. All MSs: रुद्रशक्ति 463. क्, ग्: * * परा; घ्: –पराः–
464. All MSs except झ्: तेजा 465. All MSs except ग्, घ्, च्, ज्: शक्तिर्रुद्र–
466. ङ्: जा– 467. All MSs except झ्: –पां
468. Note again how feminines have been formed simply be adding long
‘a’. In this way, विकासा is effectively a proper name of the goddess. Cf. below 13/138a and numerous other instances throughout the text.
469. IM 6 + 7. 470. ख्, च्: स्वकिकरणैश्चतुर्भिरौद्र–; ग्, ङ्: तुर्भिरोद्र
स्वकिरणैश्चतुर्भिरौद्र–; छ्: स्वकिरणैश्चतुर्भिरौद्र– 471. All MSs: सा 472. All MSs: गुद–
473. All other MSs except ङ्: –वली 474. ग्, ङ्, च्, छ्, ज्: निस्वास–. The compound can be understood as being equivalent to निःश्वासैकभावेन (with reference to a practice whereby the teacher and disciple's breaths are united) with ‘m’ inserted for the metre (see above, note to 3/21b). Or else, less satisfactorily, निःश्वासम् could be understood as the direct object of विशोधयेत्
475. घ्, च्, छ्: –वेदं 476. घ्, च्, छ्: नि–
477. क्, ख्, ग्, ज्: आकाम्यो; ङ्: आकास्यो
478. क्, ख्, ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: वर्त्तने 479. All MSs: परा
480. च्, छ्: –कुतिला–; All MSs: –कारा 481. घ्, झ्: –स्थने
482. All MSs: मार्गे तु 483. ग्, च्, छ्, ज्: यावत् 484. All MSs: –पञ्चके
485. क्, ग्: –रे तु; ख्, ङ्, ज्: –रंतु 486. ङ्: –वर्तण 487. छ्: –मथ–
488. ङ्: –र्ध; छ्, ज्: –र्द्धे 489. All MSs: -णा
490. क्, ख्, ग्, च्, छ्, ज्: + च; ङ्: –क्रमात्रा. IM 5 + 6.
491. ङ्: नास्ति. All MSs: –मात्रा 492. All MSs: शक्तिर् 493. ख्: उर्द्धरेत्
494. ख्, ङ्, झ्: कण्ड–; च्: क– 495. छ्, ज्: –रूर्द्ध–
496. All MSs: –पा। नादरुपे लयं कुरु may be meant here, but the cognate form ‘शक्तिमाद्यां लयं कुरु’ in the following verse shows that नादरूपा refers to the goddess.
497. ङ्: –सागे 498. All MSs: –राद्या
499. घ्, छ्: प्रबोधिता; च्, छ्: प्रवा– 500. M → N. 501. All MSs except च्, झ्: –वेशेन–
502. All MSs except ग्, झ्: द 503. ख्: शिष्योणां 504. See above, note to 1/17c. 505. ङ्: –वत्
506. क्: एतदाक्षवदहनं; ग्, छ्: एतदाक्षेवदहनं. IM 6 + 7. I take this to be a dual compound. See above, note to 5/46d.
507. च्: पदा–. See above, note to 5/27d. 508. M → N.
509. ङ्: –थम. I suppose that this adjective qualifies the noun भेदम् (M → N).
Cf. the following line. 510. ङ्: स्थल–; च्: –गम्य
511. ङ्: वान्–. See above, note to 1/20b and cf. 8/14b. 512. ङ्: –व

513. ङ्: –हदं. M → N. 514. ग्: पुनरम्य–; च्: पुर– 515. ङ्: –क्षामि 516. The ending of भेदम् has been dropped for the metre, thus leading to the formation of an irregular compound.
517. ङ्: –द्रतोरुपां 518. All MSs: विचिन्तयेत्
519. घ्, छ्: सृष्टिं– 520. क्, ख्, ग्, घ्: सारकणि–; all other MSs except झ्: षारकणि–; all MSs: –पमा
521. ङ्: –नेव. The noun अभिषेक– is almost always treated as neuter throughout this text. This is one of the rare instances of the regular masculine form. See above, note to 1/1c.
522. This feminine nominative form functions here as if it were a masculine instrumental. Moreover, from the context, one would expect the pronoun to be feminine insofar as it refers to the goddess.
523. All MSs except ग्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: संचित्य 524. घ्, छ्: चित्येन
525. The root द्रु is normally 1P. See above, note to 3/125a.
526. ङ्: नामि–; all other MSs: नाभिनन्दिता 527. ङ्: –सिका
528. ङ्: –सम ण्डले 529. घ्, छ्: तेनासृत–
530. M → N. Here आगमः is treated as if it were the neuter आगमनम्.
531. IM 5, 6 + 7. 532. Cf. above, 13/132c.
533. ङ्: शत्तयावे–; च्, छ्: –महोच्यते. As usual, the members of a list are treated as neuter. 534. ङ्, छ्, ज्: योगं– 535. M → N. See above, note to 1/2c. 536. M → N.
537. देव्याक्रमसूत्रम् is meant here. The compound has been split up to produce a long sixth syllable.
538. ङ्: –गस*–. All MSs: मानसं–. क्: –योग– 539. ङ्; –यन्तु
540. छ्, ज्: पासहा; all other MSs: पाशहा. The regular form पाशघ्नः would make the fifth syllable long. Several words, such as पितृहन् and ब्रह्महन्, regularly take the suffix –हन्. In this case, however, the use of this suffix is irregular. Moreover, this suffix has been reduced to –हः
541. च्, छ्: –त् 542. घ्, च्, छ्: पूर्वण् पूर्वकृतम् is meant here.
543. ङ्: लिष्यते 544. ग्: वर्गाक्केन. See above, note to 1/5a.
545. ङ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –सा 546. ख्, ग्, ङ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –भिवर्त्तते
547. क्: आत्मना; all other MSs: आत्मनो. See above, note to 8/104a.
548. All MSs: व्रह्मघ्नो 549. ङ्: कि 550. ङ्: पुनर्भावर्भावशुद्धा–
551. च्: –शरीरोस्; छ्, ज्: शरीरस्; all other MSs except ङ्: –शरिरन्
552. ज्: षट्विधं 553. ङ्: श * व–
554. च्: नास्ति; ज्: मैंद्र–; all other MSs except झ्: मैद्रमण्डले. This emendation presumes that the final long vowel of the first member of this compound has been shortened for the metre.
555. च्: + प्रत्ययातिमै 556. Missing in MS च् 557. क्: –वशनं
558. छ्, ज्: –संक्रामणोपि. 559. Missing in MS च्
560. ङ्: त्पयानिवै. See above, note to 1/4a. 561. Missing in MS च्
562. घ्, झ्: तां संगतिः; ङ्: *गतिः; all other MSs: तांगतिः
563. Here a causal form has replaced the non-causal verb which the context requires. A simple ‘करोति’ would be correct but does not fit the metre.
564. च्, छ्: –न 565. घ्, च्, छ्: –प्रवर्तते; ङ्: कोल–; छ्: –प्रवर्त्त *

566. ङ्: –सस्योर्द्धे; all other MSs except ख्, च्, ज्: –स्योर्द्ध
567. च्, छ्: –य 568. All MSs: सूक्ष्म
569. घ्, छ्: –चत्वारिंशति. See above, note to 3/9c.
570. क्, ख्, च्: तक्षका–; झ्: तत्संकाशाद् 571. ङ्, च्, छ्, ज्: विनि:–
572. ङ्: क्रमार्थ.M → N. 573. ङ्: –योग
574. ङ्: पश्चात्–; च्: पश्चातु–; all other MSs: पश्चानुज्ञा–
575. MSs घ् add महामन्थानभैरवयज्ञेऽन्वये

NOTES OF THE TRANSLATION OF CHAPTER THIRTEEN

1. The question here is that if Śiva is at all known to us and is somehow present in the world, even if he is God, is he not thereby affected by the same contingencies that affect mortal beings, indeed, any finite entity? If Śiva losses his transcendental being by his immanent presence in the world, how can he regain his power to act as God, that is, his divine agency, subject as he would be, it seems, to those factors that condition the power to act of every living being? The question poses a serious problem, because Śiva's presence in the world is not as a disembodied, omnipresent being. His transcendental being is in contact with the world, but at its very summit as the unconditioned 'beyond'. At the same time, this emptiness is the 'space', within which all existent things move and have their being and is, by the same token, the 'space' within them as their essential, unconditioned nature. This 'space' although unconditioned and hence not identifiable in phenomenal terms, is not impersonal. It is God who is called Śiva, although he is the 'Nameless' (anāma). If he is the Self, the most authentic and fundamental identity of every living being, the questions posed in the next verse naturally arise.

2. Avarṇa literally means either 'the letter A' or, as is the case here, 'devoid of letters'. The goddess is similarly decribed as 'avarṇā' and 'varṇavāhinī', that is, 'she who is devoid of letters and who transports the letters'. In the former aspect the goddess is merged in the transcendent god and so both are 'devoid of letters'. They are, in other words, at the transcendental level beyond Speech. At the next level down, at the edge, as it were, of manifestation, the goddess emerges as the energy of the will which spontaneously differentiates itself into the triangle of energies. This, the fertile womb of the goddess, contains the primal, archetypal energies of Speech. These are, on the one hand, her own energies and on the other, the fifty limbs, as it were, of the body of Śiva, the Assembly of Sounds (śabdarāśi). These energies and their possessors couple in various ways to assume the forms of the manifest world of Speech and its objects which the goddess 'transports' and hence generates, in her downward creative flow.

3. This and the following four verses describe Śiva's supreme state, free of all phenomenal manifestation when he rests tranquil within the Voidness of his own infinite nature. This condition is represented by the letter A, which denotes Akula. Akula is the absolute which is not within the sphere of the aggregate of its energies – Kula. These energies are represented by the sixteen vowels. Identified with the sixteen digits of the moon, they increase and decrease in accord with the rhythm of phenomenal existence. In his pure, unconditioned and most essential nature, Śiva is perpetually free of this activity. The following passage goes on to outline how Śiva descends from this state through the principles of existence to assume the nature of the individual soul who resides and acts through them. We are told that these are in the sphere of Māyā (13/10) which is that of Nature (prakṛti) (13/22). The source of Māyā-cum-Nature is his energy, the power of the will that emerges out of him. This condition, in other words, is one brought about by his free will to which he submits by reflecting on his lower form, rather than his supreme one. Māyā not only generates the objective condition for phenomenal experience, it also brings about the subjective one, namely, the condition of impurity. This impurity is threefold as are the three qualities of Māyā-cum-Nature. The text first explains how Śiva assumes the nature of a fettered individual soul whose essential characteristic is that his actions bring about Karma. The text goes on to explain how he releases himself from this condition, namely, by the removal of impurity which takes place by the power of grace.

4. Concerning the Bliss of Stillness, see intro. vol 1, p. 102. According to the commentary on ṢSS 18/184, the City of Eight consists of the five gross elements and three mental organs. The Self is said to reside within it between the upper expansion of Bhairava and the lower contraction of Śakti.

The City of Eight (puryaṣṭaka) consists of the eight causes that constitute the subtle body and transmigrates after death to a new physical body that develops out of it. The living being (jīva) who transmigrates in this way is the subjectivity that identifies itself with the City of Eight. Deposited in the City of Eight are the latent traces of past actions that are at the root of the many desires that govern the behaviour of the fettered soul and induce the particular type of rebirth to which he is subject. Replete with the physical sensations transmitted through the senses and the inner mental responses to them, identification with the City of Eight is bondage. YKh (1) declares:

> Just as a bird in the sky is free or is again bound, so the Self has become bound, deluded by the net of Māyā. The net of Māyā is the great fetter of Śiva that cannot be avoided. (The soul is) bound by the mutual (interaction) of conditions, like the chrysalis in the cocoon. Then, residing in the City of Eight, he yearns for liberation.

ākāśastho yathā pakṣī [k, kh, gh: pakṣā] mukto [k, gh: muktā] vā [ṅ: yā] badhyate punaḥ |
*evaṁ bandhagato [ṅ: ca vaśabho] hyātmā [ṅ: jyāt ] māyājālena mohitaḥ [k, kh, gh: -tāḥ; ṅ: -tā] || māyājālaṁ mahāpāśaṁ [k, kh, gh: -pāsaṁ] anivāraṁ śivasya [k, kh, gh: śivāsya] ca [gh: caḥ] |
anyonyakaraṇair baddhaḥ [k, kh, ṅ: vaddhāḥ; gh: anyonyakaraṇai vaṁdhā] kośakare [k, kh, gh, ṅ: kośakāra] kṛmir yathā ||

tadāsau kāṁkṣate [k, kh, gh: rkākṣate; ṅ:] mokṣaṁ puryaṣṭakasamanvitaḥ [k, kh, gh: yuryaṣṭaka- -taṁ; ṅ: puryasakasamanvitaṁḥ] | YKh (1) 19/98-100ab

What is the City of Eight? There are different views about this. Śaivasiddhānta theologians and exegetes agree with the generally held view that it is the subtle body. This, they say, includes all the Principles and conditions necessary for embodied existence. According to the Light of the Principles (Tattvaprakāśa), a Siddhānta tract attributed to king Bhoja of Dhara, the City of Eight consists of the inner mental organ along with the senses of knowledge and action (TP 12). Aghoraśivācārya comments saying:

> The City of Eight is the specific subtle body allotted to each individual soul from the beginning of creation up to the end of the cosmic cycle, or (according to others) until liberation, and consists of the thirty principles from the Force of Obscuration (kalā) to Earth.

According to the passage we are examining, there are only twenty-five principles. Twenty-four belong to the sphere of Māyā-cum-Nature as they do according to classical Sāṁkhyā. The twenty-fifth is Śiva who remains free of them when they dissolve away by the action of grace in the manner described below. The KRU teaches that there are twenty-five principles. They are qualities of Śiva's power, which is the essentiual nature of the goddess who resides within them. This implies that Śiva himself is also an aspect of the goddess although the KRU, as do the Kubjikā Tantras in general, portrays the goddess as emerging from him. There, as here, she is identified with Mahāmāyā. Here she is clearly distinguished from Māyā that consists of the aggregate of the twenty-four principles whose obscuring activity collectively constitutes bondage. When these cease to operate, Śiva, the twenty-fifth principle, is liberated (KuKh 13/42-43).

According to the most common Śaivasiddhānta view, there are thirty-six principles. Kashmiri Śaivism adopts the Śaivasiddhānta scheme and adds its own additional interpretations of the nature of these principles, especially the five highest ones. The scheme presented simply subsumes these five into the highest one, that is, Śiva. Moreover, Māyā is not considered to be a separate principle and so is omitted along with five more principles that, according to the Siddhānta, are its direct products. These five, according to the Siddhānta, serve to account for the limited condition of the individual soul even though its essential nature as consciousness does not differ from Śiva. Accordingly, they are said to be five obscuring coverings (kañcuka). They are the principles of limited knowledge (vidyā) and action (kalā), attachment (rāga), constraint (niyati) and time (kāla). They appear to limit Śiva's five essentially unconditioned attributes of unlimited knowledge, action, detachment, freedom from limitation and permanence, respectively. It appears that the author of the text we are examining felt that the triple impurity which, also according to Siddhānta doctrine, sullies the individual soul, is sufficient to explain how Śiva undergoes the necessary limitations to his infinite being in order to assume the identity of an individual soul.

Some Siddhāntins, on the other hand, feel that the presence of the five obscuring coverings is so essential that they consider them to be a part of the City of Eight. The author of the Compendium of the Principles (Tattvasaṁgraha), for example, incorporates them into the inner mental organ. Thus, this consists of the intellect, ego and mind, along with these five. Moreover, in line with the conception that the City of Eight consists of all the necessary inner factors required to make worldy experience possible for the individual soul, the Compendium (TS 24-5) also adds Nature (prakṛti) and its qualities (guṇa) to it. Again, whilst the author of this work agrees with Bhoja that it also consists of the senses of knowledge and action, he further adds the five subtle and gross elements. Kumāra, commenting on the same verse in the Light of the Principles by Bhoja, says that some maintain that the City of Eight consists of the five subtle elements, the senses of knowledge and action and the inner mental organ. He adds that others say that it is made up of the senses of knowledge and action, the inner mental organ, the five breaths, the five subtle elements, desire (kāma), Karma and ignorance. Similarly, a commentator on the Yogavāsiṣṭha (2/70/5) enumerates the eight constituents as follows: the gross and subtle elements, the senses of knowledge and action, the inner mental organ, ignorance, desire and Karma. According to the Compendium on Freedom (Svacchandasaṁgraha) quoted in Amṛtānanda's commentary on the Heart of the Yoginī (Yoginīhṛdaya), the City of Eight consists of the power of consciousness (citi), the substance of the mind (citta), consciousness (caitanya), awareness (cetanā), dualistic Karma (dvayakarma), the individual soul (jīva), the forces of obscuration (kalā) and (according to some manuscripts) the body (śarīra).

These interpretations appear to be somewhat forced. The most convincing is the basic and most common understanding of the nature of the City of Eight which is that it consists of the intellect, ego and mind along with the five subtle elements that are the five types of sensations. This is one of the Kashmiri Śaiva views (see for example, the Spandakārikā verses 49-51). This is the opinion of the Yogavāsiṣṭha in one place (YV 1/51/50) and the Kālottarāgama (17/4cd-5ab), as well as that of some Siddhāntins (see Kumāra's commentary on TP 12). It is also the view here (see below 40/30cd-31ab).

Even so, the commentators tend to interpret passages in the Āgams that refer to the City of Eight in other ways. For example, Aghoraśivācārya tells us that Rāmakaṇṭha, commenting on the verse of the Kālottarāgama referred to above, says that the five subtle elements also include the gross ones, and the inner mental organ includes Nature (pradhāna), the qualities (guṇa) and the obscuring coverings (kañcuka) (Rāmakaṇṭha Kālottaravṛtti p. 126; see Torella 1979: 376, notes 35, 36). Torella (1994: 204-5 note 24) explains that: 'In Utpaladeva's opinion, as gathered from ĪPVV vol. 3 pp. 334-336, the puryaṣṭaka referring to the subjectivity identified with the void (śūnyāhantā) is constituted by the 'pentad' – the inner group of powers common to all the senses, which gives rise to the five particular breaths and makes the body's machine function: it therefore includes the class of breaths (as what is impelled), the class of the sensory faculties (as what impels) and the śūnyāhantā (as that presiding over the whole). . . . But, as noted, the current conception is that the puryaṣṭaka is connected with the prāṇāhantā [subjectivity identified with the vital breath] . . . . In this case one has: the pentad of breaths, combined with the three classes of faculties (those of knowledge, of action and the antaḥkaraṇa [inner mental organ]) impelled by the ahaṁkāra [ego] which, however, is not included in the number since it presides over it.'

Finally, according to the ŚM (MS Kh fl. 8b): (the goddess) possesses many forms and so emanates in association with the (subtle body known as the) City of Eight. She resides in the Wheel of the Heart. Seated on the Wheel, she generates, by (the Wheel's) anticlockwise rotation, lust and the rest. The City of Eight consists of lust, anger, greed, delusion, mad passion (mada), fear, aversion, jelousy, meanness and the rest. Associated with this City of Eight, (the goddess) emanates and withdraws (the world of mortals).

vicitratākārarūpatayā puryaṣṭakayuktena hṛccakrasthāmbujakrameṇa vāmāvartena cakrārūḍhā kāmādyān utpādayati || kāmakrodhalobhamohamada-
bhayadveṣairṣāpaiśūnyādaya iti || puryaṣṭakayuktena sṛjantyā saṁharantyāpi ||

5. Up to this verse all the nouns and adjectives are neuter, indicating that they refer to the supreme, genderless absolute. Here, suddenly, the substantive and its attributes are masculine, indicating that the transcendent, genderless, absolute is Śiva, the transcendent God of all the gods, the Lord of the universe whose activity is that of the entire universe. As the universal agent, Śiva is the ultimate cause of everything. Thus the relationship between cause and effect is that between the agent and his action. This, according to Abhinavagupta, is also the doctrine of the Siddhayogeśvarīmata, the main Tantra of Trika Śaivism which is a major source of the teachings of the Kubjikā Tantras. Abhinavagupta introduces his proof of this doctrine in the TĀ (9/8-10) saying:

In reality, the Lord, who is the Supreme Śiva, is the agent of all things. It makes no sense to suppose that agency belongs to one who is not free (to act). (Indeed, this) freedom (svatantratā) belongs (only) to the Supreme Lord whose body is consciousness alone. Free (svatantra) and insentient (jaḍa) are mutually contradictory (categories). The insentient condition is one of dependence on the (cognizing) subject even with regards to the establishment of its own existence (svātmasiddhi). There is no causality (kāraṇatva) apart from the agency (of the subject who thus creates all things).

An effect comes about by the configuration in the appropriate manner of all the causal factors that serve to bring it about. This cannot take place mechanically but must be guided by a conscious intention. All effects are produced for an ultimate purpose; they congregate in such a manner as to make the fulfilment of Karma possible. Abhinavagupta concludes by saying that:

Śiva himself, who is free, is the sole agent of the predetermined (niyata) conjunction and disjunction of these causes in this way. The consciousness of the potter, which conjoins the wheel, stick and the rest (of the factors that contribute to the making of a pot), is Śiva himself (who is consciousness), for what distinction can there be within consciousness?

If, due to the manifestation (of spatial and temporal) distinctions, the consciousness of the potter were to be different (from Śiva, the universal consciousness), it should be placed amongst (the other auxilliary causes), such as the stick and the wheel. Therefore, Śiva, whose one body is all things, is the (sole) agent (who operates) in every single act of creation (nirmāṇa) (of an effect from its causes). (Even) the individual soul's presumption that he is the agent is the all-pervasive Lord's doing. Thus, as the true nature of the relationship between cause and effect is the manifestation (of the Lord) in this way, (His manifestation, both) in the scriptures and in the world, is wonderfully diverse. TĀ 9/35cd-40ab.

6. The will is the form in which the transcendent male principle’s creative energy emerges. By the power of this will, identified with the goddess herself as the Transmental (unmanī), creation takes place. Here this is said to take place by means of Śiva’s contemplation of his lower form. Again, this energy of the will is consciousness on the one hand and Sound on the other. The former is the transcendental basis and immanent support of Sound. Sound (nāda) is the plenum which constitutes Speech through which the world of words and the things they denote are made manifest. Thus, like Advaita Vedānta's Brahman, which can be indicated as the triad Being–Consciousness–Bliss, the goddess is here characterized as the triad Will–Consciousness–Sound. Although the Brahman of the Advaita Vedānta is neuter, it is clearly the ‘godhead’ of a God rather than a Goddess. These are the attributes of the Goddess, the energy of the male absolute being.

The genius of the Kashmiri Śaiva exegesis synthesises these attributes into a single unified concept denoted by a term inspired by Bhartṛhari, the 5th century philosopher of language: vimarśa. This term, which can be translated as ‘reflective awareness’, denotes the capacity of Śiva, who is absolute Being, to contemplate his own infinite nature. This is both transcendental and hence 'empty', and manifest as each and everything and hence is 'full'. According to Kashmiri Śaivism, Śiva moves from one to the other and all the gradations in between in accord with the degree in which he applies his reflective awareness (vimarśa) to one or other aspect of his own nature. The progressive 'descent' of his reflective awareness along the ladder of the principles of existence marks the 'contraction' of the oneness of the infinite expanse of his supreme, transcendental and innately liberated nature, which is the light of pure consciousness. This entails the emanation of the lower, immanent and contingent manifestation of diversity within which he resides as its essentially transcendent nature in the fettered condition of the contracted consciousness of the individual soul. In this situation, his power of reflective awareness views this multiplicity externally through the mediation of the senses and mind, not as a whole but in parts through and as thought constructs. The 'contraction' to which we have just referred thus concerns the modality of Śiva's reflective awareness. It remains fully expanded as the act of 'viewing' in itself, but is contracted in the process of perceiving through the senses and the inner mental organ and the formation of thought constructs that the identification of perceptions entails. Śiva who is the pure transcendental light of consciousness which illumines and thereby shines as all things, and his power – Śakti – who is Śiva's reflective awareness identified with his creative freedom (svātantrya), work together as the dual aspect of pure 'I' consciousness. This operates as the subjectivity of the perceiver. It is present as the 'I' related to the 'this' which is the essential characteristic of all that is objectively perceived externally, just as 'I' is that of every perceiver and agent. Thus, from this point of view, repeated union and separation of Śiva and Śakti takes place at the immanent level in and through each act of perception, in consonance with the repeated alignment of the 'I' with each 'this'. In this way everything is created and destroyed in consonance with the rhythmn of perception. All the while at the supreme transcendental level, Śiva shines resplendent as the pure light of consciousness with his energy merged within him beyond perception, and hence beyond the cycles of creation and destruction.

It has been established (Dyczkowski 1992: 37 ff.) that the term vimarśa is very rare in the Tantras and that the concept of Self as the pure 'I' consisting of the light of Śiva and the reflective awareness of his energy is entirely absent. Indeed, despite the repeated representation of Śiva as consciousness and that of his energy as the power of consciousness, the analysis of the nature of consciousness is not at all a prominent topic in the Tantras; much less so is the manner in which it operates or how it is related to the object of consciousness. The one major exception is the Jayadrathayāmala, which is the root Tantra of the proto-Kālīkrama. But even there, this topic, which is so central for monistic Kashmiri exegetes, is not treated in great detail. Nor is this surprising; the Tantras are concerned with ritual and the attendant inner practice, which is mostly related to the movement of the vital breath. The theory that does appear occasionally, as in this chapter, invariably relates to the practice they teach. Here, the goddess talks about the condition of Śiva, the individual soul and their energy, bondage and liberation because this serves to explain the manner in which initiation and the practice that ensues is liberating.

But even though the Tantras do not reach the high degree of philosophical sophistication required to articulate the elevated insights of the Kashmiri Śaiva exegetes, the seeds are certainly there; this verse is a fine example of how they are present. All three aspects of the energy of Śiva as presented here, namely, Will, Consciousness and Sound, are incorporated into the Kashmiri Śaiva concept of vimarśa. Will appears there as the creative autonomy of Śiva (svātantrya) which is identified with vimarśa. Consciousness is frequently called saṁvit by Kashmiri Śaivites, although they also use the word cit which is the common term for consciousness. The term saṁvit is virtually unknown to the Śaiva Tantras, with the exception of the Jayadrathayāmala. There, this feminine noun serves to denote the aggregate of energies (called Kālīs) operating in the successive phases of the cycle of creation, persistence and destruction which, along with the inexplicable state of transcendental consciousness, shine together beyond time. According to that Tantra, all this is the radiation of the supreme form of Kālī, Kālasaṁkarṣaṇī, who is the brilliance or luminosity (bhāsā) of Bhairava who possesses this consciousness. So in the Kālīkrama also, as here, the goddess is consciousness. But there, described in detail as dynamic saṁvit, she clearly possesses the cognitive function Kashmiri Śaivites attribute to vimarśa. Here too, the coupling of the energy which leads Śiva into the principle of conditioned existence, and his contemplation of his 'lower form', indicates how our goddess also possesses this attribute of vimarśa. Finally, the identification of the goddess with Sound (nāda) that is taught in this verse and that is, indeed, common to all schools of Śaivism and the Kaula Tantras, including the Kālīkrama, is reflected in the concept of vimarśa. Reflective awareness in this perspective is the power to conceive or cogitate. As language is the vehicle of thought, reflective awareness contains within itself all the seeds of language, that is, the energies of the phonemes. It also develops through and as all the stages through which Speech passes. All this is implicit when our text says that the goddess is also Sound (nāda).

Finally, having said all this about Śiva's energy and, as an introduction to the following verse, we may note that according to the Kubjikā Tantras, Śiva is both 'without form' (amūrta) and 'with form' (samūrta). His 'form' (mūrti) may be the 'upper' one. This is Śiva's divine iconic form in which he is mentally visualised and worshipped. His lower form is the one he assumes in the physical world. This varies according to the body or physical form into which he chooses to enter or, to use the expression of this verse, into which he is led by the power of his own will. This he does, as we shall see, in order to work out the Karma accumulated in his previous descents into embodiment. How this takes place is explained in the following three verses.

7. These verses and the following one answer the question asked at the beginning of this chapter: 'How (could he) acquire the power to act (karṭva) (in the world)?' The agency or power to act of the individual with respect to actions that are morally determinable is, at root, that of Śiva himself. However, he is not intrinsically affected by Karma thereby. He is by nature pure and untouched. Although the individual soul is Śiva, he does not know it. He is helplessly subjected to the effects of his actions, good or bad. From Śiva's point of view, however, he freely and knowingly makes use of Mahāmāyā in order to descend down to where Karma is accumulated and consumed because he chooses to act in this modality as well, in the everyday world of souls subject to transmigration.

Mahāmāyā is the goddess herself. In her elevated form, burning with energy, she has the same status as Śiva (see below 13/61cd-62). As Mahāmāyā, she is the energy of consciousness beyond description and yet she is all things that can be described (see above 9/27-28). In this aspect, she is the illuminating power of knowledge. Thus she both enlightens and obscures (see 5/73cd-74ab and note). This dual aspect of the goddess reminds us of a Śaiva doctrine elaborated in the Śaivasiddhānta and adopted by Kashmiri Śaivism. According to this view, Śiva's power can function in two ways, either as the energy of obstruction (rodhana) or obscuration (tirodhāna) that obscures the soul, or as the power to grace (anugraha) that liberates it (see note to 13/25cd-26ab)

The Kashmiri Utpaladeva says that: (The one energy) is the power of knowledge (vidyāśakti) when she reveals the essential nature of (Śiva's) Lordship in the fettered state (paśubhāva), but she is called Māyā (when) she obscures (the soul). (ĪP 3/1/7)

Utpala explains how this power functions as knowledge: 'The cognizer blinded by Māyā, bound by Karma, is immersed in saṁsāra; but once knowledge has made him recognize his own nature as Lord, then, his essence being solely consciousness, he is called 'liberated'.' (ibid. 3/2/1) (translation by Torella, 1994)

8. The fettered soul is said to be conjoined to the 'principles' (cf. above 13/9-10). The 'principles' – tattva – in this context are probably the qualities (guṇa) of Nature (prakṛti). Thus (in 13/6c) the supreme being is said to be 'free of the principles of the qualities' (guṇatattvanirmukta). The term, apparently in the same sense, is in the singular as in the expression '(he) is lead by that (energy) to the principle' . . .' tayāsau nīyate tattve – (13/8c). It is possible, therefore, that when aihikamala is said to be 'based on the principle' (tattvamāśrita) (13/12b), it means that it is based on the activity of the *guṇa*s. However, at first sight this interpretation does not appear to agree with the explanation the text gives us of this impurity, namely, that it is impelled by tamas. But this may only be an apparent contradiction. The passivity and darkness – tamas – on which this impurity is based can be understood as the laxity of the fettered soul with regard to his fettered state due to which he makes no effort to overcome it. And his state is here understood to be the condition of one who is subject to the activity of the qualities of Nature.

Again, the term 'tattva' also refers to the supreme principle of reality itself (13/48c), as when the realised soul is said to be the 'knower of tattva' (tattvavit) (13/31b and 13/45b) or when he attains the tattva at the end of the sphere of the transmigration (13/32b). Again, in accord with common usage, the term may also be used to refer to individual principles of existence, as when the five gross elements are called the 'group of five principles' (tattvapañcaka) (13/33d) or as when Śiva is referred to as Śivatattva (13/42c).

9. Kashmiri Śaivism agrees with Śaivasiddhānta that there are three basic impurities. But these only seemingly sully consciousness. The first, which is called the Impurity of Individuality (āṇavamala), apparently contracts consciousness from its infinite plenitude down to an atomic point (aṇu), which thus assumes the form of an individual soul. The second impurity is that of Māyā (māyīyamala). It entangles consciousness, thus contracted, in the net of duality. The third is the impurity of Karma, which subjects individualized consciousness to the consequences of its actions. Utpaladeva defines these impurities as follows:

> The cognizer is called 'lord' (pati) when things appear to him as constituting his own body. When they appear to him differentiated due to Māyā, the subject, polluted by various (kinds of) contamination (kaluṣa), by karma etc is called the fettered soul (paśu).
>
> The Impurity of Individuality (āṇavamala) operates when one loses awareness of one's own true nature (svasvarūpa) and is of two kinds, namely, the loss of consciousness of one's freedom and the loss of freedom of one's own consciousness. The (impurity) called Māyā is the perception of the object as separate (from the subject). It engenders (repeated) birth and worldly experience (bhoga). The Impurity of Karma affects the acting subject ignorant (of its true nature). All three are due to the power of Māyā. ĪP 3/2/3-5

Utpaladeva, commenting on the last of these verses, says in his vṛtti (Torella's translation):

> When, there being this twofold āṇava impurity, cognizable reality, though in reality not separated from the subject, appears differentiated from him, on the basis of this other error, the impurity known as māyic. The karmic impurity which pertains to the agent of the light of consciousness is due to the error of considering the cause of births and so on the actions, which on the contrary – as has been established – are not causes. The Lord's will to create these three impurities is called the power of Māyā.

The Pratyabhijñā school of Kashmiri Śaivism broadly adopts the Śaivasiddhānta view concerning the triple impurity that binds the soul, adapting it to its own form of monism (see below note to 13/13-14). They agree that the first impurity is that of individuality (āṇavamala). This brings about the conditions in the individual soul that render it subject to the influence first of Māyā, and then of Karma. Thus the first impurity is the most essential among them. In the following passage it is called innate – sahaja – because it is born – ja – together – saha – with the individual, fettered soul. They are, in other words, concomitant: where there is one there must also be the other. From this point of view, the other two impurities – Māyā and Karma – may be absent in the case of some elevated beings, but until the impurity of individuality (āṇavamala) is finally removed, they are still fettered souls. Thus we read in the Śaivarahasya quoted in a commentary on the Tattvaprakāśa (p. 17):

> The innate (type) (sahaja) is beginningless impurity. Amongst the three fetters it is the main one. As long as (this basic) impurity exists, Māyā and Karma function as fetters.

According to the dualist Siddhāntins, the first and most fundamental impurity that clings to the fettered soul (paśu) is an uncreated, eternal substance which is essentially the fetter (pāśa) that binds it. The other two, Māyā, which is ignorance, and Karma, are derived from it. But the Pratyabhijñā, as we have seen in the passage quoted above, says that all three are derived from Māyā which is Śiva's free will. In other words, what is considered an impurity by the Śaivasiddhānta is not considered to be such here because, from this point of view, this can only accrue to Śiva once he has been conditioned through what is, essentially, his own free will. Śiva in this basic conditioned state is thus essentially the individual soul here called 'pudgala'. This individual soul is in some respects similar to the Puruṣa of the Sāṁkhya in that he is essentially free of the activity of the three qualities that constitute Nature. When he is affected by these three qualities, he is 'within the realms of Nature' (13/22). Otherwise, the individual soul is free of impurity, even when he enters the body and is conditioned by the principles of existence (13/10), namely, the gross elements, sensations, senses and mind. In this respect also, the doctrine taught here resembles the Sāṁkhya, according to which the Person, even when in the body, is not essentially affected by it. But here the similarity ends because the Person according to the Sāṁkhyā is not a composite unit at all in this way. The Person never has any form; only the manifestations of Nature can have a form. The individual soul according to this view is produced by a series of conditions that are self-imposed from within unconditioned Śiva by himself on himself. This is why the goddess can say to him when he comes to her as a Siddha – that is, a pure individual soul – that his condition as an individual soul has been freely assumed by him and he can similarly freely give it up. It is just a disguise, he is not really covered by Māyā. He is the one stainless (nirañjana) reality (see above 3/65cd-66ab).

Again, here the three guṇas of Prakṛti are considered to be the impurities and Mahāmāyā is Prakṛti (see below 13/87). As this verse tells us, Māyā corresponds to sattva, Karma to rajas and the impurity of the world (aihika) to tamas. Māyā is the basic impurity because, based on sattva, it impels to binding action (karman) fueled by the passionate desire (kāma) generated and sustained by rajas. Finally, having gone the full course, the fettered soul sins in many ways and is subjected to the consequences of his actions (see below 13/88-90ab). This is due to tamas's power of inertia, which fixes and regulates by the lassitude that accepts the dead-weight of constraint rather than fight against it. This then is the third fetter: the impurity of this world (aihika). According to the Sāṁkhya, Nature does not sully the Person, who is in reality always quite distinct from Prakṛti and hence cannot be rendered impure by it. Impurity, like purity, according to the Sāṁkhya is a condition of Prakṛti. So-called 'spiritual' impurity, for example, pertains to the intellect. Other forms of impurity can affect the senses and the body, all of which are part of Nature.

Note also that this triple impurity is collectively Mahāmāyā. This should be carefully distinguished from Māyā, which is the first of the three impurities. The former is called the principle of Māyā (māyātattva) (13/11). It is the 'seed of Māyā' that resides in that other Māyā, namely, Mahāmāyā (13/58). The ultimate identity of Mahāmāyā is, in theological terms, the goddess; in metaphysical, the Transmental and in soteriological, Kuṇḍalinī. But, as the power that binds (see note to 13/10 above), through which the world is created and is the reason why it is created, it is Mahāmāyā which is Nature (prakṛti).

10. The Self can be in two conditions. One is pure, that is, without impurity – nirmala. This is Śiva's state. The other is impure, that is, with impurity. Both these conditions are brought about and maintained by Śiva's power called Mahāmāyā. More specifically, we are told here, the energy that makes the soul a sullied one (samala) is that of Māyā in conjunction with sattva. Sattva literally means 'being-ness' sat (= being) + tva (= -ness) and, as the etymology of the word implies, it is the quality of Mahāmāyā which is related directly to the 'being' of an entity. Thus Māyā, established in sattva, is the energy that belongs to one's innate nature and operates directly on it. We shall see further on that it is removed by setting other counter-energies (which are really aspects of this same one, functioning in reverse) into operation in the body. The liberated, pure state and its opposite are thus not conditions of knowledge and ignorance as much as states in which Śiva's energy functions either to liberate or bind by either freeing from impurity or by bringing it about. The process by which impurity is removed is initiation, in the course of which there is a 'descent of power' (śaktipāta), that is, purifying, liberating grace (anugraha) (see below 13/25cd-6ab).

This view agrees with both the Śaivasiddhānta and the monistic Śaivism of Kashmiri. But in both cases there are differences with regards to the conception of this impurity and why this liberating grace takes place. We observe that the position here in our text is somewhere between the two, although closer to that of Kashmiri Śaivism.

We can contrast this view with that of Kashmiri Śaivism epitomized by the oft-quoted line from the MVT (1/23cd quoted in TĀ 1/23, 9/120 and 13/50): '(The wise) prefer (to understand) impurity as being ignorance, which is the cause of (Karma) the sprout of transmigratory existence (ajñānaṁ malam icchanti saṁsārāṅkurakāraṇam).' Our text never refers to impurity and its cause as ignorance. The view here is that it is freely imposed by Śiva through his power. The individual fettered soul is, of course, ignorant of his true nature and the higher levels of reality; however, this ignorance is not the cause but is rather the result of the impurity to which it is subject. In this respect, this view agrees with the Siddhānta position expressed and supported, for example, by Nārāyaṇakaṇtha in his commentary on the Mokṣakārikā (v. 47cd-53ab; Aṣṭaprakaraṇa p. 256) where he says:

> Surely it is established by valid means of knowledge that the ignorance involved in the error that mother–of–pearl is silver ceases through knowledge. (It has been said that the wise) are of the opinion that mala is ignorance and that it belongs to individual souls from the beginningless past. That is unsound because (mala) is not associated with ignorance. Mala is not ignorance; rather, it is the cause of ignorance. If it were ignorance, would it be an attribute of the (individual) soul or insubstantial (tucchatā)? If insubstantial, it would do nothing and so its removal would not be the fruit of knowledge or the like. If it were to be an attribute of the (individual) soul, it would not be possible to remove it, just as (one cannot remove the soul's other attributes) such as its permanence, prevasion and the rest. Thus there would be no liberation. If it can be removed, it is not an attribute of the soul but some other thing. Mala should be said to be the cause of ignorance because it is the cause of the confinement of the soul from the beginningless past, like a cataract on the eye. Nor has anyone observed that a substance (in this case, the one) that is the cause of ignorance, or another (thing), like a cataract, (can be) destroyed through knowledge because it is not something contrary to it (pratipakṣa). 'Well then' (asks an opponent) how is it that (a mistake) such as (the notion that) mother of pearl is silver ceases through knowledge? Let me explain. Ignorance is of two kinds. (One is) is the notion that (arises due to) the intellect's lack of discernment of something similar previously experienced (like the) knowledge of silver in mother of pearl and the like. And (the second kind) is the knowledge based on a thought construct, the object of which are such things as (the sight of) two moons brought about by a substance such as a lens (kāca), desert land and the like. There the first one ceases through the knowledge that comes from the discerning assessment 'this is not silver'. As for (the error) brought about by a substance, it ceases when the substance that is its cause is removed, not by knowledge. It has been established that the cause of the ignorance of the soul is a substance and not vice-versa because as mala is not sentient (abauddhatvāt) it cannot be removed by knowledge. It is removed by the Lord, just as, for example, a doctor (removes) a cataract from one's eye. Thus it is the Lord who brings about liberation, not the Self. The same is said in another branch (of our tradition): 'The liberation of the soul is brought about by Śiva. . . .'

But, although Kashmiri Śaivites insist that impurity is ignorance when disputing with Siddhāntins who understand it to be a separate 'material' reality, they do not disagree with the view, which is also that of our text, that all this takes place by Śiva's free will and that it is implimented by Māyā. But they insist that Māyā is essentially ignorance, which is not just an absence of knowledge but a positive mistake. This is why the Śivasūtra (1/2) says: 'Knowledge is bondage'. Bhāskara explains in his commentary on this sūtra:

The knowledge (based on the notions) 'I' and 'this is mine' arises clothed in Speech (cf. SpKā 47) and consists of the perception (prathā) of relative distinctions. It is rooted in the impurity of Māyā and is said to be bondage, whose mark is the obscuration of ignorance.

The anonymous commentator explains:

The impurity of Māyā (māyīyamala) is bondage. It is the impurity of individuality (āṇavamala) that obscures one's own sovereign power which is the (lower order of) knowledge. (This knowledge) is the manifold diversified perception associated with (the notions) 'I' and 'this is mine,' fashioned from one's own nature. This happens because (the soul's authentic nature) is obscured by the notions of 'existence' and 'non-existence' which arise according to whether there is unity with, or division from, the light (of the Lord). They belong to the Supreme Lord himself who, eternal and pervasive, denies his own nature, as does an actor, and assumes the role of an individual soul by taking limitations (onto himself) by his power of Māyā, which can bring about the impossible, in order to make manifest the cosmic drama.

11. The first time the Self was 'invaded' with energy was when Śiva allowed himself to be affected by Māyā. In this way Śiva took its support, as it were, to assume the state of the agent who acts in the world. Thus, he comes down into the sphere of Mahāmāyā which is the field of Karma. Now, from this lower condition he rises to return to his pure, unsullied state. This also takes place by means of his power. But this time, it is not Śiva who descends into it. Instead an intense descent of power (śaktipāta) graces the individual soul who is thus freed from impurity (see below 13/41). This takes place through initiation (13/25cd-26ab) and its repeated re-enactment in the course of practice.

12. The text reads samuddharet, lit: 'utter forth'. The upward movement of this energy is like the upward motion of the vital breath that accompanies the utterance of mantra. In this case, the mantra is bliss.

13. One could also translate: 'the great impurity of Māyā is there'. The two possible translations reflect the ambivalent nature of Mahāmāyā. From the perspective of the liberated state Mahāmāyā is the Supreme Energy, which at the summit of its ascent 'along the path of what is to be purified' merges into the Void of Supreme Śiva. From the point of view of the fettered soul it is the impurity of Mayā that binds him, which dissolving away into Śiva, disappears.

In these verses the metaphysical aspect of Mahāmāyā is the predominant focus of attention. However, Mahāmāyā is first and foremost the goddess and consort of the god who is eulogized, as we have seen, in the hymn called Mahāmāyāstava or Śivaśaktisamarasamahāmāyāstava, in both her aspects – as goddess and metaphysical principle. See intro. vol. 2, p. 18 ff..

14. Kuṇḍalinī is often said to be like the flame of a lamp (see 7/51cd-52ab and note). The simile is an echo of the same one applied to the Self in the Upaniṣads, which is said to be:

A Person of the measure of a thumb
Like a flame without smoke,
Lord of what has been and what is to be.
He alone is today, and tomorrow too. (Kaṭha Up. 4/13 Hume's translation)

The spider's thread is another metaphor for Kuṇḍalinī, the supreme goddess manifest as the supreme energy of consciousness and the vital breath (cf. 26/34). Subtle and straight as a spider's thread, the soul is lead along it to the summit of existence. Through the subtle resonance of Kuṇḍalinī who is the vitalizing energy in all living beings and the energy of the inner sound of mantra, impurity is destroyed as the soul is led upwards along the current of the Sound that travels back to its original, transcendent, silent source. The energy of the Flame ‘utters forth’, that is, generates bliss which leads upwards, purifies and liberates, just as does the syllable OṀ, according to the teachings of the Upaniṣads. Thus we read in the Maitri Upaniṣad:

> Now, it has elsewhere been said: ‘Verily, there are two Brahmas to be meditated upon: sound and non-sound. Now non-sound is revealed only by sound.’ Now, in this case the sound-Brahma is OṀ. Ascending by it, one comes to an end in the non-sound. Someone says: ‘This, indeed, is the way. This is immortality. This is complete union (sāyjyatva) and also peacefulness (nirvṛtatva).’
>
> Now, as a spider mounting by means of his thread (tantu) obtains free space, thus, assuredly, indeed, does this meditator, mounting up by means of Oṁ, obtain independence (svātantrya). (6/22 Hume’s translation)

Grace – the ‘descent of power’ – comes down and this awakens the Kuṇḍalinī below in the adept’s body, which burns there like the flame of a lamp. Then the pure energy of Mahāmāyā within the burning flame of the energy of grace rises up, brilliant and powerful, burning impurity as it does so. Thus it generates bliss in the place of the alternations of pleasure and suffering that the impurity of Karma induces. We shall see that the rise of Kuṇḍalinī and the burning away (dahana) of impurity constitute the first of two phases. Once the first phase is complete and the energy has reached the summit of its ascent, from there it releases nectar which nourishes (poṣaṇa) (see 13/136 ff. and 48/30-32).

15. Concerning brahmaghoṣa see note to 3/138. Parā is 'mounted' on the carriage of the Sound of Brahman which is the Fourth state (3/138). Śiva and the Supreme Energy are 'well established' in the sense that, at that level, they are in a state of permanent union.

16. MS K reads: nīyate. If we were to accept this reading this sentence would mean: ‘(Impurity) is lead into the the Supreme Sky (of ultimate reality)’. There it is purified.

17. The gold analogy is repeated below. See 13/24cd-27ab and 13/100-101ab.

18. I usually translate the term pratyaya as ‘sign of realisation’ because it is most commonly used with reference to the outer signs that mark the intensification and ascent of the energy of Kuṇḍalinī. In this case the term pratyaya appears to be a shortened form of pratyayājñā, which can be translated as ‘the Command (that brings about) realisation’. See below 13/31. This takes place in the course of initiation see 13/53-54.

19. Cf. below 14/12cd-13ab. Merit and sin are concomitant with Karma, which is said to be Dharma and Adharma, that is, ‘lawful’ and ‘unlawful’, ‘right’ or ‘wrong’ action. The MVT (1/24ab) explains:

> As for Karma it consists of the lawful and the unlawful, characterized by pleasure, suffering and the rest (sukhaduḥkhādilakṣaṇa),

See also TĀ 9/120 ff. where this line is quoted and explained.

20. Śiva is described as tranquil above in 13/3a. The pure tranquil Self is Śiva who is not, of course, destroyed by contact with Māyā, but the purity and tranquility which is his no longer characterises the individual soul who has been permeated by Māyā. Gold continues to exist as it is, essentially pure, but as a part of the alloy formed with lead it is no longer so. Similarly, Śiva continues to exist as he is, unaffected, but as the individual soul, he is no longer pure.

21. This sentence appears also above as 13/19d-20ab.

22. Kumāra writes in his commentary on the Tattvaprakāśa (verse 15) a brief treatise on the Śaivasiddhanta conception of the thirty-six principles:

> The Supreme Lord's power is of two kinds, (the power) to bind and the (power to) liberate. Of these two, the first is active since beginningless time and binds the fettered with nets of fetters. Over the course of time, the Karma (of the fettered souls) balances out and its activity (thereby) ceases; (then) the power to liberate seeks its time to fall (upon the fettered souls and grace them) by the path within the Great Lord, and (then) it falls upon those fettered souls. Then, when the power that removes transmigratory existence is falling, God assuming the form of the teacher initiates (the fettered souls) and, bringing about the maturation of (their) impurity (mala) and the rest, conjoins (them) to the reality that is the Supreme Lord.

This passage presents three of the essential features of the Siddhānta theory which explains how initiation functions, and therefore how the individual soul attains liberation. All Śaiva schools and, by extension, Kaula as well, adopt and adapt some part of the Siddhānta theory to their own in various ways. One of these features is that this grace falls on the fettered soul when his Karmas are in a state of equilibrium. This simply means that the bad actions done in the past have been effectively countered by the good. This balancing out of Karmas marks the maturation of the soul's impurity. As it matures, the grace that descends upon him becomes progressively more intense. Finally, as the commentary on the Kiraṇāgama explains:

> Again, when over the course of time the Karma (of the fettered soul) is in a state of (perfect) equilibrium (samakarma), if he is initiated by the teacher with an intense descent of power, he (becomes) omniscient like Śiva and free from the condition of limited knowledge. Then, full of the manifestation of Śivahood, he is (never) again subject to transmigration. KiVi. 1/20-22

The balancing out of Karmas in itself is neither liberating nor is the maturation of impurity alone, just as the opposite i.e. karmic imbalance is not binding in itself. It is Śiva's power that liberates through initiation, just as that same power binds. So the Examination of the Three Jewels (Ratnatrayaparīkṣā 313-314) explains:

Although it (itself) undergoes no change, the sun causes wax to melt at (the same) moment as it dries a ball of clay, (simultaneously) and without distinction (anapekṣa). In the same way, Śiva, although he undergoes no change, binds and liberates individual souls according to whether their actions, said to be good and bad, are equal or not.

Commentary: . . . (Like the sun) Śiva also liberates the souls whose mala has matured and who are fit to be liberated, and he binds those souls whose mala has not matured and should be bound in order to mature (their Karma). Thus there is no contradiction. Thus here (this is what is meant) by the phrase '(...) actions, said to be good and bad'.

He does not rejoice by being helped, nor does he become angry by being hindered. He who is equanimous in all things is said to be one who is liberated in this life.

In accord with this view, there is said to be two kinds of Karma, one that aids and another that hinders. When, by the maturation of mala, they are considered to be the equal, this is liberation. The absence of that is bondage. The equality of good and bad, such as (the performance of) a horse sacrifice and the killing of a Brahmin, should not be explained to be the cause of liberation. This is because (this view) is contrary to the scripture, and also because this kind of equality can (only) take place in the (fettered) state of transmigration, and because by doing this it leads only to one's own (moral) destruction. The point here is that mala must be mature and the perception of a person should be alike in praise and blame. Moreover, when all the signs of this kind of equality appear in one whose impurity has reached maturity, initiation is the cause of liberation.

An essential feature of Kaula initiation is that it takes place by a process called 'piercing' – vedha. Like other forms of initiation, this involves the progressive rise of the vital breath upwards that marks the transition from lower to higher orders of existence. Kaula initiation has this added characterizing feature that this ascent of the energy of the vital breath takes place with great force. As it pierces through the centres arranged along the axis of its ascent, it burns up impurity and the gross progerssively dissolves into the subtle. Outer signs of accomplishment of this process are clearly visible as the inner experience develops in stages to reach the ultimate which is merger in the deity. In this way the impurity of the soul is pierced and destroyed by the Command which is the goddess's grace (anugraha) and her descent of power (śaktipāta) that brings about these signs of realisation (see below 13/30-31).

This process is characterised here, as it is in the Siddhānta, as the maturing of impurity (malapāka). There, as here, this is the impurity of Karma. It is Karma that matures by this process and this happens directly at the goddess's Command: her grace. However, according to the Siddhānta the maturation of Karma – or, what amounts to the same thing from that point of view, the attainment of a state of karmic equilibrium of Karma – is the occasion for the descent of grace, rather than the other way round. Siddhāntins maintain that this explains why some fettered souls are the recipients of Śiva's grace and others not, just as it explains why there are degrees of grace. Thus Nārāyaṇakaṇṭha writes in his commentary on the Mokṣakārikā (lines 66cd-67ab):

> And so the Lord is the cause of (both) the operation (pravṛtti) and cessation (of mala) and is in every case the cause of liberation. But if he has no particular preference, why is the Lord not the cause of the liberation of everybody at once? (This is not the case) because (this) depends on the maturation of Karma, otherwise (if this were not so) the constraint that is perceived (on this taking place) would be without reason.

Abhinavagupta vigourously opposes this view and goes to great lengths to refute numerous arguments that are advanced to support it. Among his most important arguments, we can mention the following found in the TĀ (13/88-89ab).

> One may conceed that the consequences of two actions (karman) may at some point be opposed to one another and thus immobilize each another. However, there would be no reason why a (third) action (karman) should not arise in the interim. Moreover, why should a descent of Śiva's power occur (only) when this opposition (of two Karmas) occurs?

The point Abhinava seeks to establish is that there can be no causes, conditions or specific occasions for grace. Śiva is totally free to dispense it as he wishes. There is nothing the individual can do to deserve it. Abhinava concludes:

> There are various causes upon which (according to one view or another) the Lord's will is said to depend: detatchment, aversion to sensual pleasure, religious observance, discrimination, association with spiritual people, the worship of the Supreme Lord and other (deities), spiritual practice, indifference to the calamaties which befall one, signs (of spiritual attainment that appear on the body), the veneration of the scriptures, the fullness of all possible experience and knowledge of God – all are implicitly refuted by the preceding arguments.

Ibid. 13/98-99

The voteries of the Kubjikā Tantras would certainly agree that grace is entirely independent of causes and conditions (nirapekṣa), insofar as right (dharma) and wrong (adharma) are both Karma and that Karma cannot remove Karma, only grace can. The elevation of the energy of Kuṇḍalinī in the form of Sound from the Root piercing upwards through the Wheels, or configurations of energies on its path until it dissolves away, is the process whereby Karma matures and hence is destroyed. This takes place through the energy of grace, that is, the Command, which is both the essence and impetus of this energy. This process has been described in its essential features above in 13/15-21; see also below 13/30. It is described in detail from 13/111 onwards.

23. According to the Siddhānta, grace comes when the soul's impurity has matured and so is ready to receive it. We have seen that this view is refuted by Abhinava in order to safeguard Śiva's perfect freedom and independence. The view here is a third position which shares features of both. According to our text, the three forms of impurity – Mayā, Karma and the one of this world, Aihika, related to the qualities of sattva, rajas and tamas – are supreme, subtle and gross, respectively. The rising of the energy of pure Mahāmāya is the fire of Kuṇḍalinī that consumes them as it pierces them, carrying their remnants up to the supreme state in the Expanse where Śiva is reunited with his pure energy. Initiation sets this process into operation. Indeed, as we shall see in the concluding part of this chapter, this is essentially what takes place in the course of Kaula intiation which purifies the body as Kuṇḍalinī rises through it, piercing the vital centres as it does so. In this way impurity 'matures' or 'cooks' in the fire of Kuṇḍalinī as the triple impurity burns away.

24. We read below (57/45cd-46) that such a yogi 'sees with the eye of knowledge the Transmental state within that (Command) and the mind in deep sleep is freed of all phenomenal states'.

25. The Tantrasadbhāva agrees with the KuKh concerning the nature of the impurity which binds the individual soul and its essential identity with Śiva. Indeed, it may well be one of the sources of these doctrines which probably originated in the Bhairava Tantras and the early strata of the Trika Tantras, of which the Tantrasadbhāva is one of the very few surviving examples. The following passage from the TS tells us about the Point (bindu) within which Śiva resides. It begins by explaining what the individual soul (jīva) is:

That is the Supreme Self residing in the body worshipped by yogis. That is said to be the Point (bindu) that abides pervading (all things). Established in the state of the fettered soul, it is not pervasive, and transmigrates in the world of transmigration. (This individual) Self without beginning, (associated with) impurity and Māyā, is Śiva who is ever-free. He emanates many forms of bondage. (They are) the qualities (guṇa) consisting of being and non-being. Concealing (what is) below, these qualities serve as the bonds (that fetter the soul). It is for this reason that (the Self) is the Point (bindu) within (phenomena which would otherwise seem to be) non-existing things, that is, within the Yoni, which is one's own essential nature (svarūpaka).

The Point is said to be the Self and the Self is said to be the Point. The Supreme Point pervades (all things) and is established in (the reality) beyond destruction (layātīta). Once one knows the two Points in this way, one is freed from (seeking any goal within) the world of transmigration.

paramātmā sa dehastho yogibhis tu upāsyate [kh, g: ru-] ||
sa eva bindur ity ukto vyāpayanto vyavasthitaḥ |
avyāpī paśubhāvasthaḥ [k, kh, g: -stha] saṁsāre saṁsaraty asau ||
anādimalamāyātmā vimuktas tu sadā śivaḥ | saṁsṛjed [kh: susṛjād] vividhān [vividhā] bandhān bhāvābhāvātmakān guṇān [kh: guṇaṁ] || te [g: na] guṇā bandhakatvena adho vṛtya [k: adho ddhṛtya; kh, g: aśvo vṛtya]
vyavasthitāḥ [kh: -tā] |
tasmād evam abhāveṣu bindur yonau [kh: vindu yāje; g: vindur yojo] svarūpake || bindur aatmaa samaakhyaata.h [k, kh, g: bindunaatmaa samaakhyaatau] aatmaa
[kh: aatma] bindur iti sm.rta.h |
vyaapaka.h parato bindur layaatiite vyavasthita.h ||
bindudvaya.m tato j~naatvaa sa sa.msaaraad vimucyate | TS 1/49cd-54ab

These verses are part of a passage (TS 1/43-52) that has been omitted from chapters 40 and 41 of our text where most of the first chapter of the TS has been reproduced. It would appear between KuKh 40/16ab and 16cd. See notes to the Sanskrit text for the whole passage. The last verse (TS 1/53) is found in our text as KuKh 40/16cd-17ab.

26. From here to verse 41, the text describes the process of the progressive merger of the twenty-four principles into one another, and ultimately into the most fundamental principle, Mahāmāyā. This is the essentially the power of Śiva's will (icchā). When everything has merged back into it and resumes its original tranquil condition, it spontaneously merges back into Śiva. This process is like death, which also involves the progressive merger of the constituents of the body, senses and mind into their source and the consequent disjunction of the Self, that is, Śiva who, imperishable, is thus freed of them (cf. 13/42). In accord with the common Sāṁkhya model, the principles are basically divided into five groups. The first group of five consists of the five gross elements. Although the text does not say so explicitly, it seems that these five ultimately dissolve away into their respective quarters of space. Thus the direction of Earth into which the gross element Earth merges is the east governed by Indra. Similarly, Water merges into the sphere of Varuṇa, that is, the god of water who presides over the western quarter. In the same way the energy of Fire merges into the south-east, which is the quarter governed by the god of Fire, Air into the direction of the Wind, that is, the north-west, and Space dissolves away in the centre.

Usually, the grosser principle is said to dissolve into its subtler counterpart. In this case, as the text itself says, merger takes place in reverse (vyutkrameṇa), that is, the subtler merges into the grosser counterpart which merges into space, that is, ceases to exist as such. Thus, the next verse explains that the subtle elements (tanmātra, lit. 'just that'), which are the five primary sensations corresponding to the five elements, dissolve away into 'the head' i.e. the highest, subtlest part of their corresponding gross elements.

27. These are, I suppose, the Five Praṇavas.

28. The ear represents the sense of hearing, the skin the sense of touch, the eye the sense of sight, the tongue, taste, and nose, smell.

29. Here too the senses are dissolved into their grosser counterparts. Thus the ear, which is the organ of hearing, dissolves into sound. The skin, which is the organ of touch, dissolves into the grosser flesh which is its support. The eye, which is the sense of sight, dissolves into the sources of light during the day and night. The tongue, which is the organ of taste, dissolves into the head of the demon Rāhu who tasted the nectar or immortality churned from the milky ocean just before Viṣṇu severed his head. Thus Rāhu symbolises the subtle element of taste. Finally, the nose, that is, the sense of smell, dissolves into the subtle element of the sensation of smell.

30. The Point (bindu) which as we have seen (note to 13/30-31), represents the Self, probably denotes the Principle of the Self (ātmatattva) here. This, along with the Principle of Knowledge (vidyātattva) and that of Śiva (śivatattva), form a triad well known to the Śaiva Āgamas, where they appear as a tripartite division of the principles of existences (tattva). The series of principles are divided into three parts in this way so that they can be conveniently purified. This is commonly done as a part of the preliminary purification of most Śaiva and Kaula rituals by rinsing the mouth three times (a procedure called ācamana) whilst offering salutation to each of the three in turn. According to the standard Siddhānta division of thirty-six principles, the Principle of the Self extends from Earth up to the end of the jurisdiction of Māyā. Then the Principle of Knowledge extends from there up to, and including, the principle of Śakti. Finally the Principle of Śiva consists of just the principle of Śiva. Here, the principles are reckoned to be twenty-four (see following note) and so the three principles are the three pure counterparts of the inner mental organ: mind, intellect and ego.

As all the principles that are liable to dissolve away are aspects of Nature (prakṛti), it does not have any specific pure counterpart into which it dissolves. It simply dissolves away as its aspects do so. Thus at the end of the process it vanishes, and with it disappears the impurity that essentially consists of the twenty-four principles which it generates and of which it is the 'substance' and the lower form of the energy of Mahāmāyā reverts to its supreme form.

31. The verses that describe the process of merger we have just examined (i.e. KuKh 13/32cd-39) are drawn from the Sūtra concerning the Fusion of the Principles (tattvasaṁghātasūtra) of the Yogakhaṇḍa (ibid. 8/7cd-25ab, the verses drawn from there are 8/8-15ab = KuKh 13/32cd-39). The basic metaphysical system to which this chapter of our text adheres, as do the Kubjikā Tantras in general (see following note), is one of twenty-five principles (tattva). This sūtra presumes a system of fifty principles. It is preceded by a short sūtra called the Sūtra of Emanation (sṛṣṭisūtra) (YKh (1) 8/1-7ab). This is basically just a list in serial order of the fifty principles that are emanated starting from the most gross, although one would expect them to begin from the most subtle. The Sūtra concerning the Fusion of the Principles repeats the same series from the point of view of withdrawal, that is, from gross to subtle. However, as the Sūtra of Emanation lists them in the same order, the difference between them lies only in the characterization of the principles, which in the second sūtra is a little more extensive. The following, in brief, are the Fifty Principles. The variant or additional names in brackets are drawn from the second sūtra: The five gross elements, the five corresponding sensations, the ten organs of knowledge and action, the three inner mental organs (= manas, intellect (called Bindu) and ego), the three Qualities of Nature, Nature itself, the Person, Niyati (Natural Law), Kāla (Time) (= Niṣkalacakra, the Wheel of the Undifferentiated), Kalā (Differentiated Energy – Kalārṇava – the Ocean of Energy), Māyā, Śuddhavidyā, Avidyā (Aśuddhavidyā > Bhairava), Pada, Vimala, Īśvara (= Nāda), End of Nāda, Bindu, Sadāśiva, Śakti, Kuṇḍalinī (= Sadākhya), Śikhā, Jyoti, Rūpa, (Rūpa)atīta, Parā (= Parāpara), Aparā (= Apara), Samanā, Unmanā, and the Principle that is both supreme (transcendent) and inferior (immanent) (Parāparatattva = Bhairava's plane).

The sūtra ends:

The Transmental (energy) goes to Bhairava and there everything dissolves away. This Principle that pervades everything (samasta) is Unmaneśvara. It is the divine plane of the Neuter (napuṁsaka), free from merit and sin, loss and benefit (bhoga), white and black, coming and going, what is to be taken up and what is to be rejected, Being and Non-being, and ritual. Devoid of loss or benefit (bhoga) – that is the supreme (reality) in the Krama teaching. There is nothing higher than this. This is the conclusion of the scripture.

bhairavaṁ conmanā yāti tatra sarvaṁ vilīyate ǀ yena vyāptaṁ [-k: pta] samastaṁ vai tattvedaṁ conmaneśvaram ǀǀ napuṁsakapadaṁ divyaṁ punyapāpavivarjitam ǀ hānabhogavinirmuktaṁ [k: dāna-] śvetakṛṣṇavivarjitam ǀǀ gamāgamavinirmuktaṁ heyopādeyavarjitam ǀ bhāvābhāvavinirmuktaṁ kriyākāṇḍavivarjitam ǀǀ hānabhogavinirmuktaṁ [k: dāna-] taṁ paraṁ kramaśāsane [k: kramaśāśane] ǀ asmāt parataraṁ nāsti iti śāstrasya [k: sāstrasya] niścayam ǀǀ YKh (1) 8/21-24

32. Concerning the goals of life and how the fourth – liberation - is related to the other three according to the Kubjikā Tantras, see intro. vol 1, p. 502-503.

33. The Bhaktibodha commentary on the Mālinīstava points out that the Kubjikā Tantras teach schemes of 25, 26, 36 or more principles. However, although there is indeed more than one scheme, the Kubjikā Tantras as a whole generally tend to adopt a system of twenty-five principles. The KRU narrates how the creation of the world begins with the god's contemplation of his own energy (cf. above 13/8). This energy, which is the coiled Kuṇḍalinī identified with Mahāmāyā, stimulated by the god's contemplation, emerges out of him to reunite with him and so bring about creation. In this context, Mahāmāyā is not the source and substance of impurity. She is in her supreme form in union with the god. Together they produce the Great Drop (mahābindu) of their united seed, which goes on to develop into the universe. It is said there of the goddess who emerges from the god:

(Thus) created, the supremely divine (goddess) was endowed with the twenty-five attributes (of the principles of existence) and, residing in the twenty-five principles of existence, the Supreme Goddess was beautiful.

nirmitā paramā divyā pañcaviṁśaguṇair yutā ǀǀ pañcaviṁśatitattvasthā śobhitā parameśvarī ǀ KRU 1/63cd-64ab

In this case, the Supreme Goddess is not Prakṛti. Nature is the twenty-fourth principle. Its three qualities are associated with the three impurities. It is the lower form of Mahāmāyā. The higher form is the Supreme Goddess, who is:

[...] Mahāmāyā endowed with his (i.e. the god's own divine) attributes. Endowed with the attributes of the Supreme Lord, she was delighted with supreme bliss.

sā ca devī mahāmāyā priye taddharmadharmiṇī |
parameśaguṇair yuktā paramānandananditā || ibid. 1/62

The twenty-five principles of existence include Śiva, who is the twenty-fifth. One wonders whether the goddess should be reckoned to be the twenty-sixth principle. But there is no hint of this possibility in the KRU, just as there is none in our text. This is because the goddess is Śiva's energy and, as such, is one with him. She possesses his attributes, that is, the twenty-five principles. It follows that Śiva himself is also endowed with all twenty-five and so he too, in a sense, transcends that aspect of himself reckoned to be the twenty-fifth principle. Thus neither he nor her, in their essential nature, appear amongst the principles. In this way, it seems that the Kubjikā Tantras have replaced the Puruṣa of the Sāṁkhya with the Śiva principle leaving Śiva himself and his energy free of them. We may contrast this view with the more common one found in the Purāṇas and elsewhere that maintain that Śiva is the twenty-sixth principle beyond the individual soul (puruṣa), which is the twenty-fifth. Thus we read in the Kāśīkhaṇḍa of the Skandapurāṇa (4/1/31/71cd-72):

(Śiva) is the creator and dispenser of the destiny of all the worlds. He is the lord and ruler of the worlds. He is beginningless. He is the sole refuge. He is quiescent. He is omniscient. He is the lord of all yogis. He is the sole lord of all the ghosts (bhūta). He is the supreme Absolute, the twenty-sixth principle.

Alongside the system of twenty-five principles, the scheme of thirty-six principles common in the Siddhāntas commonly appears in the Kubjikā sources. In some places it is taken over with little modification. In a hymn to the goddess (the Ādyoghadaṇḍaka in chapter 12 of YKh (1)), she is said to reside in the thirty-six principles, wearing them like a garland (tattvamālāṅgasambhūṣite). There we read:

The Mother is the supreme Light who is seen in the heart. There in the middle (of the Light) one can see the primordial energy, the Transmental (manonmanī). Devoid of all the principles of existence (tattva), she is incomparable and without form. There, in the centre, one can see the goddess (kuṇḍalinī) whose form is coiled (kuṇḍalākṛti). Kubjikā is that supreme goddess (parā devī), the first (ādibhūtā) (of all things) in the universe. She has six faces, six aspects and pervades the thirty-six principles.

yā [k: ṣaṇ] mātā [k: māsā] sā parā jyotiḥ dṛśyate [k: paśyaṁti] sā [k: sauṁ] hṛdantare [k: ravadaṁtare] | [kh: yā (+ mātā) sā parā jyotir icchāśaktisvarūpiṇī jyotiḥśchāśakti- ||]

dṛśyate [k: paśyaṁte] tatra madhyasthā śaktir ādyā [kh: parā -] manonmanī ||
sarvatattvavihīnā sā anaupamyā nirākṛtiḥ |
tatra madhye [k: madhya] sthitā devī dṛśyate kuṇḍalākṛtiḥ ||
kubjikā sā parā [kh: vakrarūpadharā] devī ādibhūtā carācare |
ṣaḍvaktrā ṣaṭprakārā ca tattvaṣaṭtriṁśavyāpinī || YKh (1) 12/10-12

Although the goddess is represented here as transcendent, that is, free of all the principles of existence, and so is not one herself, she is effectively a thirty-seventh principle beyond Śiva, the thirty-sixth who sprinkles her, as it were, with the nectar of his bliss (śivatattvapīyūṣadhārāntasaṁsiktā; ibid.). But the goddess is never described in this perspective. Indeed, this is her undifferentiated (niṣkala) form beyond all possible predication.

Similarly, in other cases we observe that although changes have been made, the original scheme of thirty-six principles remains apparent. Thus, for example, below in one place (33/133cd ff.) the number of principles is said to be thirty-six. However, not all the principles beyond Māyā, which is the thirty-first, are those of the Śaivasiddhānta (cf. 34/29d where only thirty-two principles are listed). Generally, the system of thirty-six principles appears as a standard one in the context of a cosmology based on the essentially Siddhānta model of the Six Paths. This model divides up the ritual universe into two triads. One is the denotator and the other the object of denotation. The latter consists of the Paths of the Worlds, Principles and Forces. The former is the Paths of Mantra, Parts of the Mantra and Letters.

In the KMT, the earliest Kubjikā Tantra, the system of thirty-six principles is mentioned only twice and both times in relation to this model. In one place (KMT 11/76-77ab) we read:

> She is Māyā the Supreme Goddess, hard to penetrate, imperishable and unchanging. She is the pervasive energy (vyāpinī) of all the Principles and, with the Self and the rest, is on the lower (apara) path. She is Māyā of the Six Paths and, in particular, of the thirty-six (Principles).

The other reference in the KMT (25/71ab) is drawn from the TS. There we read: 'Or else the king is said to be the Self on the path of the thirty-six (principles)'. Note that there is a variant of the same verse below (14/56), but no mention is made there of the number of principles. The reason for this may well be that the redactor wished to avoid incoherence with the system of the KMT. Elsewhere it is apparent that this is a system of twenty-five or twenty-six principles. Within the group of five wheels described in the KMT and its expansions, the Wheel of the Goddesses – Devīcakra – is the first. Projected into it are, among other things, the principles. There they are only twenty-five, or twenty-six if guṇa is included amongst them (see Heilijgers-Seelen 1994: 48, 60 and 67 for details, also KMT 14/33d-34ab and 41cd). Similarly, the last Wheel of the five, that of the Skyfaring Goddesses (khecarīcakra), consists of three concentric circles of the energies of the Sun, Moon and Fire arranged around a central triangle. The Circle of the Sun contains twenty-four *maṇḍala*s linked to the twenty-four principles from Earth to Nature (KMT 16/6c). The maṇḍala in the centre is the twenty-fifth (ibid. 16/39ab), which probably corresponds to Puruṣa (see Heilijgers-Seelen 1994: 154, 158). These twenty-five principles and their related letters correspond to the goddess's lower (apara) form, while the supreme form is said to be the twenty-sixth principle (KMT 16/50cd).

The original model was taken from the basic Siddhānta scheme, rather than adopted directly from the Sāṁkhya. This is evident from a good deal of circumstantial evidence. For example, according to the SvT (5/4-8ab, cf. comm. on NT 4/1) the nine letters of Navātman correspond to the nine principles Prakṛti, Puruṣa, Niyati, Kāla, Māyā, Vidyā (= Śuddhavidyā), Īśvara, Sadāśiva, and Śiva. Although the SvT is well known to the Kubjikā Tantras and Navātman is one of the most important seed-syllables, no such equation is made. This is presumably because the principles from Niyati to Sadāśiva are not accepted by them as independent principles. Instead we are told above that Navātman has nine energies (see 2/29-30ab), presumably those of the nine Bhairavas corresponding to the nine letters from which it is composed. Even so the commentary on KMT 14/45ab and 14/68 relates these principles to the last nine letters of the alphabet from Ya to KṢa, as does ṢSS 21/91cd-92ab. Moreover, some of them are mentioned separately in various contexts. Thus, the four, Kalā (limited agency), Rāga (Attachment), Niyati (limitation) and Vidyā (limited knowledge in the reference below this is called Avidyā) that are considered to be four of the five principles (Kāla – Time – is missing) called *kañcuka*s (lit. "cloaks") that, along with Māyā (from which they are derived), obscure the soul, exist and function in the same way according to the KMT as they do in the thirty-six Tattva system. However, they are not reckoned to be separate principles. The passage comes at the beginning of an exposition of the nature of the Wheel of the Self-supported where, according to the KMT, the individual soul is said to reside. There Bhairava addresses the goddess:

> This is the location of both Māyā and the Śāmbhava plane. It is the teaching concerning the support (adhiṣṭhāna) of limited agency (kalā). It is linked to the individualized form of the Person (puruṣāṇu) and so is rightly called 'one's own support'. The Self is coloured by attachment (rāga) and is conditioned by the force of limitation (niyati). Impelled by ignorance (avidyā), it goes to heaven or (wanders) in its own illusion. Three are said to be auspicious and three, inauspicious. (Thus) this is your place of the six sheaths and its pervasive condition is due to me. (KMT 13/2-4)

The topic of chapter eight of the KMT is Śikhāsvacchanda, a form of Svacchanda Bhairava. His consort is Vyādhi (Disease), 'above whom is the syllable AIṀ, sustained by the Īśvara principle' (KMT 8/25cd). However, this is also not part of any scheme of principles, although it is the 33rd in the common scheme of thirty-six. Schemes are commonly extended beyond the principle of the individual soul (Puruṣa) in order to account for the gap and bridge it between it and Śiva, the supreme principle. Classical Sāṁkhya does not need to bother about that because if the existence of deity – Īśvara – is accepted it is considered to be just one more soul, albeit supreme, among innumerable individual souls. The Kubjikā school, like any other theistic tradition cannot, of course, accept this and so must in some way fill the 'gap' between Puruṣa – the individual soul – and Śiva. This is done by the KMT and the other Kubjikā sources, but this gap in many cases is not filled with principles of existence. Instead we find phases or energies in the development of Sound and their corresponding 'worlds'. For example, in one place the KMT explains that the very advanced adept who is on the brink of attaining liberation is graced with the Śāmbhava penetration of energy. This happens when (KMT 10/94d-95): '[...] out of time (akāle), (he is) in the pure state (viśuddhabhāva). He sees every world, one by one, from the level of the Person up to the Transmental. Thus he is born with a pure body and he flies up with this body'.

When we find the scheme of thirty-six principles it is usually drawn from another source or appears in a separate context. For example, it figures in connection with the worship of Tripurabhairavī (see YKh (1) 43/10cd-14). After listing the principles, they are arranged in an ascending order in groups along the axis of the body. Distances in finger-widths are assigned to them in relation to the extent of their pervasion and the sequence in which they are progressively purified along with the mantra of Kāmadeva. However, this is a rather recondite example. The SvT, one of the most important sources for the Kubjikā Tantras, is the most commonly linked to the scheme of thirty-six. For example, the KuKauM quotes the SvT as saying:

(There is) the Fire of Time, the hells and the lower worlds, along with Hāṭakeśvara (who governs them). (There are) the seven worlds along with the Egg of Brahmā and then the five groups of eight, the group of eight divine beings (devayoni) up to Fundamental Nature (pradhāna) and the Person. (There are the principles of) Restraint (niyati), Time, Attachment, (limited) Knowledge and Action, Māyā, the principle (called) Vidyeśvara, Sādākhya, and the field of Śakti.

He attains all this effortlessly by the power of the King of Mantras. KuKauM 14/40-43 (= SvT 9/43-45; this is the version translated here)

As this part of chapter fourteen of the KuKauM is drawn from chapter nine of SvT, the King of Mantras is the Aghora mantra of Svacchanda Bhairava (see SvT 1/41-43). The redactor(s) of the KuKauM has simply accepted everything found in this chapter of the SvT, including the system of thirty-six principles implicit in this reference. Further on in the same chapter the KuKauM again draws a passage from the SvT in which, despite variations, the system of thirty-six principles is clearly apparent. The most striking instance of import from the SvT found in this system concerns the extended initiatory rite called the 'sixteenfold consecration of the Command'. This is presented complete in the Ṭīkā. Along with the characteristic Kaula 'initiation by piercing' (vedhadikṣā) the neophant is progressively led along the Six Paths to reach union with Śiva. The process accords with the pattern generally found in the Siddhānta Āgamas, and so includes the scheme of thirty-six principles.

Finally, we turn to the exposition of the principles presented in chapter four of the ŚM. Here we find that are twenty-six principles, as in our text. Along with the twenty-five of the Sāṁkhya, there is Supreme Śiva. Here, as in our text, Nature is essentially Śiva's Śakti, his divine will, identified with the Command, Kuṇḍalinī and Speech. Permutations of Śakti through phases of Sound bridge the gap between Śiva and Puruṣa, creating the necessary limiting conditions that account for Puruṣa's involvement in daily life made possible by the further permutation of Śakti into Prakṛti. Thus, there is no need to posit the existence of extra principles that limit the individual soul or others above, that mark the stages of the devolution of Śiva's consciousness. Here is the passage:

Puruṣa is the one who experiences phenomenal existence (as the possessor of 'enjoyerhood') (bhoktṛtva) because of the perception of bondage and because of the power of Nature (prakṛti). The one who liberates (him) from (his condition) is the Supreme Śiva. Śiva, the agent (of all actions), is well known because (in his embodied state) he may be indicated at the tip of the index finger (that points to one's own body). By virtue of the principle of Śakti (he possesses) (his essential) autonomy (nirapekṣatva) and sovereignty (aiśvarya) and he is free (svacchanda).

The form of the Qualities is in the location of the letters. Due to (the variety of) names, division (bheda) arises. (Even so) Śiva has only one Command (ājñā) (which functions in many ways) due to the (varied) conjunction of cause and effect.

The winds of the senses are (collectively) the agent of action who is the foundation of the sustaining earth. When (the senses) transport their particular from of phenomenal experience (bhoga) in this way, they are always (associated with) Śiva. Just as (beautiful) forms are not successfully (formed) without the artist (citrakara) who, by uniting the (colours) white and the rest, knows how to conjoin the separate principles.

bandhanasyopalabdhitvāt [g: -nasyāpalamvitvāt] prakṛteś [kh: prakṛtaś; g: prakṛtiś] ca balādapi ||
puruṣasya ca bhoktṛtve [kh: bhoktatve; g: bhoktatvaṁ] mocako 'sau paraḥ śivaḥ |
svacchando [kh: svacchandaṁ] nirapekṣatvād aiśvaryāc chaktitattvataḥ ||
prasiddhaḥ sa śivaḥ [g: śiva] kartā tarjanyagre [g: taryanyagre] nidarśanāt [g: nidarśayat] |
varṇasthānaguṇākāraṁ [g: -kāra] nāmabhir bhedamāgataṁ [kh: -bhedamāgratam] ||
ekaivājñā śivasyaiva kāryakāraṇayogataḥ |
śeṣakarmakarīndrāṇāṁ [g: -kūrmākarīṁgrāṇāṁ] vāyavo dharaṇīdharam ||
svasvabhogaṁ vahanty evaṁ yad ete [kh: padate] sarvadā śivaḥ | sitādivarṇayogena [kh g: śitādi-] bhinnatattvādiyogavit [kh g: bhinnā-; kh: tattvāpi] ||
yathā [n: yatho] na [ph: missing] siddhim āyānti [j: -māyāti; ph: viddhisamāyānti] rūpāś citrakaraṁ [j: rūpaṁcitrakaraṁ] vinā || ŚM 4/22cd-27

O goddess, conception does not take place independently of Śiva's will, even when a couple manage to bring about the union of their blood (i.e. the ovum) and semen during the (woman's) fertile period. Seed sown in a field that has been ploughed and everything else (required to prepare it has been done) does not sprout so long as there is no divine will (for this to happen) (daivikī icchā). (Nothing will) give fruit or anything else without Śiva's will. Even when the season of trees, flowers, creepers and the rest has come, flowers and fruits do not develop without Śiva's will (that they do so). It is due to Śiva's will that (all) that is seen and unseen has a (specific) form (vigraha) (of its own).

ṛtukālakṛte yoge pitṛbhyāṁ raktaśukrayoḥ ||
śivecchayā vinā [g: missing] devi [g: devī] garbhotpattis tathā [g: garbhotpattiṁtathā] nahi |
halādikarmayogena [g: harādi- -yogeṇa] kṣetre [g: kṣetra] bījam upāsitaṁ [g: -mupāśitam] ||
niṣpadyate [g: padyate] na [g: + ca] vai tāvad yāvad icchā na daivikī [kh: śaivikī; g: daivikīṁ] |
vṛkṣagulmalatādīnāṁ samaye 'pyāgate na te ||
puṣpavṛddhiphalavṛddhir [kh: puṣpavṛddhiḥ -; g: phalaiṁvṛddhi] na śivecchā vinā bhavet |

śivecchayā [kh: -cchayā] samagrasya dṛṣṭādṛṣṭasya [g: dṛṣṭvā-] vigrahaḥ [g: vigrahāt] || ibid. 4/27cd-30

(This will is the goddess) who, endowed with the attributes of consciousness and very (beautifully) varied ordains (the existence and form of things) (vidhātrī). When she is aroused (from her unmanifest universal state) (kṣobhitā), she possesses (the three) qualities as the (objectivity which is the) support of the individual soul (puṁsa). (She is) Śiva's energy of action because everything (sakala) is a product of action (kārya).

As will, knowledge and action, her form (ākṛti) is like a round earring (kuṇḍala). She is the goddess Mātṛkā, who although (is always only) one energy, is (also) fivefold. She is omniscient, pervasive and endless; she does all things. (Thus) she is threefold.

vidhātrī citrabahulā [kh: vahulāṁ] caitanyaguṇaśālinī [kh: -sālinī] | kṣubhitā [k, kh: kṣubhitvāt; g: kṣubhitvā] guṇasaṁpannā puṁso
'dhiṣṭhātṛbhāvataḥ [kh: -tribhāvataḥ; g: - tibhāvataḥ] ||
sakalasya ca kāryatvāt kriyāśaktiḥ śivasya ca |
icchājñānīkriyārūpā kuṇḍalākṛtir eva sā ||
svastīti mātṛkā devī śaktir ekāpi [g: -kābhi] pañcadhā |
sarvajñā vyāpikānantā [kh: -pakā] sarvakartṛ tridhā tu sā || ŚM 4/31-33

The will, who is the energy (called) Kuṇḍalinī, is (essentially) unmanifest; (but when it does) become manifest it does so in consonance with the (symbolic) division (into the five faces of Śiva, namely) Sadyojāta and the others (who are the five aspects of the agent of this fivefold power).

She is (both the) Brahman and the supreme energy (kalā). She is the one energy of the Supreme Lord that unfolds (thus as all things).

Just by the awakening (prabodha) of (this) energy, one permutation (pariṇāma) (of its basic state) took place. A subtle Resonance (dhvani) (of individualized consciousness) arose out from Sound (nāda), (the transcendent consciousness of Śiva,) causing the entire universe to resound. (This also takes place by means) of the (individual subjective) awareness (vedana) of all things (that is generated) by the Point (of Śiva's universal consciousness) at every moment (sarvadā).

icchā kuṇḍalinī [g: -kuṁḍalanī] śaktir avyaktā vyaktatāṁ gatā |
sadyojātādibhedena brahmarūpā parā [g: parāṁ] kalā ||
svastīti parameśasya śaktir ekā vijṛmbhate [kh: -kābhividyate; g: -ne] | śakteḥ [kh: śaktiḥ] prabodhamātreṇa pariṇāma eko 'bhavat [kh:
pariṇāmamakoyayet; g: pariṇāmaḥsakopayat] ||

nādāt sūkṣmadhvanir jāto [g: sūkṣmādhvaniryātā] nādayed akhilaṁ jagat |
bindunā sarvavastūnāṁ [kh: vastunāṁ] vedanād api sarvadā || ŚM 4/34-36

(Thus) the Point is omnipresent and subtle. It is present in (or MS Kh: 'this is because' it is – svarūpataḥ) both the manifest and the unmanifest. He is said to be the indefinable (ko 'pi) Īśvara (principle) by virtue of his association with the three energies and the others (associated with them). (The wise) call this the Teacher's Mouth (guruvaktra) of the person who perceives reality.

The Moon, the Point and the Supreme Will are said to be the (fundamental) energies of the letters (varṇamātrā). (They correspond to) the goddesses Parā, Aparā and Parāparā, respectively. The Vidyā of the Path of Nirvāṇa is flawless and active (uditā) consciousness (cetanā). (This is) the secret world (bhuvana) of the Mothers as well as that of the qualities and action. It is the subtle all-pervasive mind (citta), the principle of Māyā endowed with consciousness (cetana). Once this arises within the plane of Ucchuṣmaṇā by applying (i.e. by uttering her) seed-syllable mantra (bīja) and the like, (then) its nature, the deluding energy (mohanīkalā) (it possesses, arises) from Māyā.

binduḥ [g: viṁdu] sarvagataḥ [g: -gato] sūkṣmo vyaktāvyaktasvarūpagaḥ [kh: svarūpataḥ] |
śaktyāditrayasaṁbaddhād īśvaraḥ ko 'py asau smṛtaḥ [g: smṛtāḥ] ||
guruvaktram idaṁ prāhur jantos tattvārthadarśinaḥ [g: prāhusarvamatvārthadarśitaḥ] |
indubinduparecchā [g: idaṁ -] ca varṇamātrāḥ [g: -mātrā] prakīrtitāḥ [kh: prakīrtitā] ||
parā caivāparā devī tathaiva ca [kh: tathā caiva] parāparā |
vidyā nirvāṇamārgasya [g: -mārgatyā] cetanā uditāmayā [kh g: -yaṁ] ||
mātṚṇāṁ [kh g: mātṛṇāṁ] bhuvanaṁ [g: bhavaṇaṁ] guhyaṁ guṇānāṁ karmāṇām api |
śūkṣmaṁ [kh: sūkṣmaṁ] sarvagataṁ cittaṁ [g: citraṁ] māyātattvaṁ [g: -tatva] sacetanam [kh: sacetasaṁ] ||
bījasyaivopayogena yathaivocchuṣmaṇā bhuvi |
saṁjāteyaṁ [kh g: saṁjātedaṁ] tathā bhūte [g: nūnaṁ] māyāto mohanī kalā ||
ŚM 4/37-41

Inconceivable (acintya), it is pride and stupidity enveloped in the darkness of ignorance. (When it is present) time (kāla) operates which is the deluded consciousness of one who has (worldly) desires (lipsaka). They say that the characteristic mark of the Body of Kula is that (the orders of the) levels of existence (pada) are reversed. The sign (cinha) of time is the reversed reality (viparītārtha) which is perceived (here in the world of Māyā).

acintyadarpamūḍhatve [g: aciṁtyaṁ -; kh g: -tvaṁ] ajñānatamasāvṛte [kh: -vṛtaṁ; g: -tasamāvṛtaṁ] । lipsako mūḍhacaitanyaḥ [g: -cetanyaṁ] kāla eṣa vidhīyate ॥ viparītapadāny āhuḥ kulapiṇḍasya lakṣaṇam [kh, g: -ṇāt] । lakṣite viparītārthe [kh g: -rthaṁ] kālacihna iti smṛtaḥ [g: smṛtaṁ] ॥ ŚM 4/42-43

The Self is always 'coloured' by sattva, rajas and tamas. (This triad) is called the principle of attachment (rāgatattva). The universe is coloured by attachment. This is (the principle of) limited knowledge (vidyā), the root of (every) impediment (kleśa). It is the (false) notion of purity (śucībhāvanā) in that which is impure. (Due to this) one thinks that the eternal is in what is not eternal. It is the bondage of what is seen and what is invisible. It is experience (bhoga) in the mind (citi) (centred on) Dharma and Adharma combined with the energy (kalā) of the (soul) who desires (lipsaka). (But) the attachment that is emitted from Māyā and (operates) in the field from which (limited) knowledge (vidyā) has been uprooted, is considered to be the supremely pure, particularly in the tradition of the Śrīkula.

sattvarajastamobhiś ca [kh: satvaṁrajastamaś caiva; g: satvarajatamaś caiva] rañjitātmā ca sarvadā । rāgatattvam iti [g: -tatva iti] khyātaṁ rāgena rañjitaṁ jagat [kh: tanuṁ] ॥ kleśamūlā avidyeyam aśucau [kh: -mūlama-; g: klesamūlamavidyante asucau] śucibhāvanā [kh: suca-] । anitye nityam uddiṣṭaṁ [g: -mūdriṣṭaṁ] dṛṣṭādṛṣṭasya [kh: -dṛṣṭaśca] bandhanam [kh: vañcanaṁ] ॥ dharmādharmacitau [g: vidho] bhogaṁ lipsakakalayānvitam [kh: lipsakaḥ-] । māyātaḥ [kh: māyātat] kṣarito [kh: kṣurito] rāgaḥ vidyaunmūlitagocaraḥ [kh: vidyāmūlita-; g: vidyunmūlita-] ॥ rāgo 'sti ca [g: rāmopyaṣi] paraḥ śuddho viśiṣṭaḥ [kh: viśiṣṭa; g: viśiṣya] śrīkulānvaye [kh: śrīkulāgame] । ŚM 4/44-47ab

The essence of the teacher's instruction, regulating the auspicious and the inauspicious, is that the Self is the Person (puruṣa) who is the perceiver, eternally pervasive and free from defects. Māyā, Vidyā, Kalā, and Rāga are the enveloping covering of the *kañcuka*s which is (the quality) rajas. (This Puruṣa) is the reality (padārtha) of the composite whole (saṁghāta) (of the body). He is, in reality, the one who sustains (it) (adhiṣṭātṛ), the enjoyer, free from all qualities, and because (he is) consciousness, he is conscious. (Thus he) is the 'whole' (sāmānya) of what is divided (into parts) (vibhaktasya) and so is the cognitive state (jñatvā) in the field (of the objects of sense) (viṣaya).

gurūpadeśasadbhāvaṁ śubhāśubhaniyāmikam [kh: niyāmikā] ||
ātmāsti [g: ātmāṣṭi] puruṣo draṣṭā nityo [kh: nitya] vyāpī nirāmayaḥ |
māyāvidyākalārāgakañcukāvaraṇo rajaḥ [kh:; g: kaṁcūkācaraṇo rajaḥ] ||
saṁghātasya padārthatvād adhiṣṭhātā ca [kh: - dhiṣṭhānāśca; g: -dadhiṣṭāca] tattvataḥ |
bhoktṛtvād aguṇatvāc ca cetanatvād [g: bhoktatvāda- -tvā ca] sacetanaḥ [kh: g: -dacetana] ||
vibhaktasya [kh: viviktasya] ca [g: su] sāmānyaṁ [kh g: sāmānyā] jñatvā [kh, g: jñātvā] vā viṣaye [kh, g: viṣayaṁ] tataḥ [kh: viṣayatnataḥ] | ŚM 4/47cd-50ab

This, the twenty-fifth, is proved (siddha) (to exist) in both the liberated reality and in the ongoing affairs of daily life (pravṛtti). The triad of qualities is the object of enjoyment which is neither discriminatively discerned (avivikta) nor conscious. It is a subtle, universal unity (of the entire field of objectivity), the imperishable fundamental principle (pradhānatattva) (of objectivity). This triad of qualities is the pervasive (triad) of sattva, rajas and tamas. (These qualities) overcome one another, give rise to one another and operate together.

kaivalyārthe [kh: -rtha] pravṛtteś ca [g: pravitteśva] siddho 'yaṁ pañcaviṁśakaḥ [g: paṁcaviṁśatiḥ] ||
triguṇaṁ bhogyam apy uktaṁ [kh: -avyaktaṁ; g: ukta] aviviktam [g: avibhuktaṁ] acetanam |
sāmānyaṁ [kh g: -nya] sūkṣmam ekatvaṁ [g: mekaṁ ca] pradhānatattva makṣayaṁ [g: pradhānyaṁ tatvasavyayaṁ] ||
sattvaṁ [g: satva] rajas tamaś ceti [g: caiva] vyāpinedaṁ [g: vyāpinoyaṁ] guṇatrayam |
anyonyābhibhavasthānajanmamaithunavṛttayaḥ [kh: -sthānāj-; g: -sthānā-] ||
ŚM 4/50cd-52

The passage continues with a description of the effects and characteristics of the three qualities followed by that of the rest of the principles down to Earth. This account largely agrees with the standard Sāṁkhya view and need not detain us further.

34. The cave dwelling of Tuṣṇīnātha, the First Siddha is located here. This is where he received the Command of the goddess as do those who follow him. See above, 3/1.

35. The text of the first line of this verse and the previous one may well be corrupt.

36. The most relevant of the several possible meanings of the term 'Kula' in this context seems to be the body. In this sense it is contrasted with Akula, which is the transcendent reality beyond the body (see above, 1/1 gloss to the expression akulakulagatam). Thus, the statement, 'the Lord is within Kula' simply means that he is within the body and abides there free of the imperfections that afflict it. Śiva is present before the yogi in his own body. Seeing Śiva within his body, he sees himself, as it were, reflected in a mirror. Thus he is instructed to enter without fear into his body which, by virtue of his detachment from it, is for him like a corpse.

37. Further on we are told that pilgrimage to sacred places is useless unless one first attains the inner teaching (adhyātmanirṇaya) (14/80cd-82ab). This is acquired through initiation, which destroys Karma. The Tantras generally agree with the view expressed here, that although pilgrimage to sacred sites and other such practices do not in themselves lead to liberation, they do bestow yogic powers and worldly benefits. Thus, Abhinavagupta quotes the Niśisaṁcāratantra as saying:

(Sacred) place concerns those who aspire to acquire supernatural powers. It should be abandoned by one who aspires to liberation, as does a serpent its sloth. TĀ 15/105d-106ab

38. Concerning the eight yogic powers, see above, note 71 of chapter eight.

39. The emphasis on the unique importance of initiation as the primary means to remove impurity is common to all schools of the Śaiva and Kulāgama (cf. below 33/178). Moreover, all agree that impurity can only be removed by an act of grace and that its removal is liberation. Thus the whole process, starting from the desire itself to achieve liberation, the quest for a teacher as well as the performance itself of the rite and all that follows, is all the result of the deity's grace. The differences in the views of the Siddhānta, Kashmiri Śaivism and the Kubjikā Tantras concern the manner in which this takes place, rather than its cause. The answer to the question 'how does grace remove impurity?' is not a purely theoretical consideration. Theory and practice are two aspects of a single process. Orthopraxis and orthodoxia go hand in hand. Thus it is possible to understand the relationship between soteriologies to be a hierarchy. In other words, each school in their own way exemplifies a degree of grace which corresponds to the degree of removal of impurity to which each school leads the aspirant. These degrees are reflected in the teachings of each school concerning the nature of reality as a whole and hence that of impurity and, according to its nature, the manner of its removal. The three schools we are examining exemplify the main issues involved; their response is an indication of both the communality of their teaching (they are after all, all basically Śaiva traditions) and their own distinctive differences.

We may conveniently start from the dualist Siddhānta view. According to this view, impurity obscures the knowledge and action of the individual soul. It is not ignorance, an ideal reality, but it is concrete, virtually material. Although one and the same for all individual souls, it has countless powers which affect each one of them separately and so effectively becomes a personal impurity for everyone operating differently upon each fettered soul in accord with the latent traces of its past Karma. The law of Karma is enforced by Śiva who, along with the fetter (pāśa) of impurity and the soul (aṇu), is the third reality according to the dualist Siddhānta. He is the Lord (pati) of the souls and the world he creates for them; he acts on the universal substance of impurity in such a way that the bound souls can work out their Karma. When the Karma of a fettered soul has reached the required stage of maturity, Śiva who, the Siddhānta stresses, is impartial, begins to operate on the soul himself by gracing it with descents of his saving power. This takes place in the course of initiation and brings about the removal of impurity. The Siddhāntin Aghoraśiva (commenting on TP 18) explains that the process by which initiation removes the impurity of the soul is like the removal of chaff from rice which has matured to the point this can be done. It is also like the action of acid (rasaśakti) that by dissolving away (pākena, lit. 'cooking' or 'maturing') the verdegris on copper, cleans it. The analogy indicates that the covering is external. It does not penetrate into the essential nature of the soul, which remains unchanged. However, Kumāra adds (Aṣṭaprakaraṇa p. 34): 'Thus because impurity is a substance, it is removed as is a cataract and the like from the eye by means of the Lord's action, called initiation – not just by knowledge alone'.

The monistic Śaivites of Kashmir cannot agree that impurity is a second separate reality apart from Śiva who is consciousness. According to them, this fundamental impurity is ignorance. Early Siddhāntas, such as Sadyojāta, Aniruddha and Rāmakaṇṭha, were also of the view that the nature of impurity is ignorance, which can only be removed by initiation. Although Abhinavagupta agrees, he adds that the liberation attainable through initiation, if not supported by intellectual knowledge, that is, insight into the true nature of things, is only achieved after death:

> According to Śaiva doctrine, the knowledge and ignorance here discussed are each of two types, namely, spiritual (pauruṣa) and intellectual (bauddha). Now spiritual ignorance is termed impurity (mala). It is (inherent in the fettered state itself, and so) is not a product of (binding) thought constructs (avikalpita) (as is the case with intellectual ignorance). It consists essentially of the contracted (condition) of the knowledge and action of the fettered soul. It is generated by Śiva himself, but even so, it is the veil that obscures his own Śiva-nature, which is complete knowledge and (unobstructed) action. This (type of) ignorance does not concern the intellect insofar as it does not entail intellection (adhyavasāya). [. . .]
>
> Initiation etc. eradicates spiritual ignorance; even so, its corresponding knowledge manifests clearly only upon the death of the body. When (however) through intellectual knowledge the unfolding of intellectual ignorance ceases, liberation while still alive is at hand. TĀ 1/36-38, 43-4 (cf. below 33/179))

Our text teaches that impurity is neither ignorance nor a substance. It is Mahāmāyā, which is identified with Nature (prakṛti). This is both the substance and source of embodied existence, and the world order is consonant with it. It is thus the state of limitation that Śiva freely adopts in order to act in the world. Impurity in relation to the embodied soul in its most immediate form is identified with Karma. Freedom is thus simply freedom from Karma, which is brought about by grace, the occasion for which is initiation.

40. From a different point of view, the person identified with Bhairava is also 'universally equal for all' (see below, 13/77cd-78).

41. This is a loose translation of the grammatically peculiar expression nirāśīti parigrahaḥ. Literally this means 'one devoid of hope' – (this is) laying hold on all sides.

42. Phenomenal 'being', characterized by clinging and the mental activity it instigates, is binding. 'Non-being' is the condition free from the phenomenal, fettered existence subject to transmigration. By attaining this state, one attains absolute, eternal Being. The void-mind is one devoid of thought. The Void into which it is placed is the transcendental reality beyond the twenty-four principles that constitute phenomenal 'being'. This state is one of detachment similar to the one the Person attains according to classical Sāmkhya and Yoga when free from the fascination of Nature. It leads to the liberated state of 'Non-being' which is Śiva's liberated state. Concerning this little-known Śaiva doctrine and the contemplation of Non-being, see below 40/149-164 and also 57/29ab-41ab; also Dyczkowski 2004: 51 ff..

43. In this passage the goddess replies to the god's question as to how Māyā, and the Karma that accompanies it, are destroyed by explaining the procedure by which this is accomplished.

44. One could translate the expression 'daṇḍinī' as 'carrying a stick', but this is not meant here. Below in 13/80cd-81 we are told that Śakti, which is Śiva's divine will, here called Mahāmāyā, emerges out of him in the form of a straight line (ṛjurekhā) and in 13/83 that her form is like that of a stick (daṇḍākārā). Woodroffe (1997: 35-6) explains this symbolism nicely:

> The Śakti coiled round Śiva making one point (bindu) with it, is Kuṇḍalinī Śakti. This word is comes from the word kuṇḍala [meaning] 'a coil' or 'a bangle'. She is spoken of as coiled because she is likened to a serpent (bhujaṅgī), which, when resting and sleeping lies coiled; and because the nature of Her power is spiraline, manifesting itself as such in the worlds – the spheroids or 'eggs of Brahmā' (brahmāṇḍa), and in their circular or revolving orbits and in other ways.

Thus the Tantras speak of the development of the straight line (ṛjurekhā) from the point which, when it has gone its length as a point, is turned (vakrarekhā aṁkuśākārā) by the force of the spiraline sack of Māyā in which it works so as to form a figure of two dimensions, which again is turned upon itself, ascending as a straight line into the plane of the third dimension, thus forming the trianglar or pyramidal figure called śṛṅgātaka [lit. 'water chestnut']. In other words, this Kuṇḍalī-śakti is that which, when it moves to manifest itself, appears as the universe.

There are two aspects that mirror each other on the upper and lower plane. In both aspects we find the straight line that develops into a triangle. Above, this process is liberating. Below, it is binding. The one described in this verse is the upper one and so the energy of Kuṇḍalinī here is called Mahāmāyā, which is said to be next to Śiva (that is, coiled around Mahābindu). The account that follows concerns the lower form and its parallel development.

In KuKh 40/19 we read: 'Māyā is said to be the sleeping snake whose (coiled) form (is circular like) an earring (kuṇḍala)' (cf. above Mālinīstava line 3). In this aspect, Kuṇḍalinī is an ascending, anticlockwise spiral. In this state she is 'turned to the left (vāma)' (KuKh 40/20-21ab) and so is called Vāmā, '(she who is on) the left'. When Kuṇḍalinī sleeps above, the breath moves in the manner it does in the bodies of the fettered, that is, in a spiral anticlockwise direction. The essential nature of the Self is the pure conscious energy of Kuṇḍalinī. However, in the embodied, fettered state, the soul is reduced to the vitality of the breath that moves in this modality and so is, as the Tantra says, 'led up and down by her' (KuKh 40/20-21ab). When she awakens out of her latent condition into activity, the movement of the breath changes. Now instead of moving in the spiral lateral channels, Iḍā and Piṅgalā, it moves up and down the straight channel of Suṣumṇā between them. Accordingly, in this state the same energy of Kuṇḍalinī is said to be straight (KuKh 40/21cd-22ab). She is then called Jyeṣṭhā (lit. 'the eldest one') because she is the first form of this energy when it begins to pour out along the downward path of manifestation. At the end of her downward trajectory, when this energy reaches the base of Suṣumṇā, it is assumes a three-dimensional triangular form (śṛṅgāta) and is then called Raudrī. This Raudrī should not be confused with Rudraśakti, who is also sometimes called Raudrī and identified with Kubjikā herself. This Raudrī is the lower triangle that encapsulates the Point that contains the lower Kuṇḍalinī and so acts as an obstructing force (nirodhikā). Two energies of Kuṇḍalinī, Vāmā and Jyeṣṭhā, impel the movement of the breath up and down. One is Ha and the other is Sa. In between is Raudrī, who retains the breath and is within the Point (bindu) from where the breath arises and falls away. Thus the three together make HAṀSA – the Unstruck Sound of the breath. (40/23-24, 132cd-133ab).

Just as in the upward-moving direction, conversely in the opposite direction, ‘the straight line facing downwards’ (below 13/80cd) is the first form this energy assumes in its descent into manifestation. By its downward motion the world of fettered existence is generated. Thus in this modality it is understood to be the impurity of Māyā that binds the soul. Cf. ṢSS 18/22-23ab.

45. See above, note to 5/77.

46. Cf. 13/65c where instead of just ‘great current’ (mahaugha) we find a more complete expression, ‘the great current of perpetual bliss’ (sadānandamahaugha).

47. ‘Flower’ is a code name for both Śiva and Śakti (38/15). They are two flowers. The union of these two flowers generates the lineage of the tradition (38/11-12). We are told below (13/116) that the flower in this case is the Point (bindu) in the centre of the maṇḍala on the top of the head. According to the KRU, the flower is generated from the union of Śiva and Śakti in the centre of the maṇḍala. The first of all the sacred seats, ‘the middle one located in the centre’ from which the others are generated, is situated in this flower.

48. The energy of Mahāmāyā resides along with Śiva in the Point in the centre of the maṇḍala at the End of the Twelve above the head. She is first led down into the heart and then up into the emptiness beyond the End of the Twelve.

49. Compare this practice with the contemplation of the goddess Kālasaṁkarṣaṇī taught in the Ḍāmarayāga of the Devyāyāmala quoted by Abhinavagupta in the Tantrāloka (15/336-338):

> Kālasaṁkarṣaṇī – the Attractrix of Time – resides in the cavity of the mouth and brings about inhalation and exhalation. She continuously attracts the three forms of time at the tip of the nose (nāsāgre) and in the heart by means of the inhalations (of the breath) (pūraka). By means of the suspensions (of the breath between inhalation and exhalation) (kumbhaka), she sustains them and by means of exhalation (recaka), she devours them. Rising upwards by means of exhalation (recaka), she devours all time instantaneously. This power of the will called the Supreme (goddess Parā), who awakens the three powers (of will knowledge and action), should be worshipped. She attracts (karṣati) the vital breath (prabhañjana), which is the basis of time.

Kālasaṁkarṣaṇī, a form of Kālī, is identified with the goddess Parā and Śiva’s will, as is Kubjikā. Although time and its transcendence is not directly mentioned in the text of the KuKh, the lunar cycle is an evident sign of the passage of time. The connection between time and the breathing cycle is well known to the later Kubjikā Tantras (see chapter ten of ṢSS). This association, often minutely elaborated, forms an important part of most major Tantric systems of that period, including the Buddhist Kālacakra and the source of chapter six of the Tantrāloka. The association between the goddess Kālī and time is very intimate, as her name itself suggests. Kubjikā, variously identified in some of her aspects with Kālī, is also linked to time, although this link is not as central to her identity as it is to Kālī. Thus we have read above (2/5cd-6ab) that Kubjikā, who is the power of bliss, is '(...) merged between the inhaled (prāṇa) and exhaled breath (apāna). Located in the middle of the Stick of the Cavity of Space (i.e. Suṣumṇā), she pervades the energy of the consciousness of the individual soul. Slender, her limbs variegated by time and movement, she awakens (the initiate) to (ultimate) reality'.

50. The god is called the son of the goddess in several places. In the role of the mother of the god, she is generally Rudraśakti and he is Rudra. See above, chapter four, notes to the Mālinīstava.

51. The right conduct (ācāra) meant here is Kaula practice (kulācāra).

52. The myth in the Devīmāhātmya narrates how the goddess emerged from the sleeping Viṣṇu's consciousness as the embodiment of his profound yogic sleep and so was called Yoganidrā (Yogic Sleep). This is the powerful liberating aspect of the goddess Mahāmāyā. Below (in 59/90) we are told that yogic sleep is attained by 'churning the wheel'. The Wheel is the entire maṇḍala that contains the wheels through which Kuṇḍalinī rises making the Wheel of the wheels turn. The Wheel turns in a clockwise motion when the goddess operates as Māyā. When it turns in the opposite direction, the goddess's supreme nature as consciousness and bliss is revealed and so she is 'born from bliss' (below 59/92).

53. The categories of power – śaktibheda – are the two categories of Mahāmāyā. The inferior category is the form of Mahāmāyā that is binding and which may give yogic and magical powers (siddhi). The supreme one is the form of Mahāmāyā that is liberating.

54. See intro. vol 1, p. 441 ff. concerning this important triad. In this context these three are the tripartite division of the three lineages (see 28/129-133ab). Inspired by Trika doctrine, these three are said to correspond to the supreme (para), middling (parāpara) and lower (apara) level. According to 18/38, the Heart is of these three types. These three types also correspond to the three parts of Trikaṇṭaka (20/27-28ab). This mantra contains the Vidyās of Parā, Parāparā and Aparā, that are Śāmbhava, Śākta and Āṇava, respectively. This essentially Trika triad is also equated with the Three Lineages, which is a Kubjikā triad (28/129). See 33/30-31ab concerning the three types of initiation with these names. The threefold transmission and Siddhas are classed as belonging to these three types (see 39/122cd-123ab). The three energies of the Triangle are given these three names in the feminine (58/27). They correspond to the three parts of Trikhaṇḍā projected onto the sides of the Triangle.

55. Here, the binding activity of Mahāmāyā is termed nigraha. I have translated this word as 'restraint'. This term is often used to denote what happens to the victim of magic (ṣaṭkarma). The varieties of magical procedures are conceived to be basically varieties of means by which the victim is controlled (vaśīkaraṇa). In this sense, nigraha is the restraint imposed upon him which prevents the victim doing what he wants to do for his own benefit at the expense of the magician or his patron. Similarly, the fettered soul is controlled by Karma because of the 'magic' to which he is subjected by Mahāmāyā, the magical power of illusion. Again, nigraha also means 'punishment'. Magic should be practiced only to punish those who have misbehaved. Similarly, the fettered soul is bound to suffer the consequences of his Karma. He is punished for his bad deeds directly by the suffering they ultimately bring about. He is punished, as it were, for his good deeds because these too serve to bind, even though they give rise to happiness and worldly benefits.

56. See intro. vol 1, p. 512.

57. The purification of Karmic impurity precedes the worship of the Krama. This is quite understandable. It is a basic requirement for the ritual worship of deity in general, not just in India, that the worshiper should be as pure as is the deity he is worshipping. Indeed, all that is offered, the ritual impliments, the representations of the deity and all else that is involved in its worship should be pure. The process described below by which the worshipper is purified, although it involves the repetition of mantra and ritual gestures that are 'external', is an 'inner' process. It is 'inner' in the sense that it takes place within the yogic body through the internal movement of the breath and its vital energy. It is, in other words, a yogic process. It is, moreover, what takes place in the course of initiation. Initially induced by the teacher during initiation, it is subsequently practiced by the initiate alone. This is a cardinal example of how outer ritual action is related to Kaula Yoga. The rise of Kuṇḍalinī, the piercing of the centres and the purification this brings about leading to liberation prepares the way for the most excellent and perfect worship of deity. As this ideally takes place when the worshipper is fully purified and hence liberated by the practice of Yoga, it is not surprising that many traditions came to reject the need for outer ritual. The logic behind this rejection in this case is not that liberation can only be attained by knowledge, as, for example, the Advaita Vedānta maintains, or that rituals are in themselves powerless because what is required is devotion, as the later Bhakti schools maintain. Both these positions also reject the practice of Yoga, the first because it is a form of action and the second because devotion is by itself enough to draw the deity's liberating grace.

58. Concerning the difference between Tāntrika and Kaula see intro. vol. 2, p. 254 ff..

59. Concerning this term see above note to 2/14.

60. Concerning the principles of Passion, Poison and the Stainless, see below, appendix 6.

61. The Sun and Moon are the principles of Passion (the energy of the Will); and Poison (pervasive experience). They are the energies of the two breaths and every opposite. In between emerges the Stainless, the pure transcendent and undifferentiated (niṣkala) reality. This is the Self liberated from all impurities. No longer shrouded in darkness, its true nature is revealed as the light that illumines all things and as Bhairava who sustains them. In this context, we may fruitfully refer to the Upaniṣads that declare:

A Person (puruṣa) of the measure of a thumb
Stands in the midst of one's self (ātman),
Lord of what has been and of what is to be.
One does not shrink away from Him.
This, verily, is That!
A Person the measure of a thumb,
Like a light without smoke,
Lord of what has been and what is to be.
He alone is today and tomorrow too. Kaṭha Up. 4/12-13.

The sun shines not there, nor the moon and stars,
These lightnings shine not, much less this (earthly) fire!
After Him, as He shines, doth everything shine;
This whole world is illumined by His light.
Kaṭha Up. 6/15 = ŚvUp 6/14 and Muṇḍa Up. 2/2/10.

62. Cf. above 13/55 where Nature is said to be 'universally equal for all'. But in that context, the Person is the fettered individual soul who is multiple. For the many individual souls, Prakṛti (here identified with Mahāmāyā) is one and the same.

63. Concerning the etymology of Bhairava's name see above 2/42-43ab and note; cf. 39/30cd-31.

64. The Stainless is the pure, pervasive experience of the presence of the deity realised to be one's own true identity in all things. Observe how this is said here to be 'sakala' i.e 'endowed with (universal) power', which is the liberated and liberating condition. This state is contrasted with the one that is 'without power' – 'niṣkala' – which is the source of binding Karma (see below 13/83).

65. Similarly, Bhairava proclaims in the ŚM:

O mother Kujā, in association with this sequence (kramayoga), I am Time. I emanate the entire universe and then I again withdraw it. (I am) Śambhu who pervades all and whom none pervades. O beloved, (I am) in a pervasive state like clarified butter in milk. That is imperceptable, supreme, subtle, all-pervasive and stainless, unmanifest, devoid of impurity, pure, beyond form, (and simultaneously both) transcendent and immanent (parāpara).

anena kramayogena ahaṁ kālaḥ [kh: kāra; g: kārā] kujāmbike । sṛjāmi sakalaṁ viśvaṁ saṁharāmi punar hy ahaṁ [kh: ahaṁ punaḥ] ॥ sarveṣāṁ vyāpakaḥ [g: vyāpakāḥ] śambhur vyāpī tasya [k: -vyāpi; kh: śastustasyavyāpī; g: śaṁbhuvyāpi] na vidyate । vyāpakatve [kh, g: -tvo] sthitaḥ so vai yathā kṣīre [kh: kṣīra; g: kāle] ghṛtaṁ [g: mṛtaṁ] priye ॥ adṛśyaṁ [g: atrāsya] tat paraṁ sūkṣmaṁ [kh: śukṣmaṁ] sarvavyāpī [k kh g: -pi] niraṁjanam । avyaktam amalaṁ [g: -maṇḍalaṁ] śuddhaṁ rūpātītaṁ parāparam ॥ ŚM 19/170-172

66. See above note to 13/61cd-62.

67. Cf. above 13/13-14. The very first verse of the Saṁvartāmaṇḍalasūtra at the beginning of the KuKh and the ṢSS tells us that Kubjikā is the power of bliss (ānandaśakti). Located in this form in the centre of the maṇḍala within the absolute being of the god, she is said to be 'pleasingly horrific' (subhīmā). She emerges from the centre of the emission of the god as his omnipotent will through which the universe is emitted. This state is symbolized by a straight line drawn between two points. Two points placed above one another is the way the letter visarga is written. In this case, it seems, the two points are drawn next to each other; only in this way can a line drawn between them 'face downwards'. On the plane of Dharma and Adharma, which is that of Karma (see above note to 13/24ab), she is 'horrific' because she is the binding energy of Māyā. In this aspect she is fierce and consists of the three qualities which, as we have seen, are the three binding impurities (see above 13/12). But she is also the beautiful flame of Kuṇḍalinī that liberates from the darkness of bondage. As such she is in her raised, upper form which is the power of bliss (ānandaśakti), the Transmental, and Sound.

The goddess is Sound and the Self, that is, Śiva, who is the Point (13/86). Sound fills all the levels and forms of existence within the domain of Māyā. It permeates the sphere wherein mantra – the concrete form of Sound – operates. The Point symbolizes the transcendent source of all things. Sound is produced from the Silence of the Point and returns to it. As it moves from the supreme to subtle and then to gross sound, it manifests as all the mantras through which the world is created, sustained and destroyed. At the same time it retains its basic, original cosmogonic identity as the divine will, its epistemic identity as the Transmental and its soteriological identity as the liberating grace of the Command.

68. The goddess manifests in various shapes according to her state. She is 'crooked' as the Yoni, which is the source and container of all things. She is coiled like a snake as the dormant Kuṇḍalinī, and is straight and powerful as a stick when 'clearly apparent' (see above 13/61cd-62), that is, when moving in Suṣumṇā, the central channel of the vital force. Moving downwards, she binds; moving upwards, she liberates. The will is generated on the way down from the Stainless between Passion and Poison. In the fettered soul this is the impure desire sullied with attachment which, rather than ignorance, is here understood to be the essence of Māyā. Karma is an inevitable product of action impelled by this kind of desire. Below in 18/63cd-68, the reverse of this process is described. This is the ascent of the energy of Mālinī that takes place by the deposition of her seed-syllables.

69. Cf. above 13/79-80cd and note.

70. The state 'with power' (sakala) is that of the Stainless. It is the liberated condition. The state 'without power' (niṣkala) generates Māyā, which is identified here with binding Karma (see above, 13/79-80ab and note). The sequence of emanation of the fettered condition and the world of transmigration that accompanies it, is said in these verses to take place through the following stages: 'without power' (niṣkala) > Māyā = Karma > creation and destruction > five gods of the Praṇavas > phenomenal existence. In the ascending, liberating modality: Māyā/Karma > the state 'with power' (sakala).

Compare this with what the YKh (1) has to say concerning the relationship between sakala and niṣkala:

Time is said to extend progressively from the Earth principle up to the Equal One (samanā). Its pervasion is manifold. The sphere of transmigratory existence exists to the extent to which it operates. (This) manifold (reality) is contained within Māyā and is sustained by Śuddha Vidyā.

Māya should be intuited to be of three kinds. First comes the Māyā (commonly known as such). Mahāmāyā is within (this, the) principle of Māyā. She follows after and is endowed with (the series of) energies (sakalā). (The third form of Māyā) is above Śiva. (Mahāmāyā) is the New Moon (amā) which is within emission (visarga), subtle and stainless (nirañjanā).

The Equal One is the inferior (immanent form of) Māyā. Thus the universe is contained within Māyā. Beyond Māyā, beyond the energies (kalā) and beyond the path (of emanation and withdrawal) is (the ultimate) faultless (reality). (27-31ab)

Without utterance (MS K: devoid of ritual), incomparable, free of the impurity that is thought and the duality of desire, it is the undisturbed (maṇḍala) with six parts (ṣaṭprakāra). This is said to be the differentiated form (sakala) of liberation. The undifferentiated (form) (niṣkala) is said to (come) at the end of that. Once he knows the differentiated and the undifferentiated (forms of liberation), the yogi is freed from the mortal condition (martya). (31cd-33ab)

I will (now) tell (you by way of) introduction (upodghāta) about the sixfold (state) 'with power' (sakala). The Śāmbhava (state) is supreme and tranquil. It is above the six. It is liberation (kaivalya), unique (kevala), tranquil, devoid of the Five Voids, and beneficial. (34)

It is consciousness, supreme and pure. It is the inexplicable (kiñcit) Śāmbhava (state) that is pure consciousness (cinmātra). It is supreme. Along with Śiva, it is the supreme Nirvāṇa, the body comprised of consciousness.

The pure consciousness of the Person is said to be subtle and omnipresent. (Thus) consciousness is said to be of three kinds: Individual (āṇava), Empowered (śākta), and Śāmbhava.

dharātattvāt [k, gh, ṅ: -tatvaṁ; g: satvaṁ] samārabhya [k: -ratva] samanāntaṁ yathākramam |
tāvat kālaṁ samākhyātaṁ vyāptis tasya tv anekadhā ||
yāvat [k, g, gh: yāvaṁ] tasyaiva [ṅ: tasauva] saṁcāraṁ tāvat saṁsāramaṇḍalam [k, g, gh, ṅ: -le] |
māyodare [k, g, gh, ṅ: -ra] samastaṁ hi śuddhavidyā hy adhiṣṭhitam [g, gh: -ṣṭitaṁ] ||
māyā [k, g, gh, ṅ: māya] yā trividhā bhāvyā ādau māyā vidhīyate |
māyātattve mahāmāyā [k, gh, ṅ: mahāmnāyā; g: sadāmāyā] sakalā cānuvartinī [k, gh, ṅ: cātu-] ||
śivasyordhve visargasthā amā [gh: āma] sūkṣmā [k: śūkṣmā] nirañjanā |
*samanā sāparā māyā [g: mā ] tasmān māyodaraṁ [gh: tansmānmā-] jagat ||
māyātītaṁ [k, gh, ṅ: mayātīta; g: -ta] kalātītaṁ [k, gh, ṅ: -ta] adhvātītaṁ [k, gh: ādhātīta; g: athātītaṁ; ṅ: āccātīta] nirāmayam |
niruccāraṁ [k, gh: niradhvāraṁ; ṅ: niraṁvāraṁ] niraupamyaṁ [k, gh: nirauyamyāṁ; ṅ: niraupamyāṁ] kalpanāmalavarjitam ||
*icchādvandvavinirmuktaṁ [k, gh: -kta; g: icchādvandvaṁdaṁ-; ṅ: ichādvaṁdvayavinirmu ] ṣaṭprakāram anākulam [k, gh, ṅ: -prakāraṁmanākulaṁ; g: malāmalaṁ] |
ity uktaṁ [g: missing] sakalaṁ mokṣaṁ [g: mokṣa] tasyānte [k, gh, ṅ: tasmāṁte] niṣkalaṁ [g: niṣkala] smṛtam ||
sakalaṁ niṣkalaṁ [g: nikalaṁ; ṅ: niḥkalaṁ] jñātvā yogī [k, gh, ṅ: yogi] martyād [ṅ: mattyād] vimucyate |
sakalasya [ṅ: sakalasyaṁ] upodghātaṁ [g: u oghātaṁ] ṣaḍvidhaṁ kathayāmy aham || [This and following two lines are missing in MSs K and Gh] śāmbhavaṁ [g: sā-] paramaṁ śāntaṁ [g: sāntaṁ] ṣaṇṇām upari [g: brahmāmupari; ṅ: ṣaṇāmu-] saṁsthitam [g: sa-] |
kaivalyaṁ kevalaṁ śāntaṁ [g: śānta] khapañcarahitaṁ hitam ||
cinmayaṁ paramaṁ śuddhaṁ kiñcic cinmātraśāmbhavam [k: -sāṁbhavaṁ; g: kiñcitmātraṁ-; gh: kiñcitrinmātrasābhavaṁ; ṅ: kiṁcicinmātrasāṁbhavaṁ] |

paraṁ paramanirvāṇaṁ saśivaṁ cinmayaṁ vapu [k: camūḥ;g: punaḥ;gh: samu]||
sūkṣmaṁ sarvagataṁ proktaṁ sūkṣmaṁ [gh: sūnma] cinmātrapauruṣaṁ [g: po-]| caitanyaṁ trividhaṁ proktaṁ āṇavaṁ [g: āṇava] śāktaśāṁbhavam [k, gh: gākṣa-
; g: sakta-] || YKh (1) 43/27cd-36

71. The five gods who govern the five gross elements are those whose sonic forms are the Five Praṇavas. The grossest phase in the process of emanation is that of the world of physical, material objects made of the five gross elements. This world is emanated by the Lords of the Elements, not directly from the transcendent. This is because this form of emanation is kṛtrima, which I have translated as 'created', but literally means 'artificial'. This is contrasted to the reality which is sahaja, that is, 'innately existent' literally 'born together' or 'natural'. This is said below of the goddess who is the 'innate energy' (sahajā kalā) that is 'spontaneously generated' (svatotpannā) and 'self-born' (svayaṁjātā) (15/8ab). Again, the basic impurity that fetters the soul is said to be 'innate' (see above note to 13/12). In our text (see 33/164ab, 33/171) the same is said of Māyā (see 33/164ab) and of impurity in general (33/171). The latter, when not specified, is the basic impurity of 'individuality' (āṇavamala) according to the Siddhānta and Kashmiri Śaivism, and of Māyā, according to our text. So, the text here is saying that unlike impurity, which in this case is both Māyā and Karma, the physical world is not spontaneously generated from the supreme principle. It is therefore 'artificial', that is to say, a secondary creation which is the work of the Five Lords of the Elements. Note however that although the Five Lords of the Elements bring about the manifestation of the five gross elements, it is Karma that operates within them as the agent. It is Karma that guides the form and extent of the cycles of creation and destruction to which the universe and all that it contains is subject. However, freedom from these cycles is possible because beyond this world of Māyā and Karma is the Self, that is, Śiva, symbolized as a dimensionless Point (see above note to 13/82).

72. Note the contrast here between the feminine binding Māyā and the male fettered soul.

73. The perfect yogi is a man who is liberated in this life. He is like Bhairava, free from the fetters that bind the ignorant; he is free to assume any form he wishes, be it that of animal, god or a man (see above 11/83-7). Although his desire is still impelled by the residual traces of Karma, these do not bind him. Finally, he enters Nirvāṇa, the supremely tranquil and immortal state free from all forms and permutations.

74. The City of the West is the goddess's maṇḍala. This other or 'lower' form of it is presumably the body of the fettered soul. Even there, as the fettered soul, Bhairava does not lose his true identity. Spiritual, binding impurity exists from the point of view of the fettered soul and must be removed. From the point of view of Bhairava, the soul's true nature, he is not covered by Māyā but is rather the stainless (nirañjana) God himself directly apparent (see above 3/65cd-66ab).

75. The Mountain of Jewels (ratnatuṅga) is mentioned again below in 17/40. There we are told that it is the great mountain in the centre of the universe where the worship of the transmission (kramārcana) takes place. It is the supreme Great Place and is encompassed by the maṇḍala of Meru. It is circular. Thus the Mountain of Jewels appears to be the Point in the centre of the Saṁvartāmaṇḍala above the head. The texts repeatedly say that the shape of the triangle in the centre of the maṇḍala is like that of a waterchestnut (śṛṅgāta). This is roughly the shape of a three-sided pyramid. With this three-dimensional perspective, the point in the centre is actually the peak of this pyramid. At the summit of the pyramid, it is the highest point in the purifying ascent of Kuṇḍalinī. Beyond is the Sky of the transcendent into which the energy of the goddess merges like the wind in the sky. Thus in order to irrevocably eradicate all impurity, one must ascend to the peak of this holy mountain.

76. Presumably, the five from which the maṇḍalas are generated are the Five Praṇavas. These correspond to the five elements that are the domains of the first five Wheels in the subtle body. These five are probably linked with the five aspects of the Liṅga, that is, the triangular Yoniliṅga mentioned below in 13/107cd-108ab. Again, these five probably constitute the fivefold sequence (kramapañcaka) mentioned in 13/108cd-109.

77. The Gesture of the Yoni (yonimudrā), here also called Bhairavīmudrā (see below) is, along with Triśikhāmudrā and Padmamudrā, one the three main gestures of the Kubjikā Tantras. Drawn directly from the Trika TS, they each have three forms (see KMT 6/50cd-75ab). The ṢSS (10/88) stresses that they are aspects of Khecarīmudrā. First the position of the hands of each gesture is described, followed by the three types (for Yonimudrā, see KMT 6/55bcd-57, 64bcd-68). The three Gestures are explained in the Ṭīkā which is drawn from the commentary on chapter ten of the ṢSS. The verses are from the KMT:

> First the Yoni is projected into the Yoni and is split apart with the pestle (mudgara). (The yogi) certainly becomes a Skyfarer by the conjunction of the two Emissions (visarga). KMT 6/64cd-65ab

Ṭīkā: Having projected the lower energy and the upper energy, one should rub (samākarṣaṇa) (the two together as) the Yoni with the Yoni. This should be done with the pestle (mudgara), that is, by striking and rubbing (praharaṇagharṣana) (with it as one would use) a weapon. Having done so, one should split apart the two emissions (visarga). What this means is that the energy moves along two paths, the downward and the upward. The former is the location of the Foundation (ādhārasthāna). That should be led upwards. (The upward path) is the upper emission (ūrdhvavisarga) which is at the end of the Door of Brahmā, nose, eyes, ears and the rest. It should be led down. Here a sign of attainment (pratyaya) is perceived. Having moved upwards, it moves down (again). By travelling downwards, it (then again) moves upwards. In this way, over the course of the coming together (milana) and opening up (unmilana) of the two emissions, the Cavity of Brahmā (brahmarandhra) becomes pure and expanded (vikāsita) when there is (thus) only one channel (nāḍī) and a pair of emissions (thus held together and moving within it).

Subsequently, two Points arise generated by the emissions when there is intense bliss. How is that? It is like that of passionate inebriation (madanavat) brought about by the union (mīlana) that takes place when there is intense emotion (utkaṭe udbhaṭe). (This) their mutual union (saṁghaṭṭa), brings about a tactile sensation (sparśana) (produced) by both of them. By the motion (cara) brought about (by their) repeated contraction and expansion arise pulsation, sound, shaking, movement and bliss. Just by its arousal, (this) motion consisting of closing and opening (mīlana / unmilana), contraction and expansion (saṁkoca / vikāsa) (takes place). Thus the first type of Yonimudrā has been explained.

ity ādi yathā yonyā yonim [k kh: yoni] iti | adhaḥśaktiṁ [k kh: adhośaktiḥ] ūrdhvaśaktiṁ [k kh: -śaktiś] ca samākramya samākarṣaṇaṁ kārayet mudgareṇa āyudhavat praharaṇagharṣaṇena | tat kṛtvā bhedayed [kh: bhedayet] vidārayed visargadvayam | ūrdhvamārgadvayam [kh: ūddha-] | ūrdhvamārgam adhomārgam ādhārasthānam | tam ūrdhvaṁ [kh: ūrddha] ānayet ūrdhvavisargam | brahma-dvāramukhanāsānetrakarṇādikānte [kh: -karṇṇādikāṁrante; kh: rarnya(?)ṁte] | adha [k kh: adhaḥ] ānayet | atra pratyayaṁ dṛśyate | ūrdhvaṁ [k: ūrdhva; kh: ūrdha] yadā [k: padā] ākramyate tadā adhaś calati [kh: adhaḥ valati] | adha [k kh: adhaḥ] ākramaṇād [k kh: -t] ūrdhvaṁ calati | tathā [k kh: satya] visargadvaye mīlanonmīlane brahmarandhraṁ śuddhaṁ bhavati vikāsitaṁ ca yadā ekanāḍitve visargadvayaṁ bhavati [kh: visargaje] | anantare [k: missing] kāle visargajaṁ [k: -jo; kh: -je] bindudvayam utpadyate [k: -dyante] | ānande harṣe [k kh: harṣo] | kīdṛśe | madanavat utkaṭe udbhaṭe jāte mīlanāt [kh: milanāth] parasparasaṁghaṭṭād [k kh: -saṁghaṭā] dvābhyāṁ sparśanam utpadyate | mīlanonmīlanābhyāsavaśāt saṁcālanāt [kh: saṁcālanān] tadā ānandacalanadhunanaśabdaspandanaṁ [k kh: -calanadhanana-] jāyate | jātamātreṇa caraḥ | mīlanonmīlanasaṅkocavikāsāḥ [k kh: -mīlasaṁkoca-] | iti yonimudrāyā eko [k: mudrāmeko; kh: mudrāṁ eko] bhedaḥ kathitaḥ | Ṭīkā MS K fl. 44a-44b

The supreme Yoni is called Amṛtā (Nectar). One should contemplate it as being above the the head. Having entered the Path of Smell, the preparation (yojanā) is present within Mālinī. In this way the Skilful (yogi achieves) Flight on the Path of the Yoni. KMT 6/65cd-66

Ṭīkā: The supreme Yoni (Parā Yoni) is called Amṛtā (Nectar). The second type of Yonimudrā (is described) with these words. The (Yoni) called nectar is the vital breath (prāṇa). It drinks nectar (that comes) from that place. The Śakti that is located there is (called) Amṛtā. Where? At the End of the Twelve (dvādaśānta). The Parā Yoni, which is the second one, is there. She should be contemplated, that is, perceived. Where? Above the head, that is, in the upper End of the Twelve. Once entered into it, it should be dragged (up into it) (ākarṣayet) from that. By what path? (This should be done) through the nose along the Path of (the sense of) Smell (gandhamārga) from the genitals (janmādhāra). Fix the mind (manas i.e. citta) firmly there, in that place in between the two Yonis. Once this has been done, one should conjoin (that is, apply) Mālinīśakti. This is the meaning. (The liberated) condition of flight (is achieved) when the mind is firm and established in Śakti. This is the second type of Yonimudrā.

amṛtākhyā parā yoniḥ [kh: yonir] || ity ādinā [k kh: -dyā] dvitīyena bhedena yonimudrā yathā | amṛtākhyā iti prāṇaḥ | tatra sthānād amṛtaṁ pibati | tatrasthā śaktiḥ sā amṛtā | kutra [k kh: kotra] | dvādaśānte | tatra parā yoniḥ dvitīyā [k kh: dvitayā] | ūrdhvaṁ [k: ūrdhva; kh: ūrddha] saṁbhāvayel lakṣayet [k: sābhāvayel; kh: sābhāvayetlakṣayet] | kva | mastakopari śirasi [kh: śiraśi] ūrdhva-dvādaśānte ākramya ākarṣayet tasmāt | kena mārgeṇa | nāsāyāṁ gandhamārgeṇa janmādhārasthānāt | tatra tasmin sthāne yonidvayamadhye cittam [kh: cintaṁ] manaḥ [kh: mana] sthiraṁ dṛḍhaṁ kuru | kṛtvā yojayet prayuñjayet [k kh: prayañjayet] | phādināntamālinī [k kh: hādi-] śaktir ity arthaḥ | yadā śaktigataṁ dṛḍhaṁ manaḥ tadā khecaratvam ity arthaḥ | iti yonimudrā-dvitīyo [kh: -ye] bhedaḥ | Ṭīkā MS K fl. 44b

Once the energy Vāmā has been uttered, (the yogi) should fix it in the middle of the Knot and having cast (the energy) (vikṣepa) upwards, (he should practice) contemplation (bhāvanā) in the supreme Yoni. In this way, without any doubt, (he achieves) Flight. (KMT 6/67-68ab)

Ṭīkā: Once one has uttered, that is, awakened Kuṇḍalinī (i.e. Vāmā) śakti, it is fixed and sustained in the maṇḍala of the Knot, that is, in the locations of the five Knots: in the genitals, navel, heart, uvula and between the eyebrows. It should be cast, that is, placed (in the) locations of the five Knots. Once it has been placed above, it should be brought up into the upper, supreme Yoni and it should be contemplated and perceived in the End of the Twelve. Then, (one achieves) Flight. This is the third type of Yonimudrā.

uccārya prabodhya kuṇḍalinīśaktiṁ [k: -śaktiḥ] sandhayed [kh: -yet] dhārayet | kva | granthimaṇḍale pañcagranthisthāneṣu [k kh: -ne] | janmanābhihṛdayalambikābhrūmadhyeṣu pañcagranthisthāneṣu [k kh: -ne] vikṣipet nikṣipet [k: niḥkṣipet] | ūrdhve kṛtvā [kh: kṛtvāt] kārayet [k kh: karayo] | pare yonau ūrdhvayonau dvādaśānte bhāvayel lakṣayet | (45k a) tadā khegatiḥ | iti yonimudrātṛtīyo bhedaḥ | Ṭīkā MS K fl. 44b-45a.

78. The Kashmiri Śaiva understanding of the practice of the Gesture of Bhairavī (bhairavīmudrā) exemplifies the shift from practice based on the inner activity of the vital breath and transitions through states of consciousness, to one centred on the cultivation of awareness. The Kashmiri teachers explain that the power of awareness acts on two levels simultaneously. It functions at the microcosmic level as the power of sensory awareness that apprehends specific objects within the field of individualized, embodied consciousness. At the macrocosmic level it functions as the divine power of sensory awareness that apprehends the universal, cosmic object in the field of universal consciousness. Through the practice of Bhairavīmudrā these two aspects are experienced together in the blissful realisation that results from the union of the inner (universal) and outer (particular) states of absorption (MM p. 90). Kṣemarāja quotes an unknown Tantra as saying:

> With one's aim (focused) inside while gazing outside, eyes neither opening nor closing – this is Bhairava's Mudrā, kept secret in all the Tantras.
>
> SpNir p. 25; MM p. 90

Like a man who observes a city from a high mountain peak, he sees the outer world reflected in his own consciousness free of thought constructs, and so 'stamps' the outer on the inner Self that grasps it as an expansion of its own nature (MM p. 91; SpNir p. 25; PHṛ p.85-88). Kṣemarāja says:

> By penetrating into Bhairavīmudrā, the yogi observes the vast totality of beings rising from, and dissolving (back) into, the Sky (of consciousness), like a series of reflections appearing and disappearing inside a mirror. (SpNir p. 25)

By the practice of Bhairavīmudrā the yogi realises the substratum consciousness that both underlies and is itself the essence of all things. He discovers that phenomena have no independent existence and so are, in a sense, void. He views the outer world yet sees it not. Beyond both Voidness and Non-voidness he penetrates into the Supreme Abode of Śiva's consciousness. (TĀ 5/80b).

79. All the manuscripts read vrajan mani. This has been emended to vrajen maṇiḥ. The jewel – maṇi – is, I suppose, Kuṇḍalinī. Kuṇḍalinī and, by extension, the navel centre where she sleeps, are called the Great Jewel – mahāratna (see above note to 3/128). But although in our text we find the form mahāratna several times, and even just ratna, as meaning 'Kuṇḍalinī', the word maṇi despite being a synonym of the word ratna does not appear in our text with this sense. One possible exception is the name maṇipura for the Wheel located in the navel. Did this name originally mean 'the residence of Kuṇḍalinī'? This would be in consonance with the view of the early Tantras that Kuṇḍalinī rises from here, not from the Wheel of the Foundation (ādhāracakra) as the later versions of Kuṇḍalinī and the six cakra systems would have it.

However, the KMT supplies a different explanation of the name. Here we find the form maṇipūraka, 'filler of gems'. According to the KMT, this is the name of the Lord of this inner centre from which it derives its name. This place has twelve energies that are equated with the twelve suns of the twelve months of the year. The KMT (12/37-40) goes on to explain that:

> Shining like a jewel (maṇi) and filling (pūryanta) the ten directions, brilliant as the sunstone jewel, it appears to be the sun itself. The god measures time and is endowed with twelve energies. (He is) the Lord of the sacred seat and resides on the Island. He 'fills' the series of years with months in due order and fashions all the Ages and the longer cosmic cycles with the twelve gems. As the cosmic soul fills (time in this way), this (place) is therefore (called) 'Maṇipūraka' ('the filler of the (twelve) jewels'). It bestows the fruit of worldly benefits and liberation to those on the Path of Power.

But despite the great authority of the KMT, one wonders whether this explanation is not forced. Anyway, it is not unlikely that the jewel to which our verse refers is indeed, Kuṇḍalinī.

80. Kuṇḍalinī flows upwards, carrying with her the individual soul (jīva) who attains union with Śiva, as does Śakti in the state Beyond the Fourth. See below 13/103 and note on 13/108cd-109. The stages of this ascent and the signs that accompany it are described in the verses that follow.

81. Kubjikā, as we have seen, is frequently called Raudrī. Here she figures as the most elevated and liberating form of Kuṇḍalinī. Raudrī is described in this aspect below (31/54cd-55) as the transcendent and immanent energy that, tranquil and unchanging, is Nirvāṇa; as such, she is the Stainless. In other words, she is the condition of complete rest – Nirvāṇa on the one hand and perfect purity on the other. It is achieved gradually as the purifying process of bringing Karma to rest progresses to the degree in which Raudrī's energy (rudraśakti) flowing down penetrates the fettered soul (cf. 13/119). In this way, made lighter by the removal of the burden of impurity, the soul rises to where the goddess is in her fullest form at the summit of existence at the top of the head, that is, at the End of the Twelve above the head. There she is the Transmental, the Point in the centre of the maṇḍala that contains millions of Rudras (13/118-119). Thus she resides on the plane that is 'Rudra's part' (13/103). From there the liberated soul views the countless millions of Rudras (31/56) who pervade all the spheres of existence transported in the flux of blissful energy that pours forth from the Point.

82. Cf. above 13/19-20ab and 13/24cd-7ab.

83. Verses 13/101cd-103 are interpolated after 11/63 above. See note there and to the Sanskrit text here. Concerning these and other signs of attainment see below 33/47-49 and notes. In chapter eleven we are told that all this takes place by the movement of the vital breath when the goddess's Thirty-two syllable Vidyā is uttered correctly in conjuction with it.

84. These are some of the external signs that the Command, (that is, the Transmental energy of the goddess's grace) is penetrating into the adept and that he is, likewise, penetrating into the deity by virtue of his practice of breathing coupled with the repetition of the Vidyā. These signs progressively appear in the course of initiation as the disciple is purified. They are visible signs of the grace (śaktipāta) that is operating in the course of initiation, and so are a way the teacher can check the disciple's inner state during the rite to ensure that the initiation he is imparting is effective. Once initiated in this way, the disciple is empowered to repeat the process within himself by himself. According to the manner and degree that he is blessed with the gracious, purifying Command of the goddess, his spiritual state and authority develops.

85. When Kuṇḍalinī, the energy of the vital breath, rises to the top of the cranium where the Cavity of Brahmā is located, it exerts a subtle pressure in order to exit from the body. This is experienced as a subtle tactile sensation, like ants crawling on the skin.

86. The text here simply lists 'bhāṣā', lit. language. One possible interpretation of what is meant is that by this practice the adept acquires the knowledge of many languages – what the Bible calls 'speaking in many tongues'. More likely, as a parallel reference indicates (below 33/48), 'bhāṣā' is an abbreviated reference to Kaulabhāṣā – the secret Kaula language, concerning which see note 2 of chapter 16.

87. Beyond the Fourth is the liberated state. It is attained beyond the Transmental in the Wheel of the Nameless, which is beyond all the other Wheels. Individual consciousness dissolves away in the state Beyond the Fourth (turīyātīta). Like alchemical mercury, this state transforms impure, individual consciousness into the pure gold of Śiva's consciousness. This is the plane where Raudrī resides. It is the many Rudras' 'part' because from here the purified soul perceives the countless Rudras who pervade all the spheres of existence (see above note to 13/100-1ab and below 13/118-9, 31/50-56)

Rudra appears both as one of a group of gods and as the unique Supreme God of the Western Tradition – as Śiva himself who, as Śrīkaṇtha, is the husband of Umā and hence is the Supreme God of all forms of Śaivism (3/14cd). In the former role, Rudra is most commonly the third of the Five Praṇavas. Again, he can assume many aspects; for example, as the fifty Rudras who govern the letters of the alphabet and together constitute his form (mūrti) (19/76). Perhaps it is this dual identity – both divine, but one finite and the other infinite – that confuses even him, so much so that the goddess must remind the god of his true identity. She tells him he is Rudra who has come into the world to remove fear (3/64cd-66ab). He is like Sadāśiva and his Bhairavic counterpart, Svacchanda Bhairava, who have five faces (ibid.). The goddess, both the consort and mother of the god, is addressed by him as Rudra's mother (4/3). As we have seen, she is therefore often called Rudra's energy. Thus, reaching Rudra's world is the supreme attainment (see 6/195 and note). This is the immortal abode where the yogi becomes Rudra himself. But, although in some places this is the highest attainment (e.g. 8/124ab and 18/113), in others this identification is a stage to higher identifications (e.g. 11/78cd and 14/46). Indeed, the goddess addresses the god as Rudra (19/15), and the Self is like Rudra (19/21). This is Rudra's part.

88. As Kuṇḍalinī rises, she burns away impurities. This first phase is appropriately called 'burning'. When this phase is complete and the Kuṇḍalinī that is below within the body has reached the climax of her ascent, she awakens the energy that is above, merged in the supreme principle. Awakened, this aspect moves down, filling and nourishing the body with the nectar of bliss. This second phase is accordingly called 'nourishment'. See below 48/26-32.

89. The Kramamaṇḍala into which the soul enters once it is freed of the fetters of Karma by his ascent is above the head.

90. I have not managed to trace the expression jñānamaṇḍala in other Kubjikā Tantras. It occurs in only one other place in our text, below in 34/19b. It appears that there it means the Kramamaṇḍala, in the middle of which is placed a Liṅga.

91. Below in 13/140ab-141cd, we are told that the Krama should be worshipped (kramārcana) after purifying oneself by means of this Yogic practice. The ritual should be performed only after the energy of the goddess's Command has penetrated into the worshipper.

92. This kind of Śiva Liṅga contains the fivefold energy of the Command within it. This is worshipped by the initiate within the Liṅga as the five aspects of the goddess. These five aspects are the goddess as her Vidyā, as Gesture, as Yoginī, as the deity of Kula and as Parā. As the goddess has all the qualities the god possesses, he is said to sustain this fivefold form himself. See above 4/21.

93. Now the basic theory concerning the nature of the impurity that binds the soul, how it can be purified and how liberation is possible have been explained; we move on to the teachings concerning the concrete means by which this is achieved, namely, initiation. The following is the initiation imparted to one who aspires to worship of the transmission (kramārcana). It is called ājñābhiṣeka – the Consecration of the Command. The essence of this consecration (abhiṣeka, lit. 'sprinkling') is the flooding of the Self with the lunar nectar that flows down from the uvula (see above 2/11).

94. Presumably, the passage from 13/97 to 109 describes the inner process (krama) of the rise of Kuṇḍalinī by which impurity is removed according to the Transmission of the Child. In what follows the same process is described as it takes place according to the remaining Transmissions.

95. The Secret Place is the Wheel of Birth (janmacakra) in the genitals of the goddess. It is the Rudramaṇḍala (13/121). In the centre of this is the Wheel of the Drop (bindumaṇḍala) in which the goddess Parā resides. (13/116-117). We shall see that Kuṇḍalinī moves from this through the three centers in the navel, the heart and the Merumaṇḍala beyond the body. This takes place in two phases. The first is the rise of Kuṇḍalinī which burns away impurity. This is the phase of withdrawal marked by the development of the consuming, purifying energy of the New Moon. The second phase is that of the descent of Kuṇḍalinī which nourishes the inner body filling it with the nectar of the Full Moon. This twofold process is, as we are told here, the 'consecration of the Command' (13/152). In the context of the Worship of the Krama (kramārcana) that follows it, it is the inner 'purification of the elements' (bhūtaśuddhi) that takes place within the body of the worshipper that make him fit to worship. We may summerize the essential features of these two phases as follows.

The first phase is called the 'gross sacrifice' (13/132cd-133) and consists of the progressive manifestation of Amā, the first digit of the moon, which is the energy of Kuṇḍalinī that rises, piercing through the Wheels (cakra) of the body. In this phase the impurities of the individual soul are burnt away, as the energy of Amā the New Moon rises and becomes more intense. Accordingly, this phase is called 'burning' (dahana). It is the phase in which the energy of Kuṇḍalinī progressively exits from the body and so is called 'going' (gamana). It is brought about by the gradual exhalation of the vital breath that is accompanied by the upward anticlockwise spiral movement of Kuṇḍalinī who is transported by the flow of energy within the central channel of Suṣumṇā. In this way, the energy of consciousness passes progressively through the energies in the Wheels situated along the axis so that the individual energies that fuel the vital functions, senses and the rest of the psychophysical complex are absorbed into the unity of the one energy. As oneness is established through this process of merger, the latent traces of pervious Karmas mature. As this action does not give rise to further Karma, it is destroyed. Thus, as the energy rises, the sphere of objectivity and the duality that it entails gradually decreases like the waning of the moon during the dark fortnight. The first phase ends when Kuṇḍalinī, now just the pure resonance of consciousness, enters the silence of 'her own Wheel', that is, the Sphere of the Nameless (anāmamaṇḍala) above the head where the Transmental (unmanī) energy of the goddess in her most pure form is located. At this point, the phase of the New Moon – the dark fortnight of withdrawal – attains its climax.

When this process is complete, the second phase begins. This is the phase of inhalation, which is that of the bright lunar fortnight. Just as the previous phase was impelled by the energy of the New Moon, this phase is impelled by the energy of the Full Moon (pūrṇimā). Now Kuṇḍalinī again descends into the purified body during the process of entry or return called 'coming' (āgamana). The previous phase was the gross inner sacrifice which emerges from the lower gross levels, moving through and consuming them. This phase is the subtle inner sacrifice in which the pure, subtle energy of consciousness pours down into the vessel of the psychophysical organism that had been purified during the first phase.

The first phase began with the rise of Kuṇḍalinī from the Root centre between the anus and the genitals. As pure mantric sound (nāda), it was impelled upward along the Upper Path by the contraction of the anus until it waned away at the End of the Twelve, the Merumaṇḍala above the head. When the 'empty' phase is complete, the 'full' phase (pūrṇabheda) can commence. This phase consists of the sequence of eighteen states that constitute the Divine Current (divyaugha) described in chapter fifty-seven. In this way, the mantras of the Three Transmissions of the Eldest, Youth and the Child and all else that constitutes the Kramamaṇḍala are spontaneously deployed inwardly, both into the world and into the outer maṇḍala.

The Siddhakhaṇḍa describes this process beautifully in the context of the purification accomplished through the piercing of the vital centres after the mantras have been successfully deposited onto the body. The god asks the goddess:

You have explained the immanent (apara) form of burning which is the destruction of impurity (malakṣaya) that takes place at the beginning in order to worship the Krama. O goddess Maheśvarī, I have not heard about the process of nourishment (which comes after) in the same way. How does that (energy) return once (everything) has been dissolved into the extremity of the Transmental? Once one is firmly fixed in the Wheel of the Void (khacakra), what is the prescribed procedure to worship (the Krama)? O goddess! Tell (me), O lord, about the process whereby (everything) is turned to nectar (as the vital centres) are pierced by energy.
The venerable goddess said:

In order to worship the Krama, bring Raudrī, the flame of the lamp (of consciousness) that has dissolved into the extremity of the Transmental, back here (into the body) by placing the mind into the End of the Twelve and the Transmental in the coming and going (of her energy). Utter forth the pure pervasive energy which is Śiva's Speech. Bliss is its supreme state, the Yoni which is Unstruck Sound. (The wise) know that this is the subtle (reality) consisting of the radiant energy whose form is nectar that flows (from the highest state). (Śiva's) will has come forth as the wet Yoni who is Bhairavī. She is the supreme energy present in the lineage (of the transmission), (the aroused form of) Kuṇḍalinī who is (straight like a) straight line. She is the seventeenth energy of the New Moon who is (also) the Full Moon transporting (the flow of) nectar. She is the venerable mother Kubjikā who, facing downward, is accompanied by Śiva. She is Nityaklinnā (Always Wet), Mahantāryā and the pulsing Karaṅkiṇī. Located in the centre (of the central channel of the vital breath), straight and subtle, lead her (down along it) slowly.

Once the threefold union (of these three goddesses in the corners of the Triangle) there in her own maṇḍala has been pierced, her coming (down into the body in this way) is her means to nourish (it) and is the aspect of emanation in (this), the supreme tradition. The (two) aspects, namely, emanation and withdrawal, pertain to the two polarities of nourishment and combustion. This is called the 'coming and going' (instigated) by (the energy of) the New Moon which precedes (them). In this way the supreme goddess who is the Command is said have entered the cavities of the channel (of the vital breath) in (her) six forms (ṣaṭprakāra) by (this) subtle process (krama). She is Kubjikā who transports the Three Transmissions within one's own body.

In the root division she was first said to be Mind Beyond Mind. (She is) is the supreme energy of Śiva's will, his will that has come forth (from him). She has arisen in the End of the Twelve and has dissolved away there, in that (same) place. She pulses radiantly in the foundation of the root at the extremity of the universe and abides there permanently. The rite of adoration takes place by means of her mantras in accord with the subtle and gross sequences. The subtle (form of her energy) is within the body and is extracted from (both) without and within. The gross (form of her energy) is Vidyā and her Command is the complete maṇḍala (that contains all the Krama).

aparaṁ śāktavedhena [g: sākta-] dahanaṁ yan malakṣayam [kh: janma-] ||
tvayā coktaṁ [kh: proktaṁ] ca yat pūrvaṁ arcanārthaṁ [kh: -rca; g: arcanāthaṁ] kramasya ca ||
āpyāyanaṁ tathā devi na śrutaṁ me maheśvari ||
unmanānte layaṁ kṛtvā kathaṁ taṁ punar āgamam ||

khacakre [g: svacakre] ca sthirībhūya [k kh: sthitiṁbhūyaḥ; g: sthitirbhūya] katham arcāvidhir bhavet ||
amṛtīkaraṇaṁ devi śaktibhedaṁ [g: sa-] vada prabho || śrīvakrā uvāca
yā sā dīpaśikhā raudrī unmanānte layaṁ gatā ||
pūjanārthaṁ [g: pūjanāthaṁ] kramasyātra [g: -syārthatra] ānayet punar eva hi ||
dvādaśānte manaḥ kṛtvā unmanā ca gamāgame || vyāpinīṁ [kh g: -nī] ca [g: tu] kalāṁ [kh g: kalā] śuddhāṁ [kh g: śuddhā] śivabhāṣāṁ [kh: -bhāṣā; g: -bhāsā] samuccaret [k kh: samuddharet] |
ānandaḥ paramāvasthā tasya yonir anāhatā [k kh g: yonimanāhatam] ||
sravantam amṛtākāraṁ [k kh: śra-; g: sravaṁtaṁmṛtā-] kiñcit tejomayaṁ [k kh: na] viduḥ [k kh g: vidhiḥ] ||
tasyecchā nirgatā klinnā yonir bhairavarūpiṇī ||
anvaye sā parā śaktir ṛjurekhaiva [k kh: śaktirjurekheva; g: śaktirijurekhe] kuṇḍalī ||
amā saptādaśī [g: -dasī] pūrṇā [k: pūrṇāṁ] kalā amṛtavāhinī ||
śivena sahitā sā tu śrīkujāmbā [g: -kujāvām] adhomukhī ||
nityaklinnā mahantāryā lulantī sā karaṅkiṇī ||
madhyagām ānayet tāṁ [k kh g: sā] tu ṛjvīṁ [k: ṛjuḥ; kh g: ṛju] sūkṣmāṁ [k kh g: kṣmā] śanaiḥ śanaiḥ ||
saṁghaṭṭaṁ [kh: saṁghaṭaṁ] bhedayitvā tu tridhā tatra svamaṇḍale ||
āgamāpyāyanopāyaṁ sṛṣṭibhedaṁ parānvaye ||
sṛṣṭisaṁhārabhedena dahanāpyāyapakṣayoḥ ||
gamāgamena [kh: -meṇa] vai proktaṁ [g: vrokte] amākaraṇapūrvataḥ ||
evaṁ ṣaṭprakāreṇa [g: ṣaṣva-] ājñā bhagavatī parā ||
sūkṣmakrameṇa kathitā nāḍirandhrāntaraṁ gatā [g: gatāḥ] ||
svadehe kubjikā yā [g: ccā] ca kramatritayavāhinī ||
pūrvaṁ ca [g: pūrveya] hi samākhyātā mūlabhede manonmanī [kh: nano-] ||
śivasyecchā parā śaktiḥ [g: śakti] tasyecchā yā [g: ṣā] vinirgatā [g: -tāḥ] ||
dvādaśānte [g: -dasāṁte] tu saṁjātā tatrasthāne layaṁ gatā [k kh g: gatāḥ] ||
kandādhāre jagasyānte [kh: -nta] sphurantī tiṣṭhate sadā ||
asyā mantrair bhavet [g: matrabhavet] pūjā sthūlasūkṣmakrameṇa tu ||
antaraṅge sthitā sūkṣmā bahir ante [kh g: bahiraṁgaiḥ] samuddhṛtā ||
vidyārūpā bhavet sthūlā ājñā saṁpūrṇamaṇḍalā || SKh MS G fl. 28a-28b

Thus, in the first phase the adept becomes fit to worship the Transmission and in the second phase the Transmission is made manifest. When both phases are complete, as the Tantra says, the adept should worship the Transmission (below 13/140ab).

96. The goddess says of herself that she is the teacher and the reciter of mantra (3/60) because she is the Command, that is, the energy of the Transmental.

The adept is also the ‘reciter of mantra’ who has been penetrated by the Thunderbolt of the Command, that is, by the energy of the syllable AIṀ and so has become one with the goddess. It is this Thunderbolt that splits apart the Liṅga from which the goddesses emerges (KuKh 5/66) and, as the graphic form of the syllable AIṀ, it is shaped like a triangular water chestnut that faces downwards (KuKh 58/43).

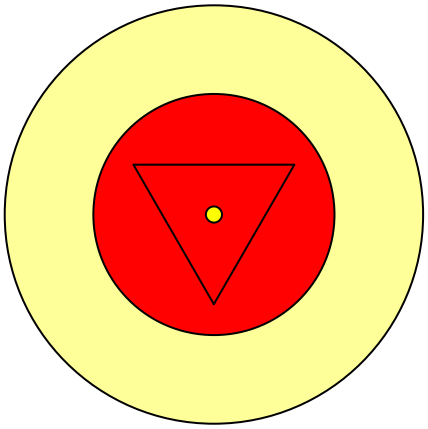
The outer form of the maṇḍala and its installation has been described in chapter 11 (11/26 ff); so too the outer form of the Gesture that is made at the time. The inner counterpart of the maṇḍala within the body and beyond is described here up to the end of verse 117. The Gesture that establishes it is described in KMT (6/106cd-110ab) as follows:

> It is said that emanation is in the left (hand). (The wise) know that absorption is in the right. O mistress of the heroes, they are thus said to be in the left and the right. The entire universe is pervaded by the left (vāmā) (hand) and then (undergoes) the process of destruction. O beloved, O fair lady, the Kuṇḍalinī of the Self is said (to rise) by (their) union. This is that supreme Yoni, O beloved, the best of Yonis. O fair lady, he who knows this, the primordial power Mind Beyond Mind, knows the entire universe free from both letter and what is devoid of letter. That Gesture is said to be Supreme and pervades all things.

97. Mudrāmaṇḍala is the Saṁvartāmaṇḍala, which is the Hermitage of the deity, see intro. vol 1, p. 133-134.

98. Concerning this expression, see above note to 2/28, cf. below 48/92cd-93ab.

99. The maṇḍala described in the the following verses presumably looks like this:



The outer circle is the Circle of the Sun within which is a circle of light red colour which, presumably, is the Circle of Fire. Within these two is the white Lunar Circle called the Island of the Moon. This is the middle of the triple lineage which I have represented with a triangle. In the centre is the Circle of the Point. It is the goddess, Rudra's energy, the Transmental.

The Island, 'white as cow's milk' is the Wheel of the Command (cf. 25/18 and 3/107d where this Wheel is described as clear as crystal). It represents the Fourth state that encompasses the state Beyond the Fourth of complete realisation on the higher level symbolized by the Circle of the Point (bindumaṇḍala). On the lower level, it is contained within the lowest centre, the Wheel of Birth, between the anus and the genitals where the Three Lineages are located. Thus the Wheel of the Command mediates directly between the most manifest form of spiritual reality – the Lineages of teachers and their teachings – and the transcendent, Beyond the Fourth. It is possible to understand this apparent bi-location of this Wheel if we recall that by looking through the Wheels of energy along the axis of the body and its outer extension above the head, they appear in this way as concentric circles. The outer circles have the largest circumference, but they are not necessarily the most distant. Thus the Wheel of Birth, which in gross spatial terms is the furthest of all the Wheels from that of the Command, is apparently the closest to it because it is the smallest among those below the Wheel of the Command.

The outer circle rotates in a clockwise direction; perhaps the other two circles do so as well. More likely, the direction of their motion alternates. The outer one rotates in a clockwise direction, the second one anticlockwise. The innermost rotates clockwise and the Point in the centre, as the text tells us, anticlockwise. The anticlockwise motion is the upward one by which the fiery energy of the goddess, symbolized by the Point, moves through the centres burning up impurity as she does so. Four rotations mark her penetration into and beyond the four spheres on the path of her ascent (KuKh 13/125cd-126ab). Then, rotating clockwise, she descends. Thus, if I have understood the text correctly, the three outer circles which represent the triad of Sun, Fire and Moon rise and descend constantly. Thus they probably correspond to the three forms of the breath of inhalation, exhalation and the state of suspension between them. This multiple motion, forwards and backwards, up and down, prevents the energy which is the Point in the centre from moving upwards even though it rotates there in the anticlockwise direction. Thus, when this, the normal movement of the breath in the fettered condition, is suspended through grace and Yogic practice, it is free to ascend in the manner described.

100. This maṇḍala is above the head (13/64). Parā is the topmost of Kubjikā's six heads. Each head is that of a goddess who is an aspect of Kubjikā who governs a corresponding Wheel. Thus Parā is Kubjikā's supreme form in the highest Wheel. In these verses she is described as Mind Beyond Mind and as Rudra's energy (rudraśakti).

101. Cf. above, note to 11/26-28ab.

102. The element Fire is located in this centre. Thus it is considered to be the seat of the digestive fire of the stomach (jaṭharāgni) that consumes food (see 25/9cd-12ab and note). Connected as this centre is with digestion in the body, here the goddess nourishes herself with her own seed and resides in the form of Kuṇḍalinī. If she remains here in this centre she binds the individual soul, just as she liberates it by moving up beyond it. Thus further ahead we read:

> Located in the navel is the (goddess) Kuṇḍalī who is Māyā (by which) are bound all the fettered souls in the three worlds who are devoid of devotion. (Thus) this is called the fetter. KuKh 14/107-108ab

103. Note that this is the third anticlockwise rotation of Kuṇḍalinī's ascent.

104. The four rotations each mark one of the four centres to which Kuṇḍalinī rises: the Wheel of Birth, the navel, the heart and the Merumaṇḍala.

105. This is the Saṁvartāmaṇḍala at the End of the Twelve called Merumaṇḍala in the next line. Anāma is Śiva. Along this path the scriptures of Anāma descend into the world.

106. The fourfold sequence consists of the four anticlockwise rotations through which Kuṇḍalinī rises through the four centres in the subtle body.

107. This is the sequence of the Divine Current (divyaugha) described in chapter fifty-seven below.

108. Cf. (Both) beyond the energies and within the energies, (the Point) is the abode whose nature blazes with (the energy of) the Command. Knowledge without end of all things, it reveals the unfailing Command. O fair lady, the gross form is visible everywhere.

kalātītaṁ [k kh: -bījaṁ] kalāntastham ājñārūpojjvalaṁ puram |
anantasakalajñānam amoghājñāprakāśakam ||
sthūlarūpaṁ varārohe sarvatraiva pradṛśyate | ṢSS 29/25-26ab

109. Concerning the nectar of Pūrṇā, the energy of the Full Moon, identified with Amā, the energy of the New Moon, see above 5/62-64 and notes.

110. The first state out of the eighteen in the flux of the Divine Current is the Transmental, which emanates directly from the Śāmbhava state, that is, ultimate reality. The last two are Ciñcinī and her partner Śrīnātha. The Full Moon rains down its nectar during these phases of emanation (sṛṣṭi) into the pure emptiness produced by the preceding phase of withdrawal (saṁhāra) until the last Point remains, as it were, in the Wheel of the Heart. As with all its preceding phases, the energy there is still the Supreme Power of Consciousness. Even so, it must now be led up again by the purified mind to the very beginning of the sequence where Parā is in the form of the Nameless Transmental, and then beyond it into Śiva's domain (śāmbhavamaṇḍala) of oneness. This is the Full Moon's own Wheel wherein resides the Nameless, that is, the energy of bliss which is the Command. The adept fully satisfied and blissful, is finally completely consecrated by it and is empowered to worship the Krama.

111. Cf. above (7/50ab): 'When the end of the Nameless has been attained, the accomplishment of the Command (is realised) in the Kulakrama'.

112. This is the highest maṇḍala. It is the seventh Wheel beyond the series of six Wheels. The goddess Khecarī resides there. The adept who reaches this level attains the state Beyond the Fourth and, identified with Bhairava, attains the accomplishment of flight (khecaratvasiddhi) by uniting with the energy of the goddess who moves in the expanse of pure, transcendental consciousness – the Sphere of the Nameless. See above, 3/123.

113. See note to 3/122cd-123ab.

114. The ŚM prescribes a similar procedure to purify the elements (bhūtaśuddhi) in the adept's body which prepares him to worship the Krama. It is performed after a jar of wine – the Hero's Vessel (vīrapātra) – has been placed on the hexogram in the middle of the maṇḍala and the Kula (i.e. Samayā) Vidyā has been deposited in it. This act concludes the preparations that precede the worship of the Gurumaṇḍala, which is followed by the worship of the Krama in the Kramamaṇḍala (see above note to 11/28cd-29). Once the outer area and its contents have been purified and are ready, the adept must do the same with respect to himself as follows:

> Then, O goddess, one should prepare the inner (mental) organ. Having exhaled the breath and then drawn it back into one's body, retain it. Once it has entered the Root Wheel, it should be checked below and above. (Then, the energy in the body) whose form is that of a sleeping snake and shape (is round like) an earring, awakes and moves quickly, following the path of the, Channel of Brahmā (brahmānāḍī). She moves along the Path of Brahmā progressively piercing through the body (liṅgabhedakrameṇa). Having penetrated into the Supreme Place, that is, the supreme limit (parāntika) at the end of the Transmental, (the adept experiences) the oneness of Śiva and Śakti, the wondrous churning. The one who has entered within the Circle of Principles by means of the union (yoga) of the churner and the churned (mathyamanthānayogena) neither hears, sees nor exhales at any time. (16-21)
>
> He should bring it back again by that very path into the middle of the heart. He should expand it out by means of the upper channel, and purification takes place in the middle of the Secret Place (guhya) (the Yoni). He should check the exhaled breath (apāna). He should check the inhaled breath (prāṇa) there. (These two breaths having been) checked, (Kuṇḍalinī) straightens and (at this time) ought to enter the Circle of the Moon. The Supreme Energy (kalā), whose form is (subtle and straight) like a spider's thread, rains down (nectar). (23ab)

Thus, one should recollect that the Self is flooded with the drops (of that energy) blazing with rays (of power). (One should recollect) that it is sprinkled with that Yoga of Nectar. He should meditate on the dawning Sun within the vessel and in the middle (of that), O beloved, the rising Moon. (24)

O goddess, in the middle of that he should contemplate the triangle which is the Circle of Fire. Again, the Self abides in the midst of the Fire. He should think (of that in) the form of an atom. Recollecting his own Bhairava nature (to be) like red mercury and (its) energy enflammed, radiating light, he should begin the sacrifice. (26)

The divine Transmental (energy) in the form of a Point (bindurūpā) is in the Supreme Sky. The wise man should sport with her. The knower of Yoga should do so for just (an eternal) moment (truṭimātra). O fair lady! Engaged in that, he is not stained by Dharma or Adharma, and he burns all the faults commited over seven lifetimes. (28)

In this way, O goddess, he should purify the elements (bhūtaśuddhi). Once the elements have been purified, (the adept is) pure. He should then commence the sacrifice. He who performs the rite of adoration with the elements (in an) impure (state) does not get its fruit and his worship of the Krama is useless. Therefore he should make every effort to purify the elements. (31ab) tato ‘ntaḥkaraṇaṁ [kh: tato.anta-] devi kartavyaṁ tu prayatnataḥ |

recya [g: cirecya] vāyuṁ [g: vāyu] svake [g: svako] dehe [g: ṭehe] punar ākṛṣya [kh: -kṛsya] dhārayet ||
ākramya mūlacakraṁ tu adha ūrdhvaṁ nirodhayet [g: nivodhayet] |
prasuptabhujagākārā [g: prasūpta-] kuṇḍalākṛtivigrahā ||
prabuddhā [kh: pravuddho] calate [g: calaṭe] kṣipraṁ brahmanāḍīpathānugā [kh: vrahmaṇātripathā-; g: -gaṁ] |
gacchate brahmamārgeṇa liṅgabhedakrameṇa tu ||
bhittvā caiva paraṁ [kh: ca vaikharaṁ] sthānaṁ unmanyante [k: unmanantya] parāntike [kh g: -kaṁ] |
śivaśaktisamaikatvaṁ mathanaṁ [k: manthanaṁ] cādbhutopamam ||
mathyamanthānayogena [k: madhyamadhyānta-; g: mathyamaṁtrāna-] praviṣṭas tattvamaṇḍale |
na śṛṇoti na paśyeta nocchvaset [kh: -se; g: nochase] tu kadācana [g: -naḥ] ||
punas tenaiva mārgeṇa ānayet hṛdimadhyataḥ [k: ddhādimadhyataḥ] |
vikāsed ūrdhvanālena [k: vikāśayedū-; kh g: vikāaśedū-] śodhanaṁ [k: sādhanaṁ] guhyamadhyataḥ ||
apānaṁ rodhayed [kh: rodhayad] vāyuṁ prāṇaṁ [kh: pāṇan] tatra nirodhayet [g: nivodhayet] |

rodhanād ṛjutāṁ [k: vodhanāgṛhvatā] yāti [g: yāṁti] praviśec candramaṁḍalam [g: praviśe-] ||
ūrṇātantunibhākārā varṣayantī [kh: varṣantī] parā [kh: paramā-] kalā |
tena [g: tenā] plāvitam ātmānaṁ [k: śodhitamā-; g: syāpitamā-] vipruṣaiḥ [k: tṛpti; kh: vipluṣaiḥ; g: viplūṣaiḥ] kiraṇojjvalaiḥ [k: laukikalaukikam; g: -lai] ||
tenaivāmṛtayogena [k: tena cā-] sicyamānam anusmaret [g: sevyamāna-] |
pātre [k kh g: pātraṁ] sūryodayaṁ [kh: sūryādayan] dhyāyen madhye [k: madhyaṁ; g: madhya] candrodayaṁ priye ||
tanmadhye bhāvayed devi trikoṇaṁ [k: trikālaṁ-; g: trikoṇa] vahnimaṇḍalam |
vahnimadhye sthitaś cātmā [k: sthitā cātmā; g: sthitaṁ cātmā] aṇurūpaṁ [g: anu-] vicintayet || raktapāradasaṁkāśaṁ sphurantaṁ [g: sphūrantaṁ] dīptatejasaṁ [g: -tejasāṁ] |
ātmānaṁ bhairavaṁ rūpaṁ smṛtvā yajanam ārabhet ||
parākāśe [kh: -se] kalā [k g: parā] divyā bindurūpā [k: -rūpeṇa] manonmanī [k: sudanmani] |
tayā sārdhaṁ ramed [kh: named] dhīmān truṭimātraṁ tu yogavit [kh: yogina; g: yoginaḥ] ||
tatrāsakto [k: raktāśakto; kh g: -śakto] na lipyeta [k: likhyeta; kh: lipyetaṁ] dharmādharmeṇa [k: svadharmeṇ tu; kh: dharmādharmaṇa; g: dharmādharmais tu] sundari [g: saṁdarī] |
dahate sarvaduṣyāni [k, kh: -duḥkhāni] saptajanmakṛtāny api ||
anena vidhinā devi [g: devī] bhūtaśuddhiṁ tu kārayet |
bhūtaśuddhau bhavec chuddhis tato [k: chuddhir bhūto-; g: bhaveśuddhitato] yajanam ārabhet [k: -pakṛtamārbhet; kh: -labhet]] ||
aśuddhena tu bhūtena yas tu pūjāṁ samācaret |
na tasya phalam āpnoti vṛthā tasya kramārcanam ||
tasmāt sarvaprayatnena [kh: -prakāreṇa] bhūtaśuddhiṁ prakāryet | ŚM 23/16-31ab

NOTES OF THE SANSKRIT TEXT OF CHAPTER FOURTEEN

1. This chapter corresponds with a few omissions and additions to KuKauM 7/91-187, KMT 25/29-155ab, TS 15/1-132, ṢSS 49/52-132ab and 50/2-35ab. The first six verses are also found in YKh (2) 19/1-6. I do not normally note variants from these sources if they are obviously the same readings corrupted by scribal error unless they may be significant. The MSs of the KuKauM are particularly corrupted by scribal errors. Noting all the variants is both very tedious and of no practical use. Despite the many errors, it is clear that in the great majority of cases the version in the KuKauM agrees with the ṢSS rather than the KMT or the TS. In order not to burden the critical apparatus further, wherever it is clear that the original reading of the KuKauM coincides with that of the ṢSS, this is recorded without noting variants unless they are significant. Readings noted as being from the MSs without specifying the text are those of the MSs of the KuKh which are normally noted first. KuKauM: श्रीदेव्युवाच (ख् ग् घ्: श्रीभैरव उवाच), KMT: श्रीकुब्जिका उवाच; ṢSS: श्रीकुब्जिकोवाच and TS: देव्युवाच. Concerning the form कौलीश–, see above note 1/3d.

2. The lines from here to 7ab, except 2ab, correspond to the KuKauM 7/66-71, KMT 25/29-34ab, TS 15/1-6ab and the ṢSS 49/52- 57. KuKauM ङ्: अनुज्ञानाभिषक्तं तु; TS: –भिषिक्तस्य; ṢSS: –भिषिक्तश्च

3. च्, छ्: वीरा; KuKauM क्, ख्, ग्, घ्: धीरो; YKh (2): वीरे

4. All MSs, YKh (2) and MSs J and T of the KMT: –मिच्छति; KMT, TS and MS क् of the ṢSS –ता; ṢSS ख्: –ता:; KuKauM क्, ग्: धीरत्वमिच्छता; ख्: धीरस्वमिच्छता; घ्: –मिच्छत; ङ्: वीरम्वमिच्छता 5. KuKauM ङ्: वरे

6. KuKauM: सया (ङ्: यौ) तत् (ख्: त:; ङ्: त्) कथयस्व मे; KMT and TS: यथा तत् कथयस्व मे; ṢSS: यथावत् कथयस्व मे

7. This line is missing in the KuKauM, KMT, TS and the ṢSS.

8. घ्, च्, छ्: –वक्रोवाच; KuKauM: श्रीभैरव उवाच. YKh (2): श्रीवक्रोवाच. The speaker is Bhairava in the KuKauM, KMT, TS and the ṢSS. Thus, all the feminine vocatives in the following passage have had to be modified by the redactor accordingly. In order not to burden the critical apparatus even more, I have not noted these variants unless they are substantial and significant.

9. KuKauM, KMT, ṢSS and TS: देवि. MS ग् is unclear in TS; YKh (2): (ख्: + श्रुतं देवि मया सर्व्वं) शृणु देव 10. ङ्: प्रवक्षामि 11. KuKauM: विद्यया

12. झ्, ञ्: –मुंडो 13. KuKauM: शिखी भस्मि (ख्: ब्रह्मभसमी; ग्: –भस्मे); KMT and ṢSS: भस्मी; YKh (2): चापि 14. च्, छ्: –कौ

15. ज्: व्र * चारिण:; all other MSs except ख्, ङ्: व्रत–; KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS: ब्रह्मचारी तु स्नातक:; TS: ब्रह्मचार्यथ (ग्: ?) स्नातक: (ग्: ?). The reading ब्रह्मचारी would be correct and is attested by all other sources. However, as the order of the words has changed, this reading cannot be made to fit the metre. The same is true of the reading व्रतचारी, the corrected form of व्रतचारिण:, which is the reading of the majority of the MSs. As the latter reading adds nothing to the sense compared to the reading ब्रह्मचारिण:, I have chosen not to emend on the basis of the readings found in the other texts, even though these are correct Sanskrit. The transition from the source to the host text not infrequently involves changes in the text. In some cases these are not real changes but the readings of the manuscript the redactor had before him. In other cases, as has probably happened here, these changes are by the redactor himself. This may simply be because he could not read the manuscript of his source; possibly he chose to alter the text for his own purposes. Although occasionally these changes may improve the Sanskrit, more often they entail its further deterioration (see note to 14/21ab below). Apart from the deviant forms of what might be called Tantric Sanskrit, the idiosyncracies of the redactor's Sanskrit are also sometimes apparent in these changes. An example of this is the deviant use of the plural number with agent nouns ending in '-in' in place of the nominative singular, which is attested in many places throughout this text. See above, note to 4/3c.

16. ङ: को–; other MSs: –पनम्; YKh (2) क्: –चारणोरगोपितं; ख्: कौलिकाचारगोपितम्. This line is missing in the additional sources except YKh (2).

17. क्, ग्, घ्, झ्: व्रतस्थोपि; KuKauM, KMT, TS and ṢSS: व्रतस्थोऽ प्यव्रतस्थो वा

18. KuKauM: सर्वावस्थोप्यसिद्धिदम् (ङ: सर्व्वावप्यसिद्धिदं); KMT and ṢSS: सर्वावस्थोऽ थ सिद्धिद: 19. KuKauM ङ: –वरो

20. KuKauM, KMT, TS and ṢSS: वापि 21. घ्, च्, छ्: बस्मविद्यो

22. KuKauM ङ: दिमंवर; YKh (2) क्, ख्: –र 23. All MSs: वीर–; KuKauM घ्: वीरल्कलधारी; ङ: वीर–; TS: चीरवत्कलधारी; ṢSS ख्: वीच–

24. KuKauM: वासाभरण (ख्: वासाभरनं; ङ: वामाभरण) भूषित: (ग्: भूषिता:); ङ: –ता; YKh (2) क्, ख्: –ता: 25. क्: –पटौ; YKh (2): –धरो 26. ङ: स्वेच्छावेध–

27. KuKauM: मलिष्णुर्वाथ (ख्: मलिप्लुवषि; ग्: मलिम्लुवषि) शुक्ले वा वस्त्राभरणलालसा: (ङ: –लालसा); ṢSS: मली तु (क्: मलिस्तु; ख्: मलिप्लु) चाथ शुक्लो वा वस्त्राभरणलालस:; KMT: मलीमसोऽ थ शुक्लो वा वस्त्राभरणभूषित:।; TS: मलि?म्लुचोऽ थ शुक्लैर्वा वस्त्रावरणभूषित:। (ग्: ?)

28. YKh (2) क्, ख्: दि 29. All MSs: वेषेण; KuKauM, ṢSS: विशेषेण

30. ङ: येव देव; YKh (2) with all other MSs: तेन देव; ṢSS क्: तत्र देव. This emendation agrees with the reading in the other sources except TS, which reads: तद्वदेव 31. TS and YKh (2) ग्: * * 32. ङ: –य; TS ग्: ?; YKh (2): साधक क्रमपूजक:. This is one of the few places in this text where the word निश्चय– appears in its regular masculine form rather than in the neuter (see above, note to 3/25d). Is this simply because this line has been copied accurately from the source, where the Sanskrit was correct? Cf. 14/45b. KuKauM: तत्र (ङ: तत्त) देवि व्रतं (ग्: व्रत) प्रोक्तं कुलाचार्यस्य (ङ: कुर्याचार्यस्य) निर्णयम् (ङ: निर्ण्णयं)।; ṢSS: कुलाचारस्य निर्णयम्.

33. ङ: य वा; other MSs: यं वा; KuKauM: यद्यदाचरणं (ङ: यद्यथावरणं) तस्य (ङ: यस्य)यं यं, ṢSS: यद् यदात्माचरं (क् ख्: यदा * चरं) तस्य यं यं. See above, notes to 1/5d and 6/45a.

34. KuKauM: वारया (ख् ग् ङ: वाचया). The following line that completes this one is the same in both the KMT and the TS. It reads: सा चर्या कथिता तस्य मन्त्राश्चैव न संशय:। In the KuKauM and ṢSS it reads: शासने कथिता चर्या मन्त्राश्चैव न संशय:।

35. ङ: –णां. The following section up to verse 21 is missing in all the other sources.

36. All MSs: कथिता. The reading of the MSs requires emendation. The relative pronoun एतत् in the following line requires a correlative pronoun in this one and so this has been incorporated into the emendation.

37. ख्, ज्: येतद्; ङ: येनद् 38. ङ: चार्या

39. घ्: अताव्रात–; च्, छ्: अतव्रातमनामकं; other MSs: अन्तर्–

40. All MSs except क्, झ्, ञ्: जटवत्
41. क्: –वृत्तिर्यक्षणात्; ख्, ङ्, च्: –वृत्तिर्येक्षणात्; छ्, ज्: वृत्तिरयेक्षणात्; ज्: वृत्तिरयक्षणात्
42. All MSs except झ्, ञ्: –काग्र. IM 5. मनस् has become मनम्. There are numerous examples of the thematization of the noun मनस् in our text. See above, note to 3/134a. 43. ङ्: –मत्यसेत् 44. M → N.
45. ख्: –मां; ङ्: –ना 46. ङ्: –न 47. ख्: –स्मरण * * *
48. Missing in MS ख् up to –दीपोपमायस्य of verses 11b. The root पत् is normally parasmaipada, but is not infrequently treated as ātmanepada. See above, note to 6/201b. 49. च्: छिन्न– 50. छ्, छ्: जानानि
51. All MSs except च्, छ्: च 52. ङ्: मुणी
53. महातारिका, one of the spellings of the goddess's name, has been modified to fit the metre.
54. क्: –ते:. The active form of the root दृश् (1P) is पश्यति while the passive is दृश्यते. In 14/51c, 25/18a, 57/46d, 62/86b and elsewhere पश्यते functions as the passive दृश्यते but here, as for example in 6/45a (see note) and 11/67a, it is equivalent to पश्यति. 55. All MSs: य:
56. ख्, ङ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –स्था: 57. कर्मन् is treated as if it were masculine here. 58. All MSs: –रश्मय: 59. ख्: मक्ति–; ग्, ज्: मुक्तिर– 60. भस्मन् has become भस्मम् 61. This is an irregular compound. What is meant here is अम्बरं कथितमाकाशम् 62. All MSs: शशि– 63. All MSs: –स्त्रिकाश–
64. ख्, ङ्: –र 65. घ्, च्, छ्: पर 66. ख्, ङ्: को–
67. The root चर् is usually 1P, cf. 14/23d and 14/55a.
68. च्: –भाषित: 69. All MSs: ब्रह्मचर्यव्रतं
70. ख्: सुस्निखं; ङ्: सुस्निग्वं 71. ख्, ङ्: प * 72. क्: किचित्
73. ङ्: –निर्मले 74. ख्, ङ्: त 75. ख्: पित्वा
76. ङ्: शुर्द्धि: 77. च्, छ्: स्नानेमेतन्न 78. च्: खमरं
79. All MSs: पुरं पुरं 80. च्, छ्: –गतिज्ञेया 81. ङ्: –सज्ञया
82. All MSs: क्रमबाह्यविनिर्मुक्तो. 83. क्, ग्, झ्: धारामृत–; च्: –वर्षणी
84. All MSs except छ्: भवेत्
85. क्, ख्, ङ्: अंरावरमंवरा; all other MSs: अंवरांवरमंवरा. The letter 'm' has been inserted between the last two components of this compound to gain an extra syllable. See above, note to 3/21b. 86. ज्: वत्कलं
87. ख्: वल्कल; ङ्, ज्: वल्कंल 88. ज्: भे * त् 89. घ्, च्: –ता. IC.
90. I understand the expression सर्वाभरणम् to be a false compound formed metri causa by dropping the ending of सर्वम् and conjoining the resultant stem with आभरणम्. 91. ख्, घ्, ड.,, च्, छ्, ज्: नामा। This verse corresponds to KMT 25/35, TS 15/7 and ṢSS 49/64.
92. ख्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: जप्य; ङ्: जपा; other MSs: क्षरा; KuKauM: विद्याताम (ख्: विद्यानाम; ग्: विद्याकाम) अरा (ख्, ग्, ङ्: परा); KMT, TS and ṢSS: नाम परा
93. क्: शक्ति–; ङ्: द्वभैर्भेदेव्यवस्थिता, च्: द्विभैभेदैर्व्यवस्थिता:; छ्: द्विभैभेदैर्व्यवस्थिता; all other
MSs: द्विभैर्–; KuKauM: शक्तिर्द्विभिर्भेदा (ख् ग्: शक्तिद्वि–; ङ्: शक्तिद्वितिभेदो) व्यवस्थिता; TS: शक्तिद्विभेदा सा व्यवस्थिता, MS ग् is unclear in TS. ; ṢSS: द्विभेदा संव्यवस्थिता. This emendation agrees with the reading in the KMT. It would be tempting to emend to the reading in the TS, which is the original source of this passage. But this is probably not the original reading from the hand of the redactor of the KuKh. The incorporation of passages not uncommonly involves a deterioration of the Sanskrit. In this case the transition is from the TS to the KMT and from there to the KuKh. Note that the reading in the ṢSS is virtually the same as the TS, while the one in the KuKauM is halfway between the correct Sanskrit of the TS and the corruption found in the KMT and here. Assuming that the ṢSS is drawing from the KMT, rather than directly from the TS, the MS (or MSs) the redactor of the ṢSS used was, in this place at least, less corrupt than the ones to which the modern editors of the KMT had access. Nonetheless, as this reading is supported unanimously by all the MSs used to edit the KMT, and as we find similar deviant forms elsewhere (see above note to 11/65c), I have not emended.

94. ङ्, च्: चिछक्ति–; ज्ञात्वा, or the like, is required.

95. KMT: चिच्छक्तिरहिताधिष्ठा अवर्णा; TS: चिच्छक्तिरभिधानस्था अवर्णवर्णगा शुभा:, MS. ग् is unclear in TS.; ṢSS: चिच्छक्त्यारम्भसन्धिस्था अवर्णा

96. KuKauM: चिच्छक्त्यारंभसंस्था (ख्: विंशात्यारंभसंस्थाश्; घ्: विंशात्पारंभसंस्था) च (ग् घ्: नास्ति; ङ्: ने) अवर्णा (ङ्: अवर्ण्णा) वर्णरूपिणी (ङ्: वर्ण्ण–)।

97. KuKauM (7/98cd-102), KMT (25/36-40), TS (15/8-12) and ṢSS (49/60-64) add: विन्दते वर्णगा येन तेन विद्याव्रतं प्रिये। (TS: विद्यन्ते सर्वगा येन तेन विद्या मया स्मृता:।)
चीर्णं यया (KMT: चीर्णचर्या) जगत् सर्वं वर्णावर्णैर् (KuKauM: वर्णावर्णे; ṢSS: वर्णावर्नै) व्यवस्थितम्।।
व्रतं (ṢSS: धुनं) भावमिति प्रोक्तं तेन विद्याव्रतं प्रिये (KMT, ṢSS: स्मृतं. This line is missing in the KuKauM.) ।
विच्छिन्नति (KMT, TS: चिच्चिनोति) विदि ज्ञानं (KuKauM, KMT: विदज्ञाने; TS: चितिज्ञानं) चिच्छक्तिप्रतिबोधकम्।।
आर्णवं रक्तवत् (KMT: अवर्णं; MSs ABEFHK of the KMT: आर्णवं; TS: आर्णवेदत् तवत्) पिण्डं विद्यामन्त्रात्मविग्रहम् (TS: –विग्रहे)।
प्रपश्यन्ति व्रतासक्ताश्चीर्णविद्याव्रतं तु तं (KMT: पश्यन्ति च व्रतासक्ताश्चीर्णविद्या स उच्यते; TS: स्व (?)पते च गताशक्तिश्चीर्णविद्य: स उच्यते)।।
सप्तकोटिसहस्राणां (KuKauM, ṢSS: सप्तकोटिस्तु मन्त्राणां) विद्यानामप्रमेयत:।
चिच्छक्तिबोधनी (KuKauM: विशक्तिर्–; KMT: चिच्छक्तिबोधनं; TS: चिच्छक्ति–; ṢSS: * * * बोधनी) यस्मादवर्णा वर्णतां गता (KuKauM: यस्मादवर्णे वर्णतां गते; TS: गता:)।।
एका एव (KuKauM: एत एव ṢSS: एषा एव) परा प्रोक्ता विद्यारूपा तु कुण्डली।
तेन देवि व्रतं प्रोक्तं विद्यायाश्चरणं शुभम्।। 98. KuKauM ख्: विद्यामार्ग

99. झ्, ञ्: चमेधस्तु; ङ्: चमेघेस्तु; all other MSs: चमेघस्तु; KuKauM: (ग्: चरेन्; ङ्: वरे)यस्तु. This emendation agrees with the reading in the KMT and the ṢSS. Verses 22 to 25 correspond to KuKauM 7/103-106, KMT 25/41-44, TS 15/13-16 and ṢSS 49/70-73.

100. KuKauM ख्, ग्: –दृष्टन; ङ्: शाष्ट्र–

101. cf. TS 9/578: एवं देवि समाख्याता समया समायार्थिनां (क्: –ना)। श्रावयेद् गुरुरेवन्तु शास्त्रदृष्टेन (ग्: –ण) कर्मणा।। 102. KuKauM and घ्, च्, छ्: ध्यान

103. KuKauM ङ्: होम 104. KuKauM: समयानां (ङ्: –याणां) प्रपालनम्; KMT and ṢSS: समयानां प्रपालनं; TS: समयानां तु पालकम्

105. ṢSS क् ख्: विद्यातथा 106. All MSs: –व्रतमुत्तमम्; KuKauM, KMT, TS and ṢSS: नान्यथा वीरनायिके 107. TS: ज्ञया 108. ङ्: तुं

109. KMT: योनिस्था; KuKauM: शुभा निष्टा (ग्: निष्ठा; ङ्: नष्टा); ṢSS: शुभा निष्ठा

110. KuKauM घ्: * (?)रते; ङ्: चरत. See 14/5b and note.

111. KuKauM and KMT: –गम्; KuKauM घ्: द्वादशातग:; ङ्: द्वाशान्तगे

112. All MSs: व्रह्म–; KuKauM घ्: व्रतस्थारेषु. This emendation agrees with the reading in both the KMT and the ṢSS.

113. TS: –व्रत 114. KMT: प्रिये; KuKauM, TS, and ṢSS: स्मृतम्; ṢSS क्: शुभम्

115. KuKauM: ब्रह्मा विष्णुस्तथा रुद्र ईश्वरश्च (ग्: इश्वरश्च) सदाशिवः (ग्: –शिव)।; ṢSS: ब्रह्मा विष्णुस्तथा रुद्र ईश्वरोऽ थ सदाशिवः।; KMT: ब्रह्मा विष्णुस्तथा रुद्र ईश्वरस्तु सदाशिवः।. TS: ब्रह्म विष्णुस्तथा (ग्: ?) रुद्र ईश्वरोऽ थ सदाशिवः।

116. क्, ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: एतत् 117. M → N.

118. KuKauM, ṢSS: व्रतस्येतानि स्थानानि. In this case, the original text in corrupt Sanskrit has been corrected, demonstrating how easy it is in many cases to do so, reminding the modern editor that his task is not to correct the text but restore it to its original form. Moreover, we have evidence here that the source of this part of the KuKh was the KMT not the ṢSS.

119. च्, छ्: रमतै; KuKauM: यत्र (ङ्: यव) सा चरते; KMT, TS and ṢSS: चरते. Cf. above 14/23d. 120. TS: ज्ञात्वा तं

121. KuKauM: तु परस्थानं (ख् ग् घ् ङ्: –न); ṢSS: तु परं–

122. च्, छ्: –व्रता; KuKauM: –व्रते 123. घ्, च्, छ्: दिषु

124. The following lines up to 28ab are not found in the other sources.

125. च्, छ्: पंक्ति 126. च्, छ्: –क्र

127. All MSs except झ्, ञ्: तामा 128. च्: –पटछेदकं

129. The word sequence in this compound is irregular.

130. All MSs: –पुराधारो 131. च्, छ्: कौलिकं व्रतंज्ञेयं; घ्: कौलीशकं व्रतं–; all other MSs: कौलिकं–

132. च्: बाह्यप्रतिना; छ्: बाह्यव्रतिना. See above, note to 4/3c.

133. KuKauM: पंचमुद्रा भवेत् (ङ्: भवे) तस्य; KMT, TS: पञ्चमुद्रा भवेद् देवि; ṢSS: पंचमुद्रा भवन्त्यस्य 134. KuKauM ग्: पञ्चकारण * ततः; TS: पञ्चकारणकास्तु यत्. The following passage upto 94ab is found in KuKauM 7/107-170ab, KMT 25/45-109ab, TS 15/17ab-91ab and ṢSS 49/74-137. 135. च्, छ्: भूषिता; KuKauM: भूषिता

136. KMT: तिष्ठेत पञ्चमुद्राव्यवस्थितः; KuKauM, TS and ṢSS: तिष्ठेत पंचमुद्राविभूषितः

137. घ्, च्, छ्: एते तु; ṢSS: एताभिर्; KuKauM: एतानि

138. च्, छ्: भूषिता; KuKauM क्: भिभूषिता; ख् ग्: भूषिता; घ्: विभू (?)षिता; ङ्: लेनैव

139. TS: मन्त्रैर् 140. च्, छ्: पर्य्यटे

141. छ्, ज्: –मासृतः; ṢSS: –स्थितः 142. KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS: देवकुलेपि वा. This pāda is one syllable too long.

143. घ्, छ्: सून्यं; च्: सून्ये; all other MSs: शून्य; KuKauM: शुभे

144. घ्: राजगृहं; छ्: राजगृहें 145. क्, ग्: पथनोग्रे; ख्, ङ्, ज्, झ्: पथनाग्रे

146. KMT त्रिपथ; KuKauM क्: त्रिपथे; ख्, घ्: त्रिपथि; ग्: तृपथि

147. छ्: –रर्थ्यासु; KuKauM क्: –रण्यासु; ख्, ग्, घ्: रन्यासु

148. KMT and TS: –तथा 149. ख्, ङ्: –वृक्ष–; क्, ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: –नघे; KMT: एकवृक्षेऽ थ कानने; TS: एकवृक्षेऽ थ कन्दरे. This line is missing in the KuKauM and the ṢSS. Note that most of the manuscripts testify to the feminine gender of the deity who is being addressed, as is the case in the original source of this passage where Bhairava is the speaker.

150. KuKauM, KMT, TS and ṢSS: एकलिङ्गे तथा

151. झ्: चन्द्रे; all other MSs: चण्डे 152. झ्: क्षेत्रोवाथ यथाक्रमात्; all other MSs except क्: क्षेत्रावाथ यथाक्रमात्; KMT: क्षेत्रैर्वा अष्टभिः क्रमात्; KuKauM क्: क्षेत्रे ज्येष्ठसु च क्रमात्; ख्: क्षेत्रेन्वष्टसु च क्रमात्; ग्: क्षेत्रेष्वम्वसु च क्रमात्; घ्: क्षेत्रेस्वष्ट (?) सु च क्रमात्; ṢSS: क्षेत्रेष्वष्टासु च क्रमात्; TS: क्षेत्रे चैवाष्टभिः क्रमात् 153. MS ङ् is missing in KuKauM.

154. MS क्, ख्, झ् of KuKh 16 and ṢSS: प्रयागो (क् ख्: –गा); KuKauM ग्: प्रयोगा. These place names are normally masculine. This curious change of gender to the feminine is confirmed below in 16/3 and 42/31cd-32ab where this and the following line recur. 155. KuKh16: वरणा except MS घ्, च्, छ् and KuKh 42. This place is वाराणसी. A common alternative spelling of this place name is वरणा. Cf. below, 16/3a. 156. क्, ग्, झ्: कोल्लो; च्, छ्: कोला; all MSs except of KuKh 42 ख्, ग्, ज्, झ्: कोला; KuKauM क्: कोला; KMT, TS: कोला (ग्: ?). The selected reading agrees with the one in the ṢSS.

157. KMT: भीमनादा. MSs FHJK of the KMT and TS: अट्टहासा; ṢSS: भीमनादो (क् ख्: –दा) जयन्तिका. 158. क्: चरिते–; च्, छ्: चरित्रैकामकं; all other MSs and KMT: चरित्रे–; KuKh16 ङ्: –कास्रकं; च्: कांश्रकं; छ्: –कांम्रकं all MSs except घ्: चरित्रे–; MS. क् of KuKh 42: चनित्रे– and other MSs: चिरित्रे–; KuKauM: चरित्रे चाम्रकं; ṢSS क् ख्: चरित्र्यै–; TS: चरित्रेकाम्वुकं. A dual number is required here. See above, note to 5/46d. Although all the MSs here and below in 16/3c and 42/32a read चरित्रे– and we find the analogous आम्रातकेश्वरेकाम्रे above in 6/214a, I have chosen to emend in each case.

159. घ्, च्: –कोटं; KuKh 16: देविकोट्टं (क्, ग्: –टं); KuKh 42 घ्: –कोटं; KMT: कोटीवर्षं; KuKauM, ṢSS: देविकोटं; TS: कोटिवर्षं

160. This, and the previous line, recur below as verse 16/3.

161. All MSs, KMT and TS: एतैस्तु. This emendation agrees with the reading in the ṢSS. 162. KuKauM, KMT, TS and MSs क्, ग्, घ्: –ता; ख्: –सिद्धेच्छमिता; ङ्: –सिद्धछमिता; च्, छ्, ज्: –सिद्धमिच्छता; ṢSS क् ख्: –ता.

163. क्: खद्वाङ्ग–; TS: –धारिणा. ṢSS: –धारको. The reading here agrees with the one in the KMT and the TS. Even though the reading in the ṢSS is grammatically correct and is supported by the commentary, I have chosen not to adopt it, assuming that here as in many other cases the plural form of the agent noun has replaced the singular. See above, note to 4/3c. I suppose that the text was corrected by the redactor of the ṢSS. 164. क्, ग्, ञ्: मौली

165. च्: वैगाच्च पर्यटेत्; all other MSs: वेगाच्च पर्यटेत्; ṢSS क् ख्: –के; KuKauM: खट्वाङ्गं (घ्: * त्वांगं (?)) धारकौमारी (ग्: धारको मौनी) वेगात् (ग्: वेगान्) पर्यटते. This emendation agrees with the reading in both the KMT and the ṢSS.

166. All MSs: डमरुं; TS: अरुकं 167. KuKauM ग्: –पाशुखड्गां; KMT and TS: पाशखट्वाङ्गं. A dual number is required here. See above, note to 5/46d.

168. KuKauM क्: त्रिस्थूलं 169. M → N. KuKauM घ्: ताराचं; KMT: नाराचा

170. All MSs, KuKauM and ṢSS: खेचरी. This emendation agrees with the reading in the KMT and the commentary on the ṢSS.

171. KuKauM: वक्त्रं 172. ख्, ङ्: मुसलं; all other MSs except क्, च्, ज्: मशुलं; KuKauM ग् घ्: मुषलं 173. KuKauM ग्, घ्: धनु

174. All MSs: तथा. This emendation agrees with the reading in the KuKauM, KMT and the ṢSS.

175. All MSs: शक्तिरन्य. This emendation agrees with the reading in all the sources. 176. Cf. 14/34c. KuKauM घ्: –कमण्डलं; TS ग्:
क * * *?; ṢSS: दण्डं कमण्डलुम् 177. TS: ए

178. च्: वायुधा:; KMT: एते तु आयुधा:; ṢSS: एतान्यायुध; TS: चैवायुधा

179. KuKauM: एतान्यायोधचार्याणि (ग्: –धवार्यानि) चर्या (ग्: र्या) काले तु; KMT: –काले तु; ṢSS: वार्याणि चर्याकाले तु; TS: श्रेष्ठा चर्याकाले तु

180. क्: पंचदेवोत्मकं; all other MSs: पंचदेवात्मकं; KuKauM क्: * * दैव सकं; ग्: एतदेवं सकं; घ्: * * देव सकं; ṢSS: पञ्चदशैकं (क् ख्: –दैवशिकं); TS: पञ्चदैवशिकं. This emendation agrees with the reading in the KMT. 181. TS: कार्य 182. TS: मन्त्रसंख्या

183. All MSs: चर्याकौलेऽ पि धारयेत्. This emendation agrees with the reading in the KMT. The reading in the KuKauM and ṢSS is: अस्त्रसंख्याव्रतोत्तमम्; TS: व्रतोत्तमम्

184. KuKauM घ्: द्वादत्साहं; The accusative singular of अहन् is अह:. The required plural is अहानि.

185. All MSs: पक्षमासरतोऽ थ वा; KuKauM क्: पदमाशोषि हापि वा; ग् घ्: पदमासोपि आपि वा; KMT: –दितोऽ थ वा; ṢSS: पक्षमासौ तथापि (क् ख्: मितापि) वा; TS: पक्षमासऋतुस्तथा; ग्: ?

186. क्: षरा–; ग्: –मथचान्दं; ङ्, ज्: –मथचाब्दं; च्: षण्मासामथवाब्दं; KuKauM: षण्मासमथवैकाब्दं (ग्: षण्मासमथाचैकाव्दं; घ्: पदमास–); ṢSS: –मथ चैकाब्दं; TS: षण्मासामथवाब्दं

187. KMT and TS: च; missing in KuKauM

188. KuKauM: द्वादश; TS: द्विरव्द ṢSS: द्वादश। द्व्यब्दे would be correct. See note to 1/2d. 189. क्, ख्, ग्, झ्: त्रिणि; KMT त्रीणिमेव; ṢSS: त्रीणि
चैव 190. घ्, च्, छ्: च; KuKauM: त्रीणि चैकधा

191. KMT adds: चतु: पञ्च तथा षट्सु सप्ताष्ट तथापि वा। नव द्विपञ्चकं वाथ एकादशमथापि वा।।
The KuKauM adds only: चतुष्पञ्च तथा षट्क सप्ताष्टकमथापि वा। (ङ्: नास्ति); ṢSS: चतुष्पञ्च तथा षट्कं
(क् ख्: षट्क) सप्ताष्टकमथापि वा।; TS: चतुष्पञ्च तथा षट् च सप्तैवाष्टमथापि वा। नव द्विपञ्चकं वाथएकादशाथवापि
(ग्: –शा * * *?) वा (ग्: ?)। 192. ङ्: –शाब्द. Cf. above, 14/37a.

193. क्: –मत्री; TS: चरेद् यस्तु 194. KuKauM: ब्रह्मघ्नोपि हि; KMT: ब्रह्मघ्नोऽ पि स;
ṢSS: ब्रह्मघ्नोऽ पि हि; TS: ब्रह्मघ्नोऽ पि 195. घ्, च्: शुद्धति; छ्: शुद्ध्यति

196. This and the following line are missing in all the other sources.

197. All MSs: –प्रबोधकं 198. All MSs: अचिरा 199. च्, छ्: सिद्ध–

200. छ्: पारं– 201. च्, छ्: अव्दकेन तु; KuKauM क्: अब्देनैकेन; ग्, घ्: शब्देनैकेन; TS: अब्द एकेन; KMT and ṢSS: अब्दमेकेन

202. KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS: * देवेशि; TS * देवेशि

203. च्: मण्डलीका; all other MSs: मण्डलीकात्; KuKauM: माण्डलीको; ṢSS: मण्डलिको (क्, ख्: –लीको). TS * * * *. This emendation agrees with the reading in the KMT. The regular form would be माण्डलिकै:.

204. क्, झ्, ञ्: प्रजुध्वति; ङ्: प्रजुज्यति; all other MSs: प्रजुह्वति; KuKauM, ṢSS: वशी भवेत्; TS * * * *. This emendation agrees with the reading in the KMT.

205. All MSs: नपरिग्रहं; KuKauM: देशलोक पुरुग्राम (ग्, घ्: पुरग्राम) सहोमं तृपुरोगमा: (क्: स हो मन्त्रि पुरोगमा:)। (घ्, ङ्: नास्ति); KMT: देशं भृत्या पुरं ग्रामं समन्त्री सपुरोगम:।; TS: * * * * * * * * *
मन्त्रे अपुरोहित:।। (ग्: ?); ṢSS: दशलोका: (क्, ख्: देशलोक) पुरग्रामै: (क्, ख्: –म) सह मन्त्रीपुरोगमा: (क्, ख्: मन्त्रि–)। 206. KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS: शान्त: पुरवरो राजा वशी भवति शोभने।. Concerning this deviant sandhi, see above, note to 3/22b.

207. KuKauM: द्विरब्द (क्: –ब्दे)यक्षकन्यश्च (घ्: यक्षे–); TS: द्विरब्दा दक्षकन्यास्तु; ṢSS द्विरब्दे–. द्व्यब्दाभ्याम् would be correct. See note to 1/2d.

208. क्, ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: कामजिह्वल–; KuKauM: सिद्ध्यते (ग्: सिद्धा ते) सुरनायिके।; KMT, TS: सिध्यन्ति सुरनायिके; ṢSS सिद्ध्यन्ति सुरनायिकैः (क्, ख्: –यिकैः). The following line is missing in all the other sources. 209. क्, ङ्, ज्: आगच्छति; ख्: आगच्छ *

210. KuKauM क्, घ्: त्रिरब्दा; ग्: तृरव्दाण् त्र्यब्दैः would be correct. See above, note to 3/119d. KMT and ṢSS त्रिरब्दात् 211. KuKauM, ṢSS: –पाताले; TS: सप्तपा * ले

212. KuKauM, KMT, ṢSS: यस्तु; TS: यास्तु

213. KuKauM: दैत्यांगना (ग्: देत्यांगणा); KMT and ṢSS: दैत्याङ्गनाः शुभाः; TS: देत्यांगताः (ग्: –गतास्) शुभाः (ग्: सुभाः) 214. All MSs except झ्, ञ्: याति

215. KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS: पश्यते मदमत्तास्तु; TS: वसन्ते मदमत्तास्तु (ग्: ?)

216. क्: –मातंगंगामिन्यो; KMT: मातङ्गमदगामिन्यो

217. KuKauM and ṢSS: ह्यक्षया 218. घ्, च्, छ्: –यौवनाद्वहाः; ज्: यौवनाद्दुहाः; झ्: यौवनाद्ग्रहाः; all other MSs: यौवनाद्दुहाः; TS: यौवनोद्वहा. This emendation agrees with the reading in the KuKauM and ṢSS. 219. KuKauM ग्: क्षुभ्यति; घ्: क्षुभ्यते

220. All MSs: मुञ्चति; KuKauM घ्: –मुंचति

221. च्: चतु। चतुरब्देसु पञ्चसु तथा षट्सु is meant here. The flexibility of the Sanskrit of this text allows the abbreviation of words and constructions.

222. KuKauM: चतुष्पञ्च तया (ग्, क्: तथा) वद्ध (घ्: वत (?)); TS: षड्भिर्

223. KuKauM घ्: –धि 224. KuKauM क्: साधकम्; ग्: साधकं; घ्: साधक; ṢSS: साधकः

225. KuKauM क्: सप्त(̇)मेन; ग्: सप्तमे तु; घ्: सप्तमे च; KMT, TS, ṢSS and MSs घ्, च्, छ्: सप्तमे–

226. ṢSS, KuKauM and KMT: वरारोहे। the appelation वरारोह– befits a female, not a male. As we have noted already, the speaker in the original source of this passage is the god, not the goddess. This anomalous masculine vocative is the result of this change in gender of the speaker. 227. ṢSS: –न्तां

228. All MSs: रुद्रकन्यैर्महीयते; KuKauM and ṢSS: ये व्यवस्थिताः; TS: रुद्रान्ताया व्यवस्थिताः. This emendation agrees with the reading in the KMT.

229. All MSs: सिद्धोऽ सौ; KuKauM: सिद्ध्यन्ते. This emendation agrees with the reading in the KMT and the ṢSS.

230. Missing in MS क्; KuKauM: शास्त्र; KMT, TS and ṢSS: शास्त्रे

231. KMT: प्रचोदिताः; TS, KuKauM and ṢSS: प्रचोदितम्. See above, note to 3/25d. 232. All MSs: –ख्ये; KuKauM क्: ईश्वराढ्यं

233. क्: –शिव; all other MSs: –शिवे; KuKauM घ्: –शिवा

234. All MSs: दशमे–; KuKauM: दश विद्यालये

235. All MSs: विद्ययायानं कृतेन; TS: क्रीडन्ते

236. All MSs: महत्; KuKauM क्: रमते महत्; ग्: चरते महत्; घ्: * रते महत्

237. KMT and TS: दशमैकादशे देवि; KuKauM: अथमेकादशे (क्: अथएकादशे) देवि; ṢSS: अब्दे (क् ख्: शब्दे)एकादशे देवि

238. क्: रुद्ररूपे–; KMT: द्वादशैर्गुणसंयुतः।; KuKauM, ṢSS and TS: द्वादशे गुणसंयुतः। (ख् ङ्: नास्ति). The following line is missing in the KMT and the ṢSS.

239. Other examples of this deviant sandhi are found in 36/85a and 37/44a. See above, note to 3/22b. Concerning the deviant numeral, see above, note to 6/67c.

240. This line is missing in KuKauM, ṢSS and TS.

241. KuKauM: अणिमादि गुणैश्चैव (ग्: गुणैश्वर्यङ्; घ्: गुणेश्च *); KMT, ṢSS and TS:
अणिमादिगुणैर्युक्तो 242. The root गम् (1P) is ātmanepadī here.
243. KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS: खेचरैः; TS: खेचरी (ग्: खेचरस्)
244. KuKauM, KMT, ṢSS and TS: सह
245. All MSs: अथ सारक्षयो 246. Here, as elsewhere, the root क्रीड् (1P) is treated as ātmanepadī. 247. KuKauM and ṢSS: सर्वगो व्रती; TS: सर्वगः शुभैः 248. KuKauM and KMT: व्रतस्थस्य फलं ह्येतत्; ṢSS: –फलं चैतत्; TS: –फलमेतद्धि
249. KuKauM and ṢSS: तव सुव्रते; KMT and TS: तु मया प्रिये 250. KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS: योगमार्गेण. The next two quarter verses are missing in these sources. 251. M → N. See above, note to 7/12d.
252. This line is missing in the TS. 253. घ्, च्, छ्: दर्शया
254. घ्, च्, छ्: तेह–; KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS: यथा (ṢSS: यदा) भवति तच्छृणु; TS:
सांप्रतं योगमार्गेण यथा भवति तच्छृणु। 255. All MSs and KuKauM MSs क्, ग्, घ्: श्मशाने 256. M → N. See above, 3/49a.
257. KuKauM, KMT, ṢSS and the TS: तु गृहं प्रोक्तं 258. TS: देह
259. घ्: तद् पूर्ण–; छ्: तत् पूर्ण; all other MSs: तत्प्रपूर्ण–; ख्, ग्, घ्, छ्, ज् : –च कुंविकां;
all other MSs: च क्रंविकाम्; KMT: गृहो देहः प्रकीर्तितः। This emendation agrees with the reading in the KuKauM, KMT and the ṢSS.
260. TS: अटनं; ṢSS क् ख्: अट्टते. The root अट् (1P) is treated here, as it usually is in this text, as ātmanepadī. Cf. 14/81a.
261. All MSs: अन्; KuKauM and ṢSS: च
262. KuKauM, TS and MSs क्, ग्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –न्तं; ṢSS: बहिश्चान्ते (क् ख्: अतिश्चान्ते) 263. KuKauM: श्मशानं; KMT, TS and MS ङ्: –न
264. KuKauM: नगचेतसः; TS चेतस
265. All MSs except क्, च्: खं 266. TS ग्: * * * * ?मिति
267. KMT: नयते भृशं; KuKauM: –नजनौ स्मृतम्; TS, ṢSS: नयनौ स्मृतौ
268. Cf. 14/12a and note. 269. KMT: पश्यते मन्त्रसंस्थोऽ पि; KuKauM and ṢSS: तत्रस्थः (KuKauM: तत्रस्था) पश्यते सर्वं; TS: पश्यते तत्र संस्थो हि
270. All MSs: करणं ते समाख्यातं; KuKauM: कारणं तेन माख्यातं; TS: काननं ते समाख्यातं
271. All MSs: कायान्तमिति; ṢSS: कार्यान्ते
272. छ्, ज्: सं * * स्थितं; KuKauM क्: च संव्यवस्थितम्; ग्: कार्यं संध्यव्यवस्थितं; KMT:
संस्थितम् प्रिये; TS: संस्थिता प्रिये; ṢSS: –तः 273. KuKauM ग्: मन
274. TS: मन कूप. M → N. 275. KuKauM घ्: समुद्दिप्त
276. क्: संक * (?); all other MSs KMT and TS: संकल्पं; KuKauM क्: संकल्पान्तो; ग्: संकल्पन्तो; घ्: सकल्पान्तो. This emendation agrees with the reading in the KuKauM and ṢSS. 277. All MSs: वहुम्; KuKauM: रतो बहून्; ṢSS:
तरते बहून् 278. क्, च्: तत्राधारा; ग्: तत्रधारो; all other MSs, KMT and TS: तत्राधारो; KuKauM: तत्वाधारो; ṢSS: तत्वाधारे 279. The root व्रज् (1P) is treated here as ātmanepadī. KuKauM घ्: व्रजे; ṢSS: व्रते 280. ख्: क्षेत्रा; ङ्: क्षत्रा 281. क्: त्वेन; च्: तेन्; all other MSs except घ्, छ्: चेन 282. ख्: कूपे 283.
KMT: कूपेति विश्रुतः; KuKauM and ṢSS: कूपमिति स्मृतं; TS: तुर्येति विश्रुतम्
284. क्, ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: सन. The case ending has been dropped for the metre.
285. TS with all MSs: मनते; KuKauM: नाभस्था मन्यते (घ्: मन्यतो); KMT: मध्यतः.
The emendation agrees with the reading in the ṢSS.
286. All MSs: तत्; KMT: नेति तत्; ṢSS: वेत्ति तत्

287. क्, झ्: परंसंप्राप्तो; ख्: पदेसंप्राप्तो; ङ्: पदसप्राप्तो; all other MSs: पदसंप्राप्तो; KMT: परमं प्राप्तं; KuKauM: संपद (घ्: संपदं) संप्राप्ता; TS, ṢSS: पदसंप्राप्ता.

288. क्: उद्यान * (?) न; ख्: उद्यानस्थोन; ग्: उद्यानथान; ग्, ङ्, ज्: उद्यानस्तोन; TS, KuKauM and ṢSS: उद्यानं तेन

289. च्: नश्यते; all other MSs: पश्यते; KuKauM, ṢSS: चोच्यते; TS: शोच्यते

290. Missing in all MSs except छ्, ज; TS, KMT, KuKauM and ṢSS: ददाति सततं देहे। 291. KuKauM ग्: अमृतं द्रनभोगतम्; घ्: यमृतं तु नभोगतम् 292. ख्: –न्तं

293. Cf. 14/15b. KMT: च चरेद्येन; KuKauM and ṢSS: कुलान्ते न चरेद् येन

294. KMT: –बन्धनैः; KuKauM and ṢSS: धर्मात्माज्ञानबन्धनैः

295. TS: कलान्ते वर्तते येन धर्माधर्मात्मवन्धनैः।

296. KuKauM, KMT, ṢSS and TS: देवि

297. च्, ज्: –यातं; ṢSS: मयाख्यातं 298. All MSs: देहं

299. All MSs: देवकुलोच्यते; ṢSS: देहकुलं तदा (KuKauM: तथा); TS: देवकुले प्रिये

300. घ्, छ्: * जा; च्: आजो; ṢSS: राज

301. क्: आत्म; च्: * *; KuKauM: आद्या; ग्: अप्ता; घ्: आप्ता; KMT and TS: चात्मा

302. KuKauM: षट्त्रिंशमथवाध्वनि; KMT and ṢSS: षट्त्रिंशेऽ प्यथ चाध्वनि; TS: षट्त्रिंशेऽ प्यथवाध्वनि।

303. क्: –भूषिष्ठा; KuKauM क्: शक्त्यादिगुणभूयिष्टो; ग्: शक्तादि प्रण * * *; घ्: सक्तार्निगुणभ्रविथो (?)

304. All MSs: –भूषिताः; KuKauM: मनः कोष्ठगतः (ग्: लोष्ठः गतः) पुनः (क्: प्रभुः); KMT and ṢSS: मनः कोष्ठगतः प्रभुः; TS: मम कोष्ठगतप्रभुम्।

305. KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS तेन स्थितेन तिष्ठन्ति

306. KuKauM: तेनैव सहयान्ति च and ṢSS: यान्ति च

307. TS: तेन तिष्ठेन तिष्ठेत तेनैव सह तिष्ठति।

308. All MSs: तन्मनत्वे; KuKauM ख्: उन्मेनत्वे 309. All MSs: यदा

310. क्, ख्, ग्, ज्: युक्तौ; TS: युक्ताः; KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS: युक्तः

311. KuKauM ङ्: मन 312. क्: –मुदाहृतम्; KMT: शून्यो मनं उदाहृतः; ṢSS: शून्यं मन उदाहृतम्; TS: शून्यो मन उदाहृतः। 313. KuKauM घ्: राजगृह; M → N. See above, 3/49a. 314. ज्: उन्मनत्वं; KuKauM ग्: उन्मनात्व; ङ्: उत्मत्वेन

315. KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS: प्रिये 316. TS: सर्वतं. M → N.

317. KuKauM ङ्: –चक्रं 318. All MSs: तस्याश्रम–; क्, च्: –विलंवेयेत्; all other MSs: –विलंवयेत्; KuKauM: वश्याग्रे (ङ्: वस्याग्रे) ह्यचलं (ख् ग्: ह्यवलं; ङ्: ह्येवलं) च (ख् ग् ङ्: व) यत् (ख् घ् ङ्: येत्); ṢSS: तस्याग्रे ह्यवलम्बयेत्

319. KuKauM, KMT, ṢSS and TS: पर्वताग्रं

320. KuKauM, KMT, ṢSS and TS: स्मृतं तेन (TS: तन्त्रे) पर्यायेण सुरार्चिते (KuKauM ग्: सुरार्थिते) 321. क्: चतुर्थ्यंस्वं; ख्, ग्, ङ्: चतुर्थेप्वं; ज्: चतुर्थ्यप्वं

322. KuKauM, KMT, TS and ṢSS: भवेद् देवि

323. KuKauM, KMT and TS: अंबिकाया. The genitive appears to have replaced the required instrumental. See above, note to 10/47d.

324. TS and all MSs: –युक्ता; KuKauM ख् घ्: –युक्ता

325. KuKauM: मदनं; TS: मटनं 326. KuKauM: पुंगलात्मकम् (ङ्: पुद्गालात्मकं); TS and all MSs: युगलस्य तु; KMT: पुद्गलात्मकम्; ṢSS: पुंगलात्मकम्

327. KuKauM: चतुष्पथे (ख्, ग्, ङ्: चतुःपथेन)

328. M → N. KMT and ṢSS: चतुष्कं तेन चाख्यातं; TS: चतुष्कं तेन आख्यातं; KuKauM ख्: आख्यातं; ग्: चाख्यातं; ङ्: षाखातं

329. M → N. KuKauM: पर्वमेतद् (ङ्: पर्व्व–) वरानने; ṢSS: प्रथमं (क् ख्: –मे) तत् तव (क् ख्: तवं) प्रिये 330. ṢSS: एवं; TS: पथ 331. KuKauM all MSs except ख् ग् घ् ङ्: नाडीरूपं 332. All MSs: चक्रं 333. KuKauM: मित्राद्यं तु
(ख्: त्र) कुलेश्वरि; All MSs and KMT: इडाद्या; TS: मिडाद्यं

334. TS: यन् महेश्वरि (ग्: यत्म–); KMT: कुलेश्वरि; ṢSS: कुलेश्वरि

335. KMT: त्रिपथस्थोरटेन्; KuKauM: त्रिपथस्थो ह्यटेन्नित्यं (ग्: हृदेन्नित्यं; घ्: ह्यटैन्नित्यं; ङ्: हृतेनित्यं); ṢSS: त्रिपथस्थो ह्यटेन्; TS: त्रिपथस्थमटे

336. All MSs: –रागतिः; KuKauM: कुरुते (ख्: कुरुत) गतिरागतिम् (ग् घ् ङ्: गतिरागति); ṢSS: गतिरागतम्. गत्यागतिम् or गतिमागतिम् would be correct. One wonders whether to emend to the latter option. I have not done so because the reading is not only confirmed by all the MSs but also by the TS. Moreover, there are several examples of this peculiar compound in this text (see 33/177b, 57/54a, 59/41d, 86c, 61/100d, 63/72b and 66/60b). Again, there are several examples of the insertion of the letter 'r' between members of a compound in this way (see above, 3/22a).

337. क्: त्रिपथं; all other MSs except ख्: –पथं; all MSs: –भावस्थं; KuKauM: एष (ङ्: पय) स्थानेकभावस्थं (ख्, घ्: स्थाने षभावस्थं; ङ्: स्माने न भावस्थं); KMT: त्रिपथस्थैकभावस्थो; ṢSS: एष स्थं एष भावस्थं; TS: त्रिपथमेकभावस्थं

338. च्, छ्: मि–; KuKauM घ्: –ते; ṢSS: –ते 339. KuKauM: ग्राम

340. KuKauM: प्रोक्तमात्मा (ग्: प्रोक्तं मात्मा ?म्) देहम्; KMT: देहं

341. I have chosen to put this line drawn from the KMT and ṢSS into the body of the text and the corresponding line from the MSs of our text here in the notes because the former makes good sense and the latter does not. This reads: षट्प्रकारं भवेद् ग्रामं (ख्, ङ्: भ्रासं; छ्, ज्: भ्रामं) आद्यग्रामं तु गोलकम्।; TS: यामं (ग्: स्रामं) देहमिति प्रोक्तं मात्मायामपि (ग्: मात्मा ग्रामपि) न स्मृतः।

342. KuKauM and KMT: आलयः; TS: आलय 343. TS सर्वतत्वानां

344. KuKauM: –समाश्रयः (घ्: सुखेदुःखसमाश्रयः; ङ्: सुखे दुःखे समाश्रयः); KMT and TS: –परः; ṢSS: –समाश्रयः

345. KuKauM: ह्यवजर्धं (ख्: ह्यध ऊर्धं; ग्: ह्यध ऊर्द्धं; घ्: ह्यव ऊर्द्ध; ङ्: ह्यव ऊर्द्धे); ṢSS: ह्यध ऊर्ध्वं; All MSs: पथमेतत् स्वरूपं. This emendation is based on the reading in the KuKauM, KMT and the ṢSS.

346. KuKauM: रथाधारो (ग्: रषाधारो; ङ्: –धार)

347. KuKauM क्: तेनख्या; घ्: तेनरस्या; ङ्: नास्ति

348. All MSs: ह्यात्मनस्य; KMT: आत्मनश्च; TS: ब्रह्माख्या चात्मनस्य

349. KuKauM: ब्रह्मा (ङ्: ब्रह्म) विन्द्या (ग्, ङ्: विद्या) आत्मनश्चयैः; ṢSS: आत्मनश्च वै

350. घ्, च्, छ्: अटं. M → N. 351. KuKauM: तटंती (ख्: पर्यटंती; ग्: पर्यतटी)
समाख्यातं सिद्धिं (ङ्: सिद्धि) सिद्धोद्धारं (ख्, ग्: सिद्धो; ङ्: सिद्धौद्वारो) निगद्यते (ङ्: दिगद्यते)।; KMT: सिन्धूच्चारं;
TS: सिद्धाश्चारं; ṢSS: सिद्धाचारं

352. KuKauM: दुःखातीतं (ङ्: –तीटं); KMT: दुःखान्ते तु; ṢSS: दुःखातत्त्व (क्, ख्: दुःखा–)

353. घ् च्, छ्: अटमु–; KuKauM: लयातीतं (ङ्: लयाख्यातं) तटं चोदधिसंज्ञिकम् (ख्, ग्: तट चोदधि–; घ्: –चोदथि–; ग्: –संत्विकं; ङ्: संज्ञकं); ṢSS: तटं (ख्: तटस्–) तूदधिसंज्ञितम्; TS: –तं

354. All MSs except क्, झ्, ञ्: –का

355. KMT: वाचान्ते व्यापिनं देवं; TS: चारान्ते व्यापिनं (ग्: –न) देवं; KuKauM and ṢSS:
वाचा दिव्यायनं देवं 356. KuKauM, KMT, TS and ṢSS: शिवं

357. All MSs: –णः 358. See above, note to 3/15d.

359. KuKauM, KMT, TS and ṢSS: तत्र चर्या प्रकाशिता

360. ङ्: नदमे. The root नद्, is normally 1P, is treated here as ātmanepadī.
361. KuKauM: चानुदारा (ख् ग्: वातुदारा; ङ्: चातुराना) सा; KMT: चान्तराधारा; ṢSS:
चाण्डधारा सा; TS: अणु आधारा (ग्: आ * रा) 362. KuKauM घ्: विडलिनी (?)
363. TS: सा (ग्: षा) 364. छ्: यागरूपा; KuKauM: अद्यभूता (ख्, ग्: ओघभूता; ङ्: जुप्यभूता); KMT, TS: ओघभूता; ṢSS: घटभूता
365. KuKauM: व्योमान्ते 366. KuKauM ख्: महते; ङ्: वहले
367. ṢSS: व्योमान्ते (क्, ख्: –माते) वसते सदा
368. KuKauM: संगमे; TS: संगमे (ग्: –मं). M → N.
369. KuKauM: परमया (ख्, ङ्: परया) युक्तम्
370. KMT: उन्मनायाः प्रकीर्तितम्; KuKauM: उन्मन्यन्ते (ङ्: उन्मन्येते) प्रकीर्तितम्; ṢSS:
युक्तमुन्मन्यास्तु प्रकीर्तितम्; TS: उन्मनायां (ग्: उन्म *?या) प्रकाशितम् 371. All MSs except झ्, ञ्: ते; TS: सङ्गमं तु. Cf. 14/52a. As happens here, in many cases deviant grammar is the result of an incomplete transmission of the text from its original source.
372. All MSs: नदीतीरमुदाहृतम्; KuKauM: तद्या (ख्, ग्: तद्योग; ङ्: तदद्या) समुदाहृतम्;
KMT and TS: नदी तु समुदाहृता 373. TS, KMT, KuKauM and ṢSS: तीरं तु
374. TS and MSs क्, ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: –वापिन्या; KuKauM ङ्: समचायिन्यादिश्चैया
375. KMT: विभ्वीया सा परा कला; KuKauM and ṢSS: विश्वीया परमा कला; TS: विन्धीया
सा परा कला या परमा कला 376. KuKauM, KMT, TS and ṢSS: तदातीतो
भवेद् 377. KuKauM, ṢSS: व्योमो 378. KuKauM, KMT, TS and ṢSS:
नद्यास्तीरमुदाहृतम् 379. घ्, च्, छ्: एवं–
380. छ्: वृक्ष. See above, note to 6/10b.
381. All MSs except ख्, ङ्, झ्, ञ्: शक्ति
382. घ्, च्, छ्: पदे; all other MSs: परे
383. KuKauM, KMT, TS and ṢSS: एकवृक्षं समाख्यातमेका शक्तिरिहोच्यते
384. क्: –मिंहि–. 'M' has been inserted for the metre. See above, note to 3/21b. 385. KMT: वृक्षमिन्द्रियमाख्यातं वृक्षं शक्तिरिति स्मृता।; KuKauM and ṢSS: वृक्षमीदृशमाख्यातं
व्यापिका शक्तिरिष्यते।; TS: वृकाणीन्द्रियाण्यैवोक्ता वृकशक्तिरिति स्मृता।
386. KuKauM, KMT, TS and ṢSS: क्षयं गता परे व्योम्नि
387. KuKauM: अनन्तकेभिरामये (ख् ग्: अनन्तके निरामये; ङ्: अनन्तं कोटिरामये)
388. KuKauM, KMT, ṢSS and TS: देवि
389. KuKauM ग् ङ्: प्रोक्तं मेक–; घ्: प्रोक्ता–; ṢSS: प्रोक्तो मेरुवृक्षं. See above, note to 6/10b. 390. KuKauM: सुपर्ययात् (ख् ग्: तु पर्ययात्); KMT: एकवृक्षस्तु चर्यया; ṢSS: सुपर्ययात्; TS:
प्रोक्तामेकवृक्षं तु पर्यया
391. ज्: एवमेवं; all other MSs: एवमेव; KuKauM ङ्: एकेव; ṢSS: एकमेवं; TS: एक एव.
392. क्: वरं 393. क्, ङ्: लिङ्गधारां; all other MSs: लिंगं धारा
394. KMT: विभुं प्रिये; KuKauM, ṢSS: लिंगाकारं भुवि प्रिये; TS: परं प्रिये
395. क्: पर्यवेत; घ्, छ्: पर्वटेत; च्: पर्यतेत; KuKauM, KMT: पर्यटे तु
396. TS: दिवाप्राय (ग्: –त्राव) 397. All MSs: एकं–; KMT: एकलिङ्गं समाख्यातं;
KuKauM, ṢSS: एकलिङ्गमिति ख्यातं; TS: एकलिङ्गगति ख्याता
398. All MSs: दंडं. This emendation agrees with the readings in the KuKauM, KMT and the ṢSS.
399. KuKauM, KMT, TS and ṢSS: कथयामि ते 400. All MSs: सस्वरं; TS: शरं. This emendation agrees with the readings in the KuKauM, KMT and the ṢSS.

401. KMT: पद्मं वै अष्टपत्रकम्; KuKauM and ṢSS: पद्मं चैवाष्टपत्रकम्; TS: पद्मं तत्राष्टपत्रकम् 402. All MSs: आरंभेत; ख्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: मुखं तं तु; all other MSs: मुखंतनु; KuKauM, KMT, TS and ṢSS: देवेशि. This emendation agrees with the readings in the KuKauM, KMT and the ṢSS.

403. छ्, ज्: विकाशं–; छ्: रविरस्मयः; all other MSs: विकासं रविरश्मयः; KuKauM: विकसेन्द्रे (घ्: विकसैद्रे; ङ्: –सेन्दे) विसंयुते (ख् ग् घ् ङ्: विसंयुतं); KMT: विकाशे. This emendation agrees with the reading in the TS. 404. ज्: सव्यते

405. छ्, ज्: पुंगले. KMT: पुद्गला; KuKauM and ṢSS: पुद्गला; TS: मुद्गला

406. All MSs: लीनो; TS: लीभिः 407. छ्, ज्: सरुजं; all other MSs: सरूजं

408. KuKauM: –यात्मिकम् 409. TS: चरते

410. KuKauM: हंसाख्ये (ङ्: हंसाख्यें); ṢSS and TS: हंसाख्या

411. All other sources: शक्तिराद्या412. KuKauM ख्: सतोन्मनी

413. क्, ख्, ङ्, ज्: दण्ड; all other MSs: दंडं; KuKauM: तत्राण्ड (ख् ग्: तद्भांड; ङ्: तत् संड); KMT: तं सण्डं; ṢSS: तत् षण्डं; TS: षण्डं तं

414. क्: शास्वे; KuKauM: देवि (ख् घ्: देवं); TS: तन्त्रे

415. घ्, छ्: –कसमतो भवेत्; च्: क्षेत्राष्टकम्सुचितं; KMT and ṢSS: क्षेत्राणि; KuKauM, TS, ṢSS: क्षेत्रं तु कथयामि ते 416. छ्: क्षत्रं 417. TS: प्रोक्तं

418. क्, ख्, ग्, ङ्: क्षत्रश्चपते; च्: क्ष–; ज्: क्षेत्रज्ञश्चपते

419. KuKauM: क्षेत्रस्थो ह्यटते (ग्: ह्यठते; ङ्: घटते) नित्यं; KMT क्षेत्रज्ञो अटते नित्यं; ṢSS: क्षेत्रज्ञो ह्यटते नित्यं; TS: क्षेत्रज्ञस्वरते नित्यं

420. All MSs: –कमतिःस्थितः. This emendation agrees with the reading in the other sources. 421. KuKauM ग्: तेनेद

422. KuKauM, KMT, ṢSS and TS: कथितं देवि

423. क्, च्: क्षत्रा–; all MSs: –कमसूचितम्; KuKauM: क्षेत्राष्टकपरिभ्रमम् (ख्: कणेस्त्राष्टंक–); ṢSS: क्षेत्राष्टकपथि भ्रमम्; TS: क्षेत्राष्टकस्वयंभुना 424. N → M. 425. ṢSS: भवे

426. KuKauM, KMT and TS: भवेत् क्षेत्राः क्षेत्राः. N → M.

427. KMT, ṢSS and TS: पीठा 428. KuKauM: पीठामुदाहृताः (ख्, ग्: ते पीठा समुदाहृताः; ङ्: –हृता; घ्: –दाः); KMT, TS and ṢSS: उदाहृताः

429. M → N. KMT: –संज्ञा तु; KuKauM, ṢSS: –संज्ञास्तु; KuKauM ग्: नामपुर्याय–; ङ्: नामपर्याप–; TS: नामपर्यायभिन्नास्तु

430. क्, ङ्, च्: देव्या; KuKauM, KMT, TS and ṢSS: शास्त्रे

431. TS: प्रयागा. This and the other place names listed in this and the following verses are almost all treated as neuter, as usually happens in a list. But cf. 14/32cd-33 and 16/3-4 where they are mostly all feminine.

432. ṢSS: –संज्ञं; TS: –संस्था 433. KuKauM: गुरुणा

434. घ्, च्, छ्: कोल–; KMT: कोलागिर्यं; TS: कोलगिर्यां; KuKauM and ṢSS: कोल्लाशैलं

435. क्: रू; ज्: रु 436. KuKauM, KMT, TS and ṢSS: भीमनादं

437. KuKauM: –कम्; KMT: च–; ṢSS: तालुगम्

438. KuKauM ङ्: –ख्यां; TS: जयन्त्यां तु 439. क्: –दाख्य

440. च्: –स्त्रं; TS: एकाम्रकं; KuKauM: एकाग्रं

441. KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS: –मध्ये तु; TS: शक्तिमध्ये 442. च्, छ्: –व्या

443. KMT: विदितात्मकैः; KuKauM, ṢSS: तत्ववेदिभिः; TS: विदितात्मनाम्

444. ख्: गुणारुवक्त्रंगतं; ङ्: गुणारुवक्त्रंगत; झ्: शारुवक्त्रं; all other MSs: गुरुवक्त्रं–; KuKauM क्, ङ्: –वस्त्रागतं 445. ङ्: –ष; KuKauM: –वर्गं

446. च्: –स्तमं; KMT: तु चाष्टमम् 447. च्: एत–. N → M.

448. KuKauM, ṢSS: स्थानान्येतानि चोक्तानि. The reading in the KMT supports the reading here. Although the redactor of the ṢSS has managed to correct the Sanskrit here, he has not been able to remedy the irregular concord this brings about. 449. ङ्: अधातो; KMT and ṢSS: अध्यात्मं

450. छ्, ज्: पुङ्गला–; KMT and all other MSs: –श्रिता:; KuKauM: पुंगलाश्रित: (ख्: पुंगला शृणु; ग्: पुङ्गला स्मृत:; ङ्: पुजला स्मृत:); ṢSS: पुद्गलास्थिता:. This emendation agrees with the reading in the TS. According to Monier-Williams the first component of this compound can be spelt in three ways, namely: पुङ्गल–, पुड्गल– and पुद्गल–. I have standardized the third one of these spellings throughout the text.

451. KuKauM ङ्: अ तटे 452. All MSs: येषु; KuKauM, KMT, TS and ṢSS: येन 453. TS: हृच्चक्रश्च

454. KuKauM: हृचक्रस्थश्मशानत: (ग्: हृच्चक्रस्थ स्मशानत:; घ्: हृत्चक्रंस्थन्म्यमनन:; ङ्: हृच्चहृस्थास्मसादन:)

455. छ्: –न; KuKauM: देव (ख्, ग् : यावद्देव) न विन्दन्ति (ग्: विदंति; ङ्: विन्दन्ति); TS: सर्वदेवमयं; KMT: विन्देच्च; ṢSS: –देव न विन्दन्ति

456. KMT: पीठमध्यात्मिकं प्रिये; KuKauM: पीठान्याध्यात्मिके (ङ्: –ध्यात्मिको) प्रिये; ṢSS: पीठान्यध्यात्मिकान् (क्, ख्: –का) प्रिये; TS: पिण्डं सर्वयोगिनिसंमतम्

457. TS 15/72-81 adds: अध्युष्टयोगपीठेषु संस्थितं (ग्: –त) सिद्धिकौलिकम्।
अन्यदेतन्महादेवि सद्य:प्रत्ययकारक: (ग्: सद्य–)। कुलूत्तमोड्डियानं च एरुडी पुलिवल्लभम्।
तान्येव तु समस्तानि (ग्: समन्तानि) स्वदेहे संस्थितानि तु।
अर्द्धमात्रा तु या प्रोक्ता सर्व्वीर्यप्रकाशनी।
एवं कूटस्वरूपेण उपचरति (ग्: उपचर्यति) सर्वश: (ग्: –स:)।
तास्तु कूटप्रभावेन विचेष्टन्ति च सर्वदा।
स्वेच्छानुगतिचारिण्य: (ग्: –तुगति– –यस्) समर्था: सर्वकर्मसु।
याश्च देव्य: कुलोद्भूता ब्रह्मविट्क्षेत्रशूद्रजा:।
पश्यते नात्र सन्देहो विभिन्ना: (ग्: –न्ना) सर्वत: स्थिता: (ग्: –ता)। अवश्यं पश्यते योगी तत्कूटस्य प्रभावत:।
कथयन्ति स्वविज्ञानं तत्कूटेनोपबृंहिते।
उत्पतेद् गगनांभोगान् खेचरै: सह साधक:।
तत् पतित्वं भवेद् देवि स्वच्छन्दगतिगोचर:।
क्रीडयेद् भुवनाद् (ग्: –नां) भुवनं तत्कूटस्य प्रभावत:।
स्वच्छन्दगतिमार्गेण विज्ञानेन सुरेश्वरि।
यावद् एतन्न विन्दन्ति पीठांश्चाध्यात्मगा (ग्: श्चाद्) प्रिये।
तावत् (ग्: तावन्) तस्य कुत: (ग्: कुतस्) सिद्धिरटितेऽ पि जगत्त्रये।
बहिरन्तरभावं तु अन्तरं (ग्: –र) वहिरङ्गयो:।
ज्ञात्वैवं मुच्यते पाशै: खेचरीणां समो भवेत्।
अन्तरङ्गे स्थिता देव्यो ता (ग्: त) देव्यो बहिरङ्गगा:।

458. All MSs except क्, झ्: सिद्धि: रटितेपि; KuKauM: सिद्धिरटतोपि (ग्: सिद्धिरणे तापि)

459. KMT –त्रयम्; KuKauM ग् घ् ङ्: जगत्रये

460. ङ्: –व; ṢSS: –वे; KuKauM: –भावेन (ङ्: –भावे)

461. छ्: अन्तररं वदिरङ्गयो:; ज्: अपरंबहिरंगयो:; KuKauM: दुस्तरं (ख्, ग्, ङ्: दुत्तरं; घ्: दुतर) बहिरंगयो:; ṢSS: न नान्तरङ्गबहिरङ्गयो:

462. KuKauM: लोकप्रवृतिहेत्वर्थं (ख्: लोके–; ग्: लोकप्रवृत्तिहेत्वर्थं; ङ्: लोकवृत्तिहि हेत्वर्थं); KMT, TS and ṢSS: लोकप्रवृत्तिहेत्वर्थे (ṢSS: –र्थं)

463. N → M. 464. KMT: प्रकीर्तिता:

465. TS: –रंगे; ङ्: –ग; KuKauM ग्: अन्तरङ्ग 466. TS: पदा

467. Cf. 14/54b. KuKauM and ṢSS: वीक्ष्यते; TS: शुद्धः पश्यते

468. TS: न मया 469. All MSs except क्, ग्, झ्, ञ्: प्रियः;
KuKauM, KMT, ṢSS and TS: प्रिये 470. All MSs: च प्रति

471. ङ्: –वाह्य तु; all other MSs: वाह्ये तु; KuKauM: बाह्यन्तः (ख्, ग्, घ्: वाह्यन्त; ङ्: वाह्यंत). This emendation agrees with the reading in TS.

472. ख्, ङ्: भग–; च्: –लयः; TS: भगस्तयः

473. छ्, ज्: न; KuKauM क्, घ्: मेलमं च; ख्: मेलनं च; ङ्: मेलसं च

474. KuKauM ङ्: प्रयंच्छन्ति 475. TS: प्ररू (ग्: चरू); KuKauM: चरुर् (ङ्: तरुर्)

476. All MSs: वापाशवीविधिः; KuKauM: वापशुवं (ङ्: वापशुवं) विविः (ख्: विधिः; ग्: ?; घ्: विधिः; ङ्: विध्हिः); KMT: वापाशवीं विधिं; TS: पायासवं (ग्: वापासकं) प्रिये (ग्: वपिं); ṢSS: वा पाशवं विधिः

477. TS –य; KuKauM क्, ख्, घ्: –दाय

478. KuKauM ङ्: प्रयच्चन्ति 479. All MSs: स्वस्थं

480. All other sources: कथयन्त्यपि 481. क्: शुशुदे–; all other MSs: –नान्तरभावेन KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS: अशुद्धेन तु भावेन. This emendation agrees with the reading in the TS. 482. ङ्: –टत्; KuKauM ङ्: पर्यटे

483. All MSs except TS and ख्: पृथिवी

484. क्, ङ्: व्यदि; ख्: यदिः; all other MSs except झ्, ञ्: व्यदिः

485. KuKauM क्: तत् तस्य; घ् ङ्: त तस्य 486. KuKauM घ्: दर्शन

487. KMT and TS: देवि; KuKauM and ṢSS: देव्यो

488. All MSs: ददते; KuKauM, ṢSS: यच्छन्ति. This emendation agrees with the reading in the TS.

489. All MSs: रुद्रंते नमया. The reading in the KuKauM and ṢSS agrees with the emendation.

490. All MSs: पश्येति; KuKauM: पश्यन्नपि (ख्: पश्यतपि; ग्: पश्यंतिपि?) च (ख्, ग्, घ्: व) देवेशि; TS: पश्यन्तपि च देवेशि

491. KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS: पश्यन्नपि च देवेशि पश्यन्तोऽ पि न पश्यति। TS: पश्यति

492. ग्, घ्, च्, छ्: स– 493. च्: देव्या. The nominative has replaced the accusative here. KuKauM: संकीर्णं (ख्: संकीर्ण; ङ्: संकीर्ण्णं) लक्ष्यते (ख् ग् घ्: लक्षते) ज्योति (ङ्:
ष्वेति); ṢSS: संकीर्णं लक्षते व्योम्नि 494. ङ्: –तु

495. TS and KMT: मिश्रा (TS: मिश्रो) ज्ञातुं न शक्यते; KuKauM: अज्ञानं (ग् ङ्: आज्ञानं) च न शस्यते (ख्: शक्यते; ग्: शव्यते; घ्: शस्त्रते?; ङ्: शक्त्यते); ṢSS: अज्ञातं च न शक्यते

496. KMT: प्रभावोऽ स्याः; KuKauM अभावोऽ यं (ग्: अभावोप; घ्: –य; ङ्: आभावोयस्य); TS: प्रभावैष; ṢSS अभावाय. I have chosen to assume that DS has occurred here as it does in the TS, the original source.

497. क्: –मुद्दिष्टा ग्: समुद्दिष्टां; KuKauM ङ्: * मुदिष्ठो

498. KuKauM, KMT, TS and ṢSS विना तासामनुग्रहात्

499. KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS: ग्रामे ग्रामे तथारण्ये (KuKauM ग्: –रन्ये); TS: यामे ग्रामे तथारण्ये

500. KuKauM: नगरे नगरे पुरे; KMT and ṢSS: चत्वरे पुरे; TS: नगरे चत्वरे पुरे

501. KuKauM घ्: खेचंटके; ङ्: खेटकं

502. KuKauM ङ्: संदेहे; TS: सन्देहे (ग्: संदोहे)

503. KMT and ख्, ङ्: पीठ; च्: * * (?)

504. TS: वनेथवा (ग्: वने तथा) 505. All MSs: उद्याने; च्: वोपनने; छ्: चोपवने; other MSs: वोपवने

506. All MSs: वा; KMT KuKauM and ṢSS: उद्यानोपवने चैव. This emendation agrees with the reading in the TS.

507. KuKauM: पूर्वमुक्तस्तथैव (ग्, घ्, ङ्: पूर्वमुक्तो तथैव) च; KMT and ṢSS: पूर्वम् उक्ते तथैव च; TS: पूर्वमुक्तैस्तथैव च 508. All MSs: –ऽ पि जायन्ते

509. KuKauM: जातरूपा (घ्: ज्योत–; ङ्: –रूपां); TS: ज्ञातगर्भा (ग्: * * ?गर्भा); ṢSS: जात–

510. च्: भगस्तय:; KuKauM घ्: गसस्तव:; ङ्: गमस्तया

511. All MSs: पार्थिवे वारुणे; KuKauM: पार्थिवा (ङ्: अर्थिवा) चरणे (ङ्: वरणे); KMT: पार्थिवाचरणे; TS: पार्थिवावरणा (ग्: पार्थिवा * * *?). This emendation agrees with the reading in the ṢSS.

512. KuKauM: प्रोक्तम् (ग्: प्रोक्ता); KMT and ṢSS: प्रोक्ता; TS प्रोक्ता (ग्: ?)

513. ख्, ङ्: आप:स्तेजे तथा–; ग्: आप:–; घ्: अप–; च्, छ्: अपतेजेतथानिले; ज्: आप: तेजेतथानिले; KuKauM: अप्तेजा (ङ्: आप्तेता) वायु संभवेत्; ṢSS: अप्तेजोवायुसंभवे (ख्: अप्तेजेनावायु–); TS: आपे (ग्: ?) तेजो (ग्: ?) तथानिले (ग्: ?). This emendation agrees with the reading in the KMT. The required locative of the first two words in this pāda has became a nominative. KMT: आपे तेजे तथानिले. This is the reading of the critical edition, which although more correct than our text, is still imperfect. However, this reading is found in only two manuscripts; all the others testify to the reading found here with some minor variants. The KuKauM and ṢSS read: आपतेजोवायुसंभवे, but this may well be a correction of the faulty source.

514. This form of address usually refers to the goddess. Cf. 14/99c.

515. All MSs: तेषां; ṢSS क् ख्: तासु 516. छ्: –यां

517. MS ग् is unclear in TS.

518. All MSs: –श्रमविशेषाणि; KMT and TS: पीठाश्रयविभागेन; KuKauM and ṢSS: पीठग्रामविभागेन

519. TS: उत्पद्यन्ति (ग्: * * ?द्यन्ति) 520. KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS: ह्यनेकधा

521. The word खादन– has been contracted for the metre. KuKauM: खानपानभरा (ख्: खानपान तथा; ग्: खानपाण तथा; घ्: खानपानतरा; ङ्: खानदानतरा)

522. KuKauM ङ्: क्रीडते. The root क्रीड (1P) is treated here, as elsewhere, as ātmanepadī. The reading in the KMT agrees with this one, while the regular form – क्रीडन्ति – is the reading in the ṢSS.

523. ख्, ङ्, ज्: रां–; KuKauM: जात्य–

524. KuKauM: देवि (ङ्: देवी); KMT, ṢSS and TS: देवि

525. KuKauM and MSs घ्, च्, छ्: प्रोक्ता; ṢSS क् ख्: प्रोक्ता

526. ङ्: पीथा:; all other MSs except झ्: पीठा:; KuKauM: पीठ (ख्: पीप). N → M.

527. KuKauM घ्: वाह्यगुह्योव (?) 528. KuKauM ख् ग्: –गृह. M → N. See above, 3/49a.

529. घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: वरुणीं; all other MSs: वरुणा; KuKauM क्: चरुणा; ख् ग् घ् ङ्: वरुणा; TS: वरुणं (ग्: –ण). For the alternative form of this place name, i. e. वरणा cf. 14/32c and 16/3a. Four MSs of the KMT read वरणा. ṢSS reads वरुणा. The commentary on the ṢSS confirms that वाराणसी is the place indicated here. We would expect therefore वरणा to be the correct form but as both forms appear in this and other texts, I have not emended the reading.

530. क्, ङ् झ्, ञ्: मुण्डिनी; all other MSs: मुण्डिनीं; KuKauM क्: शौण्डिकं; ख् ग् घ् ङ्: सौण्डिकं; KMT: सौण्डिकी. The MSs of the KMT contain several variants. Two MSs read सौण्डिनीम्; ṢSS: सौण्डिकं; TS सोण्डिके. Cf. below 16/13d where the form is regular i. e. शुण्डिनी. But in 16/6 below only one MS testifies to this reading, the rest read रण्डिनी except one that reads मुण्डिणी. However, the testimonies of the KMT and the ṢSS indicate that the original reading corresponds to the emended one, or a close variant. It is hard to decide whether the reading मुण्डिनी is a copyist's error. As all the MSs of the KuKh are very closely related, this is not impossible. It is also possible that the error was committed by the redactor of the text. In which case, we should accept this to be the original reading in the KuKh and so it should not be emended. Similar considerations would apply to the reading रण्डिनी below in 16/6 if that passage were drawn from another source. But this may well not be the case and, anyway, if such a source exists, it has not been traced. In that case, therefore, the reading has been tentatively preserved. The reading, शुण्डिनी at 16/13d, supported by all the MSs, encourages the editor to emend the text here.

531. KuKauM घ् ङ्: विदु 532. च्, छ्: कोल्ल–. Cf. 16/7c.

533. KMT and ṢSS: कैवर्तिकी (ṢSS कैवर्ती च) भवेत् कोल्ला; KuKauM: कैवर्ती (ख्, ग्, ङ्: कैवर्त्ती) च भवेत् (ङ्: नास्ति) कुल्ला (ग्: कौल्ला)

534. क्, ज्: खे–; ख्, ङ्: खेट्टकीं; घ्: –नी; KuKauM: अट्टहासं तु खेटकी; KMT: अट्टहासं तु खट्टकी; ṢSS: अट्टहासं–; TS: खटिकी च भवेत् कोलारजन्त्यायाट्टहासकम् (ग्: –न्त्याया * * * *?)।

535. क्, ङ्, च्: कण्डकी; KuKauM: जयन्ती कद्रुकं (ख्, ग्, ङ्: कंदुकी; घ्: कद्रुका?); KMT: जयन्ती कन्दुकी; TS: जयन्ती (ग्: ?) कन्दुकं; ṢSS: जयन्ती कण्डुकी (क्, ख्: –कीं)

536. क्: –ते; KuKauM: विन्ध्याच्चरितं (ख्, ग्: विंद्या चरितं; घ्: चिन्याचरितं; ङ्: चिच्याचरितं)

537. ङ्: रजका

538. KuKauM: गृहम्; KMT: विद्याच्चरित्रं रजकीगृहम्; ṢSS: विद्याच्चरित्रं (क्: विंधाच्–; ख्: विद्या) रजकीगृहम्; TS: विन्ध्याच्चरित्रं च्छिप्यर्क गृहम्

539. KMT and ṢSS: एकाम्रकं; KuKauM: एकाग्रकं (ख्, ग्: एकाम्रकं)

540. All MSs: –च्छिंपी; KuKauM: भवेच्छिपा (ख्: भवेच्छिप्या; ग्: भवेछिपा)। शिल्पिनी has been contracted to शिल्पी for the metre. KMT: छिप्पी; MS E: छिंपि; MSs DFHJK: छिप्या; MS T: छिप्यी; KuKauM: छिपा; TS : एकाम्बुकं तु कैवर्त्ती 541. छ्: देवी–

542. ख्: र; घ्, छ्: तु; KMT: कोटाख्येति च; TS: कोट्याख्येति च; ṢSS: कोटाख्यं

543. Cf. above 16/12d. This is also the name of this Yoginī according to the YKh 25/84b. KuKauM: कोटाख्यं कौशिकी (ख्: कौसिकी; ङ्: कौशिका) गृहम्; KMT: कोषटी; TS: कौसटी; ṢSS: कोषटी गृहम्

544. च्, छ्: ज्ञातव्या; all other MSs except घ्, झ्: ज्ञातव्यां–. This line corresponds to ṢSS 49/131. There is an extra section after 94ab in KuKauM 7/145-152ab, KMT 25/109cd-116 and ṢSS 49/132cd-139. This extra section is missing in the TS and so is evidently an addition made to the KMT that has carried over to the KuKauM and the ṢSS. It is worth noting that this passage is missing in the KuKh as well. Although the extra section can be identified as a unit which may taken to be an indication that it is an interpolation, one wonders whether it is not more likely the redactor of the KuKh had both the KMT and the TS in front of him. The presence of an extra line after KuKh 14/97 found in all the sources except the KuKh and the TS is a further indication that the redactor of the KuKh followed the TS, at least with regard to the structure of the text. However, the readings appear to be closer to the KMT than the TS. KMT, ṢSS, TS: ज्ञातव्यं –

545. क्, ङ्, च्, झ्: भक्ति–; KuKauM: भुक्तिमुक्तिफलप्रदम् (ङ्: मुक्ति (नास्ति) भुक्तिफलं प्रदं); KMT and ṢSS: –फलप्रदम्; TS: भुक्तिमुक्तिफलार्थिनाम्. KMT and TS add: बाह्यतः कथिता ह्येवं पीठाः क्षेत्रास्तु सुव्रते। In the ṢSS we find a corrected version of this line: बाह्यतः कथितान्येवं

546. छ्: पर्याटेदेयु; KuKauM: पर्यटे (ङ्: पर्यते) देह

547. ङ्: स्थानैषु; KuKauM ङ्: संस्थाने; ṢSS: पर्यटेद् देहस्थानेषु; TS: पर्यटेयेषु स्थानेषु

548. TS: –या; KuKauM ख्, ग्, ङ्: –नीया; घ्: पूजनावा

549. क्: –भोज्यो–; ज्: –भोज्यान्ने–; ṢSS and KMT: भक्ष्य– –नैश्च

550. KuKauM: –मनुभिः (ख्, घ्: मनुविस्; ग्: मनुविः; ङ्: न तु विस्)

551. KuKauM ङ्: मदा 552. KuKauM ङ्: यतेषु; TS : एवं वै

553. क्: संस्थितां भाषा; all other MSs: संस्थिता भाषा; KuKauM ख्, ग्, घ्, ङ्: संस्थितोण् क्: स्वेषा; KMT : एतेषां संस्थितिस्तेषां; ṢSS : एतेषु संस्थितेष्वेषां

554. घ्, च्, छ्: अप्रमेलयः; other MSs: अप्रमेयतः; KuKauM: योगीनाम (ख्, ग्, ङ्: योगिनाम) प्रमेयदा (ख्: –यदाः; ङ्: –यदाः); KMT and ṢSS: योगिनां अप्रमेयता; TS: प्रमेयतः

555. KMT, KuKauM and ṢSS: भवन्तीह; TS: ह

556. All MSs except झ्, ञ्: –दा; KuKauM: सन्देः (ग्: संदोहा) वरधा (ख्, ग्: वरदा); TS
ग्: दास् 557. KuKauM क्, घ्: साचकस्य 558. KuKauM and MSs. क्, ङ्: –ता; ग्: तार्पिताः–

559. KuKauM ख्, ग्: देव्या; घ्, ङ्: देव्यो; TS: देव्यैः

560. KuKauM घ्: साधकस्यर्व 561. All MSs: दहन्ति; KuKauM, ṢSS: भवन्ति.
This emendation agrees with the reading in the KMT.

562. क्: ष*–; KuKauM: सण्मासा (ङ्: षट्मासा)

563. All MSs: उक्त–; KuKauM: युक्तमार्गेण (ख्, ग्: मुक्त–); ṢSS: –उक्तमार्गेण

564. ङ्: समयाव्रं–; KuKauM: समयः प्रतिपालकैः; KMT: –पालके।

+ मन्तव्यं साधकेन्द्रेण तोषयित्वा गुरुं प्रिये।; KuKauM:
कर्तव्यं साधकेन्द्रेण गुरुवक्त्रोपदेशतः (घ्: –त)।
श्रीदेव्युवाच (ङ्: श्रीदेव्यू–)
बाह्ये तु कथिता देव (ङ्: * व) खट्वांगादय आयुधम् (क्: आयुकं)।
अध्यात्मना प्रवाहेन ताश्चर्या (ग्: ताश्चया; ङ्: तश्चर्या) कथयस्व (ग्: कथयास्व) मे। श्रीभैरव उवाच; .
ṢSS: समयप्रतिपालकैः। + कर्तव्यं साधकेन्द्रेण गुरुवक्त्रोपदेशतः।

565. ङ्: –न्या; च्: –न्य; KuKauM घ् ङ्: अत्यान्यं. Before this line, manuscript च् repeats verses 14/93cd-97cd.

566. ङ्: लक्षेपात् शास्त्र–; ज्: संक्षेपात् शास्त्रवादिनां; KMT: परिभाषास्त्रवादिनाम्; KuKauM: शृणु देवि (ङ्: देवी) यथा स्थितः (ङ्: यथार्थतः); ṢSS: शृणु देवि यथा स्थितान् (क्, ख्: –ताः); TS: परिभाषां शास्त्रवेदिनाम्

567. TS: अध्यात्मकं; KuKauM: अध्यात्मिका; ṢSS: अध्यात्मिका

568. KuKauM and ṢSS: वरारोहे

569. ङ्: जानति; KMT and TS: ज्ञायन्ति

570. KuKauM and ṢSS: तथा ते कथयाम्यहम्।

571. Missing in घ्, च् and छ् up to अनुग्राह्यं वरानन । (छ्: –ने)

572. Missing in MS छ्. KMT and TS: –लोचने. Cf. 14/90b and below 14/100d. See above, note to 3/29a. This line is missing in the KuKauM and ṢSS.

573. TS ग्: –त्म; ṢSS: अध्यात्मां (क् ख्: –म)

574. All MSs: चर्या; KuKauM: व्रतचार्यास्तु (ख्: व्रतचर्यास्तु; घ्: व्रतच * * (?); ङ्: व्रतचर्यास्तु); KMT and TS: व्रतचर्या; ṢSS: व्रतचर्या

575. All MSs: साधना; KuKauM: साधकः (घ्: सा * *?); KMT and TS: तु साधनम्; ṢSS: तु साधकः. This and the following line are dependent clauses of which the relative pronouns have been dropped, thus making the syntax obscure. As I understand it, what is meant here is: यो बाह्यं व्रतं चर्यां च साधनां आध्यात्मिकरूपेण कुरुते तस्यैवं कृते भवेत् सिद्धिः।

576. This and the following two lines are missing in MS छ्

577. TS: सिद्धि 578. ज्: –देव. KMT, TS and ṢSS: सत्यं * *

579. KuKauM: सत्यं सत्यंयशस्विनि; ṢSS: यशस्विनि

580. ख्, ङ्: –ङ्ग; ṢSS ख्: खटागं 581. KuKauM घ्: कथयामि

582. TS: परिपाट्या 583. क्, ग्, घ्: वरानने; KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS: खगतीकरणं परम्; TS: यथाक्रमम्

584. घ्, च्: आपादे–; छ्: आपादेतलमूद्वान्तं; ज्: आपादेतल–; all other MSs: आपदे–

585. KuKauM ख्, ग्, ङ्: तछृणु; घ्: तत्शुन्य (?)

586. This line in MS ग् is unclear of the TS.

587. च्: शिवाद्यादौ; other MSs: द्यादौ; KuKauM: शिरसादिषु (ख्, ग्, घ्: सिर–) सर्वांगे; KMT: शिरादौ सर्वमङ्गेषु; ṢSS: शिरसादिषु सर्वाङ्गे; TS: शिरादौ (ग्: ?) सर्वअङ्गेषु (ग्: ?)

588. KMT: अङ्गप्रत्यङ्गकेष्वपि; TS: अङ्गप्रत्यङ्गजेष्वपि

589. ङ्, झ्, ञ्: खिरात; all other MSs: खेटात

590. KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS: खट्वायते तु सुश्रोणि; TS: खट्टतेयेन देवेशि

591. क्, घ्, ङ्, च्, ज्: खटकाङ्ग–; KuKauM ङ्: –गते न; KMT, TS: खट्वाङ्गी तेन; ṢSS:
–गं तेन 592. KuKauM and ṢSS: चोच्यते; TS: संस्मृतः 593. KuKauM घ्: मौनेनर्प

594. KMT: वर्तयेन्; KuKauM, TS, ṢSS: वर्तते; KMT: वर्तयेन्

595. KuKauM ग्, घ्, ङ्: सुहृदि 596. KuKauM, KMT, ṢSS and TS: गूढं परापरम्

597. क्, घ्, छ्: –विज्ञेया; ङ्: मोनिति विज्ञयो; all other MSs: विज्ञेयो; TS and KuKauM:
विज्ञेयं 598. घ्: सर्वांगम–; च्: –तं; KuKauM: सर्वभावेषु भावितः (ग् घ्: भाविनः); KMT and ṢSS:
सर्वभावेषु भाविनि; TS: सर्वशास्त्रेषु भामिनि (ग्: ?) 599. KuKauM ङ्: धर्मेण

600. ṢSS ख्: –टे 601. ख्: द्वेह; ङ्: देह; KuKauM and TS: पर्यटे देहे

602. KuKauM: वेगास्वतख्यातम् (ग्: –स्वतस्यातम्; ङ्: वेहास्ततख्यातम्); KMT, TS: वेगान्मया ख्यातं; ṢSS: वेगाच्च तत् (क्, ख्: त) ख्यातम्

603. KuKauM क्, घ्: अदनं; ṢSS क्: अदनं 604. छ्, ज्: पुंगलस्य तु.

605. घ्: डमरुं; च्: डमरुश्च; छ्: डमरुकञ्च; KuKauM क्: ममरुं च; ख् ग्: डमरुं च; घ्: –रु च; ङ्:
ममकं च; TS: च?रुकं 606. KuKauM ग्: –क्षामि; ṢSS: संप्रवक्ष्यामि

607. क्: –वदन–; KuKauM: प्रदायात्स्वा (ख्, ग्, घ्, ङ्: प्रदायाश्च) उदाहृतम्; KMT and ṢSS: यथा शास्त्रे उदाहृतम् 608. All MSs: अमाना

609. KuKauM: अनामा च परा; KMT and TS: अमा नाम परा. This emendation agrees with the reading in the ṢSS.

610. ङ्: * मृतवाहिनी; KuKauM ग्: च मूलवाहिनी; TS: यामृतवाहिनी

611. All MSs: संचिन्तयेत्; KuKauM ख्: संचरत; घ्: मचरते. This and the following emendation agree with the readings in all the sources. But see above, note to 6/199b. 612. TS: तस्यां

613. ख्, ङ्, च्: –नावं; all other MSs except छ्, ज्: नेवं; KuKauM: राव; ṢSS: द्रावं

614. KuKauM, TS and KMT: मुञ्चन्ति

615. KuKauM क्, घ्: वुद्रुके; ख्: वुद्धके; ग्: ?

616. All MSs: यदात्मानं; KuKauM क्: विसर्गा * महात्मा च; ख्, ग्: विसर्गा च महात्मा च; ङ्: विसर्गा महोत्मान; KMT, TS: महात्मानो; ṢSS: महात्मा वै. See above, note to 3/10d.

617. क्: चरते; all other MSs: नरते

618. KMT and TS: वादयेत् कथयेति च; KuKauM and ṢSS: वादयेत् कथयेदिति

619. KMT and TS: डमरुकं स्मृतं तेन; KuKauM and ṢSS: डमरुकं कथितं तेन

620. KuKauM: अमनन्धे (ख्: अमनस्थ; ग्: अमनस्थे; घ्: अमत्घे (?); ङ्: अमनत्वं)

621. KuKauM क्: निरामिये 622. See above, note to 3/15d.

623. KMT: नाभिस्थायस्य तिष्ठेत; KuKauM and ṢSS: नाभिस्था तस्य तिष्ठन्ती; TS: ता नित्या पश्यतिष्ठेन?

624. All MSs except झ्, ञ्: –ता. अनया (मायया) or the like is implied here. This line is missing in all four sources. 625. क्: य 626. ङ्: जगं–

627. KuKauM ग्: –मेत; ङ्: पासमेत; M → N.

628. छ्: विनिदिष्टं; KuKauM ग्: दितिदिष्टं; ङ्: विनिदिष्ट

629. छ्, ज्: खड्ग; KuKauM ङ्: षद्गं 630. TS: खड्गं चैव मतः

631. क्, ङ्: अत्र; all other MSs except झ्: अस्थ; KuKauM: खस्थ (ख्: एवस्थ); ṢSS: खस्थश्; TS: खस्थस्. This emendation agrees with the reading in the KuKauM, KMT and the ṢSS.

632. ग्: छिन्नन्वि; घ्, च्, छ्: च्छिन्नन्ति; all other MSs except झ्: च्छिन्नवि; KuKauM क्, घ्: छिन्नन्ति; ख्, ग्: स्थिनन्ति; ङ्: च्छिन्नति); TS: थितोति; ṢSS: चिनत्ति

633. All MSs: पापानि 634. घ्, च्: विसर्गास्तेन; छ्: विसर्गास्तेण

635. KuKauM and ṢSS: मोहिता 636. च्: खड्गषत्रिः; छ्: खड्गवत्रिःयुता; ज्: –सृता; KuKauM and ṢSS: खड्गवच्छिन्दते; KMT: खड्गवन्निर्मला; TS: खड्गवन्निम्नगा

637. KuKauM and ṢSS: सर्वं. A connecting तत् or the like is required to complete the syntax.

638. All MSs: वेगमाद्य; KuKauM and ṢSS: खमध्ये तु. M → N. This emendation agrees with the reading in the KMT and TS.

639. KuKauM and ṢSS: कुलेश्वरि; KMT: कुलेश्वरि; TS: महेश्वरी (ग्: –रि)

640. KuKauM ख् ग्: गवा 641. क्: सायुज्यं; KuKauM क् घ्: ब्रह्ममायोष्ठं; ग्: ब्रह्मसायोर्थ; KMT: –युज्यं. Although MS क् reads सायुज्यं, which is correct, I have chosen the reading of the other manuscripts taking this to be a deviant form. Cf. 14/122a. This reading is also attested in the TS, KuKauM and the ṢSS and in three manuscripts of the KMT.

642. All MSs: खड्गं तच्; KuKauM: खड्गाति (ख्, ग्: खड्गानि; ङ्: खड्गादि); KMT: घटते; TS: खड्गंते 643. All MSs: छक्तिर्–

644. KuKauM: ख्यात (ख्: स्थात; ङ्: ख्यातं); ṢSS: ख्यातम्

645. KMT and TS: –नायिके; KuKauM: मायु (?)वस्तुरनायकम् (ख्, ङ्: मायुधा सुरनायकं; ग्: मायुवसुरनायकं; घ्: सायुवस्तुरनायक); ṢSS: –के; This line in MS ग् is unclear of the TS.

646. ङ्: एकमेक; all other MSs: एकमेका

647. ख्, ग्, ज्: पराशक्तिः–; KMT: –चक्रमण्डले; KuKauM, TS and ṢSS: –वक्त्रमण्डले

648. ṢSS: ज्येष्ठास् 649. घ्: –ज्ञानि–; other MSs: –ज्ञानी–; KuKauM: –ज्ञानी–. See above, note to 2/8a.

650. All MSs: त्रिशून्यं; KuKauM क् ख्: त्रिशूल; घ्: * * *?

651. All MSs: चयथाख्यातं 652. क्: तन–; ङ्: –णि; KuKauM and ṢSS: त्रिशक्तिरनुपूर्वशः; KMT and TS: त्रिशक्तिमनुपूर्वशः

653. KuKauM and ṢSS: स्वरूपा 654. KuKauM and ṢSS: निर्गता
655. क्, ख्, ङ्: –णा; KuKauM and ṢSS: व्योमगा
656. ṢSS: ह्यटते; All sources: प्रिये 657. M → N.
658. ṢSS: ते च 659. I have chosen not to emend as this reading is supported by the KMT and TS. Moreover, it is required by the metre.
See above, note to 6/57b. The reading in the KuKauM and ṢSS – नाम्ना – may well be an attempt to correct the original deviant नामम्. 660. ṢSS: च 661. M → N. 662. M → N. It seems that a nominative has replaced the required genitive of the first of these two words in order to preserve the metre. This reading is supported by all the sources. See above, note to 10/47d.
This line is missing in the KuKauM. 663. KMT: करणात्म–; ṢSS: कारुणात्मा–; TS:
करणात्मकं (ग्: ?) व्यवस्थितम् 664. All MSs: बोधयन्ति; KuKauM: वेधयेत् (ख्, ग्: वेधये) तु; KMT, TS: वेधते तु; ṢSS: वेधयेति 665. TS and KuKauM with MSs घ्, च्, छ्:
कारणा; all other MSs: कारणाः; KMT: कारणं 666. KuKauM, KMT, ṢSS and TS: तु 667. छ्: ना * चमाख्यातं. M → N.
668. छ्, ज्: –न 669. KuKauM, KMT, ṢSS and TS: वरानने
670. All sources and MSs agree on this irregular concord.
671. ख्, ङ्, ज्: पाशाः; ṢSS: पाशं 672. TS: छिनत्यसौ
673. KuKauM: सकला (घ्: सकंसला; ङ्: सकंला)
674. KuKauM: मन्त्राणी चोद्धती (ख्, ग्: बोधनी; ङ्: वोधती). Cf. 2/5d.
675. ख्, झ्: कन्त्रि–. TS: कर्तरूपेण 676. क्: चरन्ते
677. KuKauM and ṢSS: या 678. All MSs: क्रमत्रितय
679. See above, note to 5/27d. 680. KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS: अंगमङ्गगता देवी; TS: अङ्गप्रत्यङ्गगा देवी (ग्: –ङ्ग *?) 681. All MSs: –भस्थितम्; all sources: बहिरन्तरसंस्थिता 682. KuKauM घ्: कुराते
683. KuKauM ग्, घ्: शततं 684. ङ्: चेठा; KuKauM and ṢSS with all other MSs: चेष्टा 685. KuKauM ख्, घ्: आशने
686. घ्, च्: वलानं; छ्: वल्गनं; KuKauM क्, घ्: वलानं (?); ङ्: वलान; KMT: वल्गनं; ṢSS:
वंगनं; TS: धावने वत्साने (ग्: वल्भने) 687. TS: रोधे. M → N.
688. ज्: अंकुञ्च–. A dual number is required here. See above, note to 5/46d.
KuKauM: रोवमष्टषष्ठा (ख्, ग्: रोधं मसुसस्था; घ्: रोच (?)मषुषस्था; ङ्: रोधमपुषस्था) समाश्रिता (ग्, ङ्:
समासृता); KMT: अंकुशस्थानमाश्रितः; TS: अंकुशस्थानमाश्रिताः (ग्: –स्रिताः); ṢSS: अंकुशस्थासमाश्रिता
689. छ्: मुशलत्वे; KuKauM क्, ख्, घ्: मुशलत्वे; ग्: मुशलस्थे; ङ्: मुलत्वे
690. ख्, ग्, ज्: नादः; च्, छ्: नादे; KuKauM: स्थिता नादे (ख्: नाद)
691. छ्, ज्: –कारोर्द्धगः. DS. 692. All sources: प्रिये 693. All MSs: नीत्वा
694. छ्, ज्: चोर्द्धे; KuKauM, ṢSS and TS: चोर्ध्वं. KMT: चोर्ध्वं
695. ख्, ङ्: –शिव. M → N. 696. KMT: लक्ष्ये मनाख्यं; TS: धनुर्लक्षो अनाख्यं; ṢSS:
–लक्ष्य– 697. All MSs: तेन 698. This line is missing in the KuKauM.
699. क्, झ्: आपूर्णे; घ्, छ्: आकूर्णं; च्: आकुर्णं; all other MSs: आपूर्णं; KuKauM and ṢSS: आपूर्वं 700. All MSs: च विसर्गेण
701. All MSs: परचक्षुषा; KuKauM and ṢSS: मनसा क्षणात्. This emendation agrees with the reading in the TS and KMT.
702. क्, घ्: खपरे करणैनैव; ख्: खरे एकरणेनैव; ङ्: खर एकरणेनैव; झ्: स्वर एककरणेनैव; all other MSs: खपरे करणेनैव 703. छ्, ज्: –च

704. छ्, ज्: –मुखीं. This line is quite diferent in the other sources where instead we read करणेन फडन्तेन विसर्गस्थेन सुस्वने (KuKauM and ṢSS: विपर्यस्तेन सुव्रते)।; TS: करणेन टहान्तेन विपर्यस्तेन सुव्रते।

705. छ्, ज्: किन्तु कृत्रिमयुक्तेन; TS: ॠतुद्वयानुयुक्तेन. This reading agrees with the one in the KuKauM, KMT and the ṢSS.

706. ङ्: कांताद्रंतगतेन, all other MSs: कान्तादन्तगतेन; KuKauM ङ्: कारणान्तगतेन; KMT: काननान्तर्गतेन; TS: कान्तेनान्तगतेन. This emendation agrees with the reading in the KuKauM and ṢSS. 707. All MSs: करणे देव; KuKauM ङ्: –कारणा तेन; TS: करणेनैव. This emendation agrees with the reading in the KuKauM, KMT and the ṢSS. 708. ङ्: ज्ञया. Missing in the KMT and TS.

709. KMT and TS: परापरा; KuKauM and ṢSS: क्षुरिका तु परापरा

710. क्: –सोयोज्यं; घ्, च्, छ्: –ज्य; KuKauM, ṢSS: योज्यां; TS: –युज्यां. Cf. 14/109c.

711. All MSs: गदे पंच; ṢSS: गदायां ते; KuKauM: गण्डयस्ते (ख्: गंदयाने; ग्: गन्वेयोन; घ्: गंदयोभे; ङ्: गन्धयोक्तं); TS: गदा या 712. All sources: सुलोचने

713. KuKauM and ṢSS: ह्येषा; TS ग्: ह्येता 714. All MSs: परा

715. KuKauM: रव्र ददन्ते (ख्: रंध्रं ददस्ये; घ्: रंयंवदत्ये; ग्: रंध्रं ददत्वे; ङ्: परंरन्ध्रे ददत्ये); TS: दशने 716. All MSs: अलिपार्थिवम्; ṢSS: ददात्येवामृतं शुभम्. This emendation agrees with the reading in the TS and KMT. 717. KuKauM: गतासु; TS: गता तु; KMT and ṢSS: गतास्तु 718. KuKauM: शक्तिसस्थस्वभावेन (ख्: शक्तिस्संस्थ–; ग्: शक्तिः संस्थ–; घ्: शक्तिस्सस्थ–; ङ्: सशक्तियस्थस्व–); KMT: शक्तिः शक्तिस्थभावेन; ṢSS: शक्तिस्वभावेन; TS: शक्ति शक्तिस्थभावेन (ग्: सक्तिसक्तिस्थ–) 719. ख्: चारयते; KuKauM: आत्मात्र (ख्: आत्मानं; ग्: आत्माप्र; घ् ङ्: आत्मान) पद्यते; KMT: आत्मानं नयते; ṢSS: प्राप्यते; TS: आत्मा तु नयते. The usual causal form of the root चल् (1P) is चालयति. It is, however, sometimes ātmanepadī in common usage also, although infrequently. 720. ṢSS: यदा

721. KMT: तद्भावयोगविद्धस्तु; KuKauM and ṢSS: तद्भावयोगशुद्धस्तु; TS: तद्भावयोगसिद्धिस्तु

722. All MSs: –नादान्तराधिप; KuKauM: सदण्ड (ङ्: सदंड) चदृ (?)ज्जरेखा (ख्: दण्डवदृजुरेख; ग्: वदृजुरेख; घ्: च (?)दृज्जरेखा; ङ्: वदृजुखा) तु; KMT, TS and ṢSS: शक्तिना तु सुराधिपे. See above, note to 9/41c. 723. All MSs: दत्वा चाद्यन्तरेखा. This emendation agrees with all sources. 724. All MSs: गदा तु. TS: या (ग्: ?)

725. घ्, च्, छ्, झ्: पठमव्ययं; all other MSs: पठमच्ययं; KMT: नादान्तपदमव्ययम्. This emendation agrees with the reading in the TS, KuKauM and the ṢSS.

726. KuKauM ङ्: तेस 727. KuKauM कर्तव्यं

728. KuKauM: दण्डधारण (ङ्: दण्डाधारण); TS, KMT and ṢSS: दंडाधारेण

729. Missing in MS छ्. KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS: सुव्रते; TS: दण्डाधारेण शोभने (ग्: ?) 730. MSs घ् and छ् add सोभन 731. छ्: सरीर–; KuKauM: करीरमिति (शरीर–) (ग्: करवीरमिति; ङ्: करीरमितिवि) 732. This line is found only in MSs घ् and छ्. घ, छ: –दंडाकारं–; KuKauM घ्: –संस्थित; ङ्: मण्डलं कालसंस्थितं; TS: मण्डाकारं (ग्: * * ?कारं) व्यवस्थितम्. This emendation is suggested by the reading in the TS, KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS. मण्डलाकारसंस्थितम्

733. ख्, घ्, ङ्: यदाध्वानं; all other MSs: पदाध्वानं; KuKauM, ṢSS: तत्वाध्वा तु; KMT: अत्राध्वा तु. This emendation agrees with the reading in the TS.

734. All MSs with KuKauM, KMT, ṢSS and TS: वरारोहे. The reading in the MSs agrees with that of the source from which this passage is drawn. The redactor himself may well have forgotten to change the text here. But even assuming, as I have done, that he did simply change the gender of the vocative here, nonetheless, it does not suit the god as it does the goddess.

735. All MSs: साधनीयो. This emendation agrees with the reading in the KuKauM, KMT, TS and the ṢSS. But three MSs of the KMT have the reading साधनीयो. 736. KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS: कुलाद्या; TS: कुण्डल्या

737. घ्, च्: सर्वा–; छ्: सर्वा सुद्धा; TS ग्: –शुद्धं

738. KMT: सर्व – अध्वहृदि स्थिता; KuKauM and ṢSS: सर्वशुद्धहृदि स्थिता; TS: हृदि स्थितम् 739. क्: प्रोकं; KuKauM, ṢSS and KMT: कथितं भद्रे 740. M → N.

741. KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS: कमण्डलुरिति स्मृतः (KuKauM: स्मृतं; ṢSS: स्थितं); TS: तेनेदं कथितं भद्रे शुभास्त्रं तु कमण्डलुम्। 742. KuKauM: एतदाधार (घ्, ङ्: एत आधार); ṢSS: एते आधर; TS: एते चैवायुधा; KMT: एते तु आयुधाः 743. क्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: सुक्ष्मा; KuKauM: सूक्ष्मास्तु; TS सूक्ष्मा; ṢSS: सूक्ष्मास्तु 744. All MSs: पर्यायाः; KuKauM: पर्याये; KMT: पर्यायात् 745. KMT, KuKauM, ṢSS and TS: कथिताः स्फुटम् 746. KuKauM, KMT, ṢSS and TS add: समयिन्या (ङ्: सविन्या; TS: सम वाग्नि) गतः (ख्, ग्, घ्, ङ्, KMT] ṢSS: गता; TS: नीतास्) सूक्ष्म (ग्: ?; घ्: नास्ति; KMT, ṢSS, TS: सूक्ष्मा) कला (घ्: नास्ति) सूक्ष्मास्य (ङ्: सूक्ष्मा च; KMT: सूक्ष्माति; TS: विश्वस्य) नायिका (TS: –काः)।

747. ṢSS and all MSs: कथिता तु 748. All sources: देवि

749. All MSs: परापर–; ङ्: –विभांगुशुः; TS परापरं विभागशः (ग्: –सः)

750. TS adds two lines

+ दूतीहीना न सिद्ध्यन्ति तस्माद् दूती समाश्रयेत् (ग्: –स्त्रयेत्)।
सबाह्याभ्यन्तरा सा तु ज्ञातव्या कौलिकान्वये।

751. ख्, ङ्: वाह्याने; छ्: वाद्यान्ते; KuKauM क्: बाह्येवः; ख्: बाह्ये *; ग्: बाह्येष; घ्, ङ्: वाह्येव). This emendation agrees with the reading of the remaining sources.

752. ङ्: कथितस्यावि; all other MSs: कथितस्यापि; KuKauM ग्: कथियिष्यामि; घ्: कथितामि

753. क्: दून्तिनां; KuKauM घ्: दूतानां 754. All sources: शुभम्

755. छ्: चेव 756. KuKauM: अन्तरंगे (ख्: अन्तरंग) तथाप्येवं (ङ्: यथा–) स्तूय (ख्: श्रूय; ग्: श्रुय; घ्: स्त्रूय; ङ्: स्तुप) तांता (ख्, ग्: तांभा) सुलोचनम् (ग्: शुलोचनं)।; KMT and ṢSS: अन्तरङ्गे तथा ह्येवं (ṢSS: –प्येवं) श्रूयतां तासु लक्षणम् (KMT: तेषु निश्चयम्); TS: अन्तरङ्गे तथाप्येवं श्रूयतां तासु निश्चयम्।. The following four lines are missing in the KuKauM.

757. भगिनी, the normal form of this noun, is too long for the metre. The regular form appears below in 15/5d. Although the version of this quarter in all the sources – माता दुहिता भगिनी – is grammatically correct, the metre is defective in three places. 758. छ्: सहजां

759. TS, KMT and ṢSS: सहजा तु (TS: च) तथान्त्यजा

760. TS, KMT and ṢSS: –जन्मिका 761. क्: –लोलो

762. All MSs: नारसिंकम्. In place of this and the following line the TS, KMT and ṢSS read: अन्नपानं (ṢSS: मन्त्रपानं) तथा भक्ष्यमाचरेच्छक्तिभिः सह।

763. All MSs: आचार. See above, note to 1/7d.

764. All MSs: मन्त्रिभिर्योनौ 765. All MSs: सुरार्चितः

766. ख्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: साधकैर्नित्यं; all other MSs: सार्धकैर्–; KuKauM and ṢSS: भावकेनैव. This emendation agrees with the reading in the KMT.

767. छ्: यदि–; KuKauM: यदिच्छेत् (ख्, ग्: यदिछेत्; ङ्: यदिच्छे) 768. All MSs: सिद्धिरु–

769. ङ्: –ज्ञ; छ्: महा * * * भैर्वयज्ञे 770. ख्, ङ्: –परमेश्वरे 771. All MSs: –विंशत्–

NOTES OF THE TRANSLATION OF CHAPTER FOURTEEN

1. See intro. vol 1, p. 518 ff. for a commentary on the first six verses of this chapter. This chapter is also found in the TS, KMT, KuKauM and ṢSS. The details of the correspondences between these sources are found in the notes to the Sanskrit text which has been collated with them.

2. The KuKauM reads dhīra- 'one who is firm' for vīra- 'hero' and the condition he seeks is 'dhīratva' – (firmness). The 'Hero' is a man who has taken Kaula initiation and whose Kuṇḍalinī is therefore awake. His condition is contrasted to that of the paśu literally (tethered) beast or sacrificial victim, that is, the fettered soul. In a more specific sense, the paśu is not just the individual subject to bondage (pāśa); he is one who has not taken Kaula initiation. Jayaratha quotes a Tantra in his commentary on the TĀ (29/73cd-75ab) as saying:

> One should make an effort to avoid Siddhāntins, Vaiṣṇavas, Bauddhas, Vedāntins and those who follow the Smārta schools (smārtadarśana) because they are said to be *paśu*s.

The verse we are examining implies that *vīra*s need to develop further, not to attain liberation as if it were a different state, but rather to attain a full realisation of the initiated condition which, as one of identity with the goddess, is one of vīratva literally 'hero-hood'. If this interpretation is correct, the word 'vīra' should also mean 'deity'. Although the usage of this term in this sense is not common, it does occur. The Buddhist Ekālavīratantra, for example, is concerned with the worship of the god – vīra – Ekāla. The term ekavīra refers to the male deity when worshipped alone without his consort in 'the state of a solitary hero' (ekavīrabhāva). The YKh of the MBT prescribes a long series of rituals and mantras for the worship of the goddess Tripurabhairavī alone as Ekavīrā. The goddess of Kula (Kuleśvarī) in the early Kālī Tantras known to Abhinavagupta – such as the Devyāyāmala and the Jayadrathayāmala, – is Kālasaṅkarṣaṇī, who can be worshipped in the centre of a maṇḍala described in the TĀ (29/69-70ab) either alone (ekavīrā), in conjunction with it (cakrayuktā) or as a part of the couple within it (cakrayāmalagā). Clearly, the term denotes the deity as one of a couple when worshipped alone. The condition of the Hero in its most complete form is therefore that of the deity itself.

The later Kaula Tantras developed these conceptions further and took a more positive attitude. The paśu, although not an initiate, may perform Vedic rituals or exert himself in the practice of a pious Vaiṣṇava (vaiṣṇavācāra) or Śaiva (śaivācāra). However, in order to do this he must observe such a high degree of purity that some of the later texts and their commentators maintained that is not possible in the present Kali Age. Nonetheless, it is possible in certain cases for a zelous paśu to achieve success (siddhi) in his practice quicker than a vīra. On the contrary, other texts maintained that practice as a vīra is not possible in this Age because it is impossible not to fall from the elevated spiritual state it requires. Thus, as the matter could be viewed from different perspectives, it was inevitably subject to controversy. In the earlier texts, such as this one, that felt no need to accomodate Smārta ideology to their own, no positive connotations were associated with the practice of the paśu and therefore no such controversies arose. Overall, a balance between 'mild' and 'extreme' Kaula practice was naturally struck, as we can see in our text. But, the later controversies, of which we have mentioned just one example, tended to polarise positions into two extremes. Thus a part of the Kaula Tantras of the later period tended to focus increasingly on the conventionally antinomian aspect of Kaula practice, especially ritual sex and the consumption of intoxicants. The other extreme stressed (in what remained of the true Kaula spirit) that Kaula practice, although essential, despite its antinomian elements suitably attenuated, was a transient phase on the path of spiritual development. Beyond was practice undertaken in a 'divine state of being' (divyabhāva). This practice, as described by Woodroffe in the following passage, is a blend of Kaula practice 'purified' of its transgressive component and conventional, 'open-minded' Smārta observance. Woodroffe's source is the Kubjikātantra. This late, possibly Assamese or Bengali work, is not linked to the corpus of the Kubjikā Tantras to which our text belongs. Woodroffe (1972: lviii-lxix) writes, referring to chapter seven of that Tantra, that the initiate with this disposition > daily does ablutions, sandhyā; and wearing clean clothes, the tripuṇḍara mark in ashes or red sandal and ornaments of rudrākṣa beads, performs japa and arcana. He can give charity also. His faith is strong in Veda, śāstra, guru and deva. He worships the pitṛ [ancestors] and deva [gods], and performs all the daily rites. He has a great knowledge of mantra. He avoids all food, except that which his guru offers him, and all cruelty and other bad actions, regarding both friend and foe as one and the same. He himself ever speaks the truth and avoids the company of those who decry the devatā [deity]. He worships thrice daily and meditates upon his guru daily, and as a Bhairava, worships Parameśvarī [the Supreme Goddess] with divyabhāva. All devas he regards as beneficial. He bows to the feet of women, regarding them as his guru. He worships the Devī at night, and makes japa at night with his mouth full of pān [betel] and makes obeisance to the kulavṛkṣa [sacred Kula tree]. He offers everything to the Supreme Devī. He regards this universe as pervaded by strī [the female principle] and as devatā [deity]. Śiva is in all men and the whole brahmaṇḍa [universe] is pervaded by Śiva-Śakti. He ever strives for the attainment and maintenance of devatābhāva [state of the deity], and is himself of the nature of a devatā [deity].

This state, as the Rudrayāmala (1/145-148) puts it, is one of perpetual purity in which all works are offered to the deity and is defined as the 'auspicious dawning of Dharma' (dharmodayaṁ śubham).

3. Quite a different form of the Vow of Knowledge is described in TĀ 23/31-44ab.

4. The KuKauM, KMT, TS and ṢSS add that he may be an ascetic who covers his body in ashes (bhasmin). See the next verse.

5. Most of the MSs read vratacāriṇaḥ – 'one who observes the vow'. But this reading is not accepted by any of the other sources and is, anyway, redundant.

One who practices this vow as a Kaula adept (vīra) observes celibacy by identifying himself as the god in union with his consort who is, similarly, one with the goddess. See below 14/15 and note.

6. kramastha- lit. 'established in the Krama'. One can compare this form with 'vratastha-' and even 'gṛhastha-' as in the following lines found below:

One should abandon the (last) trace of ignorance (which induces one to think): 'I am performing the vow (of a renouncer)' (vratastha), or '(I am) a householder' (gṛhastha). Nor should he think: 'I am a Brahmin' or '(I belong) to the lowest caste', (or even) '(I am) the deity'.

vratastho 'haṁ gṛhastho vā avidyāvāsanāṁ tyajet |
naiva manyati vipro 'haṁ nāntyajātir na devatā || KuKu 41/10

KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS: Every condition yields success, whether (the adept is one who) observes (this) vow (vrathastha) or is not (avratastha).

The last sentance, not found in the other sources, stresses that in any case, the initiate must conceal his practice. See intro. vol 1, p. 507 ff..

7. In the other sources, this last part of the sentence differs. KMT: 'or is adorned with (fine) clothes and ornaments, or is dirty, or (wears) white.' KuKauM and ṢSS: 'or desires (to wear fine) clothes and ornaments, or is dirty or (wears) white.'

8. The other sources add an extra line here and omit what follows up to verse 21. TS and KMT: 'whatever be the ornaments (the adept wears), whatever he says by way of speech, that is said to be his practice (caryā) (KuKauM and ṢSS add: according to the teaching) and, without doubt, (his) mantras.'

Both versions are informative. The older version, that of the TS and KMT, simply says that whatever is worn by the adept, who is in the elevated state of consciousness of one who is observing this vow, is a sacred sign of his observance and whatever he says is mantra. Similarly, there is a Śivasūtra (3/28) that declares: 'common talk is (his) recitation of mantra' (kathā japaḥ). Similarly, Abhinava says (TĀ 4/194):

Whatever the one who is established in this uncreated Heart (of pure self-awarness) does or (however) he breathes or reflects is all considered to be his repetition of mantra (japa).

The function of the outer practice, whether observed in the garb of an ascetic or a householder, is only to conceal the adept's true identity as an initiate and the secret practice that engages him. To this the adept gains access only through the inner spiritual experience symbolized by the outer form. The outer form can be seen. The outer mantras can be heard. But the true practice is internal. It is the inner experience of the Nameless, that is, Unstruck Sound generated by the union of Śiva and Śakti (see below 36/72cd-73ab). Beyond description and conception, the inner vow centred on the transcendent reality beyond thought is itself the condition of the Nameless. As we read below (61/93):

Greatness is the (power of the) Nameless (anāmā) and the Nameless is within Greatness. (The power of) reflection (mananā) is the first (principle) of the mind; endless, it is called 'no mind'.

9. The CMSS defines the Sphere of the Self as follows:

One attains the sphere of one's own (true) nature (svātmamaṇḍala) by the penetration (samāveśa) of Rudra's energy. It is inexplicable, unmanifest, devoid of the principles; unsupported, it resides within the Circle of the Unmanifest (avyakta). This is the (condition) Beyond the Transmission (kramātīta), which is the arising of the Transmission.

rudraśaktisamāveśāt [gh: -sāt] siddhyate [all MSs: siddhate] svātmamaṇḍalam ||
anākhyaṁ ca nirābhāsaṁ [k gh: -bhāṣaṁ] nistattvaṁ [k gh: vistatvaṁ] ca nirāśrayam |
avyaktamaṇḍalāntasthaṁ kramātītaṁ kramodayam || CMSS 9/53cd-54

10. The edition and translation of this corrupt verse is uncertain. As I understand it, the meaning is as follows. The ascetic lets his hair grow unkempt as a sign of indifference to outer form and worldly custom. His true concern is to purify his spiritual body. It is hypocracy to look clean and groomed on the outside when inwardly the mind is distracted and sullied by worldly thought. If the ascetic is content to merely have matted hair and ignore the inner work of concentration and application to the sphere of the Self within, he cannot purify himself. The Mṛgendrāgama (caryāpāda (1/3-4) explains that initiated Śaivites who observe a vow may be of two kinds according to whether they have matted hair (jaṭila) or shave their head (muṇḍa). A man of the lowest caste, a fool, a woman, an aged man, or one who is sick or physically handicapped is unfit to keep matted hair.

11. The ascetic performing a penance, like a man in mourning, shaves all the hair from his head and the rest of his body. This ritual action symbolizes the removal of impurity that clings and grows on him like the impure hair of the body. However, this verse teaches that this is of no use unless the impurity to which he is subject that clings to the Self is not removed. This is done by the rise of the energy of the vital breath through the Central Channel – Suṣumṇā – which can only take place by the grace of 'recollecting the Command'. The following passage in the KMT is taken from the TS, the original source of this chapter of the KuKh. It explains one way that this is done. When the Command in the form of the energy of Kuṇḍalinī reaches to the Cavity of Brahmā, the yogi's body becomes stiff and inert like a piece of dry wood. He experiences the Cavity of Brahmā at the top of the head as the Triangle of energies that expand and contract, filling him with bliss. Thus:

The (inert) wood-like state (of suspension) (kāṣṭhāvasthā) arises (when) the mind is (fixed there) in the middle of it. (In that state, even when there are loud) sounds of kettle drums, double–headed drums and the like, or songs or musical instruments, (the yogi) hears and sees nothing, nor does he think of anything other than the Lord. Even if he is cut to pieces by swords, (sharp) wheels or other such weapons, he knows nothing (of it). (This), O fair-faced one, is the State of Power (śaktyāvasthā) in which (the yogi) barely knows anything (īṣanmātra). KMT 4/23cd-25ab = TS 3/21cd-23ab; see intro. vol 1, p. 210 ff.

12. The core practice of the Vow of Knowledge (vidyā) is the repetition of the Vidyā. In its original context in the Trika system of the Tantrasadbhāva, the Vidyā was, of course, the one there. However, when it is imported into the Kubjikā Tantras it is, just as obviously, the root Vidyā of the goddess Kubjikā. Mahantārikā (variously spelt) is a distinct goddess, and so has a specific Vidyā of her own. However, she is also identified with Kubjikā and, therefore, with her Vidyā. Thus, in view of the above consideration, we can safely assume that this is the Vidyā meant here.

Kubjikā / Mahantārikā is the Transmental (unmanī) which, as the texts say repeatedly, is the energy of bliss that burns like the flame of a lamp in the centre of the maṇḍala. This is the form of the goddess of the centre who is the mistress of the Transmission (krama) (8/76cd-77ab). This energy rises up through the body along the channel of Suṣumṇā, transported by the Sound of consciousness, burning up impurity and generating bliss as it rises (13/16). This is Kuṇḍalinī who rises upwards, firm and steady like the flame of a lamp that burns in a sheltered place (40/98-99ab) until she exits from from the Cavity of Brahmā at the top of the head and burns there like a tongue of flame (śikhā – a word that means also topknot) in the centre of the Saṁvartāmaṇḍala located there above (ṢSS 2/5, see Schoterman's comments). Presumably, this form of Kubjikā is invoked in this context because, in one of the two varieties of descriptions of the six limbs of the goddess taught in the KMT (see above note on 10/29-30), Mahantārikā is the goddess of the Topknot (KMT 7/39), which 'shines like a hundered million lightning flashes.' (KuKh 29/52)

One may see a link between the Topknot and the Shaved Head. If I have understood the latter correctly to be a symbol of the experience of the energy of the Command (i.e. the Transmental) in the Cavity of Brahmā at the top of the head, the Topknot is the experience of the same energy as it rises out beyond it.

13. The reader will recall that the sequence of states that leads to liberation has been described in reverse order with respect to the one here (see above 13/23-24ab). The individual soul is first liberated from the basic impurity of Māyā by the deity's grace (śaktipāta), which he receives by initiation and through practice. This separates the conditions that sully and bind him from his essential consciousness. After this, he is liberated once the balance of his past Karma is exhausted (see above 13/45-47). In this case, Karma is first destroyed by the rays of the energy of grace emanated by the deity from within the maṇḍala the initiate has internalized and hence identified with the complex of principles that constitute his energized body. After this has taken place, his energized body is smeared, as it were, with the ash of the Karma that has been burnt away. Then all the adept needs to do is contemplate his condition free of Karma and the destruction of the basic impurity (mala) that binds him, which is liberation itself.

14. In the beginning of creation, the goddess, who is the embodiment of the Command and the divine will, emerged bent over like a newborn sprout from her own transcendental body. She performed austerites and assumed the condition of the Transmental at the interface between the Uncreated and its emanation. Then the Sprout split into two and became Śiva and Śakti who, as the two breaths, unite in every living being (see 28/148 and 35/81).

Thus, the Circle of the Void, to which this verse refers, is the body of the goddess. Void of all phenomenal form – even of deity and his Power – it is nonetheless replete with every energy. The yogi who returns to the source of all creation that precedes all name and form is divested of them. Realising that this is his true pure consciousness and being, he is clothed with its infinite expanse, unconditioned by time and space. In the centre, in the very core of the Transcendent, emerges spontaneously and freely the energy of its absolute, omnipotent intent that contains within itself the universe as a potential temporal and spatial matrix that develops from it as it unfolds.

Thus, the adept who practices this vow in its the deepest sense travels to the origin of all things. This 'place' is up beyond the fullest extent of the yogic body above the End of the Twelve where the energy of the Transmental is located, acting as bridge between pure transcendence and its emanation. He will realise the same at the other end, at the lowest extremity, in the genital region called the Place of Birth. A downward-facing triangle there contains a circle. This, the Yoni (17/11, cf. 3/3 and 3/32), is the Stone on which the goddess sat in meditation and assumed the form of a Liṅga. When she did so everything returned to its source and was immersed in the primordial darkeness of the unmanifest (see intro, vol. 1, p. 32 ff.). There, from the centre of the Stone arises this same Sprout, the goddess's Liṅga. As we shall see below (17/45-46ab):

> In the Place of Brahmā (brahmasthāna) there is a lotus, placed (samupāgata) (there) for the purpose of emanation. (It is) the Place of Birth (janmasthāna) and is in the centre of the Stone (śilā). The deity of the Sprout (aṅkura) (resides) there. The Stone is pervaded (ākrānta) by her and (so) is said to be the Brahmā Stone of Birth.

It seems that embedded in this, the Sprout, and the preceding two conditions – the Shaved Head (symbolizing the triangular Cavity of Brahmā) and the Topknot (the Flame beyond it) – are the three energies of the goddess's Triangle. Thus with reference to Tripurā, who came to embody the same energies, Jayaratha (in the comm. on TĀ 3/67) quotes from an unknown source:

> Once she has assimulated all the seed-letters (into herself), Vāmā abides (in the form of) a Sprout. Then Jyeṣṭhā (assumes the form) of (a straight line which is like a Flame or) a Topknot (śikhā). (Then when) she assumes the (triangular) form of a water chestnut, (she is) Raudrī, O Supreme Goddess, whose nature is to devour the universe. Thus, that Supreme Power is the one Supreme Goddess (Parameśvarī), the threefold Goddess Tripurā who is Brahmā, Viṣṇu and Īśa. O beloved, she is the power of will, knowledge and action. She emanates the Triple World and so she is called Tripurā.

15. The Supreme Brahman corresponds to Akula, the transcendent principle.

16. This verse is puzzling. It appears that a line or more of text is missing. The yogi drinks the juice of the fruit of this tree of knowledge and its foundation, the goddess's Yoni, and is purified. Concerning the Kadamba Tree see intro. vol 2, p. 120 ff..

17. The CMSS (5/15-16) describes the sacred Tamarind Tree (ciñcā) in which Kubjikā resides as Ciñciṇī, growing in the middle of the Yoni:

> The Yoni is the Triangle in the Sky, the secret circle. The corners are will, knowledge and action, and in the middle is the sequence of (the goddess) Ciñciṇī. It has emerged from the ocean of the wine of the Sky (of consciousness) and is the bliss of one's own innate light. She is satisfied and makes all blissful. She is Nityā whose form is the Yoni.

Jayaratha quotes the first of these two verses in his commentary on TĀ 3/95ab where it is written that the letter E 'is the triangle that is beautiful with the fragrance of emission.' Jayaratha explains that the triangle is the Foundation of Birth (janmādhāra), also called the Mouth of the Yoginī. This is the genital centre at the base of the Central Channel, Suṣumṇā. The supreme energy (parāśakti) in her 'crooked form' called Kuṇḍalinī rises up from here, 'the triangular sacred seat' (yad ullasati śṛṅgāṭapīṭhāt kuṭilarūpiṇī). This upward movement is the expansion of the energy of emission. It possesses the fragrance that is 'the outpouring (of the energies) up to the power of action that takes place through the the progressive development of bliss.' This is the inner process, dynamic yet free from any outer action, that the adept can experience inwardly when Kuṇḍalinī, playful and passionate, 'delights in the Yoni' with the vīra, that is, with Śiva her consort in the body and every sphere within it. United, the adept and his consort both experience the bliss of the rise of Ciñciṇī who is in 'each body' and 'in each sphere of existence' from the Triangle that Jayaratha explains: 'is also, in the context of sexual practice (caryākrama), the place of expansion (prasara) made of bliss because it is associated with the unfolding of the bliss that is the fruit of emission.' This inner flow extends out up from the Triangle, expanding from the emission that takes place within it and distributing its blissful energy to all the parts of the body, and then pours down like a shower of nectar. This movement up and down, like the waving of a chowrie, takes place repeatedly, maintaining the adept in a state of bliss.

18. This verse corresponds to KMT 25/35 and ṢSS 49/59.

19. According to the KuKauM this sentence is: 'established in the exertion (ārambha) of the power of consciousness, she whose nature is Letter (i.e. Speech) is devoid of Letter (avarṇā) (i.e. beyond Speech).' According to the ṢSS it is: 'established in the junction within the exertion of the power of consciousness, devoid of letter, auspicious, she (the energy of consciousness is present in each) letter.' The reading of the first part of this sentence in the edition of the KMT i.e. cicchaktirahitādhiṣṭhā makes no sense to me. The rest agrees with the reading in the ṢSS.

The passage that follows directly in the KuKauM (7/98-102), KMT (25/36-40) and ṢSS (49/59-64) from this point onwards defines the Vow of Knowledge. The text is in the notes of the edition.

It is (the intuitive power of consciousness) present in the letters (of speech and thought) that understands and so, O beloved, (as this practice is inspired by it,) it is the Vow of Knowledge. The entire universe, established in both letters and (the power of consciousness) devoid of letter, is observed (as one does a vow) by that (twofold power of consciousness).

The Vow is said to be Being and so (this is) said, O beloved, to be the Vow of Knowledge. The knowledge (jñāna, not vidyā) that awakens the power of consciousness discerns (the true nature of things) in the act of cognition.

Those who are dedicated to (the observance of the) Vow perceive the (outer) body to be like an ocean of blood, and the form of its essential nature to be Vidyā and mantra. That is the Vow of Knowledge, well-observed.

As the power of consciousness awakens the seventy billion Vidyās without measure, devoid of letter it has assumed the nature of letter.

She is one only and is said to be the Supreme (goddess Parā), that is, Kuṇḍalinī, whose nature is the Vidyā (vidyārūpā). Thus, O goddess, the Vow is said to be the auspicious practice of the Vidyā.

We can understand this verse in two ways. In one sense the teaching is that the Vidyā, which is the focus of the practice of the Vow of Knowledge, is not just a mantra. Essentially, it is the supreme power of consciousness which is 'devoid of letter' – avarṇā – i.e. not verbal. Avarṇā is Parā as Unstruck Sound (anāhata). It is the power of consciousness to know and understand meaning and hence to conceive and reflect discursively. It also energizes the letters of the Vidyā, as it does all letters, so that they can form powerfully effective mantras.

Again, 'avarṇā' may also describe the Vidyā as the energy of the letter A. At the same time the Vidyā is 'varṇā', that is, the quintessential nature of each letter. As 'avarṇā', she is the power of consciousness whose progressive development marks the succesive production first of the letter A and then of all the letters and the levels of Speech through which they make phenomena manifest. This process is described in a long passage further ahead in our text (40/92 ff.) drawn from the Tantrasadbhāva. Thus, the Vidyā is essentially Kuṇḍalinī who is described the same way in the KMT:

The power Kuṇḍalinī who is consciousness, the supreme energy (kalā) and the First Power of the Great Lord, the measure of an atom, resides in the Heart. According to the Tantra, she is said to be the atom (aṇu) (of consciousness i.e. the individual soul). (When she is) the moment (truṭi), (she assumes the form of) two atoms (corresponding to the two breaths). When that goddess is the moment (truṭi), then both supreme and inferior (i.e. immanent), she should be uttered repeatedly. Supreme (parā), she is said to be devoid of letters (varṇahīnā). Inferior (aparā i.e. immanent), she is (all) phonemic form (varṇarūpiṇī). O fair lady, having known (her) thus, the wise should repeat (the Vidyā) constantly.

KMT 6/4-6

20. According to the variant reading in the KMT, the Vidyā is in the Yoni which is, I suppose, at the base of Suṣumṇā. The Vidyā is, as we have seen, Kuṇḍalinī who can rise from both places and so both readings make sense.

According to the KuKauM and the ṢSS, this sentence reads: 'one should know that the Vidyā is auspicious assiduousness (niṣṭhā).'

21. These five are the deities of the Five Praṇavas. The texts are not unanimous as to their location in the body. In some cases, the differences are due to the diversity of uses to which the Five Praṇavas are put. All the sources where this verse appears agree that the last of these five is located at the End of the Twelve, and the first, presumably coinciding with the initial location of the Vidyā, is in the navel. These two places fit into the following scheme recorded below (KuKh 29/55c-56) where the locations of the Five Praṇavas in the goddess's body are listed: 1) Brahmā – navel 2) Viṣṇu – heart 3) Rudra – throat 4) Īśvara – forehead and 5) Sadāśiva (there called simply Śiva) – above the forehead. There are problems with the location of these five because, for one thing, they do not agree with those of the five gross elements to which the Five Praṇavas normally correspond listed in the previous verse (i.e. 29/54cd-55ab). According to the Ṭīkā (fl. 13a) the series begins with the Earth element in the goddess's Yoni with the others progressively above in the same places ending with Space in the forehead. Moreover, note that although the first location agrees with the KMT's reading of this verse, the last ('above the forehead') may not.

22. According to 7/48-50ab above, the Vidyā in the middle of the Triangular Wheel is the forty-two syllable Vidyā of the Full Moon. The Vidyā is the goddess who says that she rests there 'facing downwards' in the First Seat (ādyapīṭha), that is, in the centre.

23. The goddess teaches that the vow of wearing red clothes, in the deepest and most authentic sense, is the vow to abide within. He who is established in this vow is established in the inner limb of consciousness within the body, senses and mind. Such a one awakens the goddess who unfolds as the six parts of the inner maṇḍala as the energy that expands into the six Wheels of the body and the other components of the maṇḍala's six parts. Thus he rends asunder the veil of ignorance that obscures the true nature of the energies that are the goddess's body.

24. The commentary on ṢSS 49/67cd ff. explains that the Five Insignia are Brahmā and the other Praṇavas. Linked to them, that is, while reciting them, the adept should wander about, stopping in places such as those listed in the next verses to rest and recite them repeatedly along with the Vidyā.

25. Below we are told that the field is the 'tranquil and supreme body' (14/75cd).

26. It is striking that despite the variety of sites that are listed here as auspicious places to observe the vow by constantly repeating the Vidyā, there are few bathing places (tīrtha) included, despite their being the most sacred sites in the public sacred world of the Purāṇas.

27. These place names are not normally feminine.

28. The KuKauM and four manuscripts of the KMT agree with this reading. ṢSS and the edition of the KMT read Bhīmanādā (Fearsome Sound) which I take to be an alternative name of Aṭṭahāsā (Loud (Frightening) Laugh).

29. According to the KuKauM and the ṢSS the name of this place is Devikoṭa. However, all the MSs of the KMT agree that it is called Koṭivarṣa which I take to be an alternative name of the same place.

30. Today, as in the past, Śaiva renouncers – nowadays called sādhus – may still carry a variety of objects as a sign of their status. Many of them are weapons. This is not only a carry-over from the relatively recent times when they fought as mercenaries for Hindu kings against their Muslim and other rivals; the practice is much older. Lakulīśa, the founder of a sect of the ascetic Śaiva Paśupatas we have already had occasion to mention above, is normally represented as a Śaiva ascetic carrying a club and so is accordingly called lakuṭapāṇīśa, 'the lord with a club in his hand' (Banerjea 1974: 481). He is also sometimes depicted as carrying a rosary and a trident (ibid.). Banerjea (1974: 449) notes: 'While commenting on Pāṇini's Sūtra V.2.36 (sic. 5/2/76) (ayaḥśūladaṇḍājinābhyāṁ ṭhakṭhañau), Patañjali mentions the Śaiva Bhāgavatas who carried an iron lance (āyaḥśūlikaḥ). He further observes that because this kind of sectarian devotee seeks to obtain his desire by violent means, the fulfilment of which should be sought for by mild ways, he is called ayaḥśūlikaḥ. Though the commentator does not comment on the term daṇḍājina in the sūtra, it is apparent that a staff (daṇḍa) and hide (ajina) were also characteristic marks of a Śaiva Bhāgavata (. . .)'. S.C. Vasu summerizing the kāśikā on this sūtra writes: 'Who seeks to gain something by hypocracy and deceit is called daṇḍājinakaḥ [an ascetic who carries a staff and wears a hide].' Clearly, there were already numerous false ascetics in India in the pre-Christian era.

The seventh century poet Bāṇa Bhaṭṭa writes in his Harṣacarita about Puṣpabhūti, the father of the great king Harṣavardhana of Kanauj who approached a Bhairavācārya, a native of Mahārāṣṭra. It is clear from the story that the Bhairavācārya was not only a powerful ascetic dedicated to the attainment of siddhi but also an intrepid warrior, as were his disciples (Gurye 1995: 99-100). in the Prabodhacandrodaya of Kṛṣṇamiśrayati, a drama performed before the king of Bundelkhand in Madhya Pradeśa, who flourished in the fourth quarter of the 11th century CE, a Kāpālika (see below note to 16/75cd-76ab) is represented as having a sword by his side which he readily draws against a Jain ascetic at the slightest provocation (Act 3 from verse 14). In the Śaṅkaradigvijaya, Mādhava Vidyāraṇya in the 14th century describes Krakaca, the leader of the Kāpālikas whom Śaṅkarācārya is said to have vanquished at Ujjain, as carrying an iron lance (Ghurye 1995: 100 and Dyczkowski 1986: 29-30).

Although there can be no doubt that the arms ascetics are known to have carried from remote times up to the present have literally served as weapons, it is clear that this was not their original purpose. The Śaiva Bhāgavatas to which Patañjali refers probably carried a lance as a sectarian sign. This may have been a hangover from earlier tribal cultural patterns. Indeed many other traits in their behaviour, and those of layman, may well have tribal origins. Sectarian marks on the body and smearing the body with ashes could be other examples. From a different perspective, the bearing of arms can be viewed as a way of imitating the deity and thereby assimilating the power which its weapons represent. Already from early Vedic times deities were described as bearing arms. The classic example is the god Rudra, who is described as a hunter who carries bow and arrows. Thus, the carrying of arms became a manner of imitating the deity and thereby assimilating the qualities and powers the weapons he or she carried represented. Further ahead (see 14/100cd-127ab) we read how these attributes have been interiorized and thereby rendered accessible to the layman who, without abandoning his status as a householder, can gain the benefits of the ascetic who in this way has assimilated himself to the deity.

31. TS: contemplation of mantra.

32. ṢSS: . . . a vassal lord comes under (the king's) control.

33. KMT: O fair lady, the country, the subjects, town, village and king along with (his) minister, priest (purogama) and favorite (resident of the) inner apartments (of his palace) – (each of these) is brought under one's control.

34. KMT: After three years he sees the auspicious female demons who dwell in the seven lower worlds, mad with desire their eyes distraught with passion.

35. Brahmā is the first of the five gods embodied in the Five Praṇavas. Rudra, Īśvara and Sadāśiva are the third, fourth and fifth, respectively. Viṣnu should be second. Perhaps the ‘rest’ refers to him. If so, the adept attains two worlds in the sixth year and only one each in the following three.

36. KMT: Endowed with the (eight yogic powers, namely) the power to become small at will (aṇimā) and the others, he moves with the Skyfarers.

Kramavidyā may simply mean the Samayā Vidyā or, less likely, all the Kramavidyās, that is, all the mantras. The expression could also mean ‘knowledge of the Krama’ but this is less likely. Although the word ‘vidyā’ does mean knowledge, it is not usually used in this way; the word ‘jñāna’ is usually preferred. In this case it is probably the knowledge of ultimate reality. The Krama is the sequence of events, states, forces and spheres of reality that succeed one another in the process of manifestation and destruction. The Krama is also the collective whole of the teachings, ritual procedures, yogic practices and everything else transmitted by the tradition. Krama also denotes the tradition itself and the lineages of accomplished beings.

37. The commentary on the ṢSS provides brief explanations of each one of these inner places. These are quoted as we go along. Here it says that: ‘the cremation ground is the body' (śmaśānaṁ deham). The Jñānakārikā (3/10) implies in the following explanation that the word śmaśāna – 'cremation ground' – is related to the word śvāsa – 'breath'– and so is the body with which the breath is linked:

> The body of all embodied beings is beautiful. Connected to exhalation (niśvāsa) and inhalation (śvāsa), it is said to be the cremation ground.

One of the fundamental principles of all Tantric traditions – and indeed of many non-Tantric ones as well – is that the body is a microcosm. Kashmiri Śaivites explain that this is because every single thing is all things. In the following passage, Abhinavagupta also refers to the body as a 'house' (sadman) because it contains all the principles that constitute the universe.

> One should view the body in this way as full of all the paths (of manifestation) diversified by the activity of time as the abode (sadman) of the pulse (spanda) which is time and space. Perceived in this way as consisting of (all) the deities in the universe, one should make offerings to it (tarpya), contemplate it and worship it. He who penetrates into it is liberated. TĀ 12/6-7

The Śaiva, Bhairava and Kaula Tantras, like the Buddhist Yoga and Anuttara Yoga Tantras, share a great deal of common symbolic images. One of their major sources is what one could call the culture of the cremation ground. Normally considered to be impure and polluting places, these Tantrics considered them to be sacred places of greater importance than the bathing places (tīrtha) of non-Tantric Hinduism. These were places where adepts, male and female, would meet to perform their rituals and engage in yogic practice. Kashmiri sources explain that this is a part of the Hero's Vow (vīravrata), that is, the vow to see all things, however disgusting or attractive, with an equal eye. The yogi who inwardly observes this vow, absorbed in the contemplation of the fire of his own consciousness (citi), enters the cremation ground of his own body, terrible with the funeral pyres (citi) in which all the latent traces of his past actions (karman) are burnt to ashes (PS 79-80). Abhinava writes:

> (The body) is the support of all the gods; (it is) the cremation ground, terrifying with the pyre (of consciousness, citi, which destroys all things). Attended by Siddhas and Yoginīs, it is the awesome (mahāraudra) playground wherein all embodied forms (vigraha) come to an end. Full of the countless pyres (of the senses) and pervaded by the halo of their rays, the flux of the darkness (of duality) is destroyed and, free of all thought constructs, it is the sole abode of bliss. Entering this (body), the cremation ground of emptiness – who does not achieve perfection? TĀ 29/183-185.

38. KMT (25/66): KA is said to be the body. It leads (the soul about) forcefully. Although established in mantra, (the soul in the forest of the body) sees (the world of) speech along with the moving and immobile (universe) [. . .].
KuKauM and ṢSS: Abiding there he sees everything made of Speech along with the moving and immobile (universe).

One of the meanings of the (masculine) noun ka is indeed 'body'. The remaining part of the word 'kānana' – 'nana' – is here fancifully derived from the word nayana – 'eye'. Thus the 'forest' is the inner yogic body with the eyes of which the yogi perceives all things. The commentary on the ṢSS of this verse explains it somewhat differently. There we read that: 'the forest (kānana) is the Door of Brahmā'. Presumably, the commentator understands that the eyes to which this verse refers are located there at the extremity of the Door of Brahmā, that is, in the cavity at the top of the head. From there they look up and out into the transcendental expanse of the absolute within which they perceive all its manifestation.

39. ṢSS comm: The well is the mind (manas) (kūpaṁ manaḥ).

40. The embodied soul who dives deep into the well of the mind will find the water of life that sustains all things. The well of the mind produces countless 'empty' thoughts in its upper vacuous part. But this same vacuity gives access to inner depths beyond thought wherein lies the foundation of all things. Thus the same mind that produces (karoti) binding thought constructs can also, as the ṢSS says, carry the yogi across (tarate) them.

41. The reading of this verse in the KMT (25/68cd-69) is substantially different. There it says:

The emergent (active) (udyata) mind is located in the navel and (arises) from the centre within all people. (Thus) that supreme (state) of (transcendental) negation (neti) is attained, and so (this process) is called the garden (udyāna). It constantly bestows the nectar (amṛta) (of divine consciousness) which is within the Void (nabhas) (of the Supreme Principle).

The reading of this verse in the ṢSS is practically the same as the KMT. The only major difference is that it says: Once that plane has been reached (the adept) knows (what is to be known) . . . .

Our text presents one fanciful etymology of the word udyāna – ('garden') and the version in the KMT a slightly different one. Both versions agree that the first part of this word, that is, udya –, refers to the mind that is active and intent. The second part – na – according to the KMT refers to absolute being characterized in the way the Advaita Vedānta does the Brahman, that is, as what all this phenomenal world is not. If someone asks "is the absolute like this or that?" The only possible reply is ‘no’. This ‘no’ thus characterizes the absolute in the most perfect way any word can. But, according to our text, na is an abbreviation of nayati (‘leads’). Concentration on the navel centre, once it is firmly established, develops individual consciousness by awakening the power of Kuṇḍalinī that rises up from there, leading it to the eternal reality that, beyond all phenomenal manifestation, is empty in phenomenal terms. In other words, the garden of the mind is, as the commentary on the ṢSS says: ‘the act of going to the navel' (udyānaṁ manaso nābhigamanam) that arouses Kuṇḍalinī.

42. The version of this verse in the KMT (25/70) and the others sources says:

O goddess, (the body) is always said to be the temple (devakula) because due to it, the embodied soul wanders within Kula (fettered) by the bonds of Dharma and Adharma.

In the liberated state Kula is the oneness of Śiva's powers, consciousness, the Self, the innate nature of things and underlying force of which all forms of energy are aspects. Kula, in other words, is the manifold, which is what ‘kula’ in the sense of ‘family’ implies: reality as a fundamental and essential oneness. For those in the fettered state, which is that of our yogi in this verse, it is the same manifold reality in a state of diversity in which the parts work together as a whole. In this aspect Kula is, as the commentary on the ṢSS says, a habitation, that is, the body. This is the abode of the embodied soul who is fettered by the bonds that this verse collectively characterizes as the polarities, Dharma and Adharma – what should and should not be done – within which he moves from one to the other, as he does in the body. Thus the temple – devakula – literally ‘the abode of the gods’ – is the body of the embodied soul whose authentic identity is the deity who has assumed this condition.

43. According to the commentary on the ṢSS ‘the king is the Self and the house is the mind (manas)’ (rājagṛhaṁ rājātmā gṛhaṁ manaḥ)

44. The version in the KMT (25/71-73ab) reads: And it is said that the king is the Self also on the path of the thirty-six principles. Replete with the qualities of sound and the other (sensations), he is the lord in the chamber (koṣṭha) of the mind. When he is present (sthita), (the principles) are present (tiṣṭhanti) and (the mind) moves along with him. Always intent (yukta) on the Transmental state (unmanatva), the mind is said to be the Void (śūnya). Thus, O dear one, the Void is the King's Palace, perpetually in the state Beyond Mind.

45. According to the commentary on the ṢSS: ‘The peak of the mountain is the extremity of the Teacher's Mouth’ (parvatāgraṁ guruvaktrāgram).

46. The Teacher's Mouth is in the End of the Twelve. It is the Unborn Mouth (ajavaktra). It is the ultimate source of all things, the Śāmbhava state and so is said to be the First or Original Mouth (ādivaktra). The extremity of the Teacher's Mouth, like a mountain peak is the summit of the world. Beyond is a break, a sudden interruption where another order of being commences. Without gradation, uniformly pervasive in all directions beyond measure both in space and time, he who is free to move in it moves everywhere freely without impediments. Catching hold of the peak at the centre between Heaven and Earth and using it as his support, the yogi is free to travel in both dimensions – on the Cosmic Path below and the Transcendent above. Cf.. intro. vol 1, p. 541, n. 4.

47. KMT (25/74ab): Thus, O (goddess) worshipped by the gods, it is otherwise said (paryāyeṇa) to be the montain peak.

48. The commentary on the ṢSS simply says that: the crossing of four roads is Vāmā, Jyeṣṭhā, Raudrī and Ambikā (catuṣpathaṁ vāmā jyeṣṭhā raudrī ambikā).

The version in the KMT (25/74cd-75) reads: O goddess, the crossing of four roads consists of Vāmā, Jyeṣṭhā, and Raudrikā along with Ambikā. It is the path which is the individual soul (pudgala) and so it is called the group of four. This is said to be the path.

These are the goddesses of the four energies of the goddess's Triangle, which is therefore the 'crossing' meant here. The individual soul moves along this path. The first chapter of the TS is the primary source where these energies are explained both for Kashmiri Trika Śaivites and the Kubjikā Tantras. This chapter is reproduced below as chapters forty and forty-one, to which the reader is referred.

According to the Jñānakārikā (3/17cd-18), the four energies are another common set of four, Jayā, Vijayā, Ajitā and Aparājitā.

49. The commentary on the ṢSS explains that: the crossing of three paths is Iḍā, Piṅgalā, and Suṣumṇā. (tripathaṁ iḍā piṅgalā suṣumṇā). But according to the Jñānakārikā (3/78cd-79c), the Triple Path consists of Sattva, Rajas and Tamas when the three are in a state of oneness. This Triple Path is free (vinirmukta).

50. KMT (25/76-77ab): O Kuleśvarī, the path (ṢSS: In the same way it) is said to be the three channels, Iḍā and the rest. Established on the three paths, he wanders constantly, coming and going (with the movement of the breath). He who does (this), established in oneness on the triple path, is successful.

The three channels are the well known Iḍā, Piṅgalā and Suṣumṇā. Concerning these and the other channels along which the vital breath moves in the body, see below note to 40/32cd-34ab. The movement of the vital breath, its 'coming and going', that is, inhalation and exhalation, takes place in the two side channels, Iḍā and Piṅgalā. Similarly, Kuṇḍalinī 'comes and goes', rises and falls as the vital breath in the middle channel Suṣumṇā. The ascending mode is known in some traditions as Upper (ūrdhva) Kuṇḍalinī and the descending mode as Lower (adhaḥ) Kuṇḍalinī. These processes are described in many forms in all Tantric traditions.

51. The commentary on the ṢSS says: the village is the Self. (grāmaṁ ātmā). According to the variant reading in the KMT (25/77cd) and the other sources: 'The village is said to be the body and the Self is said to be the embodied being (dehin)'. The second line reads in the ṢSS: 'It is the abode of all living beings and the common foundation (samāśraya) of (both) pleasure and pain.'

The word 'grāma' means both 'village' and 'group'. The second meaning may well be the origin of the first. A village is, after all, a group of buildings or people living together. Abhinava understands the meaning of this word in the second sense. Paraphrasing the Triśirobhairava Tantra, he writes:

> The entire group (grāma) of metaphysical principles (tattva), says the Triśirobhairavamata, has as its inherent imperishable attribute (dharma) the Self, which is the identity (ātman) of their essential nature. The totality (sāmūha) of the principles residing in the Heart, in all the body, and in the specific nature (svabhāva) (of all things), extremely subtle, is termed the 'group' (grāma). It is said that (the essential) attribute (dharma) (of this group) is the (unconditioned) Self, flooded with Śiva's nectar. Knowledge (jñāna) resides in the Light between (the polarites) of Being, Non-being and the like. One should know that abiding in one's own abode is the capacity to perceive (draṣṭṛtva) (the All) without impediment. He who has been purified by the pure consciousness that (the scripture) says is that of transcendental reality (viviktavastu), is one who abides in 'the attribute of the group' (grāmadharmavṛtti). He (whose conduct is such) achieves everything. TĀ 1/82-86

In this passage Abhinava quotes the Triśirobhairavatantra as an authority to support his explanation of the term grāmadharma or grāmyadharma. This term also appears in Buddhist Tantric literature in the sense of vulgar or common practice (lit. –'affairs of the town'). See references in Advayasiddhi verse 14 and Cittaviśuddhiprakaraṇa verse 58. The term appears in the following passage of the Hevajratantra (2/3/41-48). From the context it is clear that the term denotes a freedom from conventional 'well-mannered' behaviour that develops as the Tantric Yogi cultivates spiritual insight into the true nature of reality and follows the path it suggests, careless of the ways of the world. The translation is by Snellgrove:

The lord said: "Food and drink must be just as it comes. One should not avoid things, wondering whether they are suitable or unsuitable. One should not perform special ablutions or purifications, nor avoid the affairs of the town (grāmyadharma).

The wise man does not mutter mantras, nor devotes himself to meditation; nor does he abandon sleep, nor restrain his senses.

He should eat all meat and associate with all manner of men. He should keep the company of all women, his mind quite free of trepidation.

He should have no love for friend, nor hatred for any enemy. Those gods he should not honour, which are made of wood and stone and clay. For the yogi should be consubstantial with the form of his own divinity.

Men of all castes he may touch as readily as his own body [. . .] Nor is there anything he may not consume, for his mind conceives no distinctions.

52. The texts simply says that this Path, the channel of Suṣumṇā, begins with Brahmā. This may be a reference to the first of the gods who preside over the Five Praṇavas, but this is unlikely. Although the Five Praṇavas are arranged in five Wheels along the axis of the central channel, they begin from the second one. Thus 'Brahmā' here, probably refers to the lower Cavity of Brahmā, that is, the Place of Brahmā (brahmasthāna) which is the Wheel of the Foundation (ādhāracakra) from which Suṣumṇā emerges (see above 3/103cd-104ab and below 17/45-46ab).

The word for highway here is 'rathya', literally a road that is fit for chariots (ratha), not just a footpath. Accordingly the commentary on the ṢSS says: 'The highway (rathya) is the place (ālaya) (made) for the movement of the chariot. (rathyaṁ [k, kh: araṇyaṁ] ālayaḥ rathasya gamanārthena [k, kh: rathena gamanena]). Chapter 25 of the KMT (verses 1- 28 = ṢSS 49/25-47ab) begins with an exposition of the nature of the Self and its forms. The lowest form, the individual soul (pudgala), bound by Karma, resides on the 'path' (25/19), that is, in the body, subject to its humours (doṣa). The form of the Self called the Accomplished Charioteer (siddhasārathin) instigates him to caution and simply observes what he experiences. This charioteer, like the Puruṣa of the Bhagavadgīta is the higher inner Self that transports the individual soul in the chariot of the body. By transporting the individual soul along this highway, he rises to higher levels as he penetrates one Wheel after another. For an analysis of this passage in the KMT, the reader is referred to an article by Goudriaan (1990; see bibliography).

53. The variants of these lines in the parallel sources can be put together as follows:

The shore is said to be the bank (of an ocean). It is called / KuKauM: the accomplished extraction (siddhoddhāra of mantra)/ KMT: the upward flow of the Sindhu (sindhūccāra) / ṢSS: accomplished practice (siddhācāra). Beyond suffering and / KMT: In the cessation of suffering it is / beyond the (the stages of) merger, it is the shore that (by implication) denotes the sea. It is Speech (vācā), the divine vehicle (divyāyana) and the god / KMT: It is the pervasive god at the end of Speech / Śiva, the supreme cause. /All other sources: The reciter of mantra stands (on the bank) constantly there (where his) practice (caryā) is revealed.

The ocean is a symbol of the bipolarity of, immanence and transcendence, bondage and liberation. The ocean, deep, ever-changing and dangerous, that however vast must be crossed at all costs, is an apt simile for the world of transmigratory existence (13/97, 18/112) – the ocean of suffering (36/116). This is the great ocean of Māyā, crooked with the waves of innumerable thought constructs (*vikalpakoṭivakre * mahāmāyāmahārṇave* YKh (1) 12/31cd). This is the ocean down here. Above is the expanse of the pleroma, the source of manifestation that prior to creation was the one, formless ocean (35/8). This is the Ocean of Knowledge (vijñānasāgara) (3/92), the light of universal consciousness (CMSS 1/1) and the essence of mantra as the Yoni of Kula (40/105) replete with energies of the fifty letters that flows with the Current of the Siddhas (3/90cd-91ab) and their teachings. The repose of the Triangle is the Ocean of the Aeons (64/15). It is the Yoni (yonyārṇava 39/128) that gestates the current of the divine transmission, the Ocean of the Kula tradition (āmnāya) (58/2). Kula is the Ocean of the Yoni in the centre of the group of six (58/26cd-28ab) within the maṇḍala. Untouched by phenomenal being, it is Kumārī, the Virgin Goddess (38/11) who is the mother of the universe and the Ocean of Kula (39/14), her limbs the waves of the Ocean of Knowledge (64/82; cf. 2/34cd-35ab). Kubjikā is the goddess of this Ocean of the Yoni (yonyārṇavī) (KMT 2/14) and of Speech (line 63 of the Mālinīstava and note, also 3/137). This is the Ocean that Bhairava churns to produce the scriptures and the currents of the teachings. Thus, the whole teaching (śrīmata) is the Ocean of Kula (45/56-57).

The Ocean, whose waves and ripples are those of the mind, is the Supreme Plane. (65/10). Neither god nor goddess, it is nevertheless both; and so, Śiva is also said to be the Ocean of the Sky (below 58/90). Transcendent, the One reality escapes dimension and so, without contradiction, the Ocean is the Drop (bindu), like the Self of the Upaniṣad which is 'greater than the greatest' and yet 'smaller than the smallest' of things.

Again, from a different perspective, one who 'stands on the shore' – taṭastha – is a person who is detached, indifferent to what takes place around him just as he cares nothing about what happens to himself. On the shore of immanence, the Ocean is in this condition of transcendent aloofness. As such it is the Drop, identified with the goddess, the energy of the Ocean, there in the transcendent on the verge of pouring out into immanence – uttering forth the universe of Speech. As the Jñānakārikā (3/19) says:

The supreme power resides in the Point. Beautiful, she (thus) stands on the shore (of the Ocean). Abiding perpetually in the utterance of the Point, the Circle of the Point stands on the shore (of the ocean).

bindusthā parā śaktiḥ taṭasthā cārurūpiṇī |
bindūccārasthitaṁ nityaṁ taṭasthaṁ bindumaṇḍalam ||

The commentary on the ṢSS summerizes the meaning of our text in a similar way, explaining that: 'The shore of the ocean is the extremity of the outpouring (ullāsa) of Sound (nāda)' (mahodadhitaṭaṁ nādollāsaprāntam). The ocean beyond is the silent source of the cosmogonic sound embodied in mantra and the cosmic order. The shore marks the boundry between the land – that other ocean, the ocean of suffering – and the eternal bliss beyond. Rising upwards towards this Ocean of the Sky of Consciousness, the spheres of manifestation merge into the higher subtler ones above. Thus the soul is progressively freed of the suffering that the bondage of these lower conditioned states entail until he reaches the shore of this ocean where this process is complete and suffering ends. This is where the power of mantra is completely realised. At the conclusion of his practice, the reciter of mantra, identified with Śiva, utters mantra as Śiva himself does. And so both his mantra and practice are accomplished successfully (siddha) here on the shore of the Ocean of the source of Speech, where Speech ends and begins, and the true nature of his mantric practice is revealed, as is Śiva, his true identity and ultimate goal.

54. KMT (25/81cd-82ab): The supreme Kuṇḍalinī is the inner flow (ṢSS: powerful flow) that resounds (in all the spheres of reality). This is the river, which is the current (ogha of the transmission of the teachings) that flows constantly through the Ocean of the Sky (of the Supreme Principle).

As often happens, the variants support and amplify the readings of our text. Read together, we learn that the inner river is the powerful inner flow of Unstruck Sound, the union – Yoga – of Śiva and Śakti (36/72cd-73ab) and the current of the Transmental (24/25), which is the creative will that generates the world and the teachings. This energy flows in the infinite expanse of Śiva – the Ocean of the Void as the current of the teachings.

55. According to the Jñānakārikā (2/11cd-12ab):

The Ganges is in the upper flow, while Yamunā is said to be the one below. The confluence is said to be where the two meet.

ūrdhvacāre bhaved gaṅgā yamunādhaḥ prakīrtitā ||
dvābhyāṁ melāpakaṁ yatra saṅgam etat prakīrtitam |

However, the confluence meant here is not one between two rivers, but rather that of a river flowing into a sea. Thus the commentary on the ṢSS explains that: 'the confluence is the meeting (melana) of the arising of Sound with the Ocean of the Void (vyomārṇava).' (saṅgamaṁ nādodayasya [kh: nādoghasya] vyomārṇavamelanam). If this interpretation is correct, the river in this case is the upward-flowing Sound that progresses in stages until it finally reaches the extremity of the Transmental, there by uniting with the supreme power at one with transcendent Śiva, the Ocean of the Void.

56. KMT (25/83cd-84ab): The bank is the supreme energy of the lord inherent (within him). The pervasive (lord) is beyond that. This is said to be the bank of the river.

The banks mark the bounderies of a river and thereby confine and regulate its course. In the same way, the deity through his own inherent power confines and regulates the course of the flow of creation and destruction while it, pervasive throughout time and space, remains unconfined. The version in the KMT says that the bank is the energy of the deity who is beyond it. Even so, the two versions are not really very different because it is this energy which regulates manifestation and Śiva governs it by virtue of that power inherent within him.

The commentary on the ṢSS says that: 'the bank of the river is the extremity of the energy of Sound' (nadītīraṁ nādakalāprāntam). The extremity confines it just as, conversely, 'the confluence which is the meeting (melana) of the arising of Sound within the Ocean of the Void (vyomārṇava)' releases it from this confinement.

57. KMT (25/84cd-86ab): What is called the 'solitary tree' is here said to be the one power (śakti). The tree is the organ of sense. The tree is said to be power. (ṢSS: The tree is said to be like this and its power is considered to be pervasive). She has dissolved away (kṣayaṁ gatā) into the supreme Void (vyoman) which is faultess and beyond mind (amanaska). So, O goddess, I have explained the solitary tree (from the point of view of) practice (ṢSS: So, O goddess, I have explained the Tree of Meru by means of a fine synonym).

Commentary on the ṢSS: 'the solitary tree is the one power. The tree (vṛkṣa) is growth (vṛddhi) and decay (kṣaya) (ekavṛkṣaṁ ekaśaktiḥ [kh: ekāśaktiḥ] vṛkṣaṁ vṛddhikṣayam).

According to the Jñānakārikā (3/15cd-16):

> The tree is said to be the body which has hands, feet and the rest as branches. The root of the tree is above and it is the root that sustains the tree. Thus the root of the tree that is free of the outer tree should be known.

vṛkṣaḥ śarīram ity uktaṁ pādādikaraśākho yaḥ ||
ūrdhvamūlaṁ bhaved vṛkṣaṁ mūlaṁ vai vṛkṣadhārakam |
vṛkṣamūlaṁ tato jñātvā bāhyavṛkṣasya varjitam ||

58. The variant of the first sentence of this verse in the KMT (25/86cd) says: 'O beloved, there is only one Supreme Principle and that is the pervasive Lord (vibhu) who is the foundation of the Liṅga.' The same line in the ṢSS reads: 'O beloved, there is only one supreme principle in the world and (its) form is the Liṅga.' The commentary says: 'The solitary Liṅga is the one reality (tattva) in the form of a Liṅga' (ekaliṅgaṁ ekaiva tattvaṁ liṅgākāram).

According to the KMT (10/134cd-137):

> The bliss of Kula is vast and pervasive as the sea and graces everybody, including those Śaivites (liṅgin) who wear Liṅgas. The true disciple should always adorn the teaching established in the secret practice (guptācāra). He may have an unmanifest or manifest Liṅga. Whatever his Liṅga is, he should not abandon it. Everything flows into the Kula tradition just as the water that falls from the sky flows by means of rivers into the sea. All those that wear a Liṅga (liṇgin) (eventually reach the Kula tradition) because there the Command operates in a directly visible form.

Although Kaulas are Śāktas, they maintain a close link with their Śaiva roots even as they interiorize them. Thus the Jñānakārikā (3/8-9c) explains:

> That is said to be the Liṅga by means of which all things are dissolved away (laya). This is said to be the Kaulika Liṅga, not one made of stone, gold or silver. It is said to be the Liṅga born of the body. It is one and without a second. The solitary Liṅga has (thus) been explained.

59. The commentary on the ṢSS says: 'the bunch of flowers (ṣaṇḍa) is the Self in the lotus of the heart.' (puṣpaṣaṇḍaṁ hṛdayābjagatātmā [k kh: -bja-gamātmānaṁ])

60. The other sources read śaktir ādyā – 'primordial energy' for śaktibīja- 'seed of energy'. The male and female forms Haṁsa and Haṁsā are both attested. Usually the male form denotes the deity in the form of the individual soul who inhabits and vitalizes the psychophysical organism. Thus Haṁsa is at times equated with one and at others with the latter, or both. The female Haṁsā is his power as the Transmental source of Speech and the vital breath that transports it. Here it seems that the two have been associatively identified.

61. Haṁsa – lit. ‘a wild goose’ – is one of the many words for Unstruck Sound (anāhata nāda). The word also denotes the Self. In early Vedic literature it is a name of the Sun as a visible form of the Supreme Being who, like a goose, swims in the ocean of the sky. Sāyana derives the word Haṁsa from ‘hanti’ in the sense of ‘gati-‘, meaning ‘motion’. Thus ‘Haṁsa’ is the sun, which is in perpetual motion. The Haṁsavatī Ṛk of the Ṛgveda (4/4/40/5) is a famous eulogy of the Sun as Haṁsa (it is also found in Yajurveda 10/24 and 12/24 and Kaṭhopaniṣad 2). It is quoted in the Mahānirvāṇatantra (1972: 97-8, verses 5/196-197):

> The Supreme Haṁsa dwells in the brilliant heaven; as Vasu*[1] It moves throughout the space between Heaven and Earth. It dwells on the earth in the form of the Vedic Fire and in the Sacrificer*[2] and is honoured in the guest. It is in the household Fire and in the consciousness of man and dwells in the honoured region. It resides in Truth (ṛta) and in the Ether.
>
> It is born in water and in the rays of light in Truth, and in the Eastern Hill where the sun rises. Such is the great Aditya, the Truth, which cannot be bound or concealed, the great consciousness who dwelleth everywhere: Brahman.

*1 It is Vasu because it dwells (vas) everywhere, as does the Wind, Vāyu, on the surface of the earth (bhuvaḥ) or sky (antarīkṣa). There are eight Vasus – Āditya (Sun), Candra (Moon), Varuṇa (Sky), Aruṇa (Dawn), Ahaḥ (Day), Rātri (Night), Sandhyā (Juncture of the Day) and Dharma.
*2 The Sacrificer is on the altar of the Vedic Fire. The Sacrificer and the Fire are one, and Haṁsa is in both.

The commentary on the Ṣaṭcakranirūpaṇa (Woodroffe 1981: 437; cf. ibid. 492) quotes the Prapañcasāra (close to but different from PrSā 1/41-44) as saying:

> She whose name is tattva is pure consciousness (cinmātra): when by proximity to the Light she wishes to create, she becomes massive (ghaṇībhūya) and assumes the form of Bindu. Then in time she divides herself in two: the one on the right is Bindu, and that on the left side is visarga. The right and left are respectively distinguished as male and female. Haṁ is the Bindu, and Saḥ is the visarga; Bindu is Puruṣa and visarga is Prakṛti; Haṁsaḥ is the the union of Prakṛti and Puruṣa, who pervade the universe.

This union of Puruṣa and Prakṛti (the immanent aspects of Śiva and Śakti) takes place in the Triangle that according to the later Tantras is in the Thousand-petalled Lotus in the head where it burns 'like the flame of a lamp'. It is said to be the 'inner Self' (antarātmā) which is distinguished from the 'individual Self' (jīvātmā). The three points of which it is comprised make the Triangle of Kāmakalā (ibid. 492). The two Points (bindu) of visarga symbolize the Moon and Sun and are in the upper corners of the triangle. Bindu symbolizes Śiva who is, therefore, Fire and is in the bottom corner of the Triangle. Thus Haṁsa is both the container – that is, the Triangle and the contained. In the fettered state, the two aspects of Haṁsaḥ are divided. Then Haṁ is the outgoing breath (niśvāsa) both of man and, at the cosmic level, it is that of the 'Supreme and is the duration of the life of Brahmā the Creator . . . and Saḥ is the indrawing breath by which creation returns to Prakṛti.' (ibid. 492 fn. 1)

The reader is referred to a description of the Wheel of Unstruck Sound further ahead in our text (36/54-64). This too is located in the Heart and consists of a blue eight-petalled lotus to which are added the knot of the calyx and the stem (nāli), thus making ten parts. In these ten places resound ten forms of Unstruck Sound, which are aspects of Haṁsa – the aggregated individual Self – 'the bunch of flowers' or aspects in the lotus of the Heart. The tenth is the Transmental, the highest form of Haṁsa (see KMT 11/21cd-27, ŚM 16/27-32, ṢSS 18/311-338 and commentary). In this context Haṁsa is the god who resides in the vital breath. Creating and destroying in harmony with the rhythm of the breath, he resides there as Time. We have just examined his 'undifferentiated' (niṣkala) aspect as the Triangle of energies. This is his 'differentiated' (sakala) aspect as the Unstruck Sound of the breath in the form of the mantra HAṀ that resounds in inhalation and SAḤ (or SO) that can be heard during exhalation. Residing in the body of all living (= breathing) beings in this form, Haṁsa is their very life (jīvana). Thus he is simultaneously both Śiva and Jīva – the individual soul made of the life-force of the vital breath who roams in the body, mind and senses – impelled by his desires throughout this life and then onto another. Thus in the ŚM Bhairava says to the goddess:

O Laghvī, I reside there in the form of Haṁsa, present within that which is very subtle. (Haṁsa) has no wings or feet, no body or beak. Established in the vital breath he is the Great Lord and, as Time (kālarūpin), he moves. (Only) those with the eye of knowledge can see this; the deluded cannot. Residing there, he generates (kalate) the vital breath of living beings 21,600 times every night and day. When the breath exits, it is located at the 'End of the Twelve'; when it enters, it is in the ten (i.e. in the two groups of five). O mother Kujā, by virtue of the Yoga of this sequence I emanate the entire universe and then again withdraw it.

tatrāhaṁ [kh: tatrahaṁ] laghvi [g: missing] saṁsthito haṁsarūpī [g: -svarūpī ca]
susūkṣmagaḥ [kh: -sukṣmaga] |

pakṣapādavinirmukto dehacaṁcuvivarjitaḥ ||
carate prāṇago [kh: -gau-] bhūtvā kālarūpī [k: kalā-; g: kālarūpā] maheśvaraḥ |
naivaṁ [k kh: naiva] paśyanti [g: paśyati] te mūḍhāḥ paśyanti jñānacakṣuṣaḥ ||
tatrasthaḥ [k: -sthaṁ; g: -sthe] kalate prāṇaṁ [g: jñānaṁ] ahorātraṁ tu prāṇinām |
ekaviṁśasahasrāṇi [k, kh: ekavaṁśat-] ṣaṭśatena [k: ṣaḍaitena; kh: ṣaṭsatena; g; ṣachatena] samādhikāḥ ||
ahorātreṇa prāṇasya kalate [k: kalāste; g: kulate] prāṇarūpiṇām |
nirgame dvādaśāntasthaḥ [kh: -ntasthaṁ; g: -ntaṣṭhaṁ] praveśe ca dvipaṁcake [k kh g: -kaṁ] ||
anena kramayogena ahaṁ kālaḥ [kh: kāra; g: kārā] kujāmbike |
sṛjāmi sakalaṁ viśvaṁ saṁharāmi punar hy ahaṁ || ŚM 20/156-160

62. KuKauM and ṢSS: ‘Thus this is said to be the act of wandering in the group of eight sacred fields.’

63. Concerning the sacred seats and their varieties, see intro. vol 1, p. 549.

64. KMT: ‘(Their) names, synonyms and denotations differ in each scripture.’

65. This place name is spelt variously. In the same passage in the ṢSS it is spelt Kollāśaila and in the KMT Kolāgirya. Below in verse 14/93 it is spelt Kaullagiri. Other spellings include Kollāgiri (16/35cd-36ab) and Kollagiri.

66. The place where Sound is located is the Cavity of Brahmā at the top of the head. The Teacher’s Mouth, as we have seen (note to 14/58cd-59ab), is located at the End of the Twelve. Therefore, the Place of Power is presumably somewhere between these two. See chapter 16 below for a detailed treatment of these eight places and their relationship to the eight Mothers and the other beings who reside there.

67. Our text locates these eight places along the vertical axis that extends from the navel, where Kuṇḍalinī rises, up to the End of the Twelve where she merges into the supreme state. Thus, by doing the round of these inner places, the votary follows the rise and descent of Kuṇḍalinī. We have seen that the Wheel of the Heart is a lotus with eight petals. Presumably, then, these eight places are also projected onto the petals and the soul wanders from one to another, reproducing the circular motion along the axis of the body in the heart.

68. KMT: ‘are grounded in the individual soul’ (pudgalāśritāḥ)

69. ṢSS: ‘the inner and outer states are in the inner and outer aspect’. Compare: ‘The Lord has said in the Brahmayāmala that the outer reality without the inner and the inner without the outer does not reach perfection. The inner reality is illumined by knowledge and action.’ TĀ 15/43cd-44.

70. If the yogi can perceive his inner, innate purity by means of the mind, that is, the inner organ of perception, he will also be able to perceive the rays of its radiance outside. This perception is in itself liberating. The rays of divine grace grant him the union that takes place between Siddhas and Yoginīs, which mirrors the one that takes place between Śiva and Śakti. Moreover, they grant him caru, that is, the sacred food Yoginīs offer to Siddhas as do the Mothers in their sacred seats. By eating with and uniting with the Yoginīs, the adept acquires yogic powers along with other accomplishments and ultimately attains liberation. See below the last verse of this chapter.

71. This reading is supported by the MSs and most of the other sources. I suppose, therefore, that this was the original reading. It is possible that an early corruption generated this doubtful reading. Thus MS G of the TS, which is the original source, reads vā pāsakaṁ which may well have developed into the reading vā pāśavīṁ vidhim of the KMT and other sources. However, MS K of the TS reads: pāyāsavaṁ [sic. pāyasāsavaṁ] priye i.e. '(they bestow) milk and wine'. This reading makes considerably more sense and may well have been the original one in the TS. Nonetheless, as the other sources and all the MSs of our text indicate the other reading, it has been accepted.

72. I have emended to the reading in all the other sources. The MSs of the KuKh read svasthaṁ, the 'self-established' reality or 'that which is established in itself'. One wonders whether to emend to 'svasthyaṁ' – 'health'.

73. The goddesses, luminous and gracious, are the rays of the light of the yogi's inner purity. They are the rays of luminous energy of the radiance of that inner light. In that state, they converge onto him, within him and outside in the ordered configurations of their maṇḍalas. But when he is impure, they are dispersed and disordered; therefore, he cannot perceive them. Thus, although he can see the outer things of the world around him, he is spiritually blind.

74. All the other sources read: 'The power of that (Vidyā) has been taught without their grace.' But this makes no sense.

75. This place is Vārāṇasī. We find two spellings in the texts of this place name, viz. Varuṇā and Varaṇā. See the critical apparatus of the edition.

76. Although all the MSs testify to the reading Muṇḍiṇī (the Nun), I have chosen to emend to Śuṇḍinī which is the name of the Yoginī according to the other sources. See critical apparatus of the edition.

77. See above note 65 for variant spellings of this place name.

78. Śilpinī is the full name of the Yoginī here. See the critical apparatus of the edition and cf. below 16/11.

79. Is this a variant form of the name Kauṭakī (the Poacherwoman)? The reading in the KuKauM 'Kauśikī' seems plausible but is unsupported by the manuscripts of the KuKh and other sources.

80. The KMT (25/109cd-116 = ṢSS 49/131cd-139) continues from here with a passage that has been omitted in the KuKh. It is worth recording because it supplies an interesting example of how sacred sites can be transposed not only from place to place and into the body (both well-known phenomena) but also into places the home and household articles, which is less well known. The transposition of these sites into the home implies the presence there of their resident deities as well. In this case, they are the Eight Mothers who are still worshipped by the Newars of the Kathmandu Valley, both in their homes and in the civic space. The passage is quoted in full in the intro. vol. p. 450-451.

81. The short commentary on the Parātriṁśikā explains that the Gesture of the Kiss – Cumbaka Mudrā, is essentially a form of Krama Mudrā. As the Kashmiri teachers explain it, Krama Mudrā is a process (krama) that is experienced in a highly developed state of consciousness in which the inner reality within subjective consciousness progressively fuses with the outer reality of objective consciousness, resulting in a state of oneness (sāmarasya). The Gesture of the Kiss is said to be like the mouth of Śiva engaged in kissing Śakti. The totality of external objects is present in the union that takes place in this way as pure Being (PTLV p. 12). Participating in this elevated spiritual state, the yogi experiences the union of opposites as the identity of inner and outer, of manifestation and pure Being. It is the experience of their mutual penetration in association with the spontaneous rise of Kuṇḍalinī when the breath ceases during elevated states of spiritual absorption (samādhi) (PTLV note 184). In other words, the Tantra is telling us that the adept should realise the true spiritual nature of these places both in the outside world (where they are geographically located and wherever they have been transposed) and within himself. In this way he unifies all that is outside and within.

82. ṢSS: 'One should wander through the places in the body.'

83. Both the KuKauM and the ṢSS add a break here by inserting an extra verse in which the goddess asks Bhairava a question; what follows is the answer. Here, as in numerous other instances, the KuKh follows the KMT rather than the ṢSS, even though it also occasionally modifies the readings of the former.

84. KMT et al.: '(which is) the supreme means (to attain) flight.'

85. TS reads khaṭṭate yena – that 'by which (the body and its parts) are screened or covered'.

86. The KMT (25/125) says: 'O fair-hipped lady, he is called 'one who bears an ascetic's staff' (khaṭvāṅgin) because he (acts as a support), like a bed (khaṭvāyate), (for) the head as well as for the other limbs, major and minor.'
KuKauM and ṢSS: 'It is called the ascetic's staff (khaṭvāṇga) because it (acts as a support), like a bed (khaṭvāyate) in all the body, that is, in the head and the rest, and within the limbs, major and minor.' The commentary on the ṢSS says: 'The ascetic's staff, like a bed, sustains the body.' (khaṭvāṅgaḥ khaṭvāvad aṅgadhārakaḥ).

The two versions combined explain that the ascetic's staff is a symbol of the vital force that penetrates all the limbs and junctures of the body, thereby holding them together. Thus it both pierces and sustains.

87. The commentary on the ṢSS says: 'the ascetic who observes a vow of silence (maunī) abides hidden in the heart (hṛdayagūḍhaka).'

88. The other sources say: 'Thus I have said that the wandering of the individual soul is due to (this) impetus.' The ṢSSṭ simply explains that: 'one who is (charged with) impetus moves swiftly' (vegī śīghracārī). 'Vega' – 'impetus' is the inner conscious force that is exerted on the energies of the mind and senses to impel them to action. Also called Brahmāvega, it is the spontaneous exertion of consciousness that impels the expansion and outpouring of its energies, both individually in the body and collectively throughout the universe. The individual soul who wishes to journey to the inner sites within his body must apply this force consciously to reach them.

89. All the other sources read 'amā' in place of 'anāmā'. But this does not make much difference Amā, the first digit of the Moon is, as we have seen, one of the many ways of referring to the goddess who is Beyond Mind, the Nameless.

90. All the MSs read 'saṁcintayet' – 'should reflect'.

91. All the sources including the MSs of our text read the masculine 'tasmin' which agrees with 'binduke'. The TS, however, reads the feminine 'tasyām' which agrees with an implicit 'amāyām'. So in the first case the Self wanders 'within' the Drop, and in the second within Amā. The latter interpretation is apparently supported by the commentary on the ṢSS which says that: 'the hand-drum (ḍamaru) releases sound (ru) in the energy of sound (ḍakalā)." (ḍamaruḥ ḍakalāyāṁ (MSs: kalāyaṁ) muñcati ruṁ (MSs: ru) rāvam)

92. The KMT (25/128cd-130) reads: 'The supreme and subtle energy called Amā transports (the flow) of the nectar of immortality (amṛta). The Self wanders within it and (so) emits Sound within the Drop (of nectar). Established in emission, the Great Self resounds and expounds. Thus it is said to be the hand drum within (the reality) that is devoid of mind (amanaska) and perfect (nirāmaya).'

93. The commentary on the ṢSS says that: 'the fetter is Mayā, that is, Kuṇḍalinī' (pāśaṁ māyā kuṇḍalinī).

94. KMT (25/130cd-133ab) and TS (15/105-106): 'Established in the Void (kha), Mohanī cuts the fetters to pieces with the weapon of emission (visarga). O Kuleśvarī, she is pure (TS: moves downwards) like a sword and so, in the middle of the Skyfarer (khaga i.e. Śiva), she has attained (gatā) union with the Brahman and (there that) imperishable energy strives intensely (ghaṭate). Thus, O mistress of the gods, it is called the sword.'

KuKauM and ṢSS: Established in the Void (kha), Mohanī cuts the fetters to pieces with the weapon of emission (visarga). O Kuleśvarī, in the middle of the Sky (kha i.e. Śiva) she cuts all things to pieces and (so that) imperishable energy has attained (gatā) union with the Brahman in the sword (KuKauM: and (so) that imperishable, primordial energy that has attained union with the Brahman is the sword). Thus, O mistress of the gods, it is called the sword.

The commentary on the ṢSS says: ‘The sword (khaḍga) is that (energy) which moves (gacchati) in the Sky (kha), that is, the firmament like a wizard (ḍamaravat) (khaḍgaḥ khaṁ vyoma ḍamaravad gacchati)

95. The edition of the KMT reads tripathā cakramaṇḍale and the TS, KuKauM and ṢSS all read vaktramaṇḍale which I propose to emend to vakramaṇḍala – lit. the ‘crooked maṇḍala’ i.e. the triangle. Thus we may understand the text of the TS and the other sources (see KMT 25/133cd-134) to mean: ‘The Supreme Energy is one only and on three paths (tripathā) within the Crooked Maṇḍala (cakra). (She is equally) Vāmā, Jyeṣṭhā and Raudrī and (her) nature (is tripartate as) will, knowledge and action. The Trident is called the Triple Path and the Triple Energy (triśakti), in due order’.

96. These lines originate in the Tantrasadbhāva, which is a Trika Tantra. In that context, what is meant is that the Trident which is the focus of the Trika maṇḍala, consists of the same three energies that are represented in the Triangle. The inner Trident is the Triangle of energies. In the context of the Kubjikā Tantras, as we have seen at length, the Triangle is ‘vakraliṅga’ – the Crooked Liṅga in the core of the Kramamaṇḍala (see below 26/4). The sides of this, originally Trika, triangle are lined with the energies of the letters of the alphabet (the vowels, Ka > Ta and Tha > Ha). These are the domains of Brahmā, Viṣṇu and Maheśvara whose consorts Vāmā, Jyeṣṭhā and Raudrī, (see below 26/7-8) govern the powers of will, knowledge and action, respectively. These three energies constitute a standard triad called triśakti – ‘Triple Energy’ that commonly appears in Śaiva texts, Purāṇic as well as Tantric. This triad is easily identified with the three goddesses of the Trika, Parā, Parāparā and Aparā, goddesses well known to the Kubjikā Tantras. Thus to a learned initiate in the Kubjikā tradition, this passage would have suggested that the Triangle, which is the core of the Kramamaṇḍala of the Kubjikā Tantras, should be identified with the prongs of the trident that is the basic form of the Trika maṇḍala.

A section of the Siddhayogeśvarīmata deals with maṇḍalas of which, it declares, there are one hundred varieties. The SYM considers three among them to be the most important main *maṇḍala*s of the system it expounds. All three represent Tridents — one with just a single trident in the centre, the other two with three and nine (TĀ 31/7ab-10ab). Abhinavagupta describes the way the maṇḍala of ‘three tridents’ (tritriśūlābja) should be drawn according to the Trikasadbhāva (TĀ 31/10-41ab. See Sanderson 1986: 195 for a drawing of this maṇḍala. The same is reproduced in Gnoli 1999: 613). He also describes the drawing of the maṇḍala of the single trident (triśūlābja) according to the Mālinīvijayatantra (MV 9/6-31; TĀ 31/62-85ab. See Sanderson 1986: 171).

Abhinava also describes (TĀ 15/295ab-328ab) the form of the Trident when it is projected into the body. The prongs of the Trident are the seats on which the three Trika goddesses and their consorts are seated (for an illustration see Sanderson 1986: 187). They extend out twelve fingerspans above the head, up to the End of the Twelve. This is where, according to Trika sources, the Transmental is located. The Kubjikā Tantras claim their teachings to be superior to others because they lead to the Transmental; similarly, in this context, Abhinava affirms this with regards to the teachings of the Trika (see Gnoli 1999 p. 368 note 5). Something of this inner, originally Trika Trident is retained in the Kubjikā Tantras. In her analysis of the description of Khecarīcakra in chapter sixteen of the KMT, Heilijgers-Seleen points out that this can also be projected onto a trident that extends along the length of the body in a manner similar to the Trika Trident. The three outer maṇḍalas that constitute the Khecarīcakra, namely those of the Sun, Moon and Fire, correspond to the Three Principles of the Self, Knowledge and Śiva. The first encompasses the principles from Earth up to Nature. The second contains the principles from Māyā to Sadāśiva. The third contains Śiva and Śakti. Unlike the Trika Trident, the prongs of this one extend only up to the Cavity of Brahmā which is identified as the source of the Cosmic Fire (vaḍavāmukha). On top of this is the Original (ādi) Maṇḍala which is the basic Triangle. The goddess in the middle of this maṇḍala sits on the Trident, the prongs of which constitute its corners. In the KMT (16/82cd-84) we read:

> The goddess's body, beautiful in all its parts and produced from the *maṇḍala*s is this, (her) supreme Śāmbhava form (mūrti), the maṇḍala that sustains itself. (The goddess) whose body is supported by the *maṇḍala*s is in the centre of the *maṇḍala*s. She is self-creating and self-destroying, the Kula lady of the *maṇḍala*s; in the form of the Vaḍavā fire, she sits on the Trident seat.

A clue as to the form the trident linked with the triangle assumes in the Kubjikā Tantras is supplied by the commentary of the ṢSS which states: 'The bearer of the Trident (triśūlin) is Vāmā, Jyeṣṭhā and Raudrī.' Thus, the triangle itself is understood to be a trident and the energies at the corners, that is, at the tips of the prongs, themselves carry tridents. We do in fact find a representation of this sort of triangular Meruprastāra in the manuscripts of the Ṭīkā in which tridents are attached to each of the corners. Thus the three goddesses carry tridents when projected into the corners of the Triangle as well.

97. The commentary on the ṢSS says: 'The shield (is the energy) that wanders in the Void.' (kheṭakaṁ khe aṭati). The word 'kheṭaka-' is here fancifully derived from 'khe' – lit. 'in the Sky' and 'aṭaka' – lit. 'wanderer'. Thus the shield symbolizes the goddess as the Transmental that flows through the Void of Śiva's divine consciousness in the End of the Twelve. In other words the shield is Khecarī – the Skyfarer.

98. Presumably, the first two letters of the word for 'arrow' – nārāca – are associated with energy Nirodhinī which, like an arrow, pierces through the Five Causes. An energy that goes by this name is among the series of energies that mark the ascent of Sound up to the Transmental. The function of this energy, as its name suggests, is to obstruct. It does so in two ways. Although it obstructs the yogi's ascent, once beyond this energy, it assists him by obstructing the forces that drag him down. Thus, when the yogi is in the grip of this energy, he neither rises nor falls.

The commentary on the ṢSS says that: 'the arrow is the piercer of the Five Causes' (nārācaṁ pañcakāraṇavedhakam). In this context it appears that Nirodhinī, the piercing energy of the arrow, is Kuṇḍalinī. If so, this is admittedly, a rare identification, but can be explained. As the energy of Nirodhinī (Kuṇḍalinī) rises through the Five Causes, that is, Brahmā, Viṣṇu, Rudra, Īśvara and Sadāśiva who reside in the five Wheels in the body starting from the navel, she pierces through them, awakening their latent power. Moreover, their energized, awakened condition is fixed and maintained by means of Nirodhinī.

As all the sources, including the TS, agree on the reading nirodhinyā, it has not been emended. Nonetheless, one wonders whether to emend to nibodhinyā it. Then the energy would not be one who 'obstructs', but rather would be one that 'awakens', which makes more sense. This emendation finds some support in the reading of the MSs nibodhayanti – 'they [sic: it] awakens'. Perhaps the redactor did try to make this change. But although in some respects it makes more sense, we lose the obvious association between the arrow and its 'piercing' action. Finally worth noting is that an energy called Nibodhikā does exist. According to the section of the Tattvacintāmaṇi called Ṣaṭcakranirūpaṇa (Description of the Six Wheels) by the 16th century Bengali Pūrṇānanda, the Thousand-spoked Wheel (sahasrāra) in the head is the Supreme Point (parabindu). This is the union of Śiva and Śakti and the aggregate of the phonemic energies contained in Kuṇḍalinī who consists of two primary energies. One is the lunar energy of the First Digit of the Moon (amākalā), which is known as the Energy (kalā, śakti) of Nirvāṇa, and the other is Nibodhikā.

99. The commentary on the ṢSS simply says: 'The knife severs the fetters' (kartarī pāśacchedanī). All the other sources read tattvāni here for 'kramatritaya'. Although the latter reading is not grammatically correct (but could be easily corrected to, for example, kramatrayaṁ tu) it seems unlikely that this is a scribal error. Moreover, there need be no reason to doubt that the former reading is indeed the one of the source text. Thus, I presume that a redactor has altered the original reading to one which makes more sense (how can principles of existence be freed?) in general and is adapted, in particular, to the cult of the Kubjikā Tantras with its three lineages.

100. (That energy) is the goddess who, /TS: present in the body and each limb (TS: aṅgapratyaṅgagā) /KMT and ṢSS: present in each body (aṅgamaṅgagatā), is established externally and internally.

101. TS and ṢSS: 'Residing in the abode of the goad (aṅkuśasthānam-aśritā), (this energy is) constantly active; both on the seat and the bed, (it) runs, rolls and blocks.

A small change of gender (of –aśritā to –aśritaḥ) of the reading in the KMT transforms the subject of this sentence from the (female) energy into the (male) adept who does all this. But this seems to be a less satisfactory reading and makes this verse even more obscure. The commentary on the ṢSS says: 'The goad moves in the body like a goad. The Wheel has many (kinds of) movements' (aṁkuśaṁ aṅge aṁkuśavac carati | cakraṁ cakrabahugati).

The sense seems to be that the elephant goad symbolizes the energy of the vital breath. The semi-circular hook of the goad mirrors the shape of the flux of the breath in and out of the body. All versions agree that the inner energy of the breath is also present outside the body as the pervasive vitality that gives life to all things. The version in our text stresses that this vital energy comes from the universal source of all things present in the body. The vital force acts and moves in numerous ways even as it rotates like a wheel in and through the movement of the breath. Thus it 'runs' – moving swiftly through the activity of the senses and mind that it vitalizes. It 'rolls' in the movement of the breath. It 'blocks' its motion periodically and, with the rhythm of the breathing and the entire physiology of the body, it 'contracts' and 'expands'.

102. The commentary on the ṢSS says: "The pestle is Sound which, like a pestle, breaks (through)" (muśalaṁ nādo muśalavad bhedayati). Cf. Above 13/61cd-64 where the goddess Parā – Supreme – is described as 'straight'. She resides in the root of the energy of Khecarī in the Wheel of the Point (binducakra) at the top of the head from where she is led to the Supreme Sky. Perhaps it is this Point that the Sound breaks through to travel upwards. Just as the Īśvara principle governs the Point (bindu), Sadāśiva corresponds to Sound (nāda), which here is symbolized by the pestle.

103. Instead of 'supreme eye of the mind' (pareṇa manacakṣuṣā), KuKauM and ṢSS read 'with the supreme mind in an instant' (pareṇa manasā kṣaṇāt). The commentary on the ṢSS says that: 'The bow pierces the target that is the Nameless. (dhanuḥ lakṣyaṁ anākhyaṁ vedhayati).

104. kaṭṭārikā – this is a short, flat, semi-circular sacrificial knife. It is often coupled with a skull bowl that is held by the deity in the opposite hand.

105. The combined variants of the other sources (i.e. TS, KMT and ṢSS) says: 'O lady of good vows (KMT: O lady of fair sound), the sacrificial knife, supreme (transcendent) and inferior (immanent is formed) by the instrument (of mantra) that ends with ṬAPHA (KMT: PHAṬ) that has been reversed (viparyasthena, KMT: established in emission – visargathena), present within the causes (KMT: forest) and conjoined with the two seasons (KMT, ṢSS: purified by the two seasons).

On the basis of the variant readings of the other sources, one could suggest that the 'instrument of mantra' in this case is PHAṬ. This syllable is derived from the sound of something breaking. It is charged with the energy of the 'upper' (ūrdhva) Kuṇḍalinī that, 'facing downwards', is situated in the End of the Twelve. It is 'purified by (or: conjoined with) the two seasons'. These are, I suppose, the two breaths, inhalation and exhalation. Below (17/23), we read that two lunar fortnights (pakṣa) are perceived during the two seasons. Perhaps what is meant here is that the adept should first exhale and then inhale consciously. Then, uttering PHAṬ by exhaling forcefully, it is projected down from above and, transported by the force of the current of the emission of energy, it smashes through the Five Causes situated in the Wheels in the body below it.

The ṢSS reads 'kṣurikā' instead of 'kaṭṭārikā' and so the commenatry says: 'The razor destroys the causes (kṣurikā kāraṇānāṁ antakī).'

106. ṢSS: 'within your mace.'

107. All the MSs read alipārthivam – 'the earthen liquor'.

108. The commentary on the ṢSS says: 'The mace (gadā) moves (gacchati) and gives (dadāti).' The mace is another symbol of Kuṇḍalinī. This time it is Kuṇḍalinī who has traveled up to the top of the head and there gives the adept the life-giving and inebriating nectar of realisation.

109. KMT: Power always leads the Self (to higher levels) by the condition in which (the Self) is established in power. O mistress of the gods, (the adept) is penetrated by the Yoga of that state / TS: (the adept achieves) the accomplishment of the Yoga of that state / by virtue (of that) power.'

ṢSS: Power, because its nature is power, always attains the Self (KuKauM: The Self is always attained by (the adept) whose nature is established in power). O mistress of the gods, (the adept) is pure due to the Yoga of that state by virtue (of that) power.

The commentary on the ṢSS says: The javelin is the attainment (achieved) by means of power (śaktiḥ sāmarthyena yā prāptiḥ).

As the word for 'javelin' is śakti, the association between them is obvious. The javelin symbolizes the power of Kuṇḍalinī by virtue of which the practicioner attains the elevated states of Yoga and ultimate realisation. It is both the spiritual power by which one attains the realisation of Self and that accomplishment – siddhi – itself.

110. TS, ṢSS and KuKauM: The Straight Line is like a stick. The imperishable is the plane at the End of Sound. O lady of good vows, (one) should travel along that path by means of the foundation of the Stick (daṇḍādhāra) / KMT: one who carries the Stick should travel by that path.

Ghurye (1995 : 99) writes: 'It is tempting to see in the traditional 'daṇḍa', staff, of the standard sannyāsis, described by Manu and in the Upaniṣads . . . their first weapon of offence and defence over and above its being their symbol.

Whether the origin of the arms-bearing practice of some of the ascetics can or cannot be traced to their original 'daṇḍa', it is clear that some Śaiva sectarians as can be judged to have been ascetics carried regular weapons for fighting with the denizens of some supernatural world who invariably attempted to spoil them of their coveted mystic victories and attainments.' See above, note to 14/34-36ab.

111. The ṢSS along with the KMT and the KuKauM reads 'maṇḍalākārasaṁsthitam' – 'established in the form of a maṇḍala'. However, the commentary on the ṢSS implicitly supports the reading of the TS and the emendation made to the text by saying: the waterpot is the ornament of (the god) Brahmā or of the body (kula) (kamaṇḍalu brahmabhūṣaṇaṁ kulabhūṣaṇaṁ vā).

112. KMT: The foremost (energy) of Kula (i.e. the body), supreme and pure, is established in the heart of all the Path / ṢSS and KuKauM: in the heart which is pure in every way

113. The waterpot is a symbol of the body (ka) which is the ornment (maṇḍa) of the spritual energy that it enshrines. This energy – Kuṇḍalinī – is present in the Self, which is in the 'heart', that is, in the innermost core of the embodied soul.

114. All sources insert an extra line here which says so much that it appears probable that it was omitted either due to an oversight of the redactor or because it was missing in the MS of his source text. The edited version reads: samayinyagatā sūkṣmā kalā viśvasya nāyikā: the subtle energy that is the leader of the universe, common (to all the energies) has come (in these forms).

The weapons may be external, that is, actually carried by the renunciate initiate. However, it is essential that the inner energy they each symbolize be actively functioning within the body of the one who bears them. Indeed, this alone is sufficient. Again, it matters little which of these attributes the ascetic may carry around with him or experiences inwardly; the energy of each one is essentially the energy that is common to all of them.

115. The TS adds two lines here that are not found in the other sources. They explain how two topics – the weapons just discussed and the Kaula consorts which follows – are related to one another. As they are an important part of the original text, it appears that they were not omitted intentionally. As they are not found in the KuKh, the source which the redactor was drawing from may not have been the TS. These lines refer to the weapons and their energies:

They are not successful without a consort (dūtī). Therefore one should (practice together) with a consort. She should be known in the Kaulika tradition to be both external and internal.

In the following verses the types of consorts are listed in their external form. In the next chapter the inner energies they embody are described. Just as the energies of the weapons are all essentially the same energy of the goddess, the same is true of the inner energies of the consorts. One view is that when celebrating Kaula rites, the adept should be assisted by a consort – dūtī. According to Jayaratha, 'no rite can be celebrated with success according to the Kula method without a dūtī' (commentary on TĀ 1/13). But here the view is, as with the ascetic's weapons, the consort need not be externally present if the energy within the adept's body which she arouses, and which is her most essential nature, is functioning.

116. The adept and his consort imitate the primordial couple, Śiva and Śakti. By uniting, they participate in their union. Thus they mend the original split which brought about their individual identities. But in order for this to happen they must share a proximity to each other in consciousness which is close enough for their union to become fusion. They must be closely related just as Śiva and Śakti are even when they are separated. The goddess originates from the god as one half of his body or as an emanation of his power. Thus she is sometimes portrayed as his daughter, as is the case with Bhadrakālī who in the Mārkaṇḍeyapurāṇa figures as Rudra's daughter, or Mṛtyukanyā, who is Yama's daughter. According to the myths of the Paścimāmnāya, she is Mālini, born of the god Śabdarāśi. At the same time, she is the Mother of all, including the god. Sometimes the goddess is the god's sister. Durgā, for example, is said to have been incarnated as the eighth issue of Devāki, Kṛṣṇa's mother, and so she is his sister.

117. The reward of those who unite with a Kaula consort is the sacrificial food they eat together. By eating it the votary attains yogic and magical powers, including the liberating power of mystical flight. But in order to do so he must set aside considerations of caste and status that prevent eating together.

NOTES OF THE SANSKRIT TEXT OF CHAPTER FIFTEEN

1. KuKauM: श्रीदेव्युवाच (घ्: श्रीदेव्यावाच; ङ्: श्रीदेव्यू–); TS: देव्युवाच; KMT: श्रीकुब्जिका उवाच; ṢSS: श्रीदेव्युवाच. The original source of the first 13 verses of this chapter, like most of the previous one, is the TS. These were incorporated in the KMT from which, it seems, they have been drawn. They are also found in the KuKauM and the ṢSS. In these sources there is no break between chapters here. As in the previous chapter, the speakers are reversed. In the other sources the goddess asks questions and the god replies.

2. All MSs: कीदृशं; KuKauM ग्: कुछितं; ङ्: कुञ्चितं. This emendation agrees with the reading in the other sources. 3. KuKauM, KMT, ṢSS and TS: देव

4. ङ्: अयुक्त 5. KuKauM and MSs क्, घ्, ङ्: पशूना

6. KuKauM ख्: यद्; ङ्: य 7. TS: समाचार आख्यात:. M → N. See above, note to 1/7d.

8. घ्: –री; KuKauM and TS: –र:; KMT and ṢSS: –र

9. In place of this line the other sources read: यतीनां तु यदा सो हि तदाश्चर्यं महाप्रभो।

10. घ्, च्, छ्: –वक्रोवाच; ङ्: missing; KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS: श्रीभैरव उवाच; TS: भैरव उवाच

11. All MSs except क्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –प्रज्ञ; ṢSS and TS: साधु साधु महाप्राज्ञ (TS: महाप्राज्ञे); KMT: साधु देवि महाप्राज्ञे 12. ग्, छ्, ज्: प्रस्नं. M → N.

13. KuKauM: यतीनां (घ्: यतीतां; ङ्: पतीनां) सा (ख्, ग्: नास्ति) साधु (ङ्: स्नाधु) देवि (ख्, ग्: देवेशि) यदाज्ञा: (ख्: * * ; ग्: वदाज्ञा तु; घ्, ङ्: यदाज्ञा) अध्यात्मकं (घ्: * * (?) त्मकं) सुदुर्लभम् (ग्: * * * *); TS: प्रश्नानेतां (ग्: प्रस्ना–) सुदुर्लभाम्।; ṢSS: अध्यात्मं (क्, ख्: –त्म) चापि (क्, ख्: स्वपि) दुर्लभम्; KMT: एतत् सुदुर्लभम् 14. KuKauM ङ्: कयामि

15. Other sources: समासेन 16. छ्: पूर्वस्नेहात

17. Other sources: त्वत्प्रीत्या सुरनायिके 18. KMT: मातेव संस्थिता शक्तिर्जगतो; KuKauM and ṢSS: मातेव संस्थिता शक्ति: पराख्या; TS: सा त्वेव संस्थिता शक्तिर्जगतो (ग्: शक्तिज–) 19. KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS: अत्रोत्पन्नं; TS: अतोत्पन्नं

20. The regular nominative plural of मातृ is मातर:. See above, note to 5/41b.

21. KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS: तेन मातेति विख्याता कथिता परमेश्वरी (TS: मया ते परमेश्वरि)

22. KuKauM ख्: तद्भवस्था 23. क्: दूहित्री; TS: दुहितृ 24. all other sources: तु

25. KMT: दुहनात् तु. One wonders whether to emend to the regular form of the stem दोहन–, but all the sources attest this reading.

26. च्: गजत्व. See above, note to 6/134d.

27. KuKauM: होतुना (ख्, ग्, ङ्: हेतुना) जगतस्य वै (ख्, ग्: जगतस्वधै:; घ्: जगतद्यनि; ङ्: जगतस्वधै); ṢSS: दोहरा जगतश्च वै; TS: दूहता जगतस्य तु।

28. KuKauM and ṢSS: दुहिता तु KMT: दुहित्री तु; TS: दुहितृ (ग्: ?) तु (ग्: ?)

29. छ्: विजानीया; other MSs: विजानीयात्. This emendation agrees with the reading in the other sources. 30. क्: भगनी

31. All MSs: तदुच्यते; KMT: त्वथमुच्यते; KuKauM and ṢSS: त्वथ चोच्यते; TS: तु तथोच्यते 32. All MSs: हंसरूपा. This emendation agrees with both the intended meaning and the reading of all the other sources.

33. ṢSS: तथा 34. KMT: नान्येन तु सुनिर्मिता; TS: उत्पन्ना सात्मना

35. KuKauM and ṢSS: नान्येन तु विनिर्मिता

36. All MSs except क्, घ्, च्, छ्: यथाग्नि: तेजसा. This and the following two lines are missing in the KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS. Here the KuKh is following the TS. 37. TS: –व्यवस्थिता: 38. TS: चात्यास्था
39. TS: भागिनी 40. घ्, छ्: गुह्य–
41. TS ग्: स्वर्गजाता भा सूक्ष्मा नान्यन्तेनैव तिग्निधा:
42. This and the following two lines are illegiable in MS K of the TS.
43. TS ग्: स्वेतोत्पना; DS. 44. KuKauM; जातस्तेनोक्ता (ख्: जात: तेनोक्ता; ग्, घ्, ङ्: जातो तेनोक्ता); KMT and MS ग् of TS: तेनोक्ता; ṢSS क्: तनो *; ख्: तेनोक्ता
45. KuKauM: सहजा (ख्, ग्: सदृशं) कला (ख्: कु?ला)
46. KuKauM ख्, घ्, ङ्: अत्रस्था; TS ग्: अन्तिस्थो. It is tempting to emend to the regular form अन्त:स्था, but none of the manuscripts or the other sources support this emendation.
47. KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS: सर्वभूतानां; TS ग्: सर्वत्रतानां
48. TS ग्: * * * *? तुर्या; KMT, KuKauM and ṢSS: चान्तगा
49. TS: परा: 50. The TS adds two lines that are illegible.
51. KuKauM: अन्ते चैव; KMT: अन्ते च; ṢSS: अन्त्ये चैव; TS: *? च (ग्: अव्येन)
52. KuKauM, ṢSS: स्थिता 53. TS: –रि
54. क्, झ्: रजस्तम–; other MSs: रजतम–.
55. KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS: महान्ते रजकी उमे; TS: महता रजकी उमे
56. The root रञ्ज् is 1U and 4U. रजतिँते, रज्यतिँते would be the regular forms here. Cf. 15/28d.
57. क्, ज्: –न; घ्, च्, छ्: सर्वगायेन 58. All MSs except क्, छ्, ज्: स्थावरं–
59. This line is missing in the other sources.
60. ख्, घ्, ङ्, च्, छ्, ज्: रभेतंतर्गता; all other MSs: रभेतंतर्गतो. This emendation is based on the readings from the sources.
61. TS मर्मभागेन; KuKauM क्: चर्ममध्येन; ख्, ग्, घ्, ङ्: चर्मबद्धेन
62. घ्, ङ्: रु–; all other MSs: नु; TS and KMT: स्वरङ्गेन 63. All MSs: रंगिना
64. छ्: ति; KuKauM ख्: चर्मकारा तु; ग्, घ्, ङ्: चर्मकारो तु; TS: चर्मकरीति
65. ज्: + चंद्रकाति समायेन. KuKauM: वै कामा; KMT and ṢSS: चैका; TS: साध्येका
66. क्, छ्, ज्: तदोच्यते; KuKauM: मातंगी (ग्: तंगी; घ्: तमां; ङ्: तर्गां) मन (ख्, ग्, घ्, ङ्: मत) उच्यते (ङ्: स उच्यते); KMT: मातङ्गी च ततोच्यते; ṢSS: मातङ्गी अत उच्यते; TS: मातङ्गी च अथोच्यते. Cf.
15/5d. MS घ् and छ्. add: चद्रर्काति समायेन मातांगीति सदोच्यते।
67. च्: –न; all other MSs: –स्थानं. IM 6 + 7.
68. KuKauM: आत्मस्थानासने (घ्: आत्मस्थासने; ङ्: आत्मस्थानसने) नित्यं; KMT, TS: आत्मस्था
सततं नित्यं; ṢSS: आत्मस्था वसते नित्यं
69. All MSs except छ्, ज्: –पथे. KuKauM सर्वस्यान्तपदे (ङ्: सर्वस्यान्नपदे); ṢSS: पूर्वस्यानुपदे 70. TS: स्थिता: 71. ṢSS: * * *
72. KuKauM क्, ख्, घ्: दूति; ग्: ?
73. ख्, ग्: –जान्मी; ज्: –जन्मी; अग्रजन्मनी – the correct form – is found above in 14/130b. KuKauM and ṢSS read अग्रजन्मा. Cf. 15/13c.
74. All MSs: समग्राणां च 75. KuKauM ग्: अग्रोत्पन्नं; TS: अयोज्यत्व (ग्: अयोत्यन्ना)76. छ्: अगृणी; KuKauM and ṢSS: तु अग्रिणी; TS: वराग्रणी. Cf. 14/115b and 16/43b. 77. All MSs: नान्यं.
78. KuKauM क्: नात्यन्त; ख्: मात्पन्तत्र; ग्, घ्: नात्यन्तत्र; ङ्: अनान्य तन्त्र; ṢSS: नान्यत्र तु.
79. क्, ग्, घ्, च्, ज्: –मनस्यन्ते; घ्, छ्: –मन्स्यान्ते; All other sources: किञ्चिच्छक्तिराद्या

80. KuKauM क्: मनान्मनि 81. छ्, ज्: उन्मना शा; KuKauM, KMT and ṢSS:
अग्रजन्मा TS: अग्रजन्मी 82. KuKauM: ह्यमृतशालिनी (ङ्: स्यामृत–); ṢSS:
ह्यमृतशाशिनी; TS: यामृतमालिनी 83. All sources add:

पर्याया (KuKauM क्, ख्, ग्, घ्: पर्याया:; KMT: पर्यायात्; ṢSS क्, ख्: पर्याया:) कथिता देवि शक्तिस्तद्धर्मधर्मिणी (KuKauM ख्: –धारिणी; ग्: ?; ङ्: –धमिनी)।

अज्ञात्वा (KuKauM ङ्: आज्ञात्व) देहजां (KuKauM क्, ख्, ग्, घ्: देहजा; ङ्: देहया) शक्तिं वहिस्थानगतां (KMT: बहुस्थान–; ṢSS: बहि:स्थान–; KuKauM क्, ख्, ग्: शक्तिर्– –ता; घ्: शक्ति वह्नि– –ता; ङ्: शक्तिशक्ति– –ता) प्रिये॥

आचरन्ति (KuKauM ङ्: आचरति) च (KuKauM ख्: *) ये मूढा: पशवस्ते (KuKauM ख्: पशवस्त्रे; ङ्: पसवस्ते) दुरात्मन: (KuKauM ख्: उदाहृता:; क्, ग्, घ्, ङ्: उदाहृतम्); KMT: पशव: समुदाहृता:; ṢSS: उदाहृता:)।

आपाक्तेया (KuKauM क्, ग्, घ्: अयंतौ; ख्: आपंनौ; ङ्: अयतौ; ṢSS: अपांक्ते) असम्भाष्या: (KuKauM क्, ग्, घ्: आ असंभाष्या; ख्: अग्रसंभावो; ङ्: आम्रसंभाष्या; ṢSS: या ह्यसंभाष्या:; TS: असम्भाव्या) शिवव्रतविडम्बका: (KuKauM क्, ग्: शैवाच्छतविडम्बका:; ख्, घ्: शैवाथतविडंवका; ङ्: सैवाधूतविडंवका:)॥

खानं पानं (KuKauM घ्: खानतं पानं) हि यत् किञ्चित् कर्तव्यं तु तै: सह (KMT: खानं पानं तथा देवि कर्तव्यं न च तै: सह; KuKauM and ṢSS: खानं पानं तथा देवि न कर्तव्यं तु तै: सह)।

एवं युक्त: सदा तिष्ठेन्मदिरानन्दचेतस: (ṢSS: –चेतन:)॥

मदिरा या (KuKauM मदिरा च) परमा शक्ति (KMT, KuKauM and ṢSS: परा शक्ति) रञ्जितं (KuKauM ख्: रंडितं; घ्: रचितं) तु (KuKauM क्, ख्, ग्: च) जगत्त्रयम्

84. All MSs: आनन्दस्. This emendation agrees with the reading in the other sources. 85. All MSs: –चेतसा; KuKauM: –नन्द उच्यते;
ṢSS: –नन्द: स उच्यते 86. TS: च न 87. KuKauM: यथा
श्रीभैरवो (ङ्: –भैरव); KMT and TS: यथा भैरवम्; ṢSS: यथा श्रीभैरवो

88. KuKauM: ब्रवीत्; KMT, ṢSS and TS: अव्वीत. M → N. इति is required here. See above, note to 3/25d. Chapter 15 of the TS and this passage in the other sources ends with the following two lines:

ज्ञानामृतेन तृप्तस्य कृतकृत्यस्य योगिन:।
नैवास्ति किंचित् कर्तव्यमस्ति चेन्न स तत्त्ववित्॥

89. क्, ग्: –सेमाप्ते 90. च्: –सनन्तरम्
91. झ्, ञ्: प्रधमं; all other MSs: प्रथमं 92. All MSs: ततो
93. See above, note to 5/64d. 94. सिद्धि: स्यात्, or the like, is understood.
95. All MSs: स एव. 96. Hiatus in a compound of this sort seems to be particularly permissible in the case of the word ओलि and its equivalent forms, cf. 15/45d. See also above, note to 3/77d.
97. The ending of this noun has been dropped for the metre.
98. ङ्: जतुनां 99. घ्, च्, छ्: –ताव्रतम्; all other MSs: –तां व्रतम्
100. यस्मात् or the like is required here.
101. खेचर– (M) is a noun, not an adjective; खैचरम् would be correct.
Compare the expression खेचरं पदम् (rather than खैचरं पदम्) in 14/47d.
102. च्, छ्: कुर्य्याद्वंजन; all other MSs: कुर्यातवृंजनं 103. च्, छ्: कुल
104. घ्, च्, छ्: रज्वा 105. See above, note to 3/44d.
106. घ्, च्, छ्: पिङ्गले; all other MSs except झ्: पिंगलं
107. घ्, च्, छ्: –डोरं; all other MSs: कारये डोरं. I suppose that घोरम् agrees with व्रतम् (M → N).

108. घ्, च्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: –परा; all other MSs: परापरो
109. शिरस् is treated here as a thematic noun; शिरसम् would be correct.
110. All MSs except क्, झ्, ञ्: मुण्डित
111. The final anusvāra of आच्छादनं has been dropped for the metre.
112. क्: खर्पनं; ख्, ग्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: खर्परं 113. All MSs: विंवं
114. The addition of भवेत् तस्य, or the like, would complete the syntax.
115. All MSs: देव ता: 116. इति वदेत्, or the like, would complete the syntax. 117. The ordinal has replaced the cardinal for the sake of the metre.
118. All MSs: भैक्षा 119. घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: मद्य; ङ्: मध्य 120. छ्: लोल्य–
121. घ्, च्, छ्: –का 122. छ्, ज्: –राश्च
123. All MSs except ख्, ग्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: मन्त्रो
124. The ending has been dropped for the metre.
125. An instrumental has apparently taken the place of the locative required here. 126. क्, ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: –कीनि; other MSs: –कीति
127. च्, छ्: –या 128. च्: निर्झ्रे; झ्: निर्भरि; all other MSs except ञ्:
निर्झरि 129. M → N. 130. घ्, च्: खद्गं; all other MSs: खव्रं
131. घ्, च्, छ्: –क्ता; other MSs: –युक्तो
132. क्: –स्त्रखलंकृता:; all other MSs except झ्, ञ्: –खलंकृत:
133. घ्, छ्: प्रथमं–; other MSs: पृथिवीं–
134. The order of the components of this compound has been reversed.
135. क्, ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: धृतम् 136. All MSs: विद्यायां 137. घ्, च्, छ्: ज्ञेयामा–
138. ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: कार्यासिकं। पटम् or the like is to be added here.
139. All MSs except घ्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: शुद्धिं 140. All MSs except घ्, च्, छ्: –विस्तराम्. The unit of measure has been omitted in this irregular compound. 141. All MSs: कौपीठं
142. शिरोभूषणम् would be correct but does not fit the metre.
143. व्रतम् or the like needs to be supplied here. 144. क्: –राजन
145. Cf. 15/10a. 146. M → N. 147. छ्: अलातत्
148. क्, ख्, ग्: –येचर्या; च्: * * * * * (?); all other MSs: –चर्या
149. क्: भिक्षोश्च; च्: * (?) क्षाश्च 150. All MSs except क्, ख्, ग्: –विंशति
151. All MSs: कर्तव्यं 152. All MSs: द्वादशा. 153. All MSs: चतुष्टयम्
154. All MSs: अतोर्द्ध। 8/89c 155. च् : पक्ष्ये. 156. छ्: व्रत
157. All MSs except ख्, ग्, ङ्, च्, ज्: –हु
158. M → N. See above, note to 1/5d.
159. M → N. See above, note to 1/7d.
160. तत् प्रवक्ष्यामि, or the like, is required to complete the syntax.
161. क्, ज्: वालाकौपीनामथ–; च्, छ्: बोलाकौपीनमथा–; all other MSs: वालाकौपीनामथा–.
162. All MSs: रञ्जनीयाश्च 163. ज्: नु 164. M → N.
165. A verb is required here to complete the syntax.
166. ज्: सुद्धा; all other MSs except क्, ङ्, च्, छ्: शुद्धा 167. च्: तच्छृणु
168. ङ्: गैरिकी– 169. The ending has been dropped for the metre. 170. All MSs except घ्, ङ्, च्, छ्, ज्: तामुजम्. A verb is required here to complete the syntax.
171. क्: वर्या– The order of the components of this compound has been reversed.

172. कर्तव्या, or the like, is required here to complete the syntax.
173. क्: मत्री 174. च्, छ्: यतद् 175. All MSs: –सिद्धीनां
176. The ending has been dropped for the metre. Cf. below, 20/2d. One wonders whether to emend to व्रतत्रयं प्रदर्शितम्.
177. घ्, छ्: मृगं–; ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: –वर्म; च्: मृगंवर्म
178. च्, छ्, ज्: आसनं– 179. A dual ending is required here. See above, note to 5/46d and cf. below 28/94b and 46/63d.
180. A verb is required here to complete the syntax. 181. च्: –सनस्
182. IM 5, 6 + 7. 183. All MSs: –पूर्वा–; च्: क्रमे–
184. ज्: –नां. A genitive has replaced the locative required here. See above, note to 10/47d. 185. क्, च्, छ्, ज्: सार्द्धं
186. M → N. See above, note to 6/115c. IM 6 + 7.
187. Missing in MSs क्, ख्, ग्, ङ् and ज्
188. च्: भ * ति. IM 6 + 7. 189. क्, च्, छ्, ज्: गृह्नते; all other MSs: गृहते
190. M → N. 191. All MSs: च त्रिधा 192. च्: द्वादशाब्दैरतीतत्तु
193. क्: ख–; ग्, ङ्, झ्: खगतिः– 194. क्: विद्यानुष्टान–. The genitive plural ending has been contracted to accomodate the metre. See above, note to 4/46d.
195. M → N. See above, note to 3/25d.
196. Cf. 24/31c and 62/104b and see above, note to 3/22b.
197. All MSs except घ्, ङ्, च्: पारमेश्वरि 198. क्: गुष्ठा
199. All MSs: पुरा 200. See above, note to 4/35b.
201. ख्, घ्, ङ्, च्, छ्, ज्: व्रत 202. Cf. 15/16d and note.
203. IM 5 + 7. 204. Missing in MSs च्, छ्.
205. क्: –र; घ्, च्, छ्: –रं 206. M → N. See above, note to 1/7d.
207. च्, छ्: प्रतिनिस्त्रिधा 208. क्: मानो * (?) धं; च्: मानारोघं; छ्, ज्: मानारोधं
209. क्: येत्र 210. All MSs: –नरः 211. All MSs: –चर्या
212. क्, ख्, ग्: –लिङ्ग; घ्, च्, छ्: एकलिङ्ग; ङ्, ज्: एतल्लिग 213. Cf. 15/42d.
214. See above, note to 5/14b. 215. All MSs: भक्ति
216. All MSs: वेश्याद्या 217. च्: अ * 218. IS.
219. छ्: प्रास–; ज्: प्रार्स–
220. च्, छ्: व्रतनौ। व्रती is meant here. See above, note to 4/3c.
221. च्: –त्मम 222. च्: –बरो
223. All MSs: व्रतमव्यक्तकेदानीं 224. क्: –हु
225. क्: व्रुंवे (?); घ्: क्रमं; छ्: क्रतं 226. क्, ग्: –ता; all other MSs: संस्थिताम्
227. M → N. See above, note to 7/12d.
228. क्: आत्महत्वा–; ञ्: आत्महत्या; –all other MSs: आत्महत्या–
229. All MSs: –तरं 230. All MSs: महीपतिः 231. M → N.
232. All MSs: निर्णयन्ते 233. All MSs: अदत्तां
234. All MSs except च्: –चर्यां 235. M → N.
236. क्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: गृह्ननात्. One wonders whether गृह्ननात्, the reading found in all the MSs, should be taken to be a deviant form.
237. छ्: वत्रं 238. All MSs except छ्, झ्, ञ्: तावन्न
239. See above, note to 1/17c. 240. क्: –य

NOTES OF THE TRANSLATION OF CHAPTER FIFTEEN

1. The first thirteen verses of this chapter correspond to TS 15/230-243ab, KMT 25/155cd-166ab, ṢSS 50/35cd-46ab and KuKauM 7/188-198. Verse 15/14 loosely corresponds to KMT 25/170 and ṢSS 50/50.

2. KMT: The Mother is power, well established, the womb of the universe. ṢSS and KuKauM: The Mother is power, well established; she is called supreme (parākhyā).

3. KMT et al: And so she is called the Mother and said to be the Supreme Goddess.

4. Similarly, in the HT (1/5/18ab) we read: 'The consort (prajnā) is called 'daughter' because she extracts good qualities (duhanāt)' (guṇasya duhanāt prajñā duhitā ca nigadyate).

The word 'duhitṛ' – 'daughter' – is correctly derived from the root duh which means 'to milk, squeeze or extract' in the sense of extracting or drawing out something from something else. Thus duhitṛ is the 'milker' or 'one draws milk from her mother' (Monier-Williams). In this case, the daughter meant here may or may not be the adept's daughter. But whether she is or not, the dūtī is the embodiment of the energy Kuṇḍalinī. Like the milkmaid who milks the cow or the daughter who milks the mother, she extracts the spiritual energy of all things, which is their essence, and makes it available to the adept who is nourished by it.

5. KMT et al: She is the womb, supreme and subtle / and is not created by anything else. TS: She is born along with the Self (utpannā sātmanā saha).

6. The First Digit of the Moon is the first and foremost of all the energies (ādya- or ādi- śakti). Identified with the Transmental, it is the one universal energy that assumes the countless forms of all the energies into which it forms itself and that thus develop out of it, as do the digits of the moon from the first.

7. The Cave, as we have seen, is the Void in centre of the maṇḍala, the core of reality. Here the goddess is emanated from the transcendent. But this does not mean she is created from it, rather, she arises spontaneously. As the source of all things, she also generates herself, as it were. When she has emerged out of the Void in the Centre, she unites with Śiva, who is that same Void. The universe and the teachings emanate from the emission (visarga) that comes about by their union.

8. Two types of women are considered to be particularly suitable as *dūtī*s. One are women to whom the adept is closely related; the other, women of low caste. Normally, union with such women is considered to be polluting. But Kaula practice is based on the insight that the observance of the norms established on the basis of the values of conventional Brahminical Dharma is not liberating. Indeed, even those who maintain their importance agree that one who observes them does not acrue any benefit by observing them, although he sins if he does not. Women of the first type have been described as aspects of Kuṇḍalinī. Now the same is done for women of the second type.

The first of this kind of dūtī is a woman who is 'antyajā' lit. 'last-born', that is, of the lowest caste. The text plays on the word 'anta', which means not only 'last' (like antya) but also 'end' and 'inside'. The Last-born consort is the Supreme Goddess who is both at the 'end', that is, the highest of all things and 'inside' them.

Note that Antyajā is the name of the last of the sixteen energies of the Moon. It emerges from the end of emission (see ŚM 11/107-12 where the names of all sixteen energies are listed),

9. Similarly the HT (1/5/17cd) says that she is called 'the washerwoman (rajakī) because she tints all beings (with desire)' (rañjanāt sarvasattvānāṁ rajakīti tathā smṛtā).

10. KuKauM: 'bound by the skin'.

11. KMT tinted by her own colour.

12. The word Mātaṅgī is here fancifully derived from 'mātaṁ' meaning 'inside the Self" – ātmānta and 'gī' meaning 'song' – gītā. 'Song' here, I suppose, denotes Sound – nāda or Speech. The goddess with whom the adept unites resides in the transcendental Self at the end of Sound or beyond Speech.

13. KMT et al.: There is nothing there except the primordial (ādyā) energy of Mind Beyond Mind (manonmanī).

14. KMT et al.: the first born (agrajanmā).

15. The following short passage is found in all the other sources. (TS 15/143cd-146 = KMT 25/166cd-169 = ṢSS 50/46c-49 = KuKauM 7/199) after this and the next verse:

> O goddess, the energy that possesses that nature (taddharmadharmiṇī) has (thus) been explained by means of a metaphor. O beloved, those fools who, without knowing the energy born of the body, practice (with one) who is in (some) outer place, are wicked fettered souls. One should not accept cooked food (apākteya) or (even) converse with (these) deceitful desecrators (viḍambaka) of Śiva's vow. O goddess, one should not eat or drink with them.
>
> One who is thus engaged (yukta) (in the observance of this vow) should abide with his mind perpetually blissful with wine. Wine (madirā) is the supreme power (by which) the triple world is delighted (rañjita) (with blissful inebriation).

Note that the instruction given here is the reply to the question asked at the beginning of this chapter. At the end of the previous chapter the deity declared that the initiate can eat the sacrificial meal with anybody, even those of the lowest caste. This chapter began with the question how can this practice, which requires the transgression of basic norms of purity, be acceptable? The reply given in these lines is that any initiate who observes this practice with the correct attitude and experiences the inner energy of Kuṇḍalinī ('born of the body') as the essential identity of the outer consort, should be considered to be pure, regardless of his caste. Conversely, who does nor do so, yet falsely professes to, is impure and polluting regardless his of caste.

16. Concerning the use of wine and its inner equivalents, see below 46/229cd ff. and notes.

17. The sources read: 'this is what Bhairava said'. I have translated accordingly, although the syntax yields the meaning: 'the teaching (niścaya) will certainly be accomplished by the Teacher's Mouth', which makes little sense.

The sources all add: The yogi who has done everything and is satisfied with the nectar of knowledge has nothing (more) to do. If there is (anything left to do) he does not know reality.

Chapter 15 of the TS ends here and the subject matter changes in the other sources. The sources do not contain the remaining part of this chapter, which is the Vratasūtra. This is as we would expect, as this sūtra is concerned with those modalities of the Vow observed in the four lineages which are unknown to the KMT, its expansions or, of course, to their Trika source, the TS.

18. This is called Conduct in the Yoni above 14/129-130.

19. Concerning the Transmission of the Skyfarers see intro. vol 1, p. 224-225 and 477.

20. Kubjikā is not infrequently portrayed as naked, especially when she is said to be engaged in the practice of celibacy and austerity (see above 3/44). This is how Mitranātha worships her, as a young virgin sitting in a sacrificial fire (see intro. vol. 2, p. 470). According to the KMT, Naked Kubjikā is the deity of the Transmission of the Child (KMT 17/16). She is as naked as a virgin (above, 3/44) or as an old hag. Naked and 'hunchbacked' (kubjikākārā), she is the crooked (kuṭilā) Kuṇḍalinī, who forms herself into the Triangle (35/79-80). See 3/43-45.

Here the goddess is the naked Piṅgalā – the Tawny One, that is, Rudrāṇī – the Fierce / Ruddy One. This is how she appears in the Bhairavīstotra addressed to her by Bhairava when she is within the Liṅga in the ŚM (see intro. vol 1, p. 34-36). There Bhairava addresses her first of all as Rudrāṇī. As Rudra's energy, and with the traits she has inherited from Rudra, she straddles the two religious cultures, Vedic and Tantric. Accordingly, Bhairava goes on to praise her as the deeper identity of feminine figures and goddesses associated with the Veda and Smṛti. Then she is identified with the Yoginīs of the Kulas: Vajracaṇḍā and Bheruṇḍā, Revatī and Bhairavī and the great goddess Siddhayogeśvarī. Finally, coming full circle as it were, she is praised as Mahāpiṅgalā, a form of Mālinī who is Kubjikā's most essential identity as Rudra's energy.

21. See note to 6/28.

22. Presumably, the ‘terrible weapon’ is the Pāśpata Weapon mentioned in verse 15/34. A version of this mantra is recorded in the chapter 20 of the TS. The Fivefold Weapon is probably the group of Five Praṇavas that are symbolized by the five weapons listed above in 15/25-26ab.

23. Perhaps these are the Five Praṇavas in their Kaula modality, concerning which see above 8/92cd-110ab.

24. The variables can be tabulated as follows:

11. Table of Three Transmissions and the Three Vows

Vow	Transmission	Sacred Seat	Seat (āsana)
Cloth of the Command	Aged	Primordial	Tortoise
Siddha	Youth	Pūrṇagiri	Lotus
Mudrā	Child	Kāmarūpa	Svastika

25. Vaiṣṇava juice (rasa) is a common code name for wine. But this may not be intended here as the following verse recommends that the sacrificial food be consumed with wine and meat. The ‘Flower’ is a common term for mensis. Here it is said that it should be ‘antaja’, which means ‘last-born’, both in the sense of ‘generated at the end’ and ‘produced by one who is at the end’. If the latter sense is meant, then the menstrual blood is that of a woman of the lowest caste. Alternatively, if the former meaning is the one intended, it is menstrual blood that issues at the end of mensis. Assuming I have understood the nature of these two substances correctly, the first – the Secret One – is probably sperm. These are common, basic Kaula substances. Thus the KJN (11/32) enjoins:

> One should always drink (menstrual) blood and sperm within which the body (piṇḍa) is generated. This is the sacrificial pap (caru) that is always pleasing to Siddhas and Yoginīs.

26. One of the three aspects of this practice concerns the Hero who, over the course of his union with the Dūtīs, should continue to observe his vow which includes the assiduous repetition of the Vidyā. The other two aspects concern the *Dūtī*s. They should unite freely with everybody, both externally in actual physical union and inwardly in spiritual union.

27. Yogacaryā (15/15ab), Vīracaryā (15/46), Kaulacaryā and Icchācaryā are synonymous. Just as Yogavrata (15/37), Caryāvrata (15/23), Kramavrata (15/39ab) are synonyms of Vidyāvrata. See also notes to 6/5 and 16/5.

28. One of the fundamental principles of the practice of Yoga is that the yogi should strive to eliminate desire and thereby control the mind. Indeed, according to the classical Yoga system of Patañjali, this is the defining mark of the practice of Yoga. Thus the well-known aphorism with which the Yogasūtra begins declares: ‘Yoga is the checking of the activity of the mind’ (yogaś cittavṛttinirodhaḥ). One could cite countless texts from a wide range of schools in support of this view. The following passage from the Amṛtabindūpaniṣad (verse 2-4) is typical:

> It is indeed the mind (manas) that is the cause of man's bondage and liberation. The mind that is attached to sense objects leads to bondage, while dissociated from sense objects it tends to lead to liberation. Since liberation is predicated by the mind devoid of desire for sense objects, therefore the mind should always be made free of such desire by the seeker after liberation. When the mind with its attachment for sense objects is annihilated and is fully checked within the Heart and thus realises its own essence, then that supreme state is attained. The mind should be controlled until it merges into the Heart. This is knowledge (jñāna) and this is meditation (dhyāna). All else is (mere) sophistry.

The theory that is at the root of the practice of what one could call Kaula Yoga agrees with the basic principle that the activity of the mind engaged in the production of thought constructs is binding. Both approaches agree that liberation can only be achieved when this activity ceases. However, the former approach maintains that, as the activity of the mind is due to attachment to the objects of the senses, the Yogi should strive to regulate his contact with them. Here the two approaches diverge. Kaula Yoga maintains that the mind is not disturbed by the sense objects themselves but by attachment to them; therefore there is no need to check the movement of the mind amidst the senses. Indeed, it is better to let it roam freely amongst them without attachment.

29. According to 11/91cd-92ab above, the adept must constantly repeat the goddess’s Samayā Vidyā when practicing in this way. It is understandable therefore that the fruit of this practice is the same as that attained by repeating the Vidyā 100,000 times (see above 11/85cd-89ab).

30. All the MSs read nāma saṁgamamatsadhā which makes no sense.

31. The Śaivasiddhānta Āgamas are, in theory, supposed to be divided into four sections (pāda) concerned with the four major topics suggested by their name, that is, ritual (kriyāpāda), right conduct (caryā), Yoga (yogapāada) and knowledge (vidyāpāda). The prestige of this fourfold scheme was such that it was accepted as a feature of a ‘complete’ Tantra by other schools as well, including this one. Thus, the claim is made (if only by a mere reference) that this and other Kubjikā Tantras are laid out in the same pattern (see below 65/37cd-8ab). Moreover, the observance of vows is a major topic of the caryāpāda sections of those Siddhānta Āgamas that have one. See intro. vol 1, p. 510.

NOTES OF THE SANSKRIT TEXT OF CHAPTER SIXTEEN

1. घ्, च्, छ्: शान्त 2. Here, as in other places, the ending of the nominative plural has replaced that of the nominative singular of a possessive agent noun ending in the suffix – in. 3. A verb is required here. 4. घ्: देवी
5. All MSs except छ्, ज्: देवी 6. घ्, च्, छ्: –वक्रोवाच
7. क्, ख्, झ्: प्रयागो. This and the following line recur above in 14/32cd-33ab and below in 42/31cd-32ab.
8. KuKh 14 and KuKh 42 with MSs घ्, च्, छ्: वरुणा
9. KuKh14 क्, ग्, झ्: कोल्लो; च्, छ्: कोला; all MSs except KuKh 42 ख्, ग्, ज्, झ्:
कोला 10. KuKh 42 छ्: अट्ट * सा
11. ङ्: –कास्त्रकं; च्: कांश्रकं; छ्: –कांम्रकं; all MSs except घ्: चरित्रे–; KuKh 14 क्: चरिते–; च्, छ्: चरित्रैकामकं; MS क् of KuKh 42: चनित्रे– and other MSs: चिरित्रे–. A dual number is required here. See above, note to 5/46d and also note to 14/33a.
12. क्, ग्: –टं; KuKh 14 देवीकोट्टं (घ्, च्: –कोटं)
13. ङ्: + गृहाष्टं; घ्, च्, छ्: –कं
14. M → N. The order of the components of this compound is irregular.
15. च्: षा; other MSs: वा 16. All MSs: या 17. क्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: –ना
18. घ्, च्, छ्: प्रचार– 19. ङ्: नास्ति 20. घ्, च्, छ्: ईया
21. All MSs: अष्करी 22. Notice that this appellation fits a female being, not a male one. This suggests that this passage has been drawn from a source where the speaker is the god, not the goddess. Unfortunately, I have not been able to trace it. 23. छ्, ज्: +।। १।। 24. All MSs: षा
25. ग्: इ 26. छ्: चार्या 27. All MSs: –रूपे
28. All MSs except क्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: क–
29. घ्, च्, छ्: वरुणा; other MSs: वरणा. A locative is required here to maintain the pattern of the other verses, but does not fit the metre.
30. घ्: मुण्डिनी; छ्: सुण्डिनी; all other MSs except ग्, ज्: रंडिनी. See above, note to 14/92d; cf. 16/13d. 31. क्, घ्, ङ्, च्, छ्: –कै:; छ्, ज्: +।। २।।
32. घ्, च्: क्रसे; ग्, ज्: क्र पे; ङ्: क्र ये; छ्: क्र षे; all other MSs: क्र म
33. All MSs except घ्, च्: –लावलि 34. ङ्: –नाम्नाये
35. घ्, च्, छ्: क्रकुण्डी 36. This quarter is one syllable too long.
37. All MSs: कौल्ल. Cf. 14/93a where this place is called कौल्लगिरि.
38. क्: कुनामोज; ख्, ग्, घ्, ज्: कुनामाज; घ्, ङ्, छ्: –मा *; all other MSs: कुनमाज
39. क्, ङ्: –सता; घ्, च्, छ्: जगतत्सुता; छ्, ज्: ।। ३।। 40. All MSs: वा
41. ग्, ज्: कोशली; घ्, च्, छ्: कोलकी 42. छ्: कथि *
43. ङ्: त 44. छ्: क्रु– 45. छ्, ज्: +।। ४।।
46. क्: कुभां; all other MSs: भा 47. It would be easy to emend to पञ्चमी, but the analogous सप्तमा (16/11b) and अष्टमा (16/12b) leads one to suppose that this is a deviant form. Cf. also 21/6b. 48. क्: –सं * का
49. All MSs: कन्दुकी–; छ्, ज्: +।। ५।। 50. All MSs: क्षि
51. ग्: ईमौ 52. ग्, घ्, ङ्, च्, छ्, ज्: + स– 53. क्: –श
54. All MSs except ख्, झ्, ञ्: देहि
55. Missing in घ्, च् and छ्; ङ्: थ
56. ङ्: –ठि; all other MSs except छ्, ज्: षष्टी 57. ग्: –ख्य

58. घ्, च्, छ्: नित्य 59. All MSs except घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: कुना
60. क्: मारजकी–; छ्, ज्: +।। ६।। 61. ख्: ता; all other MSs: ना
62. छ्: –य 63. All MSs except छ्, ज्: प्रचरो–
64. ग्: + करी 65. ङ्: –त
66. ङ्: *र्या–. Cf. 16/9b. 67. क्: –नां
68. छ्: गता:; ण् छ्, ज्: +।। ७।। 69. All MSs: ला 70. छ्: प–
71. Cf. 16/9b. 72. छ्: –कां
73. क्, ग्: कौटीगृहे; च्: कौटीकी–; छ्: +।। ८।।. Cf. above 14/94b.
74. छ्: श्रीवक्रोवाच 75. All MSs except क्, ग्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: कुलाम्नायं
76. क्, ख्, ग्, झ्, ञ्: व– 77. The regular form of the feminine of शिल्पिन् is शिल्पिनी, as found above, 16/11c. Cf. 14/94a.
78. घ्, ङ्, च्, छ्: –या 79. All MSs: समुच्चरेत् 80. घ्, च्, छ्: + हो
81. SamP and All MSs: –भैरवी 82. ङ्: वेशा–
83. ङ्: चरकं 84. ङ्: –रा 85. छ्, ज्: +।। १।।
86. See above, note to 3/65a. 87. ख्, ङ्: हूं हूं आ हूं; ज्: हु
88. All MSs: हु; घ्, च्, छ्: + पीठ; SamP: missing.
89. Missing up to the end of this line in MSs घ्, च् and छ्
90. All MSs except ख्, छ्, ज्, झ्: वरण्या 91. क्, ग्: –गृह
92. ङ्: म * चर्या; all other MSs: महाचर्या 93. क्: वागेश्वरीं–; घ्, च्, छ्: वागी–; छ्, ज्: +।। २।।. लभेत् (see above, note to 4/35b), or the like, is required to complete the sense.
94. All MSs except क्, ख्: जाग्निणी. The SamP quotes and comments on this line each of the eight mantras except the first, which is missing. SamP: जाग्गिणी
95. घ्, च्: जं * * * भणि 96. छ्: कोल्लो– 97. All MSs: कोला–
98. All MSs except ग्, छ्, ज्, झ्: कैवर्त्ती
99. See above, note to 3/44d.
100. क्, ख्: ज्ञानैश्वर्येन; ग्: ज्ञानैश्वर्यण; च्, ज्: ज्ञानैश्वर्येण 101. छ्, ज्: +।। ३।।
102. घ्, च्, छ्: दिह्वन 103. घ्, च्, छ्: ह्वसमल; all other MSs except ग्, ङ्, ज्: सपल 104. All MSs except घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: परिचलि. The accepted reading is also the one in the SamP. 105. Missing in MS क्
106. घ्, छ्: अहहासवेरवि; च्: अहहासवेरपि 107. ग्, ङ्, ज्: –चरु
108. ग्: –ल 109. छ्, ज्: +।। ४।। 110. घ्, च्, छ्: फुडि फुडि 111. All MSs except ग्: घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: हिन. The accepted reading agrees with the one in the SamP. 112. क्: भोजये भाजयं; ङ्, ज्: भोजये भोजय 113. ज्: म 114. All MSs: –मन्दिरो. कण्डुकी would be correct but I hesitate to emend as both forms appear in the text. Cf. the mantra following the next one. 115. All MSs except घ्, च्, छ्: तस्या.
116. ग्, ङ्, ज्: –दातेन 117. जयते, or the like, is required to complete the sense and the syntax. 118. छ्, ज्: +।। ५।।
119. क्: * लिविज्ज; all other MSs except घ्, च्: * लिविज्जे । The accepted reading is also found in the SamP.
120. SamP and all MSs except क्, घ्, ङ्, च्, ज्: चरित्रे– 121. छ्, ज्: +।। ६।।
122. घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –मानन्द 123. घ्, च्, छ्: योगिन्यं
124. छ्, ज्: +।। ७।।. I take अनेकधा to mean अनेकविधा.

125. ग्, घ्, च्, छ्: विमलामती 126. SamP क्, ज्: –सिद्धिं; ङ्: समये * *; घ्, च्, छ्:
समया सिद्धिं; missing in MSs ख् and झ्. 127. Missing in MSs ख् and झ्
128. क्, ख्, झ्, ञ्: –त्रिभुवने 129. घ्: देवी– 130. ङ्: स *या–
131. छ्: देदि मे 132. The previous quarter is one syllable too long. 133. The first vowel of this word has been shortened for the metre. 134. IM 5, 6 + 7. 135. All MSs कुलाष्टके– 136. कर्माणि, or the like, is the implied substantive.
137. मेरुराशिवत् is meant here. 138. All MSs except क्, ङ्, च्, छ्, ज्: कौलिनी
139. ग्: प्रमादाल्लो * मायाते; AS and ṢSS: –मायाति. This and the following line correspond to KMT 22/18, ṢSS 34/22cd-23ab and AS 6/17cd-18ab.
140. क्, ग्, च्: समये–; AS: सिद्धसमयमण्डले
141. घ्, च्: ग्लानि क्लिष्टो विघ्नैः; छ्: ग्लानिक्लिष्टोविघ्नैः; ज्: ग्लानिम् नानाविघ्नैः; AS: ग्लानिम्लान्ये
विघ्नै; KMT: ग्लानिः क्लिष्टो विघ्नैः; ṢSS: ग्लानि क्लिष्टो विघ्नैस्तु
142. AS and ṢSS: बध्यते 143. All MSs: दरिद्रं 144. M → N.
145. M → N. 146. This line corresponds to KMT 22/19ab and ṢSS 34/23cd. KMT: देवेश; ṢSS सर्वज्ञ
147. छ्: सशुद्धि–. AS and ṢSS: सिद्धिमवाप्नुयात्; KMT: शुद्धिमवाप्नुयात्
148. घ्, ङ्, छ्: –वक्रोवाच 149. छ्: जन्मे 150. ग्, ज्: बहुभेदैः–
151. One could, perhaps, think of this as a collective co-ordinative compound, but a plural ending would be better.
152. A genitive is required here. See above, note to 10/47d.
153. AS: संदोहानुपसंदोहासेवनां निर्मलो भवेत्. This and the preceding line correspond to KMT 22/21ab and ṢSS 34/25cd: क्षेत्रोपक्षेत्रसन्दोहैः (ṢSS: –सन्दोह) सेवनान्निर्मलो भवेत्। 154. All MSs प्रमादाद्; AS: प्रयत्नाद् वा प्रमादाद्. This emendation agrees with the reading in the KMT.
155. छ्: –पीठोघ–. AS: पीठसंकितनादिति; KMT and ṢSS: पीठसंकीर्तनात् प्रिये
156. AS: नरः संशुद्धिमाप्नोति; KMT and ṢSS: शुद्धिमवाप्नोति 157. AS: संस्मरेत्
158. AS, KMT and ṢSS: समयानां विशुद्धये
159. IC. All MSs: संस्थिता 160. As this normally neuter noun is often treated as masculine, the reading has been emended accordingly. An accusative neuter plural would be correct.
161. This word and the following compound, are meant to be instrumentals.
162. The pīṭhastava is also found in the AS 6/33cd ff. There it begins with the seed-syllables श्रीं ऐं. Verses 33cd-57ab correspond to KuKh 16/33cd-57ab, KMT 22/23-46 and ṢSS 34/27cd-51ab with which they have been collated.
163. छ्: कडवस्थां 164. AS: सौम्यस्यां
165. ज्: महाघंर्टसमो–; all other MSs except घ्, च्, छ्: महाघण्टा–; AS: महाबल–; ṢSS
ख्: –गंटा– 166. छ्, ज्: +॥ १ ॥ AS: शिवंकरी; ṢSS: च शंकरीम्
167. घ्, च्, छ्: –स्था 168. AS: कृष्टाख्यां; ṢSS: कृष्णास्यां
169. AS: महाघंटारवोपेतां 170. छ्, ज्: +॥ २ ॥
171. AS: अग्निकोण 172. ṢSS क् ख्: नमौकसाम्
173. ज्: काल–; all other MSs: कोल–; AS: –गिर्या; KMT: कोलागिर्ये; KMT MS C: कोल्लागिर्यां; KMT MSs DET and ṢSS: कोल्लगिर्यां; KMT MS G: कोल्लगिर्ये; other MSs of the KMT: कोलागिर्यें. This emendation agrees with the reading in above in 16/3a, cf.

16/18a. 174. क्, घ्, ङ्, च्: लक्ष्मीं–; AS: –विवर्द्धनं

175. All MSs: ज्वालामुखी 176. छ्: जयन्त्वायां. The stem जयन्त्या replaces जयन्ती here for the metre. But note that AS reads जयन्त्यां वै and most MSs of the KMT, as does ṢSS, read श्रीजयन्त्यां. However, MSs FHJK of the KMT read जयन्त्यायाम्.

177. All MSs: विंव–; AS निस्वस्थां. The emendation agrees with the reading in the KMT and ṢSS. 178. च्: –णी

179. छ्: +।। ४।।. AS: सिद्धार्थसिद्धिदाम्

180. AS: –स्थ; ṢSS: –स्था 181. All MSs महाकायाम्–; ग्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज्:
–उज्जयन्यां; all other MSs: –उज्जयिन्यां; AS: महाकायामुज्जन्यां. The emendation of the goddess's name has been made on the basis of the reading in the KMT, which is supported by all the other sources. The spelling of this place name, as with many others, varies. Monier-Williams lists only उज्जयिनी which agrees with the reading in the majority of the manuscripts and the one above in 6/216c. This emendation is supported by the AS and is the reading in the KMT. The same spelling of this place is found below in 26/16a.

182. All MSs: च वासिनीम्. I have adopted reading in the AS.

183. This line reads the same in MS D of the KMT. Other MSs, the KMT and ṢSS: महाकालसमोपेतां नौमि.

184. छ्, ज्: +।। ५।।; KMT and ṢSS: सर्वार्थसिद्धिदाम् (ṢSS: –धारिणीं)

185. ग्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: ओड्ड–; all other MSs: औड्ड–; AS: –कदम्वस्थां; ṢSS: उदुम्बर–

186. ग्: म्रजायुधा; घ्, छ्: म्रजायुधान्; च्: –युधान्; all other MSs: स्रजा–. This emendation agrees with the readings in the AS, KMT and the ṢSS.

187. ग्: पवना–; AS: प्रयागोपवनोपेतां; ṢSS: वपनो–

188. छ्: शक्र–; all other MSs except ज्: श्रक्रविनासिनीं; ण् छ्, ज्: +।। ६।।; AS शक्तिनिवासिनी. This emendation agrees with the reading in the KMT and the ṢSS.

189. AS: –स्था 190. घ्: –शी

191. All MSs: ध्वजा–. MSs CDE and G of the KMT agree with the reading in the MSs of the KuKh. The rest agree with the emended text as does the ṢSS.
AS: हलायुधां 192. घ्: प्रनौमि; KMT: प्रणम्य; AS, ṢSS: नमामि

193. AS: शाङ्करी 194. ज्: शांकरींष्टंकरीं; घ्, छ्: शंकरीं सदा; छ्, ज्: +।।
७।।; all other MSs except घ्, छ्: शांकरीष्टंकरीं; ṢSS शांकरीं शांकरः.

195. ग्: कर्ण्णमोटी; घ्, च्, छ्: कर्णामाटी; ङ्: कर्णोमोटी; ज्: कर्णौमोटी; all other MSs:
कर्णोमोटीं; AS: कर्णागोटे? 196. क्, ग्, च्, झ्: षटस्थां; ङ्: वटस्था

197. AS: समूलां 198. AS: त्रिकंविताम्

199. AS: –णे 200. AS: श्रीपदां; KMT: श्रीपदां; ṢSS क् ख्: –दा

201. ग्, घ्, च्: –संपद्–; छ्: –संपट्–; ण् छ्, ज्: +।। ८।।। KMT, ṢSS: –संपददायिनीम्; MS
J of the KMT agrees with the reading in our text. AS and MS T of the KMT:
–प्रदायिकां

202. ङ्: वरजाया–। विरजायामम्बिका– has been contracted to विरजायाम्बिका for the metre. The AS solves this problem simply by changing the gender of the place name thus: विरजे अंविकां. Cf. 16/42c. The reading in the KMT agrees with our text but ṢSS reads विरजाख्ये॑ऽ म्बिका–

203. घ्, च्: अनेरेण; छ्: अनरेण 204. छ्, ज्: +।। ९।।

205. KMT: ऐरुड्यां; MS J of the KMT, the ṢSS and the AS: एरुड्याम्; other MSs of the KMT – ABH: ऐरुड्याम्; K: एरुड्याम्; D: एरुद्राम्; C: एरुण्डे; G: ऐरुद्रे; F: एकत्याम्; E: एकडे; remaining MSs: ऐरुद्याम्
206. छ्, ज्: –राव–

207. छ्, ज्: +।। १०।। AS: –नी; –नाशिनीम् would be correct. Cf. 15/12d, 16/45b, 16/46b, 16/62b and 16/63b etc.
208. घ्, च्: –ता
209. AS: च

210. AS: सिद्धि–
211. AS: पिङ्गला
212. छ्, ज्: +।। ११।।

213. ङ्: एरा–; AS: पेला–
214. च्, छ्: –तं; AS परसोद्युतपाणिनीम्

215. Missing in the AS.
216. घ्: प्रमर्द्दिनीं; छ्, ज्: +।। १२।।; प्रमर्दिनीम् would be correct. Cf. 16/43b. AS: –विनासिनी; ṢSS: –प्रभञ्जनीम्

217. घ्, च्, छ्: –री; KMT: काश्मर्यां; MS E of the KMT and the AS: कौमारी; other MSs of the KMT read – B: कस्मर्या; A: कामार्यम्; C: कार्मायाम्; D: कर्मार्याम्; H: कर्मर्याम्; F: कास्मड्या; ṢSS: काश्मीर्यां
218. KMT: गोकर्णां; ṢSS क् ख्: –कर्णी

219. AS: –शृङ्खलधारिणी
220. ङ्: –ता; all other MSs: ताडिजंघ–; AS: नाडि–ṢSS: ताड–
221. घ्: –मर्द्दिनीं; ङ्: –नी; छ्, ज्: +।। १३।।

222. घ्, च्, छ्: –णी
223. All MSs: मेरु–

224. AS, KMT and ṢSS: करालेन समोपेतां नमाम्यांकुशधारिणी (KMT: –धारिणीं; ṢSS: नमाम्यंकुश–) ।

225. All MSs: नमामि कुल–. छ्, ज्: +।। १४।।. This emendation agrees with the readings in the AS, KMT and the ṢSS.

226. AS: इन्द्राणीं मरुदेशस्थां त्रैलोक्याकृष्टकारिकाम्।; KMT and ṢSS: क्रमणीं (ṢSS: क्रमणी) मरुदेशे तु त्रैलोक्याकृष्टिकारिकाम्।
227. ग्, च्, ज्: राम–

228. AS: नगगे; ṢSS: नागरे तु
229. घ्, च्, छ्: –युधा; ङ्: –युध; AS: वहलायुधाम्

230. ङ्: वक्रा; all other MSs: वक्त्र
231. All MSs except ग्, च्, छ्, ज्: गच्छति–; AS: वेणुगर्भस्थितां देवीं; the reading of the edition of the KMT: चैत्रकच्छनिवासां तु; variants – BCDJG: चेत्र; EK: वेत्र–; EG: –गच्छ–; JK: –गर्त–; D: –गत्त–; C: –वत्य–; FG: –गर्भ–; CDEFG: –निवासिन्या (or –न्याम्); JK: –निवसिन्यो. ṢSS वेत्रगछनिवासिन्यां

232. KMT and ṢSS: धन–
233. AS: कुंभकर्ण
234. ख्: सिद्ध्यार्थ

235. ग्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज् and AS: चामुण्डा

236. घ्, च्: –वर्द्धते; छ्, ज्: चण्डवर्द्धते; all other MSs: चण्डवर्धने; ण् छ्: +।। १६।।; AS: पौड्रवर्द्धने
237. KMT: परस्तीरे; ṢSS: पुरतीरे

238. All MSs: प्रयागाख्यां; AS: पुन्नाख्यां. This emendation agrees with the reading in both the KMT and the ṢSS.
239. घ्, च्, छ्: –नी; AS: वक्त्र–

240. क्: भ्रिजटो–; all other MSs except ख्, घ्, छ्, ज्: भिजजो–; ṢSS क्: त्रिदशो–. This and the following emendation agree with the reading in the AS and the KMT.

241. KMT and ṢSS: भेदस्तम्भनकारिकाम्; All MSs except छ्, ज्: –मारिकाम्; ण् छ्, ज्: +।। १७।।. This emendation agrees with the AS.

242. ख्, च्: विष्ठा–; घ्, छ्, ज्: पिष्टा–; all other MSs: पिष्ठापुर्यां; AS: पिष्टा–; KMT: पृष्ठापुरे; ṢSS क्: पृष्ट्वापुरे, ख्: पृष्टापुरे

243. घ्: + दण्डश; AS: विदुमुखां; ṢSS ख्: विद्यु–

244. AS: नौम घोर्यसमोपेतां; KMT and ṢSS: नमामि घनरवोपेतां

245. छ्, ज्: +।। १८।।. AS: भेद–; KMT: भेदजृम्भनकारिकाम्; ṢSS: वायुस्तम्भनकारिकाम्

246. ग्, उस्का– च्: उत्का–; AS: ऊर्द्धकौसी; KMT कुहुद्यां तु, variants – H कुण्डकेशी; K कुहुकेशीं; DF कुहुकेशी; J: कुम्भकेशी; CEG: कुहुड्यां; ṢSS क्: कुहुमांके, ख्: कुहुंद्र्यांके

247. AS: मुद्रालंकृत–; KMT, ṢSS: –धारिण्यां

248. KMT and ṢSS: नास्ति 249. छ्, ज्: +।। १९।।; AS: भङ्गिनी

250. All MSs except ग्, छ्, ज्: –ससमोपेतां. AS पिसितास–. 251. ṢSS क् ख्: नौमे

252. घ्, च्, छ्: –काद्यतां 253. घ्, च्: –वक्रान्; all other MSs except छ्, ज्: –वस्त्रां; AS: चाग्निवक्त्रां

254. छ्, ज्: +।। २०।।; –घातिनीम् would be correct. Cf. 16/43d. AS, KMT: अमित्रपशुदारिणीं (AS: –णी); ṢSS: अमित्रपशुहारिणीं

255. The noun मातृ is here treated as माता. AS: –माता च, KMT and ṢSS: –मातां तु. See above, note to 5/41b.

256. छ्, ज्: +।। २१।।. AS: महासनसमोपेतामहितोघनिकृन्तनी; KMT: महामेरुसमोपेतां महतार्तिनिकृन्तनीम्।; ṢSS: महासेनसमोपेतां महदार्तिनिकृन्तनीम्।

257. KMT: वज्रायुधधरां; ṢSS: चक्रायुधधरां 258. ṢSS: सौम्यां

259. KMT: सौम्यां भीमाननसमन्विताम्; MSs DEG of the KMT and ṢSS: भीमासन–

260. ग्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –री 261. घ्, च्, छ्: –वी

262. AS: –पुर्या; ṢSS क् ख्: –पूर्यं 263. छ्: +।। २२।।. AS: –नी.

264. All MSs except ग्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: प्रातिकेश्वरे; AS: पुततामृतकेस्वरी; ṢSS पूतनाम्रातिकेश्वरि। पूतनाम् would be correct but the ending has been dropped to save a syllable for the metre, thus producing an irregular compound. The most common spelling of this place name is अम्रातकेश्वर. However, the spelling अम्रातिकेश्वर is also attested in the KMT.

265. AS: –युधा; This reading agrees with the AS and seven MSs of the KMT as well as the ṢSS. But the editors have chosen the reading of the majority of the MSs of the KMT namely: गदाहस्तायुधाम्

266. All MSs: वाडना–. छ्, ज्: +।। २३।।; AS: तांत्रनाकृष्टिकारकं. The emendation agrees with the reading in the KMT and ṢSS.

267. KMT and ṢSS: राजगृहे भग्ननासां (ṢSS क् ख्: –सा); IM 5, 6 + 7. The order of these two words is reversed in the KMT and the ṢSS. But, although the metre is less disturbed, even so, the fifth syllable is long and sixth short.

268. ग्: वद्र– 269. AS: देवीं

270. छ्, ज्: +।। २४।।. AS: निम्त्वेष?फलदायकां; ṢSS: निःशेषफल–. The remaining part of the Pīṭhastava is found only in the AS and KuKh.

271. ग्: गुह्येश्वेरीं; AS: –री 272. AS: महाभागा

273. ग्, च्: पशुतिर्–; all other MSs: पशुपतिर्–; AS: पशुपतिर्युताम्

274. घ्, च्, छ्: –ता; AS: नेपालस्थां सदा

275. All MSs except क्, ख्, ञ्: –घोरंध–; छ्, ज्: +।। २५।।. The order of the first two members of this compound has been reversed.

276. AS with MSs छ्, ज्: कास्मीरे

277. All MSs: सारदां; AS: सरदां 278. AS: दूतीं 279. AS: विजयेस्वरसंयुताम्

280. छ्, ज्: +।। २६।।. AS: विद्यापीठेश्वरीं देवीं वरदां बुद्धिवर्धनीम् 281. AS: गद्यहरणे

282. ग्, ज्: –तिः; घ्, च्, छ्: –शक्तिर् 283. घ्, च्, छ्: –री

284. AS with MS घ्: महासर–

285. AS and MSs ख्, ग्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: पार्वती; all other MSs: पार्वतीय

286. च्: पर्व्व * स्थितां; छ्, ज्: +।। २७।।

287. ग्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –री; AS: –रि

288. क्: कुलूनायां; घ्, च्: कलूटायां; छ्: कलुतायां

289. घ्, च्, छ्: –शी; ग्: –सी; AS: चक्रिणी

290. See above, note to 3/44d. 291. AS: कपालीसमोपेतां

292. छ्, ज्: +।। २८।।. AS: कामभोगफलप्रदा:
293. All MSs: सिंघुर्हारे; AS सिंहोडारे
294. All MSs except घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: कुलाख्यां; AS: च ललितां
295. AS: वेत्रभोगवशानुगां 296. छ्, ज्: +।। २९।।; –नाशिनीम् would be correct, cf. 16/43d. AS: किल्विषनाशिनीम्
297. च्: युञ्र्यां; छ्, ज्: भोजयुर्यां; AS: भट्टापुर्या
298. घ्, च्, छ्: हिलुंचंपा; all other MSs: हिलुंचंपां; AS: महाचण्डां 299. च्: ल–
300. AS: म्लेच्छमालीं शिवायुधां 301. छ्: दु:खघ्ननाशनीं; ण् छ्, ज्: +।। ३०।।; दु:खघ्ननाशनीं.
Cf. 16/62ab. 302. All MSs: –देवी
303. All MSs except छ्: –करी 304. च्, छ्: नट्टेश्वरसमो–; ज्: नट्टेश्वरसमा–
305. छ्, ज्: +।। ३१।। 306. च्: महामेरू–
307. घ्: महदोर्त्तिनिकृन्तनीं; all other MSs: महा–; महार्ति–; छ्, ज्: +।। ३२।। would be correct but is too short for the metre. Cf. ṢSS 34/38b = KMT 22/43d:
महदार्तिनिकृन्तनीम्।. See note to 5/3d. 308. छ्, ज्: +।। ३३।।
309. घ्, च्, छ्: –स्तं; other MSs: –हस्तां
310. घ्: –नी; च्, छ्: सर्वद्वन्दविनाशनी; छ्, ज्: +।। ३४।।
311. All MSs except घ्, छ्: महाश्मशान 312. घठाले
313. घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –ली 314. अहि: has become अहिन्
315. घ्: प्रणमाम्य; च्, छ्: –माम्यहं 316. Missing in MSs छ्; घ्: हं; छ्, ज्: +।। ३५।।
317. घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –णी 318. च्, छ्: –वस्थं; ज्: –वस्था
319. All MSs: अंविनी– 320. IM 6 + 7. 321. छ्, ज्: +।। ३६।।
322. ज्: ऊर्द्धकेशी 323. ज्: –री; AS: स्मशाने करवीरस्थामूर्ध्वकेशी भयंकरी
324. See above, note to 3/44d. 325. घ्, च्, छ्: –पात्रंधरां
326. छ्, ज्: +।। ३७।।. AS: नौमि विज्ञानदायिनीं
327. All MSs: लंकुटे. This emendation agrees with the reading in the AS.
328. ज्: च्छिण्ण– 329. AS: कपालीसेन संयुताम्
330. छ्, ज्: +।। ३८।। 331. AS: कामसारे 332. AS: श्मसाने
333. ज्: –लक्ष्मी; AS: कामलक्ष्मी 334. All MSs except घ्, छ्: –पति:; AS: मुखप्रदं.
Here again the goddess is given a male epithet; cf. 2/39a where she is called अधिपति: 335. घ्, च्, छ्: त्रिकोणां–; छ्, ज्: +।। ३९।।
336. श्मशाने एककोणाख्ये is meant here and, incidently, also fits the metre.
337. All MSs: त्रिकोणा 338. छ्, ज्: +।। ४०।। 339. घ्: –णे
340. ग्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: मातंगी; all other MSs: मातङ्गिं 341. घ्: –नायकां
342. छ्, ज्: +।। ४१।। 343. ग्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –ती
344. ग् : असुरासुरंदितां; all MSs: असुरासुर– 345. च्: –रा
346. छ्, ज्: +।। ४२।। 347. क्, ग्, ङ्, झ्: श्रीपार्वते–
348. See above, note to 3/52c. 349. छ्, ज्: +।। ४३।।
350. All MSs: महाशक्ति: 351. घ्, च्, छ्: –विनाशिनीं; all other MSs: विकासिनी
352. छ्, ज्: +।। ४४।।
353. ग्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –जसां; छ्: + ऊर्द्धकेशीं महौजसां। 354. छ्: ऊर्द्धकेशसमे–
355. छ्, ज्: +।। ४५।। 356. IM 5, 6 + 7. 357. IM 6.
358. घ्, च, छ्: –ध्वभयहारिणीं; छ्, ज्: +।। ४६।।; All MSs except ख्, घ्, ज्: तमोन्ध–; ग्, ज्: –णी। अन्धतमस– would be correct but does not fit the metre. See above, note to 13/2b. 359. IM 5 + 6. 360. All MSs: शक्तिर्
361. All MSs: भगाख्या 362. All MSs: –वासना. 363. ग्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –तं

364. छ्: +।। ४७।।; ज्: +।। ५७।। 365. छ्, ज्: +।। ४८।।

366. ग्: महामायातृवने; घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: महामातृवने 367. छ्, ज्: +।। ४९।।

368. ग्, ज्: –नी 369. छ्, ज्: +।। ५०।। 370. ग्, ज्: –री

371. घ्, च्, छ्: –का; छ्, ज्: +।। ५१।।

372. All MSs except छ्, ज्: मलवे

373. घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –तं 374. छ्, ज्: +।। ५२।।

375. IM 6 + 7. All other MSs except ख्, घ्, छ्, ज्: –केदारि–

376. छ्, ज्: +।। ५३।। 377. च्: + महाघोरे. All MSs: महालक्ष्मी

378. All MSs: जगत्सुकम् 379. छ्, ज्: +।। ५४।। 380. च्: –हा; AS: –हाश्.

381. All MSs: –शत्. This emendation is required by the metre and moreover agrees with the reading in the AS.

382. ग्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –ह; all other MSs: –हा; AS: –हा

383. All MSs: –न्ये; AS: सामान्ये 384. छ्, ज्: +।। ५५।। 385. AS: –मे विधानेन

386. AS: पूजां कृत्वा पठेत् पुनः 387. All MSs except घ्, ङ्, छ्: –द्वीपा; AS: श्रीचन्द्रपुर्ये 388. AS: कुलाख्यां

389. घ्, च्, छ्: कंकटीकरहस्ता; all other MSs: वंकटी–; AS: चंकटीकरहस्तां. This emendation agrees with the reading in the AS.

390. छ्, ज्: +।। १।।. AS: परमायुताम् 391. AS: रक्ता

392. AS: –ला 393. AS: –क्षी 394. AS: –ष्मा

395. All MSs and AS: –वी. IM 6.

396. छ्, ज्: +।। २।।. AS: ओडियाणस्थितां नौमि निम्त्वेषफलदायिनी।

397. घ्: –ता; AS: जालांधर– 398. AS with MS घ्: देवी

399. ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: –लक्ष्मी; AS: –लक्ष्मी 400. AS: महाप्रभा

401. क्, ग्, ङ्, झ्: फल्हेश्वर–; च्: फलवे–; छ्: फल्वेश्वर–; ज्: फल्ल्वेस्वर–; AS: कामेश्वरयुतां नौमि

402. ग्, ज्: –नी; घ्, च्: * * *। –तमोनाशिनीम्; छ्: नित्यं नौमि पराजितां; छ्, ज्: +।। ३।। would be regular. AS: अलक्ष्मीभयनाशनी

403. घ्: + नीत्यं पराजितां; च्: + नौमि पराजितां; 404. AS: पूर्णग्रीवा

405. AS: महाग्रीवा 406. AS with MS. घ्: –णी

407. AS: –युक्तं 408. AS: –तां

409. ग्: –मगणं; ज्: –मंगणं; छ्, ज्: +।। ४।।

410. IM 5 + 6. See above, note to 5/4a. AS: –वं 411. AS: –धारिणी

412. घ्, च्, छ्: नौमि–; छ्, ज्: +।। ५।।; AS: नौम्यभयङ्करी

413. AS: गोकर्णेश्वरसंयुक्तं तिस्राख्यो लोकधारिणी।

414. छ्, ज्: +।। ६।। AS: त्रिलोचने सदा नौमि दूरितौघनिकृन्तनी।

415. AS: + कोङ्कणे चाधिकारिण्यामुन्मन्यं मातृभिर्वृताम्।
पश्चिमेऽ स्मिन् गृहे नौमि अधिकारत्रयात्मिका। 416. छ्: कृर्ति–; ज्: कृत्ति–

417. AS: चामुण्डा 418. AS: –णी 419. च्: एकाश्रे

420. AS: एकाम्रस्थां सदा वन्दे 421. च्: नम्य; छ्, ज्: +।। ७।। AS: भवबन्धविनाशनी

422. AS: अग्निकोणसमोपेतां 423. AS: काञ्चीहस्तां तमोपहाम्

424. AS: कामकोट्ट; IM 5 + 6. 425. घ्, च्, छ्: –मिं; other MSs: –मी; AS: महालक्ष्मीं

426. All MSs except च्, छ्, ज्: श्री * वृद्धये; छ्, ज्: +।। ८।।; AS: श्रियवर्धनीम्

427. घ्, ग्, च्, छ्: अश्वरा; all other MSs: अश्वरां; AS: अर्वुदे

428. AS with MSs ग्, च्, छ्, ज्: –वी

429. ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: –नी; च्: अर्व्वदवासिनी; AS: –नी 430. छ्, ज्: +।। ९।।

431. AS with MSs ग्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –स्था 432. AS: मन्त्रेश्वरसमायुताम्

433. घ्, च्, छ्: –हस्ता 434. छ्, ज्: +।। १०।। AS: परां सर्वगतां नौमि
समयफलदायिनी 435. AS: + महाभैरवश्रीनाथं चिञ्चिनीवृक्षनायकम्।
४गायत्री संस्थितं नौमि दिव्यचक्रकुलेश्वरीम्।।

436. ग्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –संदोहै. A locative plural is required here. This and the following two lines correspond to KMT 22/47-48ab and ṢSS 34/51cd-52.

437. MSs CDEFGHJK of the KMT agree with this reading. The others read स्थित

438. All MSs: भूश्चक्र–. MSs C and G of the KMT support the reading मातरः. MSs D and E read मातराः. Only MSs ABI out of the 13 MSs collated read –मातराम्, which is the reading accepted by the editors who have either mistaken this for the correct form of the acc. sing. namely, मातरम्, or consider it to be a deviant form. It appears to be more likely that an accusative plural is meant here by मातरः; AS: पीठोपपीठसंदोहस्थिता भूचक्रमातरः।

439. च्: –तां. MSs EF and H of the KMT agree with this reading.

440. AS: भैरवेन समोपेता कीर्तयेद् यस्तु भावितः।

441. This line corresponds to AS 6/102ab. 442. AS: –ज्ञाः

443. ज्: स्वपन–; AS: स्वप्नकालेऽ पि वा

444. This line is missing in all of the other three sources.

445. च्: –ग 446. ज्: –घोरैः देविनां. This and the following line correspond to KMT 22/48cd-49ab, ṢSS 34/53 and AS 6/102cd and 6/106cd. AS: मुक्तः सपालकैर्घोरैर्मातृणां; KMT: मातृणां; ṢSS: –मात्रीणां.

447. ṢSS क्: संप्रतो–; AS: समतां व्रजेत्. The AS then adds the following:

यः पुनः क्रमपूजान्ते व्रतस्थः स्तुतिमानसः।
अर्चयेद् अधिकारार्थी रुद्रशक्तिकृतास्पदः।
पठेत् स्तोत्रवरं दिव्यं पीठसंदोहमण्डलम्।
पीठेश्वरसमायुक्तं पीठेशीभिरलंकृतम्।
साधिकारं समं कृतं सर्वविघ्नोपघातकम्।
तस्य ज्ञानप्रदा देव्या तस्य पापक्षयं भवेत्।
पश्चिमक्रमपूज्योऽ सौ स भवेद् योगभाजनः।

448. घ्, छ् –दन्ता. AS: पिट्रहा मातृहा वापि; KMT and ṢSS: मातृहा पितृहा चैव

449. KMT: ब्रह्मघ्न 450. च्: ब्रुणंहा; छ्, ज्: भ्रुणहा

451. च्, छ्, ज्: –ष्ठो 452. Verses 102cd-107ab correspond to KMT 22/49cd-54ab and ṢSS 34/44-58.

453. All MSs: –चारावलिप्तात्मा; KMT: –चारविलुप्तोऽ पि; ṢSS मन्त्रोच्चारविलुप्तोऽ पि

454. घ्: –तां 455. KMT and ṢSS: पीठसङ्कीर्तनात् प्रिये

456. ग्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –मुक्तः; KMT and ṢSS: पापकञ्चुकमुत्सृज्य

457. ṢSS: दुर्गतीः 458. All MSs: भवते. This emendation agrees with the reading in both the KMT and the ṢSS.

459. All MSs: शुद्धदेहात्मा. This emendation agrees with the readings in the KMT and the ṢSS.

460. क्: विकालं–; KMT: त्रिष्कालं; ṢSS क्: त्रिःकालं; ख्: त्रिष्कालं

461. The KMT, ṢSS and MSs च्, छ्, ज्: परिवर्त्तयेत्; घ्: परिवर्त्तये; all other MSs except ख्, ग्: परिकिर्तयेत् 462. All MSs: मातृणां

463. KMT and ṢSS: स्त्रीणां भवति वल्लभः

464. KMT and ṢSS: कुण्डेऽ थ मण्डले वाथ 465. च्: त–

466. ṢSS: लिङ्ग 467. छ्: –मूर्तो
468. ṢSS: च 469. All MSs and KMT: –मध्ये–
470. KMT: त्रिष्कालमे–; ṢSS: त्रि:कालमे–. Cf. 4/43a. 471. च्: य; ṢSS: वा *
472. ग्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: पठेदं 473. ग्, च्, छ्, ज्: * समाहित:; KMT: पठेद् यस्तु
भावित:; ṢSS: पठेद् यस्तु सुभावित: 474. ṢSS क्: –ग्निन्यो
475. KMT and ṢSS: जायते 476. ṢSS: निरुप्रद्रव: 477. ख्, घ्, च्, छ्: सजीवं
478. IM 6 and 7. 479. च्: अरन्य; छ्, ज्: अरण्य
480. All MSs: रुदितं 481. छ्, ज्: यावन्
482. Here, as elsewhere, तम् replaces the neuter nominative singular तत्.
483. All MSs: रणिमादि– 484. छ्, ज्: –नां 485. घ्, छ्: स्त्रीवक्रोवाच
486. All MSs: सर्व 487. छ्: –ल 488. M → N.
489. ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: सवीजी–; च्: सविजि–
490. घ्: भुक्ति च; छ्, ज्: भुक्तिञ्च; all other MSs: भोगं च
491. घ्: मुक्ति; all other MSs: मुक्तिं च
492. The dual, भवेताम्, would be correct. 493. All MSs: आधारा
494. ग्: –पश्चिमा; घ्: पूर्व्व– 495. छ्, ज्: गुप्तौ–
496. All MSs: महाभय. This line corresponds to KMT 22/54cd and ṢSS
34/59ab.
497. ङ्: कपिलायां–; घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: कपिलाया:–; ṢSS: बलवच्छत्रुविग्रहे
498. ख्, घ्, छ्: सप्ताष्टके–; all other MSs: सप्ताष्टकवि– 499. च्: –रह
500. च्: वृत्तमलं; all other MSs except छ्, ज्: वृत– 501. छ्: –मण्डिरे
502. IM 5 + 6. 503. च्: पुत्रका– + का
504. च्: + दीयैर्न्ना नाविधै: शुभै: 505. घ्, च्, छ्: –यै; छ्: –यैर्
506. Missing in MSs घ् and च्. MSs घ् and छ् add द्वीपैर्नानाविधै: शुभै:
507. ज्: –द्यै: दीपैर्– 508. ग्: शुभ:. This line is missing in MSs घ्, च् and छ्. 509. छ्, ज्: एकारमासनं; all other MSs: एकारासनं
510. A locative is required here.
511. The noun याग– is generally treated as neuter, cf. 16/121c.
512. All MSs: मध्यं 513. घ्, छ्: –य 514. घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –य
515. All MSs: पञ्चमं 516. All MSs except घ्, छ्: अन्य
517. ज्: –न 518. All MSs: पादान्तं
519. All MSs: नायकान् 520. All MSs except ख्, घ्, छ्, ज्: सर्वत–
521. ख्, ज्: तत्रस्वा:; घ्, छ्: तत्रस्था; all other MSs: तत्रस्वा
522. All MSs except घ्, छ्: कृषा– 523. घ्, च्, छ्: ददाति
524. घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: सर्व्वे 525. A verb is required here.
526. All MSs except छ्, ज्: –रन्यं
527. The splitting up of this sentence into two dependant clauses introduced with यदा, तदा, or the like, would complete the syntax. 528. च्: –तां
529. All MSs: पीठ
530. A locative is meant here. 531. All MSs: –शासने
532. क्: विद्य; ख्: विद्धा; ग्, ङ्, ज्, झ्: विद्वा; घ्, च्, छ्: द्विधा 533. छ्, ज्: ज्योतयेत्
534. All MSs: –षष्ठिस्तु 535. All MSs except घ्, च्, छ्: –रात्रिषितो. IS. –रात्रे + उषितो → –रात्रोषितो. This line corresponds to KMT 22/60ab and ṢSS 34/15ab. The emendation agrees with the reading in these two sources.
536. स्वपेदेकाकी has been contracted to save a syllable. KMT and ṢSS: निशामेकां

537. घ्: स्तुयन्ति:; च्, ज्: सुयन्तित:; छ्: स्तुयन्तित:
538. घ्, छ्, ज्: मात्रात्रिंशतजा; च्: मात्रो–; all other MSs: मात्रत्रिंशतजा
539. This and the following two lines correspond to KMT 22/60cd-61 and ṢSS 34/135cd-6ab and 137cd 540. ṢSS तु पुनर्
541. Despite its form, I do not take this verb to have a causative sense.
542. All MSs: पिण्डं. This emendation agrees with the reading in the KMT and the ṢSS. 543. KMT and ṢSS: पुन: पुन:
544. ṢSS: निर्विघ्न: साधकेन्द्रस्तु 545. KMT and ṢSS: क्षिप्रं भवति सिद्धिभाक्।
546. M → N. 547. All MSs: यक्षा–
548. All MSs: शत्रुरुत्–; घ्: –रुकटदिशे 549. घ्: –त
550. Missing in MSs घ् 551. ग्, घ्, च्, छ्: –भ्य; ज्: –भ्य:
552. च्: परोपघातेषु; छ्, ज्: –घातकृत्येषु 553. छ्: वाक्प्र; all other MSs: वास्त्र. इव, or the like, is implied here. 554. All MSs: स्वनाम
555. घ्: यानीभिप्सितान्; च्: प्राप्नुयानिसि–; छ्: प्राप्नुयानीप्सितान्; ज्: प्राप्नुयात्–
556. IM 5 + 6. This pāda is one syllable too long. 557. All MSs: सापिया
558. घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: जीवन्तवत्सा; all other MSs: जीवन्ते वत्सा
559. IM 6 + 7. 560. This line is very corrupt. The suggested emendation is tentative.
561. This and the following line correspond to KMT 22/63cd-4ab and ṢSS
34/140. 562. KMT and ṢSS: कामुक: सुभगो भवेत्
563. घ्: विद्यान् 564. KMT: वणिग् वै लाभमश्नुते; ṢSS: वणिग् वै
लाभमाप्नुयात् 565. घ्: दारान्
566. घ्, च्, छ्: भुमी; all other MSs: भूमीं 567. See above, note to 4/35b. 568. This and the following line correspond to KMT 22/64cd-65ab and ṢSS 34/141. ; KMT: –शिलश्च
569. All MSs except ज्: सिद्धि 570. KMT: ययौ; ṢSS क् ख्: परांययौ
571. All MSs: पद– 572. Cf. the expression समस्तव्यस्तव्याप्तिस्तु in KMT 22/66a.
573. M → N. This and the following line is missing in MSs घ्, च् and छ्.
574. All MSs add: पीठाचारविधानेन नत्य (ज्: नन्य) स्वातो भवेत् स च (ज्: स्तव:; all other MSs: मच) च (missing in MSs ज् and छ्)
575. The colophon in MS छ् reads: इत्याद्यावतारे महामन्थानभैरवयज्ञे कादिभेदे पीठस्तवाधिकारो नामानन्द:. In MS ज् it reads: ज्: महामन्थानभैरवयज्ञे अवतारिते and the rest is as follows in the edited text apart from the noted variants.
576. Missing in MS छ् and ज्; all other MSs except ग्: लक्षे–
577. The starts here in MS ग्; ज्: * * * * अवतारिते.
578. Missing in MS घ्. 579. Missing in MS घ्; छ्: –रो
580. ग्, ज्: अथा–; missing in MSs घ् and छ्.
581. All MSs except घ्, छ्: श्रीपीठस्तवाधिकारो

NOTES OF THE TRANSLATION OF CHAPTER SIXTEEN

1. Concerning the Lord of Yogis and his way of life, see above, note on 5/43.

2. The practice of begging alms (bhikṣācaryā) is effectively the Vow of Knowledge (vidyāvrata) explained in the previous two chapters. Concerning the interiorization of the eight centres of Kula and how these are related to inner experiences and 'places' see above, 14/77-81ab. The yogi goes to these 'places' within his Yogic body to beg from the Mothers who reside there the alms that highten his spiritual condition and give him special powers (siddhi). This has already been explained. Now the goddess wants to know about the mantras the adept should utter marking each station of his inner and outer pilgrimage. In particular, the goddess wants to know the most secret Vidyās relating to the deities, that is, the ones that contain the convention of the secret Kaula language. The Vidyās praise the metaphysical attributes of the Yoginīs who reside in these places and request their spiritual food. Each Vidyā begins with two syllables of this secret language, which indicate the identity and inner location of the Yoginī. Uttering these Vidyās, the adept shows that he is privy to these secrets and hence is an initiate who is fit to receive the grace of the spiritual nourishment the Mothers can offer.

3. This is the language of the Kula Path (see below 42/26cd ff.). It is also called the language of Yoga (42/49ab) or the language of Kula (kulabhāṣā). Like the knowledge of gesture and mantra, knowledge of this language is a sign of the adept's attainment (KMT 5/19cd-20ab). The most common form of this language in the Kubjikā Tantras are mantras 'in reverse', that is, the practice of presenting the syllables of a mantra in the reverse order to conceal their true form. An example is found in chapter seven of the KMT where the Samayā Vidyā and its six limbs are presented in this way. There are numerous other examples throughout the Kubjikā Tantras. We have seen that the Samayā Vidyā is also presented in the reverse order above (10/11-12), although this is not said there specifically to be the form of the mantra in the Kula language.

In our text this term has been reserved for a different form of this language. This consists of code words that together make up the sequence of codes (bhāṣākrama). Sixty-eight code words of this sort are presented below in chapter 42 where the meaning of some of them is explained. They are also found, for example, in the CMSS and other sections of the MBT. Most of these code words are effectively abbreviations formed from the first syllable of the word they denote. Abbreviations of this kind are commonly used not only as codes but also for the sake of brevity. Some of them are of common usage and their meaning is well known (see above, note to 2/28).

Unlike these abbreviations, the code words we are considering form a part of one or more conventions (saṁketa) that are systematically established and applied to conceal what is meant from the uninitiated. Note also that the code words that form a part of this 'Kula language' are maintained intact with the mantras in which they occur. In this respect they are similar to seed-syllable mantras, but are clearly distinguishable from them by the absence of the final nasalisation (candrabindu) which is their defining feature.

4. Varaṇā is name of the river that marks the northern boundry of the city of Vārāṇāsī. Accordingly, below in 16/17 we are told that Varaṇā is in Vārāṇasī. In the Tantras of the early period, we sometimes find the spelling Varuṇā for Varaṇā. We observe the same variant in the Purāṇas (see, for example, Padmapurāṇa 5/14/192 and Liṅgapurāṇa 1/92/87; Dubey 1993: 31 n. 1). On the principle that a part may denote the whole, in the early Tantras (although not, as far as I know, in the Purāṇas) Varaṇā / Varuṇā stands for Vārāṇasī. Thus we find that in the Kālīkulakramārcana (fl. 20b) the second place in this group of eight is called Vārāṇasī, rather than Varaṇā or Varuṇā.

5. Just as Varuṇā is a common alternative form of Varaṇā, this place name is also called Kaulla (16/7). The full name is Kollāgiri or Kaullagiri (14/93).

6. For a chart of the Eight Mothers and their locations, see appendix 6. All these places appear amongst the sixty-four sites eulogized in the Pīṭhastava further ahead in this chapter. The reader is referred there for an account of the geographical location of these places and related notices. For Prayāga see 16/38cd-37ab, Varaṇā / Vārāṇasī 16/39cd-40ab, Kollā (also called Kola, or Kollāgiri) 16/35cd-36ab, Jayantikā (also called Jayantī) 16/36cd-37ab, Caritra (or Caritrā) 16/34cd-35ab, Ekāmraka 16/95 and Devikoṭṭa 16/80cd-81ab. We may note briefly in passing that the first two and hence, presumably, the foremost two in this series, are, along with Gāyā, considered in many Purāṇas to be three most important sacred sites (tirtha). As such they are the 'three places' of the well-known work by Nārāyaṇa Bhaṭṭa, the Tristhalīsetu (The Bridge of the Three Places). It is especially significant that the first place should be given to Prayāga, which the Purāṇas hail as the King of Sacred Sites (tīrtharāja). This then is an example of a meeting point between two distinct sacred geographies of two parallel worlds: the exoteric Purāṇic and the esoteric Tantric.

Each of the following mantras is dedicated to the Yoginīs (identified below in 16/13-14 with one of the Mothers) who reside in these places. The names of each of the eight sites are sometimes suffixed with the word – kṣetra- 'sacred fields' (Ṭīkā fl. 52b-53a). The YKh presents two parallel lists (fl. 91, see below). The first is that of the eight *dūtī*s followed immediately after by that of the eight Mothers. Thus juxtaposing the two. There, the first set of eight is called the Group of Eight Fields (kṣetrāṣṭaka). The second is the Group of Eight Kulas (kulāṣṭaka). Our text agrees that each Yoginī resides in her own sacred field (16/15) but, even so, it names the group, irrespective of the Mothers, the Group of Eight Siddhis (16/13). The YKh (1) (3/12 ff.) supplies the inner equivalent of these eight and the eight Mothers with which they are equated. The account begins with an exposition of the eight types of Yoginīs (see below 42/38 ff). This group consist of the eight Samayās and so is called the Octad of the Samayā. This group is also called the Octad of Kula. Elsewhere, the same group of eight Yoginīs with minor variations in the names is again referred to as the Octad of Kula (YKh (1) 4/76 ff.). Thus, despite the three separate names given to the group of Yoginīs and the two groups mentioned above, they are all the Octad of Kula in three different perspectives. The three sets of three Octads of Kula reappear again below in 42/27-43. There the first set of eight is of the Mothers who have been given secret names (see below). The second set of eight is of the sacred fields and the low-caste women. The third set of eight is the eight types of Yoginīs. There they are explicitly equated with the eight Mothers and the eight *Dūtī*s (see below 42/38-42).

It appears that these three sets are normally worshipped together. In this case, the first set is comprised by the Vidyās that follow (16/5-15) called the Octad of Accomplishments (16/13). The second comes just after (16/16-23). Thus, the hymn to the sixty-four sacred seats and the Yoginīs who reside there that makes up the second half of this chapter should be understood to be fulfilling the function of the third set, which is that of the Yoginīs, even though they are not eight. The discrepancy may be explained if we understand the group of eight Yoginīs not to be of eight individual Yoginīs, but of eight types. This interpretation is supported by YKh (1) (25/74cd) according to which : 'this is said to be the Octad of Kula, born of the group of eight wheels' (kulāṣṭakam idaṁ proktaṁ cakrāṣṭakasya saṁbhavam || see below notes to 42/41-42). Thus we may assume that the sixty-four Yoginīs of this hymn are arranged in eight groups of eight corresponding to the eight types of Yoginīs, eight Mothers and the rest. Although this arrangement is not invariably applied and there is no specific mention of it here, it is a common way of arranging the sixty-four Yoginīs.

Finally, we note that the identifications of the resident low-caste women with the Mothers may not be original. There are several places in the Kubjikā Tantras where these eight places with their low-caste residents are listed as a group without associating them with the Mothers (see, for example, KMT 25/90-95ab). These may be substituted with Yoginīs, as we find in chapter 24 of the KMT where they are presented as part of the goddess's maṇḍala. There the Kulāṣṭaka is worshipped around the inner hexogram that surrounds the central traingle, just as it in our text and generally otherwise as well. The eight goddesses are listed with the section of the alphabet each one presides over, the direction they are in, the sacred field and the god, along with a long vowel and the last eight consonants in reverse order conjoined with a long ‘ā’. The eighth is visarga and ‘hā’. The letter KṢa is in the centre and is worshipped with Kubjīśāna.

The existence of the separate groupings we have examined, coupled with their identification and, in some lists, merger in various ways with one another, strengthens the supposition that identification of low-caste women with the Mothers is not part of the original teachings. Something similar has taken place in the Kālī Tantras or at least in the Mādhavakula section of the Jayadrathayāmala and Devyāyāmala quoted by Abhinavagupta. There the locations are the same. However, although the *dūtī*s are also women of low caste, they are not the same. However, as here, the Mothers do not appear there.

7. Cf. KuKh 42/27-30

8. Each mantra begins with two syllables of the secret Kula language. Thus, all together it presents a set of eight code syllables the CMSS calls the ‘eightfold convention’. In chapter forty-two below, several sets of such code syllables, including this one (see 42/27 -8ab) are presented and, in some cases, as in this one, is explained. We find a similar set associated with these same eight places in chapter three of YKh (1) (verses 27cd to 29ab) and in chapter ten of the CMSS (verses 1 to 14). In the latter it is said to be the ‘milked extract (sandoha) of the Khecarīmata’. The names of the resident *dūtī*s according the CMSS differ considerably from those of our text and the KMT. It is therefore very unlikely that the Khecarīmata is the KMT. Perhaps it is the Khecarīmata mentioned below in 25/53 and 39/140 and in TĀ 29/165. It is safe to assume that out of these three versions, the one found in chapter forty-two of our text corresponds to that in this set of mantras and so, where necessary, I have emended the text accordingly. The version in YKh (1) is very concise; moreover, the manuscripts are very corrupt. Accordingly, only the variants found in the CMSS will be noted.

First of all we should note that each pair of syllables begins with KU. According to the CMSS, KU means Kubjikā. She appears at the beginning of each of the mantras because all the sacred places mentioned below, both internal and external, belong to her. Each place is a ‘house’ (gṛha, ghara) where a low-caste woman resides who is an embodiment of the goddess with whom the adept unites. Thus, as we are told below: ‘in this way, Kubjikā, the one deity of the House (gṛhadevatā), is of eight kinds’ (42/30). Moreover, by virtue of the process of juxtaposition just described, all the other Yoginīs mentioned in these mantras and the Eight Mothers are all identified with Kubjikā. This identification, especially with the Eight Mothers, is still a feature of the Kubjikā cult amongst Newar initiates in the Kathmandu Valley, as it is of all the Great Kaula Goddesses.

The second syllable in each pair denotes the aspect of Kubjikā as the household deity (gṛhadevatā) of that place. According to the CMSS it is associated with the ‘inner Mālinī’, that is, the energy of Kuṇḍalinī deployed in the centres within the subtle body of the adept. Thus, this syllable apparently denotes the secret name of the aspect of the goddess within the body. I suppose that the name that appears in the next line is that of the divine identity of the low-caste woman which is the aspect of Kubjikā engaged in the practice of union (caryā) with the adept, or to be more precise, with his divine identity.

According to 42/28cd below, the two syllables KU and LĀ denote Kulāvalī (the Troupe of Kula). According to the CMSS (10/7cd) the second syllable is VĀ which denotes the goddess who 'vomits' (vāmati) i.e. emanates the universe. This is the Yoginī Śvapacī (Dog Cooker) who resides in the 'the foundation of all' (sarvādhāra), that is, the Wheel of the Foundation.

9. Akṣara – lit. 'imperishable' is one of the names of Brahmā. Thus Akṣarī is another name for Brahmāṇī who is Brahmā's consort and the first Mother.

10. Literally '(the goddess) called the letter KU'. This common appellation is a way the devout adept can refer to the goddess while refraining out of respect to mention her name directly.

11. See 15/39cd-41 and 15/46-47ab where it is quite clear that central to this practice is ritual intercourse. The goddess herself assumes the form of the courtesan in Prayāga who unites with the adept who observes the Vow of Knowledge. The Kaula sacrificial pap (caru) may be meat or sexual fluids. In this case, one wonders whether it is not the latter that is meant. If so, it appears that what happens is that the adept (vīra) first unites with the Yoginī and then asks her to give him the sexual fluids that have been discharged and are naturally mixed within her.

12. Below (42/28cd) we are told that ŚĀ represents Śākinī. Kubjikā is identified with this Yoginī in other places also (see chapter six above). According to the CMSS (10/8), the syllable here is ŚĪ, which stands for the house of Pukkaśī who resides in the location of the Fourth (state beyond waking, dreaming and deep sleep) (turyasthāna). This is the Wheel of the Self-supported (svādhiṣṭhāna). According to HT 1/3/10 Pukkaśī is one of the eight goddesses who are in the company of Hevajra. She holds a vajra.

13. Literally '(the goddess) called Ku'. See above note to 16/5.

14. According to some MSs (14/93 above) the woman here is Muṇḍinī – the Nun . But Śuṇḍinī is also the name found in KMT 25/107d.

15. Also called cakramelaka – lit. 'assembly in a circle' or simply melaka – 'assembly.' An Assembly of the Rule is a Kaula ritual performed collectively by a group of Vīras and Yoginīs, that is, male and female initiates in solitary places, cremation grounds or, as in this case, the sacred fields (kṣetra) and other such places. Such rituals require the offering to the deity of meat and wine and normally, but not always (as in the following example), the union between partners. Abhinavagupta describes one of these rites in the TĀ (28/82cd-84, 104cd-105ab) of which the following is a part:

The teacher should be amidst them and, immediately around him, his family. Three other circles surround him consisting of the other participants, up to the followers of the rule (samayin). They can also be arranged in straight rows, but the teacher must always be in the middle. Finally, all these circles must be worshipped, in due order, with perfumes, incense, garlands, oils and cloth. [. . .] The heroes and the consorts (śakti) should meet at night in a secluded house, informing one another (of the meeting) by means of a secret language – the so-called language of the goddesses – and call each other by names that are not part of the normal conventions. If it has not been possible to put together a 'circle of sacred bodies' (mūrticakra), the worship of (pre-menstrual) virgin girls suffices.

Abhinava explains that the 'sacrifice of the sacred bodies' (mūrtiyāga) can be performed on various occasions, not only during such rituals. One variety is termed 'the coupled one' in which the male initiates participate along with their consorts. Again, this may be of two kinds according to whether the women are the adepts' wives or paid courtesans (ibid. 25/78cd-82ab). The women are considered to be embodiments of the goddess and are worshipped accordingly, especially when union takes place. And so, the goddess is portrayed here as having gone to such an assembly.

16. VE means Veśyāvalī – 'the Troupe of Courtesans' (below 42/30). According to the CMSS, this syllable is VA. It denotes vaṣaṭ which is associated with the Yoginī Mātaṅgī who resides in the navel.

17. YĀ denotes Yākinī Bhairavī (below 42/29). According to the CMSS the syllable is YO which denotes the place of the Yoginīs, where Ḍombī resides in the middle of the heart. Ḍombī is also associated with the Buddhist god Hevajra to whose neck she clings 'impassioned by great passion' (HT 1/3/10).

18. BHU denotes Bhuktivatī (Endowed with Enjoyment) (below 42/29). The CMSS agrees that this syllable is BHU and that it denotes bhukti – 'enjoyment'. However, the Yoginī is called Ghaṇṭakī, who resides in the uvala (ghaṇṭā) at the back of the throat.

19. KṢE denotes Kṣemaṁkarī (the Forgiving) (below 42/30). According to the CMSS, KṢE means the supreme field worshipped in the house of Veśyā (the Courtesan) in the foundation of the Command, between the eyebrows.

20. Possibly, the Tradition of the Six Thousand (ṣaṭka) is the Kumārikākhaṇḍa. Although ṣaṭka literally means 'group of six', I have translated this word as six thousand, on the model of the expression 'vimalaṣaṭka' found in most of the colophons at the end of a chapter of our text, that I translate as 'Pure Six Thousand (verses)'. This agrees with the usage of the word ṣaṭka to denote a text six thousand verses long. The four parts of the massive (24,000 verse) Jayadrathayāmala are, for example, called '*ṣaṭka*s'. Our text is also six thousand verses long and is a part of the MBT and so can well be called a ṣaṭka – although, admittedly, this expression is not common in the Kubjikā sources apart from the instances just mentioned.

21. NIḤ is the goddess Niṣkramaṇā (the Exit) (below 42/30). According to the CMSS the syllable is NI. It contains the abode of the triple world (triloka). It is located in the Cavity of Brahmā on the crown of the head.

22. According to 14/94 above, the name of this dūtī is Śilpī.

23. MA is the goddess Maṅgalā (the Auspicious) (below 42/30). According to the CMSS the syllable is MĀ and it means the Yoginī Kandukī who resides at the End of the Twelve, which is the place of Vāmā.

24. See above, note 2..

25. The more usual form of this Mother's name is Māheśvarī.

26. According to 42/34 below the dūtī here is Kañcukī (the Debauchee).

27. Above in 16/12 this dūtī is called Kauśaṭī and below in 42/35ab Kauśikī (the Femle Owl). See above 15/8cd-9ab.

28. The SamP (fl. 10a) comments on the following section up to verse 23 which is called there the Kulāṣṭakasūtra. It consists of eight pairs of lines. The first line of each pair is a mantra and is in prose. The second line is set in anuṣṭubh metre. The SamP only comments on the first line of each pair. Unfortunately, the commentary on the first mantra is missing.

29. Note that all the goddesses in these places are Bhairavīs.

30. The SamP glosses Ā as 'all round' (samantataḥ) and samayācāru as kaulācāracature – '(O you who are) Skilful (all round) in Kaula practice.'

31. According the SamP: 'AVVE means mother (ambā) in Prākṛta and in vulgate (apaśabda) (it means) drink (pāna) and the syllable VA. (Thus) avvā (means the goddess who) drinks wine (madyapānā). Caṇḍikā is (meant) by the letter CA. ME is (an abbreviation of the name) Menā. NA is Nartakī (the Dancer) and CA is Caṇḍālinī. HUṀ HUṀ is the mantra (used) when asking a question (praśne). Ā denotes āmnāya (the teaching). (The third) HUṀ indicates mild anger (kiñcit krodhaḥ). The fruit (of this mantra) is mastery of Yoga.'

In other words, the mantra means: 'O Mother, You who drink wine! O Caṇḍikā! O Menā! O Māyā! O Dancer! O Caṇḍālinī! HUṀ HUṀ O teaching! HUṀ! HO'.

* Menā is the wife of Himavān and mother of Bhadrakālī, the form of Kubjikā who married Bhairava.

32. The reading in the SamP for 'jāgriṇī' is 'jāggiṇī' glossed as '(the goddess) whose nature is wakefulness (jāgradrūpiṇī). MA (is the goddess) Maṅgalā, I is Indrā, DI is Dinākhyā ((the goddess) called Day), DVI is Dviraṇḍā (Two Holes), Ā is Ānandā (Bliss), GHUG is Ghūrṇā (Rolling in Intoxication), GHURUMĀLAVAJANTI is (the goddess) called Ghurumulāvajantī, HO is the Truth (satya), Ī is Īśānī and Ā is Āhlādā (Joy)'.

33. According to the SamP: ‘DIDVANA is the (goddess who) dances for two days (dinadvayanartanā). DVASAYALA is the wealth of two sacrifices (performed according to the) Rule (dvayasamayayajñalakṣmī). ĀHO (is an exclamation uttered) when one is (experiencing) suffering (kheda).’

34. The SamP reads ‘suṣmari suṣmari’ in place of ‘suvbhari suvbhari’. Either way, the word suvbhari/suṣmari (in the vocative) appears to be a vernacular form of the Sanskrit sundarī – ‘a beautiful woman’. Thus the SamP glosses ‘suṣmari’ as ‘sundarībhairavi’ – ‘O beautiful Bhairavī!’ The commentary continues: ‘ĀHO denotes lordship (or wealth – aiśvarya). KUḌI is the measure (pramāṇa) of a *kuḍava. HOMĀYE (means according to one view) 'to make fire offerings' (homāya) and according to another, ‘O Māyā’ (he māye).’

* According to Monier-Williams, a kuḍava is: ‘a measure of grain or of wood or of iron etc. (4th part of a prastha, described by some as a vessel four fingers wide and as many deep containing 12 *prakṛti*s or handfuls; also said to contain 13½ cubic *aṅgula*s, or to contain 64 cubic *aṅgula*s, or to be a finger and a half deep and three fingers each in length and breadth; in medicine it is equal to two *prakṛti*s or thirty-two *tolaka*s’.

35. The SamP glosses the meaning of this mantra as follows: ‘NA (means) purified (niśodhita). HOMĀ is the fire sacrifice (yajñā).* Another opinion is that (NAHOMĀ) means Śiva who is HAḤ and, possessing Amā (the New Moon), dances in the sacrifice. ALI means wine. LILIVIJJE is the substance requested, which is the leftover offering (ucchiṣṭayācatārthaḥ) that has been produced from a heap of extremely tasty (food) (atiśayalehyavṛndaja [atiśayalehavindanajā]). SAMARA means oneness (ekībhāva). SAVAK KAHAJANTĪ means (she is engaged in) telling everything (sarvaṁ kathayantī)’.

* The noun yajña- is normally masculine. It appears that the commentator has changed the gender of this noun to suit his exegetical purpose.

36. According to the SamP: ‘The three HOs have a vocative sense. SAVVA means (she is) everything (sarvā). SA is Sarasvatī. LA is Lakṣmī. VAṬṬA is Vaṭayakṣiṇī.

37. The SamP adds that: ‘The fruit is Kauleśa, mastery over Speech and the lordship of knowledge. It bestows success (siddhi) and (the adept becomes) the Lord of the Heroes whose nature is Bhairava, who has accomplished many things (anekasiddha) and who is the Skyfarer. Taking the sacrificial pap (caru) in this way, (the adept) should eat it.’

38. We have seen that the main function of the Samayā Vidyā is to purify the adept who has transgressed the Rule. The purifying power of the Vidyā is reinforced by the recitation of the Hymn to the Sacred Seats (see below, 16/111 ff.). The AS enjoins that the Hymn to the Sacred Seats should be recited with care and attention at the end of daily worship (nityārcana) following the liturgy (krama) of the bali offering. It should be recited at the three junctions of the day (sandhi) after eating the food offering (naivedya). The one who recites it should be blissful, empowered, devoted to the rite of adoration (arcākarma) and intent on devotion and faith (AS 6/11 ff.). As he recites the hymn, the initiate travels in his mind to these these sites; this internal pilgrimage serves – as does pilgrimage in general – as a purifying penance (prayaścitta). Elsewhere the texts promise that by worshipping the sacred sites the initiate can also achieve liberation (see, for example, above 6/193). Here he is only offered worldly and spiritual benefits (bhoga) including purity, long life, freedom from disease and the like (16/101-109ab). This is more in accord with the general view that pilgrimage, whether external or internal, affords no more than yogic and worldly accomplishments, not liberation.

39. The term glāni, here translated as 'lassitude' also means laziness, a feeling of nausea, weakness or lack of enthusiasm (anutsāha) that dulls consciousness. Kashmiri Śaiva exegetes explain that this condition is the fettered soul's inner weakness that deprives him of the courage and firm intention to lay hold of his true nature. Abhinavagupta (TĀ 9/84cd-86) lists it, along with ignorance, as one of a number of synonyms for the impurity that obscures the consciousness of the fettered. He says:

> Impurity is variously named (in the scriptures) according to its nature, for example, desire (abhilāṣa), ignorance (ajñāna), nescience (avidyā), craving (lolikā), absence of vision (aprathā), the defect of phenomenal existence (bhavadoṣa), the boat of the individual soul (aṇuplava), lassitude (glāni), dryness (śoṣa), dullness (vimūḍhatā), the state of 'I' and 'mine' (ahaṁmamatātmatā), fear (ātaṅka), the power of Māyā, an obscuring covering (āvṛti), the seed of imperfection (doṣabīja), the fettered state (paśutva) and the cause of the sprout of transmigratory existence (saṁsārāṅkurakaraṇa).

Thus, according to Abhinava, this lassitude is the ignorance that is the soul's most basic impurity (āṇavamala) and root of the others. Along with doubt and the contraction of consciousness, lassitude is one of the ‘firm bars that seal the prison of transmigration’ (TĀ 12/20cd-21ab). However, Kallaṭa Bhaṭṭa, who preceded Abhinava by a century or so, was probably closer to the view of the Tantras from which this term is drawn when he explained that this lassitude is not ignorance but its product:

> Lassitude ravages the body, and this arises from ignorance. But if it is eliminated by an expansion of consciousness (unmeṣa), how can (ignorance), deprived of its cause, continue to exist? SpKā 40

According to our text, this ‘lassitude’ is the result of one’s failure to observe the precepts. This failure sullies the initiate who is thus subject to the forms of suffering outlined in the following lines of our text along with the lassitude that Rāmakaṇṭha, Kallaṭa's commentator, explains is ‘the depression brought about by indolence etc. It 'ravages the body', that is, it forcibly deprives (the individual) of his power, vitality, complexion and strength and of the vital constituents of the body’ (Dyczkowski 1992: 117). The recitation of the Vidyā and the recitation of the Hymn to the Sacred Seats that follows purifies the adept who has suffered a fall and so frees him of this lassitude and its consequences.

40. According to the commentary on the ṢSS the omission (lopa) meant is damage to the rite of adoration (pūjāhāni).

41. This verse corresponds to the following three lines in the KMT (22/20-21ab) and the ṢSS (34/24cd-25):

Having (mentally) formed (the sacred places) beginning with Aṭṭahāsa and ending with Rājagṛha along with the goddesses with (their) weapons and accompanied by the guardians, he becomes pure by attending (sevana) the primary and secondary sacred fields and the meeting places (sandoha).

42. See appendix 8.

43. The sixty-four sacred seats are the residence of as many Yoginīs and guardians (kṣetrapāla). Each group of eight Yoginīs (here referred to as goddesses) is associated with one of the eight Mothers. This verse explains the form of the mantra for each Yoginī. This should begin with the Five Praṇavas and the seed-syllable of the Mothers, which is HSKHPHREṀ (see below 16/111-114).

44. According to the ṢSS (34/115-6ab), all the Yoginīs:

. . . wear red clothes and are adorned with ascetic's earrings (mudrā) and bracelets. Beautiful with (their) necklaces, they sit on a seat of cloth. They should all be placed in (their) sacred seats facing towards (the worshipper).

raktavastraparīdhānā mudrākaṭakabhūṣitāḥ |
graiveyasuśobhāḍhyā vastrāsanasusaṁsthitāḥ [kh: -tā] ||
sanmukhāś ca tataḥ sarvāḥ [k, kh: sarvā] pīṭhasthāś ca [k, kh: -sthāḥsva] niveśayet |

However, according to the ŚM all the Yoginīs have a different form of their own. In the course of describing the Circle of the Sun, the outermost part of the Wheel of the Skyfarers, the ŚM supplies a description of the visualized forms of the twenty-four Yoginīs who reside in the first twenty-four sites listed here (ŚM 19/46-189). Most of them are young, passionate and beautiful with large breasts and fine limbs, well-adorned with ornaments. Even those Yoginīs such as Cāmuṇḍā who look ferocious are said to be passionate just as are the others who are young and attractive. All of them, whether fierce, attractive or a combination of the two, when aroused and contemplated release nectar (ibid. 19/189cd) as do the Yoginīs in the other circles.

As the descriptions of the Yoginīs are somewhat long and repetitive, they will not be translated. Only the particular features of each one will be noted and occasional variants in their names as they come up.

45. The ŚM calls this Yoginī Kadambā, probably confusing the goddess with the Kadamba tree in which resides in this site. She is white and wears a garland of blue jewels around her head and one of gold and jewels that hangs down to her feet. She has sixteen arms. In her left hands she holds a skull, conch, vīṇā, shield, an iron club (parigha), bell, seal and trident. In the right hands she holds a thread, sword, noose, goad, javelin, lance (tomara), bell and ascetic's staff (khaṭvāṅga). She sits on a lion (ŚM 19/45cd-51).

46. The Nauclea Cadamba, a tree with fragrant orange-coloured blossoms.

47. This site is still active as a Śākta Pīṭha on the eastern part of Labhpur in the Birbhum district, West Bengal (Bhattacaryya 1999: 77). It is seven miles from the Amodpur Station of the East India Railway which corresponds approximately to the area around persent day Shantiniketan. According to the Pīṭhanirṇaya (see also the Kubjikātantra chapter 7 and the Padmapurāṇa sṛṣtikhaṇḍa chapter 11), this is the place where Satī's lips fell. The name of the goddess there is Phullarā (Day 1990: 13, Sircar 1967: 37, 57) and her Bhairava is Viśveśa who is called Viśvanātha in the Śivacarita (Sircar 1967: 41). The Āmnāyamañjarī agrees that the tree here is the Kadamba. In the Tibetan translation the name of the goddess here is 'Bzhin bzangs ma', which Wayman reconstructs as Sumukhī but could also be Saumyāsyā, as we have here. The guardian according to that source however, differs. In Tibetan he is called Rgyu which Wayman reconstructs as Āṭika (the Wanderer).

This place is also said to be the residence of Vaiṣṇavī, the fourth of the eight Mothers. As we have noted already, all eight of these sites appear amongst these sixty-four, but in no case do the goddesses listed there figure as one of the eight Mothers. It is unlikely that Saumyāsyā is Vaiṣṇavī. As the iconographic details differ in this and every other such instance, they are probably different. A similar question arises with regards to the main sacred seats. These, including Tisra as the fifth, appear successively below (see 16/90-94). In that case also the names of the goddesses said to reside there do not match those when they are treated separately.

48. Each site is the residence of a Yoginī and a Bhairava who is the guardian of the place (kṣetrapāla) and her partner. Concerning Kṣetrapāla we read in the Mayamata that '. . . in his tāmasa form he is black like a storm cloud. In

(his) sāttvika form he has two or four arms; when he is rājasa he has six and, when tāmasa, eight. Locations (appropriate to him) are (found throughout) the countryside' (36/178-9ab).

Protector of the hosts who are at the ends of the roads, he looks like a child and a dog is his mount. He is to be placed outside settlements, such as villages, whether at the gates, in a wood or on a mountain. He is to be to the east or northeast, at the position of Parjanya or of Diti. When he is seated on a lotus throne he fulfils all desires; when he has four or six arms . . . (?) he is honoured by dogs, cocks and other creatures and is encircled by Yoginīs and Siddhas. (36/183-185)

49. The name of the Yoginī's consort here according to the AS is Mahābala – Great Strength.

50. The name of the Yoginī here according to the ŚM is Susiddhā. But it seems that this is a mistake. All the other sources say that the Yoginī here gives good success (susiddhi), not that this is her name. Anyway, we can safely identify her as the Yoginī mentioned in this verse. The ŚM (19/52-57) says that she is red like a Javā flower. Her tiara shines with the (crescent) moon and she has twelve arms. In her right hands she holds a noose, goad, conch, thread, spear and an iron club. In her left hands she holds a skull, vīṇā, javelin, noose, mirror and lotus. She sits on a ghost.

51. This tree is the Pongamia Glabra.

52. Also called Caritra or Caritrapura, this was a famous seaport town when Hiuen Tsang visited it in the seventh century. It has been identified as the modern town of Puri in Orissa (Cunningham 1990 (1871): 430).

53. The name of the consort here according to the AS is Mahāghaṇṭarava – the Sound of the Great Bell.

54. The ŚM (19/58-62) simply calls this Yoginī Lakṣmī. She is brilliant yellow like heated gold, wears a necklace of gold and gems and has eight arms. In her right hands she holds a lotus, noose, spear and a sword. In her left hands she holds a skull, conch, thread and a seal. She sits on Varuṇa.

55. According to Sircar (1973: 89) Kollāgiri (he spells it Kaulagiri) is Kolvagiri which he says is 'possibly modern Coorg or Koḍagu which means 'steep mountain'.' This is Day's opinion (1990: 101). But Sircar believes that is is more probable that it is Kolhapur near Mombai, but this is not likely as the texts generally refer to Kolhapur as Karavīra.

56. According to the ŚM (19/63-68) Jvālāmukhī is dark like black collyrium or a storm cloud. Her mouth is like a burning fire (jvālāsyā) and she has large, sharp teeth. She wears a necklace made of many gems and has six arms. In her right hands she holds a flag, noose and spear. In her left hands she holds a skull, bell and stick. She is very fierce (mahābhīmā) even though she is beautiful and mad with the pleasures of the passion of youth, like the other Yoginīs. She wears a girdle of snakes and rumbles like a storm cloud. She waves her finger in a threatening gesture (tarjamānā) and sits on a donkey. She removes obstacles.

57. Azadirachta Indica.

58. ṢSS: Śrījayantī. Day (1990: 81) says there are two places with this name. One is Jayanti in Assam. The other is the same as Vaijayantī, which was also called Vanavāsī. The town Vanavāsī in North Kannaḍa was situated on the left bank of the Varadā, which is a tributary of the Tuṅgabhadra. Vanavāsī was the capital of the early Kadamba dynasty (founded by Mayūravarman), until it was conquered by the Chalukyas in the sixth century. It was an important place already in the time Aśoka, who sent a missionary there in 245 BC (Day 1990: 21).

59. According to the ŚM (19/69-74) Mahāmayā is very fierce and blue like a storm cloud. She wears a necklace of blue gems and a long garland of pearls and nacre. She has four arms. In her right hands she holds a sword and an arrow. In her left hands she holds a bow and a shield. She plays, assuming many forms, and sits on an owl.

60. The holy fig tree, Ficus Religiosa.

61. Ekāmraka, according to the commentary of the ṢSS. We find several spellings of this place name in the texts. Sircar (1973: 35) records Ujjayinī, Uāni, Ujjanī, Urjanī and Ujayinī. Situated on the river Siprā, Ujjayinī is the modern city of Ujjain in Madhya Pradesh. Excavations show that the site of the city has been inhabited since at least the eighth century BC (Bhattacaryya 1991: 296). In Buddha's time Ujjain was the capital of Avanti (ancient Malwa), and was an important city when Aśoka resided there in 263 BC as the viceroy of his father Bindusāra. King Vikramāditya, who lived in the second half of the fourth century, added to the glory of Ujjain through his court which was famous for its nine 'great gems', the greatest of which was the famous Sanskrit poet, Kālidāsa. But in the seventh century, when Hiuen Tsang visited it, it was, according to Cunningham ((1871) 1990: 412): 'a recent Brahminical offshoot from the old Buddhist kingdom of Malwa. (. . .) The temples of the gods were very numerous, and the king himself was well versed in the heretical books of the Brahmins.'

For centuries, the tutelary deity of the city has been Mahākāla. His form is a Liṅga, which is considered by the Śivapurāṇa (1/38/17-20) be one of the twelve Liṅgas of Light (jyotirliṅga), that are venerated as the most important Liṅgas in India (See Singh 1993: 158 for a map of these sites). Kālidāsa refers with reverence to this Liṅga in his Meghadūta (1/37-38), indicating thereby that Ujjain was an important Śaiva site at least as early as the fourth century. In Hiuen Tsang's time the kingdom of Malwa was, along with Magadha, especially esteemed as a centre of Buddhist studies and was governed by a staunch Buddhist king (Cunningham (1871) 1990: 414). So, just as the Śaivite Ujjain was included in the sacred geography of the Kaula Tantras, similarly we find that Malwa (Dhī 1: 146) and its ancient capital, Dhārā appears in that of the Vajrayāna (Wayman 1995: 145). Ujjain continues to be an important Śaivite and Śākta centre. It appears as the pīṭha where the goddess's elbow-fell, according to the 17th or 18th century Pīṭhanirṇaya (Sircar 1967: 4). According to that source (ibid. 35), the goddess there is Maṅgalā or Maṅgalacaṇḍī. Surprisingly, however, the Bhairava mentioned there is Kapileśvara, not Mahākāla as is found in our text, and as one would expect.

62. According to the ŚM (19/81-85ab) Vāyuvegikā is white and red and has the lustre of sliced collyrium. She has the face of a deer (mṛga) and eight arms. In her left hands she holds an iron club, spear, flag, and bell. In her right hands she holds a thread, ascetic's staff, thunderbolt (vajra) and noose. She sits on a deer.

63. AS: who resides in power (śaktinivāsinī).

64. According to the AS she resides in an Uḍambara and a Kadamba tree. The Uḍambara is the tree Ficus Glomerata.

65. Considered by the Purāṇas to be one of the foremost sacred bathing sites (tīrtha), Prayāga, the modern Allahabad, is located at the junction of the rivers Ganges and Yamuna. It is surprising that the trees associated with this place in our texts are the Uḍambara and Palmyra, as the prestige of this place is partly derived from tree there known as the Akṣayavaṭa – 'the undecaying banyam.' Cunningham ((1871) 1990: 327) reports, that according to Hiuen Tsang's account: 'in the midst of the city there was a Brahminical temple [. . .] Before the principle room of the temple there was a large tree with wide-spreading branches, which was said to be the abode of a man-eating demon. The tree was surrounded with human bones, the remains of the pilgrims who sacrificed their lives before the temple, a practice which had been observed from time immemorial.' Concerning this tree and Prayāga, see Dubey (1985 and 1987)

The presence there of an Aśokan pillar testifies to the importance of the place in the 4th century BC. Its continued prominence as a Śākta site is apparent from its consistant inclusion in the sacred geography of numerous late medieaval Tantric texts. Sircar (1973: 93) notes, for example, that Prayāga is listed as a pīṭha in the late (probably Bengali or Assamese) Kubjikātantra as well as the Kulārṇavatantra (quoting from the Rudrayāmala). According to the Aṣṭādaśapīṭha, the goddess here is is Mādhaveśvarī. The Pīṭhanirṇaya says that the fingers of the goddess fell here and the presiding deity is Lalitā whose Bhairava is Bhava (ibid. p. 36). In actual fact, the main goddess presently venerated at Prayāga is Tripurābhairavī.

66. Ūrdhvakeśī is the name of the Yoginī here according to the KMT and the ṢSS. This is an epithet of this Yoginī according to our text indicating the identity of Ūrdhvakeśī and Śāṁkarī. Ūrdhvakeśī, according to the ŚM (19/91cd-96) is red. Her hair is upraised and her gaze is fierce. She wears a garland of bones. Her mouth is large and is fearsome with her lolling tongue. She wears ascetic's earrings (mudrā) made of pieces of bone that hang from her ears. She has long, dangling breasts and a thick waist. She wears many pieces of sinew. She has eight arms and is very fierce (mahāraudrā). In her left hands she holds a skull, spear, noose and pieces of cloth. In her right hands she holds an ascetic's staff, dagger (kartarī), thread and cloth. She sits on a ghost and is frightening.

67. The MSs of the KuKh indicate the reading ‘always does the best of things’. This has been emended in accord with the reading in the KMT. Without this emendation, the Yoginī in this place would have no partner.

68. The AS reads halāyudhaṁ i.e. ‘(her) weapon is a plough’.

69. Our texts frequently refer to Vārāṇasī as Varaṇā or Varuṇā. One of the oldest continuously inhabited places on earth, Vārāṇasī has had a long religious history. When Hiuen Tsang visited it in the first half of the seventh century, it was already a great Śaivite centre both for its temples and for the large number of ascetics there. He says that there were about a hundred Deva temples. He was particularly impressed by a huge idol of the god Maheśvara which he says was close to a hundred feet tall and appearance, grave and majestic, seemed as though alive. He adds that the city was inhabited by about 10,000 sectarians principally worshipping Maheśvara. These he described as follows (Ghurye 1995: 44): ‘Some cut their hair off, others tie their hair in a knot, and go naked, without clothes; they cover their body with ashes and by the practice of all sorts of austerities they seek to escape birth and death.’

Vārāṇasī is still one of the most important centres for Śaiva ascetics. Moreover, it possesses what many experts consider to be the most complex sacred geography of any city in India. It is also probably the most pan-Indian in cultural terms and, at present, the most cosmopolitan. Certainly the most researched place in the sub-continent, the reader is referred to the relevant studies, particularly those of Vyāsa, Sukul, Eck and Singh (see bibliography).

70. Karṇamoṭī according to the ŚM (19/97-102) is blue like a marijuana flower (atasī) or sapphire. She has the face of a bear. She wears a garland made of many gems and has a large belly. She has ten arms. In her right hands she holds a skull, spear, noose, snake, iron club and mallet. In her left hands she holds a conch, thread, thunderbolt, stick and ascetic's staff. She roars and, pleasingly fearsome (subhīṣaṇā), sits on the back of a bear (ṛkṣa).

71. The ĀM agrees that the tree here is a banyam. The goddess is called Rna ba chen mo in Tibetan which Wayman (1995: 142) reconstructs as Mahākarṇā (lit. “Big Ears”). One wonders if she may not somehow be related to Karṇamoṭī, at least in name, although Monier-Williams says that Karṇamoṭī is a name of Durgā in her form as Cāmuṇḍā.

Śrīkoṭa is a common name for Devikoṭa. However, as Devikoṭa is listed separately below as entry 48, Śrīkoṭa is probably not Devikoṭa. Both the JY and the KāKuKr call this place Śrīpīṭha. Sircar (1973 : 96) opines that this place may possibly be the same as Śrīhaṭṭa which is modern Sylhet in Assam.

72. AS: along with the Triad (trikānvitā).

73. After Karṇamoṭī, the ŚM describes two Yoginīs with practically the same name, that is, first Ambā (also called Ambikā) and then Ambikā (also called Ambikeśvarī). The second of these, according to the ŚM, governs Elāpura. According to our text, the Yoginī in Elāpura is Kharāsyā. As this name does not appear in the passage which is our source here in the ŚM, I assume that Kharāsyā and this Ambikā are the same (see below). According to the ŚM (19/103-113ab) Ambā (Ambikā) is green and red and shines like blue glass. She has the face of a parrot and light brown eyes (ātāmranayanā). She wears a necklace of red jewels around her neck and another that hangs down to her feet made of gems. She has four arms. In her right hands she holds a lotus and conch and in her left ones a skull and a trident. She sits on a peacock.

74. Virajā is the modern Jajpur on the Vaitaraṇī in the Cuttack district of Orissa. In an inscription of 1216 AD, king Anaṅgabhīma III of Orissa called himself a 'deputy' (rāvuta) and 'son' (putra) of the deities Puruṣottama, Rudra and Durgā who formed the triad of deities of Jagannātha at Puri. In this way he was claiming to have an intimate ritual relationship with the three dominant deities of costal Orissa. These were also the tutelary deities of three great dynasties. One was Puruṣottama of the Gaṅgas (12th century) who were in Puri. Another was Śiva Liṅgarāja of the Somavaṁśis (11th century) in Bhuvaneśvara and the third was the goddess Durgā – Mahiṣāsuramardinī of the Bhaumakaras (8th to 10th century). She was also called Virajā as was the town where she resided, that is, modern Jajpur (see Eschmann et al. 1986: 151). Ambikā meaning 'little mother' is a pet name of the goddess Durgā and so a reference to the famous goddess of Jajpur/Virajā may well be intended.

From the 6th century onwards Orissa – Oḍradeśa – was an important centre of the development of the Pāśupata cult first and then latter Āgamic Śaivism and Kaula Tantrism. The extensive worship of the Mothers and the many Śaiva temples commonly bearing representations of Lakuliśa Pāśupata and Bhairava are eloquent testimonials of this past. Even today, the worship of Jagannātha displays numerous Tantric features. These include the visualization of Kuṇḍalinī and the piercing of the Six Wheels, the extensive use of ritual gestures – mudrā and the manner of deposition of letters on the body – nyāsa. Consequently, Tripathi is of the opinion that 'the worship of Jagannātha owes its origin directly to the influence of the Śākta practices in Orissa' (Tripathi, G. C 1986: 303). Several Orissan temples built before the 14th century testify to the powerful influence of the cults of the Kaula and Bhairava Tantras. The two 64 Yoginī temples in Hirapura and Rani Jharail, and the Raṇirājeśvarī temple in Bhuvaneshvar, the spire (śikhara) of which is a three-dimensional Śrīcakra, are a few of the most famous examples. The prominent role the Mothers play in temple iconography indicates that the Kaula Tantrism that developed there in the 9th century onwards had much older roots. Indeed, the worship of the Mothers is a striking feature of religion in Orissa even today, as it is in the Kathmandu Valley.

The Vārāhī temple at Chaurasi gives a tantalizing glimpse of a possible past. The image of the sow-faced Vārāhī in this 9th century temple portrays her as pot-bellied and two-armed. In the left hand she holds a skull bowl and in the right a fish. This is exactly as she appears in some Kubjikā sources and commonly in Newar iconography. The association of this temple with the Kulacūḍāmaṇitantra seems hardly likely as the temple precedes the text by at least three hundred years. Even so, Dehejia (1979: 71) is right that it confirms the presence of Kaula sects in Orissa at that time. She notes that: 'on the walls of the Vārāhī shrine at Chaurasi are a series of eight erotic scenes which have been identified as depictions of the eight stages of ritual love-making detailed in the tantric text Kulacūḍāmaṇi. One of these scenes depicts Kāpālika and Kaula monks participating in a sexual initiation ceremony, and it would appear that this particular Vārāhī temple was associated with sex rituals of the type practiced by the Kaula sect. The Somavaṁśi rulers of Orissa, to judge from the copper plate charters, were followers of such a cult – all their records commence with several verses praising the pursuit of love.'

75. Agnivaktrā is yellow and red. She has large teeth with a flaming tongue and is frightening. She has large red eyes and wears necklaces of pearl and nacre and a garland of white skulls. She has sixteen arms. The left hands make a fear-quelling gesture and hold a spear, thread, bow, iron club, noose, goad and conch. The right hands hold a skull, ascetic's staff, javelin, snake, seal, mirror, thunderbolt and stick. She sits on a ram. (ŚM 19/113cd-119)

76. The spelling of this place name according to the KMT and ṢSS is Airuḍī. I could not locate it. Perhaps its name is related to that of the river Eraṇḍī. Nowadays, this is the river Uri or Or, a tributary of the Narmada in the vicinity of Baroda. The junction of these two rivers, near which Karnali is situated, is a sacred place of pilgrimage (Day (1927) 1990: 59).

77. The AS reads: Piṅgalā (Tawny One).

Piṅgākṣī is brown and, shining like a great cloud, she roars, making a fearsome sound, resounding like the ocean of destruction. She wears a necklace of pearls and a garland around her head made of blue gems. She has brown eyes and fourteen arms. In her left hands she holds a skull, fish, conch, noose, iron club, goad and ascetic's staff. In her right hands she holds a spear, thread, snake, sword, shield, mallet and thunderbolt. She sits on a bull. (ŚM 19/120 -126)

78. This city is famous in the Mahābhārata as the capital of the Kurus. Situated north-east of Delhi, it was 22 miles north-east of Mirat and south-west of Bijnor on the right bank of the Ganges (Day (1927) 1990: 74). It is said that Gaṇamukteśvara liṅga was situated in a quarter of the city marking the spot where Gaṇeśa worshipped Śiva (ibid. 60). Archeology has revealed that the presummed site of Hastināpura had a long pre-history (see Bhattacharyya 1999: 146-7).

79. Kharāsyā of our text may correspond to Ambikā (Ambikeśvarī) in the ŚM (19/108-113ab), although this Yoginī, according to the ŚM, does not have a donkey's face. She is white and red and wears a necklace of blue jewels. She has large eyes and a round face. She has eight arms. With her right hands she holds a spear, makes a boon-bestowing gesture and holds a thread and arrow. In her left hands are a skull, noose, conch and thunderbolt. She sits on a wild goose (haṁsa).

80. Elāpura appears to be a Sanskritization of the name Ilvalapura. It is the modern Ellora situated seven miles from Daulatabad and 44 miles from Nandagaon. It is said to have been the residence of the demon Ilvala whose brother, Vātāpi was killed by Agastya at Vātāpipura. The Buddhist cave there called Viśvakarmā is famous for the Caitya carved inside it. It is dated to the period between 600 and 750 AD. Another important cave is that of the Kailāsa temple constructed by Kṛṣṇarāja I of the Rāṣṭrakuṭa dynasty of Bādāmī, who reigned between 753 and 775 AD. He built it on the model of the Virūpākṣa temple at Pattadakal to celebrate his conquests. That this was an important Śaiva centre is indicated by the Śivapurāṇa, which refers to it as 'Śiva's abode' (śivālaya) (Day (1927) 1990: 59, 77). Even though the period when the Buddhist caves were constructed is believed to be when Buddhism disappeared from western India, it appears that this place continued to be a centre of Tantric Buddhism. It is one of the twenty-four Tantric Buddhist sites listed in the ĀM. The guardian according to that source is, as here, Gajakarṇa. The name of the goddess is Kharāsanā 'she who has a donkey as her seat' (Wayman 1995: 147). As the other details coincide, one wonders whether Kharāsanā is a corruption of Kharāsyā or the other way around. It is hard to decide. The visualized forms of this goddess, according to the Kubjikā Tantras, do not depict her as either sitting on a donkey or having a donkey's face. According to the 19th century Prāṇatoṣiṇī, the goddess here is called Vīrā and according to the Bṛhannīlatantra she is Mahāsaṁpat (Sircar 1967: 84), which is of no help. As this place does not appear in the other sources Sircar presents, it may well no longer have been a Śākta site when these two texts were composed.

81. According to the AS, she holds an axe (paraśu).

82. According to the KMT this Yoginī is called Gokarṇā, which is an appropriate homonym for the Yoginī who, according to our text, governs Gokarṇa. It is likely therefore that this Yoginī is Kumārī of our text, even though the name of this site in the other sources differs (see table 17 in appendix 8 of this volume). According to the ŚM (19/121-132ab) Gokarṇī is white as milk and has the face of a cow. She wears garlands of gems and flowers and has twelve arms. In her right hands she holds a thread, spear, javelin, noose, stick and waterpot. In her left hands she holds a sword, shield, seal, mirror and hatchet (kulīśa). She sits on a bird.

83. This place is Kāśmarī according to the edition of the KMT. See note to the Sanskrit of this verse and ṢSS. According to the ṢSSc the site is Narmada and Kāśmīra according to the ŚM.

There are two possible places called Gokaṛna. The most likely is Gendia, a town in the province of North Kannaḍa, Karwar district, on the coast thirty miles from Goa between Karwar and Kumta. It is a celebrated place of pilgrimage. It is famous for its temple to Śiva in the form of the Liṅga Mahābaleśvara said to have been established there by Rāvaṇa. It is thirty miles south of Sadāśeogaḍ which is three miles south of Goa. Another Gokarṇa is the modern Gomukhī, two miles beyond Gangotri, the source of the Ganges (Day (1927) 1990: 70).

84. According to the AS she holds a seal and a chain.

85. The name of the Yoginī here according to the KMT and the ṢSS is Kramaṇī who the ŚM (19/132cd-138) says is dark blue-black like collyrium or a beautiful storm cloud and roars like an elephant in rut. She wonders through the Triple World (trailokyakramaṇī). She wears a garland made of blue thunderbolts that hangs down to her feet and has eight arms. In her right hands she holds a sword, bow, noose and conch and in the left a shield, iron club, spear and thread. She lives on the path of the wind.

86. Maru is the Rajputana desert.

87. According to all the MSs of the KuKh she 'sustains Kula' (kuladhāriṇī).

88. In the corresponding line of the KMT (i.e 22/37cd-38ab), the name of the Yoginī is not mentioned. According to the KRP 7/21d, her name is Cetrakasthā which is apparently derived from the name of this site according to the KMT which is Caitrakaccha (see following note). According to the ṢSSc her name is Bimbakacchā, which does not appear elsewhere, but is also probably derived from the name of the site noted in the KMT. The ṢSS (34/41cd-42ab) does not name the Yoginī here but says that she resides in Nagara in a clump of bamboo (vetraguccha). Similarly, the corresponding verse in the AS says that she lives 'inside a bamboo' (stalk) (veṇugarbhasthitā). The only Yoginī that is not accounted for described in the ŚM is Prasannā (also called Praśamā in some manuscripts and Pasavā in the printed edition). This Yoginī which is the sixth according to the ŚM should be distinguished from the eighteenth Yoginī in that list with the same name and Prasannāsyā who is the seventeenth in the other sources. The former is grey, the colour of smoke. She wears a necklace of crystal. She has six arms. In her left hands she holds a skull, conch and spear. In her right hands she holds a spear, stick and noose. She sits on a bear (jambuka) and arouses the universe. (ŚM 19/75-80)

89. According to the ṢSSc this site is called Bhṛgunagara. The ŚM (19/131) also agrees that the name of this place is Nagara, the short form of Bhṛgunagara. Possibly this is Bhṛgupura which is Bharukaccha, that is, Baroach. Bharukaccha was a seaport town in the kingdom of Bharu (Day (1927) 1990: 32).

90. According to the ŚM (19/139-145) Cāmuṇḍā is black like collyrium. Emaciated, her face is fierce. Her teeth are sharp and her big red eyes are severe. The sun and moon are her earrings. She wears a garland of human bones and human bones adorn her. She has twelve arms. In her right hands she holds a spear, sword, noose, bow, thunderbolt and noose, in the left, a skull, shield, severed head, dagger and pestle. Attached to meat and wine, she drinks streams of blood. Formidable and very powerful, she is mounted on a demon (rākṣasa) as she devours and desiccates the universe. She bestows every accomplishment.

91. According to the ĀM, the goddess here is called in Tibetan Rgan byad ma, which Wayman reconstructs as Sanaḍ-ḍākinī, who could well be Cāmuṇḍā. The name of the guardian according to the ĀM is the same as that of our text. Cāmuṇḍā is also the goddess of Ekāmra (see below 16/95). Puṇḍra is the country of the sugar cane – Skt. puṇḍra and Bengali puṇri-akh (Beal (1884) 1994: 194 n. 18). According to Sircar, Puṇḍravardhana is Mahasthan in the Bogra district of what is now Bangladesh (Sircar 1967: 20, 94). According to Day ((1927) 1990: 161) Puṇḍravardhana is Pāṇḍuā, which was previously called Firozabad (for other opinions see Beal (1884) 1994: 194 n. 18). It is situated six miles north of Malda and twenty miles north-east of Gauḍa. It was formerly on the river Mahānandā that has now receded four miles to the west. This was the capital of the ancient kingdom of Puṇḍra which approximately corresponds to what is now Bangladesh. The river Karkatoyā marked the eastern boundry with Assam. The river Kauśikī (Kosi) marked the western one. The Himalayan Hemakūṭa mountain was in the north and the Ganges in the south (ibid. 154). The Puṇḍras already appear in the Aitarīyabrāhmaṇa (7/18). When Hiuen Tsang visited this country in the first half of the seventh century, it was an important Buddhist centre. The Chinese traveller noted that: ‘There are some hundred Deva temples, where sectaries of different schools congregate. The naked Nirgranthas are the most numerous’ (Beal (1884) 1994: 195). These naked Nirgranthas were, no doubt, Śaiva ascetics. According to the Rājataraṅginī (book IV, vol. 2, p. 163). Puṇḍravardhana was the capital of Gauḍa in the eighth century when it was visited by Jayapīḍa Vinayāditya, king of Kashmir. He placed his father-in-law, Jayanta (who reigned from 782 to 813), on the throne of Gauḍa after defeating the five chiefs of Pañcagauḍa.

According to the Padmapurāṇa (uttarārdha chapter 51), there was a temple to the goddess Pāṭalī there. Although this place does appear in some lists of sacred sites found in the Tantras and Purāṇas of a later period, it seems that the importance of this place, which frequently appears in the older sources, later decreased considerably.

92. Cāmuṇḍā's consort according to the AS is Kumbhakarṇa.

93. AS reads punnākhyāṁ i.e. pūrṇākhyāṁ: (the Yoginī) Pūrṇā. According to the ŚM (19/146-150) Prasannāsyā is red like vermilion. She smiles and has large eyes. She wears a garland of gold and gems and, slim and beautiful, she has eight arms. With the left hands she makes a boon-bestowing gesture and holds a book, vīṇā and noose. In the right hands she holds a goad, iron club, thread and stick. She sits on a lotus.

94. The spelling of this place name according to the great majority of the MSs of the KMT is Parastīra. Purastīra is the more common spelling (see Dyczkowski 2004: 152, 155, note 149) cf. above 6/214 and below 51/16. Sircar spells the name of this place Purasthira or Purasthita.

95. According to the ŚM (19/151-157ab) Vidyunmukhī (also called Vidyuttejā ibid. 19/44) is white like a Campā flower and, brilliant like a mass of lightning flashes, she shines like the flame of a fire. She has large round eyes and wears a necklace of pearls and a garland of human bones that hangs down to her feet. She has six arms. The left hands hold a skull, trident and ascetic's staff, the right an iron club, thread and thunderbolt. She sits on a boar and very fierce, waves her finger threateningly (tarjayantī).

96. Spelt Piṣṭapura, this place is mentioned in the ĀM according to which the goddess resides there in a temple. Her name in Tibetan is Glog gi zhal can, which means ‘Lightning Mouth’ and so is the same as the one mentioned here. The guardian is also the same. According to Wayman this place was the capital of the Eastern Chalukyas during the second quarter of the 7th century and was situated on the East Godavari district of Orissa. This place does not appear in the late Śākta sources consulted by Sircar probably because it lost its importance as a sacred site.

97. According to the AS, her consort is Aghora and she paralyses duality (bheda). According to the KMT the consort is called Ghanarava (Dense Sound).

98. There are several variant readings in the MSs of the KMT and the ṢSS. In the edited text of the KMT the name of the locality – Kuhudi – replaces the name of the Yoginī Ūrdhvakeśī. Thus the adjective ‘mahābalā’ – ‘very strong’ – in this version is the name of the Yoginī here according to the KMT. She is called Mahākeśī in the ŚM (19/152-163ab) where she is said to be dark blue (śyāma) like a blue lotus. She has the face of a parrot with round eyes and dishevelled hair. She wears a necklace of divine gems and makes a growling sound (ghurghura). She has four arms. In the right hands are a sword and a spear, in the left an ascetic's staff and a shield. Greedy for the pleasure of (the intoxication of) wine, she sits on the back of a wolf (vṛka) (MS Kh: bull).

99. AS: ‘(whose) hand is adorned with a seal.’

100. This place is also mentioned in the ĀM and, here also it seems that the goddess is the same. In Tibetan she is called me’i kha, which Wayman (1995:

150) explains ‘seems to mean whose mouth is as though burning’ and so reconstructs as Vahnimukhā.

The name of this Yoginī in the ŚM is Agnijihvā. She is grey, the colour of smoke and shines like the Fire of Time. She has brown eyes and hair. She wears a necklace of blue gems and has sixteen arms. The left hands hold a skull, thread, noose, bow, shield, iron club, pestle and stick. The right hands hold a spear, sword, snake, goad, pestle, thunderbolt, javelin and seal. She wears a garland of skulls that hangs down to her feet and has a large belly and breasts. She sits on a crocodile. (ŚM 19/163cd-170)

101. Also called Śūrpāraka or Supāra, according to Day ((1927) 1990: 197), it is near Bassein, 37 miles north of Mumbai in the Thana district of Maharashtra. It was the ancient capital of Aparānta, that is, northern Koṅkaṇa (cf. Brahma Purāṇa 27/58). Located on the seacoast, it was an ancient port and market town. Bhattacharyya (1999: 277-8) notes that this was also a Buddhist site and that the fragments of Aśoka’s eighth and ninth rock edicts have been found there. It is mentioned in numerous epigraphs especially from Nasik and Nanaghat.

102. AS: (She) rends asunder (her) uninitiated enemies (amitrapaśudāriṇī).

103. According to the ŚM Lokamātā is brown, the colour of ash. Her face is like the rising moon. She emanates the whole universe, blissful with the bliss of nectar. She has twelve arms. In her right hands she holds a skull, thread, noose, javelin, spear and goad. In the left hands she holds a conch, stick, snake, ascetic's staff, mirror and makes a boon-bestowing gesture. She sits on a lion. (19/171-176)

104. Kṣīrikā (also called Kṣīragrāma) is modern Khiragram near Katwa, twenty miles north of Burdwan in southwest Bengal. According to some later sources the toe of Satī’s right foot fell here; others say the goddess’s back (Sircar 1973: 89). Once again the name of the goddess according to the ĀM coincides, whilst that of the guardian differs. The goddess is called Yogādyā and the guardian Kṣīrakaṇṭha or Kṣīrakhaṇḍa in Sircar sources, thus illustrating once again that the Kaula sources are much closer to their contemporary Buddhist counterparts than to the later Śākta ones.

105. The name of the consort of the Yoginī who resides here according to the KMT is Mahāmeru and she ‘destroys great suffering.’

106. Called Kampinī according to the other sources, she is said to be blue like a rain cloud and blue collyrium. She is adorned with a garland of skulls and necklaces of pearls and nacre. Her face is severe and her tongue extends slightly out of her mouth between her large teeth. Her breasts (hang down and are) long. She frightens the three worlds and has eight arms. In the left hands are a skull, ascetic's staff, noose and sword. The right hands hold a conch, spear, snake and iron mace. She sits on a corpse as her vehicle (śavayāna). (ŚM 19/177-181)

107. According to Day ((1927) 1990: 129) Māyāpurī (also written Māyāpura) included Hardwar, Māyāpurī and Kaṅkhala. Kaṅkhala is two miles from Hardwar. It is here that Dakṣa is said to have performed the sacrifice in which his daughter, Śiva's wife immolated herself. The sacrificial pit where she did this is said to be in a temple at Kaṅkhala that houses Dakṣeśvara, the Liṅga established by the penitent Dakṣa.

108. According to the KMT, this Yoginī holds a thunderbolt. According to the ṢSS, she holds a wheel (cakra). Her name is Kampinī and she is accompanied by Bhīmānana (Fierce Face).

109. Pūtanā (also called Pavanā in ŚM 19/42) shines darkly and is black, brown and red. She has large teeth and is fierce. Her gaze is fixed and she likes blood and wine. She has twelve arms and is adorned with many snakes. She wears a great garland of human heads that extends up to her feet. The weapons she holds in her right hands are a spear, sword, noose, mallet (mudgara), iron club and goad. In her left hand she hold a skull, shield, javelin, thunderbolt, stick and writing tablet (paṭṭikā). She sits on a large tiger. (ibid. 19/85cd-91ab)

110. I have not been able to locate this place.

111. According to the KMT she only holds a plough.

112. According to the ŚM (19/182-186ab) Bhagnanāsā is brown and has brown eyes. She wears a necklace made of blue thunderbolts. Her body is large and she has six arms. In her left hands are a skull, spear and noose. In her right hands are a conch, ascetic's staff and thread. Intoxicated with the bliss of wine, she sits on a horse.

113. Also called Rājagāha, Rājagṛha was the ancient capital of Magadha and one of the six main cities of India at the time of the Buddha. It was also called Kuśāgrapura, Girivraja and Bārhadrathapura. It has been identified with Rajgir in the Nalanda district of Bihar about thirteen miles southwest of Bihar-Sarif. It was an important centre of Buddhism for several centuries. Relics of the Buddha's body were enshrined in a stūpa here. Although archeological remains belonging to the Gupta and later ages have been found here, when Fa-hian (beginning of the 5th century) and Hiuen Tsang (early 7th century) visited the place they found it almost deserted (Bhattacaryya 1999: 257-258). Even so, it is one of the twenty-four places mentioned in the ĀM, although it does not appear in the other Buddhist Tantric sources mentioned above. On the other hand, it regularly appears in early Śaiva sources but in none of the later sources examined by Sircar. Thus it seems that as the place was gradually abandoned by the Buddhists, Śaivites became more prominent until it finally lost all importance for them also.

114. This is the last of the twenty-four sites mentioned in the KMT 22/23-46. After this MSs A and B of the KMT insert an extra section in which ten extra places are listed. The matter contained in these verses may be tabulated as follows:

12. Ten Extra Sites of the Kubjikāmata (1)

Site	Goddess	Attributes	Consort
Addhuddha	Kāmarūpī	Holds ascetic's staff	Kāmeśvara
Gokarṇa	?		Gokarṇeśvara
Andhra?	Andharā		Andhareśvara
Pūrṇagiri	Mahāmāyā	Skull and severed head	Pūrṇeśvara
Udyāna	Mahocchuṣmā	Red and fierce	?
Ekaika	Cāmuṇḍā	Severed head	Kṛttivāsa
Kāmakūṭe	Mahālakṣmī		Agnika
Jālandhara	Kāmalakṣmī		Vāgeśvara / Vāmeśvara
Nepāla	Guhyeśvarī		Paśupati
Hiraṇyapura	?		?

MS E inserts a different version. This begins by saying that the twenty-four sites are kṣetras, upakṣetras and saṁdohas, as stated also in the KMT 22/47. The following places are ten other pīṭhas, upapīṭhas and saṁdohas.

13. Ten Extra Sites of the Kubjikāmata (2)

Site	Goddess	Attributes	Consort
Kāmarūpa	Kāmakoṭā	Ascetic's staff	Kāmeśvara
Pūrṇagiri	Pūrṇagrīvā	Severed head and girdle (mekhala)	Pūrṇeśvara
Jālandhara	?		Jāleśvara
Uḍyāna	Agnikā / Cāmuṇḍā / Mahocchūṣmā	Red	Kṛtavāsa
Ekāmra	?	Dagger (kartṛ)	Agnika
Kāmakoṭi	Mahālakṣmī		?
Gokarṇa	Lokamātṛ		Gokarṇeśvara
Arbuda	Arbudeśvarī		Arbudeśvara
Nepāla	Guhyakeśvarī		Paśupati
Hiraṇyapura	Parā		?

115. Referering to the Kathmandu Valley Slusser (1982: 6) explains: 'Nepal' long meant the sequestered mountain valley, (. . .) Now commonly called the Kathmandu Valley, after the capital city, traditionally it was known as Nepālamaṇḍala (Circle or Country of Nepal), the Nepal Valley, or merely Nepal.' Although the political boundries of ancient Nepal extended beyond the the exact limits of the Valley, this was never to a very great extent until the seventeenth century when it was conquered by the Gorkha king, Prithavī Nārāyaṇa Śāha. Considering how important this place is for the later development of the Kubjikā cult, one wonders how significant the fact is that Nepāla is mentioned here as a part of the expanded sacred geography of the Kubjikā Tantras. Moreover, the reference here, in this probably 12th century text, to the couple Guhyeśvarī and Paśupati, considered for centuries to be the patron deities of Nepāla, is important for the historian. Other references to this couple have been traced in early sources. These include the Niśisaṁcāratantra and the Kālīkulakramārcana of Vimalaprabodha (for these references see Micheals 1996: 315-316). The latter work goes so far as to refer to Nepālamahāpīṭha as Guhyeśvarīpīṭha. The main temple to the goddess Guhyeśvarī is, at present, situated on the left bank of the Bāgmatī river in Deopatan, about 3 kilometers northeast of Kathmandu, near the well-known Paśupatinātha temple. But as Michaels (1996: 315) says: 'we do not have any proof or even a hint that it is older than the middle of the 17th century.' Even so, these references establish the presence of this couple in the Kathmandu Valley from at least the 11th century. Although this goddess was probably never considered to be the rāṣṭra- or rājyadevī in the way the goddess Taleju was by the Malla kings from the 14th century onwards, the association of Guhyeśvarī with the Valley is as close as the well-known one between Śāradā and Kashmir. Indeed, it is not impossible that the author of our text had this analogy in mind when he decided to refer to Śāradā in the very next verse, as does Vimalaprabodha in his Kālīkulakramārcana (Sanderson quoted by Michaels 1996: 315-316). Later sources say that either Satī's anus or her Yoni fell where the present Guhyeśvarī temple is located (Michaels 1996: 317).

116. About 1030 CE, Alberuni wrote (Sachau (1910) 1996: 1, 117): 'In Inner Kashmir, about two or three days journey from the capital in the direction towards the mountains of Bolor, there is a wooden idol called Śāradā, which is much venerated and frequented by pilgrims.'

Stein ((1899) 1977: 206-7) writes: 'The introduction of the Rājataraṅgiṇī mentions that the temple of the goddess Śāradā is amongst the foremost Tīrthas of Kaśmīr (see RT 6/281). It was well known even far beyond the frontiers of Kaśmīr. Alberuni had heard of it, and a story recorded in a Jaina life of the great grammarian Hemacandra proves that its fame had spread even to far-off Gujarat. Notwithstanding this former celebrity the Śāradā shrine is now almost completely forgotten by the Paṇḍits of Śrīnagar and the great mass of the Brahman population of the Valley. . . . I was able to ascertain the position of the ancient Tīrtha at the present Śardi, situated circ. 74° 15' long. 34 ° 48' lat., on the right bank of the river Kiṣangaṅgā. . . . The situation of the shrine corresponds exactly to Kalhaṇa's description. Immediately in front of it the sacred stream of the Madhumatī falls into the Kiṣangaṅgā, while another confluence, that with the Sarasvatī river coming from the north, is also visible from the temple. . . . The subsequent neglect of the Tīrtha must be ascribed chiefly to the obstacles to the pilgrimage which arose from the troubled political condition of the Upper Kiṣangaṅgā Valley. . . . It is only since the advent of the Sikhs that the pilgrimage to Śāradā's seat was revived. It is probable that the difficulties indicated must be held to account for the several substitute Tīrthas of Śāradā which are now to be found in various parts of Kaśmīr proper.' (see also RT note B 1/37, 8/2556, 2706, and Stein's translation vol. 2 pp. 279-289). These statements account for how Śāradā is nowadays well known to be the patron goddess of Kaśmīr. They also explain how, although some of Sircar's medieval sources do include Kaśmīr as a Śākta site, they variously say that the goddess who resides there is Medhā, Sarasvatī and Mahāmāyā (Sircar 1967: 88). Even so, in the 16th century Abdul Fazl, referring to the myth of the dismemberment of Satī in his Ain-i-Akbarī, wrote that: 'her head and some of her limbs [fell] in the northern mountains of Kashmir near Kāmrāj and these relics are called Śāradā.' (Sircar 1967: 14) Sircar adds that: 'The Śāradā-maṭha on the borders of Kashmir is mentioned in such other works as the Śaktisaṅgamatantra' (I.C., 8, pp. 38, 49).

117. The name of the guardian here according to the AS is Vijayeśvara.

118. The version in the AS says that 'she is the goddess who is the mistress of the Vidyāpīṭha. She bestows boons and develops the intellect.'

119. This place is called Gadyaharaṇa in the AS. According to the Kālīkulakramārcana, this place is spelt Garddiharaṇa. I have not been able to locate this site.

120. Spelt Kulūta in the KāKuKr, according to Day ((1927) 1990: 106) it was: 'the sub-division of Kulu in the Kangra district in the upper valley of the Bias river, Punjab, to the north-east of Kangra. It formed a part of Kulindadeśa. Its capital was Nagarkoṭ.' Abul Fazl's Ain-i-Akbarī, composed about the end of the sixteenth century, contains an interesting description of the Pīṭha near Nagarkoṭ: 'Nagarkoṭ is a city situated on a hill; its fort is called Kangrah. Near the town is the shrine of Mahāmāyā . . . which is considered to be a manifestation of the divinity. Pilgrims from distant parts visit it and obtain their desires. Strange it is that in order that their prayers may be favourably heard, they cut out their tongues; with some it grows again on the spot, with others after one or two days' (quoted by Sircar 1967: 14). Whether the goddess Mahāmāyā mentioned by Abdul Fazl is the Jayeśvarī of our text or not, the religion of the Kulu Valley is still dominantly Śākta.

121. According to the AS she 'bestows the fruit of the enjoyment of passion (kāmabhoga).'

122. Below in verse 16/89, the goddess Kulālā is said to reside in the Candradvīpa (the Island of the Moon). According to the AS this site is called Siṁhoḍāra and the goddess who resides there is Lalitā. The KāKuKr reads 'Sindhutīra' the 'Bank of the Indus', which may well have been the original correct reading. The goddess's name there is spelt Kulālī, which is the more common and more correct spelling.

123. According to the KāKuKr the name of the place is spelt Bhojapura and the goddess is Halinī or Phalinī.

124. Bhojapura was the name of Mathurā when it was the capital of the Bhoja kings. There is another place with this name near Dumraon in the Shābād district in Bengal (Day 1990: 33, 224). A third place called Bhojapura was the capital of ancient Kumaon (Day (1927) 1990: 48). Again, Bhojapurī may be the ancient Bhojakaṭapura, the second capital of Vidarbha. Day ((1927) 1990: 33) opines that: 'it may be identified with Bhojapura, which is six miles to the south-east of Bhilsa (Vidiśa) in the kingdom of Bhopal containing many Buddhist topes called Pipaliya Bijoli Topes.'

Mahācampā may be the goddess Campakā, also called Campāvatī. She was the patron of Campapura to whom she gave her name (Cunningham (1871) 1990: 119). Also called Campānagara, Mālinī and Campā-Mālinī, it is situated about four miles west of Bhagalpur in Bihar. It was the capital of ancient Aṅga (see ibid. p. 44-6). This place does not appear in the sources studied by Sircar.

125. Sircar (1973: 96) notes that Hiuen Tsang seems to locate a western Strīrājya near about Makran. According to Day ((1927) 1990: 194) Strīrājya (the Kingdom of Women) was 'a country in the Himalaya to the north of Brahmapura, which has been identified with Garwal and Kumaun. In the seventh century it was called Suvarṇagotra or mountain of gold. It was the country of the Amazons, the queen of which was Pramīlā who fought with Arjuna. That an Amazon kingdom existed in the trans-Himalayan valley of the Sutlej, as stated by Hiuen Tsang, is confirmed by Atkinson's Himalayan Districts. He says that 'the Nu-wang tribe in Eastern Tibet was ruled by a woman who was called Pinchiu. The people in each successive reign chose a woman for their sovereign.'

126. Day (1927) 1990: 119) writes: 'The whole range of hills extending from Orissa to the district of Madura was known by the name of Mahendra-parvata. It included the Eastern Ghats and the range extending from the Northern Circars to Gondwana, part of which near Ganjam is still called Mahendra Malei or the hills of Mahendra (Raghuvaṁśa IV, 39, 40). It joins the Malaya mountain (Harṣacarita, ch. 7). Paraśurāma retired to this mountain after he defeated Rāmacandra. The Rāmāyaṇa and the Caitanyacaritāmṛta apply the name especially to the Eastern Ghats, and the hermitage of Paraśurāma is placed by the Caitanyacaritāmṛta at the southern extremity of the range in the district of Madura. The Raghuvaṁśa (IV, 54) places it in Kaliṅga, so also the Uttaranaiṣadacarita (canto 12, 24). The name is principally applied to the range of hills separating Ganjam from the valley of Mahānadī.' Sircar (1973: 90) however refers to it as a mountain, not a range saying that it is 'the celebrated peak in the Ganjam district of Orissa. The records of the Gaṅga kings speak of Śiva Gokarṇeśvara on the Mahendra.' The Bṛhannīlatantra says that the goddess who resides here is Jagadīśvarī (ibid.). Hiuen Tsang (Beal (1884) 1994: 2, 209) refers to 'a great mountain precipice on the top of which is a stone stūpa about a hundred feet high. Here, at the beginning of the kalpa, when the years of men's lives were boundless, a Pratyeka Buddha reached nirvāṇa.' Situated on the northern frontier of the kingdom of Kaliṅga, this mountain was probably Mahendra.

According to the ŚM, this mountain is one of four along with Śrīśaila (see below 16/76cd-77ab, 97), Kailāsa and Arbuda that were created by the goddess's look (avalokana) as secondary sites (upapīṭha) after she had finished fashioning the major ones. Each mountain has a goddess. Mahāntārikā is the goddess of Mahendra.

127. The goddess here according to the KāKuKr is Raktā.

128. Antarvedī is the land between the Ganges and Yamunā (to which classical writers add the mythical river Sarasvatī), up to Prayāga (see Bhattacaryya (1999: 69).

129. The text may be corrupt or a line may be missing that contained the name of the site. According to the KāKuKr, which confirms that the goddess here is Mahākālī, the place is Krūrakali, which is not helpful.

130. According to the KāKuKr this place is simply called Mahāśmaśāna. Sircar (1973: 10n) reports that Mahāśmaśāna is the name of a place at Padmāvatī in the Gwalior district in Madhya Pradeśa. However, as I have not been able to trace the name Ghaṇṭāla, this identification is uncertain. The name of this place is confirmed in the AS.

131. The KāKuKr calls this place Kadambavana – 'the Kadamba Forest', which may not be the name of a particular place but just a generic appelation.

132. Also called Karavīrapura, Karavīra is generally identified with Kolhapur nor far from Mombai. It is locally called Kārvir and is commonly associated with the goddess Mahālakṣmī. Perhaps this reference indicates that originally this was not the case. Even the Pīṭhanirṇaya, which was probably written in the 17th or 18th century, does not associated Mahālakṣmī with this place. According to that text, Satī's eyes fell here. The goddess is Mahiṣamardinī and Bhairava Krodhīśa.

In the eleventh century, that is, around the time of the redaction of our text or a little earlier, this place was the capital of the Śilāhāras (Day (1927) 1990: 93). But Sircar (1973 : 44) notes that: Karavīra or Karavīrapura is often identified with Śarkarāra which is supposed to be no other than modern Sukkur, the chief of the District of that name in Sind. According to the Kālikāpurāṇa (chs. 38-39), Karavīrapura was the capital of the Brahmāvarta country (Eastern Punjab) and was situated near the river Dṛṣadvatī; but the city is usually identified with Kolhapur . . . .'

According to the YKh (see intro. vol 1, p. 707, chart 26) this and the following three places are cremation grounds located in the four major sacred seats, as follows: 1) Karavīra – Oṁkārapīṭha 2) Laguḍa (also spelt Laṁgula) – Jālandhara 3) Kāmaśara – Kāmarūpa 4) Ekakoṇa (also spelt Ekakoṭa) – Pūrṇagiri.

The fifth cremation ground is called Bhayāvaha in the YKh, or Ekavīra as it is here (16/73cd-74ab). Despite this discrepency, the coincidence of both the names and the sequential order of these cremation grounds strongly suggests that some part if not all of these additional sites were not imported from an external source of another school as was the orginal set of twenty-four sites, but is rather an internal development within the Kubjikā tradition.

133. According to the KāKuKr the deity here is called Cchinnamastā.

134. KāKuKr calls this place Kāmeśvara and locates the goddess Mahālakṣmī here. Perhaps this place can be identified with Kāmāśrama, which according to Day ((1927) 1990: 86) is 'Kāron, eight miles to the north of Koraṇṭeḍi in the district of Balia. Mahādeva is said to have destroyed Madana, the god of love, at this place with the fire of his third eye in the forehead (Rāmāyaṇa, bālakhaṇḍa, chapter 23). It was situated at the confluence of the Sarayu and the Ganges, but the Sarayu has now receded far to the east of this place, and joins the Ganges near Siṅghi, eight miles to the east of Chapra in Saran. The place contains a temple to Kāmeśvaranātha or Kauleśvaranātha Mahādeva. It is the same as Madanatapovana of the Raghuvaṁśa (chapter 2, verse 13).'

135. Kubjikā is sometimes called Trikoṇānanā (Triangle-faced). The god of this seat is an important form of Bhairava of the Trika school from which the Triśirobhairavatantra draws its name. This was a major Trika source for Abhinavagupta. Ekoṇa is one of the group of fifty sacred seats listed above (6/212-218). The YHṛ, in which the same list appears, reads Oṁkāra. It is said here that Ekakoṇa is a cremation ground, which Oṁkāra is not.

136. Bhattacaryya (1999: 125) records the existence of a village called Ekavīrappāḍicceri which is in the vicinity of Kaccipedu or Kanchipuram mentioned in an inscription on the floor of the Rājasiṁha-Varmeśvara shrine at Kanchipuram. But this is much further south than any of the other places mentioned in the stava. Moreover, it is not a cremation ground and so may well not be the place meant here.

137. KāKuKr reads Śivadūtī for the name of the goddess. Ḍohara, usually spelt Ḍāhala, was the region (maṇḍala) bounded by the Narmada and the Bhāgīrathī which was the ancient Chedi and now approximates to the modern Bundelkhaṇḍa region of Madhyapradeśa around Jabalpur (Day (1927) 1990: 48 and Bhattacaryya 1999: 112). In Alberuni's time (the 11th century), the capital of the Ḍāhala country was Tīaurī (Sachau (1910) 1996 : I, 202).

138. According to the KāKuKr the goddess here is called Siddhā. One Śrīparvata is in the high western Himalayas in what is now Zanskar where it is venerated as a sacred mountain. However, the Śrīparvata meant here is most probably Śrīśaila which is also called Śrīparvata or just Parvatam (Day (1927) 1990: 193). It is located in the Karnal district of Andhra.

139. According to the KāKuKr the goddess here is simply called Śakti. Is this place to be identified with Oṇavala? According to Bhattacaryya (1999: 237) Oṇavala is 'a locality mentioned in the grants of Gāhaḍavāla Govindacandra [king of Vārānasī in the 10th century]. It has been identified with the modern Unaula, a paragan of Gorakhpur, Uttar Pradesh.'

The AS says that this place is called Malayagiri. Mahāmalaya is the fifty-first site mentioned below. There we note that Malaya may either be a range of mountains or a single mountain. If Oṇaka is another name for Malayagiri perhaps the single mountain is meant here.

140. The goddess here according to the KāKuKr is Caṇḍā.

141. According to Day ((1927) 1990: 2), the ending –chhatra is derived from the word kṣetra. Thus Cchāyācchatra is equivalent to Cchāyākṣetra, just as Ahicchatra corresponds to Ahikṣetra. I have not been able to locate this place. It is probably not the same as Ahicchatra as the two are mentioned separately in the AS.

142. The reference to the Liṅga of Light (jyotirliṅga) in relation to Śrīparvata above (16/75cd-76ab), seems sufficient reason to identify that place as Śrīśaila. I have not been able to locate Śailapṛṣṭha which in the KāKuKr is called simply Śaila.

143. According to the KāKuKr the goddess here is called Triśakti and the place Hakkaḍa. It is the second entry in the list of fifty sacred seats below in 51/16cd-22. It replaces Vārāṇasī in the same list that appears above in 6/212-219ab. In a different list of fifty sacred seats found in the AS (see ibid. note), we find two separate entries, Hakka and Drukka. I have not been able to identify this place.

144. According to the KāKuKr the goddess here is Mahāmātṛ and the place is spelt Devikoṭa. Also spelt Devīkoṭṭa, Devīkoṭha, and Devakūṭa, it was the capital of the province (viṣaya) Koṭivarṣa, in the region (bhukti) of Puṇḍravardhana. It was known to medieval writers as Diwkot. The ruins are found in the village of Bangarh about eighteen miles south of the town of Dinajpur, north Bengal in what is now Bangaladesh (Bhattacaryya 1999: 118). Niyogi (1980: 60-1) describes the ruins of a Vihāra found there. The persons associated with this place indicate that this was once a centre of Vajrayāna Buddhism. The consistent appearance of this place amongst the sacred sites of the Kubjikā and Bhairava Tantras indicates that it was no less important for Śaivites and Śāktas also. Thus, according to the Kālikāpurāṇa, the goddess's feet fell here (Sircar 1967: 17). It is also listed as a sacred site in the Kulārṇavatantra and in the sixteenth century Jñānārṇavatantra (ibid. 18).

According to Day (1990: 55, 189), Devikoṭa is 'Soṇitapura which is in Kumaun on the bank of the river Kedār-Gaṅgā or Mandākinī about six miles from Uṣāmaṭha, not far from Gupta Kāśī'. But this is unlikely. Nor should this place be confused with Devikoṭe on the Kāverī in the province of Madras. See note to Śrīkoṭa above, entry (8).

145. According to the KāKuKr the goddess here is Kāpālinī and the sacred seat is Mahāmātṛ. Māyāpurī (modern Haridvār) appears above (16/54cd-6ab). It is hard to say if this forest is somehow related to that place or where else it could have been.

146. According to the KāKuKr this place is called Macchandrapūra. But this is probably a scribal error for Śrīmaccandrapura. The goddess here acccording to the KāKuKr is Mālinī. Kubjikā, as we have seen, is essentially Mālinī and so her school is sometimes called the Mālinī Kula (see, for example, above 3/165cd-167). Ciñcinī, the goddess of the tamarind tree, is also Kubjikā. So the whole expression, which specifies that she is the goddess Mālinī of the Kubjikā Kula, confirms that the goddess of Candrapura is, as one would expect, Kubjikā herself. Concerning Candrapura and its the location, see intro. vol. 3, p. 304 ff..

147. According to the KāKuKr the goddess is simply called Mantreśvarī. Bhattacharyya (1999: 213) says that Malaya was 'one of the seven principle mountains (kulaparvata) of India mentioned in the Purāṇas (MBh, 3/283/43; 3/313/32, 5/9/11; Vāyu 45/88; Brahma, 27/19). The Kūrma, 1/47/23 says that the sea can be seen from its top. The Raghuvaṁśa, 4/45-51 says that it was on the Kāverī where it falls into the sea and that cardamon and sandalwood grew on it. Again it is mentioned as the mountain of the Pāṇḍeya country on the Tāmraparṇī.' As a range of mountains: 'Malaya has been identified with the portion of the Western Ghats from the Nilgiris to Cape Comerin. The southern extension of the Western Ghats below the Kāverī, now known as the Travancore hills formed the western side of Malaya. It was also known as Śrīkhaṇḍādri and Candanādri and Podigei or Podigai in the Tamil tradition.'

Apart from those later sources that reproduce the earlier sacred geography (concerning which see above note to 6/212-218), the texts Sircar has studied, which are entirely North Indian and mostly Bengali, hardly mention Malaya at all. This is the case even though that region continues to this day to have strong Tantric traditions. One may take this fact to be emblematic of one of the major changes that took place in the Tantric traditions from the 13th century, after the establishment of Muslim rule, namely, the split between North and South.

148. The goddess here according to the KāKuKr is Ugrakālī. Mālava is modern Malwa. The eastern part was known as Ākara or Daśārṇa with its capital at Vidiśa. The western part was Avanti or Apara-Mālava with its capital at Ujjayinī (Sircar 1967: 90). As Ujjayinī has already been mentioned (above 16/37cd-38ab), possibly the eastern part of Mālava is meant here. The ĀM lists Vidiśa and Mālava one after another as the last two of twenty-four places. Consequently, Wayman (1995: 154-5) infers that the Mālava meant there is western Mālava.

Another less likely possibility is that the Mālava meant here is the country of the Mallas (malladeśa). This was the district around Multan of which it was the capital. Known to the Greeks, it continued to appear in references in the following centuries. These include the 5th century Bṛhatsaṁhitā (chapter 14) and the 7th century Harṣacarita. In the latter work (chapter 4) we find a reference to a Mālavarāja who was perhaps the king of the Mallas of Multan (see Ep. Ind., vol. 1, p. 70) (Day (1927) 1990: 122). It is even more unlikely that the Mālava that continues to appear regularly in later Tantric sources (for which see Sircar 1967: 90) is this one.

149. Mālinī is said to reside in Candrapura also. But there she is the Mālinī of the Ciñcinikula (see above note to 16/82cd-83ab). Kedāra or Kedāranātha is situated on the southern side of the Mandākinī. The temple of the Liṅga Kedāranātha 'is built on a ridge jutting out at a right angle from the snowy range of the Rudra Himālaya below the peak of the Mahāpanthā in the district of Garwal, United Provinces [i.e. Uttar Pradesh]. . . . Close to the temple is a precipice called Bhairab Jhāmp, where devotees committed suicide by flinging themselves from the summit.' (Day (1927) 1990 : 97-8). This is another of the twelve Liṅgas of Light (jyotirliṅga). If Omkārapīṭha is Oṁkāreśvara then as many as five out of the twelve Liṅgas of Light are included amongst these sixty-four, exemplifying once again the close connection with the earlier Śaivism, both Āgamic and Purāṇic, and the Kaula Tantras. Moreover, the very name Bhairab Jhāmp indicates that this was also a place for devotees of Bhairava. The presence of this place amongst the latter Śākta pīṭhas (see Sircar 1967 : 88) further testifies to the continued maintenance of this relationship between Śiva and Śakti.

150. I could not locate the forest of Mahālakṣmī. We have noted several times that Mahālakṣmī figures frequently as the last of the Eight Mothers in the Kubjikā Tantras. Here, she is not one of the eight, illustrating once again the principle that divine beings not only have varied aspects, forms and status as individuals, they also vary in their nature as members of different groups. Thus a being may attain a more or less distinct identity and specific role ranging from being a minor divinity to a great deity. This is the case with Tumburu also. Here he appears as hardly more than a guardian Bhairava. He plays a similar role in Jaina sources. He is represented as a Yakṣa worshipper of the Jina in Hemacandra's Abhidhānacintāmaṇi (1/41 cf. Bagchi (1939) 1975: 12). He also appears as a celestial musician – Gandharva – who, along with Nārada, attends on the high gods, especially Viṣṇu and Śiva. Goudriaan (1985: 18-23) records several other roles in which he appears. These include a Ṛṣi who taught a seed-syllable to bring about subjugation (vaśīkaraṇa) and punishment (nigraha) and a Bodhisattva in the Mañjuśrīmūlakalpa. As a major deity, he is the main god of the Tantras of the Left Current (vāmaśrotas). In this capacity he travelled as far as Cambodia and Java (see ibid. 27-28). In this role he is usually associated with his four sisters

Jayā (Victory), Vijayā (Complete Victory), Ajitā (Unbeaten) and Aparājitā (Unbeaten by (any) Other). In the Māyāstava of the KMT these four are mentioned along with him while Kubjikā is praised as residing within his seed-syllable, presumably as its energy (KMT 24/128). His vizualized forms are described by Goudriaan (185: 20-1, 47-59). See also also Dyczkowski (1989: 150n) for the form in which he appears in the JY. Goudriaan summerizes his findings as follows: 'From all these references a picture emerges of Tumburu as a healing god of sovereignty seated in the midst of four fierce goddesses with allegorical names expressive of various aspects of victory. The god commands these and occasionally counteracts their evil influence. . . . . Some traits of Tumburu are further shared by Brahmā: four heads or faces; . . . . All references are incomplete in their information and there are many mutual differences. It might be inferred from this that the worship of Tumburu must have been old and forgotten. There are indications that the symbolism and worship of Tumburu, aristocratic in sphere and outlook (but without doubt built up from popular tradition) was relegated to the magical sphere and the position of Tumburu accordingly lowered in a more recent period.'

151. Similarly, after presenting the first fifty-four seats, the AS concludes by saying:

The fields, primary and secondary, and the meeting grounds are said to be fifty-four. Once one has performed the rite of adoration in accord with the enjoined sequence of the liturgy (pūjākrama), one should read it again.

kṣetropakṣetrasaṁdohāś catuṣpañcāśa [-catuḥ-] kīrtitāḥ |
pīṭhopapīṭhasaṁdohān [-hā] sāmānye kīrtayāmi te ||
pūjākrame vidhānena pūjāṁ kṛtvā paṭhet punaḥ | AS 6/87-88ab

From here for the next six verses the AS (6/87cd-93) and our text (KuKh 16/87cd-93) agree. Further ahead, several verses and individual lines are found in the AS, KMT and the ṢSS. See the concordance.

152. KāKuKr: Kulālī. According to 16/61cd-62ab above, this goddess resides in Gaddiharaṇa.

153. According to the AS the place where this goddess resides is not the Island but the City of the Moon (Śrīcandrapurya).

154. Right from their inception, the Kubjikā Tantras regularly associate Candradvīpa – the Island of the Moon – with the goddess. This is where the goddess entered the Liṅga and from here she set out on her tour of India when she emerged from it. Thus Candradvīpa had already attained mythical status by the time the first Kubjikā Tantra was redacted. This was, no doubt, because of its association with Matsyendranātha, who came to be venerated in all the early Kaula traditions as the founder (avatāraka) of Kaulism in the present Age. Bagchi ((Magee) 1986: 35-36) points out: ‘The oldest of the available traditions namely, that of the Kaulajñānanirṇaya, would make us believe that Matsyendranātha was born in Candradvīpa, attained his siddhi there and probably imparted his spiritual knowledge to others at Kāmarūpa. If it is not an allegorical indication, and there is no reason to suppose so, then we must admit that it is an indication about the country where Matsyendra flourished.’ Bagchi goes on to try and establish where Candradvīpa may have been. He examines the views of other scholars. Some (H.P. Śāstrī and S. C. Das) locate it in the district of Bakargunj in Bengal which is nowadays commonly called Candradvīpa. This is Bhattacaryya’s view who says that it was ‘a territory ruled over by Trailokyacandra (10th-11th century AD) mentioned in the Rampal copper plate inscription. The famous Tārā image of Candradvīpa is illustrated in a manuscript dated AD 1015. In the sixteen and seventeenth centuries it was the name of a small principality in the district of Bakarganj in Bangladesh of which the capital was at first at Kachua and subsequently removed to Madhavapasa. It is identified with the pargana of Bagla (Bakla) in the sarkar of the same name mentioned in the Ain, 2.123, 134.’

Another place on the Bengali coast that scholars have identified as this place is Sundarban at the mouth of the Ganges. His own view was that it was the island of Sundwip in the Gangetic delta that is a part of the Noakhali district (op. cit. 34-38). This north-east coastal location, however, does not fit with what is said about this place here, namely, that it is in the west. But this may well be because the Kubjikā tradition at this stage sought to align Candradvīpa, the place of origin of the earlier Kaula tradition, with the main centre of the Kubjikā cult which, when the KuKh was redacted, was Koṅkana on the west coast. In this verse the goddess of Candradvīpa is Kulālī – that is Kubjikā herself, implying, no doubt, that it was Kubjikā who inspired Matsyendra and is the ultimate source of all Kaulism.

155. AS: I salute (the goddess) who resides in Oḍiyāṇa who bestows all (good) fruits.

156. The KāKuKr calls this place Oḍiyāna. Indeed, Oṁkāra is a common alternative name for Oḍḍiyāna, the First Sacred Seat (ādyapīṭha). Although there can be no doubt that this is intended and Oṁkāra is not a meant to be a separate place, one wonders whether this dual identification, which we find commonly in the Kubjikā sources and in the Tantras of other schools, may not be more than symbolic. Perhaps we may understand this identification to be a way of incorporating another sacred site that had assumed special importance for Kaulas. This may have been Oṁkāreśvara, an island in the Narmada river also called Mandhata, located 32 miles north-west of Khandwa in the Nimar district (Sircar 1967: 93). The Śaiva temple there, one of the oldest in India, houses the Liṅga of Oṁkāreśvara which is one of the twelve Liṅgas of Light. The place is also famous for its shrine to Kālabhairava on the Birkhala cliffs at the eastern end of the island where human sacrifices were offered. (Day (1927) 1990: 142).

157. Another way to read this verse is: 'I salute (the goddess) Agnikā in the seat of Oṁkāra. She who holds in her upraised hand a rosary and is Raktā, Karālā, Caṇḍākṣī and the Bhairavī Mahocchuṣmā.'

According to the BY, these four are the four main energies of Kāpāleśvara Bhairava and the goddesses of the sacred seats. This reading of this verse declares that Agnikā – the Fiery Kubjikā – embodies all four and so is their source, just as Oṁkāra / Oḍḍiyāna is the source of the other sacred seats. The KāKuKr, it seems, tacitly supports this link by identifying the goddess here as Raktacāmuṇḍā, i.e. Raktā (see KMT 1/37-38 and 49 translated in the intro. vol 1, p. 80 ff).

158. According to the AS, the goddess is 'the great light who destroys the fear of misfortune' and her consort is Kāmeśvara. One would expect the name of the guardian here to be Jāleśvara, just as the lords of Pūrṇagiri and Kāmarūpa are Pūrṇeśvara and Kāmeśvara, respectively. But this reading is confirmed by all the manuscripts, as well as the KāKuKr.

159. According to the AS the goddess here is called Abhayaṁkarī and, in the KāKuKr, Manodbhavā.

160. KāKuKr: Triśrotra – Bhuvanāmbā. Concerning the location of Tisrapīṭha, also called Trisrota, see intro. vol 1, p. 105-106.

161. AS in place of verse 16/94 reads: 'Constantly do I salute (the goddess) Trilocanā (Three-eyed) who, accompanied by Gokarṇeśvara in the (sacred seat) called Tisra, sustains the world and destroys the flood of troubles'.

An extra verse follows: 'I salute Unmanyā who, surrounded by the Mothers, has authority in Koṅkaṇa, she whose nature is the triple authority (adhikāratraya) in this, the Western House'.

162. AS: 'She destroys the bondage of transmigratory existence.'

163. According to the KāKuKr the place is Ekacūḍa and the goddess is Subhaṭṭā. Ekāmra is modern Bhuvaneśvara. The cult of the Seven Mothers was very popular in Orissa from an early date. Figures of the Seven Mothers flanked by Vīrabhadra and Gaṇeśa are regularly carved in relief on the outer walls of Śaiva temples there. They appear on the earliest Orissan temples and their cult is still maintained today. There are also several temples dedicated to individual Mothers. Amongst them Cāmuṇḍā temples are the most popular. Dehejia (1979: 12-3) writes: 'We see her [Cāmuṇḍā] as an emaciated skeletal figure with prominent veins and tendons. With gaping mouth and bulging eyes, and often standing on a corpse. The shrine of the Vaital temple [in Bhuvaneśvara] is of special interest . . . . The entire set of Matrikas are there with Chamunda as the main image of worship. Other figures on the walls of the Vaital shrine include fearsome Bhairava images, one of them indicating some connection with human sacrifice. This image is shown with a powerful knife in one hand and a severed human head lying beside him. Carved on the tripod below are two more severed heads replacing the offerings of fruit found on similar tripods in the case of the fourteen other images in the same shrine.'

164. The goddess here according to the KāKuKr is Manoharā.

165. According to the AS the goddess here is Mahālakṣmī. She holds a girdle (kāñcī) and 'removes darkness.'

166. Concerning 'asvara' as Unstruck Sound see intro. vol 1, p. 389.

167. According to the KāKuKr the place here is called Arvvadaṇḍa. Day ((1927) 1990 : 10) explains that Arbuda is 'Mount Abu in the Aravali range in the Sirohi district of Rajputana. It was the hermitage of the Ṛṣi Vaśiṣṭha. The Ṛṣi is said to have created out of his fire-pit in the mountain a hero named Paramāra to oppose Viśvamitra while he was carrying away the celebrated Kāmadhenu [the Wish-granting Cow]. Paramāra became the progenitor of the Paramāra clan of Rajputs. Mount Abu contained the celebrated shrine of Ambā Bhavānī. It contains the celebrated Jaina temples dedicated to Ṛṣabhadeva and Neminātha: it is one of the five sacred hills of the Jainas which are Śatruñjaya, Samet Sikhar, Arbuda, Girnar and Candragiri.' Although just tucked away here as just one of sixty-four sites, Arbuda appears to have been a particularly important place for the followers of the Bhairava and Kaula Tantras even though these associations have long been forgotten.

168. AS adds: 'I salute the mistress of the family of the divine congregation (divyacakra), Gāyatrī, who is well established and the venerable lord (śrīnātha), the great Bhairava who is the master of the Tamarind Tree.'

169. Bhattacharyya (1999: 149) offers two possible identifications of this place. One is Hirapur, located south-west of the town of Sagar in Madhya Pradesh. The other place, which is supported by Day ((1927) 1990: 76) and Sircar (1973: 85), is Herdoun or Hindaun in the Jaipur region, seventy-two miles south-west of Agra. It is said that this is the place where Viṣṇu incarnated as Nṛsiṁha and killed king Hiraṇyakaśyapa, the father of Prahlāda.

170. AS: 'along with Bhairava.' The guardians of the field (kṣetrapāla) are Bhairavas. They are the companions of the female beings in the sacred seats who are in some places called goddesses, in others Yoginīs and, as here, Mothers. Such beings reside in all the three regions of the world. Those mentioned here reside in the region of the earth.

171. There are various ways of interiorizing or confining sacred sites in the field of ritual action. These procedures render them both easily accessible and gather together their sacrality. In this case, the deities of all the seats and the sacred sites from which they draw their power are condensed into the First Sacred Seat, Oḍḍiyāṇa. This is symbolized by the point in the centre within the Kramamaṇḍala, here called the Maṇḍala of the Rule. Here the devotee worships the First Sacred Seat and within it all the others because it is from here that the worship of the Krama in the maṇḍala begins. Just as the whole Krama and the sites that contain it are present here in essence (see 13/141), so too is the entire earth. The centre contains the whole. As such it is the point of contact and passage between the sacred space of the maṇḍala and its macrocosmic counterpart.

172. The Tantra presrcibes that the sacred sites and the divine beings who reside in them should be worshipped every morning. Thus the AS similarly enjoins:

The mothers of the Wheel of the Earth reside in the meeting grounds (saṁdoha) and in the sacred seats, primary and secondary, accompanied by Bhairavas. The knower of the mantra, the wise one who with deep feeling praises them when rising in the morning or even while asleep is liberated and with (his) fierce (ghora) guardians, becomes the equal of the Mothers.

pīṭhopapīṭhasaṁdohasthitā bhūcakramātaraḥ ||
bhairavena samopetāḥ [-tā] kīrtayed yas tu bhāvitaḥ |
prātar utthāya mantrajñaḥ [-jñāḥ] svapnakāle 'pi vā sudhīḥ ||
muktaḥ sapālakair ghorair mātṝṇāṁ samatāṁ vrajet | AS 6/100cd-102ab

The adept sits with the Krama, that is, the Kramamaṇḍala in front of him. As he recites this Hymn, he first worships the foremost of the sacred seats, which is that very Kramamaṇḍala, before him, the Samayamaṇḍala. The other sources agree that this should be done in the morning whilst omitting this detail. It seems then that our text provides here another simple alternative to the full ritual procedure to be described later, one that allows for its integration into the daily rite of adoration (nityapūjā).

According to the AS this need not always be done, but only when the adept observes a vow. This is presumably the Vow of Knowledge described in chapter fourteen. Then the sacred seats are worshipped at the conclusion of the Kramapūjā. Thus we read in the following passage inserted here in the AS that:

One who observes the Vow (vratastha) and desires authority should worship (these sacred sites) at the end of the Kramapūjā, his mind (intent on this) hymn and (in a state in which) Rudraśakti has made a place (for herself within him). He should read (this) divine and most excellent hymn and (worship) the circle of the sacred seats and meeting grounds (saṁdoha), associated with the lords of the sacred seats and adorned with the mistresses of the sacred seats which, marked with authority, destroys all obstacles. To one (who does this) the goddess bestows knowledge and his sin is destroyed. (Such a one) is an object of veneration in the Western Tradition (paścimakrama) and he is endowed with Yoga.

yaḥ punaḥ kramapūjānte vratasthaḥ [-stha] stutimānasaḥ ||
arcayed [arccaye] adhikārārthī rudraśaktikṛtāspadaḥ |
paṭhet stotravaraṁ divyaṁ pīṭhasaṁdohamaṇḍalam ||
pīṭheśvarasamāyuktaṁ pīṭheśībhir alaṁkṛtam [-taḥ] |
sādhikāraṁ samaṁ kṛtaṁ [ketaṁ] sarvavighnopaghātakam ||
tasya jñānapradā devyā tasya pāpakṣayaṁ bhavet [vrajet] |
paścimakramapūjyo ‘sau [-mākramapūjyāsau] sa bhaved yogabhājanaḥ [-naṁ] ||
AS 6/102cd-105

One should respect him like Rudra and wave lamps (in adoration) before him. The best of adepts should circumambulate him a hundred times. One who is endowed with the austerity born of the gods by reciting the King of Hymns and has authority by virtue of this pure austerity should repeat (this) mantra. O lord of gods, by the authority (he attains) by repetition of the mantra, he becomes a part of the lineage (anvaya). Once he has obtained the noetic condition of the (members of the) lineage, he has authority (to do) everything. Once he has obtained authority over all things, he will attain Rudra's state. O goddess, (all that) remains more than Rudra’s state is your great plane (of being).

rudravat so hi mantavyo āratiṁ [ārantī] tasya kārayet |
pradakṣiṇaśataṁ [-sataṁ] tasya kartavyaṁ [-vya] sādhakottamaiḥ ||
stotrarājasya paṭhanād yasya devasutaṁ tapaḥ |
tapasānena śuddhena adhikārī japaṁ japet [bhavet] ||
japādhikārād deveśa bhaved anvayabhājanaḥ |
anvayajñānatāṁ prāpya bhavet sarvādhikāravān ||
sarvādhikāre tu kṛte tato yāsyati [yāsāti] rudratām |
rudratvād adhikaṁ devi śiṣyate tvatpadaṁ mahat || AS 6/110-113

173. The three times of the day are dawn, midday and sunset.

174. KMT and ṢSS: ‘the beloved of women.’

175. This is practically a list of objects where the main deity can reside and be worshipped. A more complete list would include the sacrificial ground (sthaṇḍila) and the jar (kalaśa). Deities are also invoked into the ritual implements, However these are attendants or other secondary deities in relation to the main one.

176. Hāṭaka means 'gold' as does hiraṇya. So this is Hiranyapura, the last of the sixty-four sacred sites. Another name for this place is Heṁapīṭha – the Golden Sacred Seat – which is found in the following verse.

177. The Five Praṇavas are aptly called the Five Lamps because they ‘illumine’ and energize the mantra to which they are attached as their ‘instruments’ (karaṇa). Normally, they are in the forward order in the front and in the reverse order at the end of the mantra and so, presumably, this is how they are arranged in this case as well. They are uttered along with the seed-syllable called the Heart of the Mothers, the Heart of the Yoginīs or the Peak of Kula (kulakūṭa). This is HSKHPHREṀ (see below beginning of chapter nine and ṢSS 34/111-113ab). Thus in the forward order the six syllables are: AIṀ HRĪṀ ŚRĪṀ KHPHREṀ HSAUḤ HSKHPHREṀ (Cf. above 16/32cd-33ab).

Each of the places mentioned in the Hymn to the Sacred Seats and the beings that reside in them should be invoked by uttering the mantra corresponding to each site. According to the commentary on the ṢSS (34/113ab) the basic content of each of these mantras is an invocation of the goddess of each place along with her weapons, tree (if there is one) and the guardian. The KuKh (16/121) prescribes that 'śrī-' should be added to the beginning and '-pure' to the end of the name of the site. Thus, the form of the mantra of the site Aṭṭahāsa cited in the commentary on the ṢSS as an example is 'aṭṭahāsakṣetre'. It may also be: 'śrī-aṭṭahāsapure'. The rest of the mantra is the same namely: kadambavṛkṣe saumyādevīṁ vajrahastāṁ mahābalakṣetrapālasahitāṁ pādukābhyāṁ pūjayāmi – 'I worship the sandals of the goddess Saumyā who resides in a Kadamba tree in the field of the venerable town of Aṭṭahāsa and, holding a thunderbolt, is accompanied by the guardian Mahābala' (see above 16/33cd-34ab). To this core, the six seed-syllables are added at the beginning and end.

178. The rite may be performed on particular days of the year (parvan) to secure special benefits, like victory in battle or destruction of one's enemies (ṢSS 34/131-134). Apart from the 'regular' special occasions, there are particular ones. Thus when 'great fear arises', the sacred sites and their residents praised in the Hymn are worshipped in a special way. The ṢSS gives examples of such occasions, most of which involve the whole community, not just the adept. The passage reads:

One should institute a great sacrifice at times of great fear, while in conflict with a powerful enemy, when the land is afflicted with drought, when voracious locusts come (to ravage it), when (one seeks to) remedy disease and suffering, when there is a fight between relatives for kingdom, when the king is deposed, during solitary combat in a great battle, in order to (get a) son, when one fails to gets a young virgin (bride), during a marriage, in order to gain victory, (or) when a fort is under attack.

mahābhaye samutpanne balavacchatruvigrahe |
anāvṛṣṭihate deśe śalabhāśanikāgame ||
vyādhiduḥkhopaśamane rājyārthe bandhuvigrahe |
rājyabhraṁśasamutpanne [k, kh: rājyā-] ekayuddhe mahāhave ||
putrārthe kanyakālābhe vivāhe jayakāraṇe |
durgābhighātakaraṇe kartavyaṁ yajanaṁ mahat || ṢSS 34/59-61

179. The maṇḍala described in the KMT (22/54cd-60) and in greater detail in the ṢSS (34/62ff) serves to accomodate only the first twenty-four sacred sites. They are represented by four groups of six maṇḍalas drawn in the four cardinal directions. These, together with the circular space in the centre where a jar is placed, are collectively referred to in the ṢSS as a Wheel (cakra). Assuming that the basic procedure is also the same here, it makes sense that there should be eight groups of eight such smaller maṇḍalas arranged in the main and intermediate directions within the larger one. Thus, although the readings in all the manuscripts agree that the maṇḍala should be fashioned 'in accord with the prescribed method of seven times eight' (saptāṣṭakavidhānena), the reading has been emended to '. . . eight times eight' (aṣṭāṣṭaka-).

180. The ṢSS explains that:

One should make a level canopy measuring sixteen (handspans) within a frightening forest, or (under) a solitary tree or (beside) a single beautiful Liṅga, in a temple dedicated to the Mothers (mātṛharmya), on a battleground, on a threshing floor (khalaka), in a house, or (places) that are tranquil (saumya), terrifying (dāruṇa), or desireable (kāmya) as you please. Beautiful with flags and garlands, (it is erected) to (win) victory in battle with the enemy and for other purposes (karman) as they arise, each separately. O fair-faced one, one should then smear the place with the dung of a brown cow mixed with liquor (ali). (The place) should abound with the fragrance of perfumed water and be fumigated with sandalwood and aloe. There, one should fashion twenty-four circles. One should fashion them in groups of six in the east, north, west, and south in the sequence in which worship takes place (pūjākrama).

bhīvane caikavṛkṣe [k: naivavṛkṣe; kh: caivavṛkṣe] vā ekaliṅge suśobhane |
mātṛharmye raṇasthāne khalake vātha veśmani ||
saumyadāruṇakāmyeṣu [k, kh: -kāmeṣu] yathā vā rocate manaḥ |
maṇḍapaṁ ca tataḥ kuryād hastaiḥ ṣoḍaśabhiḥ samam ||
dhvajamālāsuśobhāḍhyaṁ jayārthe śatruvigrahe |
itareṣv api karmeṣu yathāsthitāḥ [k, kh: -sthitā] pṛthak pṛthak ||
kapilāgomayenaiva taṁ sthānaṁ tu varānane |
saṁmārjayet tatas taṁ tu alinā saṁyutena tu ||
gandhodakasugandhāḍhyaṁ candanāgurudhūpitam |
tatra maṇḍalakān caiva caturviṁśatiṁ [k, kh: -ti] kārayet ||
pūrve ca uttare caiva [KMT: pūrvam uttarataś caiva] vāruṇye [KMT: vāruṇyāṁ] dakṣiṇe ca [KMT, k, kh: na] tu |
ṣaṭkaṁ ṣaṭkaṁ ca [KMT: tu] kartavyaṁ tatra pūjākrameṇa tu || ṢSS 34/63-68

The KMT agrees with our text that these circles should be made with the dung of a brown cow adding simply that the sites, with their Yoginīs, guardians and attributes, that are projected in groups of six in the four directions should be worshipped with white, yellow, red and dark blue flowers, respectively (KMT 22/55cd-58). The ṢSS adds that there is a twenty-fifth circle in the centre and supplies many details, including a list of the twenty-five substances with which the circles are drawn, their size and name along with seed-syllables associated with each one. The latter are formed by adding, in serial order, a consonant starting with K and ending with M to MLVRYŪṀ. Thus the first is KMLVRYŪṀ and the last is MMLVRYŪṀ. Each syllable thus formed is prefixed with the syllable AIṀ, the Great Yoni (mahāyoni). These syllables are drawn in each circle along with four geometric figures representing the energies in the syllable AIṀ, namely Vāmā (a coil), Jyeṣṭhā (a straight line), Raudrī (a triangle) and Ambikā (a crescent moon).

Each of these syllables is then followed by the syllable HSKHPHREṀ which, as we have noted already, is called the Heart of the Yoginī. A further development of these syllables takes place when the set of twenty-four is projected into the Circle of the Sun in the Wheel of Khecarī mentioned above. There, the sacred sites are worshipped two by two and the twelve Solar vowels (i.e. all the vowels except the 'neuters' ṛ ṝ ḷ Ḹ) and anusvāra are added to the end of MLVRY to make twelve varieties for each one, thus making 288 altogether.

In this case, the basic form is followed by the body of the mantra for each site, formed in the manner described above. We notice that no mention is made here of the Five Praṇavas, just as, conversely, only the syllable HSKHPHREṀ and not the other two syllables, is prescribed by our text.

Finally, whereas the triangular syllable AIṀ is prescribed here in the centre where a jar is placed, the procedure according to the ṢSS requires that a square be drawn in the middle of a large circle in the centre. The four main sacred seats are placed on the corners of this square, and the following six deities that emerge from Kubjikā's body ‘like light from a fire’ should be worshipped within it (ṢSS 34/110). They are Parā, Nityoditā, Brāhmī, Śāntarūpā, Jayāmbikā and Kauleśī.

181. Presumably the Mahāpiṇḍa is HSKHPHREṀ.

182. ‘Pādu’ is a standard abbreviation for the expression pādukāṁ pūjayāmi i.e ‘I worship the sandals . . .’ that comes at the end of these and many other mantras.

183. Although there is no indication in the manuscripts, a part of the text is clearly missing here.

184. The equivalent passage in the KMT (22/58cd-59) says:

Once a jar filled with divine water has been installed in the centre, place twenty-four lamps, (one in) each of the places (where the sacred seats have been projected) and transform them (symbolically), in due order, into the twenty-four sacred seats.

According to the KMT and the ṢSS the twenty-four sacred seats are divided into four groups of six and placed in the four directions. We can safely assume that in this case the sixty-four sacred seats should in the same way be placed in groups of eight in the main and and intermediate directions. A jar is installed in the centre placed on the syllable AIṀ. This is also the place of Hiraṇyapura, the last sacred seat (see above 16/120-121). Perhaps this is the 'great sacred seat' to which our text refers in this verse. If so, Hiraṇyapura may appear twice, both as the last member of the corresponding group of eight on the circumferance of the maṇḍala as well as in the centre. If so, the Hiraṇyapura in the centre is Śiva's sacred seat (śivapura) (16/122) that, pervading all the others from the centre, energizes them.

The ṢSS (34/107ab-124) adds other important details. Vaṭuka, we are told, should be worshipped on the right in a maṇḍala of his own made of consecrated ashes (vīrapāṁśu). Similarly, Gaṇeśa is worshipped on the left in a maṇḍala made of saffron. The Yoginīs and guardians of the field, which are normally worshipped along with these two as protectors of the main deity and its entourage, are themselves the main deities in this case and so do not require separate places for their offerings. Thus the ṢSS continues:

> O greatly austere one, offer those Yoginīs a seat along with clarified butter and a (sacred) thread (guṇa), their own Peak (syllable), (their) sacred field and everything else.
>
> First worship the host (gaṇa) with red flowers, incense, clothes, and ornaments and the residents of the fields with black (offerings). Once a jar, filled with divine water, has been installed in the centre containing five jewels and wrapped in a white cloth, place Bhairava to the west of it. He wears white clothes, is tranquil and is adorned with white ornaments. (Then) O dear one, invoke all those (goddesses) seven times with the Kula Peak (HSKHPHREṀ) and bali made from the Five Jewels should be offered outside (the maṇḍala). Then the Wheel (cakra) should be made blissful with liquor and meat. The entire Wheel should be worshipped in due order (yathākrama) with food and drink, many kinds of delicious cooked dishes, fragrant garlands, perfumes, camphor, aloe and sandalwood with Kashmiri (scented woods).
>
> Lamps with red wicks kept lit with clarified butter should all be placed in each seat (pīṭha) with liquor and cake. The Wheel is saluted and then, taking up the vessels (i.e. lamps) with (his) hands and, having proclaimed the Rule, the adept should (first) offer a blessing that fulfils (all) desires and then begin to play.
>
> O dear one, after midnight, once the Wheel has been propitiated (ānandita) in this way, the lords of the sacred seats and the goddesses draw close by. Attentive to (his) desire, they bestow success (siddhi) on (this) king of adepts.

Then, penetrated (by spiritual energy) (āviṣṭa), the goddesses in the (sacrificial) vessels play.

guṇājyena svakūṭena kṣetrādyena tathaiva ca ||
*āsanaṁ * dadet tāsāṁ yoginīnāṁ mahātape* |
raktapuṣpaiś ca dhūpaiś ca vastrair ābharaṇais tathā ||
gaṇaṁ tu pūjayed ādau kṛṣṇaiḥ kṣetranivāsinām |
madhye tu kalaśaṁ sthāpya divyatoyapariplutam ||
pañcaratnaṁ tu garbhasthaṁ śvetavastrāvaguṇṭhitam |
tasya paścimadigbhāge bhairavaṁ ca niveśayet ||
śvetāmbaradharaṁ śāntaṁ śvetabhūṣaṇabhūṣitam |
kulakūṭena tāḥ sarvāḥ saptadhāhvānayet priye ||
bāhye caiva baliṁ dadyāt [k, kh: dadyā] pañcaratnasamudbhavam |
ānandayet tataś cakraṁ alinā phalguṣeṇa tu ||
khānapānaiś ca vividhair bhakṣyabhojyair manoramaiḥ |
gandhamālyaiḥ sugandhaiś ca karpūrāgurucandanaiḥ ||
kāśmīrasaṁyutaiḥ sarvaṁ cakraṁ pūjyaṁ [k, kh: pūjya] yathākramam |
dīpakān śālipiṣṭena raktavartisamānvitān ||
sājyān pradīpitān sarvān [k, kh: sarve] pīṭhe pīṭhe pradāpayet |
namaskṛtvā tu tac cakraṁ pātrān utkṣipya [k: -nutthipya] pāṇibhyām [k, kh: pāṇibhiḥ] ||
samayaṁ ghoṣayitvā tu āśīrvādaṁ tu [k, kh: -dastu] kāmadam |
sādhakasya niyojyeta paścāt krīḍāṁ samārabhet ||
evam ānanditaṁ cakraṁ ardharātrordhvataḥ priye |
pīṭhādhipās tato devyaḥ sānnidhyāś ca bhavanti tāḥ ||
dadanti sādhakendrasya siddhīḥ [k: siddhi] kāmasamāhitāḥ |
āviṣṭāś ca tato devyaḥ pātrasthāḥ [k: -sthā] krīḍayanti tāḥ || ṢSS 34/118cd-129

The commentary explains that:

Having worshipped the Wheel with meat and wine, food and drink, a fragrant garland, camphor, musk, sandal, and vermilion, offer lamps and perform the rite of waving a lamp at night (to the sacred seats) (ārātrika). After taking the blessing and Rule from the sacred seat, one should cause (the participants) to play (together) until midnight. Then, at that time, the lords of the sacred seats and the goddesses draw close by, that is, they enter the (Wheel of the) Foundation within man (manuṣyādhāra). After that, all the accomplishments (siddhi) are born (within the adept).

madyamāṁsena khānena pānena gandhamālyena karpūreṇa aguruṇā [k: agaruṇā] candanena kuṅkumena cakraṁ pūjya dīpakān [k, kh: -kāṁ] kārayet ārātrikaṁ [k, kh: āratikaṁ] ca || samayaṁ pīṭhāt āśīrvādaṁ gṛhya krīḍāṁ kārayed ardharātraṁ yāvat || tasmin [k, kh: tadā] samaye pīṭhādhipā [k, kh: -pāḥ] devyaś ca sānnidhyā [k, kh: -dhyaṁ] bhavanti [k, kh: bhavati] || manuṣyādhāre praviśyanti || paścāt sarvasiddhayaḥ saṁbhavanti ||

I suppose that the 'play' meant here is sex. Compare the expression 'paśukrīḍā' (below 37/33c) lit. 'play of beasts' at which the initiated should not look at which. In this case, initiates 'play' together. Finally, at the culmination of the rite, the Yoginīs and guardians of the sacred seats penetrate the participants and they also 'play' in the Wheel of the Foundation, i.e in the genital centre in each one of them. In this way, the accomplishments the adepts seek are generated and the rite concludes successfully.

185. KMT and ṢSS: 'he is quickly successful'.

186. Here the ṢSS says that:

(The king who has) been deposed gains a kingdom and one who desires victory is victorious. He becomes wealthy is freed from troubles, (malevolent) planets, dropsy (kṣaya), leprosy (kuṣṭha) fever and the like and all diseases.

rājyabhraṣṭo labhed rājyaṁ jayārthī jayam āpnuyāt |
upasargagrahādibhyaḥ kṣayakuṣṭhajvarādibhiḥ || mucyate sarvarogaiś ca dhanadhānyayuto bhavet [KMT: dhanavān api jāyate] |
ṢSS 34/138-139ab

187. The equivalent of this sentence line is KMT (22/63cd) and ṢSS (34/149cd) which reads: kanyāṁ (KMT and ṢSS: kanyā) manepsitān kāman labhate cābhiṣekataḥ (ṢSS: cābhiṣecitaḥ) – 'By virtue of the consecration, he obtains a virgin (bride) and (all) the things he desires.'

188. KMT 22/63d and ṢSS 34/150b: 'The passionate man is fortunate (in love).'

189. KMT 22/ 64b and ṢSS 34/150d: 'The merchant makes a profit.'

Appendix I

The Code of Fifty Letters

It is common practice in all schools of Tantra to present mantras in code. Many codes exist. One of the most basic is to use the names of deities that are associate with the letters of the alphabet. A common series of alphabetical deities are those of the female Mālinī series which is discussed in chapter 18. Another is the male Śabdarāśi series which is discussed in chapter 19. These two series, especially, the second one, are common to many Tantric schools. But although the Kubjikā Tantras make free and frequent use of these alphabets, it seems a need remains to have another which is not common to other schools. This is used especially to reveal the goddess's Vidyā. Accordingly, the names of the fifty letters are listed in chapter eight (verses 34cd-40ab) just before the Vidyā is presented by means of them. The Vidyā consists of thirty-two goddesses who embody each of its syllables, but these are not the same as the deities of the letters (see appendix 2). Nonetheless, in this particular case the deities of the letters are intimately connected to the Vidyā and share in what is most special and unique to the tradition, Kubjikā's most essential nature as the energy Beyond Mind (unmanī) of the Command.

Another set are the so-called 'secret names' (guptanāma) of the letters that belong to the 'secret lexicon' (guptanighaṇṭu). These 'secret names' are used to denote the forty-two syllables of the Vidyā of Kauleśī, that is, the Vidyā of Kubjikā with the two sets of Five Praṇavas at the beginning and end of it. They are listed in a passage common to both recensions of the YKh, which explains that:

> Beginning with Nectar (amṛta) (A) and ending with the Void (śūnya) (KṢa) they are located in the (Meruprastāra) (which is the) Wheel of the Deities, O Lord of the gods, arranged in due order in an anticlockwise spiral with the universal Void located at the end in the middle on top of the calyx.[1]
>
> 1) Amṛta (A) 2) Ānanda (Ā) 3) Vimala (I) 4) Jyoti (Ī) 5) Śakti (U) 6) Kuṇḍalinī (Ū) 7) Kalā (Ṛ) 8) Tamas (Ṝ) 9) Ari (ḷ) 10) Taḍi (Ḷ) 11) Hasta (E) 12) Retas (AI) 13) Arka (O) 14) Ekapāda (AU) 15) Vāgbhava (Ṁ) 16) Padmayoni (Ḥ) 17) Tripāda (Ka) 18) Brahmā (Vahni – Kha) 19) Sāgara (Ga) 20) Varṇodaya (Gha) 21) Mahāratna (Ṅa) 22) Galita (Ca) 23) Taptacāmara (Cha) 24) Tāṇḍava (Ja) 25)

---

[1] YKh (2) 14/27-28

> Jaṭāhāra (Jha) 26) Śūla[1] (Ña) 27) Unmatta (Ṭa) 28) Siṁhaka (Ṭha) 29) Kapāla (Ḍa) 30) Saṁvarta (Ḍha) 31) Kaṅkāla (Ṇa) 32) Trilocana (Ta) 33) Vāsudeva (Tha) 34) Virūpākṣa (Da) 35) Kasmara (Dha) 36) Naravāhana (Na) 37) Dhanurdhara (Pa) 38) Jiṣṇuja (Pha) 39) Dvija (Ba) 40) Rāva (Bha) 41) Bhadragola (Ma) 42) Māruta (Ya) 43) Agni (Ra) 44) Pārthiva (La) 45) Varuṇa (Va) 46) Śaktipāta (Śa) 47) Puravāsī (Ṣa) 48) Sṛṣṭi (Śa) 49) Bhairava (Ha) 50) Kañjara (KṢa).[2]

In chapter 34 of YKh (1) we find an interesting exposition of the inner states, that is, aspects of the Command that correspond to the fifty letters projected into the grid of Meru. The goddess is speaking, proclaiming that she is all fifty, one after another.

Bhairava and Amṛtā (A)

> I am Khageśvarī, the goddess of (all) the gods, beginningless, pure and without end. I am Khañjinyā, the energy of consciousness (citkalā) in the form of Kula in the four ages. (I am) Kuleśvarī who (resides) in the Sky of Consciousness (cidākāśa) as pure consciousness (bodha), having encompassed (all things). (I am) innate bliss (sahajānandā) who is said to be the primordial (ādyā) goddess.
>
> (I am) the energy (kalā) (the digit of the moon called) Ciñciṇī who oozes (nectar) at the beginning, middle and end. (I am) pure consciousness (cinmātrā) called the Unbroken (akhaṇḍakā) who is within beginingless Śiva.
>
> The insentient (acetana) is a void (śūnya) without support and form, whereas Bhairavī is the (very) being of the will (icchābhāva) and so (radiates and is) the rays of consciousness. O Bhairava, Kulakaulinī (is called) Bhairavī because (she) fills (bharaṇa) the universe, sports (ramaṇa) and rains down (varṣantī) as a current of nectar.
>
> She resides in the Void (khasthā) and (her) form is (in every way) complete (nivartita); she is in a state of perpetual expansion (sadoditavikāsikā). Mounted on the consciousness of her own nature (svabhāvacetanā), she is said to be the power of the will. Everything is emitted by the will (icchā) and is again destroyed by the will.
>
> I am (that will which is) the Command of the Planes of Existence (bhūmikājñā), Kulakaulinī who is completely free. Taking

---

[1] Variant: Mūla.

[2] YKh (1) 16/28cd-33 = YKh (2) 14/29-34ab.

(my) support from the Kula of Akulīśa, I destroy phenomenal existence (bhava). Arisen by the path of the current (of the transmission) (ugha), (I) possess its (divine) attributes by limiting (what is) below and above and by means of the union (*saṁghaṭṭa) (*of Śiva and Śakti).[1]

(I am) the Supreme Goddess (parameśvarī), the energy of the Void (khakalā) who, inexplicable, resides in the one called the Skyfarer. Unmanifest (I am) devoid of manifestation (nirābhāsā) and with manifest nature (I) manifest. (I am) alone on the plane of unity (sāmarasya) and, without body, (am) said to be inexpressible (akathā).

The spark (kākiṇī) (of pure consciousness), (I) abide between (Śiva and Śakti), the two instruments (of emanation) conjoined with (all) the vowels. Disembodied, (I am) the energy of consciousness (citkalā), Kālī, Mālinī, Nāthabhairavī who illumines the path of Meru for the Samayāvali Mantra.

(I) possess the authority of many forms and (am) the mistress of the peak of (the Triangle with) three peaks (trikūṭa). (My) nature is (each) peak and (I am) the Three-peaked (Triangle) consisting of will, knowledge and action. (I am) Maheśvarī who, endowed with the Yoni, (am) bent by the waves of (these) three modalities. (I am) Mālinī and Manmathā, Bhairava's will, and (my) body is enormous.

It is said that I am that goddess whose form is the letters (mātṛkā) in the Ocean (of the Meruprastāra). (I am) Mahāvakrā, not phenomenal (akāryā) and free of impurities, (I am) the Command ever merged in (the liberated state) Beyond the Fourth (turyātīta), the consciousness of the contemplation of the absence of (phenomenal) existence (abhāva).[1]

---

[1] anādivimalānantā [k: -naṁḍā] devadevī [k: devā-] khageśvarī ||
citkalā kularūpeṇa khañjinyāhaṁ [k: khaṁjanyāhaṁ] caturyuge [k: -gā] |
śuddhabodhasvarūpeṇa [k: suddha-; g: -rūpena] cidākāśe kuleśvarī ||
saṁvṛttya [g: saṁbhṛtya] sahajānandā ādyā devī prakīrtitā |
ādimadhyāvasāne tu ciñciṇī sravate kalā ||
*cinmātrākhaṇḍakā [k g: cinmātrā * ṇḍakā] saṁjñā anādiśivamadhyagā [k: -mavyayā; g: -yā]* |
nirālambaṁ [k: nirālaṁva] nirākāraṁ [k: -kāśaṁ] śūnyabhūtam acetanam ||
icchābhāvasvarūpeṇa bhairavī bodharaśmayaḥ [g: -rasmayaḥ] |
bharaṇādapi [k: bharaṇīdapi] viśvasya ramaṇāt [g: ramaṇā] kulakaulinī ||
varṣantī amṛtaughena tena [k: nāsti] bhairava bhairavī [k: -vaṁ; g: -va] |
khasthā nivartitākārā [g: nivatti-] sadoditavikāsikā [k: sadopitavikāśikā; g: -vikāśinī] ||
svabhāvacetanārūḍhā [g: -rūḍhāḥ] icchāśaktir nigadyate |
icchayā sṛjate sarvaṁ saṁharet punar icchayā [k: bharateṣu narichayā; g: saṁharetatpuna] ||
bhūmikājñāsvarūpāhaṁ [g: -rūpohaṁ] vimuktā kulakaulinī |
akulīśakulālambī bhavocchedakarī hy ahaṁ ||
saṁbhūtā oghamārgeṇa taddharmasamadharmiṇī [k: tadvarma-] |
adha - ūrdhvanirodhena [k: ata-; g: ūrddhaṁ-] saṁghaṭṭakaraṇād api || YKh (1) 34/35cd-43.

Ādinātha and Bhānujā (Ā)

She resides on the plane of (Śiva who is) the First Lord (ādinātha), and her nature is manifestation (avabhāsa). Perpetually merged within Amṛtā (Nectar), she is Bhānujā (Born of the Sun).[2]

Māyā (I)

One should know Māyā to be the passionate desire (manmathā) within body (ghaṭa) of the Lord. O god, that goddess is well known in the Krama and is said to be Kauleśvarī.[3]

Śaṁkara and Gaurī (Ī)

Again, her form is that of the fourth vowel (Ī); (as such) she is Gaurī, who lives in the mountains. (She is) the delight of Kula (kulanandinī) and is enveloped with Śaṁkara's own nature.[4]

---

[1] khakalā [g: śvakalā] khacarākhyasthā akathyā [k: akavyā] parameśvarī |
avyaktā vyaktarūpeṇa [k: dyakṣarayeṇa] nirābhāsā [k: nirāśāsā; g: nirāsāsa] vibhāsikā ||
sāmarasyapadaikākī [k g: padekākī] akāyā akathā smṛtā [k: smṛta] |
karaṇadvayamadhyasthā kākiṇī [g: kālinī] svarabheditā ||
anaṅgā [k: anaṁga] citkalā kālī mālinī nāthabhairavī |
samayāvalimantrasya [k: malayāvali-; g: malayāmali-] merumārgaprakāśinī ||
nānākārādhikārī [k: mānākārā-; g: mīnākārā-] ca trikūṭaśikhareśvarī [k: -kūṭaṁ-] |
kūṭarūpā [k: rūpaṁ] trikūṭā [k: vibhūṭā] ca icchājñānīkriyātmikā ||
trivalītaraṅgabhaṅgā [k: -taragaṁ bhaṁgā; g: -taraṅgaṁbhaṅgā + sā] bhagabhṛtyā maheśvarī |
mālinī [k: -ni] manmathā caiva [k: manmacocaiva] bhairavecchā mahātanuḥ ||
ārṇave mātṛkākārāhaṁ sā [g: sa] devī nigadyate |
ājñārūpā [k g: aśvarūpā] mahāvakrā [k, g: -vastrā] akāryā [g: akāyā] kṣīṇakalmaṣā [g: -khā] ||
turyātīte sadā līnā [g: līna] abhāvacintacetanā | YKh (1) 34/44-50ab.

[2] ādināthapadāntasthā [k g: ādinādipadāṁtasthā; g: ādinādipadāṁtasya] avabhāsasvarūpiṇī [k: avasthāsa-] ||
amṛtānte sadā līnā [k: kālī] bhānujā sā [k: nāmātumantā; g: bhānumantā] vidhīyate |
Ibid. 50cd-51ab

[3] māyā [g: māya] sā [k g: yā] manmathā jñeyā īśvarasya ghaṭe sthitā ||
*vikhyātā [k: -ta] tena [k: * ] sā deva krame [k g: kramāt] kauleśvarī smṛtā | Ibid. 51cd-52ab.

[4] *sā ca turyasvarākārā [g: -svarā * ] gaurī parvatavāsinī [g: marvatavāśivī] ||
śaṁkarasya [g: saṁkarasya] svabhāvena saṁvṛtā kulanandinī [g: kū-] | Ibid. 52cd-53ab.

Ekā (U)

(The goddess) Ekā (One) is present in the many (things of the universe). O Lord (nātha), she neither assumes nor rejects (anything) (nidānādānavarjitā). Established on the path of the energy (kalā) within (her) expansion that destroys darkness, she is Maheśvarī.[1]

Bodhakī (Ū)

Beyond mind (unmanā) and free of (all) defects, she traverses (into transcendence) by the force the mind. (She is) Bodhakī (the Awakener) who is the Great State (mahāvasthā) (of transcendence) and, (her nature) tranquility, (she awakens) the rays of knowledge.[2]

Kālī (Ṛ)

Supremely subtle, she severs (all bonds) (lutantī) and her nature is the diminished (lupta) letter (R, that is, ṛ).[3] (She is) Kālī (who) emanates (all things) by herself alone (svayam eva). The most excellent of females, her form is the Liṅga.[4]

Mahendrā (Ṝ)

(She is) Mahendrā who, (endowed) with energy (sakalā), resides in the Void (kha) and is manifest (uditā) on the plane of the neuter (letters).[5] She is merged everywhere in (all) existing things. This is the truth taught in the tradition (mata).[6]

---

[1] ekānekapraviṣṭā sā [k: ekāṅkānapraviśeta; g: nakāṅkānapraviśeta] nātha nidānādānavarjitā ||
tamodhvaṁsakalādhvasthā [k: tamādhvasakaladhvastā; g: bhamāñcasakaladhvastā] pravikāse [k g: -kāśe] maheśvarī | Ibid. 53cd-54ab.

[2] unmanā manavegena [k: manavarauna] saṁkramati anāmayā ||
śāntarūpā [k: sāṁta-] mahāvasthā bodhakī [g: nmecakī] jñānaraśmayaḥ [k: -ya] |
Ibid. 54cd-55ab.

[3] The vowel Ṛ is here considered to be a sort of diminished 'r'.

[4] lutantī [g: nutantī] paramā sūkṣmā [k: śū-] luptavarṇasvabhāvikā [k: varṇaṁ-; g: lupavarṇa-] svayameva sṛjet kālī [k: kāki; g: kākī] liṅgākārā varāṅganā | Ibid. 55cd-56ab.

[5] The vowels Ṛ, Ṝ, ḷ and Ḷ are classified by Indian phonologists as 'neuter'. This is because, even though they possess the basic phonetic properties of vowels, they are also partial consonants and so midway between these two categories.

[6] mahendrā sakalā [k g: makalā] khasthā napuṁsakapadoditā [k: napuṁsakayadeditā] ||
līnā sarvatra bhāvānāṁ satyedaṁ [k: satīyaṁ] khyāpitaṁ mate | Ibid. 56cd-57ab.

Nādeśvarī and Rāvaṇa (ḷ)

> (She is) Kālī who is playfully (engaged) in sport in order to kill Rāvaṇa. Thus, she is said to be, without a doubt, the Mistress of Sound (nādeśvarī),[1] the goddess (bhagavatyā).[2]

Bhṛkuṭī (Ḷ)

> Bhṛkuṭī (Knit Eyebrows) (is Kuṇḍalinī whose) form is crooked. She has gone to mount Kiṣkindha. The goddess is, no doubt, capable of making the bridge (setubandha).[3]

Ratnamālā amd Pudgala (E)

> She is within the essential nature of the individual soul (pudgala) and resides in the process (of manifestation which is both) one and many. She is called Ratnamālā (Garland of Gems)[4] in the hermitage of Himavān.[5]

---

[1] The name of the demon Rāvaṇa literally means 'one who sounds forth'. Thus he represents the entire sphere of immanence in which the manifestation takes place understood as a 'sounding forth' of the transcendent Silence. This goddess overcomes the demon Rāvaṇa and so is the ruler of the Sound that manifests as (and hence creates and destroys) all things.

[2] līlayā [k: nīlayā] lalitā kālī rāvaṇasya [k: ravaṇasya] vadhārthataḥ [k: -kaḥ] ||
tena nādeśvarī khyātā bhagavatyā na saṁśayaḥ | Ibid. 57cd-58ab.

[3] bhṛkuṭī [g: nṛtyanta] kuṭilākārā kiṣkindhaparvate [k: kiḥkindhai-; g: kiḥkiṁdhe-] gatā [k: -tāḥ] ||
setubandhakṣamā [k: śetu-] devī bhavate nātra [k: na; g: tena] saṁśayaḥ [k: raśmaya; g: raśmayaḥ] | Ibid. 58cd-59ab.

This verse, like the previous one, alludes to episodes in the Rāmāyaṇa and to a particular yogic practice. In the Kiṣkindha forest, Rāma meets the monkeys who help him to build the bridge to Śrīlaṅka. Here, as in the Śākta versions of the Epic that discern the hand of the goddess assisting Rāma in all his exploits, the power that impels and sustains the monkeys in their labours is said to be the goddess Bhṛkuṭī. Her name (lit. Knit Eyebrows) gives us the necessary clue as to how she operates and the inner dimensions of this event. Setubandha (lit. 'making a bridge') is a technical term for a particular yogic practice. This involves the transition of the vital breath, in the form of the upward-moving Kuṇḍalinī, from the lower part of the head where the senses are located up beyond them. This takes place at the critical junction between the eyebrows. Here the upward-moving stream of vitality must make the transition from the sphere of outer sensory awareness to purely inner states. In order to cross this chasm, the eyebrows (symbolic of these two polarities) are closely knit by the intense concentration stimulated and sustained by Kuṇḍalinī who therefore is appropriately called Knit Eyebrows.

[4] The hermitage of Himavat is the Meruprastāra which, in the form of a downward-facing triangle, looks like the letter E which this goddess embodies. The Gems are the phonemic energies that fill the triangle and hence the goddess is called Ratnamālā because she is present in every individual as its essential vital and spiritual energy.

[5] pudgalasya [k: pugīlasya] svarūpasthā ekānekakrame [g: ekeneka-] sthitā ||
ratnamāleti [k: -lāti] vikhyātā himavantasya āśrame | Ibid. 59cd-60ab.

Parameśānī and Gajakarṇa (Ai)

She is the Supreme Goddess (parameśānī) and, fierce (bhīmā), has arisen in the forest of Gajakarṇa. She is emanation in the Wheel of the Great Goddess (māheśvarīcakra) and bestows boons to Bhairava.[1]

Gaganeśanī and Koṭīśvara (O)

Gaganeśānī (the Mistress of the Void) is lauded by contemplating the Void of the Drop. Mad with the passionate inebriation (mada) (that she feels for) Koṭīśvara, she is satisfied and goes to Khageśvara (the Lord of the Void to unite with him).[2]

Aditya and Dīpā (Au)

Dīpā (the Lamp), the (energy of) the fourteenth vowel, is well established on the seat of the Sun.[3] Contemplated, the Command of the Skyfarer certainly functions.[4]

Kālī (Ṁ)

Similarly, Kālī is the energy of the Moon (indukalā) at the end of the Age. Established in the essential nature of the unmanifest, she is energized (bṛṁhitā) by the fifteenth vowel.[5]

Svarāntā (Ḥ)

The primordial emission (visargādyā), present at the end (and within) the vowels, (the goddess) goes to the (Yoni which is the) Ocean of Siddhas. Established on the path of the Sun and Moon, in the form of emanation, she faces downwards.

---

[1] sā bhīmā [k: śīmā; g: sīmā] parameśānyā gajakarṇavanoditā [k: -tāḥ; g: gatrakarṇnajagoditā] || sṛṣṭrir māheśvarīcakre [k g: sṛṣṭi-] bhairavasya varapradā | Ibid. 60cd-61ab.

[2] *udgītā [k: udgīta; g: udbhāga] gaganeśānī [k: gaganesābhiḥ; g: ragateśāni] binduvyomanirīkṣaṇāt [k: viṁdubhi * * rīkṣaṇāt; g: cintavyaṁ * nirīkṣaṇāt]* || koṭīśvaramadonmattā [g: koṭīsvaramaronmatya] tṛptā yāntī [k: yāṁ; g: -nti] khageśvaram [k: yāṁniśvarākārā; g: yānti -] | Ibid. 61cd-62ab.

[3] Tripadin may be the sun, although this is not a meaning recorded by Monier–Williams.

[4] *caturdaśasvarā [k: nāsti] dīpādityāsane [k: dvipādityāsana] susaṁsthitā [k: * * sthitā; g: ṣu-]* || bhavitā [k: raviṣyeṁ; g: bhavikhe] sā [k: mā; g: jñā ?] na saṁdehaḥ [k: -ha] khecarājñā pravartate | Ibid. 62cd-63ab.

[5] tathā indukalā [k: indubindukalā] kālī antime tu yugasya ca [k: trāṁtimandrayugakhaga] || anābhāsāsvabhāvasthā [k: amābhāsa-] tripañcasvarabṛṁhitā [k: triṣaṁcasvara -] | Ibid. 63cd-64ab.

Due to the destruction of Karma and the practice of passionate inebriation (madābhyāsa) well known in the Kubjikā Tantras (kādyāgama), she bestows worldly benefits and liberation.[1]

Hanumān (Ka)

The energy of the Void (khakalā), she abides within the essential nature of the Void (khasvarūpa) and is established in the state of flight (khecaratva). (The energy) of Hanumān, the supreme lion, she is immeasurable consciousness.[2]

Vṛṣa (Kha)

Flowing forth (galitā), O Śaṁkara, she manifests (bhāti) in the Void (gagana) in form of a bull (vṛṣa). O lord of the gods, this is the transmission, Śiva's teachings (śivaśāsana), (the goddess) Kulālikā.[3]

Ghargharā / Siṁha (Gha)

(The next goddess) is Ghargharā (Jar) and she is like nectar. Radiant energy, (her) form is the Lion. She is Pārvatī, who is on (her) seat, the mistress of the lord Ādinātha.[4]

Mātṛ (Ṅa)

O god, the mothers are sevenfold and Kulakaulinī is (their) glory (mahatā). She resides in the womb of the mothers (mātṛkā). O imperishable one! she is the imperishable (energy of each) letter (akṣarākṣarā).[1]

---

[1] svarāntasthā visargādyā siddhasāgaragāminī [g: siddhasācāra-] ||
ravisomakalādhvasthā [k g: -stā] sṛṣṭirūpā adhomukhī |
*karmakṣayāt madābhyāsād [k: -bhyāsā; g: * * * *] * * * * [g: * * dayo] maheśvara* ||
kādyāgame [k: kātyārāme] prasiddhā sā [g: nāṁ] bhuktimuktipradāyikā | Ibid. 64cd-66ab.

[2] khakalā [k: śakalā] khasvarūpasthā [g: kherūpasthā] khecaratve vyavasthitā ||
*hanumānparasiṁhasya [k: -parisiṁhasya; g: * * * * ] aprameyā cidātmikā | Ibid. 66cd-67ab.

[3] galitā gagane bhāti vṛṣarūpeṇa śaṁkara ||
śivaśāsanaṁ [k: -sāsana; g: -śāsana] deveśa [g: devesa] kramam etat kulālikā | Ibid. 67cd-8ab.

[4] ghargharā [g: ?] sāmṛtaupamyā [k: mamṛtauyamyā; g: ?] siṁharūpā sutejasā [k: sratejasā] ||
pārvatī [g: pāvatī] āsane [g: āśane] yuktā ādinātheśvareśvarī [k: -nāthasvare-; g: -śureśvara] |
Ibid. 68cd-9ab.

Hāṭakeśvara (Ca)

She is the energy within the beautiful city of Candrapūrya that resounds (svarate) spontaneously. She is present (in the goddess's) cosmic form within the Void in the form of Hāṭakeśvara.[2]

Jihmakā (Cha)

(She is) double (dviguṇa) and (her) state is twofold and (so) is said to be called Jihmakā (Deceitful). Her breasts are fat and upraised, she has three eyes and (her) topknot is upraised.[3]

Śūlahastikā (Ja)

(She is) the goddess Jayā, Jaghanā (i.e. Yoni) and Jayantī who holds a trident (śūlahastikā). She destroys the demons and is the beloved of Śaṁkara.[4]

Unmanā (Jha)

By nature she is the Transmental, the Void (śūnyā) and, free of old age (nirjarā), is without fault. She is the aggregate (saṁhatā) (of energies) of the house of the full moon (candrapūrṇa i.e. Candrapura) in the Śāmbhava Kula.[5]

---

[1] mātaraḥ saptadhā deva mahatā kulakaulinī ||
mātṛkodaragarbhasthā [g: mātṛbhairavagarbha-] akṣarākṣarasākṣarā | Ibid. 69cd-70ab.

[2] candrapūrye [k: -sūrye] pure ramye sā kalā svarate svayam ||
viśvamūrtigatā nabhe [k: nāle; g: nabha] hāṭakeśvararūpataḥ | Ibid. 70cd-71ab.

[3] dviguṇā [k: vigulyaṁ; g: dvigulpha] ca [k: va] dvidhāvasthā jihmakā [k: jihmajaṁ; g: jiṣṇujaṁ] nāma kīrtitā [k, g: -taṁ] ||
pīnonnatastanākārā trinetrā śikharodyatā [k: ṣṭhikharodyatā] | Ibid. 71cd-72ab.

[4] jayā ca [k: va] jaghanā devī jayantī [g: jaya] śūlahastikā ||
asurāṇāṁ kṣayaṁ kartrī [g: kartya?] śaṁkarasya [g: -karasasya?] ca vallabhā | Ibid. 72cd-73ab.

[5] svarūpād unmanā śūnyā [k: śūcyā] nirjarā ca nirāmayā ||
candrapūrṇasya veśmasya saṁhatā śāmbhave [k g: sāṁbhave] kule | Ibid. 73cd-74ab.

Vīrabāhu (Ña)

She is the slayer of the the world of transmigration, which is the enemy of the heroes and lords of the heroes. She severs the aggregate of fetters. She is none other than Vīrabāhu.[1]

The consort of Kapālīśa (Ṭa)

She is marked with the energy of the Half-moon of the god Kapālīśa. She drinks liquor (suravāruṇī) in the full vessel of Iḍā.[2]

Saṁvartā and Jaṭādhara (Ṭha)

She is the (consort of) the lord Jaṭādhara. Completely full, she is all things (viśvarūpiṇī). (She is) Saṁvartā (the Doomsday Fire) of Kulakaula and shines as the Drop (bindu) (in the centre of the maṇḍala).[3]

Ḍāmarī / Vāsuki (Ḍa)

(She is) Ḍāmarī (the Witch). (She is) the Skyfarer, free of deceit (ḍambha) and Māyā. She is the snake woman (nāgāṅganā) similar in form to Vāsuki (the snake).[4]

Ṣoḍhā (Ḍha)

Ṣoḍhā is the Cave (kandara) of the Sixteen Supports (ādhāra) and knows the sixteen depositions. Her form crooked (like a) sleeping (serpent) and so for this reason (Kuṇḍalinī) is said to be Ṣoḍhā.[5]

---

[1] vīravīrendravīrāṇāṁ saṁsārāripumardanī [k: saṁsaraṁ-; g: saṁśāra-] ||
chedanī pāśasaṁghātān [g: pāsasaṁghāṇāṁ] vīrabāhur na [g: -vāhuṁ na] cānyathā |
Ibid. 74cd-75ab.

[2] kapālīśasya devasya ardhacandrakalāṅkitā ||
paripūrṇa - iḍāpātre pibate suravāruṇīm [k g: -vāruṇī] | Ibid. 75cd-76ab.

[3] sā jaṭādharanāthasya [k: -dhanatāthasya] saṁpūrṇā viśvarūpiṇī ||
saṁvartā [g: savarttā] kulakaulasya bindurūpā [k: bindubhayā] prakāśate | Ibid. 76cd-77ab.

[4] ḍambhamāyāvinirmuktā ḍāmarī khecarātmikā ||
nāgāṅganāsvarūpā [k: + yā] sā vāsukirūpasannibhā [k: cāmuktirūpasaṁnitā; g: vāsukī-] |
Ibid. 77cd-78ab.

[5] ṣoḍhā [k g: ṣoḍā] ṣoḍaśanyāsajñā ṣoḍaśādhārakandarā ||
prasuptakuṭilākārā ṣoḍhā sānena [k, g: mānena] gīyate | Ibid. 78cd-79ab.

Nirnāmā (Ṇa)

By name she is called Nameless (nirnāmā) (and is the goddess) of one whose mind is excessively disturbed. Immanent and supreme, she is the final resort (of the fettered) during the Age of Strife.[1]

Maheśvarī and Nīlakaṇṭha (Ta)

Such also is the oneness in the three divisions (of the transmission) which, by its very nature, is free of fluctuation (nistaraṅga). She is Maheśvarī (who is that oneness), worshipped by the god Nīlakaṇṭha.[2]

Rudra and Parāvartā (Tha)

Installed (sthāpitā) by Rudra's devotion, she is the deity called 'the Ancient One' (sthavirā). O Great Śambhu, (she is) Parāvartā who resides within the Doomsday Fire (saṁvartā).[3]

Kūṭamātṛ and Kubera (Da)

She is the mother of the Peak (syllables) who, perpetually active (sadoditā), nourishes the body. As if a burning fire, she is the constant object of Kubera's worship.[4]

Dharmarājā (Dha)

(Everything) said (to range from the principle Earth (dharā) up to the faultless Void ("suunya) is said to be the imperishable one (akṣara) who is called Dharmarāja.[5]

---

[1] saṅkulādhikacittasya [k: bhaṁmatā-; g: bhaṅkulādhikacittasya + śaktyā] ?
nirnāmānāmanāmataḥ [k: nirnīmā-; g: nirnāmarnāmṛtaḥ] ||
bhavate kalikālasya [k: kalikāspṛsya] parāyaṇī [k, g: parāyaṇi] parāparā [k: paroparā] |
Ibid. 79cd-80ab.

[2] tathābhedaṁ tribhedeṣu [g: vibhedastu] nistaraṅgaṁ svarūpataḥ ||
nīlakaṇṭhena [k: nīlakaṁhena] devena arcitā sā maheśvarī | Ibid. 80cd-81ab.

[3] sthāpitā rudrabhaktyā [g: -śaktyā] tu sthavirā nāma devatā [g: sthivirāṇāmadevatā] ||
parāvartā [k: -varta; g: -vartta] mahāśambho [g: -sambho] saṁvartānte [k: saṁvartāte; g: śamvarttānta] vyavasthitā | Ibid. 81cd-82ab.

[4] deham āpyāyate [k g: dehanā-] deva kūṭamātā [g: kūṭamatā] sadoditā ||
kubereṇa sadābhyarcyā [k: sadā tubhyaṁrccya; g: śadābhyarcya] prajvalā [k: prahvalanasya; g: prajvalaṁ] nāma [k: nāsti] sā [k: nāsti] iva [k: ivaṁ ?] | Ibid. 82cd-83ab.

[5] dharātattvādi [g: + tatvādi] ākhyātaṁ yāvat śūnyaṁ [g: sūkṣmaṁ] nirāmayaṁ ||

Nādinī and Tāraka (Na)

Nādinī abides within the Void (kha) in many forms. As the letter Tāraka she expands (vikāsinī) and her form is the Void (kha).[1]

Dvijā (Pa)

Immanent and supreme, she is free of the impulse (nuda) of the energy of the vital breath (vāyavī) (but even so) moves up and down. She is Dvijā (Twice-born), the mother whose body is the universe and resides in the centre (of the supreme reality) above the uppermost plane (of finite existence).[2]

Kalā (Pha)

O Bhairava, as her shape is (circular like an) earring, (her) shape is that of a (coiled) serpent. When satisfied, she destroys (and so) is said to be the energy (kalā) that destroys decay.[3]

Śakti (Ba)

The one energy (śakti) in the transmission (krama) is Kālī the sky farer (khagā) who, when worshipped, rains down (nectar). (Though) one, with (her) many forms (bheda) she cuts through (bondage) and destroys Karma.[4]

Bhairava (Bha)

O Maheśvara, the City is called Great Beauty (mahāramya) and Bhairava, who awakens Kaulikas, resides there.[5]

---

tatrākṣaram iti khyātaṁ [k: tatrākhyaramikhyātaṁ] dharmarājā [k g: -rājñā] nigadyate |
Ibid. 83cd-84ab.

[1] nānārūpasvarūpeṇa [k: mātārūpa-] nādinī nabhasaṁsthitā [k: śekha- -tāṁ; g: gibhi-] ||
tārakākṣararūpeṇa nabharūpā vikāsinī [k: vikāśinī] | Ibid. 84cd-85ab.

[2] vāyavyā nudanirmuktā [k: vāyavyāṁbuda-] parāparā [k: -ras; g: -ra] adhordhvagā [k: tadhorddhvagā] ||
dvijā [k, g: dvija] viśvāṅgajananī ūrdhvapadordhvamadhyagā [k: urdhvapadmo imadhyagā; g: -padmodvamadhyagā] | Ibid. 85cd-86ab.

[3] kuṇḍalākṛtirūpeṇa bhujagākṛtir [g: -kṛti-] bhairava ||
tuṣṭā hantṛ kṣayahantṛkalā iti [g: kalāmiti] pragīyate [g: * gīyate] | Ibid. 86cd-87ab.

[4] śaktir ekā [g: śaktime-] krame kālī varṣantī arcitā khagā ||
ekānekavibhedena chedanī karmapāśahā [g: -pāsahā] | Ibid. 87cd-88ab.

[5] _puraṁ nāma [k: rāma; g: nā *] mahāramyaṁ abhidhānaṁ maheśvara [k: -raḥ]_ ||

Ekavīra and Saṁvartā (Ma)

Ekavīra (the Solitary Hero) is perpetually active on the beautiful Mountain of Passion (anaṅgaśikhara). The deity called Saṁvartā shines in the Void of the Energies (kalākāśa).[1]

Haya (Ya)

That Horse (haya), the vehicle of force (vega), is playful (cañcala), active (capala) and fierce. This is the awakening of the Yoginīs. By remembering (him, he) removes impurity.[2]

Jvālā / Agnidhāman (Ra)

Her form is consciousness. Thus, (she is) the peak (śikhā) of the flame (śikhā) of the great fire. The burning radiance (jvālā) of the energies of the rays of the Sun, (she acts) within the Abode of Fire.[3]

Pārthiva (La)

Śiva's Void (ākāśa) (within which extend) the Earth and the other (principles), is both Śiva and Śakti. Having made (all things) one with effort, (they all) dissolve away (in their own pure) conscious nature (vijñāna).[4]

---

bhairavaṁ tatra cārūḍhaṁ kaulikānāṁ prabodhakam [k: prabodhamaṁ; g: prabodhagaṁ]
Ibid. 88cd-89ab.

[1] anaṅgaśikhare ramye ekavīraṁ [g: evambījaṁ] sadoditam ||
prakāśate [k: prakāśertha; g: prakāśerthe] kalākāśe [g: kalahakāśe] saṁvartā [g: saṁvatān] nāma devatā [g: devatām] | Ibid. 89cd-90ab.

[2] cañcalaṁ capalaṁ [g: capana] caṇḍaṁ hayaṁ taṁ [g: havana] vegavāhanaṁ [k: vegadhāmagaṁ] ||
yoginīnāṁ prabodho 'yaṁ smaraṇāt kalmaṣāpaham [k: kalmaṣo-; g: -hā] | Ibid. 90cd-91ab.

[3] cidrūpākārarūpeṇa [k: -rūpākara-] mahāvahniśikhāśikhā ||
raviraśmikalājvālā [k g: -lī] agnidhāmni [k: -dhānā; g: -dhūmā] pravartate | Ibid. 91cd-92ab.

[4] pṛthivyādiśivākāśaṁ [g: -kāsaṁ] śivaśaktyobhayātmakam [k: śaktyābhāyātmakai; g: -śaktyābhayātmakau] ||
ekīkṛtvā prayatnena layaṁ vijñānarūpataḥ [k: vidhyāma-; citsyāmarūpanaḥ] | Ibid. 92cd-93ab.

Padmayoni (Va)

Padmayoni is Śiva's bliss, the Hermitage and the lioness (keśarī) of Kula. White as the moon, snow or the jasmine flower, she is established in the End of the Sixteen.[1]

Mahāśaṁkha (Śa)

The supreme (being) (para), without beginning or end, is white like a great conch (mahāśaṅkha) or like the moon. She is the soul (jīva) of all living beings, full of energy (sakala), omnipresent and supreme.[2]

Dhūmravarti (Ṣa)

She is the Doomsday Fire (vāḍavānala), (Kuṇḍalinī) the Wick of Smoke (dhūmravarti) and the radiant energy (varcas), (immense) like the Fire of Time, whose abode is the Wheel of the Foundation.[3]

Sṛṣṭi (Sa)

She moves upwards, from mouth to mouth, in accord with the progression (krama) of the Sun and Moon. O Bhairava, endless, she, the mistress of the lord of the Nine Nāthas, is Sṛṣṭi (Emanation).[4]

Ānandabhairava (Ha)

The Void (śūnya), the Void (śūnya), the Great Void (mahāśūnya): (such is) Ānanda Bhairava who is in the calyx (in the centre of Meru). Merely by recollecting him, they attain the liberation of the Brahman.[5]

---

[1] padmayoniḥ [k: yapra-; k g: -yogini] śivānandaṁ āśramaṁ [g: āśanaṁ] kulakeśarī [k: kala-] ||
himakundendudhavalā [g: -kundandu-] ṣoḍaśānte vyavasthitā | Ibid. 93cd-94ab.

[2] mahāśaṅkhendudhavalaṁ anādinidhanaṁ [g: -nidhana] param ||
sā jīvaṁ sarvabhūtānāṁ sakalaṁ sarvagaṁ param | [k: missing]

[3] vāḍavānalarūpeyaṁ [k: -rūpo.ayaṁ] dhūmravartisvarūpinī [k: -ṇīṁ; g: -vṛttisvarūpinaṁ] ||
ādhāracakranilayaṁ [g: -cakranila] kālāgnir iva varcasaṁ | Ibid. 95cd -96ab.

[4] śaśisūryakrameṇoccaiḥ [g: śasisūryakramenoccai] saṁcarantī mukhān mukham [g: mukhā-] ||
sā sṛṣṭir bhairavānantā [k g: sṛṣṭi-] navanātheśvareśvarī | Ibid. 96cd-97ab.

[5] śūnyaṁ śūnyaṁ [g: śūnya] mahāśūnyaṁ karṇikānandabhairavam ||

Chāyāchatra (KṢa)

> She is the Command of the Kaulikas who has come down along the transmission of the Path of Meru. Śrīnātha, (the energy) sustained by Chāyāchatra (the Umbrella), has (already) been explained to you.[1]

This teaching (śāstra) is the emergence (of the goddess) from the midst of Meru. It is the (goddess) the Lionness of Kula. She (who is the goddess) of all Kaulas travels to the god of Ciñciṇī who is pure consciousness (cinmātra).

(Thus) the Command of the Skyfarer has emerged in the form of the fifty principles. Those who realise this secret are freed from the bondage of phenomenal existence.[2]

---

yasya smaritamātreṇa [g: śamarita-] mokṣaṁ [k g: mokṣa] yāsyanti [k: yāsyati] brahmanaḥ [g: vartmani] | Ibid. 97cd-98ab.

[1] sā cājñā [k: cājñāṁ] kaulikānāṁ tu merumārgakramāgatā ||
śrīnātha tava [k: bhava] ākhyātā chāyāchatra-m-adhiṣṭhitā [k: -ṣṭhatā] | Ibid. 98cd-99ab.

[2] merumadhyodayaṁ [g: -daye] nāma [k: nama] śāstro 'yaṁ kulakeśarī [k: kule-] ||
cinmātraṁ ciñcinīdevaṁ [k: ciṁciṇī-] yāti sā [k: neti] sarvakaulināṁ [k: sakaulinī] |
tattvapañcāśarūpeṇa [k: -sarūpeṇa] khecarājñā vinirgatā ||
ye [k g: yad] budhyanti rahasyedaṁ te muktā [k: nukṣā] bhavabandhanāt [g: -vadha-] |
Ibid. 99cd-101ab.

Appendix II

The Main Forms of the Kubjikā's Samayā Vidyā

The oldest form of Kubjikā's Samayā Vidyā is the one in the KMT and the ṢSS that draws from it. The version in the ŚM is almost the same.[1] In all three sources the Vidyā is presented in reverse and is divided into eight sections. In the KMT it is stated directly. In the ŚM it is extracted from a grid of letters. In the ṢSS the letters are indicated with the names of the corresponding Bhairavas that make up the Assembly of Sounds (śabdarāśi). The form in the KMT and the ṢSS is:

NAMO BHAGAVATI[2] ŚRĪKUBJIKĀYAI HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRAUṀ ṄAÑAṆANAME AGHORĀMUKHI CHĀṀ CHĪṀ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE

The following variant is found in four manuscripts of the KMT:[3]

AIṀ HASAPHREṀ HRĪṀ NAMO KUBJIKĀYAI ŚRĪ AGHORĀMUKHI ṄAÑAṆANAME HREṀ TRIŚIKHORDHVE HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRAUṀ CHĀṀ CHĪṀ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE

The form of the Vidyā in the ŚM is:

NAMO BHAGAVATE HS(KH)PHREṀ KUBJIKĀYAI HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRAUṀ ṄAÑAṆANAME AGHORĀMUKHI CHĀṀ CHĪṀ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE

Here in the KuKh the Samayā Vidyā, also called the Kaulinī Vidyā,[4] is first presented in chapter eight in thirty-two syllables. The form of the Vidyā extracted there[5] is:

BHAGAVATI GHORE HSKHPHREṀ ŚRĪKUBJIKE HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRAUṀ ṄAÑAṆANAME AGHORĀMUKHI CHRĀṀ CHRĪṀ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE

In chapter nine it is presented in sixteen syllables and in chapter ten it is in eight parts (pāda)[1] and the Vidyā there is called Aghoreśā. The YKh divides it into sixteen parts. According to the _Ṭīkā,_ Samayā Devī consists of sixteen aspects. These are the sixteen conventions (_saṁketa_) that are the sixteen limbs (_avayava_) of the goddess's body as _Prakṛti_ that pervades the entire universe.[2] In YKh (1), as in the KMT, the parts are presented in the reverse order as are the syllables in each part as follows:

---

[1] See KMT 7/21-22, ṢSS 13/21cd-41ab and ŚM 10/4cd-32.
[2] Variant: BHAGAVATE
[3] KMT 7/34ff.
[4] KuKh 9/67.
[5] KuKh 8/43-87ab.

> 'VICCE' is the first part. 'ṆIKI' is indeed the second. The third is also 'ṆIKI' while 'CHĪṀ CHĀṀ' is the fourth. Then the fifth is said to be 'KHI' and the sixth is 'MURĀ'. The seventh is called 'GHO-A' and 'MENA' is the eighth. 'ṆAÑAṄA' is said to be the ninth. 'HRAUṀ HRĪṀ' is the tenth. 'HRĀṀ ŚRĪ KEBJIKU, in the same way, is the eleventh and twelfth. * * RAKTE is the fourteenth and is said to be the fifteenth. 'TIVAGABHA' is the sixteenth. (This) is the division into parts of the Vidyā. It is acclaimed as being extracted only in the (scripture) of twenty-four thousand (verses); O god, it does not bear the fruit of liberation and worldly benefits elsewhere (in any other teaching).[3]

It appears that in this case the Vidyā in its normal forward order is:

BHAGAVATI * RAKTE ŚRĪKUBJIKE HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRŪṀ ṄAÑAṆANAME AGHORĀMUKHI CHĀṀ CHĪṀ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE

---

[1] In KuKh 9/31cd-35 and 10/11-12, respectively.

[2] _Ṭīkā_ folio 8b.

[3] _vicce [k, kh: vice] iti padaṁ pūrvaṁ ṇiki vai ca [ṅ: *] dvitīyakam_ ||
tṛtīyaṁ caiva ṇiki ca [kh: ?; ṅ: va] chīṁ [k. gh, ṅ: chāṁ; kh: ?] chāṁ [k, gh, ṅ: chīṁ; kh: ?] caiva [kh: ?] caturthakam [kh: ?] |
tathā [k, gh: chaṁ; kh: ?; ṅ: chuṁṣi] khīti [k, gh: khiti; kh: ?; ṅ: * ti] pañcamaṁ [kh: ?] proktaṁ [kh: ?] murā [k, kh, gh: svarā; ṅ: surā] iti ca [k, kh, gh: va] ṣaṣṭhamaṁ [k, kh, gh, ṅ: ṣaṣṭamaṁ] ||
saptamaṁ [k, kh, gh: -ma] gho - asaṁjñā [gh: rasajñā; ṅ: gho - asaṁjñe] tu [k, kh, gh, ṅ: ti] mena [k, kh, gh, ṅ: mana] ceti tathāṣṭamam |
ṇañaṅa [k, gh: najeti; kh: ṇajeti; ṅ: gajeti] navamaṁ proktaṁ hrauṁ [k, kh, gh: ha; ṅ: u] hrīṁ [k, kh, gh: hrau; ṅ: hau] caiva dvipañcakam [k, kh, gh: dhipaṁcakaṁ] ||
hrāṁ [k: hrā] śrī [k, kh, gh: hrīṁ] kebjiku [kh, gh: kaṁkṣika; kh: ?] tadvad dvau [k: cadvad dhau. kh: ?; gh: cadva dvau] ekādaśaṁ ca dvādaśam [kh, gh: * dṛśaḥ; kh: ?] | _[This and next two lines are missing in MS ṅ]_
* * avadanaṁ [kh: ?] proktaṁ [kh: ?] rakte [kh: ?; gh: raktaṁ] caiva caturdaśam [k, kh, gh: caturthakam] ||
tripañcadaśamaṁ proktaṁ tivagabha [k, kh, gh: garbheteti] dviraṣṭakam |
padabhedaṁ [ṅ: -das] tu vidyāyāḥ [k, kh, gh, ṅ: -yā] caturviṁśasahasrake ||
kīrtitaṁ [gh: kīrti *] ca na [gh: naṁ] cānyatra bhuktimuktiphalapradam [k, gh: -da] | _[kh: ?]_
YKh (1) 17/3cd-8ab.

We are told that this is the form of the Vidyā in the Tantra `consisting of twenty-four thousand verses', that is, the Manthānabhairavatantra. It may indeed be taken to be the basic form of the Samayā Vidyā throughout the MBT, although when applied it is modified in several ways as we shall see. Thus the form of the Root Vidyā taught in the SKh is very similar. Without the Five Praṇavas at the beginning and end, it is:

AMBE BHAGAVATI HSKHPHREṀ ŚRĪKUBJIKE HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRŪṀ ṄAÑAṆANAME AGHORĀMUKHI CHĀṀ CHĀṀ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE

Other, less common versions are found. One variant is in the Kulamūlaratnapañcakāvatāra.[1] There it is called Ādividyā – the First Vidyā – or Vidyārājñī – the Queen of Vidyās:

NAMO BHAGAVATI HSPHRAUṀ SHŚRAIṀ KUBJIKE HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRŪṀ ṄAÑAṆANAME AGHORĀMUKHI CHĀṀ CHĪṀ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE |

Another form is found in a Newar liturgy:[2]

NAMO BHAGAVATI HSKHPHREṀ KUBJIKĀYAI HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRŪṀ GHORE AGHORE AGHORĀMUKHI CCHĀṀ CCHĪṀ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE

The change from ṄAÑAṆANAME to GHORE AGHORE[3] may simply be because the original form is hard to pronounce. This is not always done. For example, in the following version of the Vidyā found in another Newar liturgy, the Dhvajārohaṇavarṣavardhanavidhi, we find:[4]

NAMO BHAGAVATI HSKHPHREṀ KUBJIKĀYAI SHRĀṀ SHRĪṀ SHRŪṀ ṄAÑAṆANAME AGHORĀMUKHĪ CCHĀṀ CCHĪṀ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE

It is probable that a study of the Newar liturgies will reveal a good number of other versions, as we find in the original sources. The Ṭīkā calls the Vidyā Śrīsamayādevī in one place and Samayakubjī in another.[5] When the Five Praṇavas are added to the begining and end of it, the Ṭīkā says it is called the Kaulikā or Kaula Vidyā. This version of the Samayā Vidyā without the Praṇavas is: [6]

---

[1] KMRP 6/14 ff. See Goudriaan 1986: 148 with reference to Heilijgers – Seelen 1983.

[2] Aṣṭamātṛkāpūjā fl. 18a.

[3] Cf. the ending of the versions in our text is: ṄAÑAṆANAME AGHORĀMUKHI CCHRĀṀ CCHRĪṀ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE

[4] Dhvajārohaṇavarṣavardhanavidhi fl. 39b.

[5] Ṭīkā MS K fl. 5b, ibid. fl 17b.

[6] Ṭ MS K fl. 6a, 7a, 176a the extended 42 syllable version is in fl. 53b.

BHAGAVATI AMBE HSKHPHREṀ ŚRĪṀ (SHKHPHRĪṀ) KUBJIKE HSRĀṀ HSRĪṀ HSRAUṀ ṄA ÑA ṆA NA ME AGHORĀMUKHI CCHRĀṀ CCHRĪṀ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE

We notice that there are two basic versions of the Vidyā, one that begins with 'namo' and the other that omits it and begins directly with 'bhagavati'. Out of the ten versions noted above, four are of the second type. Along with the one in the Ṭīkā, three of them are from the MBT. The redactors of the MBT were, it seems, aware that these two basic versions exist. Thus the MBT boasts that it is free of the 'Tantric practice' of adding Vedic syllables (technically called the jātis) to mantras, including 'namaḥ'.[1] Thus all the rest, amongst which is the version in the KMT (!), are 'Tantric'— not Kaula.

The invocation 'bhagavati' is found in all versions, except the variant in the MSs of the KMT, which we can ignore. I suppose the form 'bhagavate' found in the ŚM is just a mistake of the correct form of the vocative – 'bhagavati' – which is found in all the other versions. Some MSs of the KMT contain the same scribal error. An analogous error sometimes takes place with the vocative 'aghorāmukhi', which in some instances is replaced with 'aghorāmukhe'. This happens in the the Ṭīkā[2] where the Samayā Vidyā – there called Samayakubjī – figures as the Piṇḍavidyā. It is repeated again in the two permutations of the same, namely, the Piṇḍapādavidyā, called Siddhakubjī and the Piṇḍarūpavidyā called Vajrakubjī.

The following invocation in the version here, namely GHORE, has a parallel only in the Ṭīkā's version where it is replaced by AMBE.[3] This is followed in all versions except the one in the KMT and ṢSS with the Vidyā's seed-syllable, HSKHPHREṀ, which is discussed extensively in chapter nine of our text. It seems therefore that this syllable, although it became very important subsequently, was unknown in the beginning of the tradition. We notice that the version in the KRU, which is anomolous in many respects, contains the syllable KHPHREṀ instead of HSKHPHREṀ. The former is well known to other traditions. It is an important seed-syllable for both the Kālīkrama and the Kashmiri Trika; there it called Piṇḍanātha – the Lord of Syllabic Mantras.[4] The latter may be considered to be a version of the former that developed specifically in the Kubjikā Tantras. KHPHREṀ, it seems, was the first form in which it appeared in the Kubjikā tradition. Thus, the presence of the 'completed' form in the version of the Vidyā in the ŚM may indicate that it postdates the KRU.

---

[1] See KuKh chapter 4, note 15.

[2] Ṭīkā fl. 17b.

[3] Note, by the way, that amba would be correct Sanskrit.

[4] See TĀ 4/189cd-191ab and commentary.

Next we notice the honorific 'śrī' is prefixed to the goddess's name in most versions, beginning with the one in the KMT. It is replaced by HSKHPHREṀ in the ŚM (it is otherwise the same as the version in the KMT) and SHŚRAIṀ in the KMRP. By the small addition of the nasalizing anusvāra it becomes ŚRĪṀ, the seed-syllable of Lakṣmī, in the version recorded in the Ṭīkā. This then undergoes another change. According to the Ṭīkā,[1] the syllable HSKHPHREṀ is 'fixed' (kīlita) by the syllable ŚRĪṀ. The `fixing' of a seed-syllable stabilizes it and the mantra along with it. This makes them both `firm'. Although this is desireable insofar as it preserves the energy of the mantra, it also confines it within it. The 'fixing' of a mantra or a part thereof 'locks' it, preventing access to it by those who are not qualified to practice it. This procedure, which in actual fact seems to serve no great purpose insofar as the mantra should anyway be recited in its 'unlocked' form, is probably the result of historical circumstances. A myth recounts that a mantra kept sealed in this way was taught to demons who, believing it to be the true 'unlocked' mantra, used it only to discover that it caused harm to themselves.[2] In this case, it is possible that the change from ŚRĪ to ŚRĪṀ was a mistake that someone made when attempting to 'steal' the mantra, which has been remedied by the ploy that ŚRĪṀ serves to 'lock' it. It is more likely, or certainly just as true, that such explanations serve to account for changes and additions made to a mantra that take place in the course of the development of the tradition to which it belongs.

Whatever be the case, this initial modification acts as a bridge to another change which serves to 'unlock' the mantra. According to the Ṭīkā, the seed-syllable HSKHPHREṀ which precedes ŚRĪṀ – and is 'locked' by it – is Śiva, whereas the latter is Śakti. But in this condition they are separated and the power of their union is lost. This situation is remedied by replacing it with a feminine form of the preceding syllable. This is SHKHPHRĪṀ. The letters H and S at the beginning of the 'male' version represent Śiva and Śakti, respectively. In the female version their position is reversed so that the 'female' S now assumes the dominant first position. Again, the ending RĪṀ of the 'female' syllable ŚRĪṀ replaces the ending REṀ of the 'male' HSKHPHREṀ and so it we have the 'female' version SHKHPHRĪṀ.

The goddess's name that follows is either a vocative or dative which is the original form. The change to the vocative serves, essentially, to save a syllable, to allow for additions, as does the removal of the honorific 'śrī' that precedes it. Another important change that has taken place in the Ṭīkā's version of the Vidyā serves to energize it further. This is the insertion of S in the following three syllables representing Brahmā, Viṣṇu and Maheśvara (also called Rudra), namely

---

[1] Ṭīkā MS K fl 7a.

[2] See ŚM 12/1 ff. with reference to Aghora mantra.

HRĀṀ > HSRĀṀ, HRĪṀ > HSRĪṀ and HRAUṀ > HSRAUṀ. In this way the letter H representing Śiva is conjoined to S representing Śakti. Thus the seed-syllable gains the extra energy generated by their union. This change is not common. In our selection, it is found in only in the version in Dhvajārohaṇavarṣavardhanavidhi, although there the letter S is added to the beginning of the syllables. Another change is also found in the version of the Vidyā presented here in the KuKh. This is the addition of the fiery letter R to energize (uddīpana) the two syllables said to represent the Sun and Moon, namely, CHĀṀ > CHRĀṀ and CHĪṀ > CHRĪṀ.

Finally we notice that the third of the three syllables has two forms. In some versions it is HRAUṀ in others it is HRŪṀ. The former is the one found in the KMT and so we may assume that that is the original form. The latter probably developed simply to be consistent with the previous two syllables – HRĀṀ HRĪṀ.

Having briefly examined variations in the form of the root Samayā Vidyā, we turn to a brief survey of its varieties. These arise primarily in accord with the varieties of the Krama. We have seen that there are three Kramas or Lineages, namely those of the Child, the Youth and the Eldest. Again, each of these contains the three Kramas and each of these three again. Thus each Krama contains nine Kramas each with its own variety of the root Vidyā. Theoretically, there are twenty-seven sub-Kramas, but in actual practice only nine are presented in the Ṭīkā and the Siddhakhaṇḍa. These the Ṭīkā identifies as belonging to the Krama of the Child, which is the Krama of this Age of Strife. The form of the Vidyā in the Ṭīkā noted above is that of the Krama of the Eldest in the Eldest of the Child. This is the basic form in the Ṭīkā. Accordingly, when the 'Pūrṇimābheda' – the Division of the Full Moon – is described, we are told that it is the goddess Samayā consisting of thirty-two syllables. The 'bheda' is the manner in which it is divided up into the six limbs and six faces.[1] Thus the form noted above is what the SKh would refer to as the Root Vidyā. When applied independently, that is, when it is not a part of the Krama, this is the form. But note that the term 'root Vidyā' is applied to each one of the permutations in relation to its own Krama. Thus the above form, in this, the expanded Krama worshipped in the three lineages, would be the root Vidyā of just that Krama. The following eight are the root Vidyās of the remaing eight sub-lineages of the lineage of the Child according to the Ṭīkā.[2]

2) Eldest – Middle:

---

[1] Ṭ MS K end of fl. 56a to 56b.

[2] Ṭīkā MS K fl. 58a, 59a, 60b, 63b, 64a, 64b.

AIṀ HRĪṀ ŚRĪṀ KHPHREṀ HSPHRAUṀ BHAGAVATI NITYE HSKHPHRAIṀ SHKHPHRĪṀ AMOGHE HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRŪṀ CALAMAKULE AGHORĀMUKHE CCHĀṀ CCHĪṀ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE HSPHAUṀ KHPHREṀ ŚRĪṀ HRĪṀ AIṀ

3) Eldest – Child:

AIṀ HRĪṀ ŚRĪṀ KHPHREṀ HSPHAUṀ BHAGAVATI KUBJIKE HSKHPHREṀ SHKHPHRĪṀ VARADE HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRŪṀ MAHĀKAULINI AGHORĀMUKHE JCCHRṀ JCCHRĪṀ JCCHRŪṀ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE HSPHAUṀ KHPHREṀ ŚRĪṀ HRĪṀ AIṀ

4) Middle – Eldest:

AIṀ HRĪṀ ŚRĪṀ KHPHREṀ HSPHRAUṀ BHAGAVATI SIDDHE HSKHPHREṀ SHKHPHRĪṀ KUBJIKE HSRĀṀ HSRĪṀ HSRŪṀ ṄAÑAṆANAME AGHORĀMUKHE CCHRĀṀ CCHRĪṀ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE HSPHRAUṀ KHPHREṀ ŚRĪṀ HRĪṀ AIṀ

5) Middle – Middle:

BHAGAVATI VICCE HSKHPHREṀ SHKHPHRĪṀ AJITE HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRŪṀ SIṀHĀVALOKITE AGHORĀMUKHE CCHRĀṀ CCHRĪṀ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE

6) Middle – Child:

BHAGAVATI KULE HSKHPHREṀ SHKHPHRĪṀ RALAJITE HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRŪṀ KILI KILI KIḤ AGHORĀMUKHE JCCHRĀṀ HCCHRĪṀ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE

7) Child – Eldest:

BHAGAVATI GHORE HSKHPHREṀ SHKHPHRĪṀ KUBJIKE HSRĀṀ HSRĪṀ HSRŪṀ ṄAÑAṆANAME AGHORĀMUKHE CCHRĀṀ CHRĪṀ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE

8) Child – Middle:

BHAGAVATI KAULE HSKHPHREṀ SHKHPHRĪṀ MĀLINI HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRŪṀ LALAKAMALE AGHORĀMUKHE CCHĀṀ CCHĪṀ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE

9) Child – Child:

BHAGAVATI KHAÑJE HSKHPHREṀ SHKHPHRĪṀ HRĪṀ KUJE HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRŪṀ MĀTṚSAMAYE AGHORĀMUKHE JCCHRĀṀ JCCHRĪṀ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE

Another context in which permutations of the Vidyā are generated is in relation to the thirty-two energies of the syllables of the Vidyā. These are worshipped as Yoginīs or goddesses who form part of the body of the goddess and are in attendence on her.[1] The YKh (1) presents a series of thirty-two variant forms of this Vidyā, each of which has a specific function. There we read:

> The Vidyā consists of thirty-two sacred seats. The Yoginīs, O lord of the gods, of (these) sacred seats are present in the gatherings in the sacred seats, sacred fields, primary and secondary, the meeting grounds (sandoha), the cremation ground, the circle of mothers, at a crossroads, a solitary tree, and at the confluence of rivers. (Again they are present) in the magical acts of control, expulsion, paralysis, enmity and murder. (They are present) in a great battle, calamity, nightmare, evil omen, and great fear.
>
> I will tell you, one by one, about the the Vidyā that is appropriate for the common initiate, adept, apprentice and teacher. I will tell you about that Vidyā in accord with place, time and location. Conjoined with letters and seed-syllables, it is rich with the Peak syllable and the Praṇavas. Authority is established (the Vidyā) which has authority over (all) mantras and mudrās. Without that they have none.[2]

---

[1] See KuKh 11/11-16ab.

[2] *vidyā dvātriṁśatpīṭhā yat pīṭhānāṁ [ṅ: pīṭhamela] pīṭhamelake [gh: -līke; ṅ: ko * * * ] ||
kṣetropakṣetrasandohe [kh: -sadohe; ṅ: -ha] smaśāne mātṛmaṇḍale |
catvāre [k, kh: -ra; gh: -raṁ; ṅ: carvare] caikavṛkṣe vā nadīsaṁgamavihvale ||
vaśyoccāṭanastambhe [k, kh, gh: vasyo-] vā vidveṣe [ṅ: + pi] māraṇe ‘pi vā | *mahāhave ‘tha [ṅ: -veṣa] cotpāte [ṅ: vo * te] duḥsvapne [k, kh, gh: iśvapane; ṅ: -svapnen] durnimittake [ṅ: tunimittake]* ||
mahābhaye ‘tha [k, gh: -yatha; ṅ: -bhaye atha] deveśa yoginyā yāś ca vai sthitāḥ | [gh: + yāś ca vai sthitāḥ |]
yāḥ [k, kh, gh: yā] sthitāḥ [k, kh, gh: sthitā] samaye [k, kh, gh, ṅ: samaya] putre [k, kh, gh, ṅ: + vā] sādhake deśike ‘pi vā ||
*tāsāṁ yogyātha [ṅ: yogyā ca] yā vidyā kathayāmi [kh: katha * mi] pṛthak pṛthak* |
[ṅ: + śatra] deśe [ṅ: yosthā + ne ca] kāle ca sthāne [ṅ: missing] ca [ṅ: missing] tāṁ vidyāṁ [k, kh, gh, ṅ: sā vidyā] kathayāmy aham ||
varṇabījasamāyogāt [k, kh, gh, ṅ: -yogā] kūṭapraṇavasampadā [k, kh: kṣūṭapraṇavatatpadā; gh: kṣaṭapraṇavatatpadā; ṅ: ṣaṭpraṇavatatpadā] |
mātrāmudrādhikāriṇyā [ṅ: mātāmudrādhi-] adhikāraṁ vinā ca [ṅ: va] ye [k, kh, gh: yo; ṅ: yet] ||
YKh (1) 21/12cd-17.

I will explain (the Vidyā) that is present in the Wheel in which the equal union (of all the Yoginīs and Siddhas takes place) that brings about the accomplishment of worldly benefits and liberation. It is (used) in the course of accomplished practice (siddhasādhana) to prevent untimely death. It is should be worshipped when natural calamities take place in order to generate the (grace of the) Command. In order to generate the bliss of the Self I will explain it, (in its form both) auspicious and inauspicious (that is, its magical aspects). I will explain the Vidyā also to those who, (even though) they are not empowered in (the three transmissions) of the Aged, the Youth and the Child, are intent on the location and visualized form (of the Vidyā).

(One should imagine the Vidyā to be of the following colours according to the magical works one wants to perform by means of it). Yellow for paralysis, white for liberation, light red for control (over others), black for murder, and smoky (grey) for expulsion. For peace or nourishment (one should imagine the Vidyā to be white) like milk and nectar. One should visualize the Kaulikī Vidyā consisting of thirty-two syllables to be the form of the Moon if one desires wealth (dravya) and like the Sun in order to obtain the Command.[1]

The Thirty-two Forms of the Vidyā

After introducing the Vidyā in this way, the text continues with 'the sūtra of the venerable Dvātriṁśadvātriṁśīkā', in which the thirty-two forms of the thirty-two syllable Vidyā are presented in full. The KRU calls the Vidyā the goddess Dvātriṁśikā 'who is the Supreme Goddess Kubjikā'.[1] It is presented in the forward order divided into eight parts. It is:

---

[1] yāṁ [k, kh, gh, ṅ: yā] cakre samamelāpe [k: -paṁ; ṅ: samayāmelāye] bhuktimuktiprasādhane [k, kh, gh: -te] |
siddhasādhanakāle [ṅ: siddhi-] tu apamṛtyuvidāraṇe [kh: -ṇo] ||
nityutpāteṣu vā pūjāṁ ājñā-m-udayahetave |
ātmanaḥ [ṅ: ātmānaḥ] sukhasṛṣṭyarthe [k, gh: -sṛśyarthye; kh: -sṛśyarthai; ṅ: -sukhyārthe] pravadāmi śubhāśubham [k, kh, gh: subhā-] ||
*vṛddhakaumārabāle [k, kh: vṛddhako-; gh: vṛddhakomāra * le] vā adhikāraṁ vinā ca ye* |
sthānadhyānasamāyuktāṁ [k, kh, gh, ṅ: -yuktā] te 'pi vidyāṁ [k, kh, gh: vidyā] bravīmy aham ||
pītā [ṅ: pīcā] stambhe [k, kh, gh: stebhe] sitā mokṣe āraktā vaśyakarmaṇi [k, kh, gh: vasyakarmaṇa] |
māraṇe kṛṣṇavarṇā [ṅ: -varṇet] ca [ṅ: tha] uccāṭe [k, kh: ucāṭe] dhūmravarṇakā ||
śāntike pauṣṭike [ṅ: paustike] vāpi kṣīrāmṛtasamaprabhā [k, kh, gh: -prabho; ṅ: -bhāṁ] |
dravyārthe candramākārā ājñārthe sūryasannibhā [k, kh: -saṁtibhāḥ; ṅ: -bhāṁ] ||
*dhyāyeta kaulikīṁ [k, kh, gh: kaulikī] vidyāṁ [k, kh, gh: -vidyā] dvātriṁśākṣaravigrahām [kh: * triṁśā-]* | YKh (1) 21/18-23ab.

AIṀ NAMO BHAGAVATYAI KHPHREṀ AIṀ CĀMUṆḌE HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRŪṀ PHREṀ AGHORE GHORĀMUKHI CCHĀṀ CCHĪṀ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE AIṀ

We notice that in the following permutations of the Vidyā, the goddess is commonly referred to as Kubjikā, Bhagavatī or Aghorāmukhī, and sometimes as Ghorā, Aghorā or even Aghoreśvarī. But in these permutations she is most commonly called Cāmuṇḍā, just as she is in the unusual variant of the Vidyā in the KRU, although Kubjikā is very rarely identified with Cāmuṇḍā. Another feature of these permutations is that they are filled out with extra seed-syllables in accord with the general principle that they make mantras more effective. As usual all the mantras begin with the Five Praṇavas. They are indicated by the standard abbreviation AIṀ 5.

AIṀ 5 AIṀ NAMAŚ CĀMUṆḌE BHAGAVATI KUBJIKĀVVE HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRAUṀ AGHORE GHORĀMUKHI CHĀṀ CHĪṀ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE AIṀ || 1 ||

AIṀ 5 AIṀ HRĪṀ ŚRĪṀ KUBJIKĀVVE HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HSKHPHREṀ AGHORĀMUKHI NAMAŚ CĀMUṆḌE HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRAUṀ (K: HRUṀ) KIṆI KIṆI VICCE HŪṀ KRĀṀ PHAṬ || 2 ||

AIṀ 5 AIṀ PHREṀ NAMO MAHĀCAṆḌE (K: MAHĀCAṀDRA) NĀŚANI ŚRĪKUBJIKĀVVE CHĀṀ CHĪṀ CHŪṀ HŪṀ PHREṀ AGHOREŚVARI KIṆI KIṆI VICCE || 3 ||

AIṀ 5 AIṀ NAMO BHAGAVATI HSKHPHREṀ HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRAUṀ (K: HRŪṀ) ṄAÑAṆANAME AGHORĀMUKHI CHĀṀ CHĪṀ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE || 4 ||

AIṀ 5 AIṀ NAMAŚ CĀMUṆḌE KARAṄKAMĀLĀDHARE HSPHREṀ PHAṬ KIṆI KIṆI AGHORĀMUKHI KULEŚVARI HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRAUṀ (K: HŪṀ) || 5 ||

---

[1] KRU 10/107cd-109.

AIṀ 5 AIṀ HRĪṀ ŚRĪṀ CĀMUṆḌE KROṀ NINI (?) HRĪṀ ŚRĪṀ KUBJIKĀVVE HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRAUṀ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE PHREṀ PHREṀ PHREṀ HUṀ PHAṬ PHAṬ || 6 ||

AIṀ 5 AIṀ NAMO BHAGAVATI KṚṢṆE (K: KṚṢṆA) KARĀLI (K: KARĀṆI) SAUBHĀGYAPRADE HRĪṀ HRAṀ HRAḤ KIṆI KIṆI HRAUṀ HRĀṀ HRAḤ VICCE HRĪṀ PHAṬ || 7 ||

AIṀ 5 AIṀ KROṀ NAMO BHAGAVATI GHORE GHORAPRIYE ŚRĪKUBJIKĀVVE HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRAUṀ (K: HRŪṀ) CHĀṀ CHĪṀ KIṆI KIṆI JĀṀ JĪṀ PHAṬ || 8 ||

AIṀ 5 AIṀ HRAṀ HRĀṀ HRAḤ HRĪṀ ŚRĪṀ KUBJIKĀVVE (K: -KĀYAI) KARAṄKADHĀRIṆI VIŚVASAṀHĀRIṆI CHĀṀ CHĪṀ CHŪṀ KIṆI (K: KAṬU) KIṆI VICCE || 9 ||

AIṀ 5 AIṀ NAMAŚ CĀMUṆḌE BHAGAVATI AGHORĀMUKHI CHĀṀ CHĪṀ HRĪṀ ŚRĪṀ HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRŪṀ PHAṬ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE || 10 ||

AIṀ 5 AIṀ HRĪṀ ŚRĪṀ BHAGAVATI KUBJIKĀVVE HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRŪṀ NĀṬEŚVARI CHĀṀ CHĪṀ CHŪṀ PHAṬ KIṆI KIṆI HŪṀ PHAṬ HRĪṀ PHAṬ || 11 ||

AIṀ 5 AIṀ HRĪṀ ŚRĪṀ PHREṀ (K: PHEṀ) NAMAŚ CĀMUṆḌE KIṆI KIṆI BLŪṀ KLĪṀ KLĪṀ KROṀ PHREṀ PHAṬ HRAUṀ HRAḤ KIṆI KIṆI KROṀ VICCE HŪṀ PHAṬ || 12 ||

AIṀ 5 AIṀ ŚRĪṀ HŪṀ NAMAŚ CĀMUṆḌE YOGEŚVARI HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRŪṀ PHAṬ AGHORĀMUKHI CHĀṀ CHĪṀ CHŪṀ VICCE HŪṀ PHAṬ || 13 ||

AIṀ 5 AIṀ PHREṀ HRĪṀ HRŪṀ ŚRĪṀ NAMAŚ CĀMUṆḌE HRĪṀ ŚRĪṀ KUBJIKĀVVE (K: -KĀRTHE) HRAUṀ HRAṀ HRAḤ AGHORE GHORATARE CHĀṀ CHĪṀ CHŪṀ VICCE HŪṀ || 14 ||

AIṀ 5 AIṀ PHREṀ PHREṀ HRŪṀ HRŪṀ HRĀṀ NAMAŚ CĀMUṆḌE BHAGAVATI KUBJIKE KIṆI KIṆI BLŪṀ VICCE HŪṀ PHAṬ || 15 ||

AIṀ 5 AIṀ NAMAŚ CĀMUṆḌE HRŪṀ (K: UṀ) KLĪṀ KLĪṀ HRŪṀ HREṀ (K: HSEṀ) HRAIṀ (K: HSAIṀ) PHAṬ RETAṀ MUÑCA MUÑCA

HSKHPHREṀ (K: HSKHPHROṀ) CHĀṀ CHĪṀ CHŪṀ PHAṬ VICCE HRAUṀ ǁ 16 ǁ

AIṀ 5 AIṀ NAMO BHAGAVATI ŚRĪKUBJIKĀVVE AGHORE GHORAVARADE CHĀṀ CHĪṀ CHŪṀ PHREṀ PHAṬ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE PHAṬ ǁ 17 ǁ

AIṀ 5 AIṀ NAMAŚ CĀMUṆḌE VICCE PHREṀ HRŪṀ HRAUṀ HRAḤ BHAGAVATI KUBJIKĀVVE CHĀṀ CHĪṀ CHŪṀ PHAṬ PHAṬ ǁ 18 ǁ

AIṀ 5 AIṀ PHAṬ NAMAŚ CĀMUṆḌE BHAGAVATI KIṆI KIṆI PHREṀ HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRŪṀ PHAṬ BLĀṀ BLĪṀ BLUṀ KLĪṀ KLUṀ KLAḤ AGHORE AGHORE HRAUṀ HRAUṀ PHAṬ VICCE HŪṀ PHAṬ ǁ 19 ǁ

AIṀ 5 AIṀ KROṀ HRĪṀ PHAṬ NAMAŚ CĀMUṆḌE ŚRĪKUBJIKĀVVE PHREṀ PHAṬ AGHORE AGHORĀMUKHI (K: GHORAMUKHE) KIṆI KIṆI VICCE ǁ 20 ǁ

AIṀ 5 AIṀ HRĪṀ ŚRĪṀ HRŪṀ PHREṀ (K: PHEṀ) NAMAŚ CĀMUṆḌE BHAGAVATI ŚRĪKUBJIKĀVVE HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HROṀ KIṆI KIṆI PHREṀ HRĪṀ HRĪṀ PHAṬ VICCE ǁ 21 ǁ

AIṀ 5 AIṀ HSKHPHREṀ ŚRĪṀ (K: ŚRĪ) HRŪṀ HRAUṀ AGHORE GHORIṆI AGHORĀMUKHI (K: GHORAMUKHA) HRŪṀ HRĪṀ HRĀṀ BLŪṀ VYOMAVATI HRĪṀ PHAṬ VICCE HŪṀ PHAṬ ǁ 22 ǁ

AIṀ 5 AIṀ NAMO BHAGAVATI HSPHREṀ ŚRĪKUBJIKĀVVE HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRŪṀ ṄAÑAṆANAME HRAUṀ HRAUṀ HRAḤ AGHORĀMUKHI CHĀṀ CHĪṀ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE ǁ 23 ǁ

AIṀ 5 AIṀ HRĀṀ PHAṬ HRĀṀ HRĪṀ CHĪṀ PHAṬ BHAGAVATI GHORI KARĀLI CHĀṀ (K: CEHAṀ) PHREṀ HRŪṀ PHAṬ ǁ 24 ǁ

AIṀ 5 AIṀ NAMO BHAGAVATI KUBJIKĀVVE HRĪṀ HRŪṀ PHAṬ KLĪṀ KLAUṀ PHAṬ BLUṀ BLUṀ PHAṬ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE KRAUṀ PHAṬ PHREṀ (K: PHEṀ) HRŪṀ PHREṀ PHAṬ ǁ 25 ǁ

AIṀ 5 AIṀ NAMO VIŚVASAṀHĀRIṆI HŪṀ PHAṬ MĀRAṆI MĀRAṆI VICCE HRĀṀ ĀṀ PHAṬ HRĪṀ PHAṬ HRĪṀ CHRĪṀ CHRĪṀ PHAṬ BHAGAVATI GHORI KARĀLI HRĪṀ HRŪṀ ǁ 26 ǁ

AIṀ 5 AIṀ NAMAŚ CĀMUṆḌE DĪRGHAGHAṆṬE PĀPĀŚANI HRĪṀ MĀRAYA MĀRAYA HRAṀ PHAṬ VICCE CHĀṀ CHĪṀ CHŪṀ PHREṀ PHREṀ PHAṬ PHAṬ JAYA JAYA HRŪṀ || 27 ||

AIṀ 5 AIṀ KLĪṀ (K: KHĪṀ) PHREṀ HRŪṀ PHAṬ BHAGAVATI GHORĀMUKHI NAMAŚ CĀMUṆḌE KRODHANI HRŪṀ PHAṬ HRĪṀ HRĪṀ HRAḤ PHAṬ BHAGAVATI GHOREŚVARI HŪṀ PHAṬ VICCE || 28 ||

AIṀ 5 AIṀ ŚRĪṀ (K: ŚRĪ) PHREṀ BHAGAVATI KUBJIKĀVVE BHAGAVATI GHOREŚVARI CHĀṀ CHĪṀ KIṆI KIṆI HŪṀ PHAṬ VICCE || 29 ||

AIṀ 5 AIṀ NAMAŚ CĀMUṆḌE BHAIRAVI VIKARĀLINI KROṀ JÑAḤ (?) CHĀṀ CHĪṀ CHŪṀ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE HRŪṀ PHAṬ || 30 ||

AIṀ 5 AIṀ HSKHPHREṀ PHAṬ JAYA JAYA AMOGHEŚVARI PARAMAHAṀSINI VICCE HRŪṀ HRĀṀ (K: HVĀṀ) HRĪṀ (K: HVĪṀ) PHAṬ HRĪṀ HRĪṀ PHAṬ || 31 ||

AIṀ 5 AIṀ NAMAḤ KLEDANI KLINNE MADADRAVE HRĪṀ (K: HVĪṀ) KUBJIKE HRĀṀ CHRĪṀ KLĪṀ HŪṀ ŚUKRADRĀVAṆI ŚUKRADRĀVAṆI PHREṀ HRĪṀ KLĪṀ KLĪṀ ĀṀ HŪṀ || 32 ||

The sūtra concludes with a list of the benefits of each of the thirty-two forms of the Vidyā:

> Now I shall explain. That Vidyā which is (applied to a particular) task (karman) gives success (if it is) repeated (in its proper) place, in due order. 1) The first (form of the Vidyā) gives liberation. 2) The second gives worldly benefits. 3) The third gives accomplishments (siddhi). 4) The fourth one (gives) fame. 5) The fifth is said to be (the Vidyā) that kills (one's enemy). 6) The sixth makes one victorious. 7) The seventh gives long life. 8) The eighth destroys anything. 9) The ninth is accomplished by the Yoginīs. 10) The tenth is considered to be for expulsion. 11) The eleventh is said to be for paralysis (stambhana). 12) The twelfth is considered to be for obstruction (stobhana). 13) The thirteenth, which is very powerful, gives accomplishments (siddhi) in the cremation ground. 14) The fourteenth (is used) in battle. 15) The fifteenth in the same way (is used) on a journey. 16) The sixteenth Vidyā increases the vital energy (tejas). 17) In the same way, O god, the seventeenth causes obstacles in the (practice of the) Great Rule (mahāsamaya) (for those who harm it). 18) The eighteenth (is used) to block an army. 19) The nineteenth gives fulfilment (puṣṭi). 20) The twentieth is said to give peace. 21) The twenty-first fulfills desires. 22) The twenty-second one removes bondage. 23) The twenty-third is (used) to arouse (and disturb) (kṣobhaṇa). 24) The auspicious twenty-fourth (Vidyā) increases the vital force (tejas). 25) The twenty-fifth is none other than Bhairaveśī who (is used) to cause delusion. 26) The auspicious twenty-sixth (Vidyā) disturbs living beings. 27) The twenty-seventh bestows a kingdom. 28) The twenty-eighth arouses (women). 29) The twenty-ninth gives victory in the sacred fields and seats. 30) The thirtieth Vidyā is auspicious in the secondary seats and fields, meeting grounds (saṁdoha), gatherings of the Rule, the inner secret gatherings (cakra). 31) The thirty-first, O god, that paralyses is prescribed for battle. 32) The thirty-second great Vidyā is the great bali offering of the world. Thus they perform functions of thirty-two types and not otherwise.[1]

---

[1] ataḥ paraṁ pravakṣyāmi yā vidyā yatra [k, kh, gh: yatta] karmaṇi |
sā vidyā tatra siddhidā [k, kh, gh: hasadā; ṅ: phaladā] sthānasthā japitā kramāt ||
prathamā [k, kh, gh: prāmukhā; ṅ: yugmakhā] muktidā vidyā dvitīyā bhuktidāyinī | *tṛtīyā siddhidātārī [kh: siddhi * tārī; ṅ: siddhitādārī] prasiddhiś ca caturthikā* ||
māraṇī [ṅ: -ṇe] pañcamī [kh: pacamī] khyātā ṣaṣṭī vijayakāriṇī |
*saptamī āyudātārī [k, kh, gh: āyutārī ] saṁhārījagad aṣṭamī [k, kh, gh: saṁhāja-] ||
navamī yoginīsiddhā dvipañcoccāṭane [k, kh: dvipaṁccāṭane; gh: dvipaṁcā-; ṅ: dvaiparoccāṭane] matā [ṅ: manā] |
daśaikā stambhane [ṅ: ṣṭaṁbhane] proktā stobhane [ṅ: śobhane] dvādaśī matā ||
śmaśāne [k, kh, gh, ṅ: smaśāne] siddhidā caiva trayodaśī mahābalā |
caturdaśī tu saṁgrāme [k, kh, gh: śaṁgrāme] tripañcā ca tathā pathe ||
dviraṣṭakā tu yā vidyā tejovṛddhikarī [sarve: teja-] smṛtā |
*mahāsamaye [ṅ: -ya] tathā deva vighnadā [ṅ: visvadā *] daśasaptakā [ṅ: * tuśma?dhikā]* ||
aṣṭādaśā sainyastambhe puṣṭidaikonaviṁśamī [k, kh, gh:puṣṭide-; ṅ: puṣṭidekonaviṁśati] |
viṁśamī śāntidā proktā kāmadā caikaviṁśamī [k, kh: vai-; gh: -viśamī; ṅ: caivaviṁ-] ||
*dvāviṁśī [k: -triṁśatya; kh: -viṁśartya; gh: dvāviṁśatya; ṅ: dvātriṁśatyā] pāśasaṁhārī [k, kh, gh: paśaṁhārī; ṅ: pa * saṁhārī] kṣobhaṇe [ṅ: kṣobhāṇa] ca triviṁśamī [k, kh, gh: triṁviṁśamī]* |
tejovṛddhikarī [gh: -ri] vidyā caturviṁśatimā śubhā [k, kh, gh: subhā] ||
mohane [k, kh, gh: me-] pañcaviṁśī [k, kh, gh, ṅ: -viṁśā] ca bhairaveśī [all: -śa] na cānyathā |
*bhūtānāṁ [ṅ: *-?] kṣobhaṇī [ṅ: -bhinī] vidyā ṣaḍviṁśatimā [all: ṣaṭ-; ṅ: -viṁśati ] śubhā ||
rājyadā saptaviṁśā ca kṣobhaṇī [k, kh, ṅ: -ṇā; gh: -nā] cāṣṭāviṁśamī [k, kh, gh: caṣṭa-; ṅ: -āṁ] |
ūnatriṁśatimā [k, kh, gh: -śatamā; ṅ: ūntriṁśatisā] vidyā pīṭhakṣetre [ṅ: pīṭhekṣetra] jayāvahā ||
upapīṭhopakṣetre [ṅ: -pīṭhepa-] ca sandohe [ṅ: sāṁdohe] samayamelake [ṅ: śavdamelake] |
cakre caivāntike [ṅ: caivāntime] gupte [k, kh, gh: guptaṁ] vidyā triṁśatimā śubhā [k, kh, gh: subhā; ṅ: missing] ||
*saṁgrāme stambhanī deva ekatriṁśatimā [k, kh, gh: -ti ] matā | [This line is missing in MS Ṅ]
dvātriṁśamī mahāvidyā bhuvanasya balir [all MSs: valī] mahat [k, kh, gh: mahāt; ṅ: mahān] ||
evaṁ [kh: eṁvaṁ] dvātriṁśabhedena karma [k, kh: karmmaṁ] kurvanti [kh: kurvati] nānyathā |
YKh (1) 21/34-46ab.

Appendix III

The Six Dūtīs of Kubjikā's Limbs

The KMT first presents the six limbs of the goddess in the brief manner described in chapter ten. A long section follows, spanning over three chapters,[1] in which the limbs are presented again in another more complex manner. There they appear as six Dūtīs, who are both attendant deities as well as aspects of the goddess born from her six limbs. Although closely related to the goddess, each one is treated independently. Each has her own Vidyā, consort and associated ritual. The ritual procedure is of two types. One is the rite of adoration (pūjā, arcanā), which may include a fire sacrifice. The other is a rite of 'black magic'. The first type of rite is broadly termed kriyā and the other karman. The texts also teach the Gesture (mudrā) associated with each one. This is both an outer placement of the hands and fingers and a manner in which the Vidyā is recited in conjunction with the movement of Kuṇḍalinī and the vital breath. This leads the adept in each case to the attainment of mystical flight (khecaratvasiddhi) – the liberated state towards which Kaulas and the votaries of the Bhairava Tantras aspire. Thus each Dūtī has two alternative applications, one magical and the other mystical. The texts imply that they may be practiced independently or together, depending on the adept's aspirations and immediate needs. Moreover, although the two are distinguished by the distinct character of the two types of practice, they constantly overlap. Magic, Yoga and ritual are three dimensions of the one stream of practice and attainment. Thus the recitation of a Vidyā along with offerings of human flesh (mahāphalgu) and myrobalan (guggula) into a fire not only assures the adept magical and yogic powers, but also liberating flight.[2]

The visualized forms of the Dūtīs are not described in the KMT. These are presented in the corresponding section of the ŚM. The presentation in the ṢSS[3] further supplements the account in the KMT by discussing, amongst other things, the formation of the limbs of each of the Dūtīs and their deposition on the body, which is considered to be essential.[4] As usual, the presentation of each deity concludes with a description of the fruits of its worship. The Ṭīkā,[5] drawing its material from the other two sources, presents them as the six members of the Deposition of the Mothers (mātarīnyāsa), giving the Vidyā and the corresponding limbs of each one.

---

[1] KMT 7/51-10/39.
[2] ŚM 11/14-17.
[3] ṢSS 13/74-16/176.
[4] ṢSS 13/160.
[5] Ṭīkā fl. 138a-140a.

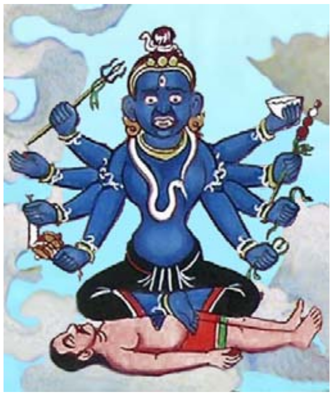
Clearly, the Dūtīs are goddesses who have been incorporated in this way into the pantheon of the Kubjikā Tantras. Indeed, the KMT is keen to acknowledge the original independent existence of the Dūtīs as deities in their own right with their own Tantra and so, incidently, tells us something about their original sources. Despite their evident importance in the KMT and its two expansions, the ŚM and the ṢSS, they do not appear as a group in the MBT. Nor are they prominent in the rest of the Kubjikā corpus. Apart from the Ṭīkā, the only other reference to them as a group is in a few verses in the KnT.[1] The scarcity of references combined with the persistence of the other version of the goddess's limbs suggests that they are an addition inserted into the system and not an original, integral part of it.

The following is a summary of some of the main features of these six Dūtīs drawn from the aforementioned sources. Although interesting, I have forgone the descriptions of the gestures and ritual. The Vidyā of each one has been recorded but not how it is broken up into the six limbs, nor other manipulations and additions, such as the syllables that serve to energize (dīpana) them. A full account of all these details awaits the publication and translation of the sources. The reader is referred to Goudriaan (1986: 151-159) for a summarial appraisal.

1) Kālikā – the Dūtī of the Heart

The goddess of the goddess's Heart is Kālikā.[2] She appears independently in her own right in 'the great Kālikā Tantra'.[3] According to the ŚM, the Dūtī Kālī should be visualized in the middle of a triangle, as follows:



1. Kālikā

> The goddess is (dark) like blue collyrium. She is like a dark blue storm cloud, a blue lotus and its petals, the hemp flower or lapis lazuli. She has large frightening teeth and snakes for earrings. She has beautiful matted hair and the king of snakes is in her crown. She has eight arms adorned with many snakes. In the left hands she holds a skull, ascetic's staff, snake, and noose. The second right hand makes a boon-bestowing gesture; the other hold a trident, rosary and a knife, and she plays a

---

[1] KnT 1/105-111.

[2] It is described in KMT 7/51-86ab which corresponds to ṢSS 13/74 -118ab and ŚM 10/207-11/22.

[3] KMT 7/51 = ŚM 10/210.

> double-headed drum. A necklace of snakes hangs (from her neck) and her breasts are well raised. Three wrinkles (adorn) the middle part (of her belly). She has beautiful thighs. The goddess sits on a corpse as (her) vehicle and wears black clothes.[1]

The Vidyā of this and the other deities of the limbs are found in the KMT, ŚM, ṢSS and in the Ṭīkā.[2] In the KMT this Vidyā is extracted from the Meruprastāra. The ŚM simply reproduces this passage. The ṢSS represents the letters by referring to the corresponding Bhairava in the series of the Aggregate of Sounds (śabdarāśi). The Ṭīkā simply presents the Vidyā directly. The version of the Vidyā in the KMT consists of thirty-five syllables, whereas the one in the ṢSS consists of thirty-seven. This is the length of the Vidyā in the Ṭīkā which either follows the ṢSS or a common source, to which it refers as the Bṛhadāgama which is probably the KuKauM. The Vidyā,[3] encapsulated in the usual way by the Five Praṇavas, is:

(ṢSS: + AIṀ) KĀLI KĀLI MAHĀKĀLI MĀṀSAŚOṆITABHOJANI (Ṭ: -BHOJANE; ṢSS: -BHOJANĪ) HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRAUṀ (Ṭ, ṢSS: HRŪṀ) RAKTAKṚṢṆAMUKHĪ DEVĪ MĀ (Ṭ: SĀ) MĀṀ (Ṭ, ṢSS: ME) PAŚYANTU ŚATRAVAḤ (Ṭ, ṢSS: MĀNAVĀḤ + HRĪṀ, Ṭ: + RA) |

O Kālī, Kālī, great Kālī who eats flesh and blood, hrāṁ! hrīṁ! hrauṁ! goddess whose face is red and black, may my enemies not see me.

---

[1] kṛṣṇāñjananibhāṁ [k g: -nibhā] devīṁ [k g: devī] nīlajīmūtasannibhām [k: -sannibhā] |
indīvaradalaśyāmāṁ [k: -śyāmā] nīlotpalasamaprabhām [k: samaprabhā; g: -dalaprabhāṁ] ||
atasīpuṣpasaṁkāśāṁ [k: -śā; kh: -sāṁ] rājāvartasamaprabhām [k: lājāvartasamaprabhā] |
daṁṣṭrākarālavadanāṁ [k: -nā] ghonāsākṛtakuṇḍalām [kh: ghoṇāsakṛtakuṇḍalāṁ] ||
jaṭājūṭadharāṁ [k: -dharā] divyāṁ [k: divyā] phaṇīndramukuṭasthitām [k: kavīndra- -tā; g: phaṇiṁdra-] |
bhujāṣṭakasamopetāṁ [g: mudrāṣṭaka-; k: -tā] nānāpannagamaṇḍitām [k: -tā] ||
kādyaṁ khaṭvāṅgaṁ [kh g: khaṭvāṅgaṁ] nāgaṁ ca pāśaṁ [g: pāśa] vāme vyavasthitam [kh: -tāṁ] |
triśūlaṁ varadaṁ caiva akṣasūtraṁ ca [k: nāsti] kartarī [k: tathaivaca; g: karttarīṁ] ||
ḍamaruvādyamānā [k: ḍamarur-; kh: ḍamarukaṁ-] ca dakṣiṇe [k kh: dakṣiṇena] ca [k kh: missing] virājate |
nāgahārapralambena samunnatapayodharām [kh: samonnatayayodharau; k kh: -rā] ||
trivalītaraṅgamadhyasthāṁ [k: -sthā] nitambāḍhyāṁ [k kh: -ḍhyā] suśobhanām [k: -nā] |
śavayānasthitāṁ [kh: sava- -sthitaṁ; k g: -tā] devīṁ [k: devī] kṛṣṇavastraparicchadām [k: -dā] ||
ŚM 10/8-13

[2] The Vidyā of this Dūtī is found in KMT 7/55cd-79ab, ŚM 10/214-234, ṢSS 13/78-100 and Ṭīkā fl. 138a -138b.

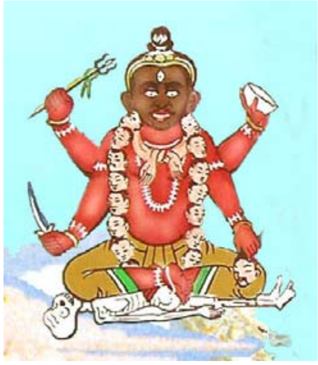
[3] Cf. Goudriaan 1986: 159.

This Vidyā is used to counter obstacles, especially violent aggression. This may be from wild animals, such as lions, tigers and elephants, or from enemies. Other violent beings are ghosts and demons, among whom number the Vetālas, Rakṣasas, Yakṣas and Yakṣiṇīs who possess and afflict their victims. Positive beings who exorcise ghosts and demons generally do so by entering the victim to remove them. Although the texts do not tell us this directly, we can infer that this is how this goddess operates. A virgin girl (kumārī) who is possessed (āveśapūrvikā) by this goddess acquires the power see into the past and future and what is auspicious and inauspicious for the person who consults her.[1] This Vidyā gives magical and yogic accomplishments (siddhi) and wealth,[2] as do the others. One who recites it has the power to practice many magical sciences (nānāvijñāna). Exorcism and magic are often found together. The powerful beings who assist the exorcist also assist him in his magical operations. These powers are acquired from this goddess by repeating her Vidyā while sitting on a corpse during a moonless night in a cremation ground making offerings to the fire.

2) Juṣṭācāṇḍālī – the Dūtī of the Head

Juṣṭācāṇḍālī who is born from the hair of the goddess's head[3] is the Dūtī of that limb. One of her forms is described below in chapter 49.[4] There she is presented as an independent aspect of Kubjikā, rather than just one of her limbs. This probably accounts for the difference between the form described there and the one in the ŚM. There the Dūtī of the Head is visualized in the middle of the City of Ghosts (preta) as follows:

> (Juṣṭācāṇḍālī) is blood-red. Intensely brilliant and with upraised hair, she is frightening. She wears a garland of bones around her neck and bones hang from her ears. Her three eyes, like stars, are unmoving and her eyebrows are like creepers. Her face is brown and she has large fearsome teeth. She is very fierce and chews on an excellent head. She has four arms and is very powerful, shining like the fire of time. She holds a skull and severed head in the left (hands) and a trident and dagger in the right. She is adorned with



2. Juṣṭācāṇḍālī

---

[1] KMT 7/54.
[2] ṢSS 13/101.
[3] KMT 7/93cd = ŚM 11/69ab = ṢSS 13/123ab.
[4] KuKh 49/23cd-41cd.

> a garland of skulls and wears a garment of human skin. She stands on a skeleton and, very fierce, she appears to be devouring the universe.[1]

The Vidyā of Juṣṭācāṇḍālī is sixty-five syllables long. According to the KMT, which presents the complete Vidyā in reverse, the Ṭīkā, which presents it directly, the ŚM where it is extracted from the Meruprastāra and the ṢSS, which uses the Śabdarāśi code to denote the letters,[2] it is:

OṀ NAMO (Ṭ, ṢSS: KHPREṀ NAMO Ṭ adds the alternative AIṀ HRĪṀ KHPHREṀ) BHAGAVATI JUṢṬĀCĀṆḌĀLI (KMT, ŚM, ṢSS: -CĀṆḌĀLĪ, ṢSS: + HUṀ; Ṭ: JUṢṬACAṆḌĀLI + HUṀ HUṀ HUṀ HUṀ) RUDHIRAMĀṀSABHAKṢAṆI (Ṭ: -ṆE, ŚM: -ṆĪ) KAPĀLAKHAṬVĀṄGADHĀRIṆI (Ṭ: -ṆE) HANA HANA DAHA DAHA DHAMA DHAMA PACA PACA (Ṭ: HŪṀ) AMUKAṀ (ŚM: ŚATRŪN) MĀRAYA (Ṭ: HRĪṀ, ṢSS: missing) MĀRAYA (Ṭ: HRĀṀ, ṢSS: missing) GRASA GRASA (Ṭ: missing) HŪṀ (Ṭ, ṢSS: HRĪṀ) HŪṀ (ṢSS: HRŪṀ) PHAṬ PHAṬ SVĀHĀ OṀ (Ṭ: KHPHREṀ) ǀ

Oṁ! Salutation O goddess Juṣṭācāṇḍālī who eats blood and flesh and holds a skull bowl and an ascetic's staff! destroy! destroy! burn! burn! melt! melt! cook! cook! kill! kill this (person)! devour! devour! hūṁ! hūṁ! phaṭ! phaṭ! svāhā! oṁ!

The texts prescribe two black rites that invoke this goddess to punish (nigraha) the victim towards whom they are directed. One requires that the victim's name be written in a hexagonal Yantra in the corners of which are the six Yoginīs, Ḍākinī and the rest. The Yantra is drawn with poison and ichor on human skin or on a shroud with coal from a funeral pyre. When it is heated the victim is overwhelmed with a high fever.

The KMT declares that it is sufficient to repeat the Vidyā a hundred thousand times for the adept to acquire the power to kill by speech alone

---

[1] raktāruṇā [g: -ruṇa] mahādīptā [k: mahādivyā; kh: diptā-] ūrdhvakeśī bhayaṅkarī [k kh: bhayaṁkarā] ǀǀ asthimālā gale baddhā karṇau cāsthipralambitau ǀ trinetrā stabdhatārākṣī bhrūlatā [k: bhūnnatā; kh: unnatā] kapilānanā [k: kupitānanā] ǀǀ daṁṣṭrā karālā [kh g: karālā] cātyugrā [kh: matyūgrā] carvayantī [k: varttayantī; kh: carccayantī] śirottamam [kh: śirottamāṁ] ǀ caturbhujā mahātejā kalānalasamaprabhā [kh: -bhāṁ] ǀǀ kādyamuṇḍadharā vāme triśūlaṁ kartṛ [kh: karttarī] dakṣiṇe ǀ kapālamālābharaṇā nṛcarmaṇi paricchadā [kh: prariṁ-] ǀǀ kaṅkālasthā mahā - ugrā grasantīva [k: grasantiva] carācaram ǀ ŚM 10/53cd-57ab.

[2] See KMT 7/96, Ṭīkā fl. 138b, ŚM 11/27-50 and ṢSS 13/125-54ab.

(vācāmātreṇa mārayet).[1] The ṢSS adds that he should also make ten million offerings to the fire of the flesh (mahāmāṁsa) of a great man (mahāpuruṣa). Thus this goddess, whose role is protection (rakṣaṇārtha)[2] is invoked through these rites to do this by chastising those who are enemies of the teaching and the teacher.[3]

We observe that magical and yogic power go together in this case, as they do in many others. The Vidyā that has great magical power to cause harm to others is no less powerful if the adept seeks spirited development. Accordingly, the ṢSS[4] adds a description of how the adept should recite the Vidyā at night seated on a corpse in a cremation ground. By assiduous practice he will ultimately gain great yogic and magical power – mahāsiddhi.

3) Śikhāsvacchanda – the Deity of the Topknot.

This limb receives by far the most extensive treatment in our sources, two full chapters in each case (KMT 8 and 9, ŚM 12 and 13, ṢSS 14 and 15). Although the texts are ostensibly concerned with the presentation of the goddess's limbs and hence with female figures, in this case the attention is focused more on the god Śikhāsvacchanda. But, although this god and his alter-ego Aghora or Svacchanda Bhairava are focal in the worship of this limb, it is misleading to say as does Goudriaan (1986: 155) that 'there are five Dūtīs and one Dūta', although the texts do indeed appear to support this view. The KnT expressly says that Aghoreśa is in the goddess's topknot.[5] The considerable length of the account of this limb in the major sources adds to the confusion. The root cause of this ambiguity is, as we can see from the ŚM's account of the origin of the goddess of this limb, that this Dūtī, which is the Topknot of the god Śikhāsvacchanda, is identified with the god:

> Well done, O goddess Laghvikā! Listen, I will tell you (about) the unlimited radiance of Svacchanda who is the aggregate of the (divine) qualities of the Topknot (śikhā). Laghvikā's topknot is Raudrī who bestows Raudrasiddhi. The very powerful form (mūrti) of the goddess arose at that most excellent and terrible of times when all moving and immobile things had been destroyed. She, the infinite (anantā) and supreme energy, pervaded the universe. She has many

---

[1] KMT 7/111ab.
[2] KMT 7/94.
[3] KMT 7/110.
[4] ṢSS 13/171ab-185.
[5] KnT 1/107.

> faces and eyes and many arms with upraised weapons. She (wears) many divine ornaments and she displays many wonders. Her topknot (also 'flame' – śikhā) came forth, accomplished (siddha) and very powerful. She was in the form of Bhairava and (the energy of all the) letters. The whole universe, that is, the triple world with (all that) moves and is immobile, has been created by her. She has come forth in the form of a Dūtī called Śikhāsvaccanda.[1]

The text again stresses the same ambiguity a little further ahead. We are told after the three-syllable mantra of Śikhāsvacchanda, namely, HRĀṀ, HRĪṀ HRAUṀ that each is a form of the god Aghora who is the goddess Śikhā.[2] But although identified with the god, the goddess also appears to be the god's consort. First we should briefly examine the form of the god. His maṇḍala is an eight-petalled lotus, on which the eight Mothers are worshipped. This is surrounded by another one consisting of thirty-two petals on which the Yoginīs governing the thirty-two syllables of the god's main mantra are worshipped. Around them are three encompassing circles containing the energies of the Sun, Moon and Fire.[3] The ŚM continues:

> The Ghost (preta) resides in the centre of the maṇḍala (pura) and, shining radiantly, he is immersed in meditation. One should know that he is Sadāśiva, the great lord in the guise of the Ghost. He is the lord, the great yogi and Mahāsiddha who supports the whole world. He is on a lotus endowed with all (the divine) attributes. He sits in the calyx shining brilliantly like a great fire. Know that to be Ananta. Above him is Śikhāśiva.[4]

---

[1] sādhu tvaṁ laghvike devi kathayāmi yathā śṛṇu |
śikhāguṇakalāpasya svacchandasyāmitadyutim [k: -dyutaḥ; kh: -dyutaiḥ; g: svachandasthaṁmitasvate] ||
laghvinyāyāḥ [g: laghvinyāyā] śikhā raudrī [kh: dūtī] raudrasiddhipradāyikā |
yasmin kālottame [k g: kālenamo] ghore naṣṭasthāvarajaṅgame [k: neme-] ||
tatra kāle samudbhūtā [g: samū-] devyā mūrtir mahābalā |
anantā sā parā śaktir [g: śakti] jagad vyāpya vyavasthitā ||
anekavaktranayanā [k: anekacakratapanā] bhujānekāyudhodyatā [k: -yutāyudha; g: -purāyudhā] |
anekadivyabharaṇā anekādbhutadarśanā ||
tasyāḥ [kh g: tasyāḥ] śikhā samudbhūtā siddharūpā [k: siddhāruṇa] mahābalā |
bhairavākārarūpasthā [k: bhairavīkāla-] varṇarūpā [kh: avarṇā] vyavasthitā [kh: varṇasaṁsthitā] ||
tayā [k kh g: tena] sṛṣṭaṁ jagat sarvaṁ trailokyaṁ sacarācaram |
dūtīrūpā [g: -rūpa] viniṣkrāntā śikhāsvacchandanāmataḥ || ŚM 11/9-14 .

[2] Ibid. 11/19.

[3] Ibid. 11/36.

[4] puramadhye [kh, g: -madhya] sthitaṁ pretaṁ dhyāyamānaṁ [kh: -na] sutejasam |

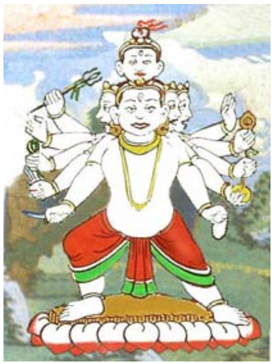
Seated on Sadāśiva in this way suggests as do his other names – Śikhāsvacchanda and Aghora – that Śikhāśiva is a form of Svacchanda Bhairava. And their visualized forms and mantras are indeed similar. The ŚM describes Śikhāsvacchanda as follows:



3. Śikhāsvacchanda

> Above (Sadāśiva) is Śiva, the supreme cause. O fair lady! Once visualized, the supreme beginningless and endless unmanifest Śiva becomes manifest; I will tell you (about his) form (mūrti). He has five faces and is radiant with (his) fifteen eyes. He has beautiful matted hair and is adorned with earrings. He has ten arms. In the right (hands he holds) a trident, makes a boon-bestowing gesture, holds a noose, sword and dagger. He makes a fear-removing gesture with the left and holds a mirror, snake, a citron (bījapūra) and a big rosary (mahākṣaka). Such are (his) divine weapons. He has many ornaments and is beautiful with all the adornments and is be decked with many gems. He is the colour of cow's milk and is (white) like snow, the jasmine flower and the moon. He has the king of snakes as his sacred thread and a jewel necklace hangs (from his neck). He is replete with every limb and is endowed with all (divine) characteristics. O fair lady, having (thus) visualized Śiva, the supreme cause, and having established him who is the lord of the gods, Śikhāsvacchandadeva (the god of the topknot) should be worshipped.[1]

---

sadāśivas [k kh g: -śivaṁ] tu vijñeyaḥ [k g: vijñeyaṁ; kh: cintyaṁ] pretarūpo [k kh g: -paṁ] mahāprabhuḥ [k kh g: -bhum] ||
mahāyogī [g: -yogi] mahāsiddhaḥ sarvalokadharaḥ [g: -vara] prabhuḥ |
sarvalakṣaṇasaṁyuktaṁ [k g: sarvajñaguṇasaṁyuktaṁ] padmaṁ tasyoparisthitam ||
karṇikopari dīpyantaṁ [kh: dipyantaṁ; g: divyantaṁ] prajvalantaṁ mahojjvalam [kh: mahojasaṁ; g: mahojvalaṁ] |
anantaṁ tad [g: taṁ] vijānīyāt tasyordhve tu śikhāśivam || ŚM 11/32-34.

[1] asyopari mahādevaṁ śivaṁ paramakāraṇam |
śivaṁ [k: śaivaṁ] dhyātvā varārohe anādinidhanaṁ param ||
avyaktaṁ vyaktisaṁbhūtaṁ tasya mūrtiṁ [g: mūrtti] vadāmy aham |
pañcavaktraṁ daśabhujaṁ tripañcanayanojjvalam [kh: -jvalaṁ; g: -jvaraṁ] ||
jaṭājūṭadharaṁ divyaṁ karṇakuṇḍalamaṇḍitam |
triśūlaṁ varadaṁ pāśaṁ khaḍgaṁ [g: khaṭvāṁga] kartarī [k: + ca; kh: kattari; g: kartṛ] dakṣiṇe ||
abhayaṁ darpaṇaṁ sarpaṁ bījapūraṁ mahākṣakam [k: sahākṣasaṁ; kh: suhākṣakaṁ] |
vāmenaivāyudhān [k: vāmena cā-; kh: vāme caivā-] divyān nānālaṅkārasaṁyutam [kh: -tān] ||
sarvābharaṇaśobhāḍhyaṁ [g: nānā-] nānāratnais tu maṇḍitam |
gokṣīravarṇasaṁkāśaṁ himakundendusannibham [g: -kuṇḍeṁdu-] ||

Śikhāsvacchanda is frequently just called Svacchanda or Aghora, a common alternative name of Svacchanda Bhairava. We may fruitfully compare them. The following visualization is drawn from chapter nine of the SvT. This visualized form is an emanation from the heart of Mahābhairava who, as the commentator Kṣemarāja explains, is Svacchandanātha. This form is therefore what Kṣemarāja calls Aghorahṛdaya (the Heart of Aghora).[1] Even so, this is the only form described in the SvT and so must be considered to be the main one, as the text itself confirms at the conclusion of this passage:

> O fair lady, the one who brings about emanation and withdrawal has emerged from the heart of the great Bhairava engaged in play. His body is (brilliant and powerful) like the fire at the end of an aeon and he resounds like the storm clouds (that cover the sky at the time of universal) destruction. (Horrifying) with fang-like teeth, he is like a net of lightning bolts. (His) matted hair is like fire. Very frightening, (his) gaze is severe and eyes the Sun, Moon and Fire. His chest is large and he wears a snake as a sacred thread. His jewelled crown shines radiantly and he is adorned with snakes as earrings and (another) snake is his necklace. His bracelets and anklets are snakes and he is adorned with a snake as his belt. He wears a lion's skin and is wrapped in an elephant skin as his shawl. The moon is his crest jewel. He has five faces and is mounted on a corpse. He has ten arms and three eyes. He is adorned with a garland of skulls. He carries a sword and shield, noose, goad, bow and arrows. He holds a skull, ascetic's staff and makes fear-dispelling and wish-fulfilling gestures. His lustre is like sliced (black) collyrium and he shines with (the radiance) of his quivering lips. Brahmā, Viṣṇu and Indra bow to him and he is hard to attain even by the gods. Praise that Bhairava, the god Svacchanda, in this way. By recollecting him, the god destroys the powerful aggregate of sins.[2]

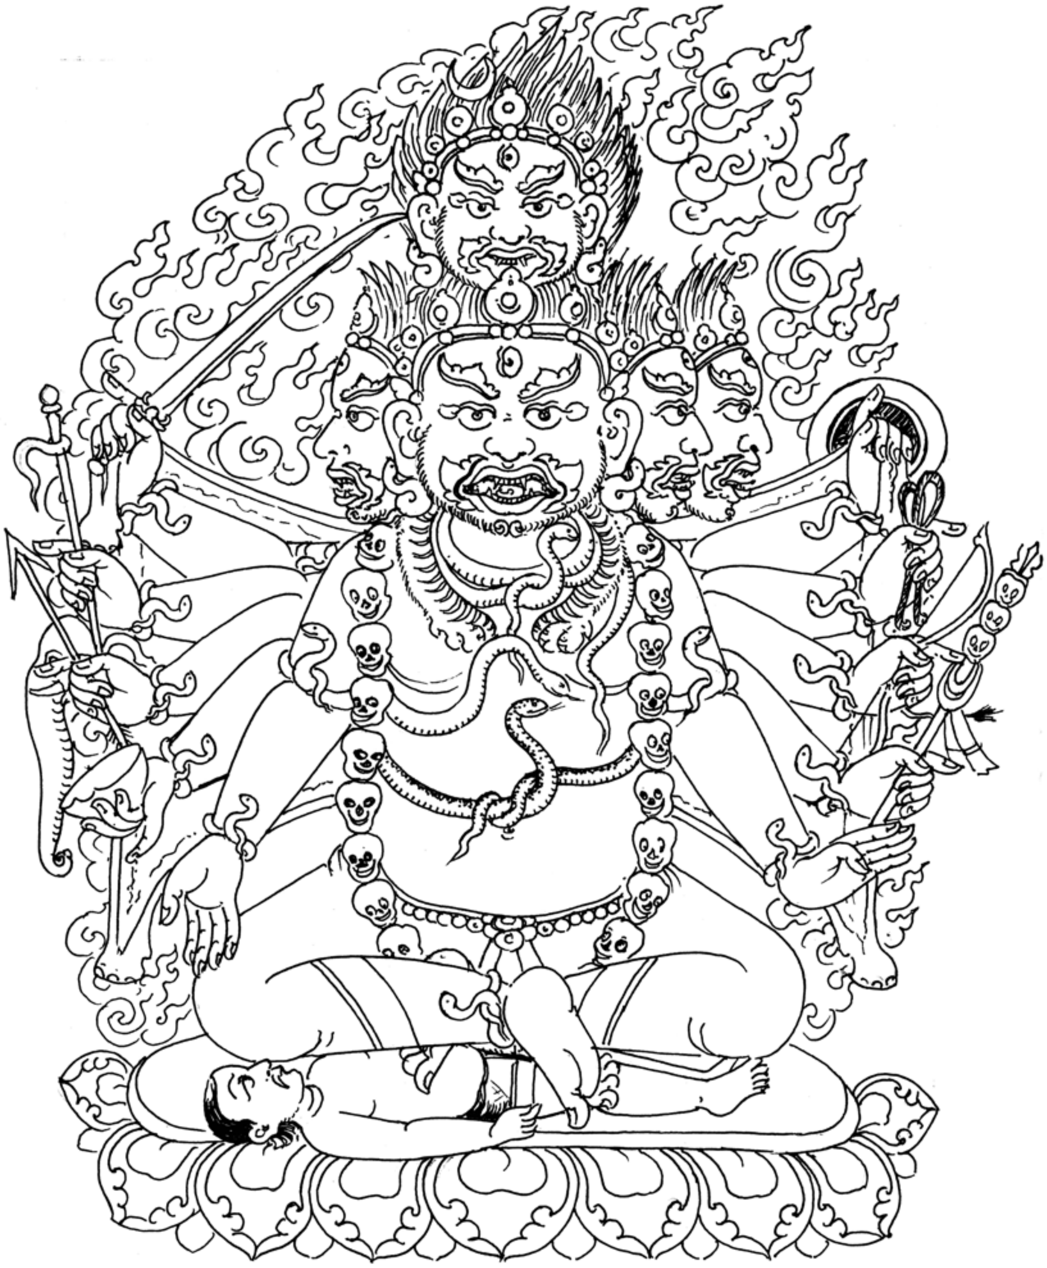
Kṣemarāja comments saying that ‘the god devours the great sin which is the cause of disease’. Accordingly Kṣemarāja calls him ‘the lord who devours disease’ (vyādhibhakṣabhaṭṭāraka). This is also a cardinal feature of the god Śikhāsvacchanda in the ŚM, where we read:

---

sarparājopavītaṁ [kh: -pavitaṁ] ca [kh: tu] ratnamālāpralambitam [kh: -tāṁ] |
sarvāvayavasaṁpūrṇaṁ sarvalakṣaṇalakṣitam ||
evaṁ dhyātvā varārohe śivaṁ paramakāraṇam |
śikhāsvacchandadeveśaṁ tat sthāpya [g: sthāpyo] paripūjayet || ŚM 11/46-52.

[1] Comm. to SvT 9/2.

[2] SvT 9/2-10.



4. Svacchanda Bhairava

> He is known as Aghora by name because he is present in the topknot (cūlī). (He is) the stilling of all sufferings and the eradication of diseases. O goddess, he graces all and bestows (both) worldly benefits and liberation. O goddess, (he is) the destruction of death (kāla) and the destructrion of the lion of fever. O mother of the host! (He is) the speedy end of poverty.[1]

Similarly:

> One is freed of all (forms of) suffering by just recollecting this. O great goddess, Aghorīśa is the lion (who kills) poverty, the lion (who destroys) disease. He is the lion (who destroys the most) violent suffering, the destroyer of great sins.[2]

Śikhāsvacchanda's power to destroy disease is especially apparent in his consort, the embodiment of this power:

> That supreme energy who is the Transmental (manonmanī), the first (of all energies), is said to be the energy of the Foundation (ādhāraśakti) of the great soul, Bhairava. One should think of the goddess as being dark blue (śyāmā) and as (also) possessing every colour. The goddess has ten arms, five faces and is very beautiful. In the left (hands she holds) a skull, ascetic's staff, axe, and javelin. In the right (she holds) a double-headed drum, rosary, dagger and a fruit. It is said that both (the remaining) hands hold an elephant's hide. She makes a fearsome noise that frightens all living beings. One should imagine that she who is the great goddess of the lord of the universe is devouring (all) disease. Imagine that she makes a slurping sound as she eats (disease) and beats it. She is piercing it with (her) trident and cutting it to pieces with (her) great sword. Imagine that, furious, she shakes (up all) disease (that comes) before (her).[3]

---

[1] aghoraṁ nāma [kh: aghorām iti] vikhyātaṁ yasmāc cūlīgatas tu [kh: yasmāt olī-; g: -gataṁ-] saḥ |
śamanaṁ [g: samanaṁ] sarvaduḥkhānāṁ vyādhīnāṁ ca nikṛntanam ||
sarvānugr āhakaṁ devi [kh g: devī] bhuktimuktipradāyakam |
kālanirṇāśanaṁ [g: -nirnnāsanaṁ] devi [kh g: devī] jvarasiṁhavināśanam [kh g: -siṁha-; g: -vināsanaṁ] ||
dāridryadamanaṁ [k: daridrā; kh g: dāridra; g: -damana] caiva acireṇa gaṇāmbike |
ŚM 11/20-22ab.

[2] anena smṛtamātreṇa sarvaduḥkhaiḥ pramucyate |
dāridryasiṁho 'ghorīśo vyādhisiṁho maheśvari ||
pracaṇḍaduḥkhasiṁhaś ca [g: -siṁhaduḥkhasya] mahāpātakanāśanaḥ | ŚM 11/219-220ab.

[3] ādhāraśaktir [kh g: -śakti-] vikhyātā [kh: -tāṁ] bhairavasya mahātmanaḥ [kh: mahātmana] ||

According to the ṢSS (there is no mention of this in the other sources), the consort of Śikhāsvaccanda is Guhyakubjī. He should be worshipped along with her on the triangular maṇḍala of the three-syllable Vidyā.[1] Similarly, according to another ritual procedure, the thirty-two syllables of the mantra are worshipped in the form of their corresponding goddesses on the petals of the lotus seat of the goddess Guhyakubjī,[2] in the centre of which she is worshipped along with Śikhāśiva.[3] As we shall see, the Dūtī of the Weapon is Guhyakālī who is addressed in her Vidyā as Guhyakubjikā. She should not be confused with this Guhyakubjī. Indeed, the Ṭīkā[4] refers to the mantra of Śikhāsvacchanda as Śikhādūtī. This reference, coupled with the fact that the thirty-two letters of this Vidyā are goddesses, indicates that although the god is prominent in the accounts of this Dūtī, this mantra – a modified form of Svacchanda Bhairava's Aghora mantra is actually the Vidyā of his consort. This hypothesis is further supported by the existence of three mantras of Śikhāsvacchanda. These are the single syllable HSPHREṀ,[5] the three-syllable one mentioned above and this one consisting of thirty-two syllables. 'Out of these,' we are told, 'the three-syllabled (mantra) is the main one'.[6] As Śikhāsvacchanda is derived from Svacchanda-bhairava, one would expect his main mantra to be the one derived from Svacchanda Bhairava's thirty-two syllable mantra. As the single-syllable mantra is a 'seed', i.e. an essentialization of the main mantra, there is actually only one other mantra and as that is not the main one of the god, we may assume that, implicitely, it is considered to be that of the goddess. But, having said this, one should add that, apart from the Ṭīkā, the texts consistently identify the thirty-two daśabāhudharāṁ [g: -dharā] devīṁ [g: devī] pañcavaktrāṁ [k kh: catur-] sulālasām |

---

sarvavarṇadharāṁ [k: sarvavarma-; g: sarvasya varadā] devīm atha [g: devī atha] śyāmāṁ [g: syāmāṁ] vicintayet ||
kapālaṁ [g: kādyaṁ] caiva [g: + ca] khaṭvāṅgaṁ [g: -ga] paraśuṁ śūlaṁ [kh g: śūla] vāmake |
ḍamaruṁ [kh: ḍamarukaṁ; g: ḍamaru] cākṣamālāṁ ca kartarīṁ [kh g: karttarī] phala [k: caiva] dakṣiṇe ||
gajacarmadharau cobhau hastau ca parikīrtitau |
garjantīṁ [k: garjanti; kh g: garjantī] bhīṣaṇaṁ nādaṁ sarvabhūtabhayaṅkaram ||
bhakṣantīṁ [k: bhakṣanti; kh g: bhakṣantī] cintayed [kh: -yad] vyādhiṁ viśveśvaramaheśvarīm [g: -maheśvaraṁ] |
khādyamānāṁ raṭantīṁ [kh: rataṁtī] tāṁ tāḍyamānāṁ vicintayet ||
bhedayantīṁ [k: bhedayanti; bhedayantī] triśūlena chedayantīṁ [k: -yanti; kh g: -yantī] mahāsinā |
kruddhabhāve [k g: - vāṁ] dhunantīṁ [kh g: dhunantī] tāṁ [g: nāṁ] pūrvavyādhiṁ vicintayet ||
ŚM 11/40cd-45.

[1] ṢSS 15/31cd: maṇḍalopari pūjyo 'sau guhyakubjyā samanvitaḥ |

[2] Ibid. 15/66.

[3] Ibid. 15/69.

[4] Ṭīkā fl. 138b-139a.

[5] See comm. to ṢSS 15/6.

[6] Comm. on ṢSS 15/11ab syllable Vidyā with that of Aghora – although, as we shall see, it has been substantially modified.

The differences between Śikhāsvacchanda and Svacchanda Bhairava are not few. The attributes differ and the former is white whilst the latter is black. Moreover, Svacchanda Bhairava's consort Aghoreśvarī, who is said to have the same basic form as he does[1], differs from the consort of Śikhāsvacchanda called Guhyakubjī, although her dark blue colour is an indication of her relationship to Aghoreśvarī. However, despite the differences, the origin of Śikhāsvacchanda and his consort from their prototypes is apparent in their similar (albeit modified) forms and is confirmed by their mantra, which is analogously distinct from its prototype while maintaining basic similarities with it.

The texts present a long meditation in several phases centred on the movement and rise of the vital breath charged with the energy of the Śikhāsvacchanda mantra. One part of it involves the meditation on a series of triads that make up the Yoni of energies. Above OṀ or, in the Kaula version of this Praṇava, AIṀ, they are its higher energizing development above the head that leads to the supreme energy of the Transmental (unmanī). Thus, the triangular Yoni above the head is the energy of the Topknot. The final phase of this cycle of meditation consists of the piercing of the Five Brahmās with the supreme energy in the form of the resonance (nāda) within the breath charged with mantra unified with the mind and the Self. It pierces through Brahmā in the base, Viṣṇu in the navel, Rudra in the heart and Īśvara in the throat. Then the ŚM continues saying that these four:

> [...] should be pierced (bhedayet) with the supreme power in the form of Sound. (The energy) moves along the middle of the bridge (between the eyebrows) and the Cavity should be opened with (that energy as) the key; having (already) opened up the supreme place where Aghora resides. Lordship (prājāpatya) is the bridge and the key is the foremost power (śakti). The Cavity is the the Cavity of Brahmā where Aghora resides. One should know that he is (the mantra called) Aṣṭakapālin and recollect the three-lettered one. The sequence of the Topknot of (the goddess) Laghvī (is located) where the heart is present in all the principles of existence. Merely by recalling it mentally, (the adept experiences the state of) Flight.

Located in the Cavity of Brahmā at the top of the head, that is, at the root of the topknot, it is the god who appears to be the deity of the topknot. But as it is his energy – which an aspect of the goddess Kubjikā, here called Laghvī – that lends access to him, she is the deeper, true nature of this limb, not the god. After examining their mantra, to which we now turn, we will discover another reason why this couple is associated with this limb of the goddess's body. The ŚM presents a mantra of this Bhairava in code. It is:[1]

---

[1] SvT 1/75cd-76ab.

AGHORE HRĀṀ THAGHORE HRIṀ GHORAGHORATARE HRŪṀ ŚCA (?) SARVATAḤ SARVASARVE HRAIṀ HRAṀ HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRŪṀ HRAIṀ HRAUṀ HRAṀ HRAḤ

We have noted already that the Ṭīkā[2] gives to the mantra of Śikhāsvacchanda the name Śikhādūtī. It is as follows:

AGHORE HRĀṀ THAGHORE HRĪṀ GHORAGHORATARE HRŪṀ SARVATAḤ HRAIṀ SARVASARVE HRAUṀ NAMAS TE RUDRARŪPE HRAḤ |

The same mantra appears in the commentary to the ṢSS as an explanation of the statement ‘the first group of eight possesses the Vidyāpada’.[3] Its says that this refers to the mantras of the eight Mothers who, amongst others (see below), surround the deity and his consort. These eight mantras are actually the mantra noted above divided into eight parts. As the protector of these eight, Aghora is called Aṣṭākapālin[4] and consists of thirty-two syllables. The mantra is thus divided into eight as follows:[5] 1) Brahmāṇī: AGHORE HRĀṀ 2) Māheśvarī: THAGHORE HRĪṀ 3) Kaumārī: GHORAGHORATARE HRŪṀ 4) Vaiṣṇavī: SARVATAḤ 5) Vārāhī: SARVA 6) Aindrī: SARVE HRAIṀ 7) Cāmuṇḍā: NAMAS TE 8) Mahālakṣmī: RUDRARŪPE HRAUṀ.

This is a modified form of Svacchanda Bhairava's mantra. Conceived in this way as consisting of the mantric energy of the eight Mothers who are understood in the Kubjikā Tantras to be aspects of the goddess, it has become dominantly female, although it is still considered to be the god's mantra. To see what has happened we may compare this with the original mantra of Svacchandabhairava, which is called Mantrarāja or Aghora.[6] It is:

OṀ AGHOREBHYO THAGHOREBHYO GHORAGHORATAREBHYAḤ SARVATAḤ SARVASARVEBHYO NAMAS TE RUDRARŪPEBHYAḤ

---

[1] ŚM 13/70-84ab. The mantra is written in full in the margin of manuscript Kh (folio 107).

[2] Ṭīkā fl. 138b-139a.

[3] Comm. ṢSS 15/89 (?).

[4] ṢSS 15/87.

[5] Comm. on ṢSS 15/88.

[6] See SvT 1/41-3.

The changes that have taken place are explained indirectly in the ŚM.[1] There we are told that the demons and their allies were successful in battle by the grace of Aghora. The gods were vanquished and fled in fear when the demons repeated the mantra that comes from Aghora, the right face of Śiva. Worried about what to do, Brahmā and the gods went to Bhairava to ask for help. Satisfied with their eulogies, he told them not to fear. He then sealed the Aghora mantra with five pegs (kīla) so that the demons could no longer use it. Bhairava explains that he who repeats the mantra with these pegs is afflicted by many troubles. Impurity accumulates and the reciter of the mantra is not liberated. Thus, the right course of action is to worship the teacher until he is satisfied and tells his disciple both the Svacchandāghora mantra and how to unlock it (utkīlana).

This myth serves to explain why this form of the Aghora mantra differs from the well-known one. The original form of the mantra is locked, which in this case not only makes it ineffective but also positively harmful, and so must be altered appropriately. The mantra given in the Ṭīkā does indeed differ from the Aghora mantra of the SvT in five places. The ŚM tells us cryptically where the locks are in the original form of the mantra that seal it:

> The end of the three and the end of the (next) three. The seventh and final eighth and, O fair lady, the Mantrarāja is sealed by the (following) eighth.[2]

If we compare the two version of this mantra, namely Śikhādūtī or Svacchandāghora and the Aghora mantra of the SvT, we discover that these lines are very meaningful. Here they are again:

AGHORE HRĀṀ THAGHORE HRĪṀ GHORAGHORATARE HRŪṀ SARVATAḤ HRAIṀ SARVASARVE HRAUṀ NAMAS TE RUDRARŪPE HRAḤ

OṀ AGHOREBHYO THAGHOREBHYO GHORAGHORATAREBHYAḤ SARVATAḤ SARVASARVEBHYO NAMASTE RUDRARŪPEBHYAḤ

The first 'end of the three' is AGHORE – BHYO. The second 'end of the three' is THAGHORE – BHYO. The 'seventh' is GHORAGHORATARE – BHYAḤ. The 'final eighth' is SARVATAḤ SARVASARVE – BHYO. The

---

[1] ŚM 12/5-40.

[2] trayāntaṁ ca trayāntaṁ ca saptamaṁ cāṣṭamāntimam |
aṣṭamena varārohe mantrarājaś ca mudritaḥ || ŚM 12/27cd-28ab.

‘(following) eighth’ is NAMAS TE RUDRARŪPEBHYAḤ. In the new form of the mantra these five ‘pegs’ have indeed been removed and replaced by the syllables HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRŪṀ HRAIṀ and HRAUṀ. The syllable OṀ, removed from the beginning, has been replaced by HRAḤ at the end. In this way, the six limbs of Śikhāsvacchanda[1] are all present in the new form. These six things (padārtha) along with the three-syllabled mantra of Śikhāsvacchanda, HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRAUṀ, make what the ṢSS calls the Nine H's that are said to be Aghora himself.[2] The essential constituents of these seed-syllables are three letters H R and Ṁ – the point above called anusvāra. The symbolism of these three tell us more about the goddess's Topknot. In this case the word for topknot – śikhā – is understood in its other sense of ‘flame’. Aghora is here represented as the god of fire. His fiery energy, the (female) flame, is his consort the goddess Guhyakubjikā who, over the course of the fire sacrifice, is visualized as being in mensis (symbolic of her fertility) and is identified with Vāgīśī – the Goddess of Speech from whom the fire is generated.[3] She is the Flame that energizes Aghora in his mantric form. The ṢSS and commentary explain:

> He who knows its Flame (śikhā) in this way is said to be one who maintains the fire (āhitāgni). One should know that fire to be the mouth of the gods, that is, the omnipresent (sarvatomukha) Aghora. O goddess, the Mouth in the mouths is praised in the three worlds. O fair lady, there is no offering to the fire without that, nor worship. The letter Ha is the Dakṣiṇa fire. The Point is said to be the Gārhapatya fire (gārha) and the Āhavanīya (āhavāgni) fire is the letter Ra. Thus his form is that of the three fires.[4]
>
> (Commentary): The person who knows the Flame – the flame of fire that is the letter Ra – of the one who is Nine Hs, is a (true) fire priest (agnihotrin). . . . One should know that the fire in the form of the letter Ra is the god's mouth, the mouth of Aghora – and Aghora is omnipresent. The meaning is that Aghora who is omnipresent is

---

[1] See ŚM 11/22-26.

[2] tatrastham aghoraṁ hakāranavakaṁ ca yat comm. on ṢSS 15/53????.

[3] ṢSS 15/183cd-184.

[4] yas tasyaivaṁ śikhāṁ [k kh: -khā] vetti āhitāgniḥ sa ucyate ||
*so ‘gnirdevamukhaṁ [k, kh: so ‘gni] vidyād [k, kh: vindyād] aghoraṁ * * * * * sarvatomukham* |
mukheṣu ca mukhaṁ devi trailokye yat tu [k, kh: yastu] gīyate ||
vinā tena varārohe na homaṁ na ca pūjanam [k kh: pūjayet] |
dakṣiṇāgnir hakāraḥ syād gārho binduḥ prakīrtitaḥ [k kh: -tam] ||
āhavāgnis tathā rephas tryagnirūpas tatas tu saḥ | ṢSS 15/53cd-56ab.

> tranquil (saumya) and pervades all things. He is the Point. . . . The Mouth in the mouths, that is, within the aforementioned Nine Hs is the letter R conjoined with the Point – RAṀ. This makes nine HRAṀ's. In this way it is said that the universe is the Three Worlds consisting of the triple fire. There is nothing that is without this triple fire.[1]

According to the Veda, as the Nirukta[2] says: ‘Agni (the god of Fire) is the mouth of the gods’ (agnir vai devānāṁ mukham). This not only means that he eats the oblations but also ‘preceedes or goes before the gods’ (agraṇī bhavati). Moreover, although Agni is all-pervading and ever present, he has three forms: ‘Three are the places of his birth they honour, in mid-air, in the heaven, and in the waters . . . ’.[3] The three are the Vaḍava fire in the sea, the sun (āditya) and, in the middle, lightning (vidyutāgni). Here they are evoked by the three letters that make up the core of the nine seed-syllables, namely H, R and Ṁ. This conception exactly parallels that of the three letters of OṀ – A, U and M – that, according to the Maitri Upaniṣad,[4] also correspond to the three fires that are said to constitute the ‘mouth form’ of the Vedic Praṇava.

Note that in this case, the Tantric rite serves as an esoteric substitute for the Vedic sacrifice. The Brahmin who practices this mantra does not need to keep an outer fire. He can feel secure that he is fulfilling his ritual obligations by practicing the esoteric cult into which he has chosen to be initiated. Theoretically, this leaves the door open for anybody who takes initiation to share in the Brahmin's status and authority, at least for ritual purposes.

The texts contain considerably more details concerning the permutations and applications of this Vidyā. These details await further study.

---

[1] _yaḥ puruṣas tasya hakāranavakasya śikhāṁ agniśikhāṁ [kh: agniḥ śikhāṁ] repharūpiṇīṁ vetti jānāti so ‘gnihotrī bhavati || iti so ‘agnir devamukhaṁ vidyāt || yaḥ agniḥ repharūpo [k g: -pa; kh: -rūpaḥ] devasya [kh: deva *] mukhaṁ [k kh g: mukhe] aghorasya mukhaṁ [k kh g: mukhe] jānīyāt [kh: jānīhi; g: jānīyāt] || tathā aghoraṁ [g: -ra] sarvatomukham iti || sarvatomukham aghoraṁ [k: sarvo-; kh: * * * * * aghoraṁ] saumyarūpaṁ [kh: saumyaṁ * *] sarvavyāpī [kh: missing] bindurūpam ity arthaḥ || [. . .] mukheṣu pūrvoktahakāranavakeṣu etan mukhaṁ [g: -kha] bindusaṁyuktaṁ [g: -kta] repharūpam || raṁ [kh g: ra] || evaṁ hraṁ 9 || ity anena [kh: * * anena] krameṇa [kh: + iti] trailokyaṁ [k g: -kya; kh: -kye] tretāgnimayaṁ [kh: nāsti] viśvaṁ [kh: missing] gīyate || [kh: + yadi tretāgnimayam | viśvaṁ] vinā tena tretāgninā na kiñcit ||_

[2] Nirukta 7/14/4.

[3] Ṛg Veda 1/95/3, translation by Griffiths.

[4] Maitri Upaniṣad 6/5.

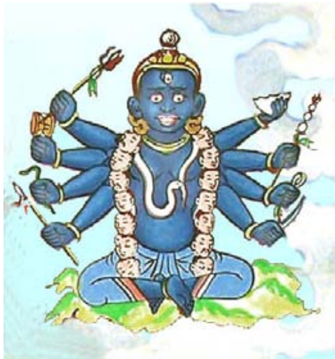
4) Śivā – the Dūtī of the Armour

In one place the ṢSS[1] refers to this Vidyā as Mohanī. But it appears from the following reference that the Dūtī of the Armour is called Śivā. According to the ŚM, she sits in the middle of a triangle above the head. There:



5.Śivā

> [...] one should think of her as sitting on a wheel. She has one face with three eyes. She has (a mildly fierce demenour), her fangs (only) slightly apparent. She has beautiful matted hair and (her) two ears are (adorned) with snakes as earrings. She is adorned with many ornaments and has eight arms. O beloved, in the right (hands she holds) a trident, double-headed drum, snake, and javelin. In the left (hands) are a skull, ascetic's staff, noose, and dagger. She shines like a firefly, has large upraised breasts, three wrinkles are (around her navel) on the middle (of her torso) and, very beautiful, she has (fine) thighs. The goddess is clothed in a blue garment and is on the seat of the Kiṣkindha (mountains). Supreme Śivā, she wears a divine garland of severed heads and waves her finger threateningly (tarjayantī).[2]

According to the KMT:

> By means of this he protects everything. Angry, he destroys (his) enemies. He is protected when death comes. Angry, he can eradicate death. That Kulasiddha who wears the Armour is like death (himself). He both controls and destroys Śākinīs (witches), ghosts, and

---

[1] ṢSS 16/30.

[2] ekavaktrāṁ trinetrāṁ ca īṣaddaṁṣṭrākarālinīm [kh: -karāliniṁ] |
jaṭājūṭadharāṁ divyāṁ karṇau [kh: karṇe] gonāsakuṇḍalaiḥ [kh: ghoṇāśca kuṇḍalai; g: gho -] ||
bhujāṣṭakasamopetāṁ [k: -samopetā] nānābharaṇamanditām [g: maṇḍitā] |
triśulaṁ ḍamaru [g: ḍamarukaṁ] sarpaṁ [kh: sarppa] śaktiś ca [g: śaktiṁ ca] dakṣiṇe priye ||
kādyaṁ khaṭvāṅgapāśaṁ [k: khaṭvāṅgaṁ; g: -yāsaṁ] ca kartṛkā [g: karttikā] vāmam āśritāḥ [k: vāma āśritā; g: -tā] |
indragopakasaṁkāśāṁ [k: -varṇābhā; g: iṁda- -sāṁ] pīnonnatapayodharām [kh: pinno-] ||
trivalītaraṅgamadhyasthāṁ [k: -sthā] nitaṁbāḍhyāṁ [k; -ḍhyā; kh: -ḍhya-] suśobhanām [k: suśobhanā; g: suso-] |
nīlavastrāvṛtāṁ [k g: -tā] devīṁ [k: devī; kh: deviṁ] kiṣkindhāsanasaṁsthitām [kh: di-; k: -tā] ||
muṇḍamālādharāṁ [k g: -dharā] divyāṁ [k: divyā] tarjayantīṁ [k kh: tarjayaṁtī] parāṁ [k: parā] śivām [k: śivā] | ŚM 13/27-31ab

> Vetālas (demons). The reciter of (this) mantra has a magical form (māyārūpadhara) and has the divine attributes of the king of the gods (mahendrā). He does many wonders by waving (a magic) peacock's tail (picchika).[1]

The Vidyā is recorded in all four of our sources: 1) The KMT, where it is written in full in reverse. 2) The Ṭīkā, where it is presented in the forward order interspersed with the syllables of the six limbs.[2] 3) A note in the margin of manuscript Kh of the ŚM. 4) A variant of this Vidyā consisting of thirty-eight syllables appears in the ṢSS.[3] Presented in the reverse order, each letter is named separately using the Mālinī code. Thus, this is presumed to be the most reliable version.

The Vidyā in the edited text of the KMT consists of 33 syllables. But as the Vidyā is set in śloka form, which consists of 32 syllables, it appears that the correct form actually consists of 32 syllables and this is confirmed by the ŚM.[4] Also note that almost all the accepted readings in the following edited version of the Vidyā are found amongst the variants of the edited KMT but they do not all appear in any one manuscript. The ṢSS enumerates the syllables one by one to make 38. According to the two manuscripts used to edit the Ṭīkā, there are twenty-eight syllables (aṣṭāviṁśat sic. aṣṭāviṁśati) but this is clearly a scribal error for thirty-eight (aṣṭātriṁśat). The six extra syllables in the version recorded in the Ṭīkā are those of the six limbs of the Vidyā, namely: HLĀṀ HLĪṀ HLŪṀ HLAIṀ HLAUṀ HLAḤ.[5] The version in the ṢSS substitutes these six with the syllable HLĪṀ, but not always positioned in the same places.

(Ṭ: + HLĀṀ; ŚM: + OṀ; ṢSS: + HLĪṀ) U (Ṭ: AU) TTAU (KMT: TTO, Ṭ: O; ŚM: TĀ) LI (Ṭ: missing) Ā SI MA KHKHI (KMT, Ṭ: ṬṬĪ ; ŚM: ṬI) Ā (KMT: A; Ṭ, ṢSS: + HLĪṀ) SABBA (KMT, Ṭ: SARVA) PU (KMT: PŪ; Ṭ: missing) HA I (KMT, ŚM: VI; Ṭ: + HLŪṀ) SAṀ BA KHKHI (KMT, Ṭ, ŚM: ṬṬI) Ā (Ṭ: + HLAIṀ; ṢSS: + HLĪṀ) DI (Ṭ: DIR) ṆṆI (KMT: NNI; ŚM: NI) Ā SI (Ṭ: SE + HLAUṀ) U LLE (Ṭ: LLI) MI (KMT: KHKHI; Ṭ, ŚM: KHI) Ā (Ṭ: + HLAḤ; ṢSS: + HLĪṀ) SAVVĀ (KMT, Ṭ: SARVA) DU (ŚM: DUḤ) ṬHṬHA (KMT: ṬṬĀ; Ṭ: VVĀ; ŚM: missing) BHE (Ṭ: LE) LA (KMT: LLA) KHI (KMT: KHKHI; Ṭ: KKHI) Ā (ṢSS: + HLĪṀ) I

---

[1] KMT 10/1cd-4ab (= ṢSS 16/2cd-5ab and ŚM 13/4cd-5ab, 24-5).

[2] See ṢSS 16/29-30.

[3] See 1) KMT 10/6, 2) Ṭīkā fl. 139a, 3) ŚM MS Kh fl. 112, 4) ṢSS 16/7-28.

[4] ŚM 13/23.

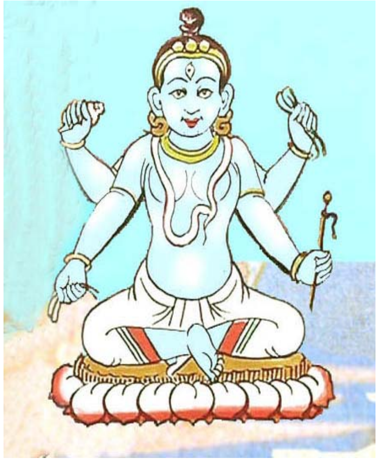
[5] See comm. on ṢSS 15/30.

5) Raktacāmuṇḍā – the Dūtī of the Eye

This Dūtī is born the goddess's supreme vision (paradṛṣṭi).[1] The KMT declares that:

> The great yogi who has mastered (the Vidyā of the) Eye sees the (entire) universe, both the world and beyond it (lokāloka), everything from Śiva up to Earth. Angry, he dries up all the seas and rivers, great and small. If he repeats it, established on the plane of stillness (nirācāra) and reality, he nourishes that state which is the inner sphere (antagocara) of the fivefold pervasion.[2]

The KnT tells us that this Dūtī is called Raktacāmuṇḍā.[3] This is indeed the goddess invoked in the mantra of this Dūtī, which stresses her blood-red colour (rakta). It is surprising therefore that this feature is absent in the visualized form of the Dūtī described in the ŚM which follows. Note also that she is called Parā in this passage, just as she is in the KMT.[4] Parā is usually white, although her attributes are not those of the Dūtī of the Eye described in the following passage from the ŚM:



6.Raktacāmuṇḍā

> She is (both) white and blue like collyrium (añjana). She is very powerful and has great energy. She has one face and three eyes. She bears a slight smile. She is adorned with beautiful earrings, matted hair and crown. She has four arms, is very powerful and is adorned with many ornaments. O beloved, the goddess holds a noose, goad, conch and thread. She has a necklace and anklets and fat, upraised breasts. She is charming with three wrinkles (around her navel) and is adorned with a jewelled necklace. She sits in the lotus posture on a lotus as her seat. The goddess is swathed in white clothes and is in the middle of the triangle. Once visualized, Parā (the

---

[1] KMT 10/11.

[2] KMT 10/9-10 = ṢSS 16/54-56ab; = ŚM 14/50cd-53.

[3] KnT 1/108.

[4] KMT 10/11a.

> Supreme goddess) established in emission bestows the fruit of every accomplishment.[1]

The white clothes of the goddess rather than the red appear again as a feature of the practice of this Vidyā outlined in the following passage. The vision the Vidyā bestows not only extends throughout the world, it is also a prophetic vision that extends through time. This is probably why the astrological work, the Svarodaya, a treatise that teaches how to prognosticate the future by observing changes in the movement and quality of the breath, is associated with this Dūtī.

> (The adept) should perform the magical application (upacāra) of this (mantra). (In order to do so) two virgins should be brought (there) along with scent, incense, milk and drink to a pure place. One should meditate as before on the goddess who wears white clothes.[2] O mistress of the gods, he should smear his consort's (dārikā) face with a coal brought from a cremation ground[3] while (the adept's) body is marked with the excrement of a peacock (śikhinocchiṣṭa). A jar, wrapped in white cloth, is (placed) on a svastika. (The adept) should bathe and, smeared with oil, eat crushed sesame seed. (Then when the deities) are satisfied, they see (him graciously) from the middle of (his) consort's face. The adept then sees whatever he has thought about consisting of speech in the world and the signs (nirdeśa) of things of the past and future within (her face).[4]

The Vidyā is presented in reverse in the KMT[5] where it is said to be fifteen syllables long (tithisaṁkhyā) although the Vidyā in the edited text consists of seventeen syllables. In the forward order it is:

---

[1] śvetanīlāñjanābhāsā [g: sveta-; kh: -bhāsāṁ] mahādīptā sutejasā | ekavaktrā trinetrā ca īṣatprahasitānanā ||
divyakuṇḍalaśobhāḍhyā [g: -sobhā-] jaṭāmukuṭamaṇḍitā |
caturbhujā [kh: -bhuṁjā] mahātejā nānābharaṇamaṇḍitā ||
pāśāṁkuśadharā devī kambusūtradharā [kh: kaṁmbu-; g: kaṁcū-] priye |
hāranūpurasaṁyuktā [kh g: saṁyuktāṁ] pīnonnatapayodharā [kh g: -rāṁ] ||
trivalītaraṅgaśobhāḍhyā [kh g: -śobhāḍhyāṁ] ratnamālāvibhūṣitā [kh g: -vibhūṣitāṁ] |
padmāsanagatā [g: -sanasthāgatā] devī [g: devi] padmapīṭhoparisthitā [k: padmapīto-] ||
śvetavastrāvṛtā [k: śvetarūpadharā; kh: sveta-] devī śṛṅgāṭapuramadhyagā [kh g: -gāṁ] |
visargasthāṁ parāṁ [g: parā] dhyātvā sarvasiddhiphalapradām || ŚM 13/66-70.

[2] The ṢSS adds: and meditate on the goddess who bears the form of such a virgin.

[3] ŚM bhīmāṅgāra; variant: śmaśānāṅgāraja; KMT and ṢSS: 'in accord with (his) inner feeling' bhāvanāntānusāreṇa

[4] KMT 10/14-8 = ŚM 13/89cd-94ab = ṢSS 16/73cd-80.

[5] KMT 10/12.

OṀ RAKTE RAKTE MAHĀRAKTE CĀMUṆḌEŚVARĪYAI SVĀHĀ

It is extracted from the Vajragahvara in the ŚM.[1] It is as follows:

OṀ RAKTE MAHĀRAKTE CĀMUṆḌEŚVARI SVĀHĀ

The Vidyā consists of seventeen syllables according to the ṢSS where it is presented in reverse in the Mālinī code. The same version is found in the Ṭīkā[2] which acknowledges its source as the Bṛhadāgama. This version of the Vidyā is:

AIṀ RAKTE MAHĀRAKTE CĀMUṆḌEŚVARI (ṢSS: RĪ) KHPHREṀ
SVĀHĀ ṬHAḤ ṬHAḤ ।

Note that in this version of the Vidyā OṀ is replaced by its so-called Kaula equivalent – AIṀ. Also, the Ṭīkā tells us that six permutations of KHPHREṀ are formed in the usual way by substituting the short vowel with six long ones and are added to the limbs to energize them.

6) Guhyakālī – the Dūtī of the Weapon

When the goddess's Weapon is used to chastise the wicked, the punishment is formidable (pracaṇḍadaṇḍogra). The adept who recites it with all its limbs in the prescribed manner becomes so powerful that, when angry, he is said to be capable of destroying the entire universe! It is no less powerful as a means of purification and for accomplishing any goal. The texts stress that it not only destroys one's enemies as a physical weapon would do, it also serves to counter the mantras and yantras of the enemy. Whoever wears this Vidyā around his neck as an amulet insures that whatever good or bad is done to him by someone else will also happen to that person.[3] Thus it is the embodiment of Pratyaṅgirā – literally the goddess 'Reply' – a form of Kālī who is invoked to avenge the wrong done by others to oneself. It is a particularly potent protection from the mantras of others, which she eats voraciously.[4] More specifically, the Dūtī of the Weapon is identified with Guhyeśvarī. Also called Guhyakālī, she is Mahāmāyā who 'destroys all weapons'.[5] The fiery nature of the Weapon is stressed repeatedly. Unfailing in its power, it is 'the death of death, born from the fire that burns the worlds (saṁvartāgni)'[1] and is generated from Kubjikā who is that fire. The texts do say that this Vidyā bestows spiritual fruits, even liberation[2] – not only magical and yogic accomplishments (siddhi). Even so, one cannot help feeling that this and the other Vidyās (except perhaps that of the Topknot) were originally primarily meant for magical and protective functions and other worldly aims. But once the other aims have been achieved, the adept can also achieve liberation, should he so desire.

---

[1] ŚM 13/55-64. The Vidyā is written in full in the margins of manuscript Kh folio 114.
[2] ṢSS 16/57cd-69 and Ṭīkā folio 139a.
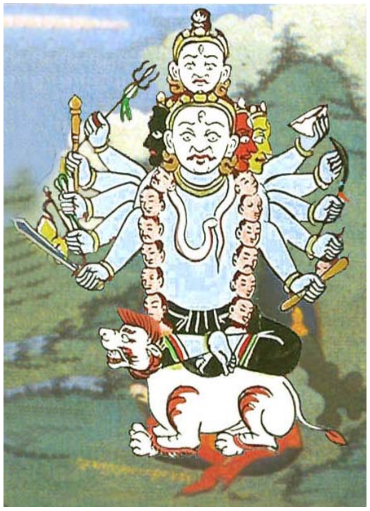
[3] KMT 10/20-25.
[4] ṢSS 16/171.
[5] KMT 10/22.

The visualized form of Guhyakālī is described in the following passage from the ŚM. An interesting feature of this form of the goddess is the identification of her faces with the goddesses Jyeṣṭhā, Vāmā, Vibhvī and Rudrī who occupy the Trika Triangle adopted by the Kubjikā Tantras.

> She is very fierce. She has five faces which burn brilliantly with fifteen eyes. Her eyes are slightly red and fixed. (Her) two ears are adorned with snakes (gonāsa). The eastern face is white and the northern face is red. O goddess, the western one is yellow and the southern face is black. It is fierce with large fangs. The eyes are brown and it is horrific. The upper face is white like a conch, the moon or snow, and gives liberation. It is said to be (the face of) Gaganāvatī (the Skyfaring Goddess) that brings about creation and destruction. The eastern one is called Jyeṣṭhā and Vāmā's face is in the north. Vibhvī is the western face and Rudrī resides in the southern (face). She shines endowed with the thirty-eight energies located in the faces.[3] [. . .]



7. Guhyakālī

---

[1] KMT 10/28.

[2] ṢSS 16/173.

[3] pañcavaktrā mahāraudrā tripañcanayanojjvalā |
āraktastabdhanayanā karṇau gonāsamaṇḍitau [kh: ghoṇasamanvitau; g: ghoṇāsa-] ||
śvetābhaṁ [kh: svetābhaṁ; g: śvetāsaṁ] pūrvavaktraṁ tu raktābhaṁ cottarānanam |
pītābhaṁ [kh: pitābhaṁ] paścimaṁ devi kṛṣṇābhaṁ [g: kṛṣnohaṁ] dakṣiṇānanam ||
daṁṣṭrākarālaṁ [kh g: -karāla] raudraṁ ca piṅgākṣaṁ [k: piṅgākṣa] ghorarūpiṇam |
śaṁkhendutuhinābhāsaṁ ūrdhvavaktraṁ [k: -varṇaṁ] tu muktidam ||
gaganāvativikhyātaṁ [k: gaganāvarti; kh: gagaṇāvati; g: -vatītivikhyātaṁ] sṛṣṭisaṁhārakārakam [kh: śṛṣṭi-; g: -kāraka] |
jyeṣṭhānāma [g: śreṣṭhā-; kh: jyeṣṭānāmaṁ; g: -nāmaṁ] tu pūrveṇa vāmavaktraṁ tu [k: ta] cottare [k: tottaram; kh: cottaraṁ] ||
vibhvīti [k: vāmeti; kh: viśveti] paścimaṁ vaktraṁ raudrī dakṣiṇasaṁsthitam |

Kālī visualized along with (these) thirty-eight energies bestows good accomplishments. She has ten arms and is bedecked with many ornaments. (She holds) a trident, mace, noose, goad, and an excellent sword in the right (hands). O fair lady, (each) weapon shines like the Fire of Time. (Similarly,) the divine weapons on her left side shine like an intensely stoked fire. (They are) a skull (kādya), club and javelin, (along with which) she holds a severed head and pestle. She wears a divine well-threaded garland of skulls that extends up to her feet. She shines brilliantly with the rays of the moon and, auspicious, is (brilliant) like a cloud of stars. She wears a garland of skulls on her head and is adorned with long nipples (cūcuka). Her necklace is made of beautiful snakes, and the king of snakes is the sacred thread she wears. She has a (big) belly (like) a wolf and is (blue) like a marijuana flower (atasī). She wears black clothes and sits on the back of a lion. She wears a necklace of many jewels tied and hanging from (her) waist. She wears a necklace made of yantras and mantras around her neck. Her two anklets are as pure as gold and mercury. She is endowed with a full set of limbs and is adorned with every ornament. She is to be contemplated in this way in the middle of the triangle.[1] aṣṭatriṁśatkalopetā vaktrasthā [kh: -syā] ca [k: tu] virājate [g: virājitaṁ] || ŚM 13/149-153.

---

[1] aṣṭatriṁśatkalāyuktā dhyātā kālī [kh: kāli] susiddhidā ||
dvipañcakabhujopetā [k: -tāṁ] nānālaṁkāramaṇḍitā [k: -tāṁ] |
triśūlaṁ ca gadā pāśaṁ aṁkuśaṁ khaḍgam uttamam ||
dakṣiṇe ca [kh g: na] varārohe astraṁ [k: astrāḥ] kālānalaprabham [k: -prabhāḥ; kh: -prabhāṁ] |
kādyaṁ [g: kādya] kheṭakaṁ [kh g: kheṭaka] śaktiś ca [kh: -s tu] muṇḍamuśaladhāriṇī [k g: muṁḍaṁ; kh: dhāriṇi] || vāmamārgāyudhā [kh: yudhāṁ] divyā [kh: divyāṁ] dīptānalasamaprabhāḥ [k: divyāna-; kh g: -prabhā] |
āpādalambinī [k: -nīṁ] divyā [k: divyāṁ] kādyamālā [k: -mālāṁ] sugranthitā [k g: -tāḥ] ||
jyotsnākiraṇasaṁkāśāṁ [kh: -susaṁkāśā; g: -kīraṇasaṁkāśa] tārakābhranibhāṁ [g: -nibhā] śubhām [g: suha] |
śire [kh: śira] kapālamālāṁ tu lambacūcukaśobhitām [g: -cuṁccuka-] ||
citrāhikṛtamālāṁ [k: citrakāhikṛtāhārāṁ] ca nāgarājopavītinīm [kh: -vitiniṁ; g: -śobhinī] |
vṛkodarīṁ [k: mahodarāṁ; kh: vṛkodarāṁ] nīlavarṇām atasīpuṣpasaṁnibhām [g: -varṇā aṭhaśī-] ||
kṛṣṇavastraparīdhānāṁ [k kh: -pari-] siṁhapṛṣṭhe [k: pṛṣṭha; kh: pṛṣṭa] samāśritām [kh: samāśṛtāṁ] |
nānāratnakṛtā [k: -raktakṛtāṁ] mālā [g: -lāṁ] kaṭibaddhā [k: -baddhāṁ] pralambitā [g: virājitā] ||
yantramantrakṛtā mālā [kh g: mālāṁ] kaṇṭhasthā ca virājate |
nūpurau vimalau tasyā [g: tasyo] hemapāradasaṁnibhau || sarvāvayavasaṁpūrṇāṁ sarvābharaṇamaṇḍitām |
evaṁ dhyātvā varārohe śṛṅgāṭapuramadhyagām || ŚM 13/160cd-168.

The KMT gives the Vidyā in full, reversing the order of the syllables. It is given in code in the ṢSS and the ŚM. It is written out in full in the margins of manuscript Kh of the ŚM and is also found complete in the forward order in the Ṭīkā.[1] As usual the version in the Ṭīkā is the one in the ṢSS. Collating these sources, the Vidyā is:

OṀ (Ṭ: HSKHPHREṀ) GUHYAKUBJIKE HŪṀ PHAṬ MAMA SARVOPADRAVĀN YANTRAMANTRATANTRACŪRṆAPRAYOGĀDIKAṀ YENA (Ṭ: YAT) KṚTAṀ KĀRAYITAṀ (KMT: KĀRĀPITAṀ) KARIṢYATI (ŚM: KARIṢYANTI) TĀN SARVĀN HANA HANA DAṀṢṬRĀKĀRALI (Ṭ: -KARĀLE) PHREṀ (KMT: HREṀ) HRĪṀ (Ṭ: HRAṀ) HRŪṀ (KMT: HŪṀ; ŚM: HUṀ) HRĀṀ (KMT: HREṀ; ŚM: HUṀ) HŪṀ PHAṬ (Ṭ: missing) GUHYAKUBJIKĀYAI SVĀHĀ (ŚM: + OṀ; Ṭ: + HRĪṀ)

Oṁ O Guhyakubjikā! huṁ phaṭ destroy, destroy all the attacks on me and (every) yantra, mantra, rite, magic potion and every thing else that has been made, is being made or will (ever) be made (to harm me), O fierce Kālī, hrīṁ hrūṁ hrāṁ hūṁ phaṭ svāhā (to you) Guhyakubjikā!

According to the KMT the Vidyā consists of sixty-six syllables. By omitting OṀ and SVĀHĀ at the beginning and end respectively, the Vidyā is reduced to sixty-three syllables and is then called Khādakāstra,[2] literally 'the weapon that devours'. But according to the ŚM (14/146-147) this is the name of the unmodified Weapon, which is said to consist of sixty-eight syllables, whereas the version in the ṢSS and the Ṭīkā consists of sixty-nine.[3] Although all the Dūtīs are linked to a particular Tantra of their own, in this case the sources take particular trouble to emphasize that this Vidyā is extensively described in the Guhyakālī Tantra, which consists of 125,000 verses.[4] The KMT adds that this is Kubjikā's Weapon that has come from the Kulālītantra (i.e. the KMT) and that the Dūtī of the Weapon is hidden in other Tantras but has been clearly revealed in the Kubjikāmata[5] as, we may add, a limb of the goddess Kubjikā.

---

[1] See KMT 10/29, ṢSS 16/84c-134, and Ṭīkā folio 139a-139b.
[2] KMT 10/30.
[3] ŚM 14/146-147, ṢSS 15/135a.
[4] See Dyczkowski 2004: 222.
[5] KMT 10/31-32 and 10/39.

The Tantras related to the Six Dūtīs

The KMT, the ŚM which follows it closely, and the KnT present a set of correspondences between the six deities of the limbs, their Tantras and the six Wheels in the body.[1] The passage in the KMT says:

> This is the group of the goddess's six limbs, which (bestows) various kinds of bliss. The glory of the goddess's Heart is the (substance) of all the Nityā Tantra. This dūtī who gives eternal bliss (nityānanda) is born in the goddess's Heart. Thus (Kālikā) is called Nityā and resides in Svādhiṣṭhāna. The Siddhā Tantra is born from the Head. The goddess there is very powerful. She is called Siddhayogeśvarī and is (also known as) Rudraśakti who burns intensely. She is a fierce (raudra) and very powerful goddess and, associated with Anāhata, she is praised in many ways in the Siddhayogeśvarī Tantra. Born of the Flame of the Fire of the goddess, she is independent, innate and tranquil. She is divided into many (different) aspects of Svacchanda and is a part of the Maṇibheda; thus were formed Svacchanda and the rest. She fills the Maṇibheda (i.e. Maṇipura Cakra) and awakens to the reality of Svacchanda. The Śikhāsūtra is impelled by (her) own independent (Svacchanda) nature. This is the Tantra of his Svacchandāghora form. The Tantra Saṁmohana and the rest is born from the Armour. He is seated in the state of Viśuddhi and is accompanied by many consorts (dūtī). It performs many astonishing feats and destroys delusion. Thus this is the Saṁmohana (Tantra) and its glory is extolled therein. The astrological work, the Svarodaya, has arisen out of the goddess's Eye. It is located in the foundation of Ājñā and is capable of many things. Its glory is extolled in 'the ocean of the lord of astrology' (i.e presumably in the Svarodaya). In the middle of the supreme Weapon is located the very powerful Khādakāstra.[2]

These correspondences along with the relevant references found in the course of the exposition of the individual deities, noted above, can be tabulated as follows:[3]

---

[1] See KMT 10/40-51, ŚM 13/196-208ab and KnT1/105-111.

[2] KMT 10/40-51ab.

[3] Cf. the table in Goudriaan 1986: 152.

14. Table of the Deities, Wheels and Tantras of the Goddess's Limbs

Limb	Deity	Wheel	Tantra
Heart	Kālikā	Svādhiṣṭhāna	Kālikā / Nityā
Head	Juṣṭacaṇḍālinī / Siddhayogeśvarī	Anāhata	Siddhā / Siddhayogeśvarī
Topknot	Śikhāsvacchanda (Aghoreśa) / Guhyakubjī	Maṇi	Svacchanda (Śikhāsūtra) (KMT 10/46) Dakṣa (KnT 1/107)
Armour	Śivā	Viśuddhi	Saṁmohana
Eye	Raktacāmuṇḍā / Parā	Ājñā	Svarodaya
Weapon	Guhyakālī / Pratyaṅgirā	Ādhāra	Guhyakālī / Kulālī / Kubjikāmata

Appendix IV

The Deposition and Goddesses of Kubjikā's Vidyā

The Vidyā may be worshipped in parts, as a single unit or in various places within the body, as the texts prescribe. Thus, for example, in chapter 21 of YKh (1) there are said to be eighteen places in which the Vidyā resides. There we read:

> One should meditate on the Kaulikī Vidyā whose form consists of thirty-two letters in (the following places): the Foundation (at the base of the spine), in Svādhiṣṭhāna (svādi) (above it), in the navel, heart, throat, palate, uvula, between of the eyebrows, in the cavity (at the top of the head) (kharandhra), at the end of the topknot (where she is) a shining light, in the Equal One, and in the end of the Transmental. She is Karaṇkiṇī in the Wheel of Emanation and (the Vidyā is present) in the Sun, Moon and Circle of Fire; Śaṇkhinyā is at the End of the Twelve and has emerged out of the End of the Nine.[1] (These are) the eighteen locations of the Vidyā; devoid of location, (the Vidyā) is useless. (Even) after having repeated the Vidyā thousands of millions of times, it is useless. Located in a place it always bears fruit and established in a visualized form (dhyānasthā), it bestows boons. O fair lady, devoid of location and visualized form, it is in a disempowered state (aśaktipada) and is not successful, if not revealed in (its various) divisions.[2]

---

[1] See intro. vol. 1, p. 417.

[2] *dhyāyeta kaulikīṁ [k, kh, gh: kaulikī] vidyāṁ [k, kh, gh: -vidyā] dvātriṁśākṣaravigrahām [kh: * triṁśā-]* |
ādhāre [k, kh, gh, ṅ: ādhāra] svādinābhyāṁ [k, kh: svabhinābhiṁ; gh: svabhinābhi; ṅ: svabhiṁ nābhiṁ] ca hṛtkaṇṭhe [k, gh: hyatkaṇṭhe; kh: hyatkaṭhe; ṅ: duktaṁve] tālulambike [ṅ: tāluraṁdhrake] ||
bhrūmadhye ca kharandhre [k: ka-] ca [k, kh, gh: va] śikhānte [ṅ: śikhābhe] jyotibhāsurā |
samanā conmanānte [k, kh, gh: cotmanānte] yā sṛṣṭicakre [k, kh, gh, ṅ: pṛṣṭicakre] karaṅkiṇī ||
sūryacandrapade dve ca tathā vai [ṅ: cai] cāgnimaṇḍale [k, kh, gh: vāgri-; ṅ: vāgni-] |
*śaṁkhinyā dvādaśānte [gh: -śote] vā [gh: vāṁ] navānte [gh: * * te; ṅ: nacānte] ca visarpitā [ṅ: visarppiṣā]* ||
vidyāyāṣṭādaśa sthānāḥ [k, kh: -yāṣṭāda sthānā; gh: -yāṣṭāṭa sthānā; ṅ: -daśā sthānā] sthānahīnā [kh: sthana-] nirarthikā [k, kh: nirarthakā; gh: nirathaṁkā; ṅ: nirarthakaṁ] |
śatakoṭiṁ [gh, ṅ: -ṭi] japitvā tu vidyā japtā nirarthikā [k, kh, gh, ṅ: nirarthakā] ||
sthānasthā phaladā nityaṁ [k, kh, gh: nityāṁ] dhyānasthā ca [gh: ra] varapradā [k, kh: varathadā; gh: hiranirarthakā] |
*sthānādhyānavinirmuktā [k, kh, gh: dhyānadhyāna-] vidyāśaktipade [k, kh, gh: -śakrapada; ṅ: vimvāśapada ] sthitā ||

A similar group of thirty-two goddesses are worshipped in a series of mantras recorded in the SKh.[1] They are projected into the Wheel of the Command (ājñācakra) in which the Yoginī Hākinī resides and to whom the first mantra is dedicated. This is followed by the complete Samayā Vidyā, which is dedicated to the three eyes of the goddess that correspond, as usual, to Moon, Sun and Fire. The form of the Vidyā in the KuKh and the SKh are basically the same.[2] There are only three small variants in three syllables of the Vidyās. These are ŚRĪṀ in the KuKh for ŚRĪ in the SKh and CHRĀṀ CHRĪṀ in the KuKh for CHĀṀ CHĪṀ of the SKh. The syllables of this form of the Vidyā are noted in the left-hand column of the table in appendix 5. After the presentation of the Samayā Vidyā comes a series of thirty-two mantras, one for each of the syllables of the Vidyā. These are coupled with a Nātha and his consort, the names of which begin, as far as possible, with the corresponding syllable. The Nātha's name ends with 'ānandanātha' and his consorts name ends with 'ambā'. Both names are prefixed with the honourific 'śrī'. Each mantra ends with 'pādukāṁ pūjayāmi' and begins with the Five Praṇavas. The first, which is as follows, is typical of the rest:

AIṀ 5 ŚRĪBHA BHRAMARĀNANDANĀTHA ŚRĪBHAGODARĪ – AMBĀPĀDUKĀṀ PŪJAYĀMI ||

The variables are as follows: 1) BHA: Bhramara, Bhagodarī 2) GA: Gagana, Gāndhārī 3) VA: Vasu, Vasumatī 4) TI: Tripura, Tribhuvanāmbā 5) GHO: Ghora, Ghorāmbā 6) RE: Rakta, Raktāmbā 7) HSKHPHREṀ Ciñca, Ciñciṇī 8) ŚRĪ: Śriyānanda, Śriyāmbā 9) KU: Kulānanda, Kuladevī 10) BJI: Vīrya, Vīryadevī 11) KE: Kiraṇānanda, Kiraṇāvatī 12) HRĀṀ: Harānanda, Haradevī 13) HRĪṀ: Mahendranātha, Mahāmāyāmbā 14) HRAUṀ Haradatta, Harasiddhi 15) ṄA Ṅamanānanda, Jñānāvatī 16) ÑA Jñānānanda, Jñānī-ambā 17) ṆA Narānanda, Nārāyaṇī 18) NA: Nāryānanda, Nityādevī 19) ME: Meghānanda. Meghāmbā 20) A: Akṣānanda, Amā-ambā 21) GHO: Ghorānanda, Ghorā-ambā 22) RĀ: Rāmānanda, Rāmaṇī (MS G: Rāvaṇī) – ambā 23) MU: Mukulānanda, Mukulāmbā 24) KHI: Khiṅkhiṇyānanda, Khiṅkhiṇī-ambā 25) CHĀṀ: Chāyānanda, Chandāmbā 26) CHĪṀ Chiñchānanda, Chiñchamātaṅginī-ambā 27) KI: Kilikilānanda, Kiṅkiṇī-ambā 28) ṆI: Nirānanda, Nirānandāmbā 29) KI: Kīlānanda, Kilikilāyī (MSs K KH: Kiṅkiṇī) – ambā 30) ṆI: Nirānanda, Nirānandāmbā 31) VI: Vijayānanda, Vijñāmbā 32) CCE: Cetanānanda, Cetāmatī (MSs K, KH: Cetovatī) ambā na siddhyati [k, kh, gh: sidhyaṁti] varārohe [kh: -rohaṁ] yadā [k, kh, gh, ṅ: taṁcā] bhede 'prakāśitā [k, kh, gh, ṅ: bheda prakāśitā] | YKh (1) 21/23-28ab.

---

[1] SKh MS G fl. 77a -77b.

[2] See above, appendix II.

Amongst the many depositions (nyāsa) taught in the SKh there is one called the Deposition of the Mothers (mātṛnyāsa), which is in thirty-two parts corresponding to the syllables of the Thirty-Two Syllable Vidyā. The names of the goddesses (each is an 'avvā') who govern the syllables, and the locations in the body where they are projected, are listed in the fourth and fifth columns of the table below in appendix 5. The following three columns record the corresponding details of deposition according to the Ṭīkā. This is also called the Deposition of the Mothers (mātarīnyāsa). There is a reference to it in one place and it is presented in full elsewhere.[1]

Thirty-two goddesses appear together as a group three times in the KMT. In the first instance,[2] they are the thirty-two Mothers (mātṛ) of the thirty-two syllables of Aghora (i.e. Svacchanda Bhairava) mantra. These thirty-two goddesses are not those who govern the syllables of the Samayā Vidyā; even so, the parallelism is relevant. The same thirty-two figure again as 'great mothers' (mahāmbikā) or Mothers of the Siddhas (siddhamātṛ) who are the Mistresses of the Wheel (cakreśvarī) of the thirty-two energies of the Moon (somacakra) between the Wheels of Sun and Fire in the Wheel of Skyfarers (khecarīcakra) located at the End of the Twelve.[3] The ŚM describes them as follows:

> Thirty-two others have arisen mad with their strength, their form is passion. They are goddesses with many forms and are adorned with many ornaments. They are complete with all their limbs and are marked with all (the auspicious) characteristics. They all have eight arms. In the left ones they shine with a skull, ascetic's staff and javelin. Upraised, they (hold) on the right a trident, iron club, noose, and thunderbolt. They are mounted on many (diverse) vehicles and thirty-two (in number), they are very powerful. [4]

They are worshipped again in a series of mantras called the 'deposition of the thirty-two' in chapter 23 of the ŚM which furnishes the practical details – mantras and rites – for the worship of the Krama in the maṇḍala. The "SM prescribes their worship after that of the Krama in the core of the maṇḍala.[1] The Eight Mothers (kulāṣṭaka) and then the sixty-four Yoginīs are worshipped in concentric circles after them around the core. In most of the variant forms of the maṇḍala, this is where the goddesses of the Vidyā are placed. The structure of their mantras indicates that they are goddesses of the consonants. Even so, their placement here was the result of an association that is easily made and obvious between the two groups.

---

[1] Ṭ fl. 8a and 122a-122b.

[2] KMT 9/3-7 = ŚM 12/109cd-112; ṢSS 15/62-65ab.

[3] KMT 16/9-12 = ṢSS 25/16cd-19 = ŚM 19/210cd-213.

[4] dvātriṁśānyā [k: -nya; kh: -ntyā] balonmattāḥ [kh: -nmatā] saṁjātāḥ kāmarūpikāḥ [k: kāmarupiṇī; kh: paścime kule; g: -kā] ||
nānārūpadharā [kh: kāma-] devyo [kh: -devyaḥ; g: devyā] nānālaṁakāraśobhitāḥ [kh: -śobhitā] |
sarvāvayavasaṁpūrṇāḥ [kh: -pūrṇā] sarvalakṣaṇalakṣitāḥ [g: -tā] ||
sarvāś cāṣṭabhujā [k: sarve cāṣṭa-] divyā nānābharaṇamaṇḍitāḥ [g: -maṁditā] |
kādyaṁ khaṭvāṅgasūtraṁ [k: khaṭvāṅgaṁ] ca śaktirvāme pradīpitāḥ [k g: -tā] ||
triśūlaṁ parighaṁ pāśaṁ vajraṁ dakṣiṇatonnatāḥ [k: -to matāḥ; g: -tā] |
nānāvāhanamārūḍhā dvātriśaivaṁ [kh: -triśati] mahābalāḥ [g: -valā] || ŚM 19/206cd-209.

The structure of the mantra of each one is as follows:

1) The Five Praṇavas
2) The syllable KHPHREṀ
3) A seed-syllable formed from a consonant, vowel and nasalization. These seed-syllables change with each mantra according to the serial order of the consonants and vowels. Thus the first one is KAṀ, the second KHĀṀ and so on. After the last vowel, the series starts again with the first vowel and continues to the last one. Thus a series of thirty-two seed-syllables are formed. An extra one – HAṀ – is added at the end to complete the series of consonants. Presumably, the goddess of this mantra is the thirty-third one, called Subhadrikā, who is worshipped in the middle of the thirty-two petalled lotus.
4) The name of the goddess in the dative is prefixed by 'śrī' and followed by 'pādukāṁ pūjayāmi'. These goddesses are listed in the last column on the right of the table.

The Ṭīkā[2] provides the details of how the thirty-two goddesses 'born of the goddess Samayā' (samayādevyodbhavā) should be worshipped in one of the enclosures of the extensive Kramamaṇḍala-cum-Gurumaṇḍala described there. These are different goddesses although they are each related to one of the syllables of the Vidyā and are associated with the Eight Mothers. They are not projected into a separate lotus in the maṇḍala, as is commonly done and in the rite described in the KuKh. In this case the goddesses are divided into eight groups of four projected onto the four petals of eight lotuses set in the eight directions. Each group is governed by one of the eight Mothers (mātṛkā) who is worshipped in the centre as its source.

The mantra of each of the thirty-two goddesses begins with the Five Praṇavas followed by the syllable HSAUṀ and ends with 'ambāpādukāṁ pūjayāmi' – 'I worship the sandals of the mother'. In between comes the name of the goddess. This is variously suffixed according to the group to which she belongs. The first two groups of four, in the east and south-east, are said to be vīras. Thus the ending 'vīreśvarī' is added to the end of the first names and should probably be added also to the rest. The second two groups, in the south and the south-west, are called 'ambās' – 'mothers'. The names in these groups are suffixed with 'kubjikā'. The next two groups, in the west and north-west, are called 'mālinī'. The last two groups of four, in the north-west and north-east, are called 'ambā'. These names are also suffixed with 'kubjikā'. Thus the goddesses of Kubjikā's Samayā Vidyā have a threefold character, as does Kubjikā herself. She is the goddess of the heroes who travel on the Kaula path, and she is Mālinī who is Kubjikā, the Mother of all.

---

[1] ŚM 23/87 ff.

[2] Ṭīkā fl. 109b ff.

The mantra of the Mother in the centre is built up as follows. First come the Five Praṇavas. Then one of the following seed-syllables, in due order: YĀṀ RĀṀ LĀṀ VĀṀ ŚĀṀ ṢĀṀ SĀṀ HĀṀ. Then comes the name of the direction followed by the name of that Mother's sacred field (kṣetra), then the name of the low-caste woman in whose house the Mother resides and the name of the aeon (kalpa) in which she came to earth[1] – all of which are in the locative. Then comes the part of the mantra that ends with the name of the Mother of that place and the acclamation ambāpādukāṁ pūjayāmi.

Note that the names of these goddesses, like those listed in the KuKh and the SKh noted above, begin with the syllable of the Vidyā. Although in some cases this is not achieved, the intention to do so is quite clear. The groups are as follows:[2]

1) East: Brahmāṇī: Prayāga – Veśyā – Śambhukalpa + AṀ AGHORE HRĀṀ ANANTAVĪRA ĀṀ KṢĀṀ HSKHPHREṀ Vīra: 1) Bharadvājī – Ananta (BH) 2) Bhaktikrandana (GA) 3) Vajracaṇda (VA) 4) Tirambha Ṭaṅkadhārī (TI)
2) South-east: Māheśvarī: Vāruṇa – Kalpapālī – Avāntarakalpa + IṀ AGHORE HRĪṀ KRANDANAVĪRA ĪṀ LĀṀ HSKHPHREṀ Vīra: 5) Ajitāruṇeśvarī (A) 6) Binduparānandeśvarī
7) HSKHPHREṀ KIṆIYOGEŚVARĪ (HSKHPHREṀ) 8) HSKHPHREṀ SHKHPHRĪṀ KIṆIYAŚEŚVARĪ (SHKHPHRĪṀ).
3) South: Kaumārī: Kullā – Kaivartī – Mahākalpa + UṀ GHORAGHORATARE HRAUṀ CAṆḌAVĪRA ŪṀ HŪṀ (HSKHPHREṀ) Ambā: 9) Kuraṅkibindukubjikā (KU) 10) Kubjinīlalitakubjikā (BJI)
11) Kekarākalāgnikubjikā (KE) 12) HSRĀṀ PRABHĀṢIṆĪ VIŚUDDHAKUBJIKĀ (HSRĀṀ)
4) South-west: Vaiṣṇavī: Aṭṭahāsa – Khaṭṭakī – Divyakalpa + ṚṀ SARVATAḤ ṬAṆKADHĀRIVĪRĀ ṚṀ SṚṀ HSKHPHREṀ Ambā: 13) hsrīṁkārī Kubjikā (HSRĪṀ) 14) hsrauṁkārī guhyakubjikā (HSRAUṀ) 15) Ṅamātā Vajrakubjikā (ṄA) 16) Ñaṁṭeśvarī Siddhakubjikā (ÑA)

---

[1] Cf. KuKh 14/93-4 and 16/3- 24.
[2] Ṭīkā fl. 110b ff.

5) West: Vārāhī: Jayantī – Kandukī – Ādikalpa + ḷṀ SARVATARUṆAVĪRA ḶṀ SḷṀ HSKHPHREṀ Mālinī: 17) (ṆA) 18) (NA) 19) (ME) 20) (A)

6) North-west: Aindrāṇī: Caritrā – Rajakī – Divyādivyakalpa + EṀ SARVA (HREṀ) PARĀNANDAVĪRA AIṀ SAIṀ HSKHPHREṀ

Mālinī: 21) Ghorāṅgī Aparājitā (GHO) Mālinī 22) Rāmavatyā Vyomeśī Mālinī (RĀ) 23) Muṇḍinī Diṅmālinī (MU) 24) Khebhārabhūtamālinī (KHE)

7) North: Cāmuṇḍā: Ekāmra – Cchiṁpī – Vartamānakalpa + OṀ NAMASTE PAŚUVĪRA AUṀ VAUṀ HSKHPHREṀ

Ambā: 25) cchrāṁ yāṁ Varuṇakubjikā (CHRĀṀ) 26) cchrīṁ Paramāmṛtakubjikā (CHRĪṀ) 27) Kirātapayakubjikā (KI) 28) Nilayākubjikā (ṆI)

8) North-east: Mahālakṣmī: Devīkoṭa – Kausakī – Tattvakalpa + AṀ RUDRARŪPE HRAḤ ŚĀNTAVĪRA AḤ HLĀḤ HSKHPHREṀ

Ambā: 29) Kilīmṛtā (KI) 30) Nilāmbodhā (ṆI) 31) Viṣamāṅgāmṛtodbhavā (VI) 32) Cettāmṛtā

The goddesses in each group of four look the same. These are described in the same order in each of the directions:

1) East: They sit on an elephant and hold a thunderbolt, rosary, book, and Indra's flag. Bangles adorn their arms, they indicate the Hāraketaka flower on their topknot, wear gold ornaments and look like Brāhmī.[1]

2) South-east: This group sits on a ram or a gander and is red. They hold a javelin (?), rosary and fire.[2]

3) South: They sit on a ram, hold a stick, rosary, jewel, and conch and are dark blue like a blue cloud or collyrium.[3]

4) South-west: This group sits on a man, or else on a mat. They hold a sword, shield, book, and rosary, and they blaze with the Fire of Time.[4]

5) West: They sit on a crocodile, or else on a horse. They hold a noose in the right and the left hands as well as a book and a rosary. They are dark blue.[5]

---

[1] pūrvadiksthitacatuṣkaṁ gajārūḍhaṁ vajrākṣasūtrapustaka-indradhvajahastam [-sūtrā- -ja ] kaṭakabāhubhūṣaṇahāraketakīpuṣpaśekharadiśaṣyamānaṁ suvarṇābharaṇaṁ caturṇāṁ rūpaṁ brāhmīsādṛśyam ||

[2] āgneyacatuṣkaṁ yathā meṣārūḍham athavā haṁsārūḍham | śaktimuruḍāśam (?) | akṣasūtrajvālāhastam | raktavarṇam |

[3] yāmye yathā mahiṣārūḍha daṇḍākṣasūtraratnaśaṁkhahastaṁ | nīlameghāñjananibhaṁ [-nabha] kṛṣṇam |

[4] nairṛtyacatuṣkaṁ yathā puruṣārūḍham athavā kaṭāsanastham | khaḍgapharapustaka-akṣasūtram [-sūtra] kālāgnidedīpyamānam [-khidīpyamānam] |

[5] vāruṇacatuṣkaṁ yathā makarārūḍham athavā aśvārūḍham | vāmadakṣiṇe hastadvaye pāśadvayam tathā pustakākṣasūtram | śyāmavarṇam |

6) North-west: Smoke-coloured, they sit on a deer. They hold in two upraised hands a sail (vātapaṭa) which is said to be the flag of the wind. In the two left hands they hold a book and make a gesture of fearlessness.[1]
7) North: They are like the autumn moon. They sit either on a treasure, a jewel, or a lion vehicle. Their hands are raised holding a pestle, a lion flag, necklace of jewels, bow and arrow.[2]
8) North-east: They are white and their form is like pure crystal and, adorned with ? and crown, (they hold) a trident, a citrus fruit (bījapūraka), a book, and make a gesture of fearlessness.[3]

Each group is listed with the fruit of their worship, visualization, repetition of their mantra and the drawing of their diagram with powerful (utkaṭa). The group in the east causes paralysis of the womb and the like. The group in the south-east causes distress to those one wishes to trouble. The group in the south causes death if the diagram is written with coals from a funeral pyre, poison or the like. The group in the south-west causes enmity. The group in the west brings fulfillment. The group of north-west causes expulsion (of an enemy). The group in the north brings peace and good health. The group in the north-east destroys all the vital breaths and gives the supreme state and imperishable liberation. In this way, if worshipped with sincere devotion, each group of four gives its own accomplishments; through them, what is hard to attain is attained.[4]

---

[1] vāyavyacatuṣkam dhūmavarṇam hariṇārūḍham | ūrdhvabāhukṛtahastadvayaṁ [-ya] vātapaṭaṁ dhāryamāṇam | tad eva vāyudhvajam ucyate | savyahastadvaye pustakābhayam [-ya] |
[2] kauvere [-vīre] catuṣkaṁ yathā śaraccandranibham nidhānaṁ vā ratnaṁ vā siṁhavāhanam | mudgarodyatapāṇiḥ [-ṇi] tathā siṁhadhvajaṁ tathā ratnamālādhanuśarahastam | saptamam |
[3] īśānacatuṣkaṁ yathā śuddhasphaṭikanirmalarūpam | jaṭāmukuṭamaṇḍitam | triśūlabījapūrakapustakābhayahastaṁ | śvetavarṇam |
[4] eteṣāṁ catuṣkāṣṭakapūjanaphalaṁ [-pūjanaṁ] kathyate | yathā pūrvadiksthitapūjyajapadhyānāt athavā paṭe lekhanāt bāhye vyagatigarbhādisarvaṁ stambhayet | āgneyacatuṣkaṁ [-catuṣka-] japapūjadhyānādi iṣṭānādādyaṁ (?) saṁtāpaṁ karoti | yāmyacatuṣkaṁ [-catuṣka-] japapūjanadhyānāt paṭe lekhanāt ca viṣāṅgārādidravyair māraṇaṁ kurute | nairṛtyacatuṣkajapapūjadhyānāt [-dhyānaṁ] likhitaṁ [-ta] utkaṭadravyair vidveṣaṇaṁ karoti | vāruṇacatuṣkapūjanajapadhyānāt likhitam utkaṭadravyaiḥ puṣṭiṁ karoti | vāyavyacatuṣkajapapūjanadhyānāt [-dhyāna] likhitam utkaṭadravyair ucchāṭanaṁ karoti | kauveracatuṣkasya japapūjanāt likhitaṁ śāntisvastyayanam ārogyaṁ kurute [kuruta] | īśānacatuṣkasya japapūjanadhyānalikhitādikena sarvaprāṇanikṛntanaṁ karoti tathā akṣayamokṣaṁ paramapadaṁ dadāti |

Appendix V

15. Table of the Goddesses of the Vidyā

Syllable KuKh, SKh	Goddess KuKh	Location KuKh	Goddess SKh	Location SKh	Syllable Ṭ	Goddess (Ṭ)	Location (Ṭ)	Goddesses in the KMT
BHA	Bhīmā	Head	Mitrāvvā	Forehead	BHA	Caṇḍā	Head	Caṇḍā
GA	Gaganā	Turīya-maṇḍala	Bhadrakālī	Left Eye	GA	Ghabastinī	Mouth	Ghaṇṭā
VA	Vegā	Eye	Ucchuṣmāvvā	Left Cheek	VA	Vāmā	Left eye	Mahānāsā
TI	Vīirādevī	Eye	Mālinī	Left Ear	TI	Ghorā	Right eye	Durmukhī
GHO	Ghorā	Eyebrow	Haṁsinī	Left Arm	A	Raudrī	Right ear	Sumukhī
RE	Raktākṣī	Eyebrow	Siṁhikā	Left Hand	MBE	Jyeṣṭhā	Left ear	Bālā
HSKHPHREṀ	Kūṭamudrā	Forehead	Kālikāvvā	Nails of Left Hand	HSKHPHREṀ	Ambikā	Right nostril	Revatī
ŚRĪṀ	Śreyas	Tip of the Nose	?	?	SHKHPHRĪṀ	Karālī	Left nostril	Prathamā
KU	Kuveryā	Between the Three	Śṛṅgāṭāvvā	Left Side	KU	Utpalā	Face	Ghorā
BJI	Kubjikā	Mouth	Rākṣasī	Left Thigh	BJI	Śikhaṇḍī	Throat	Saumyā
KE	Kaivartā	?	Aghorāvvā	Left Ankle	KE	Pūtanā	Right shoulder	Bhīmā
HRĀṀ	Haradevatā	Right Ear	Khecarī	Left Foot	HSRĀṀ	Mohinī	Right arm	Mahābalā
HRĪṀ	Harī	Left Ear	Kiṅkiṇī	Nails of Left Foot	HSRĪṀ	Jambhinī	Wrist	Jayā
HRAUṀ	Harānandā	Throat	Śivadūtī	Nails of Right Foot	HSRAUṀ	Śāntā	Nails of right hand	Vijayā
ṄA	ṄA	Right Shoulder	Pheṭkārī	Right Foot	ṄA	Sumukhī	Arm	Jayantī

ÑA	ÑA	Left Shoulder	Abjāvvā	Right Ankle	ÑA	?		Aparājitā
ṆA	ṆA	Right Arm	Koṭarākṣī	Right Thigh	ṆA	Durmukhī	Left wrist	Mahoṭkaṭā
NA	NA	Left Arm	Rudraśakti	Right Side	NA	Viśvadhātrī	Nails left hand	Virūpākṣā
ME	Maṭeśvarī	Heart	Mīnāvvā	Nails Right Hand	ME	Śvetā	Hip	Suśuṣkāmbā
A	Mīnā/Ambikā	Navel	Ciñciṇī	Right Hand	A	Abhayā	Heart	Ākāśamātṛ
GHO	Ghorāmukhī	Thighs	Śavarikāvvā	Right Arm	GHO	Mahādaṁṣṭrā	Teeth	Sehāryā
RĀ	Rāvā	Yoni	Laṅkāvvā	Right Armpit	RĀ	Vidyutā	Left breast	Jātahārikā
MU	Musalāyudhā	Cavity	Cāmuṇḍāvvā	Right Ear	MU	Jvālā	Stomach	Daṁṣṭrālinī
KHI	Khecarī	Suṣumṇā	Trikālāvvā	Right Cheek	KHE	Bhageśī	Navel	Śuṣkarevatī
CHRĀṀ	Cchāṁkārī	Right Buttock	Nayanā	Right Eye	CCHRĀṀ	Bhīmā	Left buttock	Pipīlikā
CHRĪṀ	Chiṁcchā	Left Buttock	Vijayā	Foundation	CCHRĪṀ	?	Right buttock	Śāsyahārikā
KI	Kiṅkiṇī	Knee	Bhīmāvvā	Self-supported	KI	Bindujayā	Right shank	Aśanyambā
ṆI	Kula	Knee	Śākinī	City of Gems	ṆI	Vibhatsā	Left shank	Puṣpahārikā
KI	Karaṅkiṇī	Thigh	Haṁsaḍāmarī	Unstruck Sound	KI	Kṛtā	Right foot	Bhadrabhīmā
ṆI	Nārāyaṇī	Thigh	Kaulinī	Purity	ṆI	Utpalā	Left foot	Subhadrā
VI	Vimalā	Right Foot	Kulāvalī	Command	VI	Śikhaṇḍinī	Back	Bhadrabhīṣaṇā
CCE	Varcikā	Left Foot	Kubjikāvvā	End of Twelve	CCE	Viśvadhātrī	All limbs	Bhīmā

Appendix VI

The Principles of Passion, Poison and the Stainless

The triad of principles – Passion (kāma), Poison (viṣa) and the Stainless (nirañjana) – recurs in the major early Kaula schools. They are loaded with esoteric meanings that relate variously to the practice and to the inner experiences and transformations that accompany the Yoga of Union with an outer consort. And this is how they are understood and explained by Abhinavagupta and his commentator, Jayaratha. As their interpretation is best known, we shall begin with that by way of introduction to the references we find in the Kubjikā Tantras.[1]

Drawing from his Trika and other scriptural sources, Abhinavagupta explains that these three principles have two aspects. One is particular (viśiṣṭa) and the other is universal (sāmānya). The former is represented by the three letters that make up the seed-syllable SAUḤ. The latter is represented by the letter Sa. This is the letter of the vital breath (prāṇa) which, is the pure, universal vitality (prāṇana) that possesses these three aspects. It is also the letter that denotes the pervasive Principle of Poison (viṣatattva). Thus in this, the universal aspect, all three are modalities of the nourishing and pervasive expansion (vikāsa) of consciousness called the Principle of Poison. They are the three energies of the supreme seed-syllable (parabīja) of the Heart, SAUḤ. The principle of Poison is the letter Sa. The Stainless Principle (nirañjanatattva) is the vowel AU and the Principle of Passion (kāmatattva) is the final letter Ḥ. This letter is called visarga, which also means 'emission'. Primarily this is the 'emission' of a higher level of consciousness. But implicitly, it is also intended to mean the emission of seed at the climax of intercourse, which in this practice is the outer sign and occasion of the inner emission. Let us deal with these three, one by one.

The Stainless is represented by the letter AU. This letter is called the Trident (triśūla) on the prongs of which are the energies of will, knowledge and action that fuse in the supreme form of the energy of action. Abhinava explains:

> This union of (these) powers with one another in wonderfully diverse ways is said to be the supreme and most evident form of the power of action. This is the reason why the Lord has said in the Mālinīvijaya that the Trident is the state that arises when the three powers (of will, knowledge and action) are fully evident in this, the abode of the fourteenth (vowel: AU). The masters who perceive the true nature of reality (tattva) call this the Stainless. This is because it is > the possessor of power who is made manifest (añjate lit. 'is stained'), while (His) power is (the cause of all manifestation and so) is never (made manifest) by anything. (When one says) that will, knowledge and action are each made separately manifest by their respective object of desire (knowledge or action), it is (in fact) the possessor of power (that thus becomes) clearly evident. When however this triad manifests as a unity, it is not conditioned by any (object of desire, knowledge or action) because they cancel each other out. Therefore that Trident is the fusion of the three powers and by mystical absorption (samāveśa) within it the yogi quickly becomes stainless (nirañjana).[1]

---

[1] See KuKh 13/76cd-78. See Dyczkowski 1992: 279ff.

Abhinava explains what the Principle of Passion (kāmatattva) is at the conclusion – one could say, at the climax – of his explanation of emission (visarga). The first part of his exposition is based on the important Trika Tantra, the Triśirobhairava. Once Abhinava has explained that visarga is the supreme energy Kaulikī that assumes this state when aroused, he then goes on to quote this Tantra. As in the Kubjikā Tantras, we are told there that Kaulikī is the seventeenth energy of the moon.[2] The written form of the letter visarga is a pair of points one above the other. Thus the Triśirobhairava says that she emerges in consonance with the movement of the two points (bindu) in the form of Kuṇḍalinī who is described as threefold.[3] The passage concludes: 'The movement (vibhrama) of creation (sṛṣṭi) and destruction (saṁhāra) are nothing but the emission (visarga) of the Lord (nātha).'[4] Abhinava continues and explains: 'The state of emission (vaisargikī sthiti) is the projection (kṣepa) of one's own nature from one's own nature into one's own nature. The emission released in this way, assuming a condensed state (as Ha) is technically termed the 'Gander (haṁsa)', 'vital breath (prāṇa)' and 'the consonant' (vyañjana, sparśa – Ha).'[5] He goes on to explain how this form of visarga, now audible as the sound HA, is heard:

> Therefore, this emission whose nature is a part of Ha (as yet) unmanifest is said, in the venerable Kulagahvaratantra, to be the Principle of Passion. (There we read): in the throat of the beloved, there is a letter (akṣara) which is unmanifest, consisting of a resonance (dhvanirūpa) independent of the will and free of meditation and

---

[1] TĀ 3/103ab-108

[2] See intro. vol. 1, p. 352 ff..

[3] See TĀ 3/137cd-140 and commentary.

[4] Ibid. 3/141ab.

[5] TĀ 3/141cd-142.

> concentration. (He) who has applied his mind there immediately brings the whole universe under his control.[1]

The gross, manifest form of emission is the sound HĀ HĀ that the Kaula's consort utters spontaneously while having sex. Concentration on this sound is easy as the mind is now free of thoughts and is undistracted. The yogi can 'hear' the unmanifest divine Sound (nāda) of consciousness and so is easily lead by it to a state of merger in the emissive state of consciousness brought about by the union of Śiva and his energy. Jayaratha quotes the following verses:

> That supreme and unpeturbable imperishable letter (akṣara) that arises from (the beloved's) throat is said to be Spontaneous Sound (sahajanāda), the perpetual recitation of mantra. The (sound) HĀ HĀ in (the beloved's) throat born of savouring the relish of eternal bliss is the self-generated utterance (of mantra) that bestows bliss and is the knower of the Principle of Passion. There the mind and the adept (should be) properly (merged) in this type of emission (visarga) of the nature of Unstruck Sound (anāhata). (As if) loosing control (of their) minds by the extremely pleasing penetration, they repeatedly recite this (mantra) during the festival of union with women. The Lords of Yoga whose minds are fixed here attain the supreme yoga. [. . .] The consort's (i.e., Śakti's) gaze should be attracted by (fixing one's own) gaze (upon her). He will (thus) certainly arouse the best of women, even if she is proud.
>
> One should meditate on the emission (visarga) which is the energy of Unstruck Sound (anacka) called Kāma that has come out of one's own eyes and has entered into the eyes of (the woman one wishes to) conquer (sādhya). One should meditate (on the same emission) that has come out of the (woman's) eyes and entered one's own. In this way, having laid hold (of this energy) – that is, having become fully concentrated (on it) without depending on anything else by repeatedly coming and going, swinging back and forth – one gains control of all beings at once, not gradually.

Finally, we come to the Principle of Poison – viṣatattva. The word for poison – viṣa – is derived from the root viṣ in the sense of 'pervasion'. The god Viṣṇu is so called because he is 'one who pervades'. Poison is 'viṣa' because its action pervades the body. Thus 'viṣa' denotes the pervasive aspect of consciousness. At the unconditioned level this is universal pervasion. At the lower conditioned level, the pervasion is limited to the psychophysical organism. This condition is binding and inevitably leads to death. Hence 'pervasion' in this sense is also deadly 'poison'. The higher pervasive state corresponds to the state of reflective awareness symbolized by the letter Sa. According to Abhinavagupta, the states of reflective awareness that correspond to the previous two sibilants (Śa and Ṣa) are ones in which the object of desire is becoming progressively more clearly manifest. He goes on to say that: 'then the universe manifests clearly within this letter Sa. Yogis call it 'Nectar' and the 'Supeme Abode.'[1] This is the lunar nectar that nourishes all things, and so the letter Sa is called the 'seed of nectar' (amṛtabīja). Ideally, the postulant experiences this and the other two phases in the course of initiation once his impurity has been burnt away by the action of Fire in the first phase. Abhinavagupta chooses to emphasize that these three phases are experienced with particular intensity during the course of Yogic sex (called ādiyāga in the TĀ). Thus he says:

---

[1] Ibid. 3/146-8ab.

> That Supreme Nectar (is relished) in the beginning, middle and end of (sexual) arousal, in the sounds of love making (sītkāra), in pleasure (sukha), in the essential being (sadbhāva), in (yogic) penetration (samāveśa) and in contemplation (samādhi). That is said to be the Supreme undivided Brahman.[2]

Jayaratha begins his commentary by quoting the following verse:

> Intensely (and instantaneously) he causes the circle of the rays of the senses to manifest. It attains stability there (in that state) as the taste (rasa) of supreme pleasure within it. It dissolves away here by the destruction of limitation (bhara) (normally imposed) upon supreme consciousness. The pure supreme energy plays alone here.

Jayaratha goes on to say:

> In accord with the process (yukti) mentioned (here), the first (thing that occurs) are the sounds of lovemaking and everything else (that takes place) because the wheel of the senses tends towards (the state of) arousal. After that, by resting there (in that state), penetration takes place in the pleasure that is supreme oneness (sāmarasya). Then, it is fixed and so becomes firm there (in that same state). (Now) it is said that 'the supreme Brahman is Being (sat)'. The state of the

---

[1] Ibid. 3/165cd-166ab.

[2] Ibid. 3/166cd-167.

> supreme Brahman is (the energy of) Being (sattā). The penetration (samāveśa) (that takes place) there by the submergence of embodied and other such forms of subjectivity along with the emergence of the subjectivity of consciousness is itself contemplation (samādhi). (This is) is the effulgence (of the Brahman) as the supreme energy of consciousness that manifests there in the locus of bliss (i.e. the genital centre) and other such places.

> Abhinava continues:

> The Lord Himself has said in the venerable Kulagahvaratantra, which is so named in conformity with its doctrine concerning the union of power (= kula) and its possessor (= gahvara). 'Out of love for you (O goddess), the Principle of Poison (viṣatattva), said to be Unstruck Sound (anacka lit. Devoid of Vowels), has been revealed. Its form is that of the Cavity of the Beak of a Crow and is free from meditation and concentration.'[1]

> Jayaratha explains: The Principle is everywhere unobstructed and is that of Poison, that is, the pervasive nature. That has been revealed, i.e. it has been experienced when the oneness (sāmarasya) – that is, the mutual union (of Śiva and Śakti) – took place. That is Unstruck Sound and so is called 'Devoid of Vowels'. Thus, because it is always active (satatodita), it does not depend upon meditation and the like – that is, on concentration (niṣṭha) upon a fixed object of meditation or the like. Moreover, its form is like that of the Beak of the Crow because the (principle that is) Devoid of Vowels is (the letter S which, because of its shape, is called) 'Double-humped' (dvikubja).

Before moving on to the Kubjikā sources, we note in passing how this triad is understood in the Śrīvidyā tradition. An unidentified source quoted by Kṣemarājā in his commentary on the Netratantra[2] lists sixteen supports (ādhāra) arranged along the axis of the subtle body which are experienced in the Kula modality (prakriyā) of practice. Kula is the first of them and is situated below the anus (meḍhra) and, as the text says, 'the one called Poison (viṣa) is in the middle (of it)'. This is the location of the downward-flowing breath (apāna) which is linked with viṣa. This breath impels the expulsion of substances and fluids from the body including the vital seed ejected in the course of emission (visarga). Thus, this source is tacitly teaching that viṣa is the emission generated by the Fire of Passion which burns in this centre. The praxis is similar in the Yoginīhṛdaya, a major Śrīvidyā Tantra. There 'Poison' is the name of the first Wheel, also called Akula, at the base of the subtle body. After that Wheel comes one described simply as 'empowered' (śākta). This is followed by Fire, which corresponds to Maṇipura, the Wheel in the navel. The Wheel between these two is Svādhiṣṭhāna – the Self-supported. Also called the Circle of the Yoni (yonimaṇḍala), it is the place where, during sexual intercourse, the tip of the penis touches the opening of the womb.

---

[1] Ibid. 3/168-169.

[2] NT 7/1-5.

Now, equipped with these explanations we may quote the following verse from the Vijñānabhairava and understand for ourselves the meditative practice it teaches:

> (The yogi) should fix his mind, of the nature of bliss, between Fire and Poison. Whether filled with the vital breath or alone, one should associate it with the bliss of Passion.[1]

The Stainless (nirañjana)

Raudrī, that is, Kubjikā herself is the Stainless.[2] But elsewhere, as here, the same term is used with relation to the god[3] in his transcendental aspect, beyond the qualities of nature and thought[4] but yet present everywhere. Thus the Stainless is specifically said to be Bhairava,[5] the Lord of Kujā – Kujīśa. The KRU also says the same in its own way. Supreme Śiva is both transcendent and present in all things, but this does not sully him with the impurities of limiting conditions. He remains 'unstained' and unaffected by time and space. He is inherently 'stainless':

> He who is the supreme Nirvāṇa is the Supreme Śiva who is both supreme (transcendent) and inferior (immanent). He is omniscient and is present in all existing things (bhāva). He is the stainless (nirañjana), the supreme Self, unborn and immortal; he is the abode of (all) people. The knower of reality, he is the Lord who does all things. (He is) the Supreme Lord of whom one cannot find the

---

[1] VB 68. The reader is referred to the first volume of the introduction (p. 256 ff.) for a brief exposition according to the KMT of the play of energies and vital breaths in the Wheel of the Self-supported which, in a similar way, may be activated through sexual union.

[2] KuKh 31/51cd-54ab.

[3] See, for example, KuKh 31/98cd-9ab and 36/55bcd-56.

[4] KuKh 40/88.

[5] KuKh 2/42-44.

> beginning, middle or end. He is free of form and colour, qualities and conditions. [. . .] He can be realized (only) through the bliss of contemplation (bhāvanā) and is free of locations or Wheels. (He is) the Void (śūnya) and the Void is (his) seat. Inconceivable, he has no (spatial) location (aniketana) and is devoid of the stain (of imperfection) (niṣkalaṅka). [. . .] All things, he is the innate nature of what exists (vastusvabhāva), devoid of the differentiation of the energies. Distant and near, though close at hand, he is far away. Stainless and pure, he is not born from the union (of male and female) (asaṁgīkarmaja). Born of Karma, he is devoid of Karma.[1]

The KRU teaches that the god has four aspects. These are: 1) the Stainless, 2) the form realised by meditation (dhyāna), 3) mantra, and 4) the individual soul (jīva).[2] Ādinātha describes his first, transcendental aspect, as follows:

> I am stainless (nirañjana), pervasive, beyond all things, and without impurity. (I am) imperishable, unchanging, inconceivable, established in the condition free of objectivity, without mark. I am the primal Lord of the energized form (sakala), without foundation, convention, endowed with great bliss, and devoid of arising and falling away. That, O goddess, mother of the Śrīkula, is my first nature (svarūpa).[3]

The KRU, like the KuKh, also identifies the transcendental aspect of the goddess with the Stainless, although there, as here, the term is more commonly applied to the god. The text reads:

---

[1] yo 'sau paramanirvāṇaḥ parāparaḥ paraḥ śivaḥ ||
sarvajñaḥ sarvabhāvasthaḥ paramātmanirañjanaḥ |
ajāmarajanāvāsas tattvajñaḥ sarvakṛt prabhuḥ ||
yasya nādir na madhyo 'nto labhyate parameṣṭhinaḥ |
rūpavarṇavinirmukto rūpādiguṇavarjitaḥ || [. . .]
bhāvanānandasaṁvedyaś cakrasthānavivarjitaḥ |
śūnyaḥ śūnyāsano 'cintyo niṣkalaṅko 'niketanaḥ || [. . .]
vastusvabhāvaḥ sarvātmā kalākalanavarjitaḥ |
dūrastho nikaṭaś caiva nikaṭo 'pi ca dūrasthaḥ ||
virajo vimalo 'saṅgī karmajaḥ karmavarjitaḥ | KRU 1/42cd-4, 49, 50-51ab.

[2] KRU 5/40-44.

[3] ahaṁ nirañjano vyāpī sarvātītaḥ sunirmalaḥ |
akṣayo hy avyayo 'cintyaḥ aprameyagatisthitaḥ ||
alakṣaḥ sakalādhīśo nirādhāro' niketanaḥ |
mahadānandasaṁpannaḥ udayāstamavarjitaḥ ||
etan me prathamaṁ devi svarūpaṁ śrīkulāmbike | KRU 5/40-42ab.

> O (goddess) called Parā, you are of my nature (rūpa); you also consist of these Qualities and, pervasive, (you) are consciousness (cit) and are called ever-manifest (udita) bliss. (Both) Kula and Akula, (you are) stainless and, inactive tranquil and without waves, (you are) merged in the centre of my supreme (transcendent) body. (You are) the mother of the essence (saṁdoha) of the Great Jewel which, free of impurity (amala), is divine, radiant (sphurat) and awakened consciousness (avabodha).[1]

Thus, as we have seen the commentary on the Mālinīstava called Bhaktibodha says that, out of all the principles of existence, '(...) the supreme principle amongst them is Nirvāṇa, the stainless essential nature (of all things nirañjanasvarūpa).' At least in one place in the Kubjikā Tantras the goddess is called Nirvāṇā.[2] She is both the Stainless and Nirvāṇa[3] and so is, no less than the god, the supreme principle. In short, both the god and the goddess are the Stainless as the transcendent polarity with respect to Form, which is that of immanence. The two together are said to be the union of Śiva and Śakti[4] which takes place at the level of immanence. Their identity as the pure, transcendental absolute, untouched by the 'stain' of manifestation, is their union at the transcendental level. Thus, the Stainless is not an ontological entity: it is a state. Indeed it is the supreme state, attained at the climax of the ascent from state to state – one could say place to place – until at the end the yogi reaches 'the supreme place (sthāna) where the god is stainless (nirañjana)'.[5]

Accordingly, the Stainless is the absolute itself realised at the highest level of ascent through the Wheels in the body in the state beyond the fourth state which is realised in the sixth and last Wheel, that of the Command. As the Void of dense, uninterrupted consciousness (cidgaṇa), it is beyond duality.[6] Realised in the highest state of Yoga, all those thus established in the Stainless achieve liberation by means of their own innate stainless nature and thereby also liberate others.[1] Thus YKh (1) declares:

---

[1] madrūpāsīḥ parākhye tvam api guṇamayī vyāpinī citsvarūpā nityānandoditākhyā akulakulamayī nirmalā nistaraṅgā | nirvyāpārāsmadīye paramaparapade dehamadhye nilīnā śāntā divyāvabodhasphurad amalamahāratnasandohamātā || KRU 13/4.

[2] The empowered (sakala) (aspect of the goddess) who destroys great sin is called Nirvāṇā. By means of her when (she is) attained, there is certainly (the attainment of the liberated condition of) flight.
nirvāṇā sakalā khyātā mahākilviṣanāśanī [ṅ: -śinī] |
tayā [gh: tathā] sādhitamātrayā [all MSs: -trāyāṁ] khagatir nātra [gh: -gatiṁrnātra] saṁśayaḥ ||
YKh (1) 18/7.

[3] KuKh 31/53cd-54.

[4] KuKh 28/148.

[5] ante yāti [k, kh, gh: yoti; ṅ: jāti] paraṁ sthānaṁ yatra devo nirañjanaḥ || YKh (1) 16/152cd.

[6] KuKh 3/134.

> O Bhairava, they attain liberation, which is the greatness called the dawning of one's own supreme nature, by the means of the stainless nature (nirañjanasvabhāva).[2]

Thus the term is also used with relation to the Self, that is, one's own most essential, transcendental nature[3] which is here called the Person (puruṣa).[4] Indeed, these three – the Self, the individual soul (pudgala) and Śiva – are all together the Stainless.[5]

The Principle of Poison

'Poison' is the pervasive state of the Absolute called the Neuter. From here the One Energy called Kuṇḍalinī, variously identified as that of the New Moon and Speech, emerges with the flow of the vital breath as the three energies of will, knowledge and action to form the Divine Triangle which is the source – the Yoni of emanation. This takes place when the 'Two Drops have been cast into the belly'. These are at once the polarities of the breath and the vital seed of the couple. Between them emerges the wise Kuṇḍalinī who is Divine Inspiration, the teacher of all, identified with the Teacher's Sandals (pādukā). Again, she is generated by the fusion of the Two Drops, that is, the Two Flowers of the male and female vital seed which fuse within her to generate the One Flower, the Drop (bindu) that is so sacred even the goddess worships it:

> Located in the middle of the Stick of the Cavity of Space, she is on the plane of the Nameless. Generated as Bhairava's will she, the supreme energy, pulses (lulantī). Unsupported, (she is) between the Two Drops, divided (vighaṭṭitā) above and below (as the two breaths). O Bhairava, (she is) the Sandal (pādukā) of the Lord of great bliss (mahadānandanātha). There is Śrīnātha and the energy called the

---

[1] KuKh 19/6-9.

[2] svabhāvodayanāmaṁ tu māhātmyaṁ [g: mahātmā] paramātmakam ||
nirañjanasvabhāvena mokṣaṁ [gh: -kṣa] yāsyanti bhairava [g: -vaḥ] | YKh (1) 34/101cd-102ab.

[3] KuKh 57/40-41.

[4] KuKh 13/77cd-78.

[5] KuKh 36/55bcd-56.

> Sandal who is the Bhairavī of Madana (the god of love). Kuleśvarī (says): "I worship the One Flower with two states of being (bhāva)."[1]

Now we should be in a position to understand the teachings regarding the Pervasive state of Poison according to the KuKauM:

> (Kuṇḍalinī) bestows bliss and so is the Goddess (nityā) (the Eternal Woman). She brings about growth (and development) and is the mother of the universe who instills certainty. She is the eternal Transmental. Devoid of the universe of thought constructs (niṣprapañcā), she resides in the life breath of all. She is the supreme energy called Kuṇḍalā, and is the seventeenth energy (of the Moon). O Supreme Goddess, having cast the Two Drops into the belly, one who is sustained by her obtains O Gaurī supreme marital bliss (saubhāgya).
>
> (As such) she is subtle. I will (now) explain how she exists in a gross form. She who is the first (and foremost energy) present in touch and the rest (of the sensations) above and below (at the extremities of the breath) is offered libation (tarpitā) by the union of man and woman.
>
> Residing on the plane of the Neuter, she is (the one) energy (kalā) and her form is (made of all the) energies. She is threefold (as) will, knowledge and action and abides (permanently), having pervaded the universe. Called Knowledge, (she is Kuṇḍalinī and) her form is (round like) an earring (kuṇḍala). Called Action, she is the mother of the letters (varṇamātṛkā). Called Will, (her) form is mantra. She is (both) the object of denotation and what denotes it. Associated with (both) cause and effect, she emerges from within the (pervasive state of) Poison. She has three natures, resides on three paths, and is endowed with the three causes and the three energies. She is conjoined with the letter E. (As) the Supreme Power, she resides within Śiva.[2]

---

[1] *kharaṇḍadaṇḍamadhyasthā [k, gh: taraṁturaṁḍa-; g: ta-; ṅ: taraṁḍaraṁḍa-] anāmapadam āśritā [k: manāma-; gh: manāmaya * m-; ṅ: manāmayadam-]* ||
bhairavecchā samutpannā lulantī [gh: tulaṁti] paramā kalā |
*bindudvaye nirālambā adha - ūrdhvavighaṭṭitā [gh: ardha - * * -]* ||
mahadānandanāthasya [k: -māthasya] pādukā iti [k, gh: pādukāsibhi; g, ṅ: pādukām iti] bhairava [g: -vaḥ] |
śrīnāthaṁ pādukākhyā [k, gh, ṅ: -bhyāṁ; g: -khyaṁ] ca kalā madanabhairavī [g: ?] ||
ekaṁ [gh: evaṁ] puṣpaṁ [k, gh, ṅ: puṣpa] dvibhir bhāvaiḥ [k, gh: -vai; g: -ve] pūjyāmīti [gh: -sīti] kuleśvarī | YKh (1) 34/123cd-126ab.

[2] paraṁ saubhāgyam ādhatte tena nityā prakīrtitā || vārdhanī ca jaganmātā nityā niścayakārikā |
nityonmanī niṣprapañcā sarvaprāṇavyavasthitā ||

The Principle of Passion

As in the Yogic system of the Yoginīhṛdaya, Passion is the Drop in the Cavity of the Brahmā at the base of Suṣumṇā. But this is not at the bottom of Suṣumṇā, but rather at the top.

> The Liṅga facing west is said to be within the Yoni. The Self-Born that is called the Shining (bāṇaliṅga) is located in the Point of the Knot of the Heart. Another is the Other One (itaraliṅga), which is interposed (antarālastha) below emission (visarga). The forest of the Great Lotus is here and it is called the sacred seat of Yoga. Its form is that of a Kadamba bud. That is Passion (kāma) in the form of the Drop within the Cavity of Brahmā. The Sphere of the Foundation (ādhāramaṇḍala) of Suṣumṇā is there.[1]

The Principle of Passion is described in the following passage with graphic symbolic language. It is the intense desire that emerges in the moment of the union of Śiva and Śakti and of their human counterparts at the lower level. For those who lack discernment they miss this opportunity by confusing this Divine Passion with lust and desire. These must be transformed by the Divine Passion that impels and leads upward along Suṣumṇā, 'the Path of Power', to union with the Supreme Principle at the highest level:

---

kuṇḍalākhyā parā śaktiḥ sā ca saptadaśī kalā |
bindudvayaṁ vinikṣipya jaṭhare parameśvari ||
tayā adhiṣṭhito gauri paraṁ saubhāgyam āpnuyāt |
sā sūkṣmā sthūlarūpeṇa yathā sā tad vadāmy aham ||
adhordhvasparśagādimā strīpuṁyogena tarpitā |
napuṁsakapadāntasthā sā kalā kalavigrahā ||
jñānakriyecchā trividhā vyāpya viśve vyavasthitā |
jñānākhyā kuṇḍalākārā kriyākhyā varṇamātṛkā ||
icchākhyā mantrarūpā sā vācyavācakalakṣaṇā |
kāryakāraṇasaṁyuktā viṣasyāntavisarpiṇī ||
trisvarūpā trimārgasthā kāraṇatrayasaṁyutā |
śaktitrayasamopetā caikāreṇa vibheditā ||
parā śaktiḥ śivāntasthā | KuKauM 4/6cd-14a.

[1] paścimābhimukhaṁ liṅgaṁ yonisthaṁ parikīrtitam ||
hṛdgranthibindusaṁsthānaṁ svayaṁbhūr bāṇavācakam |
itaraṁ cāntarālasthaṁ visargādhas tathāparam ||
mahāpadmavanaṁ cātra yogapīṭhaṁ prakīrtitam |
kadambagolakākāraṁ tat kāmaṁ bindurūpiṇam ||
brahmarandhre tu tatraiva suṣumṇādhāramaṇḍalam | KuKauM 5/6cd-9ab.

> I will tell you the characteristic mark of the Principle of Passion, which is the supreme divine (act of) attraction. So listen (as I explain it) briefly. ‘(It is) established in Passion, established in the activity (vṛtti) of Passion, encapsulated in the belly of Passion. One should accomplish Passion with Passion and cast Passion in to (all of one's) desires. Once he has been made passionate with Passion, one certainly disturbs the one established in Passion. You have hidden (this) Principle for fear of those with cruel minds.’
>
> Know that the world (bhuvana) is that which is established in Passion. (Its) form (vigraha) is in the midst of Passion. The Yoni contains Passion. The encapsulation is the one called the Point. One should accomplish the Principle of Passion with this very Passion. One should imagine that very Passion within the Yoni of what is to be attained (sādhya). Once one has churned it with the Point, the supreme nectar is located in Emission (visarga). What is within that should certainly agitate what is within the Yoni by means of the path of power (śaktimārga).[1]

In brief, we can say that the Poison is the pervasive state of consciousness that generates Kuṇḍalinī. In a sense it is the exhalation of the Absolute Being through which Kuṇḍalinī descends, forming itself as it does so into the Yoni, the matrix of energies, which is the source of emanation. Conversely, Fire is the upsurge of vital energy generated by union within the Yoni that leads back to Absolute transcendental being within which the upper, supreme union takes place. Thus, according to the ṢSS and its commentary, the principle of Passion is the upward-moving Kuṇḍalinī. The principle of Poison is the downward-moving Kuṇḍalinī and the Stainless is the Kuṇḍalinī in the middle. She travels up by means of the channel called Piṅgalā, which is on the right and corresponds to the Sun. She travels down by means of Iḍā, which is on the left and corresponds to the Moon. The Channel of Brahmā (brahmānāḍī), that is, Suṣumṇā, which is in the middle, corresponds to Fire. The plane of the Stainless is essentially that of Śiva's pure will that operates both in the pervasive state of Poison and the intensity of the intent of the Fire of passion (kāma) through which the world is created. It is said to be 'the penetration (āveśa) of the Command of the Mind, and it is impelled in (both) Kula (Śakti) and Akula (Śiva).'[1] What is meant by mind here? We find the answer in this passage from the YKh:

---

[1] ahaṁ te kathayiṣyāmi kāmatattvasya lakṣaṇam |
ākarṣaṇaṁ paraṁ divyaṁ śṛṇuṣvaivaṁ samāsataḥ ||
kāmasthaṁ kāmavṛttasthaṁ kāmodaraputīkṛtam |
kāmena sādhayet kāmaṁ kāmaṁ kāmeṣu nikṣipet ||
kāmena kāmikaṁ kṛtvā kāmasthaṁ kṣobhayed dhruvam |
tvayāpi gopitaṁ tattvaṁ bhayād vai krūracetasām ||
kāmasthaṁ bhuvanaṁ jñeyaṁ kāmamadhye tu vigraham |
kāmodaraṁ bhaved yoniḥ puṭaṁ tad bindusaṁjñakaṁ ||
anenaiva tu kāmena kāmatattvaṁ tu sādhayet |
etad eva hi kāmaṁ tu sādhyayonau prakalpayet ||
bindunā mathitaṁ kṛtvā visargasthaṁ parāmṛtam |
śaktimārgeṇa yonisthaṁ tadantaḥ kṣobhayed dhruvam || KuKauM 5/137-142.

> The one who recites mantra, whose form is invisible, will become my equal (says the goddess). (He is) the stainless (nirañjana) god directly apparent, the inexplicable (anākhya), the supreme plane. He does not die and he has no worries on the plane of the Skyfarer. There is no return for him again. He is the mind (manas) on the Śāmbhava plane.[2]

Fire and Poison represent the two polarities of the movement of Kuṇḍalinī. One is the upward, anticlockwise spiral movement, the other a downward clockwise one. In her upward movement, Kuṇḍalinī is the goddess who embodies the energy of bliss (ānandaśakti) that generates it.[3] The climax of the upward spiral rotation of this energy marks the summit of Kuṇḍalinī's ascent and completes the development and the emergence of the liberating power of bliss. There, at the end of her rotation, the goddess resides in the Stainless reality between Fire and Poison.[4] This is the Yoni, the goddess who is Vaiṣṇavī, the stainless form of Mahāmāyā,[5] 'Mother Kujā who moves at the extremity of Māyā's nature (rūpa).'[6] Pervading all three, she reveals the pure consciousness of deity and the yogi attains liberation.

---

[1] KuKh 57/72.

[2] adṛṣṭavigraho [k, kh: -vigrahaur; gh: -vigrahor; ṅ: -grahe] mantrī [k, kh: matrī] mama tulyo bhaviṣyati ||
sākṣān nirañjanaṁ devaṁ [ṅ: deviṁ] anākhyaṁ [kh: anā anākhyaṁ; gh: ayanākhyaṁ] paramaṁ padam |
maraṇaṁ na [gh: missing] bhavet [k, gh: bhave] tasya kā cintā [k, kh, gh: ciṁttā] khecare [k, kh, gh: khecarā; ṅ: -rī] pade ||
na tasya punarāvṛtir [gh: punarāgavṛttir] mano 'sau śāmbhave pade | YKh 18/28cd-30ab.

[3] See KuKh 59/92.

[4] KuKh 18/67.

[5] KuKh 39/29cd-30ab.

[6] vahniviṣasya [ṅ: vahnerviṣasya] madhyasthā saṁlīnā [ṅ: saṁsthitā] yā kujāmbikā |
tatrasthā vaiṣṇavī jñeyā māyārūpāntacāriṇī [gh: -rūpatacāriṇī] || YKh (1) 25/91.

Appendix VII

16. The Eight Mothers and their Sacred Fields

Direction	Place (external)	Place (internal)	Mother	Bhairava	Deity of the House	Yoginī	Dūtī (KuKh)	Dūtī (TĀ)
East	Prayāga	Navel	Brahmāṇi	Asitāṅga	Kulāvalī	Akṣarī	Veśyā	Mātaṅgī
South-east	Varaṇā	Heart	Śāṅkarī (Māheśvarī)	Ruru	Śākinī	?	Śuṇḍinī	Kajjalī
South	Kollā	Throat	Kaumārī	Caṇḍa	Veśyāvalī	Kuṁkuṇḍī	Kaivartinī	Saunī
South-west	Aṭṭahāsa	Palate	Vaiṣṇavī	Krodha	Yakṣiṇī	Kauśalī	Khaṭṭikī	Kāmukī
West	Jayantikā	Drop	Vārāhī	Unmatta	Bhuktivatī	Kāñcīmukhā	Kaṇḍukī	Carmakāriṇī
North-west	Caritra	Sound	Indrāṇī	Kāpālīśa	Kṣemaṅkarī	Vāgeśī	Rajakī	Dhvajinī
North	Ekāmraka[1]	Energy	Cāmuṇḍā	Bhīṣaṇa	Niṣkramaṇā	Śāṅkarī	Śilpinī	Asthividāriṇī
North-east	Devikoṭa	Teacher's Mouth	Mahālakṣmī	Saṁhāra	Maṅgalā	Bhairavī	Kauṭikī	Dhivarī

This table has been compiled on the basis of several sources. The location of the eight places in the directions is supplied by the Kāmākhyaguhyasiddhi (quoted by Bagchi on page 6 of his introduction to the KJN and Dehejia 1986: 48), the KRU (10/98-100) and the Ṭīkā (fl. 52b-53a), which also supplies the names of the Bhairavas. The location of these places in the body is listed in KuKh 14/78-80. The Mothers and their locations are listed in KuKh 16/13-15. The entries in the next three columns are drawn from the mantras in KuKh 14/93-94 and KuKh 16/5-12. The last column records the *dūtī*s in these places according to the Mādhavakula section of the Jayadrathayāmala and the Devyāyāmala quoted in TĀ 29/66-67.

---

[1] This place is Āmrātakeśvara according to the Mādhavakula quoted by Abhinavagupta in TĀ 29/66-67.

Appendix VIII

The Hymn to the Sacred Seats

The Hymn to the Sacred Seats is a eulogy of sixty-four sacred sites in as many verses, of which the first twenty-four are drawn directly from chapter twenty-two of the KMT.[1] The remaining forty verses and sites are, in a sense, an expansion of the text of the KMT, just as they are of the sacred geography of the Kubjikā Tantras. The KMT refers to the recitation of the first twenty-four verses dedicated to as many sacred sites simply as 'praising the sacred seats',[2] whereas they are called the Hymn to the Sacred Seats – Pīṭhastava, as is the longer version here – in the ṢSS[3] which reproduces them in chapter thirty-four.[4]

A comparison of the twenty-four sites mentioned in the KMT with a set of twenty-four listed in the TS, a Trika Tantra, and the JY and thirty-two in the Niśisaṁcāratantra, both Kālī Tantras, and those of other schools, including Buddhist, reveals that they are virtually common to all of them.[5] Significant, characterizing differences from text to text or from school to school may be found within particular details relating to the sites and, no less specifically, their configuration. The KMT divides the twenty-four sites, ranging from Aṭṭahāsa to Rājagṛha, into Kṣetras, Upakṣetras and Sandohas. Our text mentions seven groups. Presumably, they also consist of eight sites each, thus making fifty-six. Another group of eight would make the full compliment of sixty-four sites and with them the common configuration of the sixty-four ('eight times eight') Yoginīs who reside in them. But although this configuration is the one would expect as the most natural one, the sites are not divided up in this way. Instead they are divided into two large groups. Ignoring its relationship with the KMT, fifty-four rather than twenty-four sites are grouped together in one long section,[6] followed by another containing the remaining ten.

The first fifty-four are the meeting grounds (saṁdoha), primary and secondary sacred fields (kṣetra, upakṣetra). However, as with the KMT, there is no indication to which category the individual sites belong. The same is true of the last ten sites which we are told are primary and secondary seats (upapīṭha) and meeting grounds. We shall see that these groupings probably reflect stages in the redaction of the text of the Hymn to the Sacred Seats and with it the development of the sacred geography of the Kubjikā Tantras.

---

[1] KMT 22/23-46 = KuKh 16/33cd-57ab.

[2] KMT 22/50b = ṢSS 34/54b = KuKh 16/103b.

[3] pīṭhastave ca ye proktāḥ savṛkṣāyudhapālakāḥ ṢSS 25/14cd (??) and commentary on ṢSS 34/25.

[4] KMT 22/23-46 = ṢSS 34/28-52.

[5] See Dyczkowski 2004: chapter four, for maps and tables of these and other related sites and comparative analysis of the texts.

[6] KuKh 16/87cd-88.

While I have been able to trace as many as five texts apart from the KMT and KuKh in which the first twenty-four sites appear, I could only find two with the full compliment of sixty-four. One of these is Ambāmatasaṁhitā. In chapter six, we find another Hymn to the Sacred Seats (pīthastotra). Although this is not the same as the one in the KuKh, it is closely related. Also in this version, the first twenty-four are those of the KMT, the text of which the AS follows quite closely. The major differences, additions and omissions, are found in the remaining sites and text. These are recorded in the notes to the edition and translation and will be analyzed in due course further ahead.

Essentially the same set of sixty-four sites is also found in a Kashmiri Kālī Krama liturgy called the Kālīkulakramārcana[1] by Vimalaprabodha.[2] There these places are arranged on a sixty-four petalled lotus in groups of eight set in the eight directions and are worshipped by means of a series of simple mantras as a part of the sthitikrama. The presentation in the KāKuKr differs in one important respect from the one in the KuKh. Whereas our text treats the Eight Mothers and their sites separately – even though the same eight sites reappear dispersed amongst the following sixty-four – the KāKuKr presents them as the first eight of the set of twenty-four, to which forty are added separately. These eight are said to be *kṣetra*s or *mahākṣetra*s and constitute the Kṣetrakulāṣṭaka.[3] This is followed by two more groups of eight called *upakṣetra*s, in which the Yoginyaṣṭaka is worshipped, and *saṁdoha*s, in which the Śaktyaṣṭaka is worshipped. These sixteen places and the goddesses who reside in them coincide in the KāKuKr, apart from the usual minor variants, with those in the KMT and our text.

Although the KāKuKr substitutes the sites of the Eight Mothers for the first eight of the group of twenty-four, Vimalaprabodha nevertheless clearly distinguishes the set of twenty-four seats found in the KMT that 'begins with Aṭṭahāsa and ends with Rājagṛha' from the rest. He signals that he considers them to be especially important by referring to them as 'Great Seats' (mahāpīṭha).[4]

---

[1] Kālīkulakramārcana NAK MS no. 5/88, Śaivatantra 163 = NGMPP reel no. A 148/10 folio 24. See below, note to 16/56cd-57ab

[2] A certain Prabodhanātha is the author of the unpublished Aṣṭikāstotra. He may be the same as the Kashmiri Kālī Krama teacher called Prabodha mentioned in the Mahānayaprakāśa by Arṇasiṁha as the disciple of Cakrabhānu (verse 163) whom Rastogi (1979: 178) dates to the second half of the 11th century. If Vimalaprabodha and Prabodha / Prabodhanātha are the same, then this is about the time the KāKuKr was written.

[3] Ibid. fl. 20b.

[4] tataḥ catuḥṣaṣṭidale aṭṭahāsādi rājagṛhāntaṁ caturviṁśatikṣetropakṣetrasaṁdohasthāne mahāpīṭhaśabdaṁ deyaṁ [-deyīṁ] pūrvaṁ ca pūrvavad aparaṁ catvāriṁśati pīṭhāni jñeyāni |
KāKuKr fl. 24a.

Moreover, the projection and worship of the twenty-four can be replaced by the worship of all sixty-four sites and the former are worshipped by means of 'verses of praise', as are the latter.[1] Thus, there seems to be little room to doubt that Vimalaprabodha knew the text of the KMT and that of the KuKh and drew from them.

Then the author of the KāKuKr goes on to insert the worship of what he calls the *Dvāra*s – 'Doors'. These are the eight types of sacred sites worshipped generically in the eight directions without reference to any specific place. They are: 1) Pīṭha 2) Upapīṭha 3) Kṣetra 4) Upakṣetra 5) Saṁdoha 6) Upasaṁdoha 7) Melāpa 8) Upamelāpa. The goddess is worshipped in the middle of these eight by repeating her mantra 108 times. After this the KāKuKr goes on to prescribe a deposition which is said to be clearly explained in the fourth ṣaṭka of the JY[2] and does indeed coincide with one found in the JY. But before this, the four sacred seats are deposited onto the head as follows: 1) Kāmarūpa – the eyes; 2) Pūrṇagiri – the nose; 3) Jālandhara – mouth; 4) Uḍiyāṇa – the ears. Thus there are two sets of twenty-four separated by this deposition of the four major sacred seats. The first set of twenty-four, of which the first eight are the locations of the Eight Mothers, appear as part of mantras used to worship the goddesses there. The second set appears in the context of a deposition in which only the sites are worshipped, as happens in the JY. The variants are presented in the table of the twenty-four sites below. Variants in the names of the following forty sites and their goddesses (the guardians are not mentioned in the KāKuKr) are registered in the notes to the text.

It is unlikely that this sacred geography was originally derived from the Kālī Tantras. While, as we shall see, the first twenty-four sites as a group are probably drawn from Trika sources, the remaining ones are largely, if not entirely, the result of internal development within the Kubjikā Tantras. This appears to be the case because there are several sites among them that are especially related to the Kubjikā school. One is Candrapura, a place unknown to other Kālīkrama sources that, as has been discussed, came to be closely related to the goddess Kubjikā – who in the Hymn is praised as residing there as her alter-ego, Mālinī, specified in our text as belonging to the Ciñcinīkula, that is, the Kubjikā school.[3]

---

[1] evaṁ caturviṁśatipīṭhāni nyastvā stutiślokāni gurumukhopalabdhāni paṭhanīyāni | athavā catuḥṣaṣṭipīṭhāni [-pītāni] saṁpujya paṭhanīyāni | Ibid. fl 22a.

[2] KāKuKr fl. 22a.

[3] KuKh 16/82cd-83ab, cf. KāKuKr fl. 25a. In view of the importance of Candrapura in the later Kubjikā literature, one would expect that it should be given a prominent place among the sites. The reason why this is not so may be because the source of this part of the stava was not a Kubjikā Tantra or, possibly, when it was compiled, Candrapura had not yet attained the status it enjoyed in the later Kubjikā literature.

The set of twenty-four sites found in the KMT also appears in chapter three of the KRU as a part of the Transmission of the Aged (vṛddhakrama). There it is simply called the Transmission of the Twenty-four, which is said to be a source of peace, to remedy any accident and remove all obstacles. Virtually the same set of twenty-four is found in the fourth ṣaṭka of the JY which is paraphrased in the TĀ.[1] Both texts prescribe the projection of the sites onto the body,[2] but although the sites are almost the same, their locations on the body are not. These projections induce the purifying ascent of the fire of Kuṇḍalinī and so, as the JY says, 'union takes place quickly and the (adept's) fettered state is destroyed'.[3] We notice that the deities associated with these places are not mentioned in the presentation in the JY. Similarly, only the places are mentioned in the mantras of the Kālīkulakramārcana. A projection into the body (not onto the surface) is described in detail in the Ṭīkā.[4] There the twenty-four sites are projected into the Six Wheels (ṣaṭcakra) of the Man of Kula (kulapuruṣa) in multiple ways so that all are present in all of them. Also in this case, only the places are mentioned. This implies that Kuṇḍalinī is raised purely by the power of the sacred place, which exists in itself independently of the beings who reside there.

Unlike the ṢSS, the other expansion of the KMT, the ŚM omits the Hymn to the Sacred Seats. However, the same sites and the Yoginīs who reside in them are found on the petals of the lotus of the Circle of the Sun (sūryamaṇḍala) in the outer ring of the Wheel of the Skyfarers (khecarīcakra) in the End of the Twelve.[5] Drawing from the KMT, they are divided into eight kṣetras (from Aṭṭahāsa to Devīkoṭa), eight upakṣetras (from Virajā to Puṇḍravardhana) and eight sandohas (from Purastīra to Rājagṛha). These are arranged in four groups of six *pīṭha*s; each group consists of two *ksetra*s, two *upakṣetra*s and two *sandoha*s.[6] As usual, the ŚM suppliments the KMT by providing iconographic details of the Yoginīs. These have been recorded in the notes of the translation.

The following comparative chart records the main variants in these lists of the first twenty-four sites. The sites are listed in the first column. The names of the goddesses are listed in the second and third. Although all the sources are based on the KMT, the differences in the presentation in the ŚM and, to a lesser extent, in the KāKuKr which partly follows it, require a separate column for them. The names of the sites are noted in the body of the text of the ŚM. However, in two of the manuscripts I have examined, they are appended on the end of the verses describing each Yoginī. The serial order in which the sites are listed is the same as the other sources. However, the insertion of two different Yoginīs and the displacement of another in the ŚM with respect to the other sources has skewed the correspondences between Yoginīs and their sites.[1]

---

[1] Cf. JY 4/40/152-158ab and TĀ 29/66-7.

[2] See Dyczkowski 2004: p. 172 figure 3 for a graphic representation of the location of the sites on the body.

[3] melakaṁ jāyate śīghraṁ paśutvaṁ tasya naśyati | JY 4/40/151cd.

[4] Ṭīkā fl. 1576b-157b.

[5] See Heilijgers-Seleen 1994: 152 ff..

[6] KMT 16/5. See Heilijgers – Seleen 1994: 153-154.

There are two series of twenty-four in the KāKuKr. One contains both the names of the sites and the goddesses, the other only that of the goddesses. The variants are labelled KāKuKr1 and KāKuKr2, respectively. KāKuKr1 follows the ŚM more closely than the other sources and so the variants have been noted in column 3 along with the entries from the ŚM. See below after the series of twenty-four concerning the remaining places in the KāKuKr. In columns 4 and 5 are the listed the guardians of each place and the attributes of the goddess there. The names of the trees in the first eight places are recorded in column 6. In the last column are the places in the body where the sites are projected according to the KRU, JY and the KāKuKr2. The latter is noted only when it differs from JY, which of the three it follows the most closely.

---

[1] The names of the twenty-four Yoginīs in the ŚM (19/41-44) are as follows: 1) Kadambā 2) Siddhidā 3) Lakṣmī 4) Jvālāmukhī 5) Māyā 6) Praśamā (Prasannā) 7) Vāyuvegikā 8) Pavanā (Pūtanā) 9) Ūrdhvakeśī 10) Karṇamoṭī 11) Ambikā 12) Ambikeśvarī 13) Agnivaktrā 14) Piṅgākṣī 15) Gokarṇī 16) Kramaṇī 17) Cāmuṇḍā 18) Prasannāsyā 19) Vidyuttejā (Mahābalā) 20) Mahākeśī 21) Agnijvālā (Agnijihvā) 22) Lokamātā 23) Kampinī 24) Bhagnanāsā.

Heilijgers – Seleen (1994: 153 note 9) compares the two sets of names found in the KMT (and the ṢSS) with those of the ŚM.

17. Table of the Twenty-four sites according to the Kubjikāmata

Site	Goddess KuKh/ KMT/ ṢSS/ KRU	Goddess ŚM and KāKuKr1	Guardian Kṣetrapāla	Attributes of the Goddess	Tree	Limb (KRU / JY / KāKuKr2)
1) Aṭṭahāsa KāKuKr2: Aṣṭahāsa	1) Saumyāsyā	1) Kadambā	1) Mahāghaṇṭa AS: Mahābala	1) Thunderbolt	1) Kadamba	1) Fat / Topknot
2) Caritra	2) Kṛṣṇā ṢSS & KRU: Kṛṣṇāsyā	2) Susiddhā	2) Mahābala AS: Mahāghaṇṭa	2) Javelin	2) Karañja	2) Bone / Cavity of Brahmā
3) Kollā KāKuKr2: Kollāgiri AS: Kaulagiri	3) Mahālakṣmī	3) Lakṣmī	3) Agnika AS: Agnikoṇa	3) Stick	3) Naga	3) Breath / Ears KāKuKr2: Right ear
4) Jayantī	4) Jvālāmukhī	4) Jvālāmukhī	4) Mahāpreta	4) Sword	4) Nimba	4) Marrow / Nostrils KāKuKr2: Left ear
5) Ujjayinī ṢSSc: Ekāmraka	5) Mahāmāyā AS: Mahākāyā	5) Mahāmāyā	5) Mahākāla	5) Noose	5) Aśvattha	5) Anger / Eyebrows
6) Prayāga	6) Vāyuvegā	6) Prasannā KāKuKr1: Praśamā	6) Pavana	6) Flag	6) Udambara and Palmyra (missing in KMT)	6) Skin / Mouth
7) Vārāṇasī (Varuṇā/Varaṇa)	7) Śāṅkarī (KMT/KRU/ ṢSS: Ūrdhvakeśī)	7) Vāyuvegikā	7) ? KMT: Śaṅkara	7) ? KMT: Mace KRU: Flag	7) Palm	7) Blood / Heart KāKuKr2: ?
8) Śrīkoṭa JY + KāKuKr2: Śrīpīṭha	8) Karṇamoṭī	8) Pūtanā	8) Hetuka AS: Trika	8) Spear	8) Vaṭa	8) Ear / Shoulders

Site	Goddess KuKh/ KMT/ ṢSS/ KRU	Goddess ŚM and KāKuKr1	Guardian Kṣetrapāla	Attributes of the Goddess	Tree
9) Virajā KāKuKr1+ 2: Viraja	9) Ambikā KRU: Kharāsyā	9) Ūrdhvakeśī KāKuKr1: Ambikā	9) Anala	9) Seal, spear	9) Bindu / Neck
10) Eruḍa KāKuKr1: Garuḍa KāKuKr2: Eruṇḍa JY: Eḍābhi AS: Eruḍī	10) Agnivaktrā	10) Karṇamoṭī KāKuKr1: Agnivaktrā	10) Ghaṇṭārava	10) Thunderbolt, javelin	10) Unstruck Sound / Neck KāKuKr2: Stomach
11) Hastināpura KāKuKr2: Alaṁpura JY: Hālā (Alipura)	11) Piṅgākṣī AS: Piṅgalā	11) Ambā KāKuKr1: Piṅgākṣī	11) Mahājaṅga	11) Pestle	11) Right hand/ Navel
12) Elāpura[1]	12) Kharāsyā	12) Ambikā KāKuKr1: Maṇī	12) Gajakarṇa	12) Noose	12) Left hand palm / Root KāKuKr2: Marrow
13) Gokarṇa KMT: Kāśmarī; ṢSS: Kāśmīrī; ṢSSc: Narmada; ŚM: Kāśmīra; KRU: Karma	13) Kumārī KMT, ṢSS: Gokarṇā	13) Agnivaktrā KāKuKr1: Gokarṇā	13) Taḍijjaṅgha	13) Seal, club	13) Right breast / Genitals KāKuKr2: Anus

---

[1] In the JY Elāpura is listed between Pauṇḍravardhana and Purastīra. In other words, instead of being the twelfth entry, it is the sixteenth. But note that the numbering of the parts of the body accords with that of the corresponding places.

Site	Goddess KuKh/ KMT/ ṢSS/ KRU	Goddess ŚM and KāKuKr1	Guardian Kṣetrapāla	Attributes of the Goddess	Tree
14) Marudeśa KāKuKr1: Maruvakra KāKuKr2: Maru JY: Marukośa	14) Indrāṇī KMT, KRU, ṢSS: Kramaṇī	14) Piṅgākṣī KāKuKr1: Maṇī	14) Karāla (KRU: Kamala)	14) Goad	14) ? / Right buttock KāKuKr2: Liṅga
15) Nagara; KāKuKr2: Nāraṁga ṢSS: Vetraguccha	15) Vakrā ṢSSc: Bimbakacchapā; KRP: Cetrakasthā KRU: Revākaccha	15) Gokarṇī KāKuKr1: Vetrā	15) Romajaṅgha	15) Plough	15) Hip / Left buttock KāKuKr2: Right testicle
16) Pauṇḍravardhana	16) Cāmuṇḍā	16) Kramaṇī KāKuKr1: Cāmuṇḍā	16) Kumbhaka AS: Kumbhakarṇa	16) Ascetic's staff	16) Third eye / right thigh KāKuKr2: Left testicle
17) Purastīra	17) Prasannāsyā	17) Cāmuṇḍā; KāKuKr1: Prasannā	17) Trijaṭa (KRU: Ghanarava)	17) Thunderbolt, chain	17) Right hip / left thigh KāKuKr2: left shoulder
18) Pṛṣṭhāpuri[1]	18) Vidyunmukhī	18) Prasannā KāKuKr1: Vidyunmukhī	18) Ghaṇṭārava KMT, ṢSS: Ghanarava KRU: Trijaṭa AS: Aghora	18) Stick, javelin	18) Left hip / Right knee KāKuKr2: Right shoulder

---

[1] According to the JY, Kudyakeśī comes after Purastīra and is followed by Sopāra. I presume that Kudyākeśī corresponds to Kulūta and that Pṛṣṭhāpuri has been omitted, but this may be the other way around; also possible is that both of these sites have been omitted and replaced by Kudyākeśī, the location of which is uncertain. Brāhmaṇī, whose sacred seat according to Jayaratha is Śrīśaila, is listed as the last of the series of sites, thus completing up the full set of twenty-four.

Site	Goddess KuKh/ KMT/ ṢSS/ KRU	Goddess ŚM and KāKuKr1	Guardian Kṣetrapāla	Attributes of the Goddess	Tree
19) Kulūta KāKuKr2: Kuṇḍakelī JY: Kudyākeśī	19) Ūrdhvakeśī KMT: Mahābalā KRU: Ulkāmukhī	19) Vidyunmukhī KāKuKr1: Balā	19) Ulkāmukha KRU: Kujaṅgha	19) Seal, club AS: club	19) Right shank / left knee KāKuKr2: Middle of the knee
20) Sopāra KāKuKr1: Sūryārama KRU: Sahā	20) Agnivaktrā	20) Mahākeśī KāKuKr1: Brahmānanā	20) Piśitāśa	20) Dagger	20) Left shank / Right shank KāKuKr2: Below the knee
21) Kṣīraka KāKuKr1: Kṣārikā KRU: Kṣiriṇa AS: Kṣīrikā	21) Lokamātā	21) Agnijihvā	21) Mahāsena KMT, KRU: Mahāmeru	21) Sword	21) Right ankle / Left shank KāKuKr2: Left hand
22) Māyāpura KRU: Samayāpurika	22) Prakampinī KMT: Kampinī KRU: Saumyā	22) Lokamātṛ KāKuKr1: Kapilā	22) Bhīmasena KMT: Bhīmānana KRU: Bhīma	22) Thunderbolt, goad (missing in KMT) ṢSS: Wheel	22) Left ankle / Right ankle KāKuKr2: Right hand
23) Amrātaka KāKuKr1 + 2: Amrāti-keśvara	23) Pūtanā	23) Kampinī KāKuKr1: Pūtanā	23) Mahākrodha	23) Mace, plough (missing in KMT)	23) Right foot / Left ankle KāKuKr2: Right ankle
24) Rājagṛha JY adds Śrīpīṭha	24) Bhagnanāsā	24) Bhagnanāsā	24) Mahākarṇa	24) Thunderbolt, Javelin	24) Left foot / Feet KāKuKr2: Left ankle

The Twenty-four Sites according to Tantrasadbhāva

The Tantrasadbhāva is a major source of the KMT and the KuKh. It is also among the first major Śaiva Tantras to deal extensively with sacred geography in the framework of the division of sacred sites into standard types. Thus it would not be surprising if the TS were to be a source of the geography of the KMT as it is of much else in it. And indeed it is; but, as we shall see in the following analysis, it is not a direct source. Our inquiry focuses on a lengthy passage in chapter nineteen of the TS. This is dedicated to the bali – animal offerings – and the mantras that accompany them to the Yoginīs and guardians (kṣetrapāla) of these sites. The chapter opens with a lists of the sites and is then followed by a description of their residents and other features.

We notice immediately that the twenty-four sites, their residents and other features are, apart from the usual variants, the same. Moreover, the presentation into three types is the same as in the KMT, although in the KMT they are not formally divided into these groups. The reason for this, it appears, are that changes have been made in the arrangement of the sites. How this has taken place will become apparent as we analyse each group. We begin with the sacred fields.

The sites are listed first in the TS according to their three categories: the fields, the secondary fields and the meeting grounds (sandoha).[1] They are arranged with reference to the directions. We notice that the lines in which the main fields are listed in the TS are standard ones that appear at least twice in the KuKh.[2] Moreover, this is the standard serial order we also find in other schools.[3] It is the order one would expect, as these places are also the residences of the eight Mothers. Although the names of the Mothers may vary to some extent, the order is generally the same one that corresponds to these places. Elsewhere the KMT maintains this standard order when referring independently to the eight fields projected onto the body, or as those of the Mothers in their 'external form' as low-caste women and projected into the houses and household utensils.[4] One wonders why this order was not maintained when these eight places were incorporated into the group of twenty-four as they are in the TS, especially as the details of each place are virtually identical. The only noteworthy difference is Ekāmraka, which in the KMT is replaced by Ujjaini.[5] Even so, the contents are virtually the same. The Yoginī in the KMT is called Mahāmāyā and her consort is Mahākāla, as one would expect in the place that has been famous for centuries for the Liṅga of [1] TS 19/4cd-10ab.

---

[2] KuKh 14/32cd-33ab and 16/3.

[3] See intro. vol. 1, 528 ff.

[4] KMT 25/92-95ab, 107-113.

[5] KMT 22/27.

Light (jyotirliṅga) there by that name. The TS reads Mahākāyā and Kailāsa who is described as being 'mahākāya' – 'with a big body'. Perhaps the MS used by the redactor of the KMT had read Mahāmāyā and Mahākāla and so it seemed appropriate for him to change the place from Ekāmra to Ujjain. In order to assist comparison, the serial order of each place according to the KMT is noted after that of the TS in the following table.

A central feature of these places in the TS, which is missing in the KMT, is their place of origin. This provides an interesting link between the Trika system of the TS and the earlier Brahmayāmala. It allows us to catch a glimpse into the way systems develop in general, and the Yoginī cults in particular. The TS takes the trouble – or perhaps feels obliged – to account for the origin of the sacred sites and the Yoginīs who reside in them. This data is recorded in the fourth column of these three tables.

Although the main deity of the BY is Kāpāla Bhairava, it is the Vidyā of his consort Caṇḍā Kāpālinī that is considered to be the main one. This is: (OṀ) HŪṀ CAṆḌE KĀPĀLINI SVĀHĀ. The nine syllables of the Vidyā are presided over by the nine deities who are the main object of daily worship. These are Kapālīśabhairava (HŪṀ), his four goddesses Raktā (CAṀ) (east), Karālā (ḌE) (south), Caṇḍākṣī (KĀ) (west) and Mahocchuṁā (PĀ) (north) and their four attendent powers (dūtī): Karālī (LI) (south-east), Danturā (NI) (south-west), Bhīmavaktrā (SVĀ) (north-west) and Mahābalā (HĀ) (north-east).[1] The goddesses – or one can equally call them Yoginīs – are arranged around the god in the four main and intermediate directions, as noted in brackets after each name. The TS refers to these goddesses as the 'aspects' (aṁśa), limbs (aṅga), Kulas, and sources (yoni) from which the sites and their residents originate.

The Kubjikā tradition, although further removed in time from the BY than the TS, knows and respects this earlier system and, as the TS does, accomodates it to its own. Thus we notice the presence of the four main goddesses that emerge from Kāpālīśa's body in the primary four sacred seats and their conversion to Kubjikā's service in the goddess's myth of origin in the KMT. Moreover, the ṢSS, expanding the prescriptions of the KMT, also indirectly relates them to the Eight Mothers normally said to reside in the eight 'sacred fields'. The eight sites appear in the KMT projected onto the petals of the lotus of the Wheel of the Mothers (mātṛcakra) in the Heart.[2] Although these are not the standard Eight Mothers (aṣṭamātṛkā) Brahmāṇī and the rest, it becomes clear that they are replacements or even alternative forms of them when this group of eight Great Mothers (mahāmatṛ) expands out as does the former into eight groups of eight 'mothers' (mātṛ). In the centre is an upward-pointing triangle symbolizing the element Fire.

---

[1] Sanderson 1988: 672.

[2] KMT 15/11 ff.; see Heilijgers-Seleen: 1994: 102 ff..

According to the ṢSS[1] this is surrounded by a square in which are seated Raktā (according to the KMT, she is in Olambikā which is in Oḍḍiyāna), Kāralā / Kārālī (according to the KMT she is in Jālandhara), Caṇḍākṣī (according to the KMT she is in the Sahya forest / Sāhyādri in Pūrṇagiri) and Mahocchuṣmā/Chuṣmikā (according to the KMT she is on the banks of the river Ucchuṣma in the Ucchuṣma forest in Kāmarūpa).[2] The centre is occupied by Mātaṅga, which is the name of the fifth sacred seat. His consort is Guhyakubjī. In the KMT itself we find essentially the same setup with the four Raktā, Karālā, Caṇḍā, and Ucchuṣmā worshipped in the directions and Khaṇḍikā – that is, Khañjikā (= Kubjikā) – in the centre.[3] Her partner is Mitreśa.[4]

Now we have established that the KMT knows these parallels well, we can understand what has happened. First of all we must add the directions in which the sites located. The TS simply says in the case of the fields that the first direction is the north-west. But the TS does not tell us how the sites are arranged in the remaining directions. We know what they are by referring to the directions in which the eight 'original' Yoginīs are located. These are noted next to them in the table below.

That this is the correct way to proceed is confirmed by the order of the secondary fields and meeting grounds, both of which are regularly arranged clockwise in the directions starting from the east. Thus it becomes apparent that the arrangement of the first group, that is, the sacred fields of the Mothers, is irregular. However, if we rearrange them in the order we find them in the KMT we find that the sequence agrees with that of the other groups: Thus: 1) Aṭṭāhāsa – Raktā – East 2) Caritra – Karālā – South-east 3) Kollagirya – Karālā – South 4) Jayantī – Danturā – South-west 5) Ujjaini – Caṇḍākṣī – West 6) Prayāga – Bhīmavaktrā – North-west 7) Varṇā – Mahocchuṣmā – North 8) Koṭi – Mahābalā – North-east.

Thus we may conclude that the redactor of the TS chose to change the order of the members of this group. His reason for doing so is clear: he wished to make it conform to the standard order of presentation of the seats of the Eight Mothers, which he could see were the same – even though the Yoginīs who resided in them are not, at least explicitly, identified with the Eight Mothers. Finally, we notice that the serial order of the remaining sites is not the same as the one in the KMT. This can be explained by understanding that the sites of the secondary fields and the meeting places in the TS are reversed with respect to the KMT, while the serial order within each group has been maintained. These changes are strong evidence that the TS is not the original source of this arrangement of sacred sites and that the KMT probably drew directly from that original source. Moreover, it appears that the KMT took this to be the standard sacred geography of the Kaula sub-continent, which it regarded so seriously that it took care to maintain it consistently. Thus we find a reference to it at the conclusion of the goddess's tour around the main sacred seats. There, the places the goddess goes to after visitting the main sites are mentioned in brief. The first ones are almost in the same serial order found in the beginning of the series of twenty-four. They are (I retain the spellings found there): Devīkoṭa (8), Aṭṭahāsa (1), Kolāgiri (3), Ujjenī (5), Prayāga (6), Varaṇā (7) 'and the rest (ādika)'. Instead of listing the contents of the remaining two groups, these are briefly indicated with the expression 'Viraja, Ekāmraka and the rest (virajekāmrakādyam).[1] Although Viraja is the first of the Sandohas in the TS (and so by implication the upakṣetras in the KMT), Ekāmraka is not the first Upakṣetra / Sandoha, which is Parastīra (also spelt purastīra). Indeed, Ekāmraka is not mentioned at all in the list of twenty-four places in the KMT, whereas it is the seventh entry in the TS's list. This corresponds to the fifth entry in the KMT which is Ujjaini.

---

[1] ṢSS 23/17.

[2] See KMT 2/36-40, 57a, 63a, 65, 82cd-90.

[3] KMT 24/101cd-102ab.

[4] KMT 15/30a.

18. The Primary Fields (kṣetra) according to the Tantrasadbhāva[2]

Place	Goddess	Attribute	Origin	Tree	Guardian
1-6)[3] Prayāga SE	Vāyuvegā	Flag	Bhīmavaktrā NW	Audambara	Pavana
2-7) Varaṇā NW	Śāṁkarī	Club	Mahocchuṣmā N	Tāḍa	Ūrdhvakeśa
3-3) Kolla-giryā S	Mahālakṣmī	Stick	Karālā S	Parvata (?)	Agniketu
4-1) Aṭṭahāsa E	Saumyamukhī	Vajra	Raktādevī E	Kadamba	Mahābala
5-4) Jayantī N	Jvālāmukhī	Sword	(Danturā) SW	Nimba	Mahābala
6-2) Caritra SE	Kṛṣṇatuṇḍā	Javelin	Kārālā SE	Karaṁja	Mahāghaṇṭa
7-5) (Ujjainī) Ekāmra SE	Mahākāyā	Noose	Caṇḍākṣīkula W	Aśvattha	Kailāsa
8-8) Koṭi NE	Sarvayoge-śvareśvarī	Spear	Mahābalakula NE	Vaṭa	Mahākāya

---

[1] See KMT 2/115-116.

[2] TS 19/18-31.

[3] The first figure indicates the serial order of this place in the TS, the second that of the KMT.

19. The Secondary Fields (upakṣetra) according to the Tantrasadbhāva[1]

Place	Goddess	Attribute	Origin	Guardian
9-17) Parastīra	Prasannā	Vajra	Raktā E	Trikaṭa
10-18) Pṛṣṭhāpura	Vidunmukhī	Stick and Javelin	Karālā SE	Vajradaṇḍa
11-19) Kohuṇḍikā (Kuhudi)	Śivā	Mudrā	Karālā S	Ulkāmukha
12-20) Sopāra	Vahnimukhī	Ascetic's staff	Danturā SW	Māṁsāśin
13-21) Kṣīrikā	Lomajaṁghā	Sword	Caṇḍākṣī W	Mahāmeru
14-22) Māyāpurī	Māyā / Kampinī/ Bhimā	Vajra and Goad	Bhīmavaktrā NW	Bhimā
15-23) Amrātikeśvara	Bhīmā	Plough and club	Mahocchuṣmā N	Mahākrodha
16-24) Rājagṛha	Cipiṭanāsā	Vajra and goad	Mahābalā NE	Mahākarṇa

20. The Meeting Grounds (sandoha) according to the Tantrasadbhāva[2]

Place	Goddess	Attribute	Origin	Guardian
17-9) Virajā	Ambikā	Mudrā and spear	Prathamā (Raktā) E	Anala
18-10) Erumā	Agnimukhī	Vajra and javelin	Karālā SE	Ghaṇṭārava
19-11) Hastapura	Piṅgalā	Pestle	Karālā S	Agnijihva
20-12) Elāpura	Kharānanā	Axe	Danturā SW	Gajakarṇa
21-13) Kasmarī	Gokarṇī	Mudrā and chain	Caṇḍākṣī W	Nandījaya
22-14) Marukeśa	Cakramaṇī	Mudrā and goad	Bhimavaktrā NW	Karāla
23-15) Nagara	Cetanā	Plough	Mahocchuṣmā N	Romajaṁgha
24-16) Puṇḍravardhana	Carmamuṇḍā	Ascetic's staff	Mahābalā NE	Kumbhakarṇa

The Twenty-four sites according to the Āmnāyamañjari

As we did not have occasion to note the places mentioned in the 11th centrury commentary on the Buddhist Sampuṭatantra (the Āmnāyamañjarī by Abhayākaragupta) in an earlier discussion,[3] we may conveniently do so here. The names are those reconstructed from the Tibetan by Wayman.[4] According to the

---

[1] TS 19/34-46ab.

[2] TS 19/47cd-58.

[3] See Dyczkowski 2004 chapter 4.

[4] Wayman: 1995 see intro. vol. 1, p. 549, note, 2.

KMT only the goddesses of the first eight places are associated with trees. In the ĀM almost all of them are. The sites and the residents that coincide with those of the Pīṭhastava are indicated in the notes to the text.

21. Table of the Twenty-four Sites according to the Āmnāyamañjarī

Site	Goddess	Guardian	Tree
Koṅkaṇa	Ambikā	Dahana / Duṣṭacaritra	Cūta (Mango)
Candradvīpa	Karañjā	Mahāghaṇṭā	Karañja
Aṭṭahāsa	Sumukhī	Āṭika	Kadamba
Devīkoṭṭa	Mahākarṇā	Āṭakeśa	Vaṭa (Banyan)
Haridvāra	Guhyakā	Mahābala	Aśoka
Jālandhara	Caṇḍī	Bhavanetṛ	Śephālī (Coral or Night Jasmine)
Pūrṇagiri	Mahāpūrṇā	Agnimukha	---
Dhārānagara	Kṣemaṅkarī	Keśottāra	Tāla (palm tree)
Erurā	Jvālāmukhī	Ghaṇṭāravin	Kāñcana (= Campaka)
Pretapuri	Gaurī	Pradāyaka	Jaṭi (= Plakṣa)
Elapura	Kharāsana	Gajakarṇa	Temple tree
Kāśmīra	Gonāsā	Ciradāyin	---
Maru	Saccikā	Jambhaka	---
Pāṭaliputra	Vetālā	Kacadāyin	Bamboo (veṇugarta)
Puṇḍravardhana	Sanaḍ-ḍākinī	Kumbhaka	A temple
Vijayapura	Svacchavadanā	Trijaṭa	Kūṭāgāra
Piṣṭapura	Taḍidvaktrā	Ghaṇṭāravin	A temple
Sopāra	Vahnimukhā	Mahādeva	Śālmali
Kṣīrikā	Lokamātṛ	Mahāmeru	Śāla
Māyāpurī	Prabhā	Bhīṣaṇa	Śākhoṭa
Ekāmra	Pūtanā	Mahāvrata	Āmra (mango)
Rājagṛha	Vipattibhayā	Kumbhīra (?)	A temple
Vidiśā	Sajātā	Vāsava	Pile of stones
Mālava	Sekā	Puruṣeśvara	Madhu

The Remaining Forty Sites according to the Ambāmatasaṁhitā

While the first twenty-four sites listed in the Hymn in the AS are derived from a standard set that is found with variants, changes in sequence and so forth in Tantras of earlier traditions, it may well be that the remaining forty sites are additions generated within the Kubjikā tradition. This is more clearly the case with the last ten, which we will deal with separately. Despite the differences in detail, the AS divides the sites into two groups, one of 54 and the other comprising the rest, as does the KuKh. The common configuration and the fragmented coincidences suggest that one version is derived from the other or both from a common source. This supposition is supported by the AS that has the goddess asking the god how it is that he has forgotten the hymn she taught him 'at the time of the first (establishment) of the Rule.'[1]

The first five entries out of the remaining sites, that is, 25 to 29, correspond to those in the KuKh.[2] Out of the remaining entries from 30 to 54, several places and deities are common to both versions (and so too the corresponding texts), although they may not be in the same sequence. The two version again agree for entries 55 to 59;[3] the remaining ones differ. Although most of the sites are not specifically related to the Kubjikā tradition, a few are. Candrapura. whose goddess is Ciñcinī (entry 34 in AS and 50 in the KuKh), is an evident example. We notice also that three of the six cremation grounds (entries 35, 36 and 38) are part of the ideal geography of the YKh.[4]

The text and translation of this portion of the hymn as it appears in the AS is presented below for easy reference. Where the readings from the AS are compatable with those of our text, they are noted in the critical apparatus of the edition and, where appropriate, in the notes to the translation.

> I salute (the goddess) who saves those who are blinded by (this) awesome (ghora) fettered state (bhava); Guhyeśvarī (Mistress of the Secret Place) who enjoys great pleasure (mahābhogā) and, always together with (the god) Paśupati, resides in Nepāla. (25)
>
> (I salute) Śāradā, the goddess who is the mistress of the sacred seat of knowledge, the attendant (dūtī) (who resides) in Kāsmīra and, accompanied by Vijayeśvara, bestows boons and increases (one's) intelligence. (26)
>
> I salute the great power Pārvatī who resides in the mountains in Gadyaharaṇa. Accompanied by Mahāśara, she destroys suffering.
>
> Jayeśvarī is naked and holds a wheel. (She resides) in Kulutā with Kapālī and bestows the fruits of passion. (27-28)
>
> I salute Lalitā who is accompanied by Bhairava in Siṁhoḍāra. She follows after one who is gripped by the various worldly pleasures (citrabhogavaśānugā) and destroys sin.[5] (29)

---

[1] kathayāmi na saṁdehaḥ kin tu te vismṛtaṁ katham || prathame samaye kāle pīṭhastotraṁ mayā tava |
kathitaṁ yat [yān] tad evātra paṭhanīyaṁ samāhitaḥ || AS 6/9cd-10.

[2] AS 6/57cd-62ab = KuKh 16/57cd-62ab.

[3] AS 6/87-93 = KuKh 16/87cd-93.

[4] See intro. vol. 1, chart 26 p. 707-708.

[5] guhyeśvarīṁ [-rī] mahābhogāṁ [-bhāgā] nityaṁ paśupater [-patir] yutām ||
nepālasthāṁ sadā naumi bhavaghorāndhahāriṇīm [25] |
kāśmīre [kāsmīre] śāradāṁ [saradāṁ] dūtīṁ vijayeśvarasaṁyutām [vijayesvara-] ||
vidyāpīṭheśvarīṁ devīṁ varadāṁ buddhivardhanīm [26] |

Mahācaṇḍā resides in Bhaṭṭāpurī and has the face of a deer. She wears a garland of barbarian (heads) and has quicksilver (śiva) as a weapon. She has a big belly and destroys all doubts.(30)

I salute Dvāravatī who is accompanied by Kubera. She destroys disease, makes the gesture of the armour (varmamudrā) and bestows complete success. (31)

I always salute Sadoditā who is accompanied by Kuraṅgīśa.

I salute, with the water of the nectar of a skull, Mahāmāyā who destroys suffering, is accompanied by Samaya and resides in Mūlasthāna.[1] (32-33)

(I salute) Ciñcinī who resides in Candrapurya and is accompanied by Gaṇeśa. She is the goddess who makes the Command successful (ājñāsiddhikarī) and destroys the fear of transmigratory existence. (34)

I salute the frightening Ūrdhvakeśī who resides in the cremation ground Karavīra and, accompanied by Nagnavāsa (the Naked One), bestows knowledge. (35)

I salute (the goddess) called Cinnamuṇḍā who is accompanied by Kapālīśa and (resides in) Laguḍa. She brings about the accomplishment of the sacred seats and destroys phenomenal existence. (36)

The supreme (goddess) Kālasaṁkarṣaṇī resides in the middle of the cremation ground (called) Vajra. She is accompanied by Saṁkarṣaṇa and bestows the fruit of non-duality. (37)

I salute Kāmalakṣmī in the Circle of Passion (manmathamaṇḍala) who, accompanied by Kāmuka, bestows bliss in the cremation ground (called) Kāmasāra. (38)

---

gadyaharaṇe mahāśaktiṁ naumi duḥkhakṣayaṁkarīm ||
mahāśarasamopetāṁ pārvatīṁ [-tī] parvatasthitām [27] |
jayeśvarīṁ [-ri] kulūtāyāṁ cakriṇīṁ [-ṇī] nagnavāsasām ||
kapālīsamopetāṁ kāmabhogaphalapradām [-dāḥ] [28] |
siṁhoḍāre ca lalitāṁ citrabhogavaśānugām [vetrabhoga-] ||
bhairaveṇa samopetāṁ naumi kilviṣanāśinīm [29] |

[1] bhaṭṭāpuryāṁ [-puryā] mahācaṇḍāṁ mlecchamālīṁ śivāyudhām ||
sarvaśaṁkākṣayaṅkarīṁ [-saṁkākṣayakarī] kuraṅgāsyāṁ [khurasāyāṁ] mahodarīm [-rī] [30] |
kuvereṇa samāyuktāṁ naumi vyādhivināśanīm ||
dvāravatīṁ [-tī] varmamudrāṁ [carmma-] pūrṇasiddhipradāyikām [-dāyakāṁ] [31] |
kuraṅgīśasamāyuktāṁ [-yuktaṁ] nityaṁ [nitya] naumi sadoditām ||
mūlasthāne mahāmāyāṁ samayena samāyutām |
kapālāmṛtatoyena naumi kāṣṭhavināśanīm [-ni] [33] ||

In order to kill (my enemy) I salute Ghaṇṭālī who, accompanied by Kapila, (resides) in the great cremation ground (called) Ghaṇṭāla; a shield (varaṇa) is (her) weapon. (39)

I salute the benevolent (śivā) Kulamātaṅginī who, accompanied by Jhaṁkāra, (resides) in the great cremation ground (called) Mātaṅga and destroys disease.[1] (40)

In order to destroy all defects (āmaya) I salute the Supreme Goddess (parameśvarī) Mahāśuṣkā who, accompanied by Mahākeśa, (resides) in Antarvedī. (41)

In order to achieve the desired goal – that is, the great arising of the plane of knowledge – I salute Śivādūtī who, accompanied by Asura, (resides) in Mattakheṭa. (42)

In order to attain the grace of all the accomplishments (siddhi), I salute the Supreme Goddess Dhaneśvarī who, accompanied by Rasendra, (resides) in Mahārāva. (43)

In order to accomplish the goal of the kingdom of austerity, I always salute the goddess Śrī who, within the maṇḍala and accompanied by Mahāgaṇa, (resides on) Śrīparvata. (44)

I always salute Mahānandā who destroys the triple impurity and is accompanied by Parānanda on Malayagiri. (45)

In order to reveal the accomplishment of mantra, I salute Kumārī who, accompanied by Kauvera, is in the circle of the sacred seats in Cchāyācchatra. (46)

(I salute) Mahāghoṇā in Ahicchatra who, very powerful and of supreme valour, is accompanied by Ugra, the destroyer (of sin; she) is (also called) Aghorā. (47)

---

[1] ciñciṇīṁ [-nī] candrapuryasthāṁ gaṇeśena samanvitām |
ājñāsiddhikarīṁ [-rī] devīṁ [devī] saṁsārabhayanāśinīm [-nī] [34] ||
śmaśāne [smaśāne] karavīrasthām ūrdhvakeśīṁ [-keśī] bhayaṁkarīm [-rī] |
nagnavāsasamopetāṁ naumi vijñānadāyinīm [35] ||
laguḍe [laṁguḍe] cchinnamuṇḍākhyāṁ kapālīśena [-sena] saṁyutām |
pīṭhasiddhikarīṁ naumi bhavabhāvavināśinīm [-nī] [36] ||
vajraśmaśānamadhyasthāṁ [-śmasāna-] kālasaṁkarṣaṇīṁ [-ṇī] parām |
saṁkarṣaṇasamāyuktām advaitaphaladāyinīm [-nī] [37] ||
kāmasāre śmaśāne [śmasāne] tu kāmalakṣmīṁ [-lakṣmī] sukhapradām [-mukhapradaṁ] |
kāmukena samāyuktaṁ naumi manmathamaṇḍale [-maṁḍalaṁ] [38] ||
mahāśmaśāne [-śmasāne] ghaṇṭāle ghaṇṭālīṁ [-lī] varaṇāyudhām |
kapilena samāyuktāṁ naumi māraṇahetave [39] ||
mahāśmaśāne [-śmasāne] mātaṅge kulamātaṅginīṁ [-nī] śivām [śivā] |
jhaṁkāreṇa samāyuktāṁ namāmi vyādhināśanīm [40] ||

I always praise Rudraśakti who, accompanied by Śavara, (resides) in the supreme maṇḍala in Merucchatra and bestows knowledge of the Self.[1] (48)

In order to gain a long life, I salute Siddhayogeśvarī, the auspicious and great union (mahāyoga), who, accompanied by Triśira, (resides in) Mahāviśva. (49)

I always salute (the goddess) called Aṅgarā who possesses authority and, accompanied by Aṅgavāha, (resides in) Aṅgamukha.

I salute the Supreme Goddess Candravatī who bestows the enjoyment of passion and, accompanied by Śrīkaṇṭha, (resides in) Candradvīpa. (50-51)

I salute Śivatattvā who, along with the supreme (goddess), sports with Ekavīraśiva in the middle of the island of Kumārikā. (52)

---

[1] antarvedyāṁ [-vedyaṁ] mahāśuṣkāṁ mahākeśasamāyutām |
sarvāmayavināśārthaṁ namāmi parameśvarīm [41] ||
mattakheṭe [-kheṭa] śivādūtīm [savā-] asureṇa samāyutām |
namāmi iṣṭasiddhyarthaṁ vidyāpadamahodayīm [-dayaṁ] [42] ||
dhaneśvarīṁ [-ri] mahārāve rasendreṇa samāyutām |
sarvasiddhiprasādārthaṁ namāmi parameśvarīm [43] ||
śrīparvate śriyāṁ [śriyā] devīṁ [devī] mahāgaṇasamanvitām |
maṇḍalasthāṁ sadā naumi taporājyārthasiddhaye [44] ||
malayagiryāṁ mahānandāṁ nāśanīṁ [-nī] tu malatraye |
parānandasamāyuktāṁ namāmi satataṁ aham [45] ||
chāyācchatre [-tra] tu [vikula] kumārīṁ [-rī] kauvereṇa samāyutām |
mantrasiddhiprakāśārthaṁ namāmi pīṭhamaṇḍale [46] ||
ahicchatre mahāghoṇāṁ [-ghoṇaṁ] mahābalaparākramām [-mā] |
ugreṇa saha saṁyuktām aghorānāma [-maghoranama] nāśanīm [nāsatī] [47] ||
merucchatre rudraśaktiṁ śavareṇa [savareṇa] samāyutām |
ātmajñānapradāṁ [-pradaṁ] nityaṁ namāmi paramaṇḍale [48] ||
mahāviśve mahāyogāṁ siddhayogeśvarīṁ [-rī] śubhām [śubhā] |
triśireṇa samāyuktāṁ [-yuktā] āyurārthaṁ namāmy ahaṁ [49] ||
aṅgamukhe aṅgarākhyām aṅgavāhasamāyutām [-khyāṁ -tā] |
adhikārasamopetāṁ nityaṁ naumy adhikārikām [-kaṁ] [50] ||
candradvīpe candravatīṁ [-tī] śrīkaṇṭhena samāyutām [-tā]|
kāmopabhogadātrīṁ [-trī] ca namāmi parameśvarīm [51] ||
dvīpe kumārikāmadhye ekavīraśivena [-vīraṁ-] tu |
krīḍate paramāṁ [-mā] yuktyā śivatattvāṁ namāmy ahaṁ [52] ||
siṁhaladvīpamadhye tu śākinīṁ [sākinī] kaulavigrahām |
kuleśena samāyuktāṁ [-yuktaṁ] piṇḍasiddhikarīṁ numaḥ [53] ||
puṣkarīdvīpamadhye tu puṣkarīṁ [puṣkasīṁ] praṇamāmy aham |
māhākāyasamāyuktāṁ sarvākarṣaṇahetave [54] || AS 6/57cd-86.

I salute Śākinī whose form is Kaula and who, accompanied by Kuleśa, (resides) in the middle of the island of Siṁhala and brings about the accomplishment of the body (piṇḍasiddhi). (53)

In order to attract all (beings), I salute Puṣkarī who, accompanied by Mahākāya, (resides) in the middle of the island of Puṣkarī. (54)

22. Table of sites of the middle portion of the Pīṭhastava of the AS

	Site	Goddess	Consort
1	Nepāla	Guhyeśavrī	Paśupati
2	Kāśmīra	Śāradā	Vijayeśvara
3	Gadyaharaṇa	Pārvatī	Mahāsara
4	Kulūta	Jayeśvarī	Kapālī
5	Siṁhāḍārā	Lalitā	?
6	Bhaṭṭāpurī	Mahācaṇḍā	?
7	?	Dvāravatī	Kubera
8	?	Sadoditā	Kuraṅgīśa
9	Mūlasthāna	Mahāmāyā	Samaya
10	Candrapurya	Ciñciṇi	Gaṇeśa
11	Karavīra (śmaśāna)	Ūrdhvakeśī	Nagnavāsa
12	Laguḍa	Cinnamuṇḍā	Kapālīśa
13	Vajra (śmaśāna)	Kālasaṁkarṣanī	Saṁkarṣaṇa
14	Kāmasāra (śmaśāna)	Kāmalakṣmī	Kāmuka
15	Ghaṇṭāla (śmaśāna)	Ghaṇṭālī	Kapila
16	Mātaṅga (śmaśāna)	Kulamātaṅgī	Mātaṅga
17	Antarvedī	Mahāśuṣkā	Mahākeśa
18	Mattakheṭa	Śivādūtī	Asura
19	Mahārāva	Dhaneśvarī	Rasendra
20	Śrīparvata	Śrī	Mahāgaṇa
21	Malayagiri	Mahānandā	Parānanda
22	Cchāyācchatra	Kumārī	Kauvera
23	Ahicchatra	Mahāghoṇā	Ugra
24	Merucchatra	Rudraśakti	Śavara
25	Mahāviśva	Siddhayogeśvarī	Triśira
26	Aṅgamukha	Aṅgarā	Aṅgavāha
27	Candradvīpa	Candravatī	Śrīkaṇṭha
28	Kumārikādvīpa	Śivatattvā	Ekavīraśiva
29	Siṁhaladvīpa	Śākinī	Kuleśa
30	Puṣkarīdvīpa	Puṣkarī	Mahākāya

23. Table of the Thirty Sites of the Middle Portion of the Pīṭhastava

Site[1]	Goddess	Consort
Nepāla	Guhyeśvarī	Paśupati
Kāśmīra	Śāradā	Vidyeśvara / Vijayeśvara
Gaddiharaṇa / Gadyharaṇa / Garddiharaṇa	Pārvatī	Mahāśara
Kulūtā	Jayeśvarī	Kapālīśa
Siṁghuhāra / Siṁhāḍāra / Sindhutīra	Kulālā / Lalitā	Bhairava /?
Bhojapūrī / Bhaṭṭāpurī / Bhojapura	Mahācampā / Mahācaṇḍā / Halinī (or Phalinī?)	Kailāsa /?
Strīrājya /?	Ambikā / Dvāravatī	Naṭeśvara / Kubera
Mahendra /?	Mahāmāyā / Sadoditā	Mahāmeru / Kuraṅgīśa
Antarvedī	Aparājitā / Mahāśuṣkā / Antarvedī	Caṇḍeśvara / Mahākeśa
* ? / Kūrakali	Mahākālī /?	Trilocana /?
* Ghaṇṭāla (śmaśāna) / Mahāśmaśāna	Ghaṇṭālī	Ahinogha / Kapila
* Kadamba / Kadambavana	Ciñciṇī	Bhadreśvara
Karavīra (śmaśāna)	Ūrdhvakeśī	Nagnavāsa
Laguḍa	Cchinnamuṇḍā / Cchinnamastā	Krodharāja / Kapālīśa
Kāmaśara / Kāmasāra (śmaśāna)/ Kāmeśvara	Kāmalakṣmī / Mahālakṣmī	Manmatha
Ekakoṇa (śmaśāna)	Trikoṇā	Triśira
Ekavīra / Mātaṅga (śmaśāna)	Mātaṅgī / Kulamātaṅgī	Mātaṅgīśa
Ḍohara (Ḍohala) / Mattakheṭa	Śivādūtī	Hayaśīrṣa / Asura
Śrīparvata	Mahāsiddhā / Śrī / Siddhā	Jyotirliṅga / Mahāgaṇa
Oṇaka / Malayagiri	Mahāśakti / Mahānandā / Śakti	Parānanda
Cchāyācchatra	Caṇḍinyā / Kumārī / Caṇḍā	Ūrdhvakeśa / Kauvera
* Śailapṛṣṭha / Śaila	Trijaṭā	Śailarāja
* Hakkaḍokka / Hakkaḍa	Bhaga / Triśakti	Śrīkaṇṭha
* Devikoṭṭa	Mahāmāyā / Mahāmātṛ	Vikarāla
* Forest of Mahāmāyā / Mahāmātṛ	Caṇḍakapālinī / Kapālinī	Pracaṇḍa
Candrapura	Ciñciṇīkula-mālinī / Ciñciṇī / Mālinī	Lambodara
* Mahāmalaya	Mahāmantramaheśvarī / Mantreśvarī	Cakreśvara
* Mālava	Mahākālī / Ugrakālī	Meghanāda
* Kedāra	Mālinī	Sadāśiva
* Forest of Mahālakṣmī	Mahālakṣmī	Tumburu

---

[1] Significant variants in the AS are noted in italics. The places marked with an asterix are not mentioned in the AS. Significant variants found in the KāKuKr are noted in bold.

24. Table of Additional Sites of the Pīṭhastava of the Ambāmatasaṁhitā[1]

Place	Goddess	Guardian
?	Dvāravatī	Kubera
?	Sadoditā	Kuraṅgīśa
Vajra (śmaśāna*)*	Kālasaṁkarṣaṇī	Saṁkarṣaṇa
Mahārāva	Dhaneśvarī	Rasendra
Ahicchatra	Mahāgoṇā	Ugra
Merucchatra	Rudraśakti	Śavara
Mahāviśva	Siddhayogeśvarī	Triśira
Aṅgamukha	Aṅgarā	Aṅgavāha
Kaumārikādvīpa	Śivatattvā	Ekavīraśiva
Simhaladvīpa	Śākinī	Kuleśa
Puṣkarīdvīpa	Puṣkarī	Mahākāya

The goddess in Mūlasthāna (the ninth place in this series according to the AS) is Mahāmāyā. According to both the KuKh and the KāKuKr, this is the name of the goddess of mount Mahendra. The guardians differ, however. According to the AS he is called Samaya, whereas according to the AS and the KāKuKr, he is Mahameru. Moreover, Mūlasthāna, formerly the capital of Malladeśa, is the ancient name of Multan.[2] It is therefore unlikely that Mūlasthāna should be identified with Mahendra.

Kālasaṁkarṣaṇī, said to reside in the cremation ground called Vajra (entry 13), is one of the most important forms of Kālī of the Northern Tradition (uttarāmnāya). She is often accompanied by Narasiṁha. Here, instead of this incarnation of Viṣṇu, we find Saṁkarṣaṇa, the brother of Vasudeva, an emanation of Viṣṇu. Her worship and other details are described extensively in the JY. Siddhayogeśvarī (entry 7) is another Great Goddess of the Bhairava Tantras. A major goddess of the Trika Tantras, especially the SYM, here she is accompanied by Triśirobhairava. He is the god of another important Trika Tantra, that bears his name, much quoted by Abhinavagupta but now unfortunately lost.

The Last Ten Sites of the Pīṭhastava of the Ambāmatasaṁhitā

The last ten sites are clearly demarcated from the others as a second set. In both the KuKh and the AS[3] the first set of fifty-four sites is made up of meeting grounds, primary and secondary sacred fields, like the original twenty-four sites in the KMT and so are simply a direct expansion of them. The second set of ten sites consists of meeting grounds, primary and secondary sacred seats. As before, there is no indication to which a site belongs. The function of these categories is simply to indicate in broad terms that the sites form a part of the scheme. Accordingly, in the AS, the goddess says she will speak about them 'in general' (sāmānye). Worshipped separately, they are clearly as much a unit as the first fifty-four sites.[1]

---

[1] AS 6/57cd-86.

[2] Day (1927) 133.

[3] KuKh 16/87cd-88 and AS 6/87-88ab.

The number fifty-four is unusual and is not easily amenable to spatial projection. If we assume that the sites are divided evenly into the three types of sites, there are eighteen in each category. Thus ten have been added to each of the original eight. But it is hard to see how the extra sites can be inserted symmetrically into the maṇḍala of the original twenty-four.[2] Clearly, 'sixty-four' is an easier group to deal with and is a very common one. Thus the addition of another ten sites is not surprising. Moreover, it serves to accommodate the specific sacred geography of the Kubjikā Tantras. Thus the first six entries are the sacred seats which are the core of the specific sacred geography of the Kubjikā Tantras. These presumably are the primary and secondary sacred seats. We notice that in this group, as in the extra thirty added to the original sites of the KMT, the AS includes more of these sites. Thus the Candradvīpa of the version in the KuKh is replaced at the head of the group with Candrapura which is 'in the west', the direction especially associated with the goddess. Moreover, in its zeal for the places sacred to the goddess, the AS even goes so far as to insert an extra site – Koṅkoṇa – where Unmanī – that is, Kubjikā – herself resides in this the 'Western House' which is the abode of her tradition. We may surmise, therefore, that as the Kubjikā cult developed, its connection with these places was strengthened and so the version in the AS is later than the one in the KuKh. We turn now to this part of the Hymn in the AS.

> I salute in the west (the goddess) called Kujā who holds an axe and, accompanied by Vidyārāja, (resides) in the venerable Candrapurī. (55)
>
> I salute the Bhairavī (called) Mahocchuṣmā who is accompanied by Parama in the west. She is red, fierce and her eyes are

---

[1] See KuKh 16/87cd-88 and note. The fifty-four meeting grounds, primary and secondary fields have been praised. (Now) I will extol, as precribed, the meeting grounds, the primary and the secondary seats that are part of the liturgy. After the rite one should read (this part of the Hymn) again.

kṣetropakṣetrasaṁdohāś catuḥpañcāśa kīrtitāḥ |
pīṭhopapīṭhasaṁdohān [-hā] sāmānye kīrtayāmi te ||
pūjākrame vidhānena pūjāṁ kṛtvā paṭhet punaḥ | AS 16/87-88ab.

[2] Concerning this maṇḍala see intro. vol. 1, p. 545 ff. and below 16/116cd-126 and notes.

severe. She resides in Oḍiyāṇa and bestows all the fruits (of one's practice). (56)

I salute the goddess Kāmalakṣmī who (shines with) a great light. Accompanied by Kāmeśvara, she resides in Jālandhara and destroys the fear of misfortune (alakṣmī). (57)

I praise Pūrṇagrīvā who has a large neck and holds a severed head and ascetic's staff. Auspicious in every way, she is accompanied by Pūrṇeśvara. (58)

I always salute Manodbhavā who holds a skull and ascetic's staff and frees (one) from fear. Accompanied by Kāmeśvara, she (resides) in Kāmarūpa. (59)

I always salute Trilocanā who sustains the world and severs the current of misfortune. Accompanied by Gokarṇeśvara, (she resides in the sacred seat) called Tisra. (60)

I salute Unmanā who, surrounded by the Mothers, has authority in Koṅkaṇa and, (residing) in this the Western House, consists of the triple authority. (61)

I always praise Cāmuṇḍā who holds a severed head. Accompanied by Kṛttivāsa, she resides in Ekāmra and destroys the bondage of phenomenal existence. (62)

I salute Mahālakṣmī of Kāmakoṭṭa. Accompanied by Agnikoṇa, she holds a pair of scissors, removes darkness and brings about the growth of royal power (śriya). (63)

I always salute the great goddess Arbudavāsinī who (resides) in Arbuda accompanied by Arbudeśvara and who removes the suffering of impediments. (64)

I salute the omnipresent Parā who resides in Hiraṇyapura accompanied by Mantreśvara and who gives the fruits of (the observance of) the Rule. (65)

I salute Kuleśvarī of the Divine Wheel and Śrīnātha, the great Bhairava and lord of the Tamarind tree who resides in Gāyatrī.[1] (66)

---

[1] śrīcandrapurye kujākhyāṁ vidyārājasamanvitām ||
ṭaṁkaṭīkarahastāṁ [caṁkaṭī-] tu paścime praṇamāmi tām [paramāyutām] | (55)
raktāṁ [raktā] karālāṁ [-lā] caṇḍākṣīṁ [-kṣī] mahocchuṣmāṁ [-ṣmā] tu bhairavīm [-vī] ||
oḍiyāṇasthitāṁ naumi niḥśeṣaphaladāyinīm [nimtveṣa- -dāyinī] | (56)
jālandharasthitāṁ [jālāṁ -] devīṁ [devī] kāmalakṣmīṁ [-lakṣmī] mahāprabhām [-prabhā] ||
kāmeśvarayutāṁ naumi alakṣmībhayanāśanīm [-nī] | (57)
pūrṇagrīvāṁ [-vā] mahāgrīvāṁ [-vā] muṇḍakhaṭvāṅgadhāriṇīm [-ṇī] ||
pūrṇeśvarasamāyuktāṁ [-yuktaṁ] vande tāṁ sarvamaṅgalām | (58)
manodbhavāṁ [-vaṁ] kāmarūpe kādyakhaṭvāṅgadhāriṇīm [-ṇī] ||
kāmeśvarasamopetāṁ nityaṁ naumy abhayaṅkarīm [-rī] | (59)

The following table records the variables in the places and their residents mentioned in the Pīṭhastava of the KuKh with respect to the one in the AS and the sixty-four sites worshipped in the KāKuKr. The first (or only) entry in each column is drawn from the KuKh. The entries in italics are the variants found in the AS, the entries in bold are those of the KāKuKr. An asterix marks the places not mentioned in the AS. Note that the AS apparently lists an extra site called Gayatrī. This may be the name of the maṇḍala that contains all the sites, not a separate place. Thus the goddess there is Kubjikā herself as Kuleśvarī and her consort, Śrīnātha.

25. Comparative Table of the Last Ten Sites of the Pīṭhastava

Site	Goddess	Consort
Candradvīpa / Śrīcandrapurya	Kulālā / Kula / Kulālī	Vidyārāja
Oṁkāra / Oḍiyāṇa	Agnikā / Mahocchuṣmā	? Parama
Jālandhara	Kāmalakṣmī	Phaleśvara / Kāmeśvara
Pūrṇagirya	Mahāgrīvā	Pūrṇeśvara
Kāmarūpa	Aparājitā / Manodbhavā / Manodbhavā	Kāmeśvara
Tisrapīṭha / Triśrotra	Tribhuvanā / Trilocanā / Bhuvanāmbā	? / Gokarṇeśvara
AS + Koṅkaṇa	AS + Unmanyā	AS ?
* Ekāmra / Ekacūḍa	Cāmuṇḍā / Subhaṭṭā	Kṛtivāsa
Kāmakoṭṭa	Mokṣalakṣmī / Mahālakṣmī / Manoharā	Agnika / Agnikoṇa
Arbuda / Arvadaṇḍa	Asvarā / Arbudavāsinī	Arbudeśvara
Hiraṇyapura	Parā	Śiva / Mantreśvara
AS + Gayatrī	Kuleśvarī	Śrīnātha

---

gokarṇeśvarasaṁyuktāṁ [-ktaṁ] tisrākhye [-khyo] lokadhāriṇīm [-ṇī] ||
trilocanāṁ [-ne] sadā naumi dūritaughanikṛntanīm [-nī] | (60)
koṅkaṇe cādhikāriṇyām unmanyāṁ [-nyaṁ] mātṛbhir vṛtām ||
paścime 'smin gṛhe naumi adhikāratrayātmikām [-kā] | (61)
kṛtivāsasamopetāṁ cāmuṇḍāṁ [cāmuṇḍā] muṇḍadhāriṇīm [-ṇī] ||
ekāmrasthāṁ sadā vande bhavabandhavināśanīm [-nī] | (62)
agnikoṇasamopetāṁ kāñcīhastāṁ tamopahām ||
kāmakoṭṭamahālakṣmīṁ namāmi śriyavardhanīm | (63)
arbude tu mahādevīṁ [-vī] nityamarbudavāsinīm [-nī] ||
arbudeśvarasaṁyuktāṁ naumi vighnārtihāriṇīm | (64)
hiraṇyapurasaṁsthāṁ [-sthā] tu mantreśvarasamāyutām ||
parāṁ sarvagatāṁ naumi samayaphaladāyinīm [-nī] | (65)
mahābhairavaśrīnāthaṁ ciñcinīvṛkṣanāyakam ||
gāyatrīsaṁsthitāṁ [-taṁ] naumi divyacakrakuleśvarīm | (66) AS 6/88cd-100ab.

The

Kumārikākhaṇḍa

of the Manthānabhairavatantra

Volume Three
Part One

Edition and Translation of Chapters Seventeen to Thirty

Mark S. G. Dyczkowski

CONTENTS OF VOLUME THREE OF TEXT AND TRANSLATION

Contents i-iv

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN: The Venerable Sūtra of the Lineage (śrīsantānasūtra)

The Sixteen Conventions 3
The Path of Meru, the Deity of the Lineage 7
Oṁkāra and the Two Siddhas, the Cave Dwelling, the Kadamba Tree, the Convention of the Lion 9
The House of the City of the Moon 11
The Division of the Churning Bhairava 11
The Clan and Path of the Left 11
The Sign of Accomplishment 11
Authority, Brahmā's Stone of Birth, stability in Kāmarūpa, fame of the Tamarind Tree 13
The Ocean, conclusion 15

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN: The Deposition of Mālinī

Preamble 19
The Deposition of Mālinī onto the Body 23
The Goddesses of the Letters of the Mālinī Alphabet 29
The Arousal of Mālinī's Energy and the Destruction of Karma 29
Mālinī's Limbs and Faces 37
Conclusion: The Benefits 39

CHAPTER NINETEEN: The Assembly of Sounds (śabdarāśi)

Preamble: Theological Considerations and Yogic Practice 43
The Deposition of the Assembly of Sounds 47
The Six Faces and Limbs of the Assembly of Sounds 55
Concerning Navātman 59
The Deposition of Navātman on the Body 61

CHAPTER TWENTY: Concerning the Triple Vidyā

Preamble 65

The Extraction of the Parāparā Vidyā 65
The Aparā Vidyā 69
The Parā Vidyā – HSRAUṀ 69

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE: The Five Principles

The Formation of the Aghoryaṣṭaka Vidyā 73
The Eight Seed-syllables of the Vidyā, Mahendra, Prasādabhairava and the Void, sound, Kaulinī, Kālāgni 75
The City of Mahārudra, Yoginī, the Deposition of the Vidyā on the Body 77
The Deposition of the Five *Praṇava*s in the Five Sacred Seats of the Wheels in the Body 79

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO: Concerning Ṣoḍhā

The Deposition of Ṣoḍhā in Twelve Divisions 85

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE: Concerning Tadgraha and the Samayā Vidyā

The Formation of Tadgraha Mantra 91
Koṅkaṇā – the Samayā Vidyā of Pīṭheśvarī 93
Benefits, ritual application and admonitions 97
The Kaulika deposition of the Vidyā 99

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR: The Casket of the Sixfold Deposition

The Creation and the Production of the Primordial Sound 105
The Vidyā called Twelve Verses 107
The Seed-syllables linked to the Vidyā called Twelve Verses 107
The First Syllable 107
The Bhairavī Vidyā 109
Bhairava (HSRŪAUṀ), Khecarī Vidyā (KHPHREṀ), Śaṅkarī Vidyā (HŚRĪṀ), Raudrī (HRĪṀ) 115
Kaulinī (AIṀ), the Twelve Yoginīs of the Twelve Verses and the Deposition on the Twelve Limbs 117
The Deposition of the Enclosure of the Field 119
The Deposition of the Triple Authority 121
The Deposition of the Five Jewels 125

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE: The Fifty (Verses) concerning Kula

Preamble, the Six Wheels, the Wheel of the Foundation, the Wheel of the Self-supported 131
The Wheel of the City of Gems, the Wheel of Unstruck Sound, the Pure Wheel, the Wheel of the Command, the Circle of the Void 133
The Sixteen Supports 135
The Three Signs, the Five Voids, the Five Siddhas 137
The Nine Kulas 139

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX: The Root Sūtra and the Hymn to Māyā

Preamble, the Root Sūtra 143
The Wisdom Sūtra: An Explanation of the Root Sūtra 145
The First Sequence of Twenty-eight 147
The Second Sequence of Twenty-Eight, Concerning the Great Liṅga – the triangular, Divine Maṇḍala in the Body 149
The Māyāstava 155

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN: The Maṇḍala of the Transmission (kramamaṇḍala) and the Maṇḍala of the Teachers (gurumaṇḍala)

The Maṇḍala of the Teachers 165
The Inner Worship of the Maṇḍala of the Teachers 167
The Kramamaṇḍala 169
The Depositions of the Three Transmissions 171
The Depositions of the Transmission of the Aged 171
The Depositions of the Transmission of the Youth 171
The Depositions of the Transmission of the Child 171
The Worship of the Transmission (kramārcana), the First Vessel – the Skull, the Second Vessel, the Third Vessel 173
The Rosary of the Hand 175

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT: The Authority of the Triple Transmission

Preamble, the Transmission of the Aged, the Group of Four Sacred Seats 179
The Pentad of Space, the Hexad of the Command 181
The Pentad called Beginningless, the Triple Thorn, the Conventions, the Group of Four Sacred Seats and Goddesses 183
The Pentad of Space, the Hexad of the Command, the Four Siddhas 185

The Middle Lineage and the Transmission of the Youth 187
The Transmission of the Child 191
The Four Sacred Seats, the Hexad of Knowledge 193
The Pentad of Mahantārī, the Triad of Siddhas 195
The Importance of Worshipping the Triple Transmission (śrīkrama) 197
The Four Transmissions and their Origins 203
The Arising of the Triple Transmission 205
The Octad of Kula, conclusion 207

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE: The Sūtra of the Teaching concerning the Visualization of the Goddess's Form

Hymn to the Goddess Kubjikā 211
The Visualization of the Twelve-armed Form of the Goddess Kubjikā 217
The Goddess's Six Faces and Six Limbs, the Goddess's Six Limbs, the Five Elements in the Goddess's Body and Conclusion 219

CHAPTER THIRTY: The Prescribed way of Writing and Explaining the Scripture

The Copying and Worship of the Scripture 223
The Kula with Six Parts – the Convention Concerning the Thunderbolt 231
The Body as the Tree, the Language of the Scripture, the Oral Tradition and Admonishments 235
The Descent of the Scriptures 239
The Worship, Writing, Protection and Efficacy of the Śrīmata 243

।। ॐ स्वस्ति ।।
श्रीनाथपादुकाभ्यां नमः। श्रीगणेशाय नमः।

मन्थानभैरवतन्त्रे कुमारिकाखण्डे

सप्तदशानन्दः

श्रीवक्रा उवाच[१]

अन्वयस्य तु यत् सारं दिव्यौघे[२] संप्रदर्शितम् ।
षोडशात्मकसंकेतमधुना कथयामि ते ।। १ ।।

सन्तानं[३] मेरुमार्गे च[४] अन्वयं तत्र देवता[५] ।
निर्गमं चैव ॐकारे सिद्धान्वये[६] प्रकीर्तितम्[७] ।। २ ।।

तुष्णीदेवं[८] गुहावासी वृक्षं[९] चैव[१०] कदम्बकम्[११] ।
सिंहसंकेतकं[१२] चैव अव्वा[१३] च गुहवासिनी[१४] ।। ३ ।।

गृहं[१५] चन्द्रपुरं[१६] प्रोक्तं भेदं मन्थानभैरवम्[१७] ।
गोत्रम्[१८] अमरिका देवी वाममार्गे[१९] प्रकल्पिता[२०] ।। ४ ।।

अन्वये प्रत्ययं[२१] सारं अधिकारं[२२] तु कोङ्कणे[२३] ।
जन्मब्रह्मशिला सिद्धस्थितिर्वै[२४] कामरूपके[२५] ।। ५ ।।

कीर्तिश्चिञ्चिणिवृक्षं[२६] तु सिद्धिश्चैव तु सागरे ।
तुष्टोऽहं तस्य देवेश[२७] यो जानाति कुलक्रमम्[२८] ।। ६ ।।

अयं[२९] तु कौलिकं सारं कुलक्रमविनिर्गतम् ।
षोडशात्मकसंकेतं[३०] ज्ञात्वा चान्वयिको भवेत् ।। ७ ।।

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

The Venerable Sūtra of the Lineage (śrīsantānasūtra).

The Sixteen Conventions[1]

The venerable (goddess) Vakrā said:

The essence of the Lineage (anvaya) within the Divine Current (divyaugha) has been revealed. Now I will tell you the sixteenfold convention. (1)

1) The Lineage (santāna) is on the Path of Meru.[2] 2) There, the lineage (anvaya) is the deity.[3] 3) What has emerged (nirgama)[4] is in (the sacred seat called) Oṁkāra and is said to be in 4) the lineage of Siddhas.[5] (2)

5) The god Tuṣṇī[6] resides in the cave[7] and 6) in the Kadambaka tree[8]. 7) (The convention is) the Convention of the Lion and the Mother (avvā) is Guhavāsinī (She Who Lives in a Cave). (3)

8) The House is said to be the City of the Moon, while the 9) division (bheda) is that of Manthānabhairava (Churning Bhairava). 10) The clan (gotra) is the goddess Amarikā (Immortal) who is conceived to be (prakalpitā) on the Path of the Left (vāmamārga). (4)

Within the lineage (anvaya), 11) the sign of accomplishment (pratyaya) is the essence,[9] while 12) authority resides in Koṅkaṇa.[10] 13) (There is) the Brahmā Stone of Birth (janmabrahmaśilā), while 14) persistence is accomplished in Kāmarūpaka. (5)

15) Fame (kīrti) is the Tamarind Tree (ciñcinīvṛkṣa), while 16) accomplishment (siddhi) is in the Ocean (sāgara). O lord of the gods, I am happy with the one who knows the Kulakrama. (6)

This is the essence of the Kaula (teachings) that has emerged from the Kulakrama. One becomes a member of the lineage once one has learned the sixteenfold convention.[11] (7)

श्रीनाथ उवाच[३१]

किं मेरुमार्गं[३२] देवेशि[३३] अन्वये[३४] कात्र देवता[३५] ।
ॐकारनिर्गमं ब्रूहि[३६] सिद्धौ चैव[३७] वदस्व मे[३८] ॥ ८ ॥

गुहावासान्तरं[३९] किं तु[४०] कदम्बं प्रकटं कुरु[४१] ।
सिंहकं च न मे ज्ञातं[४२] चन्द्रपुर्यं[४३] विशेषत:[४४] ॥ ९ ॥

गोत्रं मन्थानभेदं च प्रकटं कुरु कौलिनि[४५] ।
अन्वये[४६] प्रत्ययं[४७] किं तु[४८] अधिकारं[४९] तथाम्बिके[५०] ॥ १० ॥

जन्मब्रह्मशिलां[५१] योनिं[५२] निगदस्व[५३] महेश्वरि[५४] ।
स्थिति: किं[५५] कामरूपे तु कीर्तिं[५६] कथय[५७] चिञ्चिणीम्[५८] ॥ ११ ॥

सागरे तु कथं सिद्धि:[५९] एतत् पृच्छामि कौलिनि[६०] ।
स्फुटं कथय एकैकं संशयं छेतुमर्हसि ॥ १२ ॥

श्रीवक्रा उवाच[६१]

संकेतानि[६२] च देवेश कुलाम्नाये व्यवस्थिता:[६३] ।
चन्द्रपुर्यस्य[६४] बिम्बस्य अन्वयं षोडशात्मकम् ॥ १३ ॥

तस्य सन्तानसूत्रं तु षड्विधस्य[६५] क्रमस्य[६६] च ।
अधुना श्रूयतां शम्भो अमृतं[६७] सारसंग्रहम् ॥ १४ ॥

पदे पदे मया ख्यातं भेदे भेदे[६८] पृथक् पृथक् ।
अतिगूढमिदं प्रश्नं[६९] देवदेवावतारितम् ॥ १५ ॥

Śrīnātha said:

O mistress of the gods, what is the Path of Meru? Who is the deity here in the lineage? Tell (me) about what has emerged from (the sacred seat called) Oṁkāra and the two Siddhas. (8)

What is within the cave dwelling? Explain clearly (what is meant by) the Kadamba (tree). I have not learned the (Convention of the) Lion. In particular, (I want to know about) the City of the Moon. (9)

O Kaulinī, explain clearly (what is meant by) the Clan and the division of the Churning (Bhairava). O mother, what is the sign of accomplishment in the lineage? And what is authority?[12] (10)

O Great Goddess, tell (me) about the Brahmā Stone of Birth, namely, the Yoni. What is (the condition of) persistence in Kāmarūpa? Tell (me) about Fame and the Tamarind. (11)

How is it that there is accomplishment in the Ocean? This is what I am asking, O Kaulinī. Explain each one of these things clearly. You should remove (my) uncertainty (about them). (12)

The venerable (goddess) Vakrā said:

O Lord of the gods, (these) conventions belong to the Kula Tradition (kulāmnāya). The lineage of the original form (bimba) of the City of the Moon is sixteenfold. (13)

The teaching regarding the Family Line (santānasūtra) is a part of the sixfold Transmission (krama). Now listen, O Śambhu, to the (teaching concerning) the nectar which is the collection of the essence (of the teaching). (14)

I have explained it at every step and in every division (of the Tradition) individually. Brought down (into this world) by the God of the gods, this question is extremely profound. (15)

तदहं कथयिष्यामि येन विन्दसि सर्वशः ।
मेरु[७०] भुवन[७१] विख्यातं देवतालयशोभनम्[७२] ॥ १६ ॥

त्रिकूट[७३] शृङ्गरचितं त्रिभिर्देवैरधिष्ठितम्[७४] ।
ब्रह्मा विष्णुश्च रुद्रश्च एते सिद्धक्रमे स्थिताः ॥ १७ ॥

आनन्द[७५] विमलं चिञ्च[७६] एषां संज्ञा त्रिशुद्धिषु ।
आनन्द[७७] व्यापकं देव[७८] सर्वभूतेष्ववस्थितम् ॥ १८ ॥

सृष्टिर्विमलरूपेण[७९] चिकाराज्ञागृहे[८०] स्थिता[८१] ।
एतैर्विज्ञातमात्रैस्तु[८२] मोक्षं यास्यन्ति मानवाः ॥ १९ ॥

व्यापिन्या[८३] च महादेवी एकैकस्य[८४] व्यवस्थिता ।
तरङ्गिनी[८५] महाचण्डा[८६] काये कायेषु[८७] व्यापिनी ॥ २० ॥
त्रिरत्नभूषितैस्त्वङ्गैः[८८] स्वभावेन तु दीपिता[८९] ।
मार्ग[९०] चैव ऋजु[९१] स्पष्टं सुशुद्धममृतोपमम् ॥ २१ ॥
अमा नाम कला सा तु आश्रमं गुह्यमण्डले ।
आगता सा परा देवी दाडिमीकुसुमोपमा[९२] ॥ २२ ॥

द्वौ[९३] पक्षौ गुहका माया[९४] दृश्येते[९५] ऋतुकालयोः ।
विचित्रा नाम विख्याता तया व्याप्तमशेषतः[९६] ॥ २३ ॥
एषा सा देवता देवतया[९७] ख्याता मया प्रभो ।
गुहाश्रमाद्[९८] विनिष्क्रान्ता अस्वरा स्वरवाहिनी ॥ २४ ॥
शुद्धस्फटिकसंकाशा[९९] शक्तिभिः सह संस्थिता ।
निष्क्रान्ता कूर्मनाड्या[१००] या इन्दुबिम्बसमायुता[१०१] ॥ २५ ॥

The Path of Meru

I will speak of that by means of which you attain (all things) in every way. Meru is said to be a world (bhuvana).[13] It is the beautiful abode of the gods. (16)

The summit (of Meru) is made of three Peaks presided over by three gods. These are Brahmā, Viṣṇu and Rudra who reside in the transmission of the Siddhas.[14] (17)

The Tamarind (ciñcā) is pure bliss. Their designation is in the triple purification.[15] O god, bliss is pervasive and is present in all beings. (18)

Emanation (sṛṣṭi), in a pure form, abides within the House of the Command of (the goddess Ciñcinī whose name begins with) the syllable CI.[16] Merely by knowing these (things), men attain liberation. (19)

The Deity of the Lineage

The Great Goddess is pervasive (vyāpinyā) and she is present in each and every thing. (She is) Taraṅginī (the Wave) who is very fierce and present in the body; she is (also) in (all other) bodies.[17] Her limbs are adorned with the three jewels and she is energized (dīpitā) by her own nature.[18] The Path is straight and clear.[19] Extremely pure, it is like nectar. She is the digit of energy (kalā) of the New Moon (amā). The Hermitage (āśrama) is in the secret (guhya) maṇḍala.[20] The Supreme Goddess, (red) like the pomegranate flower, has come (there).[21] (20-22)

The two (lunar) phases (pakṣa), Guhakā (the Secret One) and Māyā are perceived during the two fertile seasons (ṛtukāla).[22] She is called Vicitrā (Wonderfully Diverse) and (the maṇḍala) in its entirety is pervaded by her. She, O lord, is the deity and I have spoken (of her) as the deity. She has emerged from the Cave Hermitage (guhāśrama) and, silent (asvara), she transports sound (svaravāhinī).[23] (Her appearance is brilliant) like pure crystal and she, along with (her) energies, has emerged by means of the Tortoise Channel (kūrmanāḍī)[24] and is linked to the lunar orb. (23-25)

सिद्धौ द्वाविति विख्यातौ[१०२] भूषितं[१०३] मेरुमण्डलम् ।
सृष्टिसंहारकर्तारौ[१०४] पुनश्चान्तपदे स्थितौ[१०५] ॥ २६ ॥

ॐकारनिर्गमं देव सादाख्यं परिगीयते ।
अयं ब्रह्म अयं[१०६] विष्णुरयं[१०७] रुद्रो महेश्वरः[१०८] ॥ २७ ॥
सर्वदेवमयो[१०९] ह्येष[११०] ॐकार इति[१११] गीयते ।[११२]

मेरोर्मध्यमतुङ्गे[११३] तु स्थिता समुद्रमालया[११४] ॥ २८ ॥
त्रिकोणायां[११५] गुहामध्ये ॐकारस्तत्र दृश्यते[११६] ।
अमृतमध्ये[११७] गुहावासी[११८] बिन्दुना[११९] गीयते तु सा ॥ २९ ॥

संकेत[१२०] वृक्षमूलं तु योनिमध्ये कदम्बकम् ।
तेन व्याप्तमिदं मेरु[१२१] आलयं सर्वयोगिनाम् ॥ ३० ॥

संज्ञाभेदस्थिता[१२२] देवी[१२३] हरया[१२४] बिन्दुसंज्ञया ।
भाषामुद्राणि[१२५] चिन्हानि संकेतेन प्रकीर्तिताः[१२६] ॥ ३१ ॥

सिंहकं[१२७] शृणु देवेश अम्बा[१२८] यत्र[१२९] स्वयं[१३०] स्थिता[१३१] ।
भैरवी रमते तत्र क्रीडते[१३२] भैरवैः[१३३] सह ॥ ३२ ॥

अधिष्ठानं महास्थानं समुद्रालयवेष्टितम्[१३४] ।
सिंहकं तं विजानीयात्[१३५] सिंहासनमुदीरितम्[१३६] ॥ ३३ ॥

Oṁkāra and the Two Siddhas

Two Siddhas are said to adorn the Circle of Meru.[25] They are the agents of creation and destruction. (Once they have performed their function), they again come to reside on the last (most elevated) plane. (26)

O god, Sādākhya (the One Called Eternal) is said to be what has emerged from (the sacred seat called) Oṁkāra.[26] This is Brahmā, this is Viṣṇu, this is Rudra and Maheśvara. He is made of the gods and is called Oṁkāra. (27-28ab)

The Cave Dwelling

On the middle peak of Meru resides the (goddess) with the ocean (of letters) as her garland. Oṁkāra is perceived there in the middle of the Cave (guhā) within the Triangle (of energies).[27] (The goddess) who lives in the cave is said to be in the middle of the nectar (in the form of a) Point.[28] (28cd-29)

The Kadamba Tree

The Convention (which is the essential teaching) has as its root the Tree, namely, the Kadambaka in the centre of the Yoni.[29] This Meru, the abode of all yogis, is pervaded by it. (30)

The Convention of the Lion

The goddess has diverse designations. As Harā she is called the Point. The signs consisting of Gestures and the (secret) language (bhāṣā) are enunciated by means of the convention. (31)

O Lord of the gods, listen to (the location of the) the Lion wherein the Mother is self-established. Bhairavī sports there; she plays there with the Bhairavas. (32)

The foundation (adhiṣṭhāna) is the Great Place, encompassed by the Abode of the Ocean. Know that to be the (the location of the) Lion, said to be the Lion Throne (siṁhāsana).[30] (33)

अम्बरस्थ[१३७] महाबिम्ब[१३८] षोडशस्वरभूषितम्[१३९] ।
तन्मध्ये तु अमा देवी गृहमेतत्[१४०] प्रकीर्तितम् ॥ ३४ ॥

कूर्मयन्त्रप्रवाहेन मन्थयेच्च परस्परम् ।
मन्थानं सृष्टिरेवोक्त[१४१] कौलिकं कलसंभवम्[१४२] ॥ ३५ ॥
तस्मिन् मध्ये रमेद् धीमान् यत्र माता निरामया ।

अस्मिन्[१४३] गोत्रं प्रवक्ष्यामि अमरत्व[१४४] शृणु प्रिय[१४५] ॥ ३६ ॥
पञ्चरत्नस्य मध्यस्थं श्रीकण्ठादि प्रकीर्तितम् ।
एष[१४६] देव्यादिगोत्रो ऽय[१४७] न गोत्रं नामसंज्ञया[१४८] ॥ ३७ ॥

वामभागे स्थिता[१४९] या ता[१५०] वामाचारेण पूजयेत्[१५१] ।
अमरत्वेति[१५२] विज्ञेयं लम्बकं नाम[१५३] विश्रुतम् ॥ ३८ ॥
सा कला भावये[१५४] द्रव्य[१५५] पिबस्व[१५६] अमृतोपमम् ।
एषा[१५७] परं महास्थानं मेरुमण्डलवेष्टितम्[१५८] ॥ ३९ ॥

प्रत्ययं शृणु देवेश महाविश्वेति[१५९] दृश्यते ।
वर्तुलं रत्नतुङ्गाभं वर्णावर्णान्तप्रत्ययम्[१६०] ॥ ४० ॥

The House of the City of the Moon[31]

It is located in the Sky (of the Supreme Principle) and, very sacred (mahādivya), it adorned with the sixteen vowels. In the centre is the goddess New Moon (amā).[32] That is said to be the House (gṛha). (34)

The Division of the Churning Bhairava

One should churn one with the other by means of the current of the Tortoise Machine (kūrmayantra).[33] (The act of) churning (manthāna) is said to be emanation itself, which is the arising of the aspects of the (energy of) Kula.[34] The wise man should sport there, in (Suṣumṇā) (which is) the centre (madhya),[35] where the Mother is free of blemish. (35-36ab)

The Clan and Path of the Left

Listen to (the nature of) the immortal state, O beloved; I will tell you of the clan (gotra) within it. (The series of letters) beginning with Śrīkaṇṭha (A) is in the middle of the Five Jewels.[36] That is the goddess's first clan (devyādigotra).[37] The clan (meant here is) not (simply that indicated by the common) designation of a name. (36cd-37)

One should worship (the goddess) who is on the left side (of the god) by means of the Practice of the Left (vāmācāra). One should know that this is immortality. (It is the uvula) and goes by the name of Lambaka (the Hanging One). That energy (kalā) is the sacrificial substance and it is like nectar. Drink (it to gain eternal) existence.[38] That (energy) is the supreme Great Place,[39] encompassed by the Circle of Meru. (38-39)

The Sign of Accomplishment

Listen, O Lord of the gods, to the sign of accomplishment (pratyaya).[40] It is perceived as the great universe. The sign of accomplishment is at the end of (both) sound (varṇa) and silence (avarṇa).[41] It is circular and shines as the Mountain of Jewels (ratnatuṅga). (40)

तच्च पश्यन्ति योगिन्यो मर्त्यानां प्रकटं हर ।
महापर्वतबिम्बस्य पूजा[१६१] कुर्वन्ति[१६२] योगिन:[१६३] ।। ४१ ।।
क्रमार्चनं प्रकुर्वन्ति ये स्थिता विश्वमध्यत:[१६४] ।

दिव्याक्षरं तु तं पश्येत् कौलिनीपरिलेखितम्[१६५] ।। ४२ ।।
स एष[१६६] प्रत्यय[१६७] रुद्र[१६८] प्रत्यक्ष[१६९] समुदाहृतम्[१७०] ।

कृतं मयाधिकार[१७१] तु पूर्णपीठे ह्यधोमुखी[१७२] ।। ४३ ।।
पुन: कोंकणावतारे[१७३] कमलाव्वा[१७४] प्रकीर्तिता ।
एतद् वै अधिकारं तु कोंकणे प्रकटीकृतम् ।। ४४ ।।

ब्रह्मस्थाने भवेत् पद्मं सृष्ट्यर्थं[१७५] समुपागतम् ।
जन्मस्थान[१७६] शिलामध्ये[१७७] तत्र चांकुरदेवता[१७८] ।। ४५ ।।
तया च सा शिलाक्रान्ता जन्मब्रह्मशिला स्मृता[१७९] ।

कन्दमूलमध:स्थाने वर्तुलं चातिशोभनम् ।। ४६ ।।
तच्छ्रवेत्[१८०] कामिनीचक्रे देवदेव महेश्वर[१८१] ।
कामाख्यं गुह्यसंस्थाने स्थित्वाश्रम[१८२] ममेति च ।। ४७ ।।

करिष्यामि ह्यहं कीर्ति[१८३] चिञ्चाख्ये[१८४] वृक्षसंज्ञके ।
मयापि व्यापित[१८५] मेरु[१८६] रमन्ती[१८७] च अहं स्थिता[१८८] ।। ४८ ।।

O Hara, the Yoginīs see it and it is clearly manifest to mortal men. Yogis worship the form of (that) great mountain. Those (who are there), established in the centre of the universe, perform the worship of the Transmission (kramārcana). (41-42ab)

One should see that divine letter written (there)[42] by (the goddess) Kaulinī. O Rudra, that is the sign of attainment (pratyaya) said to be directly apparent (pratyakṣa). (42cd-43ab)

Authority

I have placed authority in the full sacred seat (pūrṇapīṭha).[43] (There I) face downwards.[44] Again, she is known as the Mother Kamalā (Lotus) in (her) descent (to earth) in Koṅkaṇa. That, indeed, is authority made clearly manifest in Koṅkaṇa.[45] (43cd-44)

Brahmā's Stone of Birth

In the Place of Brahmā (brahmasthāna) there is a lotus that has come to be placed (samupāgata) (there) for the purpose of emanation. (It is) the Place of Birth (janmasthāna) and is in the centre of the Stone (śilā). The deity of the sprout (aṅkura) (resides) there. The Stone (śīlā) is pervaded (ākrāntā) by her and (so) is said to be Brahmā's Stone of Birth.[46] (45-46ab)

Stability in Kāmarūpa

The Root of the Bulb (kandamūla) is in the lower place. It is round and very beautiful. O god of the gods, O Great God, it oozes into the Wheel of the Passionate Goddess (kāminīcakra). Kāmākhya is located in the Secret Place (guhyasthāna) and abiding (there), it is my Hermitage.[47] (46cd-47)

Fame of the Tamarind Tree

I will make the (tree) called the Tamarind famous.[48] I also pervade Meru and, residing (there), I play.[49] (48)

सागरे[१८९] हृदि मध्ये तु नानासिद्धीन्यनेकशः[१९०] ।
तत्र मन्त्रा हि[१९१] योगदा[१९२] विज्ञानं चात्र संस्थितम् ।। ४९ ।।

भोगमोक्षालयं देव यत् किञ्चित् सचराचरम् ।
एतत् सारं महाशम्भो ज्ञातव्यं कौलिकैः सह[१९३] ।। ५० ।।

यस्य[१९४] तुष्टा च[१९५] अव्वाहं[१९६] स विन्दति कुलक्रमम् ।
कुलपिण्डे तु हे[१९७] नाथ मिथ्या क्लिष्यन्ति योगिनः ।। ५१ ।।

न विन्दन्ति[१९८] रहस्येदं[१९९] यत् सारं कौलिकान्वये ।
तेन ते सिद्धिनिर्मुक्ता विचरन्ति महीतले ।। ५२ ।।

स्वानुभवं[२००] मेरुबिम्बे तु सिद्धीनां क्लिन्नमण्डले[२०१] ।
कुलस्यास्य प्रभावेन तस्मात्[२०२] सिद्धिर्न दूरतः[२०३] ।। ५३ ।।

कुलकौलस्य मध्ये तु यो[२०४] रमेत्[२०५] साधकोत्तमः[२०६] ।
स मुक्तो मोचयेज्जन्तून्[२०७] योगिनीसमतां व्रजेत् ।। ५४ ।।

अयं[२०८] तु कौलिकं सारं कुलक्रमविनिर्गतम् ।
संकेतषोडषं[२०९] शम्भो मया तदुपलक्षितम्[२१०] ।। ५५ ।।
न कथेद्[२११] भिन्नभावस्य[२१२] भक्तिहीनशठस्य[२१३] च ।
व्याख्येयं भक्तियुक्तस्य गुरुदेवरतस्य च ।। ५६ ।।

The Ocean

There are many accomplishments of many kinds in the Ocean[50] in the middle of the Heart. There, mantras bestow Yoga, and Wisdom resides here. (49)

Conclusion

O god, whatever moves or is immobile is the abode of liberation and worldly enjoyment. O great Śambhu, that is the Essence that should be known along with (other) Kaulikas. (50)

The one with whom I, the Mother, am pleased, obtains the Kula Transmission (krama). O Lord, yogis falsely suffer in the Body of Kula (kulapiṇḍa).[51] (51)

They do not receive this secret which is the essence of the Kula lineage (kulānvaya). Thus, they wander on the surface of the earth devoid of yogic power (siddhi). (52)

By the power of this Kula, (the yogi has) a personal experience of the accomplishments (siddhi) in the maṇḍala of (the goddess) Klinnā (the Wet One), which is the form of Meru (merubimba).[52] Thus accomplishment is not far away (but is close at hand). (53)

The best of adepts, sporting in the centre of Kulakaula, is a liberated being and liberates (other) people. He becomes equal to the Yoginīs (Yoginīsamatā). (54)

This is the essence of the Kaula (teaching) that has emerged from the Kulakrama. I, O Śambhu, have explained (this), the convention of sixteen (elements). It should not be told to a hypocrite or to a thief devoid of devotion, but to one who has devotion and is devoted to God and (his) teacher. (55-56)

इत्याद्यावतारे[२१४] महामन्थानभैरवयज्ञे[२१५] अन्वये सप्तकोटिप्रमाणे मेरुमार्गविनिर्गते[२१६]
लक्षपादाधिके[२१७] आद्यपीठावतारिते विद्यापीठमार्गे विमलषट्कनिर्णये कादिभेदे
आज्ञापारमेश्वरे[२१८] स्वामिनीमते[२१९] श्रीचतुर्विंशत्सहस्रसंहितायां अव्वाक्रम–
भाषिते[२२०] श्रीसन्तानसूत्राधिकारवर्णने[२२१] क्रमोदयो नामानन्दः ।। १७ ।।

This is the (seventeenth) chapter which is the emergence of the transmission (kramodaya) with regards to the description of the authority of the Venerable Sūtra of the Lineage (śrīsantānasūtra). It belongs to the primordial descent into the great sacrifice of the Churning Bhairava in the tradition (anvaya) that consists of seventy million (verses) that has emerged on the Path of Meru and (extends) for more than a hundred thousand quarter (verses). It has been brought (down to earth) into the first sacred seat along the path of the Seat of Knowledge (vidyāpīṭha). It is the ultimate purport of the Pure Six Thousand (verses) (vimalaṣaṭka) in the division beginning with 'KĀ' in the venerable scripture of twenty-four thousand (verses known as) the Svāminīmata of the Supreme Lord's command as uttered within the Tradition of the Mother (avvākrama).

अष्टादशानन्दः

श्रीनाथ उवाच

किञ्चिच्चोद्यं मम[१] भद्रे बुद्धिकौशल्यविस्तरम्[२] ।
केन बुद्धिस्वरूपेण वससे[३] मम देहगा ॥ १ ॥
केन ज्ञानभूयिष्ठेन[४] तन्मे ब्रूहि सुरार्चिते ।

किं कुलं कि[५] कुलाचार[६] किं मूल[७] अन्वय[८] तथा ॥ २ ॥
संज्ञाभेदविधानानि[९] रूप वर्णाः[१०] स्वरूपतः ।
कुले[११] पिण्डस्य न्यासं हि[१२] पदस्थानविभूषणम् ॥ ३ ॥

कस्मिन् स्थाने तु न्यस्तव्य[१३] योग[१४] धारणलक्षणम्[१५] ।
समयविद्या[१६] च आज्ञा[१७] च[१८] न्याससूत्रं वदस्व मे ॥ ४ ॥

श्रीवक्रा उवाच[१९]

साधु साधु महाशम्भो यन्मे[२०] निगदितं शृणु ।
विस्तरेण बहुभेदैस्तत्सर्व[२१] कथयामि ते ॥ ५ ॥

वाग्जालैः किं प्रभावैश्च[२२] तूष्णीं[२३] त्वं तिष्ठ शङ्कर[२४] ।
एकया जिह्वया देव कथं वर्णयितुं क्षमा ॥ ६ ॥

शृणु रहस्यं परमं सद्भावं वर्णयामि ते ।
यथा क्षीरे स्थित[२५] सर्पिः अव्युच्छिन्नं न दृश्यते ॥ ७ ॥
तथाहं तव सर्वाङ्गैः[२६] व्यापयित्वा[२७] व्यवस्थिता ।

मया विना च त्वं देव अज्ञानी मूढचेतनः ॥ ८ ॥
पंगुलो[२८] जडवच्चान्धो[२९] मूको बधिर[३०] वत्सल[३१] ।

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

The Deposition of Mālinī

Preamble

Śrīnātha said:

O dear one! You who are in my body! The expanse of the power of my intellect should be stimulated to a degree. In what ideal form do you reside (within me and) by means of which supremely excellent consciousness? Tell me that, you who are venerated by the gods! (1-2ab)

What is Kula? What is Kula Conduct (kulācāra)?[1] (What is) the lineage (anvaya)?[2] (Tell me) the prescriptions with regards to the various kinds of designations! (Tell me) what is form (rūpa) and the letters in their essential nature! (Tell me) the deposition (of the letters) on the body in the Kula (teachings) which is adorned with syllables and locations. (2cd-3)

In which place should one deposit Yoga, the mark of which is sustained attention (dhāraṇa)? Tell me the Vidyā of the Rule, the Command and the Sūtra of the Depositions (of mantras on the body) (nyāsasūtra).[3] (4)

The venerable (goddess) said:

O Great Śambhu, what you have asked me is wise indeed. (Now) listen. I will tell you all that, extensively and with (its) many sections. (5)

What power do many words have? O Śaṅkara, abide in silence! O god, how can I describe (all this) with (just) one tongue? (6)

Listen to the supreme secret, I will tell you the (very) essence (of it). Just as clarified butter within milk is not divided into parts (but is present throughout it and so) is not visible, similarly I pervade (you) with all your limbs. (7-8ab)

Without me, O god, you (would be) ignorant and deluded. O dear one, (you would be) lame, effectively insentient, blind, deaf and dumb. (8cd-9ab)

मया प्रबोधमात्रया[३२] प्रबुध्यन्ते[३३] पुनस्तथा[३४] ॥ ९ ॥
स्पन्दनं चलनं चैव भ्रमणं जल्पनं विभो ।
क्रीडनं सृष्टिकर्तृत्वं [३५]यत् किञ्चित् करोतीच्छया[३६] ॥ १० ॥
सर्वावस्था मया[३७] देव प्रेरिता[३८] मम सर्वतः ।

न मया रहितं किञ्चित् पश्यसि[३९] च त्रिलोचन ॥ ११ ॥
यथा रश्मिसमूहेन व्यापयेच्च दिवाकरः ।
तथाहं[४०] व्यापिनी तुभ्यं[४१] देहे तिष्ठामि सर्वदा ॥ १२ ॥

यथा वह्नेः स्थिता ज्वालाशीतांशुरश्मिमध्यतः ।
एवं व्याप्तं मया सर्वं अशेषं[४२] भुवनान्तिकम्[४३] ॥ १३ ॥

व्यापितं[४४] तु मया शक्त्या मायाजालेन[४५] मोहितम्[४६] ।
करणं कर्तृ कर्माणि कुर्वामि[४७] न करोम्यहम् ॥ १४ ॥

सर्वशास्त्राण्यनेकानि[४८] चित्रिता[४९] मम पुस्तके ।
शोभनानि च वाक्यानि[५०] शृणु भैरव यत्नतः ॥ १५ ॥

श्रीमतेदं[५१] महादेव सर्वागममनुत्तमम्[५२] ।
येन विज्ञातमात्रेण निर्मलः साधको भवेत् ॥ १६ ॥
विचरेत[५३] महीं सर्वां[५४] निःशङ्को वनहस्तिवत् ।

श्रीनाथ उवाच

न्याससूत्रं महादेवि वद मे शंकरार्चिते ॥ १७ ॥
येन न्यसितमात्रेण[५५] दिव्याम्नायः प्रवर्तते ।

By my awakening alone do (living beings) awake again and so, O pervasive lord, (the following signs appear): throbbing (spandana), movement (of the body) (calana), wandering about (bhramaṇa), babbling (jalpana), play (krīḍana) and the agency of emanation (sṛṣṭikartṛtva) – whatever it may be, O god, one does it (freely) by (the power of my divine) will (icchā). O god, all (these) states are mine and are impelled by me in every way. (9cd-11ab)

O Three-eyed One, you (can) see nothing devoid of me. Just as the sun pervades (everything) by (its) rays, in the same way, I, who am the pervasive one (vyāpinī), always reside within your body. (11cd-12)

Just as the flame of a fire is located in the midst of the rays of (light) the fire (emits) in the same way everything without exception, up to the end of the universe, is pervaded by me. (13)

It is pervaded by me, the energy (of ultimate reality), and it is deluded by the net of Māyā. The agent is an instrument. I act (but) I do not make Karmas. (14)

All the many scriptures are variously represented (citritā) in my (sacred) book. Listen with effort, O Bhairava, to (these) auspicious words. (15)

O Great God, this, the Śrīmata, is the best of all scriptures (āgama). Merely by knowing it, the adept becomes pure and, without fear, he wanders over the whole earth, like an elephant of the jungle. (16-17ab)

Śrīnātha said:

O Great Goddess who is worshipped by Śaṅkara, tell me the Sūtra of the Depositions (of mantras onto the body) (nyāsasūtra), so that by just depositing (the mantras onto the body) the Divine Tradition (divyāmnāya) functions. (17cd-18ab)

श्रीवक्रा उवाच[५६]

पुनरन्यं[५७] क्रमं वक्ष्ये मालिन्या देहसन्ततिम्[५८] ॥ १८ ॥
मेरुमार्गाद् विनिष्क्रान्ता[५९] षोढान्यासस्य पद्धतिः ।

मालिनी[६०] शब्दराशिश्च त्रिविद्याघोरिकाष्टकम्[६१] ॥ १९ ॥
सिद्धाङ्गपञ्चकाङ्गानि[६२] विद्यया[६३] बीजपञ्चकम् ।
पीठपञ्चकमेवं तु षोढान्यासं[६४] प्रकीर्तितम् ॥ २० ॥

समयाद्द्वादशाङ्गानि तथा क्षेत्रपरिग्रहम्[६५] ।
अधिकारत्रयं कृत्वा तथान्यं[६६] रत्नपञ्चकम् ॥ २१ ॥
एवं न्यासक्रमं कृत्वा पश्चाद्[६७] यजनमारभेत् ।

मालिन्यादिसुविन्यासं समयं[६८] मण्डलक्रमम् ॥ २२ ॥
प्रथमं कुलकौलस्य कृत्वा[६९] यजनमारभेत् ।

तत्र न्यासं[७०] यथा देव अवतारं कलौ युगे ॥ २३ ॥
आदिपीठस्य वक्ष्यामि शृणु एकाग्र[७१] सुन्दर ।
उद्धारं च यथा देव शृणु वक्ष्याम्यनन्तरम् ॥ २४ ॥

रावस्याधःस्थितं[७२] रत्नं[७३] शिखा स्याच्च[७४] अधोमुखी ।
तथा च पद्मयोनिश्च[७५] शिरोऽस्माकं महेश्वर ॥ २५ ॥

एकपादान्तचत्वारि “[७६] विलोमाच्छिरमालिका[७७] ।
आद्यं[७८] शक्तिपुरस्यास्य नयनं च तृतीयकम् ॥ २६ ॥

तथा धूम्रध्वजस्याधौ[७९] लोचनौ[८०] द्वौ प्रकीर्तितौ ।
एकपादशिरं[८१] गृह्य[८२] द्वावेतौ[८३] कर्णयोर्न्यसेत्[८४] ॥ २७ ॥

The venerable (goddess) said:

(Now) I will tell (you) another sequence (krama), namely, the teaching (santati) concerning the body along with Mālinī which is the liturgy (paddhati) of the sixfold deposition (of mantra) (ṣoḍhānyāsa) that has emerged from the Path of Meru. (18cd-19ab)

The sixfold deposition (ṣoḍhānyāsa) is said (to consist of) 1) Mālinī, 2) the Assembly of Sounds (śabdarāśi), 3) the triple Vidyā, 4) Aghorikāṣṭaka, 5) the Vidyā (in conjuction with) the Five Limbs of the Siddhas, 6) the pentad of seed-syllables and the five sacred seats.[4] (19cd-20)

One must first make the sequence of depositions as follows: the twelve limbs of the Samayā (Vidyā), the Enclosure of the Field, the Triple Authority and then another, that is, the (group of) Five Jewels. After this one should begin the sacrificial rite (yajana).[5] (21-22ab)

(Again), once one has performed the good depositions of Mālinī and the rest, (along with that of) the Samayā (Vidyā), and the sequence (krama) of the maṇḍala of the Kulakaula, one should then begin the sacrificial rite (yajana). (22cd-23ab)

O god, I will tell (you) how the deposition (of mantra) came down (to earth) there in the Age of Strife. O handsome one! Listen attentively. O god, listen to the extraction (of the letters) I will tell (you) after (that). (23cd-24)

The Deposition of Mālinī onto the Body[6]

The jewel that is below Sound is the Topknot (śikhā) (Na) that faces downwards.[7] O Great God, in the same way the Lotus Yoni (Tha) is our head. (25)

The four (letters that constitute) the Garland of the Head (Ṛ Ṝ ḷ Ḷ) are at the (bottom) end of the triangle[8] in the reverse order.[9] The Third Eye (Ca) is preceeded by the City of Energy (Pha).[10] (26)

In the same way, the two Eyes (Dha) are said to be below the Smoky Banner (Ṣa). Laying hold of the head of the One-footed (E), two of this (letter) should be deposited onto the two ears (Ṇa). (27)

तथाभ्यां[८५] भूषणौ श्रेष्ठौ ठडान्तौ[८६] च स्थितौ हर ।
ई–ऊमध्ये[८७] गता नासा शिवरूपा मनोन्मनी ॥ २८ ॥
पुटोभयसमायुक्ता विसर्गान्तेऽपि[८८] भेदिनी ।
तस्याधः[८९] परवक्त्रं तु सृष्टिपूर्वं[९०] महेश्वर ॥ २९ ॥

हनुमानुजवर्णाद्यं[९१] खाद्यं वै खशिरं पुनः ।
द्विशिरं पञ्चभिर्मध्यादुभयोर्दन्तमालिका[९२] ॥ ३० ॥

तस्यां ललनया[९३] माया कपालशिरभुषणम् ।
स्वराद्यममृतं[९४] यच्च तस्यां वागेश्वरीं[९५] न्यसेत्[९६] ॥ ३१ ॥

अनङ्गासन[९७] कण्ठं तु छहान्तस्कन्धयोभयोः[९८] ।
उठासनौ[९९] तु[१००] द्वौ तस्याः[१०१] कुर्यात्[१०२] तौ बाहुदण्डयोः ॥ ३२ ॥

गौर्याधःस्थं[१०३] जटाहारं कुर्याद् हस्ततलावुभौ[१०४] ।
पुद्गलस्य[१०५] विसर्गाद्यं उभयोः करपृष्ठयोः ॥ ३३ ॥

ज–अन्तं च इ–अन्तं[१०६] च हस्तांगुलिनखाग्रगौ[१०७] ।
वामहस्तस्थितं[१०८] पात्रं कपालं ईयमध्यगम्[१०९] ॥ ३४ ॥

उत्तानममृतं पूर्णं[११०] पञ्चरत्नैरधिष्ठितम्[१११] ।
त्रिशूलं दक्षिणे हस्ते अधोदण्डान्निधानकम्[११२] ॥ ३५ ॥

तस्य चोर्ध्वं[११३] मुखं कुर्यात् हरस्य सुरसुन्दर ।
एतद् वै राजसं शूलं रजोभावेन[११४] सुन्दर ॥ ३६ ॥

O Hara, the two best Ornaments (U and Ū) are located in the same way at the end of Ṭha and Ḍa. Between I and U is the nasal energy (nāsā) (Ī),[11] that is, the Transmental (manonmanī) who is Śiva.[12] Conjoined with both nostrils (puṭa), she pierces through even the end of emission. O Great God, below her is the Supreme Mouth (Ba) which is preceded by Emanation (Sa). (28-29)

The first letter is the Brother (Ka). (This is followed by) Hanumān (Kha), that which begins with Kha (Ga), the head of the Sky (Gha)[13] and the Double-headed (Ṅa). (This is the) Garland of Teeth (formed by means of these) five (letters) from the centre (front teeth) and of both (rows of teeth). (30)

Māyā (I) serves as her tongue[14] and is the head ornament of the Skull (Ṭa). The first vowel is Nectar (A) and one should deposit the Mistress of Speech within it. (31)

(The letter which is) the seat of Anaṅga (Ha) is the throat (Va); (the letters) ending with Cha (Bha) and Ha (Ya) are (to be placed) on the two shoulders. The seats of U (Ḍa) and Ṭha (Ḍha) – these two should be fashioned on (the goddess's) two arms. (32)

Dreadlock (Ṭha), which is (the letter) below Gaurī (Ī), should be fashioned on both palms of the hands.[15] The primal emission (Ḥ) of the individual soul (should be deposited) on the back of both hands.[16] (33)

(The letters that) end with Ja (Jha) and I (Ña) are on the tips of the nails of the hands. The vessel in the left hand is the Skull located between Ī and Ya (Ṭa). (34)

The upturned vessel (uttāna) is full of the nectar of the Five Jewels.[17] In the right hand is the Trident. At the bottom of the shaft is (Fire), the Destroyer (Nidhānaka) (Ra). (35)

On its upper portion one should fashion Hara's head (Ja),[18] O handsome one of the gods. That indeed, O handsome one, is the rājasic Lance (formed) by menses (rajobhāva).[19] (36)

ताराद्यं यत् परं वर्णं[११५] प्राणे हि[११६] परिगीयते ।
हृदि स्थितं प्रकर्तव्यं सर्वपापहरं हर ।। ३७ ।।

तस्मात्[११७] वर्णमनङ्गाद्य[११८] प्राणात्मानं स्वय[११९] गतम्[१२०] ।
हृदयं त्रिविधं प्रोक्तं शाक्तं[१२१] शाम्भवमाणवम् ।। ३८ ।।

दक्षिणोत्तरतस्तस्या[१२२] हराद्यं वान्तगं[१२३] द्वयोः ।
कुचौ[१२४] दिव्यौ तु देव्यायाः[१२५] साव्यासाव्यौ[१२६] विजानतः ।। ३९ ।।

तयोः क्षीरं झकारान्तं[१२७] तेजोरूपं सुरार्चितम् ।
महाशङ्खाद्यमुदर[१२८] वर्तुलं कुम्भकं[१२९] पृथु ।। ४० ।।

अष्टमममृतस्याधो नाभ्यकाराग्निभैरवम्[१३०] ।
आसनं च द्विरभ्यासं[१३१] देव्याया वा[१३२] नितम्बकम् ।। ४१ ।।

षवान्तस्थं[१३३] भगान्तं तं[१३४] गिरिजासनपुद्गलम् ।
शुक्रेदं[१३५] योनिरन्ध्रस्थं ह्यमृतं श्रवमाणकम् ।। ४२ ।।

थणान्तं च द्विरभ्यासं[१३६] देव्यायाः स्फिजकावुभौ[१३७] ।
रावणजान्तगौ[१३८] गृह्य[१३९] विलोमाज्जानुकौ[१४०] स्मृतौ ।। ४३ ।।

पुद्गलान्तान्तगौ[१४१] जंघौ सव्यासव्यक्रमेण तु ।
औशिरेण शिरे द्वे च देव्यायाः पादयुग्मके ।। ४४ ।।

नादिफान्तसमुच्चारं[१४२] कृत्वा खेचरतां व्रजेत् ।
खगतिः खेगती चैव मालिन्यायाः[१४३] प्रभावतः ।। ४५ ।।

The supreme letter that is preceeded by Tāra (Ya) is said to be in the vital breath (prāṇa) (Ha). It should be placed in the Heart (Pa).[20] O Hara, it removes all sin. (37)

After that comes the letter (Sa) that is preceded by Anaṅga (Ha)[21] which has spontaneously become the Self of the vital breath. (Thus) the Heart is said to be of three kinds: Śāmbhava, Śākta and Āṇava.[22] (38)

(The letter) preceded by Hara (Cha)[23] and (the one) after V (La) are those of the two on the right and left of the goddess. One should know that (they are) her two divine breasts, the right and the left. (39)

Their milk is radiant energy (tejas) and is worshipped by the gods. (Its letter is the one) that ends with letter Jha (Ā). The stomach (Ṣa), round, fat and pot-shaped (is the letter that is preceded by) the Great Conch (Śa). (40)

The eighth (letter) below Nectar (KṢa):[24] (such is) Agnibhairava whose form is the navel. The goddess's buttock (Ma) is the seat repeated twice.[25] (41)

(The letter) between Ṣa and Va (Śa) is the one within the Yoni. The individual soul (pudgala) of the seat of the Daughter of the Mountain (Ṁ)[26] is this sperm (śukra) which is in the cavity of the Yoni. It is flowing nectar. (42)

The goddess's two thighs are the (letter) between Tha and Ṇa (Ta) repeated twice. Having taken up the two (letters) at the end of those born from Rāvaṇa (Ṛ) in the reverse order,[27] these are said to be the two knees (E and AI). (43)

The right and left shanks are, respectively, (the letters O and AU that are) at the end of the (letter) after the Individual Soul (E). Two Heads (śire dve) (Pha) along with (the letter that is) on the head of AU (Da) are on the goddess’s two feet. (44)

Once one has enunciated (the Mālinī order of the alphabet) from Na to Pha, one attains the state of Flight (khecaratā). By the power of Mālinī (one attains both) Flight (Khagati) and its power (Khegatī). (45)

न्यस्त्वा वै मालिनीन्यासं द्वादशाब्दैस्तु[१४४] सिद्ध्यति[१४५] ।
सकृदावर्तयेद् यस्तु सततं न्यसतेऽपि[१४६] वा ॥ ४६ ॥
तस्य तीव्रतरा आज्ञा भवते नात्र संशयः ।

वर्णदेव्योऽधुना[१४७] वक्ष्ये मालिन्याः[१४८] पूर्ववत् क्रमात् ॥ ४७ ॥

नादिनी ग्रासिनी[१४९] चैव निवृत्तिश्च प्रतिष्ठिका ।
विद्या चैव[१५०] तथा शान्तिश्चामुण्डा[१५१] प्रियदर्शिनी ॥ ४८ ॥
नारायणी च मोहन्या[१५२] प्रज्ञाशक्तिस्तथापरा ।
गन्धशक्तिश्च[१५३] वज्रिण्या[१५४] कङ्कटा कालिका[१५५] विदुः[१५६] ॥ ४९ ॥
शिवा च घोरघोषा च विचित्रा अजया पुनः ।
वागेश्वरी शिखिवाही[१५७] भीषणा[१५८] वायुवेगिका[१५९] ॥ ५० ॥
सुलामा[१६०] च विनायकी[१६१] तथा चैव तु पूर्णिमा ।
इच्छाशक्तिस्तु सकाया[१६२] रक्ता चैव कपालिनी ॥ ५१ ॥
नन्दिनी च जयन्ती च पद्मिनी परजाम्बिका[१६३] ।
छगला[१६४] पूतना[१६५] चैव आमोटी[१६६] लम्बकोदरी[१६७] ॥ ५२ ॥
संहारी[१६८] च महाकाली तथा च कुसुमायुधा[१६९] ।
गुह्यशक्तिश्च ताराक्षी[१७०] ज्ञानशक्तिस्तथैव च ॥ ५३ ॥
क्रियाशक्तिश्च गायत्री सावित्री तदनुक्रमात् ।
दहनी[१७१] फेत्कारिका[१७२] च नादिफान्ते समाश्रिताः ॥ ५४ ॥

आश्रमपूर्वतो[१७३] वर्णं बीजं देव्यस्तथा[१७४] पुनः ।
त्रिभिरेकसमायोगान्मालिनीन्यासमारभेत्[१७५] ॥ ५५ ॥

One attains success in twelve years once one has deposited the deposition of Mālinī. He who rotates through it (just) once or deposits it (on the body) without a doubt constantly possesses (the goddess's) most intense Command. (46-47ab)

The Goddesses of the Letters of the Mālinī Alphabet

As before, I will now tell (you the names of) the goddesses of the letters of Mālinī.[28] (47cd)

Nādinī (Sounding One) (Na), 2) Grāsinī (Devouring One) (Tha),[29] 3) Nivṛtti (Satisfaction) (Ṛ), 4) Pratiṣṭhikā (Well-established) (Ṝ), 5) Vidyā (Knowledge) (Ḷ), 6) Śānti (Peace) (Ḹ), 7) Cāmuṇḍā (Ca), 8) Priyadarśinī (Pleasing to Behold) (Dha),[30] 9) Nārāyaṇī (Ṇa), 10) Mohanyā (Deluding One) (U), and next (comes) 11) Prajñāśakti (the Energy of Wisdom) (Ū), 12) Gandhaśakti (Energy of Smell) (Ī),[31] 13) Vajriṇyā (Thunderbolt) (Ba), 14) Kaṅkaṭā (Elephant Hook) (Ka),[32] 15) Kālikā (Kha),[33] 16) Śivā (Ga), 17) Ghoraghoṣā (Horrific Voice) (Gha), 18) Vicitrā (Wonderfully Diverse) (Ṅa),[34] 19) Ajayā (Unconquered) (I),[35] 20) Vāgeśvarī (Mistress of Speech) (A), 21) Śikhivāhī (Vehicle of Fire) (Va),[36] 22) Bhīṣaṇā (Terrifying) (Bha),[37] 23) Vāyuvegikā (Force of the Wind) (Ya), 24) Sulāmā (Ḍha),[38] 25) Vināyakī (Ḍa), 26) Pūrṇimā (Full Moon) (Ṭha), 27) Icchāśakti (Power of the Will) (Ḥ)[39] 28) Sakāyā (Embodied) (Jha),[40] 29) Raktā (Red) (Ña),[41] 30) Kapālinī (Skull Bearer) (Ṭa), 31) Nandinī (Ra),[42] 32) Jayantī (Victorious) (Ja), 33) Padminī (Female Lotus) (Pa),[43] 34) Parajā (Sa),[44] 35) Ambikā (Little Mother) (Ha), 36) Chagalā (She-goat) (Cha),[45] 37) Pūtanā (La), 38) Amoṭī (Ā), 39) Lambakodarī (Dangling Belly) (Ṣa)[46], 40) Saṁhārī (Destroyer) (KṢa), 41) Mahākālī (Ma), 42) Kusumāyudhā (Bearer of the Flower Weapon) (Śa), 43) Guhyaśakti (Secret Energy) (Ṁ),[47] 44) Tārākṣī (Star Eyes) (Ta),[48] 45) Jñānaśakti (Power of Knowledge) (E),[49] 46) Kriyāśakti (Power of Action) (AI), 47) Gāyatrī (O), 48) Sāvitrī (AU), 49) Dahanī (Burning One) (Da) and 50) Phetkārikā (Magician) (Pha). (All these goddesses), in due order, are within (Mālinī who extends from the letter) Na and ends with Pha. (48-54)

The Arousal of Mālinī's Energy and the Destruction of Karma

(Take) the letter preceded by the 'hermitage'[50] (then) the seed-syllable followed by (the names of) the goddesses;[51] by uniting (these) three into one, one should undertake the deposition of Mālinī. (55)

नादिफान्ताक्षरा ये[१७६] च पञ्चाशत् पूर्वमुद्धृता:[१७७] ।
यथा[१७८] कुर्याच्च संस्थानं सृष्टिन्याये[१७९] क्रमेण तु ।। ५६ ।।

शिरोहीनमनङ्गं[१८०] तु तथा चाखण्डमण्डलम् ।
चन्द्रोर्ध्वाङ्कितमेवं[१८१] तु उन्मन्यन्तं तथा पुन: ।। ५७ ।।
एवं चतु:प्रकारस्थं मालिनीन्यासमारभेत् ।

चतुष्टयविनिर्मुक्तं[१८२] न्यासं य: कर्तुमर्हति ।। ५८ ।।
नासौ[१८३] न्यासं न स:[१८४] शिष्य: कृतं भवति निष्फलम् ।

नादबिन्दुकलाज्योतिर्येषु[१८५] वर्णेषु संस्थित:[१८६] ।। ५९ ।।
बीजास्ते[१८७] सर्वत:[१८८] ख्याता:[१८९] शेषा वर्णाश्च केवला:[१९०] ।
केवलेषु च वर्णेषु न मुक्तिर्भवबन्धनात् ।। ६० ।।

सम्यक्ज्ञातेषु[१९१] बीजेषु पुनर्जन्म[१९२] न विद्यते ।
प्राकृतं पूर्वकर्मं[१९३] तु तैलबिन्दुरिवाम्भसि ।। ६१ ।।

जनानां वर्तमानस्य[१९४] ज्ञातैर्बीजै:[१९५] क्षयो[१९६] भवेत्[१९७] ।
तस्मादभ्यासकरणं[१९८] मालिनीन्यासरूपत:[१९९] ।। ६२ ।।
शक्तिस्तु[२००] मालिनी ज्ञेया प्राणशक्तिश्चिदात्मिका[२०१] ।

सुषुम्नान्तरयोगेन गमागमक्रमेण[२०२] तु ।। ६३ ।।
रविचन्द्रसमायोगात्[२०३] तदा प्रसादभैरवम्[२०४] ।
प्रसादं[२०५] बिन्दुचक्रं तु ऊर्ध्वं[२०६] चांकुशवर्तुलम् ।। ६४ ।।
गम्भीरनादवेगेन[२०७] तेषां सम्पद्यते सुखम् ।
सुखाह्लादमनानन्दं[२०८] अवस्था प्राप्यते पदम् ।। ६५ ।।

तदा सा मालिनीशक्तिर्वह्निरुत्पद्यते कला ।
सा च तुर्यस्वराकारा वक्रदेहोद्भवा[२०९] कला ।। ६६ ।।

One should fashion the site of the aforementioned fifty letters from Na to Pha in due order according to the principle of emanation (sṛṣṭinyāya).[52] (56)

One should undertake the deposition of Mālinī established thus in (these) four ways, namely, Anaṅga without a head, the Unbroken Maṇḍala marked above with the Moon and, again, that which ends with the Transmental (unmanyanta).[53] (57-58ab)

He who ‘attempts' (arhati) to practice (this) deposition without (this) group of four is not a (true) disciple. (Even) if it is done, it is not (a true) deposition and it bears no fruit. (58cd-59ab)

The letters that contain the light of the energies of the Sound and the Point are said to be seed-syllable (mantras) in every respect. Other (letters) are merely letters. There is no liberation from the bondage of phenomenal existence (to be had) from (those letters) that are only letters. (59cd-60)

Once the seed-syllables have been properly known, there is no (more) rebirth. Previous material (prākṛta) Karma (becomes) like a drop of oil in water, (it does not stain the individual soul). (61)

Once the seed-syllables are known, the present (Karma) of (those) people (who know them) is destroyed. Therefore, one should know that Mālinī is energy, the power of the vital breath and consciousness. As it is the deposition of Mālinī, it is the instrument of practice. (62-63ab)

(One should know this) by the process of coming and going (brought about) by the union (yoga) within Suṣumṇā through the conjuction of the Sun (Sa) and Moon (Ha). (When this takes place) then Prasādabhairava (the Bhairava of Tranquillity) (manifests). Tranquillity (prasāda) is the Wheel of the Point above which is (the Half Moon that is) convex (vartula) (like) a hook. By the force of profound bliss (ānanda) one attains joy (sukha) and the state that is the plane of the mental bliss of joy and contentment (āhlāda).[54] (63cd-65)

Then the Fire, which is Mālinī's power and (the) energy (of the supreme reality) (kalā), arises, her form that of the resonance of the fourth state (turyasvara). It is the energy generated from the body of (the Goddess) Vakrā. (66)

चन्द्रार्कानलकुण्डेषु मालिन्यायाधिकारणम्[२१०] ।
विषवह्निगता मध्ये[२११] आवर्तान्ते[२१२] व्यवस्थिता ।। ६७ ।।

तस्मात् सा तिर्यगा[२१३] रेखा मालिन्याकारवेश्मनि ।
तेन सा मालिनी प्रोक्ता स्थूला[२१४] सूक्ष्मा तथा परा ।। ६८ ।।

परतः परयोगेन परापरपरायणा[२१५] ।
गृहीत्वा बीजरूपाणि बिन्दुरूपानुयोगिनी[२१६] ।। ६९ ।।

तया व्याप्तं[२१७] जगत् सर्वं अशेषभुवनान्तिकम् ।
तस्याप्येतन्महाबीजं[२१८] वाग्भवं[२१९] गर्भसंयुतम् ।। ७० ।।

मायाबीजं द्वितीयं[२२०] तु लक्ष्मीबीजं तृतीयकम् ।
एवं ते दीपकं त्रीणि[२२१] बीजे[२२२] बीजे पृथक् पृथक् ।। ७१ ।।

शिखाग्रादिनखाग्रान्तं कुलविन्यास[२२३] सुन्दरम् ।
दीपकेषु[२२४] विनिर्मुक्तं न्यस्त्वा न्यासं च मालिनीम्[२२५] ।। ७२ ।।

शिष्यं[२२६] तत्र न मुच्येत[२२७] प्राकृतं पूर्वकर्मणा ।
पूर्वकर्मविनाशार्थं[२२८] न्यासेदिदं[२२९] सुदीपितम् ।। ७३ ।।
कथितं कुलयोगीनां[२३०] कौलयोगात् परं नहि ।

श्रीनाथ उवाच

पुरुषस्यान्तरात्मानं[२३१] चैतन्यं व्योमविग्रहम् ।। ७४ ।।
शिरश्छेदकनामेन[२३२] प्रज्वलन्तं नभस्थितम्[२३३] ।
स एव[२३४] पुरुषो व्यापी अव्यक्तो[२३५] ज्योतिरूपकः[२३६] ।। ७५ ।।

शब्दाढ्यं[२३७] च गुणातीतं प्रभुत्वे संव्यवस्थितम् ।
किं तस्य बन्धनं प्रोक्तं रतिचक्रे तु भाविनि[२३८] ।। ७६ ।।

The authority of Mālinī (that sustains her) is in the sacrificial pits (kuṇḍa) of the Moon, Sun and Fire. She resides (there) between Fire and Poison, at the end of the rotation.[55] (67)

Therefore, she is the crooked line within the House whose form is Mālinī. Thus, she is called Mālinī and is gross, subtle and supreme.[56] (68)

Assuming the form of the Point (bindurūpānuyoginī)[57] and, having laid hold of the forms of the seed-syllable (mantras), she is intent, by (her) supreme Yoga, on attaining the supreme (transcendence) and the inferior (immanence) beyond. (69)

The entire universe is pervaded by her right up to the end of all the worlds. Hers also is that great syllable, that is, Vāgbhava (AIṀ) which is conjoined with the Womb. (70)

The Seed of Māyā (HRĪṀ) is the second, while the Seed of Lakṣmī (ŚRĪṀ) is the third. Thus your Three Lamps (dīpaka) are in each seed-syllable individually.[58] (71)

The beautiful deposition of Kula starts from the top of the topknot up to the tip of the (toe) nails. It is independent (vinirmukta) and (done) through the (Three) Lamps,[59] once deposited the deposition of Mālinī. (72)

The disciple is not freed from (the Karma of) Nature (prākṛta) because of (his) previous Karma. In order to destroy previous Karma, deposit this well-energized (series). It has been told to Kula yogis, (for) there is nothing higher than Kaula Yoga. (73-74ab)

Śrīnātha said:

The inner Self of the Person (puruṣa) is consciousness, the form of which is Space (vyoman). It burns brilliantly and, called the Decapitator (Śiraśchedaka), it is located in Space (nabhas). That is indeed the pervasive, unmanifest Person, whose form is Light. (74cd-75)

Possessing the Word and beyond the qualities, it is established in lordship (prabhutva). O Bhāvinī (Bestower of Existence), what is its fettered state said to be in the Wheel of Passion (raticakra)? (76)

किमेतन्मालिनीन्यासं[२३९] मुक्तं[२४०] भवति किं प्रभो[२४१] ।
एतद् विज्ञातुमिच्छामि मालिनीक्रमहेतुना ॥ ७७ ॥

श्रीवक्रा उवाच

एतत् प्रश्नवरं[२४२] गुह्यं सिद्धिनाथावतारितम् ।
तस्योत्तरं[२४३] प्रवक्ष्यामि शृणु एकाग्र[२४४] भैरव ॥ ७८ ॥

क्षीरमध्ये[२४५] स्थितं[२४६] सर्पि अव्युच्छिन्नं न[२४७] दृश्यते[२४८] ।
तथासौ पुरुषो[२४९] लोके मालिनीहृदिमण्डले ॥ ७९ ॥

यदा न पश्यते[२५०] जीवं[२५१] स्वमनेन तु साधकः ।
तदासौ[२५२] वर्तते कर्म[२५३] प्राकृतं दुरतिक्रमम् ॥ ८० ॥

सुखदुःखवशं गच्छेत्[२५४] न ज्ञातः[२५५] पुरुषो[२५६] यदा ।
तदा ते[२५७] पञ्चभूतैस्तु[२५८] पुरुषोऽसौ[२५९] वशंगतः[२६०] ॥ ८१ ॥

विदिते पुरुषे देव क्षयस्तेषां न संशयः ।
एवं च प्राकृतं कर्म[२६१] पुरुषस्य व्यवस्थितम् ॥ ८२ ॥

आदौ च पुरुषो व्यापी पश्चात् कर्म[२६२] प्रवर्तते ।
पुरुषेण विना कर्म न प्रवर्तेत[२६३] भूतले[२६४] ॥ ८३ ॥

पृथिव्यादिषु[२६५] तत्त्वेषु संस्थितः पुरुषो हि सः ।
सत्त्वरजस्तमैकत्वे[२६६] कृतं कर्म[२६७] प्रवर्तते ॥ ८४ ॥

पुरुषेण विना कर्म न प्रवर्तेत[२६८] केवलम् ।
तस्माच्चादौ च पुरुषं[२६९] ततो भूतादिपञ्चकम्[२७०] ॥ ८५ ॥

पश्चात् त्रीणि गुणान्येषां[२७१] ततः कर्म प्रवर्तते ।
यस्मात् पाशाः[२७२] प्रवर्तन्ते[२७३] शुभानि अशुभानि च ॥ ८६ ॥

What is the deposition of Mālinī? O lord, how does he become free? I want to know this for the sake of Mālinī's Sequence. (77)

The venerable (goddess) Vakrā said:

This most excellect question (concerns) a secret that has been brought down (to earth) by Siddhinātha. I will tell (you) the answer. Bhairava, listen attentively! (78)

The clarifed butter within milk (pervades it and so) is undivided and invisible. This is condition of the Person in the world within the circle (maṇḍala) of Mālinī's heart. (79)

If the adept does not perceive the individual soul with his own mind, then this material (prākṛta) Karma, which is hard to traverse, continues to exists. (80)

If the (true identity of the) Person (puruṣa) is unknown, one comes under the sway of pleasure and pain. Then the Person is controlled by your five gross elements. (81)

O god, once the Person is known then the material (prākṛta) Karma of the Person is certainly destroyed. (82)

Initially, the Person is pervasive, then Karma begins to operate. Karma would not function on the face of the earth without the Person. (83)

This Person resides in the principles (of phenomenal existence) (tattva) starting with the Earth and the rest. Once (the qualities of) sattva, rajas and tamas are one (and act together), Karma that has been created is set into operation. (84)

Karma does not function independently without the Person. Therefore, (in reality) the Person comes at the beginning and is followed by the gruoup of five beginning with the gross elements. (85)

After that come their three qualities. Then Karma functions and so the fetters (exist) and the auspicious and inauspicious takes place. (86)

प्रकृत्यान्तर्गत[२७४] ज्ञात्वा मालिनीकुण्डमध्यतः ।
पञ्चभूतानि मुच्येत[२७५] साधको[२७६] मोक्षदो[२७७] भवेत् ।। ८७ ।।

एतत् सर्व[२७८] समासेन[२७९] मालिन्याः[२८०] क्रमसंस्थितिः ।
सा चैव चन्द्ररूपेण पुंसः शक्तिश्च चिन्मया[२८१] ।। ८८ ।।

सा च माता च मालिन्या[२८२] स्थूला सूक्ष्मापराजिता ।
बीजभूता समाख्याता मालिनी भुवनाकृतिः ।। ८९ ।।

वक्त्राद् वक्त्रगता ज्ञेया गुरुवक्त्रे प्रतिष्ठिता ।
संस्थिता चेश्वरे भागे वाममार्गे विसर्पिता ।। ९० ।।

तस्यामभ्यासकरण[२८३] षडङ्गं च यथा भवेत्[२८४] ।
मेरुमध्यगतं वक्त्रं षड्विध[२८५] कारयेत्[२८६] पुनः ।। ९१ ।।

दीर्घैः षड्भिः[२८७] स्वरैर्भेद्यैः[२८८] नादबिन्दुलयं कृतम्[२८९] ।
षडन्तरगता वै[२९०] च कुर्यात् षड्विधमासनम्[२९१] ।। ९२ ।।

षड्विध[२९२] कामराजान[२९३] मालिन्या योनियोजितम्[२९४] ।
हृच्छिरश्च[२९५] शिखा वर्मलोचनास्त्र[२९६] च षड्विधम् ।। ९३ ।।

देवताषड्भिः[२९७] संयुक्तं मालिन्याङ्गक्रमेण[२९८] तु ।
शवरी[२९९] विद्युज्जिह्वा च[३००] शर्वरी च कुलाम्बिका[३०१] ।। ९४ ।।
मोहनी मारणी[३०२] षष्ठी पृथगङ्गेषु देवताः ।

कुर्याद् बीजत्रयं चादौ तथा कामेश्वर[३०३] पुनः ।। ९५ ।।
देवतामाश्रमं[३०४] षड्भिः[३०५] आद्यन्तेषु विलोमतः[३०६] ।[३०७]
पृथक्कूटविधानेन अङ्गान्येतानि मालिनी ।। ९६ ।।

Once (everything) that is a part of Nature (prakṛti) is within Mālinī's sacrificial pit, the adept is freed from the five elements and (having freed himself, can) give liberation (to others).[60] (87)

All this, in brief, is the condition of the sequence of Mālinī. In the form of the Moon, she is the energy which is the (pure) consciousness of the Person.[61] (88)

And that is Mālinī, the Mother who, unconquered, is gross, subtle and supreme. As the seed (of creation and of mantra), she is called Mālinī and her form is the world. (89)

She is transmitted orally and one should know that she resides in the teacher's mouth. Again, she resides in the Lord's part and has emerged along the Path of the Left. (90)

Mālinī's Limbs and Faces

Within her is the instrument of practice, namely, the (deposition of) the six limbs. Then, one should form the sixfold face (of the goddess) within Meru. (91)

The Sound and the Point are merged with the six long vowels that are to be conjoined. (Once Mālinī) has entered the (other) six, one should fashion the sixfold seat (āsana). (92)

The sixfold (seed-syllable of the) King of Passion (kāmarāja) is conjoined with the Yoni of Mālinī. (It is) sixfold (as) the Heart, Head, Topknot, Armour, Eye and Weapon. (93)

It is conjoined with the six deities in accord with the sequence of Mālinī's limbs. The deities in each limb are: 1) Śavarī, 2) Vidyujjihvā (Lightning Tongue), 3) Śarvarī, 4) Kulāmbikā (Mother of Kula), 5) Mohanī (Deluder) and Maraṇī (Slayer) who is the the sixth. (94-95ab)

One should fashion the three seed-syllables in the beginning and then, again, Kāmeśvara. The Hemitage of Deities is (formed) from (these) six in reverse order from the first to the last ones. These limbs (constitute) Mālinī in accord with the method laid down for the individual Peak (seed-syllables). (95cd-96)

सकृदावर्तयेद् यस्तु सततं न्यसतेऽपि[३०८] वा[३०९] ।
आज्ञा प्रवर्तते तीव्रा दिव्यावेशः प्रवर्तते ।। ९७ ।।

न शृणोति न पश्येत[३१०] तदासौ मुक्तिभाजनः[३११] ।
मण्डलाग्रे[३१२] गुरोराज्ञा सुविनीतः प्रसन्नधीः[३१३] ।। ९८ ।।

वक्त्राणि संप्रवक्ष्यामि यथावदनुपूर्वशः ।
च्छायाच्छत्रं महादेव[३१४] उकारं[३१५] शिरसाहतम् ।। ९९ ।।
बिन्द्विन्दुनाङ्कितं[३१६] देव ऊर्ध्ववक्त्रं तु मालिनी ।

हंसं च मूर्ध्नि विन्यस्य वायुबीजं च पूर्वतः ।। १०० ।।

एकपादयुतं कृत्वा अग्निना दीप्ततत्त्वतः[३१७] ।
बिन्द्विन्दुशिरसाक्रान्तं[३१८] तृतीयं वक्त्रमण्डलम्[३१९] ।। १०१ ।।

अग्निधाम[३२०] च संगृह्य पञ्चमेन समन्वितम् ।
बिन्दुचन्द्रयुतं[३२१] देव दक्षिणे वक्त्रमण्डले ।। १०२ ।।

वारुणं मायया सार्धं दीपन्याया[३२२] अधोयुतम् ।
बिन्दुचन्द्रयुतं देव वामवक्त्रं तु मालिनी ।। १०३ ।।

पूतना दीपनीयुक्ता मोहन्याधः[३२३] कृतालया ।
बिन्दु–इन्दुसमाक्रान्ता[३२४] पश्चिमे वक्त्रसंस्थिताः[३२५] ।। १०४ ।।

एते वक्त्रा[३२६] महादेव[३२७] मालिन्यायाः[३२८] प्रकाशिताः[३२९] ।
न्यासेदमारभेत्[३३०] श्रेष्ठं[३३१] सद्यःप्रत्ययकारकम् ।। १०५ ।।
असंख्यानि च पापानि ये कृताः[३३२] पूर्वजन्मनि ।
इहलोके च ये चान्ये कृता वाथ करिष्यति[३३३] ।। १०६ ।।
ते च सर्वे विनश्यन्ति मालिनीन्यासयोगतः ।

An intense command operates and divine possession occurs (for the adept) who deposits it constantly or rotates (through) it (just) once. (97)

When he neither hears nor sees, he is liberated. The teacher's command is (placed) before the maṇḍala (and the disciple also sits there), well disciplined and with lucid intellect. (98)

I will tell (you) the faces correctly and in due order. Mālinī's upper face is the Umbrella (KṢa), O Great God, the letter U conjoined with the Head and marked with the lunar point (KṢUṀ). (99-100ab)

Once deposited the Gander (Ha) on the head preceded by the seed-syllable of the Wind (YAṀ). (100cd)

The third face is the maṇḍala. It is formed by conjoining the One-footed (E) with Fire (Ra) that is truly energized and united with the head of the lunar drop (REṀ). (101)

Laying hold of the Abode of Fire (Ra) endowed with the fifth (Ū) and conjoined with the lunar point (RŪṀ), (deposit it) O god, onto the maṇḍala of the right face. (102)

Mālinī's left face, O god, (consists of) Vāruṇa (Va) along with Māyā (Ī) and it is conjoined to (the letter) below Dīpanī (Ra) and the lunar point (VRĪṀ). (103)

Pūtanā (La) resides in the eastern face. She is conjoined with Dīpanī (Ra) and, (her) abode is below Mohanī (Ū), who is conjoined with the lunar point (LRŪṀ). (104)

Conclusion: The Benefits

O Great God, these, the faces of Mālinī have been revealed. (The adept) should perform this, the best of depositions that immediately brings about the signs of attainment (pratyaya). The countless sins committed in a previous life as well as those committed (now) in this world and all (those) he will commit, are destroyed by the Yoga of the deposition of Mālinī. (105-107ab)

एतच्चातिरहस्यं वै मेरुमार्गविनिर्गतम् ॥ १०७ ॥
शशिचारवशाच्छम्भो एकचक्रे[३३४] अधिष्ठितम् ।

तस्य योगप्रयोगोऽय[३३५] गुरोराज्ञावधिष्ठितम्[३३६] ॥ १०८ ॥
जानात्यय[३३७] यदा देव मालिनीक्रमराजकम् ।
स मुक्तः सर्वबन्धेभ्यो न भूयो बन्धमाप्नुयात् ॥ १०९ ॥

तान्त्रिकाना[३३८] तार्किकानां परशिष्ये विडम्बके[३३९] ।
न दद्यान्मालिनीन्यासं दत्तं वा मरणं भवेत् ॥ ११० ॥

तावद् भ्रमति संसारे घोराकारे महार्णवे ।
यावन्न[३४०] प्राप्यते देव मालिनीक्रमराजकम्[३४१] ॥ १११ ॥
तथा कुल[३४२] क्रमं न्यास[३४३] का चिन्ता[३४४] भवसागरे ।
सौभाग्य[३४५] श्रेयसंपत्तिः[३४६] अष्टैश्वर्यः[३४७] प्रवर्तते[३४८] ॥ ११२ ॥

भवते नात्र संदेहो रुद्रवत् साधको भवेत् ।
एतद् वै मालिनीन्यासं सद्भाव[३४९] कौलिकान्वये[३५०] ॥ ११३ ॥
तवाख्यत[३५१] तु सिद्धस्य नादिफान्तस्वरूपकम्[३५२] ।

इत्याद्यावतारे महामन्थानभैरवयज्ञे अन्वये सप्तकोटिप्रमाणे मेरुमार्गविनिर्गते
लक्षपादाधिके आद्यपीठावतारिते[३५३] विद्यापीठमार्गे विमलषट्कनिर्णये
कादिभेदे आज्ञापारमेश्वरे स्वामिनीमते श्रीचतुर्विंशतिसहस्र–
संहिताया[३५४] अव्वाक्रमभाषिते[३५५] मालिनीन्यासक्रमा–
धिकारवर्णने क्रमोदयो[३५६] नामानन्दः ॥ १८ ॥

This is the great secret that has emerged from the Path of Meru. O Śambhu, it is supported within the one Wheel by the movement of the Moon. (107cd-108ab)

This is the application of its Yoga sustained by the teacher's command. O god, if (the adept) knowns this, namely, Mālinī, the king of depositions, he is liberated from all the fetters and is no longer bound. (108cd-109)

One should not give Mālinī's deposition to Tāntrikas, logicians or to the deceitful disciple of someone else. If it is given (to any of these), the result is death. (110)

O god, as long as, one does not acquire Mālinī, the king of depositions, one wanders in the world of transmigratory existence, (that) great and horrific ocean. Thus (once one has acquired) the deposition of the Kula transmission, what worry (does one have in this) ocean of conditioned existence? Good fortune, the attainment of the (highest) good, the eight yogic powers (aiśvarya): (all these things) come about. (112)

Without a doubt, the adept becomes like Rudra. This, indeed, is Mālinī's deposition, the essence in the Kaula lineage (anvaya). I have explained (this) to you, namely, the nature of (Mālinī) of the accomplished one (siddha) that begins with Na and ends with Pha. (113-114ab)

This is the (eighteenth) chapter called the emergence of the transmission (kramodaya) with regards to the description concerning the sequence of the Deposition of Mālinī. It belongs to the primordial descent into the great sacrifice of the Churning Bhairava in the tradition (anvaya) that consists of seventy million (verses) that has emerged on the Path of Meru and (extends) for more than a hundred thousand quarter (verses). It has been brought (down to earth) into the first sacred seat along the path of the Seat of Knowledge (vidyāpīṭha). It is the ultimate purport of the Pure Six Thousand (verses) (vimalaṣaṭka) in the division beginning with 'KĀ' in the venerable scripture of twenty-four thousand (verses known as) the Svāminīmata of the Supreme Lord's command as uttered within the Tradition of the Mother (avvākrama).

ऊनविंशानन्दः

श्रीवक्रा उवाच

अथ[1] चान्यक्रमं[2] वक्ष्ये शब्दराशिस्वरूपतः ।
अमृतादिविसर्गान्तं क्रमं पञ्चाशद्रूपिणम्[3] ॥ १ ॥

सुशुद्धे भूप्रदेशे तु पांशुगोमयलेपिते ।
पुष्पप्रकरसंकीर्णे[4] सुगुप्ते पशुवर्जिते ॥ २ ॥
गुरोराज्ञाप्रसादेन शब्दराशिं[5] समुद्धरेत्[6] ।

योऽसौ सर्वगतो देवो विभुः कर्ता सुरेश्वरः ॥ ३ ॥
स चामृततरङ्गेषु तुर्यस्थं[7] बिन्दुमण्डले ।

अखण्डमण्डलाकारं योगिनीरवभेदितम्[8] ॥ ४ ॥
तं[9] परं[10] व्योम्नि चक्रस्य तस्य शब्दमधिष्ठितम्[11] ।
शब्दराशिक्रमेणोक्तं वर्णरूपाधिकारकम्[12] ॥ ५ ॥

पिण्डस्थं च पदस्थं च रूपस्थं रूपवर्जितम् ।
निरञ्जनपदावस्थं[13] तदा मुक्तं महेश्वर ॥ ६ ॥

शब्दब्रह्म[14] भवेत् पिण्डं पदं बीजाक्षरं स्मृतम् ।
रूपं च मण्डलं योगं[15] रूपातीतं च भैरव ॥ ७ ॥

निरञ्जनं[16] पिण्डस्थं च[17] रूपस्थं रूपवर्जितम् ।
निरञ्जनपदे[18] ज्ञेयास्तदाधोर्ध्वे[19] प्रशस्यते ॥ ८ ॥

CHAPTER NINETEEN

The Assembly of Sounds (śabdarāśi)

Preamble: Theological Considerations and Yogic Practice

The venerable (goddess) Vakrā said:

Now I will tell (you) about another sequence, (this time, one which) accords with the Assembly of Sounds (śabdarāśi). (This) sequence, beginning with Nectar (A) and ending with Emission (KṢa), consists of fifty (letters). (1)

One should, by the grace of the teacher's command, generate the Assembly of Sounds on ground that has been smeared with dust and cow dung, strewn with flowers, in a place which is well concealed and (where there) are none who are not initiates (paśu). (2-3a)

The omnipresent, pervasive (and powerful) God, the doer (of all things) and Lord of the gods, established in the Fourth (state) is within the waves of nectar in the Circle of the Point (bindumaṇḍala).[1] (3cd-4ab)

(Its) form an unbroken circle, it is conjoined with the Sound (rava) of the Yoginī. That is the Supreme (state), governed by the Sound (śabda) of that Wheel within the Sky of (Ultimate Reality). Authority in the form of Letter (varṇa) has (thus) been declared according to the sequence (krama) of the Assembly of Sounds.[2] (4cd-5)

(In this way the adept realises the following states, namely) Established in the Body (piṇḍastha), Established in the Part (padastha), Established in Form (rūpastha), and Devoid of Form. Then (he attains) the state of the Stainless (nirañjana) which, O Great Lord, is free.[3] (6)

The Body (piṇḍa) is the Word 'Brahman' (śabdabrahman).[4] The Plane is said to be the letter of the seed-syllable (mantras). O Bhairava, Form is the Maṇḍala and Beyond Form is Yoga. (7)

It is taught that the Stainless, Established in the Body, Established in Form and Devoid of Form are to be known, (arranged) above and below, within the Plane of the Stainless. (8)

गुरोर्गुरुतराश्चैव[२०] ये[२१] चान्ये क्रमधारकाः[२२] ।
सर्वे[२३] निरञ्जनावस्थास्तदा[२४] ते मोक्षदायकाः ॥ ९ ॥

शब्दब्रह्म परं[२५] ब्रह्म ब्रह्माक्षरसमुद्भवः[२६] ।
तल्लयं तत्परात्मानं[२७] ब्रह्मवृक्षं[२८] च गोलकम् ॥ १० ॥

तस्य शाखाक्षरा देव पञ्चाशद्रूपसंख्यया[२९] ।
मन्त्ररूपास्तु ते सर्वे पञ्चाशत्तनुमण्डिताः ॥ ११ ॥

व्याप्तिस्तेषां क्रमाचारं[३०] आधारचन्द्रपुर्यके[३१] ।
चन्द्रपुर्यस्य विन्यस्य शब्दराश्याधिकारकम् ॥ १२ ॥

आनन्दं[३२] तु नवात्मानं[३३] तदा रुद्रान्वयं[३४] भवेत् ।
रुद्राणां[३५] मातृकान्यासं खेचरक्रमनिर्णयम्[३६] ॥ १३ ॥

खेचरं[३७] च खमध्यस्थं मध्यस्थं च खखेचरम्[३८] ।
एतच्चतुःप्रकारेण शाम्भवं शब्दराशिकम्[३९] ॥ १४ ॥

अनुक्रमं मेरुमार्गे मुद्रातत्त्वविभेदितम् ।
तन्मध्ये च क्रमं देव त्वं रुद्र शब्दराशिकम् ॥ १५ ॥

त्वं च पञ्चाशद्भिर्भेदैः[४०] प्रकृतिर्ज्ञेयरूपतः[४१] ।
विज्ञानभूमिकायोगं[४२] कारिकाक्रमसन्ततिः ॥ १६ ॥

सन्तानमेकमाकाशं[४३] भेदास्ते सप्तविंशतिः ।
तेषां मूर्तिधरं देवं वर्णराश्या[४४] तु केवलम् ॥ १७ ॥

(There are) others, (who may be even) greater then the teacher, who possess the transmission. They are all established in the stainless and they are then the bestowers of liberation. (9)

The Brahman of the Word is the Supreme Brahman which is an emanation (samudbhava) of the Letter of the Brahman. That is merger (laya) that the Supreme Self, the Tree of Brahman and the Ball (goloka) (of the Point). (10)

O god, the letters are its branches (śākha) and their form is fifty in number.[5] Adorned with fifty bodies, they are all mantras. (11)

Their pervasion within the City of the Moon in the foundation is the activity of the Krama (kramācāra) that takes place when the empowerment of the Assembly of Sounds has been projected into the City of the Moon. (12)

It is (the seed-syllable of) Bliss, the Ninefold Vidyā (i. e. Navātman). Then, (once this is done) it is (rightly considered to be) Rudra's lineage (rudrānvaya). The teaching of the Transmission of the Skyfarer (khecarakrama) is the deposition of the letters (mātṛkānyāsa). (13)

The Skyfarer (khecara) (is so called because he is) in the centre of the Void (kha) (of ultimate reality) and the Void of the Skyfarer is in the centre (of that). This is the Śāmbhava Assembly of Sounds as these four modalities. (14)

It is (distributed) in due order on the Path of Meru (in the Triangle) and is conjoined with the (essential energy of the Goddess which is the) Principle of Gesture (mudrātattva). In the middle of that, O god, is the Krama and you, O Rudra, who are the Assembly of Sounds. (15)

Again, because of (your) fifty divisions and because (you) are Nature as the object of knowledge, you are the Yoga which is the plane of consciousness and process (santati) of the sequence that impliments action (kārikākrama).[6] (16)

Space is the sole lineage (santāna), while your divisions (as the Krama) are twenty-seven. The god possesses their form by virtue of the Assembly of Letters (varṇarāśi). (17)

श्रीनाथं[४५] देवतैर्युक्तं[४६] स च उलित्रये[४७] गुरुः ।
उलित्रये[४८] क्रमाः[४९] त्रीणि[५०] तेषां राशिप्रयोजनम्[५१] ।। १८ ।।

पूर्वोक्तं[५२] संहितायां तु आदिनाथेन स्वामिना ।
तस्य मन्त्रक्रममेवं[५३] प्रत्ययं[५४] पूर्वभाषितम् ।। १९ ।।

भाषामुद्रासमोपेतं भैरवं शब्दराशिकम् ।
तच्च[५५] च तृतीयकं मार्गं[५६] आद्यपीठं सुरेन्द्रराट् ।। २० ।।

अस्योद्धारं[५७] पुनर्ह्येव[५८] यथा सृष्टिक्रमेण तु ।
आत्मानं रुद्रवत् ज्ञात्वा रुद्रमात्मानवद्[५९] धर ।। २१ ।।

सबाह्याभ्यन्तरं ज्ञात्वा शब्दराश्यावतारयेत्[६०] ।
अमृतादिहकारान्तं एतद्[६१] वर्णपरिग्रहम्[६२] ।। २२ ।।

मातृकाकुलमेकं तु भगजातं[६३] तु प्रत्ययम्[६४] ।
तच्च[६५] पञ्चाशद्भिर्भेदैः[६६] न्यस्त्वा[६७] क्षोभोऽभिजायते[६८] ।। २३ ।।

एतदक्षरविन्यासं[६९] पूर्वसंस्कारसंस्कृतम्[७०] ।
तदा[७१] बीजक्रमन्यासं अविज्ञातं[७२] न मुच्यते ।। २४ ।।[73]

अनङ्गस्य[७४] शिरं न्यस्य[७५] ललाटं तव मूर्धनि ।
तथा चैव ञवर्णस्य[७६] भवेत् तद् वक्त्रमण्डलम् ।। २५ ।।

तथा प्रान्तं[७७] तु तेजस्य[७८] षोढं न्यस्य[७९] तथैव च ।
द्वावेतौ[८०] नयनौ[८१] देव चन्द्रादित्यावभासकौ ।। २६ ।।

He is Śrīnātha who, accompanied by the deities, is the teacher in (all) three lineages (uli). There are three transmissions (krama) and the application of the Assembly (of Letters) is for them. (18)

Ādinātha, the primordial lord and master, had previously declared this in the scripture (saṁhitā). The sequence of its mantras (has been explained) and the sign of attainment (pratyaya) was explained before. (19)

Bhairava, the Assembly of Sounds, possesses the energy of Speech (bhāṣāmudrā). O emperor of the gods, that is the third path, the Primordial Seat (ādyapīṭha). (20)

Its extraction is again according to the sequence of emanation. Once the Self is known to be like Rudra, bear Rudra like the Self. (21)

Having known it along with the outer and inner (aspects), one should bring the Assembly of Sounds down (into the world). The form of (the sequence of) letters begins with Nectar (A) and ends with the letter Ha. (22)

The Kula of the letters is one, while the sign of accomplishment orginates from the Sun (bhargojāta).[7] A state of arousal (kṣobha) comes about when that has been deposited along with (its) fifty divisions (onto the body). (23)

That is the deposition of the letters that has been cleansed by the purification that precedes it.[8] Then comes the deposition of the sequence of seed-syllable (mantras). (If this procedure is) not known, one is not freed. (24)

The Deposition of the Assembly of Sounds

The Vowels

The Circle of the Mouth is (formed) by first depositing upon the head Anaṅga (A), and upon your forehead, which is on the head of the letter Ña (Ā).[9] (25)

In the same way, (deposit the letter) at the extremity of Brilliance (tejas), having (already) deposited the sixth (ṣoḍha). These two, O god, are the eyes that illuminate the Sun (Ī) and Moon (I). (26)

तथा चैव[८२] कला प्रोक्ता[८३] महेन्द्रस्य तु मस्तकम् ।
एतत् कर्णद्वयं[८४] देव[८५] सव्यासव्यौ उदाहृतौ[८६] ॥ २७ ॥

द्वे कलान्ते[८७] विलोमेन[८८] नासाद्वारयुतावुभौ ।
महेन्द्राद्यं[८९] द्वयं पात्यं[९०] मुखगण्डस्थलावुभौ[९१] ॥ २८ ॥

रावणान्तौ विलोमेन अधोर्ध्वे[९२] दन्तपंक्तिषु ।
राजेन्द्राद्यं द्वयं चेष्टौ अध ऊर्ध्वे सुभाविते[९३] ॥ २९ ॥

गिरिजासनमुद्धृत्य ब्रह्मरन्ध्रे महेश्वर ।
तस्याद्यं यद् विसर्गाख्यं जिह्वामूलं[९४] विधीयते ॥ ३० ॥

अकारादिविसर्गान्तं स्वरचक्रमिति स्मृतम्[९५] ।
ब्रह्माणी[९६] देवता तत्र संस्थिता शम्भुमण्डले[९७] ॥ ३१ ॥

अथाङ्गानि[९८] वदेदानीं[९९] शृणु तथ्यं स्वरूपतः ।
द्विजासनं[१००] प्रभु पात्यं[१०१] तेन स्कन्धं तु दक्षिणम् ॥ ३२ ॥

सिंहस्य आसनं बाहु[१०२] आसनाद्यं च कूर्परम्[१०३] ।
हनुमन्तं[१०४] शिरं[१०५] पात्यं दक्षहस्तं[१०६] तदोपरि[१०७] ॥ ३३ ॥

सिंहान्तं घान्तरं[१०८] तस्माद् दक्षहस्तनखाग्रगम्[१०९] ।
कवर्गं[११०] पञ्चधा[१११] देव माहेश्वर्या समायुतम् ॥ ३४ ॥

शक्तिपुरस्य[११२] बिम्बस्य यदाद्यं[११३] स्कन्धमुत्तमम् ।
तथा तस्य शिरं[११४] पात्यं वामबाहुनियोजितम्[११५] ॥ ३५ ॥

And such also is said to be Energy (kalā) and the head of the Great Indra (Ṛ). That is the pair of the ears, said to be the right (U) and left (Ū). (27)

The two at the end of Energy (kala),[10] both are connected, in reverse order, with the nostrils (Ṛ Ṝ). The two preceded by Mahendra are both the cheeks of the face (ḷ Ḷ).[11] (28)

The two at the end of Rāvaṇa (Ḷ) are, in reverse order, (deposited) on the lower (E) and upper row of teeth (AI). O one of good sentiments! The pair preceded by Rājendra[12] are the lips below (O) and above (AU). (29)

O Great Lord, extract the seat of the Daughter of the Mountains (Ṁ)[13] in the Aperture of Brahmā.[14] That which is preceded by it is called Emission (Ḥ) and is to be (placed) at the root of the tongue. (30)

(The series) beginning with the letter A and ending with Emission is said to be the Wheel of Vowels. The deity there is Brahmāṇī[15] who resides in the Circle of Śambhu. (31)

The Gutturals

(The god said): Now tell me about the limbs. (The goddess continued.) Listen to the truth according to its true nature. O lord, one should place (pātya) the seat of the Twice-born (Pa). Thus the right shoulder (is formed) (Ka). (32)

The arm (Kha) is the seat of the Lion (Gha). The elbow (kūrpara) (Ga) is preceded by (that) seat (āsana). One should deposit Hanumān's head. Thus the right hand (Gha) is above that.[16] (33)

The letter after the Lion (Gha) is at the end (of that letter) and so is (deposited) on the tips of the nails of the right hand (Ṅa). O god, the gutturals (kavarga) are of five kinds and are associated with Māheśvarī. (34)

The Palatals

The letter that precedes the image (bimba) of the City of Power (Pha) is (my) most excellent shoulder (Ca).[17] In the same way one should deposit its head,[18] which is conjoined to the left arm (Cha). (35)

भशिर[११६] कूर्पर[११७] चैव आ—आद्यं करपृष्ठगम्[११८] ।[११९]
मायाद्यं च करांगुल्यो:[१२०] नखाग्रेषु च विन्यसेत् ।। ३६ ।।
चवर्ग[१२१] चैव कौमार्या[१२२] तव देव प्रकाशितम् ।

गौर्यायाा[१२३] आदिमं कार्य[१२४] दक्षिणे च[१२५] स्थिर[१२६] कुरु ।। ३७ ।।
तस्यासन[१२७] दक्षत[१२८] रुद्र[१२९] अधो[१३०] जानुजङ्घयो:[१३१] ।
डकाराद्य[१३२] गत[१३३] पादं दक्षिणे[१३४] तलपृष्ठगम् ।। ३८ ।।
तद्ग्रहं चांगुलीयोज्य[१३५] नखास्तथा[१३६] वै[१३७] कौलिक[१३८] ।
टवर्ग[१३९] वैष्णवीसार[१४०] दक्षमार्गे[१४१] विराजते[१४२] ।। ३९ ।।

पृथिव्याध:[१४३] स्फिजवाम[१४४] नीराधश्चोरुक[१४५] भवेत् ।
महाशङ्खासनं जानु जंघाया[१४६] च गत[१४७] स्मृतम् ।। ४० ।।
तथा[१४८] धूम्रध्वजस्याध:[१४९] पादपृष्ठमध:[१५०] स्मृतम्[१५१] ।
अनङ्गशिरमाश्रित्य[१५२] पादांगुल्यो[१५३] नखाग्रत:[१५४] ।। ४१ ।।
वाराह्याधिष्ठित[१५५] वर्गं विन्यसेत् क्रमपद्धतौ[१५६] ।

एवं वर्णोदये[१५७] पार्ण[१५८] पार्श्वदक्षिणकुक्षिगम्[१५९] ।। ४२ ।।
नचान्तरगत:[१६०] कुक्षौ[१६१] तदन्ये[१६२] सर्वतोमुख:[१६३] ।
षशिर[१६४] पृष्टिवंशे तु[१६५] सृगूर्ध्वमुदर[१६६] विदु: ।। ४३ ।।
तदगतान्त[१६७] महादेव हृदय[१६८] शब्दराशिकम्[१६९] ।
इन्द्राण्यधिष्ठित[१७०] वर्ग[१७१] हृदयं कुलयोगिनी[१७२] ।। ४४ ।।

त्वच[१७३] कपालमूर्ध्वस्थ[१७४] शोणितं जटाहारादि[१७५] ।
अनन्तरगत[१७६] मांसं अनङ्गाध:स्थितं स्नायु[१७७] ।। ४५ ।।
चत्वारो[१७८] व्यापकास्तत्त्वा[१७९] आग्नेया[१८०] रविमण्डले ।
विद्धि[१८१] तत्त्वं यवर्गेद[१८२] स्वपिण्डकलयोजितम्[१८३] ।। ४६ ।।

The head of Bha is on the (left) elbow (Ja). The (letter) preceded by Ā (Jha) is on the back of the hand. The (letter) that is preceded by Māyā (Ña) on is the fingers of the hand and should be deposited on the tips of the nails. O god, the palatals (cavarga), (presided over) by Kaumārī, have been revealed to you. (36-37ab)

The Cerebrals

One should form (the letter) preceded by Gauryā (Ṭa).[19] Make (this) firm on the right.[20] O Rudra, its seat below (Ṭha)[21] is on the knee on the right and on the shank (on the right) is the letter (pāda) preceded by Ḍa (i.e. Ḍha). Tadgraha (Ṇa), which is on the right, on the sole (of the foot), should be conjoined to the toes. O Kaulika, the nails are also such. The cerebrals (ṭavarga) are the essence of Vaiṣṇavī and look beautiful on the right-hand side (of the body) (dakṣamārga). (37cd-39)

The Dentals

(The letter below) Earth (La) is the left buttock (Ta) and (the letter) below Water (nīra) (Va) is the thigh (Tha). It is said that the seat of the Great Conch[22] is on the (left) knee (Da) and, similarly, (the letter) below Smoky Flag[23] is on the (left) shank (DH). It is said that the head of Anaṅga[24] (Na) is below the sole of the foot, (on) the toes and on the tips of the nails. One should (thus) deposit the group (of letters) (varga) presided over by Vārāhī (as taught) in the liturgy of the transmission (kramapaddhati). (40-42ab)

The Labials

In the same way, in the course of the arising of the letters, the letter Pa is present at the side of the right part of the diaphragm. The letter between Na and Ca (Pha) is in the other diaphragm. The head of Ṣa (Ba) is on the spine. The (wise) know that the belly (Bha) is above Blood (Ra).[25] O Mahādeva, the (letter) of the Assembly of Sounds at the end of that is the Heart (Ma). (This is) the class (of letters) presided over by Indrāṇī. It is the heart of the Kulayoginī. (42cd-44)

The Semi-vowels

Skin (Ya) is above the Skull (Ña). Blood (Ra) is preceded by Dreadlock (Ṭha). Flesh (La) is in the next place. Sinew is below Anaṅga (Va). (These) four are pervasive principles. They are (the letters) of fire in the Circle of the Sun. Know this principle, the class of semi-vowels, conjoined with the energies of own body. (45-46)

एवं शिरं कुवेरस्य[१८४] तच्चास्थिविनियोजितम्[१८५] ।
तथा मज्जा फकारान्ता[१८६] हराधः शुक्रमण्डलम्[१८७] ॥ ४७ ॥
मध्यस्थं मध्यगं[१८८] प्राणं[१८९] पायुतत्त्वमधोमुखम्[१९०] ।
चामुण्डाधिष्ठितं[१९१] वर्गं अष्टमं परिसंख्यया[१९२] ॥ ४८ ॥

वर्गातीतमधःस्थं तु[१९३] विसर्गसहितात्मकम् ।
प्रतिमायां[१९४] गतं देव[१९५] कोपस्थानगतं विदुः ॥ ४९ ॥
तस्य सा नवमी देव्या[१९६] महालक्ष्म्यधिकारिणी[१९७] ।

अमृतादिहकारान्तं[१९८] परं[१९९] वर्णपरिग्रहम्[२००] ॥ ५० ॥
मातृकाक्रममेवं[२०१] तु भगजातं[२०२] तु प्रत्ययम्[२०३] ।
एवं[२०४] पञ्चाशद्भिर्भेदैरादिक्षान्तं[२०५] क्रमेण तु[२०६] ॥ ५१ ॥

एतदक्षरविन्यासं[२०७] पूर्वसंस्कारसंस्कृतम्[२०८] ।
वर्णबीजक्रमन्यासं[२०९] अविज्ञातं[२१०] न मुञ्चति[२११] ॥ ५२ ॥

शब्दब्रह्माक्षरा[२१२] यान्ति संस्कारकृतरश्मयः[२१३] ।
कृतकृत्यक्रमाद्यौघं[२१४] प्राकृतं[२१५] तु[२१६] सुराधिप ॥ ५३ ॥

शब्दवर्णाक्षराणां[२१७] तु सृष्टिराद्या[२१८] क्रमोदयः[२१९] ।
अनुलोमेन[२२०] सिद्धस्य तेन त्वं[२२१] शब्दराशिकम् ॥ ५४ ॥

शब्दं[२२२] तु पृथिव्यन्तस्थं[२२३] पृथिव्यां[२२४] हर मालिनी[२२५] ।
मालिन्या शब्दराश्या तु[२२६] ओतप्रोतं[२२७] जगत्त्रयम्[२२८] ॥ ५५ ॥

The Spirants

In the same way, the head of Kuvera is conjoined to the bones (Śa). So too, (the letter corresponding to the) marrow (Ṣa) ends with the letter Pha. The one below Hara (Bha) is the Circle of Sperm (Sa). The central vital breath (Ha) is in the centre while the anus (pāyu) faces downwards. The eighth class (of letters) in numerical order is governed by Cāmuṇḍā. (47-48)

The Letter KṢa

That which is beyond the groups (of letters) is, along with Emission, located below.[26] O god, it is located within the form (of the body) (pratimā). (The wise) know that it is situated (between the eyebrows) in the locus of Wrath.[27] She is his ninth goddess, Mahālakṣmī, who has authority. (49-50ab)

The supreme form of the letters is (the series) beginning with Nectar (A) and ending with Anaṅga (Ḥ). Such is the sequence of the letters (mātṛkākrama), the sign of accomplishment born of the (goddess's) Yoni. Such is the (series of letters) beginning with A and ending with KṢa in due order, along with (its) fifty divisions. (50cd-51)

Purified with the prior purification (saṁskāra) this is the deposition of the letters. One who is ignorant of the deposition of the sequence of letters and seed-syllables is not liberated. (52)

The letters (that constitute) the Word Absolute (śabdabrahman) are rays (of the light of consciousness) generated by the (rite of) purification that attain (the supreme state). (This), O Lord of the gods, is the natural (prākṛta) primordial current (augha) of the sequence of completion (kṛtakṛtyakrama). (53)

The arising of the Krama is the primordial emanation of words, letters and syllables (akṣara). It belongs to the Accomplished One (siddha) and takes place in the forward order (anuloma). It is because of this, (O god), that you are the Assembly of Sounds. (54)

Word is within the Earth and, O Hara, the Earth is within Mālinī. The three worlds are woven warp and woof with Mālinī and the Assembly of Sounds.[28] (55)

दीपनेन[२२९] विनिर्मुक्तं अन्तःशून्यं[२३०] महेश्वर[२३१] ।
तस्मात् तच्छब्दराश्यादौ[२३२] दीपनं समुदाहरेत् ॥ ५६ ॥

यानुजं खरमध्यस्थं गजेन्द्रभुजभेदितम्[२३३] ।
चन्द्रकान्तिशिखाभिन्नं हृदयं कुलखेचरी ॥ ५७ ॥

बीजे[२३४] बीजे पृथक् देव कृत्वादौ वीरविग्रहम् ।
सुदीप्तं भवते न्यासं मालिनीप्रणवत्रये ॥ ५८ ॥

आद्यन्ते[२३५] संपुटं[२३६] कृत्वा शब्दराश्यामनेन[२३७] तु ।
तथा संपुटितं न्यासं न्यसेत्[२३८] वक्त्राङ्गसंयुतम्[२३९] ॥ ५९ ॥

वृषभं मध्यगं गृह्य[२४०] शक्त्यासनव्यवस्थितम्[२४१] ।
संवर्तं[२४२] च महाकालं पिनाकी तदधस्थितम्[२४३] ॥ ६० ॥
एतत् कूटं समाख्यातं षड्विधं[२४४] कारयेत्[२४५] पुनः ।
ह्रस्वैः षड्भिः स्वरैर्भेद्यं[२४६] इन्दुबिन्दुरलंकृतम्[२४७] ॥ ६१ ॥

ऊर्ध्वमूर्ध्वे[२४८] तथा पूर्वे[२४९] पश्चिमे[२५०] दक्षिणोत्तरे[२५१] ।
वक्त्रन्यासं[२५२] महादेव पूर्वबीजैः प्रदीपितम् ॥ ६२ ॥
तूष्णीशं[२५३] च कुलीशं[२५४] च श्रीकण्ठाघोरभैरवम् ।
उत्तरेश अनन्तीशं पश्चिमेन सदाशिवम् ॥ ६३ ॥
एते[२५५a] सिद्धा[२५५b] नियुक्तव्या[२५६] वक्त्रषट्के[२५७] वरानन[२५८] ।

अथाङ्गानि प्रवक्ष्यामि संक्षेपेण[२५९] वदाम्यहम् ॥ ६४ ॥
वृषभं मध्यमं स्थाप्य हरस्यासनभेदितम् ।
अतादिषु[२६०] सुतं कुर्यात्[२६१] हृच्छिरेण[२६२] विभेदितम् ॥ ६५ ॥

O Great Lord, devoid of Illumination (dīpana), (the universe of letters is) inwardly empty. Therefore, at the beginning of that Assembly of Sounds, one must utter (the syllable of) Illumination (Ra). (56)

The Heart, which is (the Vidyā called) Kulakhecarī, (consists of the letters) born after Ya, (the letter) between Kha and Ra, conjoined with the arm and the Lord of Elephants, along with Beauty, the Moon and the Topknot. (57)

The Six Faces and Limbs of the Assembly of Sounds

O god, the deposition of Mālinī is well inflamed in the three *Praṇava*s once one has fashioned the Form of the Hero in the beginning in each one of the seed-syllables individually. (58)

One should deposit the encapsulated deposition along with the faces and limbs (of the god) once the beginning and end of the Assembly of Sounds have been encapsulated with this. (59)

Lay hold (first of all) of the Bull (Kha) (and the letter) in the centre located on the seat of Energy (Sa), the Fire of the Aeon (KṢa), the Great Time (Ma), the Archer (La) and (the letter) below it (Ya): this is said to be the sixfold Peak (seed-syllable mantra). One should cause that to be fashioned once again. It should be conjoined with six short vowels and is adorned with the lunar drop.[29] (60-61)

O Great God, the deposition of the faces (of Śabdarāśi) inflamed by the previously (mentioned) seed-syllables (is done on the face above) the upper, on the upper (face and upon the faces) in the east, west, south and north. (These are, respectively) Tūṣṇīśa, Kulīśa, Śrīkaṇṭha who is Aghorabhairava, Uttareśa, Anantīśa and Sadāśiva (who is) along with the Western (face). These accomplished ones should be conjoined, O fair-faced one, to the six faces.[30] (62-64ab)

Now I will tell (you about) the limbs. I will speak of them in brief. Having established the Bull (Kha) and the middle (letter) (Ha) conjoined with the seat of Hara (Sa), fashion the Son within (the letters) from AT onwards (?) conjoined with the head of the Heart (Ha (?)).[31] (64cd-65)

नीलकण्ठशिरं[२६३] कृत्वा कूटेदं[२६४] षड्विधोद्धरेत्[२६५] ।
दीर्घैः षड्भिः[२६६] स्वरैर्भिन्नं[२६७] कलाबिन्दुशिवाङ्कितम् ॥ ६६ ॥

अघोरं हृदि संयुक्तं अमोघं शिरभूषणम्[२६८] ।
नीलकण्ठं[२६९] शिखा[२७०] योज्यं[२७१] वर्मस्थमेकवीरकम्[२७२] ॥ ६७ ॥
पिङ्गलं नेत्रयोर्न्यस्य[२७३] कपिलास्त्रं[२७४] च भैरवम् ।
एवं तु भैरवैः[२७५] षड्भिर्युक्ता[२७६] अङ्गानि विन्यसेत् ॥ ६८ ॥

दीपनाद्यं[२७७] ततः कृत्वा भवेन्न्यासं[२७८] तु संपुटम्[२७९] ।
संपुटेन[२८०] तु रिक्ताङ्गा[२८१] अन्तःशून्या गभस्तयः ॥ ६९ ॥

व्यापकत्वेन[२८२] तिष्ठन्ति सुदीप्ता[२८३] व्यापकास्तु ते ।
एषो[२८४] वै शब्दराशिस्तु सुदीप्ताङ्गसमायुतः[२८५] ॥ ७० ॥

क्रमस्याग्रे न्यसेद् यस्तु ब्रह्महा अपि शुद्ध्यति ।
सततं न्यसते[२८६] यस्तु जीवन्मुक्त्यरिहो[२८७] भवेत् ॥ ७१ ॥

निरामयो भवेद् विद्वान् कृतैः पापैर्न लिप्यते ।
सिद्धतुल्यो भवेत् सोऽपि[२८८] शब्दराशिप्रभावतः[२८९] ॥ ७२ ॥

आज्ञाक्षोभस्तथा[२९०] घूर्मिः[२९१] आवेशं[२९२] च मुहुर्मुहुः ।
भवते परसंवित्तिर्यत्र[२९३] सा रमते परा ॥ ७३ ॥

परस्थानपदप्राप्तिर्मुक्तो[२९४] भवति बन्धनात् ।
एतद् वै शब्दपुरुषं[२९५] ब्रह्मशब्दैरधिष्ठितम् ॥ ७४ ॥

अधिष्ठानं[२९६] तु कौलस्य प्रत्ययं[२९७] शब्दराशिकम् ।
राशौ[२९८] पञ्चाशद्भेदानि शब्दैकं[२९९] वाग्भवोदितम् ॥ ७५ ॥

And, having fashioned the head of Blue Throat (La), enunciate this sixfold Peak (syllable mantra) along with the six long vowels and adorned with the energy (kalā) of Śiva's Point. (66)

Aghora is conjoined to the heart; Amogha is the ornament of the head. Nīlakaṇṭha (Ta) should be united with the topknot. Ekavīra (Ma) is on the armour and, having deposited Piṅgala on the eyes, (there is) the Bhairava who is the Kapila weapon. One should deposit the limbs in conjunction with the six Bhairavas in this way.[32] (67-68)

Then, having formed (the letter of) Illumination (Ra) at the beginning,[33] the deposition is encapsulated. By virtue of (this) encapsulation, rays (are generated) that are inwardly void and without limbs. (69)

They abide as the pervader and, well energized, they are pervasive. This, indeed, is the Assembly of Sounds conjoined with limbs that are well energized. (70)

Whoever, deposits (it) in front of the Krama is purified even if he has killed a Brahmin. He who deposits it constantly (on his body) is is the destroyer of the enemies of liberation in (this) life. (71)

The wise man becomes pure and is not stained by the sins (he has) committed. He becomes the equal of the Accomplished One by the power of the Assembly of Sounds. (72)

(He experiences) the arousal (kṣobha) (engendered) by the Command, inebriation (ghūrmi) and penetration (āveśa) repeatedly. Supreme consciousness (is attained) wherever the Supreme (Goddess) sports. (73)

The plane of the Supreme Place is attained and (he is) freed from bondage. That, indeed, is the Person of the Word (śabdapuruṣa)[34] who is supported by the words of the Absolute (brahmaśabda). (74)

The Kaula's support (adhiṣṭhāna) is insight (pratyaya) which is the Assembly of Sounds. There are fifty divisions in the Assembly, (while) Word is one and has emerged from the Essence of Speech (vāgbhava) (AIṀ). (75)

शब्दराशिः[३००] स्मृतस्तेन[३०१] रुद्रत्वमूर्तिर्भैरव[३०२] ।
तस्य[३०३] मूर्तिर्नवात्मानं[३०४] शासने कुलदीपकम् ।। ७६ ।।

तस्योद्धारं प्रवक्ष्यामि शृणुष्वेकाग्र सुन्दर[३०५] ।
भृगुलाकुलसंवर्तो[३०६] महाकालं पिनाकिनम्[३०७] ।। ७७ ।।
खड्गीशं च भुजङ्गाख्यं वालीशं चार्घनायकम्[३०८] ।
कलाबिन्द्वङ्कितं नादं[३०९] ज्योतिरूपं[३१०] चतुर्थकम्[३११] ।। ७८ ।।[३१२]

एषु[३१३] देवं[३१४] नवात्मानं[३१५] वृक्षीशं[३१६] वृक्षनायकम् ।[३१७]
मूर्तिभूतं कलायाश्च[३१८] परमानन्दभैरवम् ।। ७९ ।।[३१९]

तस्याश्रमं ब्रह्मवृक्षं[३२०] त्रिवलीतरमार्गगम्[३२१] ।[३२२]
तुर्यान्तं[३२३] मण्डलं शाक्तं तत्रानन्दः[३२४] प्रवर्तते ।। ८० ।।[३२५]
तत्र संभावयेत्[३२६] पिण्डं दीपनं शब्दराशिकम् ।[३२७]
हिमकुन्देन्दुधवलं[३२८] शतार्कवपुषोज्ज्वलम्[३२९] ।। ८१ ।।

तस्योत्सङ्गगता देवी अहमेव तु मालिनी ।
तद्धर्मधर्मिणी[३३०] देव तस्य मूर्तिधरी[३३१] शुभा ।। ८२ ।।

मायाबीजेन तेजाढ्या[३३२] अर्घस्थाने[३३३] नियोजिता ।
दाडिमोदकसंकाशा[३३४] स्फुरणाढ्या[३३५] विराजते ।। ८३ ।।

अंकुराकाररूपेण[३३६] ब्रह्मग्रन्थी[३३७] ह्यधोमुखी ।
कुब्जिका पररूपेण अकारान्ता[३३८] शिवावधिः ।। ८४ ।।

शिवशक्तिर्विलोमाभ्यां[३३९] विश्रामं[३४०] हृदि मण्डले ।
ऊर्ध्वे[३४१] शिवमधः[३४२] शक्तिः प्रसरं[३४३] मध्यभूमिका[३४४] ।। ८५ ।।
तत्र चोत्पद्यतेऽवस्था ज्ञात्वावेशं मुहुर्मुहुः[३४५] ।
तुर्यस्थः[३४६] शब्दराशिस्तु योनिस्था मालिनी स्वयम् ।। ८६ ।।
गुरुवक्त्रं तयोर्मध्ये आनन्दं[३४७] च अधोमुखम् ।
यथाक्रमं[३४८] महौघोऽयं[३४९] आख्यातं शिवशक्त्ययोः[३५०] ।। ८७ ।।

Concerning Navātman

And so, O Bhairava, the Assembly of Sounds is said to be the form of Rudra's being (rudratvamūrti). His form (mūrti) is Navātman, which is the Lamp of Kula in the teachings.[35] (76)

O fair one, I will tell (you) its extraction. listen attentively. Bhṛgu (Sa), Lākula (Ha), Saṁvarta (KṢa), Mahākāla (Ma), Pinākin (La), Khaḍgīśa (Va) the one called Bhujaṅga (Ra), Vālīśa (Ya) and Arghanāyaka (Ū): (the letters are accompanied by) Sound marked with the energy of the Point, with that whose form is light as the fourth. (77-78)

The god within them is Vṛkṣīśa who is Navātman, the Lord of the Tree. He is the very form of energy, the Bhairava of Supreme bliss. (79)

His Hermitage is the Tree of Brahmā[36] situated on the path that is longer than three coils. It is the empowered (śākta) maṇḍala at the end of (or 'within') the Fourth (state of consciousness); bliss issues forth from there (pravartate).[37] There, one should generate the body (of mantra) (piṇḍa) which is Illumination (dīpana) and the Assembly of Sounds. White (as) snow, the Kunda flower or the moon, its form burns (like) a hundred suns. (80-81)

O god! I, Mālinī, am the goddess who is united with him (utsaṅgagatā);[38] endowed with his attributes and form, I am auspicious. (82)

Endowed with radiant energy (tejas) by virtue of the Seed of Māyā (HRĪṀ), she is assigned to the place of the libation (arghasthāna). (Red and) liquid (like the) the juice of the pomegranate, she shines rich with the radiant pulse (of consciousness) (sphuraṇa). (83)

She is the Knot of Brahmā[39] facing downward in the form of a sprout. (She is) Kubjikā who, in her supreme form, is within the letter (A) and terminates in Śiva (Ha).[40] (84)

There is rest in the Circle of the Heart by (the forward and) reverse (movement of) Śiva and (his) energy. Śiva is above and (his) energy is below. (Their) expansion (prasara) is the middle plane. A state arises there (in the centre), knowing which (the yogi experiences) the penetration (āveśa) (of the deity) again and again. The Assembly of Sounds is located in the Fourth (state), while Mālinī reside (spontaneously) of herself (svayam) in the Yoni. Between the two is the Teacher's Mouth (guruvaktra). Facing downwards, it is bliss. This, the Great Current (mahaugha) of Śiva and (his) energy, has been explained in due order.[41] (85-87)

मूर्तिन्यासं प्रवक्ष्यामि यथा विहितोऽनुक्रमात्[३५१] ।
ब्रह्मरन्ध्रे ललाटे च वक्त्रे हृदयमण्डले ॥ ८८ ॥
नाभौ गुह्ये च[३५२] उरुभ्यां[३५३] जङ्घयोः पादयुग्मके[३५४] ।
एवं[३५५] न्यासं समाख्यातं पञ्चरत्नैरधिष्ठितम्[३५६] ॥ ८९ ॥

तथा[३५७] ह्यङ्गविधीदानीं यथा[३५८] वक्ष्यामि तच्छृणु ।
शुद्धस्फटिकसंकाशा[३५९] हृदि देव्या विराजते ॥ ९० ॥
शिरं[३६०] मञ्जिष्ठसदृशं[३६१] शिखा ह्युल्काग्निवद्[३६२] भवेत् ।
आरक्तं शुद्धधवलं[३६३] नेत्रौ रक्तौ तथोभयोः[३६४] ॥ ९१ ॥

अस्त्रं चाघोरसदृशं[३६५] शुद्धाकाशं यथा विदुः ।
एतद् वर्णविभागं[३६६] तु ज्ञात्वा सिद्ध्यरिहो[३६७] भवेत् ॥ ९२ ॥

मालिनी शब्दराशिस्तु रुद्रयोगिनिबृंहितम्[३६८] ।
दीपनैस्तु[३६९] समायुक्तं षडङ्गक्रमभेदितम्[३७०] ॥ ९३ ॥

स्थानलक्षसमायुक्तं ध्यानधारणसंयुतम् ।
उमामहेश्वरं चक्रं तवाख्यातं वरानन[३७१] ॥ ९४ ॥

जातिभेदविहीनाङ्गा[३७२] ज्ञातव्याः पूर्ववत् क्रमात् । कुलकौलक्रमाधारं मालिनी शब्दराशिकम् ॥ ९५ ॥

कथितं कुलसिद्धान्तं[३७३] ज्ञेयं मार्गं[३७४] महेश्वर ।

The Deposition of Navātman on the Body

(Now), I will explain, as enjoined and in due order, the Deposition of the Form (of Navātman) (mūrtinyāsa). (It should be done) in the Aperture of Brahmā (Ha), the forehead (Sa), the mouth (KṢa), the Circle of the Heart (Ma), the navel (La), the genitals (Va), the thighs (Ra), the shanks (Ya) and on the pair of feet (ŪṀ). The deposition is explained in this way and is supported by the Five Jewels.[42] (88-89)

I will now tell (you) the injunction concerning the limbs (of Navātman). Listen to this. Brilliant as pure crystal, the goddess shines in the heart. The head is (red) like the Indian madder (mañjiṣṭhā), while the topknot is like a comet (ulka) of fire. (The armour) is light red and pure white,[43] while both the eyes are red. (90cd-91)

The weapon is like the Benign One (aghora), (the wise) know that it is like pure space (ākāśa). Once one has know this, the division of the letters, one becomes the destroyer of (all) the enemies of accomplishment. (92)

(The couple), Mālinī and the Assembly of Sounds, is augmented by the Rudras and the Yoginīs. It is conjoined within the Illuminators and associated with the sequence of the six limbs. (93)

Possessing locations and signs (lakṣa), it is coupled with meditation (dhyāna) and concentration (dhāraṇa). O fair-faced one, I have explained the Wheel of Umā and Maheśvara to you. (94)

The limbs are not distinguished into types (jāti)[44] and, as before, they should be known in due order. (The couple, that is), Mālinī and the Assembly of Sounds, is the foundation of the sequence of Kula and Kaula. (95)

(Thus you) have been told the final purport of the Kula (teaching). O Great Lord, this is the path that one should know. (96ab)

इत्याज्ञावतारे[३७५] महामन्थानभैरवयज्ञे अन्वये सप्तकोटिप्रमाणे मेरुमार्गविनिर्गते
लक्षपादाधिके आद्यपीठावतारे[३७६] विद्यापीठमार्गे[३७७] विमलषट्कनिर्णये
कादिभेदे आज्ञापारमेश्वरे स्वामिनीमते श्रीचतुर्विंशत्सहस्रसंहितायां
अव्वाक्रमभाषिते[३७८] शब्दराश्याधिकारवर्णने[३७९]
क्रमोदयो नामानन्दः ॥ १९ ॥

This is the (nineteenth) chapter, which is the emergence of the transmission (kramodaya) with regards to the description concerning the Assembly of Sounds. It belongs to the primordial descent into the great sacrifice of the Churning Bhairava in the tradition (anvaya) that consists of seventy million (verses) that has emerged on the Path of Meru and (extends) for more than a hundred thousand quarter (verses). It has been brought (down to earth) into the first sacred seat along the path of the Seat of Knowledge (vidyāpīṭha). It is the ultimate purport of the Pure Six Thousand (verses) (vimalaṣaṭka) in the division beginning with 'KĀ' in the venerable scripture of twenty-four thousand (verses) (known as) the Svāminīmata of the Supreme Lord's command as uttered within the Tradition of the Mother (avvākrama).

विंशानन्दः

श्रीनाथ उवाच

मालिनी शब्दराशिश्च उभावेतौ श्रुतौ मया ।
अधुना[१] श्रोतुमिच्छामि[२] त्रिविद्यां कौलिनीं[३] पराम् ।। १ ।।

श्रीवक्रा उवाच

शब्दराशिप्रसिद्धस्य पुनरन्यविकल्पकम्[४] ।
इदानीमाकर्णय[५] शम्भो[६] विद्यात्रितयकौलिकम् ।। २ ।।
परा च अपरा चैव तथा चैव परापरा ।
तेषामुद्धारं अन्य[७] तु कथयिष्यामि सुव्रत ।। ३ ।।

प्रथमा[८] परापरा पञ्चचत्वारिंशाक्षरा[९] भवेत् ।

आद्यामृत[१०] च खशिर[११] गजेन्द्राद्यविभूषितम् ।। ४ ।।
तद्ग्रहस्य शिरं पात्यं तद्ग्रहासनभेदितम् ।
पद्मयोनिशिर[१२] गृह्य[१३] पार्थिवान्तसमन्वितम् ।। ५ ।।
कपालान्तकृत[१४] बिन्दु अर्धचन्द्रकृतान्वितम्[१५] ।
पदमेकं तु प्रथमं द्वितीयं च यथा भवेत् ।। ६ ।।

ताराद्यं च ठकाराद्य[१६] तथा चानङ्गमस्तकम्[१७] ।
पाद्रै (?)[१८] चैकशिरे भद्र[१९] तद्ग्रहस्याधिमस्तकम्[२०] ।। ७ ।।[२१]

CHAPTER TWENTY

Concerning the Triple Vidyā

Preamble

Śrīnātha said:

I have heard (about) both Mālinī and the Assembly of Sounds. Now I want to hear about the supreme triple Kaulinī Vidyā. (1)

The venerable (goddess) Vakrā said:

[1]Hear now, O Śambhu, another modality of the Assembly of Sounds, namely the triple Kaulika Vidyā.[2] (It consists of the Vidyās) Parā, Aparā and Parāparā. O one of good vows, I will tell (you) another extraction of these (three Vidyās). (2-3)

The Extraction of the Parāparā Vidyā

The first (Vidyā) is Parāparā, which consists of forty-five letters.[3] (4ab)

AGHORE HRĪṀ

The first (letter) is Nectar (A), (then comes) the head of Kha (Gha), adorned with (the letter) preceded by the Lord of Elephants (O). (Then) one should deposit the head of Tadgraha (Ra) conjoined with the seat of Tadgraha (E). Once one has grasped the head of the Womb of the Lotus (Ha) which is endowed with (the letter that) ends with the Earth (Ra). The Point is fashioned (on the letter that) ends with the Skull (Ī) and possesses (the form) of the Half Moon (HRĪṀ). (This is) the first part (of the mantra). (4cd-6abc)

PARAMAGHORE HRAUṀ

(Now listen) to how the second (part) is (assembled). (The letter that) follows Tārā (Pa) and the one that follows Ṭha (Ra) and the head of Anaṅga (Ma). * * (?) and the one Head, O auspicious one, along with the head of Tadgraha (Ma), (are deposited in that order).[4] (7)

मध्यमं च अनङ्गं च अग्निधामविभेदितम् ।
खशिरं खशिराक्रान्तं कपालासनमण्डलम्[२२] ॥ ८ ॥
र[२३] एव[२४] वेधकाक्रान्तं[२५] वर्णाद्यस्य तु मस्तकम् ।
एकपादस्थितं शम्भो तथा वै[२६] मेरुमध्यगम् ॥ ९ ॥
कान्तयुक्तं महेशान तृतीय[२७] पदमुद्धृतम् ।

नपूर्वाद्यन्ताधःसंस्थं[२८] यढान्तं[२९] भानुभेदितम् ॥ १० ॥
हशिरं पङ्कजस्थं तु घाधःस्थं[३०] मायया युतम् ।
चतुर्थपदमाख्यातं पञ्चमं चाधुना भवेत् ॥ ११ ॥

माद्यं गौरीसमायुक्तं[३१] तथा चैव भानान्तगम्[३२] ।
जासनं ईश्वराक्रान्तं[३३] रावान्तं[३४] राधगं च इ[३५] ॥ १२ ॥
वाद्यं चैवैकवीरं तु[३६] द्विरभ्यासेन[३७] षष्ठमम् ।

घनान्तं[३८] मायया सार्धं[३९] अनङ्गासनमण्डलम् ॥ १३ ॥
द्वावेतौ च द्विरभ्यासात्[४०] पदमेव[४१] तु सप्तमम् ।

सयान्तं च द्विधाभूतं[४२] एकारेण[४३] द्वितीयकम् ॥ १४ ॥
अष्टमं पदमेवं तु ठ—अन्तं पङ्कजस्थितम्[४४] ।

(Next comes) the middle (letter) and Anaṅga (Ha) conjoined with the Abode of Fire (Ra), the head of Space (AU), (the letter) covered by the head of Space (Ṁ) (HRAUṀ). (8abc)

GHORARŪPE HAḤ

(Thereafter is) the circle of the seat of the Skull (Ra).[5] In the same way (the letter) Ra is covered by the Piercing One (Ū). (After that comes) the head of the letter that follows it (Pa) as well as, O Śambhu, the One-footed (E) (GHORARŪPE) and the (letter) in the centre of Meru (Ha), conjoined with the letter that has Ka at its end (Ḥ) (HAḤ). O great Lord, in this way the third part (of the mantra) has been enunciated. (8d-10ab)

GHORĀMUKHI

(The letter that is) below (O) follows the letter preceded by Na (Gha), (the letter) between Ya and Ḍha (Ra) conjoined with the Sun (Ā), the head of Ha (Ma), the One in the Lotus (U) and that which is below Gha (Kha) conjoined with Māyā (I). (Thus) the fourth part has been declared (GHORĀMUKHI). Now comes the fifth. (10cd-11)

BHĪMABHĪṢAṆI VAMA VAMA

(The fifth is assembled with the letter that) follows Ma (Bha) conjoined with Gaurī (Ī) and the one between Bha and Ña (Ma), the seat of Ja (Bha) covered by the Lord (Ī), the one followed by Sound (Ṣa), the one below Ra (Ṇa) and I (BHĪMABHĪṢAṆI). The (next syllable) begins with Va and (then comes) the Solitary Hero (Ma), twice over (VAMA VAMA). (This) is the sixth (part). (12-13ab)

PIVA PIVA

(Collect the letters) between Gha and Na (Pa) along with Māyā (I) and the circle of the seat of Anaṅga (Va). The seventh part is (formed) by repeating these two twice (PIVA PIVA). (13cd-14ab)

HA HE

(The letter) between Sa and Ya (Ha) repeated twice along with the letter E for the second (repetition of the letter Ha): such is the eighth part (HA HE). (14cd-15a)

वर्गातीतं तु संभिन्नं द्विधाभूतं नियोजयेत् ।। १५ ।।
नवमं पदमाख्यातं विसर्गस्थाग्निधामकम्[४५] ।

केवलं तु द्विरभ्यासं[४६] दशमं पदमुद्धृतम् ।। १६ ।।

विच्चेकादशमेवं[४७] तु पदक्रमक्रमेण तु ।
वाग्भवं[४८] मायया सार्धं तथा प्रसादभैरवम् ।। १७ ।।
आद्यमन्ते कृतं देव उद्धृता च परापरा ।
पञ्चचत्वारिंशती[४९] प्रोक्ता[५०] तस्यामासनपक्षकम् ।। १८ ।।

विद्या परापरा ह्येषा[५१] आधारात्[५२] तु विनिर्गता ।
एषासनं क्रमस्योक्तं[५३] आसनं न मृगाजिनम्[५४] ।। १९ ।।

विद्यारूढं कृतात्मानं[५५] अपरां च समभ्यसेत् ।
मायापिण्डं सफेरं तु रावस्योर्ध्वमधःकृतम्[५६] ।। २० ।।
एवं त्रिरक्षरा[५७] विद्या आदिमेन तु योजिता ।

आदिमं तु यदा चान्ते तदा सार्धं[५८] पदं[५९] भवेत् ।। २१ ।।
अध्युष्टा[६०] ज्वलिका[६१] देवी विद्या अपरभैरवी ।
एषा वै मूर्तिपक्षस्य अनाहतविनिर्गता ।। २२ ।।

तस्योर्ध्वं[६२] परमं शम्भो पक्षं तु[६३] जगतः पृथुः[६४] ।
तव[६५] चैकाक्षरा विद्या सा च पञ्चप्रकारतः ।। २३ ।।

RU KṢA RU KṢA

(Extract the letters) after Ṭha (Ra), the Lotus (U), conjoined with the (letter) beyond the groups (of letters) (KṢa). Conjoin this and repeat (it) twice. The ninth part has (thus) been declared (RU KṢA RU KṢA). (15bcd-16a)

RAḤ RAḤ

The Abode of fire (Ra) conjoined with Emission (Ḥ) alone is repeated twice. The tenth (part) has (thus) been extracted (RAḤ RAḤ). (16bcd)

VICCE AIṀ HRĪṀ HRŪṀ

The eleventh, according to the sequence of the parts, is VICCE. (Then follows) the Essence of Speech (AIṀ) along with Māyā (HRĪṀ), Prasādabhairava (HRŪṀ)[6] and thereby, O god, the first one fashioned at the end, Parāparā (Vidyā), has been extracted. It is said to be (the Vidyā of) forty-five (syllables) and the seat is within it. (17-18)

This, the Parāparā Vidyā, has emerged from the Foundation (ādhāra). It is said to be the seat of the sequence. A deerskin is not the (true) seat. (19)

The Aparā Vidyā

Placing the Self (ātman) on the Vidyā,[7] practice the Aparā (Vidyā).[8] The Body of Māyā (HRĪṀ) along with PHAREṀ placed above and below Sound (Ca and Na) – such is the Vidyā consisting of three syllables that is conjoined with the first (Vidyā). (20-21ab)

If the first (syllable) is (placed) at the end then, along with it, it becomes complete. Consisting of three and a half (parts) and burning, the Vidyā is the goddess Aparabhairavī. She is (the Vidyā) of the aspect of form (mūrtipakṣa) that has emerged from (the centre of) Unstruck Sound.[9] (21cd-22)

The Parā Vidyā – HSRAUṀ

O Śambhu, above that is the supreme aspect (pakṣa), the expanse (pṛthu) of the universe and your Vidyā consisting of one syllable which is in five parts (prakāra). (23)

मेरुकर्णिकया[६६] ज्वाला[६७] शङ्खमस्तकभेदिता ।
कुवेरासनमूर्ध्वे[६८] तु विसर्गान्तमिति स्मृतम्[६९] ॥ २४ ॥
एषा सा भगवती देवी नाम्ना सा वह्निवासिनी[७०] ।
एकाकारा परा माता विश्वमाता प्रतिष्ठिता ॥ २५ ॥
शम्भुमार्गे स्थिता विद्या शाम्भवीसृष्टिरूपतः[७१] ।
तदधःस्थासन[७२] मार्ग[७३] सूक्ष्मं हृदयवल्लभम्[७४] ॥ २६ ॥
तस्यासन[७५] परं नाथ तत्[७६] शाक्तमिति कौलिकम् ।
शाक्तशाम्भवयोर्मध्ये[७७] आणव[७८] नाम पक्षकम् ॥ २७ ॥
एतत्[७९] त्रिकण्टक[८०] मूलं न्यस्त्वा[८१] क्षोभो विजायते[८२] ।
मालिन्याः शब्दराशेस्तु एतद्[८३] विद्याक्रमत्रयम् ॥ २८ ॥
अब्दैकेन तु अभ्यासात् परावस्था प्रवर्तते ।
ये योगिनीकुले जाता तेषां[८४] तुष्टा[८५] ह्यहं पुरा ॥ २९ ॥
ते ज्ञास्यन्ति[८६] त्रिके भेदान्[८७] शब्दराशिसमायुतान्[८८] ।
पञ्चाशद्रुद्ररचित[८९] स्थानवर्णपरिग्रहम्[९०] ॥ ३० ॥
एतद् देव परं गुह्यं न्यासं त्रिदशपूजितम् ।
त्रीणि[९१] विद्यास्त्रिसिद्धाश्च त्रिपीठं[९२] च त्रिदेवतम्[९३] ॥ ३१ ॥
त्रीणि वृक्षा[९४] गुहास्त्रीणि[९५] त्रिशक्तिर्गुणमुज्ज्वला[९६] ।
त्रिनाडिमार्गगं ज्ञात्वा विद्यात्रितयमारुहेत् ॥ ३२ ॥[९७]

इत्याद्यावतारे महामन्थानभैरवयज्ञे[९८] अन्वये सप्तकोटिप्रमाणे मेरुमार्गविनिर्गते
लक्षपादाधिके विद्यापीठमार्गे[९९] विमलषट्कनिर्णये कादिभेदे आज्ञापारमेश्वरे[१००]
स्वामिनीमते श्रीचतुर्विंशत्सहस्रसंहितायां देव्याक्रमभाषिते
त्रिविद्याधिकारो[१०१] नामानन्दः ॥ २० ॥

It is said to be the flame (Ra) along with the centre (karṇikā) of Meru (Ha), conjoined with the head of the Conch (Sa), the seat of Kuvera (AU) and, above it, (the letter that) ends with Emission (Ṁ).[10] (24)

This (Vidyā) is the goddess Bhagavatī whose name is Vahnivāsinī (Dweller in the Fire).[11] She is the supreme mother who, consisting of (just) one syllable, is well established as the mother of the universe. (25)

The Vidyā is on Śambhu's path in the form of the emanation of Śambhu's energy (śāmbhavīsṛṣṭi). The seat (āsana) below that is the subtle path, O beloved of the Heart. (26)

O Lord, its seat is supreme; it is the empowered (śākta) one, that is, (the reality of) Kula (kaulika). Between the empowered and Śambhu's energy is the individual (āṇava) aspect (pakṣa).[12] (27)

This is the root with three thorns.[13] Once it has been deposited, arousal (kṣobha) ensues. This is the triad of the sequences of the Vidyās. It belongs to the Assembly of Sounds and Mālinī. (28)

The supreme state arises by practicing (this) for (only) one year. I, the Supreme One (parā), am pleased with those born (in this way) into the family of the Yoginīs (Yoginīkula). (29)

They will know the divisions associated with the Assembly of Sounds within the Triad (trika) and the form of the places[14] and letters fashioned by the fifty Rudras. (30)

This, O god, is the supreme secret, the deposition venerated by the gods. These are the three Vidyās, there are three Siddhas, three sacred seats, three deities, three trees, three caves and the triple energy aflame with qualities. One should climb onto the three Vidyās having learnt that which is on the path of the three channels (nāḍī).[15] (31-32)

This is the (twentieth) chapter called Concerning the Triple Vidyā. It belongs to the primordial descent into the great sacrifice of the Churning Bhairava in the tradition (anvaya) that consists of seventy million (verses) that has emerged on the Path of Meru and (extends) for more than a hundred thousand quarter (verses). It is on the path of the Seat of Knowledge (vidyāpīṭha) and is the ultimate purport of the Pure Six Thousand (verses) (vimalaṣaṭka) in the division beginning with ‘KĀ' in the venerable scripture of twenty-four thousand (verses) (known as) the Svāminīmata of the Supreme Lord's command as uttered within the Tradition of the Goddess (devyākrama).

एकविंशानन्दः

श्रीवक्रा उवाच

अथान्य[१] संप्रवक्ष्यामि अघोराष्टकमुत्तमम् ।
गमागमेन कर्तव्यं शिवेन तु पुटीकृतम् ।। १ ।।

पदभेदक्रमं शम्भो इदानीं[२] कथयाम्यहम् ।
अघोरेति[३] पदं पूर्वं अघोर्या–ई[४] द्वितीयकम् ।। २ ।।
एषा सा प्रथमा घोरा द्वितीया च यथा भवेत् ।

परमघोरेति पदं परमघोर्या–ई[५] परम् ।। ३ ।।
घोररूपे[६] हविसर्गं[७] घोररूपा ई[८] चान्तगम्[९] ।
तृतीयाघोरिका प्रोक्ता चतुर्थी[१०] त्वथवा शृणु ।। ४ ।।

घोरमुखि घोरमुखा[११] ईकारस्वरभेदितम्[१२] ।
भीमभीषणीति पदं[१३] अपरं भीमभीषणा[१४] ।। ५ ।।

गौर्या चतुर्थिका[१५] गौर्या[१६] पञ्चमा[१७] च महेश्वर ।
वम पिव हेति पदं वम पिव हायीसंयुतं[१८] ।। ६ ।।

षष्ठीयं कथिताघोरा अपरा सप्तमा भवेत् ।
रुरुशब्द[१९] ररश्चैव रुरुशब्द[२०] ररः पुनः ।। ७ ।।

अकारस्थास्त्विमे[२१] रेफा गौर्यायाक्षरदीपिताः[२२] ।
एषा सा सप्तमा घोर्या अष्टमा[२३] चाधुना[२४] भवेत् ।। ८ ।।
फेत्कारी चैव फेत्कार्या चतुर्थस्वरभेदिता ।

अघोर्यष्टकमेतद् हि[२५] पदषोडशभेदतः[२६] ।। ९ ।।
द्विपदक्रमयोगेन कथितं घोरिकाष्टकम् ।

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

The Five Principles

The Formation of the Aghoryaṣṭaka Vidyā

The venerable (goddess) Vakrā said:

Now I will tell (You) something else, namely, the most excellent Aghorāṣṭaka.[1] One should form it in conjunction with the going and coming encapsulated by Śiva.[2] (1)

O Śambhu, I will now tell (you) the sequence of (its) various parts (padabhedakrama). The first part is AGHORE. AGHORYĀ-Ī[3] is the second. This is the first Aghorā. (Now listen to) how the second one is (formed). (2-3ab)

It (begins with) the word PARAMAGHORE. It is followed by PARAMAGHORYĀ-Ī GHORARŪPE,[4] (the letter) Ha with Emission (Ḥ) (HAḤ) and GHORARŪPĀ with Ī at the end. (Thus) the third Aghorikā has been explained. Now listen to the fourth. (3cd-4)

(It is thus): GHORAMUKHI and GHORAMUKHĀ conjoined with the vowel 'Ī'. There is the part BHĪMABHĪṢAṆI. Another is BHĪMABHĪṢAṆĀ. (5)

(This is) the fourth Gauryā. O Maheśvara, the fifth Gauryā is VAMA PIVA HA and VAMA PIVA along with HĀYĪ. (6)

This, the sixth Aghorā, has been explained. The next one is the seventh: the word RURU and RARA, the word RURU (and then) again RARA. (7)

These letter 'Ras', located in the letter A, are inflamed by Gaurī's letter (Ī).[5] This is the seventh Aghoryā. Now the eighth follows: PHETKĀRĪ along with PHETKĀRYĀ, conjoined with (Ī), the fourth vowel. (8-9ab)

This is the Aghoryaṣṭaka (Vidyā), which is divided into sixteen parts. The Ghorikāṣṭaka has been explained according to the conjunction of the sequence of two parts (at a time). (9cd-10ab)

दीपनैस्तु[२७] विनिर्मुक्तं अघोर्याद्यष्टकोद्धृतम्[२८] ।। १० ।।
न तु सिद्धिप्रदं[२९] देव बीजहीनं न साधयेत् ।
तस्मात् सबीजकरणं[३०] इदानीं शृणु भैरव ।। ११ ।।

मातृकाक्रमलिङ्गस्य पूर्णिमानलभेदितम् ।
गौर्यायामलमाक्रान्तं[३१] आज्ञावर्तिसमुज्ज्वलम्[३२] ।। १२ ।।
एतद् बीजं महेन्द्रस्य तथा प्रसादभैरवम् ।

तस्यान्ते मध्यगं पात्यं महेन्द्रशिरभेदितम् ।। १३ ।।
शक्तितोमरमाविष्टं अधिकारार्णभेदितम् ।
तत्पदस्थं[३३] विसर्गस्थं व्योमबीजं महेश्वर[३४] ।। १४ ।।

बविलोमाच्चतुर्थं[३५] तु तोरणशिरभेदितम् ।
तस्याधःस्थस्तथा[३६] चोर्ध्वं[३७] चन्द्रासनं[३८] सुसंस्थितम्[३९] ।। १५ ।।
तस्योर्ध्वे[४०] तु पुनः[४१] क्षोभं[४२] संयोगाद् रावबीजकम् ।

वकारस्य मकारस्य[४३] अन्तस्थं च[४४] समुद्धरेत् ।। १६ ।।
कुबेरासनमाविष्टं[४५] बिन्दुभिन्नगुरूपरि[४६] ।
एषैव[४७] कौलिनीबीजं सुरसिद्धनमस्कृतम्[४८] ।। १७ ।।

प्रथमादि चतुर्थं तु अग्निवेधकभेदितम् ।
शशाङ्कांकितबिन्दूर्ध्वे षट्त्यागात्[४९] सप्तमे हितम्[५०] ।। १८ ।।
एष कालाग्निरुद्रस्तु प्रोक्तः[५१] सर्वजनप्रियः[५२] ।

The Aghoryādyaṣṭaka has been explained without the seed-syllables that serve as its energizers. (However, without them, it) does not give success (siddhi). Devoid of the seed-syllables, it cannot achieve its goal. Therefore, O Bhairava, listen now to how the seed-syllables are added (sabījakaraṇa). (10cd-11)

The Eight Seed-syllables of the Vidyā

Mahendra

The Liṅga (Ha) of the sequence of letters conjoined with the Fire (Ra) and the Full Moon covered by the Gaurī couple (Ī) and burning with the Wick of the Command (Ṁ):[6] this is the seed-syllable of Mahendra (HRĪṀ). (12-13a)

Prasādabhairava and the Void

Next (comes) Prasādabhairava.[7] Place the (letter) in the middle (Ha) at its end conjoined with the head of Mahendra (Ū) penetrated by the Hammer of Energy (Ra) and conjoined with the letter of Authority (Ṁ) (HRŪṀ). O Maheśvara, the seed-syllable of the Void (vyomabīja) established in Emission resides in that part (pada) (KHAḤ). (13bcd-14)

Sound

The fourth (syllable begins with the letter that comes in the) reverse order from Ba (Pha) conjoined with the head of the Arch (toraṇa) and (with the letter that is) below. Above it, the seat of the Moon is well established. Again above that is Arousal (Ṁ). (This is) the seed-syllable of Sound (rāvabīja) (formed) by the conjuction (of these letters).[8] (15-16ab)

Kaulinī

Extract (the letter) between the letters Va and Ma (Ha), (that which) rests on the seat of Kubera (AU), (and the letter) above the Guru conjoined with the Point: this indeed is the seed-syllable of Kaulinī saluted by the gods and Siddhas. (16cd-17)

Kālāgni

(The letter) preceded by the first, the fourth conjoined with Fire (Ra) and the Piercer (U), above the Point, (is) marked with the Moon and, omitting six, the beneficial (hita) is (attained) in the seventh;[9] this is said to be (the seed-syllable of) Kālāgnirudra, beloved of everybody. (18-19ab)

भलमध्यमक[५३] नाथ[५४] बाद्येनाहत[५५] औशिरम् ॥ १९ ॥
बिन्दुनादकलाक्रान्तं महारुद्रपुरोद्धृतम्[५६] ।

अन्य[५७] धूम्रध्वजस्याद्यं तोरणासनभेदितम् ॥ २० ॥
तोरण[५८] शिरचन्द्रार्ध[५९] आनन्द[६०] च अखण्डितम् ।
योगिनीबीजराजान[६१] रावावस्थोत्तमोत्तमम्[६२] ॥ २१ ॥

एतद् बीजाष्टकं कुर्याद्[६३] घोर्याया अष्टकस्य[६४] तु ।

पदानां षोडशानां तु बीजान्यष्टौ द्विधा कुरु ॥ २२ ॥
अवसाने पदानां तु ते बीजाः[६५] षोडश स्मृताः ।
भविष्यन्ति च देवेश आद्यन्तशिवयोजिताः ॥ २३ ॥

प्रसादस्य तु जीवस्य[६६] शिरं कृत्वा चतुर्दशम् ।
भवते शिवराजान[६७] कृत्वा न्यासं समारभेत् ॥ २४ ॥

पदाभ्या[६८] जानुजङ्घाभ्यां आधारे[६९] हृदि मण्डले ।
कुक्षिभ्यां पृष्ठवंशे[७०] च तथा बाहुद्वये[७१] पुनः ॥ २५ ॥
वक्त्रमण्डलमेवं तु अष्टस्थानेषु[७२] विन्यसेत् ।

संहार[७३] पूर्वतः कृत्वा ततः सृष्टिक्रमं पुनः ॥ २६ ॥

अघोर्याद्यात्मक[७४] न्यासं त्रिकण्टावरणोद्धृतम्[७५] ।
कथितं तव देवेश पुर्यष्टकसमायुतम् ॥ २७ ॥

शब्दः[७६] स्पर्शश्च[७७] रूप[७८] च रसो गन्धश्च पञ्चमः ।
मनो बुद्धिरहंकार[७९a] पुर्यष्टकमिति स्मृतम्[७९b] ॥ २८ ॥

The City of Mahārudra

O Lord (nātha), (it is formed with the letter) between Bha and La (Ha), along with (the one beginning with) Ba (Sa) and the head of AU covered by the energy of the Point and Sound (HSAUṀ). The city of Mahārudra has (thus) been extracted. (19cd-20ab)

Yoginī

Another (seed-syllable is as follows): (the letter) following Smoky Flag (Sa) conjoined with the seat of the Arch. The Arch is the Half Moon of the head and is unbroken bliss. (This,) the king of seed-syllables, is that of the Yoginī. It is the state of Sound (rāvāvasthā), the best of the most excellent. (20cd-21)

Fashion this group of eight seed-syllables of the eightfold (Vidyā of the goddess) Ghoryā. (22ab)

The Deposition of the Vidyā on the Body

Double the eight seed-syllables for the sixteen parts (pada) (of the mantra).[10] At the end of the parts, these seed-syllables are said to be sixteen. O Lord of the gods, they shall be joined to (the word) 'Śiva' at the beginning and at the end.[11] (22cd-23)

(The seed-syllable called) Śivarāja is (formed) once the head, which is the fourteenth (AU), has been fashioned of Prasāda and of the individual Soul (jīva). Once this is done, begin the deposition. (24)

(It is done) on 1) the two feet, 2) the two thighs and knees, 3) in the foundation, 4) in the circle of the heart, 5) on the two armpits, 6) on the back, 7) on the two arms and 8) on the circle of the face. In this way, deposit (the seed-syllables) in (these) eight places. (25-26ab)

Once one has, first of all, performed (this deposition according to the sequence of) withdrawal, (one should) then (do it again, this time) according to the sequence of emanation. (26cd)

O Lord of the gods, the deposition beginning with Aghoryā extracted from the Triangle[12] has been explained to you conjoined with the City of Eight. (27)

Sound, touch, form, taste and smell (as the) the fifth, (along with) mind, intellect and ego are said to (constitute) the City of Eight.[13] (28)

ब्रह्माण्यादेवताद्यष्टौ[८०] चतुःषष्टिस्तु संख्यया ।
एवं व्याप्तिक्रमेणैव अघोर्यष्टक[८१] विन्यसेत् ॥ २९ ॥

अथ विद्याक्रमं न्यासं सिद्धगाङ्गसमायुतम्[८२] ।
करन्यासक्रमेणैव पूर्व[८३] यत् ख्यापितं मया ॥ ३० ॥

साम्प्रतं बीजविन्यास[८४] तथा वै पीठपञ्चकम् ।

विसर्गाद्यं महावर्ण[८५] पञ्चधा कारयेत् स्वरम्[८६] ॥ ३१ ॥
महद्भूतमतः[८७] कृत्वा दीर्घपङ्कजभेदितम् ।
कलाबिन्द्वङ्कितं देव एतद् वै बीजपञ्चकम्[८८] ॥ ३२ ॥

विन्यस्तव्यं हि देव्यायास्तत्त्वपञ्चकसंयुतम्[८९] ।
पृथिवी शक्तिबीजं तु आपो वै सोमबीजकम् ॥ ३३ ॥
तेजो वै सूर्यबीजं तु[९०] वायुर्वै[९१] बिन्दुबीजकम् ।
आकाशं नादबीज[९२] तु एतद् वै बीजपञ्चकम् ॥ ३४ ॥

तेषां स्थानानि वै पञ्च गुरुवक्त्रे प्रतिष्ठिताः[९३] ।
पृथिवी कन्दचक्रे तु आपो[९४] वै योनिमण्डले[९५] ॥ ३५ ॥
तेजो[९६] वै[९७] नाभिचक्रस्थं वायुर्हृदयमण्डले[९८] ।
आकाशं च भ्रूवोर्मध्ये बीजस्थानानि[९९] पञ्च च ॥ ३६ ॥

बीजबीजाश्रमाः[१००] पञ्च कृत्वा आद्येन[१०१] संयुतम्[१०२] ।
लब्ध्वा गुरूपदेशं तु न्यस्तव्यं बीजपञ्चकम् ॥ ३७ ॥[१०३]

अन्यथा न भवेऽवस्था[१०४] बीजहीना[१०५] च सुन्दर ।
पृथिव्यादिषु तत्त्वेषु बन्ध[१०६] चास्तमन[१०७] भवेत् ॥ ३८ ॥

The eight consisting of the deities Brahmāṇī and the others (become) sixty-four in number. One should deposit Aghoryaṣṭaka in this way according to the sequence of pervasion. (29)

The Deposition of the Five *Praṇava*s in the Five Sacred Seats of the Wheels in the Body

Now (comes) the deposition of the sequence of the Vidyā in conjuction with the limbs of the body of the Siddhas and with the sequence of deposition on the hands as explained by me before.[14] (30)

Now (I will explain) the deposition of the seed-syllables and the five sacred seats. (31ab)

One should cause the Great Letter namely, the vowel preceding Emission (Ṁ), to be formed five times. Then, O god, having fashioned the Great Element conjoined with the long lotus (?) and marked with Energy (kalā) and the Point, that is indeed the pentad of seed-syllables. (31cd-32)

It should be deposited along with the Five Principles (tattva) of the goddess. The Earth is the Seed of Energy (śaktibīja), Water the Seed of the Moon, Fire (tejas) the Seed of the Sun, Wind is the Seed of the Point, while Space is the Seed of Sound. This is the pentad of seed-syllables.[15] (33-34)

Their locations (sthāna) are five and are established in the teacher's mouth. Earth is in the Wheel of the Root, Water in the Circle of the Yoni,[16] Fire (tejas) is located in the Wheel of the Navel, Wind in the Circle of the Heart, and Space between the eyebrows. (These are) the five locations of the seed-syllables. (35-36)

Having fashioned the five seed-syllables, and the Hermitages of the seed-syllables having been conjoined with the first, and having (also) obtained the teacher's instruction, one should deposit the five seed-syllables. (37)

Otherwise, O handsome one, (if there were) no seed-syllables there would be no (higher) state in (this) phenomenal existence. (In their absence) there is bondage and the loss (astamana) (of the higher states) on the Earth and in the other principles. (38)

सदाभ्यासेन[१०८] कौलेऽस्मिन् पुनर्जन्म[१०९] कुतो भवेत् ।
एतदुन्मनीकरणं[११०] न्यासेद[१११] बीजपञ्चकम्[११२] ॥ ३९ ॥

तत्त्वानां पञ्चकं देव अधिकारक्रमे[११३] स्थितम् ।
उपदेशे भवेदेव[११४] न्यासेद[११५] पीठपञ्चकम्[११६] ॥ ४० ॥

उक्ता ये पूर्वं ते[११७] पञ्च प्रणवानि[११८] समभ्यसेत्[११९] ।
तेषामग्रे तु[१२०] पीठानि कृत्वा न्यासं[१२१] समारभेत्[१२२] ॥ ४१ ॥

उत्तरं पूर्वपीठं तु पञ्चमाद्यन्तभूषितम्[१२३] ।
भ्रूमध्ये कृष्णवर्णाभं तथा जालन्धरं पुनः ॥ ४२ ॥

द्वितीयाद्यन्तरूपं तु आरक्त[१२४] हृदि मण्डले ।

तथा पूर्णगिरिर्नाम तृतीयाद्यन्तरोपितम्[१२५] ॥ ४३ ॥
पीतवर्णं च नाभिस्थं[१२६] कामरूपं[१२७] तथापरम् ।

प्रथमाद्यन्तमध्यस्थं[१२८] हिमकुन्देन्दुगुह्यतः ॥ ४४ ॥
तिस्त्रोर्ध्वे[१२९] पञ्चमं पीठं चतुर्थाद्यन्तयोजितम्[१३०] ।

हरितं तन्महारौद्रं कन्दस्थाने[१३१] प्रकाशितम् ॥ ४५ ॥
उदयं[१३२] कामरूपे[१३३] तु स्थितिर्वै[१३४] पूर्णगिर्यके[१३५] ।
संहारं[१३६] दक्षिणे पीठे निर्वाणं पञ्चमे स्थितम्[१३७] ॥ ४६ ॥
विश्राममाद्यपीठे[१३८] तु न्यासेदं पीठपञ्चकम् ।
यथा ध्यानं तु पीठानां कामरूपादि भैरव ॥ ४७ ॥

तथा क्रमेण[१३९] तत्त्वानां कुर्याद् वै ध्यानपञ्चकम् ।[१४०] यथा तत्त्वानि बीजानि तथा वै पीठपञ्चकम् ॥ ४८ ॥

By constant practice of this Kaula (teaching), rebirth ceases. This is the process that brings about the supra-mental state (unmanīkaraṇa), namely this, the deposition of the five seed-syllables. (39)

O god, the group of five principles (tattva) is located in the Transmission of Authority (adhikārakrama). This, the deposition of the five sacred seats, is a part of the teaching in this way. (40)

One should practice the Five *Praṇava*s (as) explained previously. Placing the (five) sacred seats before them, begin the deposition. (41)

The first sacred seat (Oḍḍiyāna) is above. It is adorned, at its beginning and end, with the fifth (seed-syllable). It is dark blue in colour and is (located) between the eyebrows. (42abc)

Similarly, the second (seed-syllable) is at the beginning and end of Jālandhara. Light red, it is in the Circle of the Heart. (42d-43ab)

In the same way, the third (seed-syllable) is fixed onto the beginning and the end of the sacred seat called Pūrṇagiri. It is yellow in colour and is located in the navel. (43cd-44a)

After this comes Kāmarūpa, which is between the first (seed-syllable) that comes at the beginning and the end. It (is located) in the genitals, which are (white like) snow, jasmine and the moon. (44bcd)

Above is Tisra, the fifth sacred seat, which is conjoined, at the beginning and the end, with the fourth syllable. Green and very terrible, it is manifest in the Root (kanda). (45)

Arising (udaya) takes place in Kāmarūpa, persistence in Pūrṇagiryaka and withdrawal in the southern seat. Extinction (occurs) (nirvāṇa) in the fifth, while repose (visrāma) (takes place) in the primordial seat (ādyapīṭha).[17] O Bhairava, this is the deposition of the five seats. One should practice the five visualizations (dhyāna) of the Principles in due order as (one does) the visualization of the sacred seats, including Kāmarūpa and the rest.[18] (46-47)

In the same way, one should practice, in due order, the five visualizations of the Principles. The five sacred seats correspond to the (five) Principles and the seed-syllables. (48)

सबाह्याभ्यन्तरं ज्ञात्वा को न मुञ्चति[१४१] बन्धनात्[१४२] ।
पीठन्यासे कृते देव किञ्चित् पश्यन्ति योगिनः ।। ४९ ।।

अदृष्टमण्डले देव अखण्डपुरमण्डलम् ।
तत्र सा कौलिनी विद्या अन्तःकरणभेदिता ।। ५० ।।

तत्त्वानां चाधिकारं[१४३] तु प्रत्ययं[१४४] तु यदा भवेत् ।
तस्मात्[१४५] न्यासवरं प्रोक्तं यत् सुरैरपि दुर्लभम्[१४६] ।। ५१ ।।
आख्यातं तव सिद्धस्य सिद्धमार्गे प्रसिद्धकम् ।

इत्याद्यावतारे महामन्थानभैरवयज्ञे[१४७] अन्वये सप्तकोटिप्रमाणे मेरुमार्गविनिर्गते
लक्षपादाधिके आद्यपीठावतारिते विद्यापीठमार्गे विमलषट्कनिर्णये कादिभेदे
आज्ञापारमेश्वरे स्वामिनीमते श्रीचतुर्विंशत्सहस्रसंहितायां[१४८] अव्वाक्रम–
भाषिते[१४९] तत्त्वपञ्चकारवर्णने क्रमोदयो नामानन्दः ।। २१ ।।

Knowing (this) internally and externally, who is not freed from bondage? O god, once the deposition of the sacred seats has been performed, yogis perceive something (of ultimate reality). (49)

O god, (they see) the Unbroken Maṇḍala of the City within the invisible maṇḍala. The Kaulinī Vidyā is (located) there conjoined to the internal mental organ.[19] (50)

If (one attains) authority and experience (pratyaya) of the principles, (it is then) and for that reason said to be the best of depositions, hard to obtain even by the gods. I have told you who are accomplished (siddha), (this) the bestower of fame on the path of the Siddhas. (51-52ab)

This is the (twenty-first) chapter which is the emergence of the transmission (kramodaya) with regards to the description of the Five Principles. It belongs to the primordial descent into the great sacrifice of the Churning Bhairava in the tradition (anvaya) that consists of seventy million (verses) that has emerged on the Path of Meru and (extends) for more than a hundred thousand quarter (verses). It has been brought (down to earth) into the first sacred seat along the path of the Seat of Knowledge (vidyāpīṭha). It is the ultimate purport of the Pure Six Thousand (verses) (vimalaṣaṭka) in the division beginning with ‘KĀ' in the venerable scripture of twenty-four thousand (verses) (known as) the Svāminīmata of the Supreme Lord's command as uttered within the Tradition of the Mother (avvākrama).

द्वाविंशानन्दः

श्रीवक्रा उवाच[१]

अतः परं प्रवक्ष्यामि न्यासं त्रिदशपूजितम् ।
षोढा द्वादशभेदेन न्यासं कुर्याद्[२] गमागमे ॥ १ ॥

षोढा शक्तिः समाख्याता परा एकाक्षरा शुभा ।
तस्यासनं[३] षोढासंज्ञा षोढाशक्तिपुरं विशेत् ॥ २ ॥

तस्य ते षोडशो[४] भेदाः[५] शृणु मार्गेण सुन्दर ।

जटाहारं[६] गौर्या स्थाप्य द्वादशधा पुनः ॥ ३ ॥
बिन्दुना भेदितं[७] कृत्वा चन्द्रार्कशिरसाहतम् ।

तस्याङ्गा[८] द्वादश[९] ख्याताश्छायाच्छत्रमनुक्रमात्[१०] ॥ ४ ॥
सिंहासनं तु प्रथमं[११] चाद्यासनं[१२] द्वितीयकम् ।
तृतीयं ह्येकवीरं[१३] स्यात्[१४] चतुर्थं हरमण्डले ॥ ५ ॥

पञ्चमं शक्तिबीजं तु मकारासन[१५] षष्ठकम् ।
सप्तमं जिह्वभागस्य[१६] अष्टमं हरमस्तकम् ॥ ६ ॥

हशिरं नवमं देव दशमं[१७] तारणं शिरः ।
राज्यमेकादशं चेति[१८] द्वादशं[१९] तारकं न्यसेत् ॥ ७ ॥

वेधके वेधयेत् सर्वान् एकवीरेण भूषितान् ।
चन्द्रज्योतिकलाशुद्धाः[२०] रुद्रद्वादशभेदिताः[२१] ॥ ८ ॥

पुनरेव हि[२२] देवेश गौर्या[२३] द्वादशभिः[२४] पुनः ।
रुद्रशक्तिसमायोगात्[२५] षोढान्यासं ममाकृतिः[२६] ॥ ९ ॥

न तस्या[२७] दीपनं किञ्चिद्[२८] गौर्याद्वादशदीपिता[२९] ।
एषा वै रुद्रशक्तिस्तु षोढाशक्तिर्नपुंसका[३०] ॥ १० ॥

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

Concerning Ṣoḍhā

The Deposition of Ṣoḍhā in Twelve Divisions

The venerable (goddess) Vakrā said:

Next I will tell (you) of the deposition venerated by the gods. One should perform the deposition of Ṣoḍhā in twelve divisions within the going and coming (of the breath).[1] (1)

Ṣoḍhā is said to be the Supreme (parā) energy. Auspicious, it consists of one syllable.[2] Its seat is (also) called Ṣoḍhā. One should enter the city of the energy of Ṣoḍhā. (2)

It has sixteen divisions, O handsome one; listen (to how they are known) according to the path.[3] (3ab)

Having established Dreadlock (Ṭha) along with Gaurī (Ī) twelve times and having conjoined it with the Point and the head of the Moon and Sun, (the seed-syllable is complete).[4] (3cd-4ab)

Its limbs are said to be twelve, (beginning with) the Umbrella (KṢa) (and proceeding) in due order. The Lion's Throne (Kha) is the first, the second is the seat of the first (letter) (Jha), the third is the Solitary Hero (Ma), the fourth is in the circle of Hara (Bha). (4cd-5)

The fifth is the Seed of Energy, the sixth is the seat of the letter Ma (Ha), and the seventh belongs to the Deceitful One (Cha). The eighth is the head of Hara (Ja). (6)

O god, the head of Ha (Ma) is the ninth, the tenth is the head of the Saviour (Pha). Kingdom is the eleventh. Deposit the Saviour (Na), which is the twelfth. (7)

All being adorned with the Solitary Hero (Na) and conjoined with twelve Rudras who are pure by virtue of the energy of the light of the Moon, penetrate them with the Piercer (Ū). (8)

Again, O Lord of the gods, (conjoin them) with twelve Gaurīs, and by uniting (them) with Rudra’s energy, the Ṣoḍhā deposition which is my form (is complete). (9)

Illumined by the twelve Gaurīs, it has no (need of) any illuminator (dīpana). This is indeed Rudra's energy, the energy of Ṣoḍhā, the Neuter (nampuṁsakā). (10)

तस्या[३१] द्वादशधान्यासं आदौ[३२] सृष्टिक्रमेण तु ।[३३]
पश्चात् कुर्यादङ्गन्यासं गमागममिति[३४] स्मृतम्[३५] ।। ११ ।।

कोपस्थाने[३६] च नेत्राभ्यां कर्णनासापुटावुभौ[३७] ।
कण्ठे च हृदये नाभौ योनौ[३८] आधारमण्डले ।। १२ ।।

षोढान्यास[३९] क्रमेणोक्त[४०] गौर्याकादिर्गम:[४१] स्मृत: ।
आगम[४२] सृष्टिबीजादौ इन्दुबिन्दुविकासितम्[४३] ।। १३ ।।

मकारादिक्रमेणैव गमागमे[४४] पदद्वयम् ।
सदा न्यस्तेन देवेश मण्डलाग्रे क्रमाग्रत: ।। १४ ।।

वर्षैकेन[४५] च अभ्यासात्[४६] दिव्याज्ञा संप्रवर्तते ।
द्वादशाब्दे[४७] तु संप्राप्ते पाषाणानपि[४८] वेधयेत् ।। १५ ।।

चूर्णयेत्[४९] पर्वतशृंगान्[५०] मुद्रास्फोटान्यनेकश:[५१] ।
कुरुते विविधाश्चर्यान्[५२] आज्ञावेशप्रभावत: ।। १६ ।।

यं [५३]सोऽवलोकयेज्जन्तु:[५४] पाशानां वज्रपञ्जरम् ।
तं तु संशोधयेत् शक्त्या कलिस्या[५५] साधयेत् प्रिय ।। १७ ।।

विद्यासिंहासनेद[५६] तु न्यस्त्वा शक्ति: प्रवर्तते ।
कालान्तराद्[५७] गुणोत्पत्तिमचिराल्लभते ध्रुवम् ।। १८ ।।

गुरोर्वक्त्रं च निर्वाणं तथा द्वात्रिंशदक्षरा[५८] ।
आज्ञा सा च क्रमे[५९] गुरोरधिकार[६०] समारभेत्[६१] ।। १९ ।।

विद्यात्रितयसंयुक्तं मण्डलं देवताक्रमम् ।
तथा च द्वादश[६२] श्लोका उलित्रितयनिर्णयम् ।। २० ।।

Initially, her twelvefold deposition is done according to the sequence of emanation. After that one should perform the deposition of the limbs. (These two together) are said to be the `going and coming'. (11)

(The deposition is done) in 1) the place of wrath (between the eyebrows), 2-3) on both eyes, 4-5) on both the ears and 6-7) nostrils, 8) on the throat, 9) the heart, 10) the navel, 11) the Yoni and 12) on the Circle of the Foundation. (12)

(Thus) the deposition of Ṣoḍhā has been declared in due order. The going is said to commence with Gauryākā, (while) the coming, which is developed (vikāsita) by the lunar Point, commences with the seed of emanation (AIṀ).[5] (13)

The two conditions within the going and the coming[6] (take place) in accord with the sequence beginning with Ma, O Lord of the gods, by always depositing (it) in front of the maṇḍala and the Krama. (14)

By one year of practice the divine Command is set into operation. At the advent of the twelfth year (of practice) one is able to pierce even stones. (15)

One can crush the peaks of mountains and (cause) countless explosions of luminous energy by means of gestures (mudrāsphoṭa). By the power of the penetration of the Command, one can perform many kinds of wonders. (16)

Whatever cage of felters (powerful as) thunderbolts of (any) person he sees, he purifies with (his) energy. O beloved, he should accomplish (this) in the Age of Strife. (17)

Once he has deposited this, the lion throne of the Vidyā, (its) energy is set into operation and in a short time, he certainly attains the arising of (all the yogic) powers. (18)

The mouth of the teacher is Nirvāṇa and the thirty-two syllable (Vidyā).[7] It is the Command within the transmission (krama) that makes the teacher's authority function. (19)

The maṇḍala is the sequence of deities conjoined with the three Vidyās, the Twelve Verses and the teaching concerning the three lineages (uli). (20)

ज्ञात्वा तु प्रथमं देव चित्र[६३] दमयते[६४] ततः ।
मन्त्रपादेन चैकेन विद्यापादार्धमेव च ॥ २१ ॥
मुद्रा चैवाष्टभागेन[६५] गुरुपादैकसंज्ञकः[६६] ।
निर्वाणे च निरंशे च तदा सिद्धि[६७] लभेन्नरः ॥ २२ ॥

एतत् पूर्वक्रमं ज्ञात्वा पश्चात् षोढा[६८] समभ्यसेत् ।
तच्च[६९] द्वादशभिर्भेदैः[७०] सिंहासन[७१] समुद्धृतम्[७२] ॥ २३ ॥
तस्यैव नायकी विद्या परा चैकाक्षरा भवेत् ।

मेरुमध्ये तु कौलेशः[७३] कपालासनसंस्थितः ॥ २४ ॥
अधः सृष्टिसमायुक्तः त्रयोदशविभूषितः[७४] ।
विसर्गस्था परा ह्येषा प्लुतस्वरविवर्जिता[७५] ॥ २५ ॥

नपुंसकपदेनैव न स्त्रीकारणपुंगवम् ।
तस्याधिकारमायात[७६] श्रीमच्चन्द्रपुरे गृहे[७७] ॥ २६ ॥

पारम्पर्योपदेशं[७८] तु तस्याध्यात्मिकनिर्णयम्[७९] ।
आदौ सा सकला[८०] प्रोक्ता कूटभूता ह्यधोमुखी ॥ २७ ॥
हिमकुन्देन्दुधवला[८१] श्रवमाणा[८२] मनोन्मना[८३] ।

कोपान्ते[८४] विन्यसेद् देव सिंहरूपक्रमेण[८५] तु ॥ २८ ॥
न चास्या[८६] दीपनं देयं[८७] स्वभावेनैव दीपिता ।
लक्षजापाद्[८८] भवेत् सिद्धिस्ततो[८९] याति परां गतिम्[९०] ॥ २९ ॥

इत्याद्यावतारे मन्थानभैरवयज्ञे[९१] अन्वये सप्तकोटिप्रमाणे[९२] मेरुमार्गविनिर्गते लक्षपादाधिके विद्यापीठमार्गे[९३] विमलषट्कनिर्णये[९४] कादिभेदे आज्ञापारमेश्वरे[९५] स्वामिनीमते[९६] श्रीचतुर्विंशत्सहस्रसंहितायां[९७] अव्वाक्रमभाषिते[९८] षोढाधिकारवर्णने क्रमोदयो नामानन्दः ॥ २२ ॥

O god, once he knows the first, he controls the variegated (universe) (citra). Then, with one part (pāda) of the mantra and half a part of the Vidyā, (and with) the Gesture (i.e. Śakti) with (its) eight sections and the single term (formed from the) part (concerning the) teacher, a man achieves success (siddhi) within Nirvāṇa devoid of aspects. (21-22)

Having learned that, the initial sequence, one should then practice (the deposition of) Ṣoḍhā. That, with (its) twelve divisions, is the extraction of the Lion's Throne. Its mistress (nāyakī) is the Parā Vidyā of one syllable.[8] (23-24ab)

Kauleśa is in the centre of Meru, established on the seat of the Skull. (He is) conjoined below (with the letter of) Emanation and is adorned with the thirteenth (letter) (AI). This is the Supreme (Vidyā) located in Emission, devoid of prolated vowels. (24cd-25)

Its authority has come to the House which is the venerable City of the Moon because of its neuter state (napuṁsaka) and not as feminine (or) masculine.[9] (26)

(This) is the teaching of the transmission from teacher to disciple (pāramparyopadeśa) (and its) inner significance (nirṇaya). Initially, she is said to be energized (sakalā) in the form of a Peak (seed-syllable) (kūṭa) and is facing downwards. She is the Transmental (manonmanā) who, white as snow, jasmine and the moon, flows (downwards). (27-28ab)

O god, it should be deposited (between the eyebrows) within the (the place of) Wrath[10] according to the transmission (krama) of the Lion. O god, she (requires) no energizing (syllable) (because) she is illuminated by (her) own nature. By repeating it a hundred thousand times, (one gets) success (siddhi), and thereafter one reaches the Supreme State. (28cd-29)

This is the (twenty-second) chapter which is the emergence of the transmission (kramodaya) concerning the description of Ṣoḍhā. It belongs to the primordial descent into the great sacrifice of the Churning Bhairava in the tradition (anvaya) that consists of seventy million (verses) that has emerged on the Path of Meru and (extends) for more than a hundred thousand quarter (verses). It is on the path of the Seat of Knowledge (vidyāpīṭha) and is the ultimate purport of the Pure Six Thousand (verses) (vimalaṣaṭka) in the division beginning with `KĀ' in the venerable scripture of twenty-four thousand (verses) (known as) the Svāminīmata of the Supreme Lord's command as uttered within the Tradition of the Mother (avvākrama).

त्रयोविंशानन्दः

श्रीवक्रा उवाच[१]

अधुना तद्ग्रहं वक्ष्ये विद्यात्रितयभेदितम् ।
वर्गाष्टकविधानेन अमूलात्[२] तु विनिर्गतम् ।। १ ।।
अ[३] अ न अ इति[४] पदं पूर्वं[५] आ थ घो तु[६] द्वितीयकम् ।
इ[७] ऋ रे तृतीयं स्यात्[८] ई[९] ॠ ह्रीं[१०] चतुर्थकम्[११] ।। २ ।।
उ ऌ प[१२] पञ्चमं[१३] स्यात् ऊ ॡ र षष्ठं[१४] स्मृतम् ।
ऋ च म सप्तमं चैव[१५] अष्टमं ॠ ध घो[१६] इति ।। ३ ।।
ऌ ण रे[१७] नवमे दत्तं[१८] ॡ उ ह्रौं[१९] दशमं स्मृतम् ।
ए ऊ[२०] घो दशमेकं च ऐ[२१] ई रमिति[२२] द्वादशम् ।। ४ ।।
ओ ब[२३] रु त्रयोदशमं[२४] औ क पेति[२५] चतुर्दशम् ।
अं ख हः[२६] त्रिपञ्चमं[२७] च[२८] अः[२९] ग घो[३०] इति[३१] षोडशः ।। ५ ।।
क घ[३२] र[३३] सप्तदशं[३४] च ख ङ[३५] मु च[३६] दशाष्टकम्[३७] ।
ग[३८] इ[३९] खि ऊनविंशञ्च[४०] घ[४१] अ[४२] भी इति विंशमम्[४३] ।। ६ ।।
ङ व[४४] म एकविंशं च च भ भी द्वयविंशमम्[४५] ।
छ[४६] य ष[४७] त्रयोविंशं ज ढ[४८] णि चतुर्विंशकम् ।। ७ ।।
झ[४९] ड[५०] व[५१] पञ्चविंशञ्च[५२] ञ[५३] ठ म षड्विंशमम्[५४] ।
ट झ[५५] व[५६] सप्तविंशञ्च[५७] ठ ञ[५८] म[५९] चाष्टविंशमम्[६०] ।। ८ ।।
ड[६१] अः[६२] पि ऊनत्रिंशेति[६३] ढ ट[६४] व त्रिंशमं[६५] पदम् ।
ण र पि एकत्रिंशञ्च[६६] त ज व द्वयत्रिंशमम्[६७] ।। ९ ।।
थ प हेति[६८] त्रयस्त्रिंशम् [६९]द स हे चतुस्त्रिंशकम् ।
ध ह रु[७०] पञ्चत्रिंशञ्च[७१] न च्छ रु च[७२] षट्त्रिंशकम्[७३] ।। १० ।।
प[७४] ल[७५] र[७६] सप्तत्रिंशञ्च[७७] फ आ[७८] र[७९] अष्टत्रिंशकम् ।
ब[८०] ष वि[८१] ऊनचारिंशं[८२] भ क्ष[८३] च्वे चत्वारिंशतिः[८४] ।। ११ ।।

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

Concerning Tadgraha and the Samayā Vidyā.

The Formation of Tadgraha Mantra

The venerable (goddess) Vakrā said:

I will now explain Tadgraha (which is) conjoined with the three Vidyās that has emerged from A[1], and which is the root, in accord with the eight classes (of letters). (1)

The first part is A NA A,[2] Ā THA GHO is the second, I Ṛ RE is the third, Ī Ṝ HRĪṀ is the fourth. (2)

The fifth is U ḷ PA, Ū Ḷ RA is said to be the sixth, Ṛ CA MA is the seventh, and Ṝ DHA GHO, the eight. (3)

ḷ ṆA RE is given in the ninth (place), Ḷ U HRAUṀ is said to be the tenth and E Ū GHO is the eleventh, (while) AI Ī RA is the twelfth. (4)

O BA RŪ is the thirteeenth, AU KA PE is the fourteenth, AṀ KHA HAḤ is the fifteenth and AḤ GA GHO is the sixteenth. (5)

KA GHA RA is the seventeenth and KHA ṄA MU is the eighteenth, GA I KHI is the nineteenth and GHA A BHĪ is the twentieth. (6)

ṄA VA MA is the twenty-first, CA BHA BHĪ is the twenty-second, CHA YA ṢA is the twenty-third and JA ḌHA ṆI is the twenty-fourth. (7)

JHA ḌA VA is the twenty-fifth, ÑA ṬHA MA is the twenty-sixth, ṬA JHA VA is the twenty-seventh and ṬHA ÑA MA is the twenty-eighth. (8)

ḌA Ḥ PI is the twenty-ninth and ḌHA ṬA VA is the thirtieth part, while ṆA RA PI is the thirty-first and TA JA VA is the thirty-second. (9)

THA PA HA is the thirty-third, DA SA HE is the thirty-fourth, DHA HA RU is the thirty-fifth and NA CHA RU is the thirty-sixth. (10)

PA LA RA is the thirty-seventh, PHA Ā RA is the thirty-eighth. BA ṢA VI is the thirty-ninth and BHA KṢA CCE the fortieth. (11)

म[८५] म[८६] ऐं[८७] एकचारिंशं[८८] य श ह्रीँ[८९] द्विचत्वारिंशम्[९०] ।
र अं[९१] हूं त्रिचत्वारिंशं[९२] ल त ह्रीं चतुश्चारिंशम्[९३] ॥ १२ ॥

व ए ऐं पञ्चचारिंशं[९४] श[९५] ऐ[९६] ह्रीं षट्चत्वारिंशम्[९७] ।
ष ओ[९८] ऐं[९९] सप्तचारिंशं[१००] स औ[१०१] क्षं अष्टचारिंशम्[१०२] ॥ १३ ॥

ह द[१०३] ह्रीँ[१०४] ऊनपञ्चाशत्[१०५] क्ष[१०६] फ[१०७] हस्त्रौं[१०८] शतार्धकम् ।
पञ्चाशत्पदसंयोगात् संग्रहेण[१०९] तु तद्ग्रहम् ॥ १४ ॥

शब्दराशिक्रमेणैव न्यासं कुर्याच्च तद्ग्रहे ।[११०]
भवेद् दिव्यतनुर्मर्त्यो[१११] अस्य न्यासस्य सेवनात्[११२] ॥ १५ ॥

षण्मासात्[११३] पठिते[११४] सिद्धिः अथवाब्देन निश्चयात्[११५] ।
शस्त्रघातैर्न[११६] भिद्येत[११७] अच्छिद्रो[११८] वज्रयोगिनः[११९] ॥ १६ ॥

कृत्वादौ रावबीजं तु पदस्यान्ते तथा पुनः ।
रावबीजपुटान्तस्थं[१२०] विद्यात्रितयभेदतः ॥ १७ ॥
सुदीप्तं[१२१] तद्ग्रहं[१२२] तस्माद् बीजरिक्तं परांमुखम् ।

परदेहाद् विनिष्क्रान्तं योगिनीमुखसंचयम्[१२३] ॥ १८ ॥
एवं तद्ग्रहक्षेत्रं तु विधानवदशेषतः[१२४] ।

एवं वै कुलसंचारं[१२५] कुलाचारे प्रतिष्ठितम् ॥ १९ ॥
यस्येदं वक्त्रगं न्यासं सोऽपि शान्तपदे स्थितः[१२६] ।
पूर्वाभ्यस्तं न संदेहो[१२७] अन्यायं न[१२८] प्रवर्तते ॥ २० ॥

श्रीवक्रा उवाच[१२९]

पुनरन्यं प्रवक्ष्यामि न्यासं तु समयक्रमम्[१३०] ।
पदभेदक्रमेणैव विद्या पीठेश्वरी भवेत् ॥ २१ ॥

MA MA AIṀ is the forty-first, YA ŚA HRĪṀ is the forty-second. RA AṀ HŪṀ is the forty-third and LA TA HRĪṀ is the forty-fourth. (12)

VA E AIṀ is the forty-fifth and ŚA AI HRĪṀ is the forty-sixth. ṢA O AIṀ is the forty-seventh and SA AU KṢAṀ is the forty-eighth. (13)

HA DA HRĪṀ is the forty-ninth and KṢA PHA HSRAUṀ[3] is the fiftieth. Tadgraha (is formed in this way) by the conjunction of these fifty parts (pada) taken together. (14)

One should perform the deposition according to the sequence of the Assembly of Sounds (śabdarāśi) within the Tadgraha. By the practice of this deposition, a mortal man becomes one who possesses a divine body. (15)

One achieves success (siddhi) by reciting it for six months or, certainly, (by doing so) for a year. (This) adamantine yogi, free of weak points (acchidra), cannot be pierced by the blows of weapons. (16)

The seed-syllable of Sound (rāvabīja)[4] having been formed at the beginning as well as at the end of each part (pada), Tadgraha – established within the capsule of the seed-syllable of Sound and conjoined with the Triple Vidyā – is well inflamed. Therefore, devoid of the seed-syllable, it is not propitious (parāṅmukha). (17-18ab)

Such, in its entirety, is the field of Tadgraha according to the prescription (of the scripture). (Being) the aggregate (of the teaching that comes) from the mouth of the Yoginīs, it has emerged from the Supreme Body (paradeha). (18cd-19ab)

Such, indeed, is the movement of energy (within the body) (kulasañcāra) which is established in the practice of Kula (kulācāra). Also, he on whose lips this deposition resides abides on the plane of peace. There can be no doubt that once this has been practiced, no injustice can take place. (19cd-20)

Koṅkaṇā – the Samayā Vidyā of Pīṭheśvarī

The venerable goddess Vakrā said:

Again, I will tell (you) another deposition and transmission of the Rule (samayakrama) in due order, according to the division of its parts (pada), namely, the Vidyā who is the Mistress of the Sacred Seat (pīṭheśvarī).[5] (21)

च्चे वि चेति[१३१] पदं पूर्वं णिकि णिकि[१३२] च द्वितीयकम् ।
च्छ र ई च सचन्द्रार्ध[१३३] च्छ र आ सार्धचन्द्रमा ॥ २२ ॥
उभयोस्तृतीय[१३४] रेघो[१३५] विरभै[१३६] येमस[१३७] पुनः ।
ग ल ऊ[१३८] सशशि[१३९] कृत्वा चतुर्थपदमुद्धृतम् ॥ २३ ॥

कहशब्द[१४०] द्विरभ्यास[१४१] संयोगात् पदषष्ठमम्[१४२] ।
सहशब्द[१४३] द्विरभ्यास[१४४] देवताष्टपद[१४५] स्मृतम् ॥ २४ ॥

हर औ[१४६] चन्द्रशून्यस्थं द्विधाभूतं नवमं स्मृतम् ।
णिकको[१४७] द्विपञ्च[१४८] च णिकको[१४९] दशैकाधिकम्[१५०] ॥ २५ ॥

हशक्तिः[१५१] शून्यचन्द्रार्धं कला[१५२] रेफं च चन्द्रमा ।
गौर्या शून्यं क्रमादेकपिण्डमेवं तु द्वादशम् ॥ २६ ॥

मेनणञङ[१५३] पदं तु[१५४] इदमेव[१५५] त्रयोदशम् ।
हरगौरी शशिः शून्यं हरा[१५६] शून्यं च मौलिनी ॥ २७ ॥
चतुर्दशपदं ख्यातं खिमुराघो अ एव च ।
पञ्चदश[१५७] समाख्यातं राव रेघो—अ षोडशम्[१५८] ॥ २८ ॥

रेघोर[१५९] सप्तदश[१६०] स्यात्[१६१] रे रा रा[१६२] च दशाष्टमम्[१६३] ।
केब्जिकु हसौः[१६४] विंशेति[१६५] श्रीं[१६६] ह्रीं ऐं[१६७] पद[१६८] विंशमम्[१६९] ॥ २९ ॥

सिंहक्रमेण[१७०] वाख्यातं ऐंकारादि[१७१] अनुक्रमात्[१७२] ।
उदय[१७३] सूर्यमार्गेण सोममार्गेण[१७४] रोधनम्[१७५] ॥ ३० ॥

चन्द्रसूर्यक्रमेणैव वर्णैश्च[१७६] चतुःषष्टिभिः[१७७] ।
समयाख्या[१७८] कुले कौले आदिमे नाम[१७९] योजिता[१८०] ॥ ३१ ॥

आद्यन्तेन[१८१] समायुक्ता बीजयुक्ता मनोन्मना[१८२] ।
सा च पीठेश्वरी माया समया कुलमालिनी ॥ ३२ ॥

The first part is VICCE and ṆIKI ṆIKI is the second. The third is (formed from) both CCHA RA Ī along with the Half Moon (i.e CCHRĪṀ), and CCHARA Ā with a Half Moon (i.e. CCHRĀṀ). (Assemble together) REGHO VIRABHAI[6] and the YEMASA; having (also formed) GA LA Ū with the Moon (i.e. GLŪṀ), the fourth part has been extracted. (22-23)

The word KAHA (is the fifth). Doubled, the sixth part (is formed) by (its) conjunction (with the) word SAHA (which is the seventh). Doubled, it is said to be the deity's eighth part.[7] (24)

The ninth is said to reside in HARA AU and the Void of the Moon. It is doubled (i.e. HRAUṀ HRAUṀ). The tenth is ṆIKAKOṀ and the eleventh is ṆIKAKOṀ. (25)

The Energy of HA, the Half Moon of the Void, Energy (SA) and the letter RA and the Void of the Moon with Gaurī (Ī) – (these letters), in due order, formed into a single unit (piṇḍa), (constitute) the twelfth (i.e. HSRĪṀ). (26)

The thirteenth part is this MENAṆAÑAṄA. The fourteenth part is said to be Hara, Gaurī (Ī), the Void of the Moon (i.e. HRĪṀ), Hara and the Void of the Moon (maulinī) (i.e. HRĀṀ). KHIMURĀGHOA is said to be the fifteenth. (The seed-syllable) of Sound (rāva), (PHREṀ) REGHOA, is the sixteenth. (27-28)

REGHOA is the seventeenth and RE RĀRĀ the eighteenth. KEBJIKU HASAUḤ is the nineteenth and ŚRĪṀ, HRĪṀ and AIṀ comprise the twentieth part. (29)

Alternatively, it has been explained in due order, starting from AIṀ, according to the Transmission of the Lion. The arising (udaya) takes place by the Path of the Sun, and the checking (rodhana) by the Path of the Moon. (30)

By means of the sequence of the Sun and Moon, (the Vidyā) called Samayā is conjoined with the sixty-four letters within the primordial Kula and Kaula. (31)

The Transmental (manomanā), endowed with (its) seed-syllables and conjoined with the first and the last (letters) (AIṀ), is Pīṭheśvarī (the Mistress of the Sacred Seat) who is (also known as) Māyā, Samayā and Kulamālinī. (32)

सा[१८३] दीप्ता बीजसंयुक्ता बीजरिक्ता[१८४] अदीपिता ।
महानेषाधिकारी[१८५] यः[१८६] सेव्यमाना स[१८७] सिद्ध्यति ॥ ३३ ॥

बीजैश्चतुर्दशैः[१८८] प्रोक्ता कोंकणा[१८९] ज्वलभूषिता[१९०] ।
लक्षैकेन[१९१] तु जप्तेन रुद्रशक्तिः प्रवर्तते ॥ ३४ ॥

अनया ज्ञातमात्रया[१९२] सकृदावर्तनादपि ।
विद्यायाः स्मरणादेव उद्धारोद्धृतमात्रतः ॥ ३५ ॥
स्मरणादपि सौभाग्यं महापापक्षयो भवेत् ।
सप्तजन्मकृतं पापं पठनादेव नश्यति ॥ ३६ ॥

तत्क्षणान्मुच्यते[१९३] शिष्यो चक्रे वा मण्डलान्तरे ।
विद्यापीठोपपीठे[१९४] च योगिनीचक्रमध्यतः ॥ ३७ ॥
एकवृक्षे श्मशाने च मेलके वा चतुष्पथे ।

तर्पणात् पात्रसंपूर्णे[१९५] विश्वामित्रकपालके[१९६] ॥ ३८ ॥
अथवा नृकपाले[१९७] च पूजयेत् तर्पयेत्[१९८] ततः[१९९] ।

समयलोपाद्[२००] मुच्येत[२०१] तेजश्चायुः[२०२] पराक्रमम्[२०३] ॥ ३९ ॥
वर्तते ज्ञानसद्भावं[२०४] योगिनीकुलमेलकम्[२०५] ।
लभते समयायुक्तो वीरद्रव्यं चरुं तथा ॥ ४० ॥
प्राशनाद् भवते सिद्धिः अन्यथा मरणं भवेत् ।

निर्विशङ्कं[२०६] पदे प्राप्ते संग्राह्यं समयाक्रमम्[२०७] ॥ ४१ ॥
समयाचरुकं प्राश्यं सर्वसिद्धिफलप्रदम् ।
व्रतस्थो व्रतहीनो वा असमयी समयी भवेत् ॥ ४२ ॥

(When) she is conjoined with the seed-syllables, she is energized (dīptā). Devoid of these seed-syllables, she is not (adīpitā). Great is he who has the authority and practices (this Vidyā). He is successful. (33)

She, along with the fourteen seed-syllables,[8] is said to be Koṁkaṇā, adorned with flames. By repeating (this Vidyā) 100,000 times, Rudra's energy is set into operation. (34)

Benefits, ritual application and admonitions

Great sin is destroyed merely by knowing (the Vidya), or by just rotating through it once (āvartana). By remembering the Vidyā or merely by enunciating it, or by recalling it, (one attains) good fortune. By reciting it, the sin of seven lifetimes is destroyed.[9] (35-36)

The disciple is freed that very moment (wherever he may be,) in the cakra[10] or within the maṇḍala, in the sacred seats of wisdom (vidyāpīṭha), primary or secondary, in the midst of the Yoginīcakra, in (a desert where there is only) one tree, in a crematorium, in a gathering (melaka) or on a crossroad. (37-38ab)

(This happens) when, by offering libation (tarpaṇa), the vessel is full. (This may be made) of the palmyra fruit as (a substitute for) a skull (viśvāmitrakapāla) or else one should worship (the Vidyā) in a human skull[11] and then offer (it) libation. (38cd-39ab)

By transgressing the Rule (samayalopa),[12] power (tejas), longevity and valour (shall surely) abandon one. (Whereas) the essence of knowledge which conjoins with the Yoginīkula abides (for) one who is intent on the Rule (samayāyukta). In the same way, he acquires the offering of the Heroes, the sacrificial pap (caru) by eating; it comes success (siddhi). Otherwise, (failing in this), there is (only) death (for him). (39cd-41ab)

Having attained the plane free of doubts, one should take up the rite (krama) of the Samayā. One should eat the sacrificial pap of the Samayā that bestows the fruit of every accomplishment (siddhi). (Through it), one devoid of vows is established in the vow and one who does not possess the rule (asamayin) comes to possess it. (41cd-42)

अदीक्षितो[२०८] दीक्षितोऽसौ[२०९] दुर्भगः सुभगो भवेत्[२१०] ।
अल्पायुषो[२११] दीर्घमायुर्दरिद्रो[२१२] धनवान्[२१३] भवेत् ॥ ४३ ॥

समयविद्याधरो मन्त्री[२१४] वीरद्रव्यसमाश्रितः ।
तस्याधिकारमतुलं[२१५] शास्त्रेऽस्मिन् कौलिनीपुरे ॥ ४४ ॥

समयविद्याविनिर्मुक्तो[२१६] कुलाचारविवर्जितः ।
मन्त्राचारविलुप्तस्तु दीक्षितोऽपि पशुर्भवेत् ॥ ४५ ॥

समयभङ्गेषु दारिद्र्यं[२१७] मरणं[२१८] गुरुलङ्घनात् ।
आज्ञाभङ्गे कुतः सिद्धिरचिरान्नरकं[२१९] व्रजेत् ॥ ४६ ॥

गोपयेत कुलाचारं[२२०] गुर्वौघं[२२१] च कुलागमम् ।
नैवेद्यं चरुद्रव्यं च यत् किञ्चित्[२२२] क्रमसंस्थितम् ॥ ४७ ॥

मम विद्याव्रतस्थस्तु[२२३] प्राशयेद्[२२४] समयाग्रतः[२२५] ।
गुरूच्छिष्टं तु चरुकं[२२६] समयायुतमन्त्रितम्[२२७] ॥ ४८ ॥

साष्टाङ्गप्रणिपातेन कृत्वा मण्डलकं[२२८] पुनः[२२९] ।
हस्तयोरुभयोः[२३०] कृत्वा देह्यनुज्ञां[२३१] प्रसादतः ॥ ४९ ॥
एवमुक्तस्तु[२३२] शिष्येण गुरुवक्त्रप्रसादतः ।
प्राशनात् कौलिकी सिद्धिर्निर्विकल्पस्य[२३३] नान्यथा ॥ ५० ॥

न्यासं विद्याधुना[२३४] वक्ष्ये सृष्टिन्यायेन कौलिकम् ।

आद्यार्णसप्तकं[२३५] वक्त्रे रा रा[२३६] चक्षुद्वये स्मृतौ[२३७] ॥ ५१ ॥
रेफं[२३८] तृतीयकं चक्षुषे[२३९] कोपान्ते[२४०] च विन्यसेत् ।
रा रा[२४१] कर्णौभयोर्देव[२४२a] कुब्जिके[२४२b] कुलनायिका[२४३] ॥ ५२ ॥

One who is not initiated becomes an initiate and one who is unfortunate becomes fortunate. One who has a short life span becomes long-lived and a poor man, rich. (43)

The reciter of mantra who possesses the Samayā Vidyā and who is devoted to (the consumption) of the sacrificial substance of the Heroes has unequalled authority in this scripture and in the City of Kaulinī.[13] (44)

One who does not possess the Samayā Vidyā and who does not practice Kula conduct (kulācārā) is devoid of the practice of mantra, even though he is an initiate, is (an uninitiated), fettered soul (paśu). (45)

When transgressions of the Rule occur, poverty and death (are the consequences) because one has disobeyed the teacher. When the Command has been contravened, how is accomplishment (siddhi) (possible)? (Indeed,) one quickly goes to hell. (46)

One should keep Kula conduct secret; so too the Lineage of the Teacher (gurvaugha), Kula scripture, the food offering (naivedya), the sacrificial pap and whatever is in the Krama. (47)

He who is established in the vow (of practicing) my Vidyā should eat the remains of the offering to the teacher (gurūcchiṣṭa) in front of the Samayā. (This is) the sacrificial pap that (has been energized with) mantra (by the recitation) of the Samayā Vidyā millions of times (ayuta). (48)

Graced by the teacher's mouth, the disciple (achieves) the Kaulikī Siddhi of the state free of thought constructs (nirvikalpa). (He attains this) only by eating it after having again (worshipped) the maṇḍala by prostrating (before it) and (joining) together both hands, saying: "By your grace, give me (your) permission!"[14] (49-50)

The Kaulika deposition of the Vidyā

Now I will tell (you) the Kaulika deposition of the Vidyā according to the pattern of emanation (sṛṣṭi). (51ab)

The first group of seven syllables[15] is (to be deposited) on the face. RĀ RĀ are said to be on the two eyes. Deposit the third letter RA (i.e. RE) in the eye (between the eyebrows) within Wrath. RĀ RĀ are (to be deposited) on the two ears and KUBJIKE is the mistress (nāyikā) of Kula. (51cd-52)

अघोरे[२४४] नासिकाग्रे[२४५] तु त्रिशूलं विन्यसेदिति ।
जिह्वायां[२४६] रावबीजं[२४७] तु अघोरा चासनत्रये[२४८] ॥ ५३ ॥

मुखि[२४९] उष्टद्वयारोप्य[२५०] ह्रां ह्रीं गण्डस्थलावुभौ ।
ङकारं[२५१] चिबुके न्यस्य ञकारं[२५२] कण्ठमेखला ॥ ५४ ॥

णकारं[२५३] चक्रकाद्यायां[२५४] क्र[२५५] इति गलमेखला ।
मेकारं[२५६] हृदयात्मानं[२५७] हूंकारं[२५८] प्राणमध्यतः ॥ ५५ ॥

कोंकणि[२५९] स्तनयोरेतत् त्रिकमेवानुविन्यसेत्[२६०] ।
कोंकणं[२६१] उदरे न्यस्य इकारं[२६२] नाभिमण्डले[२६३] ॥ ५६ ॥

ह्रौं[२६४] ह्रौं * करयोः[२६५] कहौ[२६६] हसशब्दं[२६७] तु पृष्ठतः[२६८] ।
हसशब्दान्वितं[२६९] चैव स्कन्धयोः कह विन्यसेत् ॥ ५७ ॥

कहान्यं बाहुयुग्मे तु ग्लूँकारं[२७०] योनिमण्डले ।
सहशब्दं[२७१] कराभ्यां[२७२] तु समयेति करांगुली[२७३] ॥ ५८ ॥

भैरवीति तथाघोरे[२७४] च्छ्राँ[२७५] च्छ्रीँ[२७६] ऊरुकयुग्मके[२७७] ।
किणीति[२७८] जानुजङ्घाभ्यां[२७९] किणि[२८०] पादद्वये[२८१] न्यसेत् ॥ ५९ ॥
विच्चे पादांगुलीप्रान्ते[२८२] वाग्भवं वक्त्रमध्यतः ।

यत्र स्थानात्[२८३] समारभ्य कृतं न्यासं च विद्यया ॥ ६० ॥
पादान्तात्[२८४] पुनस्तत्रैव[२८५] उच्चारो यत्र तल्लयः ।
उदयास्तममेवं[२८६] तु संपुटं[२८७] परिगीयते ॥ ६१ ॥

एषा सा समया विद्या अपसव्याद्[२८८] विनिर्गता[२८९] ।
तद्ग्रहस्य तु क्षेत्रस्य एषा[२९०] एवाधिकारिणी ॥ ६२ ॥

AGHORE is on the tip of the nose; there one should deposit the Trident. The seed-syllable of Sound (rāva) (PHREṀ) (should be deposited) on the tongue and AGHORĀ on the triple seat (āsanatraya). (53)

Having placed MUKHI on the two lips, HRĀṀ and HRĪṀ (correspond) to the two cheeks. Having deposited the letter ṄA on the chin, the letter ÑA (corresponds) to the band (mekhalā) around the throat. (54)

The letter ṆA (is deposited in the energy which is) the first within the Wheel (cakrakādyā), while NA corresponds to the band around the throat. The letter ME corresponds to the Self in the heart, while HŪṀ[16] is in the middle of the vital breath (prāṇa). (55)

Deposit the triad (of syllables) KOṀKAṆI in this way on the two breasts and, having deposited KOṀKAṆA on the stomach, (place) the letter I in the circle of the navel. (56)

HRAUṀ HRAUṀ are (to be placed) on the two hands while KAHA and the word HASA are on the back. Deposit KAHA along with the word HASA on the two shoulders. (57)

Another KAHA is on the pair of arms and the syllable GLŪṀ is in the circle of the Yoni. The word SAHA is with the two hands, while SAMAYĀ corresponds to the fingers of the hand. (58)

BHAIRAVI and AGHORE CCHRĀṀ CCHRĪṀ are on the pair of thighs. KIṆI should be deposited on the knees and shanks and KIṆI (again) on the two feet. VICCE is at the extremity of the toes and Vāgbhava (AIṀ) in the middle of the face. (59-60ab)

From whichever place one starts and performs the deposition by means of the Vidyā, one must again (return) there, that is, the end of the feet, where the recitation (of the Vidyā began). That is the merger (of the Vidyā). The arising and falling away (of the Vidyā) in this way is said to be (its) encapsulated condition (saṁpuṭa). (60cd-61)

This is the Samayā Vidyā that has emerged from the left. She alone has authority over the field of Tadgraha. (62)

विद्यान्यासेन[२९१] सिद्ध्येत[२९२] कूटेनैव[२९३] विधानतः ।
पञ्चोपचारपूजायां मण्डलाग्रे गुरोग्रतः[२९४] ॥ ६३ ॥

विद्यापीठेऽथवा चक्रे यत्र[२९५] क्रमाग्रतः[२९६] कृतम् ।
तत्र तस्य महावस्थाप्रत्ययं[२९७] कौलिकं भवेत् ॥ ६४ ॥

तस्य देव्याश्च[२९८] कारुण्यं[२९९] कुरुते[३००] स्वप्नदर्शनम् ।
सर्वद्वन्द्वविनिर्मुक्तः अचिरात् खेचरं पदम् ॥ ६५ ॥

इत्याद्यावतारे महामन्थानभैरवयज्ञे[३०१] अन्वये सप्तकोटिप्रमाणे मेरुमार्गविनिर्गते
लक्षपादाधिके विद्यापीठमार्गे विमलषट्कनिर्णये कादिभेदे आज्ञापारमेश्वरे[३०२]
स्वामिनीमते श्रीचतुर्विंशत्सहस्रसंहितायां अवाक्रमभाषिते[३०३]
तद्ग्रहसमयविद्याधिकारवर्णनक्रमो[३०४]
नामानन्दः ॥ २३ ॥

One achieves success by the deposition of the Vidyā by means of the Peak (seed-syllables), in accord with the prescribed procedure, in the course of the rite of adoration performed with five sacrificial offerings (pañcopacārapujā) in front of the maṇḍala and the teacher. (63)

(Regardless of) whether (it is) done within the sacred seat of the Vidyā (vidyāpīṭha), in the Wheel or in front of the Krama, there (the adept) shall have the Kaulika experience (pratyaya) of the Great State (mahāvasthā). (64)

And the goddess has compassion (for him and he shall receive) a vision of (her) in his dreams (svapnadarśana). Free of all duality, (he) quickly (attains) the Plane of Flight. (65)

This is the (twenty-third) chapter called the Transmission Concerning the Description of the Authority of Tadgraha and the Samayā Vidyā. It belongs to the primordial descent into the great sacrifice of the Churning Bhairava in the tradition (anvaya) that consists of seventy million (verses) that has emerged on the Path of Meru and (extends) for more than a hundred thousand quarter (verses) along the path of the Seat of Knowledge (vidyāpīṭha). It is the ultimate purport of the Pure Six Thousand (verses) (vimalaṣaṭka) in the division beginning with 'KĀ' in the venerable scripture of twenty-four thousand (verses) (known as) the Svāminīmata of the Supreme Lord's command as uttered within the Tradition of the Mother (avvākrama).

चतुर्विंशानन्द

श्रीनाथ उवाच

श्रुतं वक्रे[१] मया[२] वाक्यं कुमारीखण्डनायिके ।
कथं सा मातृका नाम श्लोकद्वादशभेदिता[३] ।। १ ।।
न ज्ञाता[४] च मया[५] देवि[६] श्लोकार्थं[७] कथय स्फुटम् ।

श्रीवक्रा उवाच[८]

महानन्दविकासेन[९] यत् त्वया पृच्छिता[१०] ह्यहम् ।। २ ।।
तत्सर्वं कथयिष्यामि मातृकाक्रमनिर्णयम् ।

योऽसौ[११] परापरोऽनन्तः[१२] विभुः कारणमव्ययं ।। ३ ।।
प्रशान्तमपरं नाम शान्तातीतमनामयम् ।
पूर्वसंकृत्यमाकारं भैरवस्य महेश्वर[१३] ।। ४ ।।

कल्पे पराम्परे[१४] पूर्वं मन्वन्तरशतैरपि ।
युगैश्चतुरशीतिः[१५] पाषणवत्[१६] या तु संस्थिता[१७] ।। ५ ।।
एकाहं भैरवे यज्ञे भैरव त्वमहं पुनः ।
न स्त्री न पुरुषाकारं नाकारं विद्यते[१८] क्वचित् ।। ६ ।।
शून्याकारे[१९] तमैकत्वे[२०] रमणानन्दचेतसम्[२१] ।
शमनं[२२] कुलसंकाशं किञ्चिज्जानाम्यहं हर ।। ७ ।।

न वाचा श्रुतिचक्षुभ्यां न च बुद्ध्याम्यहं[२३] हर ।
कैवल्यानन्दमाह्लादं[२४] संवर्तान्तं[२५] शतार्धकम् ।। ८ ।।

तस्येच्छा[२६] किञ्चिच्चिन्मात्रं अव्यक्तं व्यक्तिरूपिणम्[२७] ।
तदाहं[२८] विस्मयमापन्ना किमिदं शून्यरूपकम्[२९] ।। ९ ।।

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

The Casket of the Sixfold Deposition.

The Creation and the Production of the Primordial Sound

Śrīnātha said:

O Vakrā, mistress of the Kumārīkhaṇḍa![1] I have heard (your) discourse. (Now tell me) how Mātṛkā, (the energy of the letters of the alphabet,) is conjoined with the Twelve Verses. I have not known (this energy). O goddess, explain the meaning of these Verses clearly. (1-2ab)

The venerable (goddess) Vakrā said:

Questioned by you (and inspired by) the expansion of great bliss, I will tell (you) all this, namely, the teaching concerning the Sequence of Mātṛkā. (2cd-3ab)

O Great Lord, that which is both supreme (transcendent) and inferior (immanent), endless and pervasive, the imperishable cause, extremely tranquil and, free of defects, is also called 'beyond the tranquil', this is the first form of Bhairava to be fashioned.[2] (3cd-4)

In the prior series of Kalpas, for a period of a hundred Manvantaras and eighty-four Yugas and more, it was I who was alone, (inactive) like a stone, in Bhairava's sacrifice. Again, O Bhairava, both you and I bore neither male or female form. (Indeed,) there was no form anywhere. O Hara, within this void form and at one with darkness was the mind of the bliss of the play (of transcendental Being). It was tranquillity (itself), close to Kula, and I knew nothing at all. (5-7)

O Hara, I was not aware of anything through speech, hearing or sight. The fiftyfold joy which is the bliss of liberation (kaivalya) was within the Fire of Destruction (saṁvartā).[3] (8)

Its will is pure consciousness (cinmātra), the Unmanifest whose form is subtly manifest. Then I was overcome with wonder and (asked myself): "What is this voidness?" (9)

इति[३०] मत्वा[३१] गहनं[३२] घोरं भीताहं सुप्तचेतसा ।
प्रविष्टा[३३] भैरवे यज्ञे स्थिताहं पररूपतः ॥ १० ॥

परमाणुस्वरूपेण किञ्चिद्रूपं च सिंहकम् ।
सिंहसंवर्तकं[३४] नाथ व्यावृतं तमसाकुलम् ॥ ११ ॥

अकुलादिकुलं[३५] चैव व्याकुलं कुलकौलिकम् ।
कलनात्[३६] ध्वनिनादान्तं[३७] तन्नादं[३८] पञ्चधागतम् ॥ १२ ॥

तच्च[३९] च वर्णादितत्त्वं च कलानां च महोदयम्[४०] ।
कलाढ्यं[४१] च तथा शान्तं[४२] [४३]सविसर्गादि चालयम्[४४] ॥ १३ ॥
महोग्रं कालिकं[४५] रावं रूपाख्यं[४६] च तथापरम्[४७] ।
कुलावलितयोगेन[४८] विन्यसेत् कुलपद्धतिम्[४९] ॥ १४ ॥

द्वादशानि तु श्लोकानि[५०] कर्णात् कर्णगतानि[५१] च ।
सदोच्चारप्रयोगेन[५२] गृह्णते[५३] साधकोत्तमः ॥ १५ ॥
तस्य देयमिदं[५४] ज्ञानं अन्यथा न कदाचन[५५] ।

पञ्चप्रणवसंघातैः[५६] सामान्यैरेव[५७] भैरव ॥ १६ ॥
हंसाख्यैर्महतैर्दिव्यैः[५८] परामूर्तिरधिष्टितैः[५९] ।
उद्धरेद्[६०] द्वादश[६१] श्लोकान्[६२] षट्कूटाधिष्ठितान्[६३] शुभान्[६४] ॥ १७ ॥

चत्वारः षोडशैर्भेदैस्तथा[६५] षट् नभान्तरे[६६] ।
सृष्टिमध्यगता[६७] ये[६८] च हक्षस्था[६९] द्वयभेदतः[७०] ॥ १८ ॥

कथं युग्मं कथाख्यं च अनङ्गं सृष्टिसंयुतम् ।
तदधो[७१] हनुमान् नाथ रावमार्गसमन्वितम्[७२] ॥ १९ ॥

And, realising that it was terrible and deep, I was frightened and (my) mind slumbered. Having entered into Bhairava's sacrifice I remained there in (my) supreme (form). (10)

And as an atom (of consciousness), the Lion (siṁhaka) (bore) a subtle form. O Lord, the Lion Fire (siṁhasaṁvartaka), full of darkness, became manifest (vyāvṛta).[4] (11)

Kula, (which contains all things) beginning with Akula and which is Kulakaulika, became disturbed.[5] By virtue of (its spontaneous) differentiation (kalana), that Sound (nāda) assumed five forms ending with the Resonance (dhvani) of Sound.[6] (12)

The Vidyā called Twelve Verses

That (Sound) is the primordial principle of the letters, the great arising (mahodaya) of the energies (kalā). Rich with energy and tranquil, it is the (universal) abode possessing emission (visarga) and the rest (of the energies). It is supreme and greatly terrible. Called 'Form' (rūpa), it is the sound (rāva) of Kālikā. (This), the Kula liturgy (kulapaddhati), should be deposited by means of the union enveloped in Kula (kulāvalitayoga).[7] (13-14)

The Twelve Verses have been transmitted by word of mouth.[8] The best of adepts lays hold of them by regular recitation. This knowledge should be given (only) to him and never in any other circumstance.[9] (15-16ab)

O Bhairava, the Twelve Verses,[10] auspicious and sustained by the six Peak (seed-syllables),[11] should be enunciated along with the universal (sāmānya) Five Praṇavas which, called Haṁsa, are powerful, divine and sustained by the Supreme Form (parāmūrti).[12] (16cd-17)

(They are) four along with sixteen divisions, and so too are the six within the Void those that are in the middle of Emanation, and those established within Ha and KṢa are divided in two.[13] (18)

The Seed-syllables linked to the Vidyā called Twelve Verses

The First Syllable

The pair Ka and Tha and that which is called Katha, with Anaṅga (Sa), are conjoined to Emanation (Ḥ). Below that, O Lord, is Hanumān (Kha) endowed with the Path of Sound. (19)

गजेन्द्रशिरसाक्रान्तं बिन्दुनादकलाङ्कितम् ।
आज्ञाज्योतिसमायुक्त[७३] श्लोकद्वादशनिर्णये[७४] ।। २० ।।
द्वितीयमक्षर[७५] प्रोक्तं तृतीयं तु यथा भवेत् ।

व्योमबिन्दुशिरोभिन्न[७६] अग्निवेधकभेदितम् ।। २१ ।।
नादशक्तिकलायुक्तं महोग्रमिति कथ्यते ।
अमृतं स्रवमाण[७७] च शान्तयुक्तं समुच्चरेत्[७८] ।। २२ ।।
द्विरभ्यास[७९] महाशम्भो यावद् वै मातृकाक्षरम्[८०] ।

एतद् विन्यासविज्ञानं परमं देवदुर्लभम् ।। २३ ।।
कुलावलितयोगेन उद्धार्या[८१] कुलपद्धतिः[८२] ।
संहितार्थमिद[८३] सत्यं अकथ्यं तव दर्शितम् ।। २४ ।।

योऽसौ परापरो देवो भैरवो[८४] भवच्छेदकः ।
तस्य इच्छा ह्यनामाख्या किञ्चिच्चेता[८५] चिनोति[८६] यत् ।। २५ ।।

सा च वै व्यापकत्वेन संपूर्णा कौलिनी परा ।
अमा[८७] सूक्ष्मा अनामा च निरानन्दे लयंगता[८८] ।। २६ ।।

सा च वै[८९] भैरवी शान्ता[९०] अनन्तेन विभाजिता[९१] ।
तस्मान्मन्थानभेदेन भेदितं च परापरम् ।। २७ ।।

एवं सृष्टिगतानङ्ग[९२] अनङ्गं कामनाशनम् ।
तच्च[९३] हंस[९४] महात्मान[९५] ज्वलनादमृतोद्भवम्[९६] ।। २८ ।।

Conjoined with the Head of the Lord of Elephants (AI i.e. Ta), marked with Sound (nāda) and the Point and united with the Light of the Command, (this is) said to be the second letter in the teaching concerning the Twelve Verses. (Now I will tell you) how the third should be. (20-21ab)

The head, conjoined with the Point of the Void, united with Fire (Ra) and the Piercer (Ū), endowed with the power of the energy of Sound, is said to be 'greatly terrible' (mahogra). It flows with the nectar (of immortality) and, having conjoined the peaceful (śānta) (transcendent), O Great Śambhu, one should utter (this) the letter of Mātṛkā twice. (21cd-23ab)

This is the supreme knowledge of the deposition, hard to acquire (even) by the gods. The Kula liturgy (kulapaddhati)[14] should (thus) be extracted by means of the union enveloped in Kula (kulāvalitayoga).[15] This is the (entire) purport of (this) scripture (saṁhitā). The truth that cannot be told (to the uninitiated) has been revealed to you. (23cd-24)

The Bhairavī Vidyā

The will (icchā) of the god Bhairava, the destroyer of conditioned existence (bhava), who is both supreme (transcendent) and inferior (immanent), is called Anāmā (the Nameless) and, of subtle consciousness, discerns (cinoti) (reality). (25)

She is the supreme Kaulinī (energy) who, because (she is all-) pervasive, is perfectly complete (saṁpūrṇā). (She is) Amā (the New Moon) and, subtle, is Anāmā (the Nameless) who has dissolved away in the Bliss of Stillness (nirānanda).[16] (26)

She is indeed Bhairavī the Tranquil One (śāntā), conjoined with (Bhairava) the Endless (ananta). Thus, (reality) is divided into supreme (transcendent) and inferior (immanent) by the division (brought about by) the churning (manthāna) (of power and its possessor).[17] (27)

In this way, Anaṅga (Ha), which is the Passion that is the destruction of desire (kāma), is present within emanation (Sa). And that is Haṁsa (the Gander), the Great Soul who is the nectar generated from the (primordial) conflagration (jvalana). (28)

द्वावेतौ[९७] शिवशक्त्याख्यौ[९८] ओतप्रोतं[९९] जगत्त्रयम्[१००] ।
एतद् रहस्यमाख्यातं महामन्थानसंज्ञया ।। २९ ।।

श्रीनाथ उवाच

कथं नाथे[१०१] का[१०२] मे संज्ञा कुत्रोत्पत्तौ[१०३] निरामये[१०४] ।
व्याकुलोऽहं समुत्पन्नो[१०५] निःसंदिग्धं[१०६] वदस्व[१०७] मे ।। ३० ।।

श्रीवक्रा उवाच[१०८]

सरहस्यं कृतं प्रश्नं[१०९] अमोघाज्ञां[११०] कुलेश्वर ।
कथयामि न संदेहो इच्छां कामदुग्धां कलाम्[१११] ।। ३१ ।।

यथाहं चिद्घनानन्दा[११२] आनन्दतनुतां गता[११३] ।
तेन तृप्तिः[११४] पुरास्माकं[११५] भवते[११६] पृथिवी हर[११७] ।। ३२ ।।

पृथिव्याहं[११८] त्वं[११९] महच्छब्दं[१२०] शब्दब्रह्माक्षराणि[१२१] च ।
सा च श्रीशाम्भवेच्छाख्या[१२२] सुशान्तमिति[१२३] लक्षणम्[१२४] ।। ३३ ।।

अहं काचित्[१२५] कला काली विकला कुलशाम्भवी ।
इच्छा ह्यहं परोत्पन्ना अव्यक्ता व्यक्तरूपिणी ।। ३४ ।।

कुलाली कुलकौलेशी[१२६] अकुलाद्[१२७] व्यापकी[१२८] भवेत् ।
व्यापकत्वेन रूपेण संयोगादुपजायते ।। ३५ ।।

संयोगेन तु संवर्ता निरावर्तात् प्रवर्तिता[१२९] ।
प्रथमं च अनामाख्यं नित्यं च शिरशेखरम्[१३०] ।। ३६ ।।
महाभैरवज्योतिश्च[१३१] व्यापकं पश्चिमे गृहे ।
एवं[१३२] षट्कक्रम त्वं[१३३] हि विद्या[१३४] व्योमेन[१३५] वेष्टिता[१३६] ।। ३७ ।।

These two are called Śiva and Śakti. The triple universe is woven warp and woof (by them).[18] This is the secret called the `Great Churning' (mahāmanthāna).[19] (29)

Śrīnātha said:

O Mistress (nāthā), what is my name, how and where (am I) during the immaculate creation? I have become disturbed; tell me (the truth) that is free of doubt. (30)

The venerable (goddess) Vakrā said:

O Lord of Kula, (you have) asked a question (the reply to which) is a secret. I will tell (you), without any doubt, about the unfailing Command which is the (divine) will, the milch cow of desire and energy. (31)

Just as I, the bliss of dense (uninterrupted) consciousness, have assumed a body of bliss, in the same way, O Hara, our satisfaction formerly became the earth. (32)

I am the earth, you are the Great Word (mahaccabda) and the letters of the Word Absolute (śabdabrahman). She is called the will of the venerable Śāmbhava (absolute) and her characterizing mark is her extreme tranquillity. (33)

I am a certain (subtle) energy (kalā), (the goddess) Kālī Who, particularly powerful (vikalā), is Kulaśāmbhavī. I am (the divine) will, come forth as the Supreme (goddess) (Parā). (I am) unmanifest and my nature is (all that is) manifest.[20] (34)

Kulālī, the mistress of the Kulakaula, is the pervasive (power generated from) Akula. (She) is born from the conjunction (saṁyoga) that takes place by virtue of (her) pervasive nature.[21] (35)

(Thus) Saṁvartā has issued forth out of the immobile (nirāvarta) by the conjunction (of Śiva and Śakti). 1) The first is called the Nameless, 2) (then comes) the Eternal (nitya), 3) the Peak of the Head, 4) the Great Bhairava, 5) the Light and 6) the Pervasive One in the Western House. In this way are you the Vidyā (says the god) in the sequence of the group of six, enveloped within the Void (vyoman) (of transcendence).[22] (36-37)

उदय[१३७] विमलं नाम अमृतं[१३८] बिन्दुभैरवम्[१३९] ।
संयोगेन समुत्पन्ना तदान्ते[१४०] द्वादशः[१४१] स्मृताः ।। ३८ ।।

मम मूर्तिगता[१४२] कुर्यात् सृष्टिहेतूपलक्षणाम्[१४३] ।
अहं सा च[१४४] परा चैका अपरा सिद्धिसागरे[१४५] ।। ३९ ।।

सागरं[१४६] मन्मथं[१४७] नाम कुलाकुलकुलान्तगम्[१४८] ।
त्रिकुलं त्रीणि तत्त्वानि[१४९] त्रिधा मन्त्री[१५०] च[१५१] शक्तयः ।। ४० ।।
त्रीणि[१५२] सिद्धास्त्रयस्त्रोतस्त्रितत्त्वं[१५३] त्रिपथान्तरम्[१५४] ।
तत्परं च महास्थानं मया व्याप्तं तु सागरम् ।। ४१ ।।

सागरं शशिसूर्यान्तं अखण्डमिति मण्डलम् ।
अखण्डमपरं[१५५] चैव अनन्तश्चाक्षयं तथा ।। ४२ ।।
अकुलं पञ्चमं नाथ विज्ञेयाः[१५६] कुलभूषणाः[१५७] ।
एवं नादः समुत्पन्नः पञ्चधा तु क्रमागतः ।। ४३ ।।

क्रमात् सृष्टिः[१५८] स्थिता योनौ एका एव ह्यधोमुखी ।
सद्भावा[१५९] सा[१६०] महामूर्तिर्ज्योतिरूपा[१६१] मनोन्मनी ।। ४४ ।।

उन्मना मनवेगेन[१६२] शक्तिः कुण्डलिनी कला ।
अमा नाम कला काली[१६३] स्थिताहता[१६४] च भैरव ।। ४५ ।।

अस्याश्चैवासनं[१६५] पात्रं [१६६]इडानामेन[१६७] गीयते ।
इडा सा भैरवी शान्ता[१६८] शक्तिपात्रमुदाहृता[१६९] ।। ४६ ।।

उदय[१७०] शशिबिम्बस्य[१७१] सूर्यं मुञ्चति भास्वरम् ।
तच्च बिन्दु[१७२] घनं[१७३] घोरं घर्घरामृतसंभवम् ।। ४७ ।।

शाम्भवं षट्कभेदेन[१७४] कला कलति[१७५] कौलिनी ।
मफ्रेखसहरावेण[१७६] स्थिताग्निप्रकृतिरूपिणी[१७७] ।। ४८ ।।

The arising (udaya) (of the group of six) is called the Pure (vimala) Nectar, which is the Bhairava of the Point. By the conjunction (of these principles) the Twelve are then said to have arisen at the end. (38)

She is the sign of the cause of emanation and should be placed within (AIṀ, which is) my Form (mūrti), (says the goddess). I am she who is the one supreme (goddess) (Parā) and also the inferior (immanent one) in the (Point which is) the Ocean of Accomplishments (siddhisāgara). (39)

The Ocean is (the ocean) of passion (manmatha) located at the end of the Kula of Kulākula. Three are the Kulas, three are the Principles (tattva), threefold is the reciter of mantra and (three) the energies, three the Siddhas; (there are) three Currents, three Principles and three paths. Beyond that is the Great Place (mahāsthāna), which is the Ocean pervaded by me.[23] (40-41)

The Ocean is located between the Sun (SA) and Moon (HA); it is the Unbroken (akhaṇḍa) Maṇḍala. The Unbroken (AIṀ), the Inferior (HRĪṀ), the Endless (ŚRĪṀ), the Imperishable (KHPHREṀ) and Akula (HSRŪAUṀ) as the fifth: these, O Lord, should be known to be the Ornaments of Kula. Sound (nāda) that has arisen in this way has entered the sequence (krama) fivefold.[24] (42-43)

Emanation (sṛṣṭi) (generated) in due order (kramāt) abides alone in the Yoni, facing downwards (as the syllable AIṀ). (This energy is) the Transmental (manonmanī), the essential being (of all things) (sadbhāvā) and the Great Icon (mahāmūrti) (of the goddess) whose form is Light. (44)

(She is) the Transmental who, as the force of the mind (manovega), is the energy Kuṇḍalinī; (she is) Kālī, the power of the New Moon (amākalā) who, O Bhairava, abides as Unstruck Sound. (45)

And (this) is her throne. It is the vessel called 'Iḍā'.[25] Iḍā is Bhairavī who, tranquil, is said to be the Vessel of Energy (śaktipātra). (46)

The dawn (udaya) of the Lunar Orb releases the brilliant Sun. That is the Point, dense and terrific, born from the nectar of the jar.[26] (47)

The energy (kalā) Kaulinī differentiates (kalati) the Śāmbhava (state) as the sixfold division. She abides as the nature of Fire, by means of the Sound (rāva) MA PHRE KHA SA HA.[27] (48)

सत्त्वरजतमैकत्वे[१७८] स्थिता व्योमान्तवर्तिनी[१७९] ।
व्योम्न्यादितत्त्वसंघात[१८०] तत्त्वाद् वर्णा ह्यजायन्त[१८१] ।। ४९ ।।

आक्रान्ताश्च[१८२] कलैर्ज्ञेया:[१८३] पञ्चकादिस्वभावत:[१८४] ।
पञ्च भूता:[१८५] स्वराः पञ्च सूक्ष्मशाम्भवसंभवा:[१८६] ।। ५० ।।

शाम्भव[१८७] सरहस्येद[१८८] रेफखसहकारकम्[१८९] ।
तस्यैव वक्त्रमाद्यं च अनामानामसंयुतम् ।। ५१ ।।

यथा सृष्टिक्रमेणोक्त[१९०] तथा शृणु महेश्वर ।

व्योम[१९१] जीवसमायुक्तं वह्निरर्घीशसंयुत:[१९२] ।। ५२ ।।
अनुग्रहशिराक्रान्तं सूक्ष्मनादेन[१९३] भेदितम्[१९४] ।
बिन्दुचन्द्रकलाक्रान्त[१९५] अक्षर[१९६] भैरव[१९७] हर ।। ५३ ।।

शून्य[१९८] खेचरसंयुक्तं फरमन्ते समाश्रितम् ।
एकपादेन संभिन्नं नादबिन्दुकलाङ्कितम्[१९९] ।। ५४ ।।
एषा[२००] सा खेचरीविद्या त्रैलोक्याकर्षणी परा ।

यसमध्यगत[२०१] देवं हधमध्यगत[२०२] पुनः ।। ५५ ।।
णटमध्यगत[२०३] गृह्य[२०४] तदन्तरगत[२०५] विदुः ।
गौरीशिखरमाक्रान्तं इन्दुबिन्दुकलान्वितम् ।। ५६ ।।
कथिता शाङ्करी विद्या तृतीया कुलनायिका ।

चतुर्थी[२०६] मायया[२०७] नाम हर व्योमासनस्थिता[२०८] ।। ५७ ।।
अग्निधामेन[२०९] संभिन्ना इ—उ—मध्यगतेन च[२१०] ।
बिन्दु—अर्धकलायुक्ता रौद्ररूपा च[२११] अम्बिका ।। ५८ ।।

She abides within the Void in the unity of sattva, rajas and tamas. Within the Void is the aggregate of the First Principle (āditattva), and from (that) Principle arose the letters. (49)

One should know that (the letters) are pervaded by energies, which are initially (found) in groups of five. Five are the gross elements and five the vowels, products of the subtle Śāmbhava (state). (50)

This is the secret of the Śāmbhava (state) that generates RE PHA KHA HA SA. That is its primary face conjoined with Anāmā and Anāma (anāmānāmasaṁyuta).[28] (51)

Listen, O Maheśvara, as it is explained (to you) according to the sequence of emanation.[29] (52ab)

Bhairava (HSRŪAUṀ)

The Void (Ha) conjoined with the Individual Soul (Sa) along with Fire (Ra) conjoined with the Lord of the Offering (Ū), pervaded by the head of Grace (AU) and conjoined with subtle Sound (nāda), pervaded by the Point and the energy of the Moon: (this,) O Hara, is the (seed-) syllable of Bhairava. (52cd-53)

Khecarī Vidyā (KHPHREṀ)

The Void (Kha) conjoined with the Skyfarer located within PHARAM, conjoined with the One-footed (E) and marked with the energy of Sound and the Point: this is Khecarī Vidyā, the supreme (Vidyā), which attracts the triple world. (54-55ab)

Śaṅkarī Vidyā (HŚRĪṀ)

(Extract) the god who is between Ya and Sa (Ha) and then (the letter) between Ha and Dha (Śa). One must lay hold of (the letter) between Ṇa and Ṭa (Ra), which (the wise know) is within it. It is pervaded by the Peak of Gaurī (Ī) and endowed with the energy of the lunar Point. (Thus) Śāṅkarī Vidyā, the third mistress of Kula, has been explained.[30] (55cd-57ab)

Raudrī (HRĪṀ)

O Hara, the fourth (Vidyā) is the one that goes by the name of Māyā, located on the seat of the Sky, conjoined with the Abode of Fire (Ra) and (Ī, the letter) between I and U. Conjoined with the Point and the Half Moon (ardhakalā), (her) form is fierce (raudra) and (she is) the mother. (57cd-58)

अकथ्यमातृका शक्तिः[२१२] हसफ्रेकारभेदिता[२१३] ।
नादबिन्दुकलायुक्ता वाग्भवाकाररूपिणी ॥ ५९ ॥

कौलिनी कुलनाथानां सिद्धानां ज्ञानभूमिका ।
शाम्भवाः[२१४] प्रणवाः पञ्च षष्ठं चैतन्यमुत्तमम् ॥ ६० ॥

षडङ्गवक्त्रसंयुक्ता पूर्णा देवी परापरा ।
षड्बीजानुक्रमेणैव[२१५] उच्चरेद्[२१६] गुरूपदेशतः[२१७] ॥ ६१ ॥

द्विषट्कदिव्ययोगेन श्लोकद्वादशपद्धतिम्[२१८] ।
यो वेत्ति महतीं[२१९] शम्भो श्लोकार्थपदसंयुताम्[२२०] ॥ ६२ ॥
सोऽपि एकेन जन्मेन[२२१] कौलिकाज्ञाधरो[२२२] भवेत् ।

यं यं[२२३] स्पृशति हस्तेन यं यं पश्यति चक्षुषा ॥ ६३ ॥
यं यं स्मरति भावेन सर्वं[२२४] संपद्यते क्षणात् ।

दुष्टान्यनेकक्रूराणि[२२५] भूचरोरगराक्षसाः[२२६] ॥ ६४ ॥
तस्यालोकनमात्रेण पलायन्ति[२२७] दशो दिशः[२२८] ।

इति सत्यं मया प्रोक्तं श्लोकार्थमतमुत्तमम्[२२९] ॥ ६५ ॥
ये[२३०] न्यस्यन्ति[२३१] त्रिकालज्ञास्ते[२३२] यान्ति परमां गतिम्[२३३] ।

श्रीवक्रा उवाच[२३४]

अथ चान्यक्रमं[२३५] वक्ष्ये श्लोकद्वादशके[२३६] स्थिताः ॥ ६६ ॥
द्वादश[२३७] सिद्धयोगिन्यो[२३८] अभिधानेन[२३९] ताः[२४०] शृणु ।

Kaulinī (AIṀ)

(She is) the inexplicable energy of the letters (mātṛkā) (Kha)[31] and is conjoined with the letters HSPHRE. Her form is Vāgbhava[32] and she is endowed with the energy of Sound and the Point. (59)

(She is the goddess) Kaulinī, the plane of knowledge of the Siddhas who are the Lords of Kula (kulanātha). The Five Praṇavas are Śāmbhava; the sixth is excellent consciousness (caitanya).[33] (60)

The goddess Pūrṇā (the Full Moon), endowed with six limbs and faces, is both supreme (transcendent) and inferior (immanent). (Her Vidyā) should be recited in accord with the sequence of the six seed-syllables following the instructions of the teacher.[34] (61)

O Śambhu, also he who knows the liturgy of the Twelve Verses by means of the divine union (yoga) of the two groups of six – namely, the great (Vidyā) along with the parts (that is, seed-syllables, that denote) the realities of the verses (ślokārthapada) – becomes the bearer of the Kaulika Command in (just) one lifetime. (62-63ab)

Whatever he touches with (his) hand, whatever he sees with the eye and whatever he recollects with feeling – everything is attained in a moment. (63cd-64ab)

Evil and cruel beings of many kinds, demons, snakes and animals that move on the earth flee in all directions at his mere sight. (64cd-65ab)

I have spoken the most excellent truth, the teaching concerning the meaning of the (Twelve) Verses. Those who deposit it know the three times and attain the supreme state. (65cd-66ab)

The Twelve Yoginīs of the Twelve Verses and the Deposition on the Twelve Limbs

The venerable (goddess) said:

Now I will tell (you) another sequence. There are twelve Siddhayoginīs present within the Twelve Verses. Listen to (who) they are by name. (66cd-67ab)

नन्दा भद्रा जया काली कराली विकृतानना ।। ६७ ।।
क्रोष्टुकी भीमभद्रा[२४१] च वायुवेगा हयानना ।
गम्भीरा घोषणी चैव योगिन्यो द्वादश[२४२] स्मृताः ।। ६८ ।।

कृत्वादौ वाग्भवास्त्रीणि[२४३] अन्ते तेऽपि विलोमतः ।
संपुटेन युता देव्यो[२४४] द्वादशाङ्गप्रसिद्धये[२४५] ।। ६९ ।।

नन्दा शिरसि विन्यस्या[२४६] भद्राख्या[२४७] च ललाटके ।
जया च दक्षिणे नेत्रे काली चैव तु वामके ।। ७० ।।
कराली दक्षिणे कर्णे वामे च विकृतानना ।
क्रोष्टुकी[२४८] नासिकाग्रे तु भीमरुद्रा तथा मुखे ।। ७१ ।।
वायुवेगा गले चैव हृदयस्था हयानना[२४९] ।
गम्भीरा नाभिमध्ये[२५०] तु[२५१] घोषिन्या गुह्यमध्यतः ।। ७२ ।।
एव[२५२] न्यासं तु देवीनां दिव्यदेहकरं परम् ।
एतदावरणं न्यासं द्वादशाङ्गमुदाहृतम् ।। ७३ ।।
समयस्य तु सिंहस्य[२५३] योगिन्यो द्वादश[२५४] स्मृताः ।

एतन्न्यास[२५५] पुरा कृत्वा यत्र यत्र[२५६] व्रजेन्नरः ।। ७४ ।।
तत्र तत्र महालाभं ज्ञानं लभति[२५७] पुष्कलम्[२५८] ।
मेलकं योगिनीसार्धं[२५९] गुप्तानां[२६०] च महेश्वर ।। ७५ ।।
द्वादशाङ्गप्रभावेन ज्ञानं ताः[२६१] कथयन्ति हि ।
ददन्ति चरुकं दिव्यं प्रसन्नास्त्वरितां गतिम्[२६२] ।। ७६ ।।
दिव्यरूपधरो[२६३] योगी यदि गुप्तो[२६४] महेश्वर ।
पुनरन्यक्रमं[२६५] वक्ष्ये न्यासं क्षेत्रपरिग्रहम्[२६६] ।। ७७ ।।
अमृतादि[२६७] च जीवान्तं[२६८] हक्षसंज्ञासमायुतम्[२६९] ।
तावन्न्यासं[२७०] प्रकर्तव्यं शब्दराशिक्रमेण तु ।। ७८ ।।
उपदेशं[२७१] प्रवक्ष्यामि परं देव्याः[२७२] परिग्रहम् ।

दीपनं च प्रकर्तव्यं वर्णे[२७३] वर्णे पृथक् पृथक् ।। ७९ ।।
हक्ष संज्ञाद्वयं स्थानं प्राणं[२७४] क्रोधं[२७५] च खे बलम्[२७६] ।

1) Nandā, 2) Bhadrā, 3) Jayā (Victory), 4) Kālī, 5) Karālī (Big Teeth), 6) Vikṛtānanā (Deformed Face), 7) Kroṣṭukī (She-wolf), 8) Bhīmabhadrā (Terribly Auspicious), 9) Vāyuvegā (Force of the Wind), 10) Hayānanā (Horse Face), 11) Gambhīrā (Profound) and 12) Ghoṣaṇī (Howler) are said to be the twelve Yoginīs. (67cd-68)

Having placed three Vāgbhavas at the beginning and also at the end in reverse order, the goddesses are encapsulated in order to form the twelve limbs.[35] (69)

One should deposit 1) Nandā on the head, 2) the one called Bhadrā on the forehead, 3) Jayā on the right eye, 4) Kālī on the left one, 5) Karālī on the right ear and 6) Vikṛtānanā on the left one, 7) Kroṣṭukī on the tip of the nose, 8) Bhīmarudrā on the mouth and 9) Vāyuvegā on the throat; 10) Hayānanā resides in the heart, 11) Gambhīrā is in the middle of the navel and 12) Ghoṣiṇyā is in the middle of the genitals. In this way the supreme deposition of the goddesses generates a divine body. This, the deposition of the encompassing host (āvaraṇa), is called the Twelve Limbs. (Thus) the Yoginīs of the Lion of the Rule are said to be twelve.[36] (70-74ab)

Wherever a man goes, having first performed this deposition, he obtains extensive knowledge and great gain. O Maheśvara, (he achieves) union with the secret Yoginīs and, by the power of the twelve limbs (of the Vidyā), they impart knowledge to him. Pleased, they give (him) the divine sacrificial pap and quick progress. O Maheśvara, the yogi bears a divine form if (he keeps himself) concealed. (74cd-77ab)

The Deposition of the Enclosure of the Field

Once more, I will explain another sequence, that of the deposition of the Enclosure of the Field (kṣetraparigraha). Beginning with Nectar (A) and ending with the Individual Soul (Sa) conjoined with the letters Ha and KṢa, one should perform this deposition in accord with the sequence of the Assembly of Sounds (śabdarāśi). I will impart the supreme teaching (concerning) the enclosure (parigraha) of the goddess.[37] (77cd-79ab)

One should energize (dīpaṇa) each letter separately. Ha and KṢa are the two terms,[38] the place is the vital breath (Ha) and Anger (KṢa) is the power within the Void (khe balam). (70cd-80ab)

ताभ्यां न दीपनं देयं स्वभावेनैव[२७७] दीपिताः[२७८] ॥ ८० ॥
वर्णदीप्तात्मकं[२७९] पिण्डं आदिकादिक्रमेण तु ।

आदिकादिक्रमं[२८०] क्षेत्रं परादेवीपरिग्रहम्[२८१] ॥ ८१ ॥
दीपमानन्दयोगं[२८२] च शक्तेर्ज्ञेयं[२८३] परिग्रहम् ।

आदौ वै स्वरचक्रं तु[२८४] तत्त्वषोडशनिर्णयम् ॥ ८२ ॥
ये च उक्ता ककाराद्या जीवं ते[२८५] सर्वदेहिनाम्[२८६] ।
विसर्गेण तु निष्पत्तिः[२८७] एतत् क्षेत्रपरिग्रहम्[२८८] ॥ ८३ ॥

क्रोधः प्राणकला चोक्ता रुद्रशक्त्या च वेष्टिता[२८९] ।
ताभ्यां संयोगकरणं[२९०] गुरुवक्त्रात् समभ्यसेत् ॥ ८४ ॥

सृष्टिन्यायेन[२९१] मूर्धादिन्यासं[२९२] क्षेत्रपरिग्रहम् ।
क्षेत्रपरिग्रहे[२९३] हीने[२९४] मर्त्यैः साध्यं न[२९५] सिद्ध्यति ॥ ८५ ॥
तेषां तु साधनार्थाय आख्यातं[२९६] च परिग्रहम् ।

अनेनाभ्यसिते देव आज्ञायामभिषेचनम् ॥ ८६ ॥
अभ्यासाद् हि मासैकेन[२९७] प्रत्ययं[२९८] संप्रवर्तते ।
न शृणोति न पश्येत[२९९] तदा[३००] क्षेत्रपरिग्रहम् ॥ ८७ ॥

अतः परं प्रवक्ष्यामि अधिकारं[३०१] पुनस्त्रयं[३०२] ।
येन विज्ञातमात्रेण[३०३] अधिकारः प्रवर्तते ॥ ८८ ॥[३०४]
उलीनां[३०५] त्रितयं देव ज्येष्ठं[३०६] मध्यं कनीयसम्[३०७] ।

बालक्रमं तु कौमारं वृद्धमेव क्रमत्रयम्[३०८] ॥ ८९ ॥
तेषां[३०९] कूटत्रयं शम्भो परादेहाद् विनिर्गतम् ।

One should inflame (the letters) with these two who are in this way energized by their own nature. An Aggregate (piṇḍa) is (a seed-syllable) energized by a letter in accord with the sequence beginning with A (i.e. the vowels) and that which begins with Ka (i.e. the consonants). (80cd-81ab)

The field is in the sequence beginning with A and Ka. It is the form of the goddess. The flame (dīpa) is the Yoga of Bliss and should be known to be the form (parigraha) of energy (śakti). (81cd-82ab)

At the beginning comes the Wheel of the Vowels, which is the teaching of the sixteen principles (tattva). (The letters of the series) beginning with the letter Ka (i.e. the consonants) are said to be the living soul (jīva) of all embodied beings. Generation (niṣpatti) takes place by means of Emission (visarga).[39] This is the Enclosure of the Field. (82cd-83)

Anger (KṢa) is said to be the energy of the vital breath (Ha) that is enveloped with the energy of Rudra (AIṀ).[40] By means of these two, practice the instrument of conjunction (according to the method learnt) from the teacher's mouth. (84)

The Form of the Field is a deposition that begins from the head (and is performed) according to the order of emanation. Without the Form of the Field, mortals do not achieve (their) goal. (Therefore,) the Form has been explained so that they may have a means (to do so). (85-86ab)

O god, one who has practiced by this (means achieves) consecration (abhiṣecana) in the Command. The sign of accomplishment (pratyaya) comes about after practicing for one month. The Form of the Field (is realised) when (the yogi) neither sees nor hears.[41] (86cd-87)

The Deposition of the Triple Authority

Again, after this, I will tell (you) of the triple authority merely by knowing which (one has) authority. The triad of lineages (uli) (consists of) the Eldest, the Middle One and the Youngest. (88-89ab)

The Transmission (krama) of the Child, the Youth and the Aged is the triple Transmission. O Śambhu, the triad of their three Peak (seed-syllables) has emerged from the body (of the) supreme (goddess) (Parā). (89cd-90ab)

प्राणात्माद्यन्तनिकरं[३१०] आदिस्थं च नितम्बकम् ।। ९० ।।
वामस्तनं तथा कण्ठं दण्डं च स्कन्धदक्षिणम्[३११] ।
पुनः प्राणं पुनर्दण्डं[३१२] क्षीरमेकत्र[३१३] पिण्डितम् ।। ९१ ।।
एवमेकादशा रुद्रा एकत्र विनियोजिताः ।

रुद्रकूटं समाख्यातं खं चन्द्रार्धविभेदितम्[३१४] ।। ९२ ।।
दीपितं छिन्नमुण्डेन[३१५] एतद्[३१६] वृद्धक्रमोद्धृतम् ।

तदेव[३१७] क्षीरनिर्मुक्तं नासिकया[३१८] विभेदितम् ।। ९३ ।।
कौमारक्रमकूटेदमाख्यातं[३१९] तव सुन्दर ।

तच्चैव[३२०] चैव नासया रिक्तं वामकुण्डलभेदितम् ।। ९४ ।।
तृतीयं[३२१] च कनिष्ठं च बालक्रममुदाहृतम् ।
ओलित्रितयविन्यासं[३२२] कुर्यात् कूटत्रयं गुरुः[३२३] ।। ९५ ।।

ज्येष्ठं च विन्यसेच्चक्रे भ्रूमध्ये कोपमण्डले[३२४] ।
मध्यमं[३२५] नाभिदेशे तु कनिष्ठं कामरूपतः[३२६] ।। ९६ ।।

त्रिभिरौलिक्रमे[३२७] जाता ये शिष्याः[३२८] सिद्धसन्ततौ[३२९] ।
तेषां तु त्रिविधं न्यासं आख्यातं सततं हितम् ।। ९७ ।।
क्रमेणानेन देवेश इत्याज्ञा पारमेश्वरी ।

तत्क्षणात् तत्र[३३०] तच्छापं[३३१] क्रमं तत्र परांमुखम् ।। ९८ ।।
स्वतुल्यां गुरुडद्यं (?)[३३२] तु निर्बीजं पूजयन्ति ये ।
संसारे वर्तते[३३३] भूयः[३३४] संसारान्न निवर्तते ।। ९९ ।।

न तेषां दीपनं किञ्चित्[३३५] शाम्भवकूटदीपिताः[३३६] ।
तस्मात् कूटस्थविन्यासं[३३७] त्रिधा मन्त्रक्रमोद्धृतम् ।। १०० ।।

The Self (Sa), the vital breath (Ha) (and) the aggregate of the beginning and end (of the consonants) (KṢa) (are extracted) (then), in the beginning (of the following series is) the hip (Ma), the left breast (La), the throat (Va), the stick (Ra), the right shoulder (Bha), again the vital breath (Ha) and again the stick (Ra) along with the milk (Ā), (all) put together in one place. In this way the eleven Rudras are (all) applied in one place.[42] (90cd-92ab)

It is called Rudra's Peak (seed-syllable). The Sky (Kha) conjoined with the Half Moon and energized by the Severed Head (chinnamuṇda)[43] is extracted from the Transmission of the Aged. (92cd-93ab)

The same (seed-syllable) devoid of milk (Ā) and conjoined with the nose (Ṇa) is, O fair one, the Peak (seed-syllable) of the Transmission of the Youth. (And so) this (too) has been told to you. (93cd-94ab)

The same (seed-syllable) without the nose (Ṇa) and conjoined with the left earring (Ū) is the third (syllable) which is that of the Youngest, said to be the Transmission of the Child. The teacher should perform the deposition of the triple Lineage and form the three Peak (seed-syllables). (94cd-95)

The Aged should be deposited in the wheel between the eyebrows which is the Circle of Wrath (kopamaṇḍala). The Middle One (should be deposited) in the location of the navel and the Youngest in Kāmarūpa (i.e. the genitals). (96)

The threefold deposition, which is always beneficial, has been explained in this sequence, O Lord of the gods. This is the Command of the goddess. (It belongs to) those disciples who have arisen in the Transmission of the Lineages (olikrama) in the Line of Siddhas by means of these three (seed-syllables). (97-98ab)

Those who worship (a lineage that is) without seed-syllables are cursed there that very instant and the Transmission there is averse (to them) * * * * * (?) (He who commits this transgression) returns again into the world of transmigratory existence and is not freed from it. (98cd-99)

There is no (ulterior process required) to energize those (seed-syllables already) energized by the Śāmbhava Peak (syllables). Therefore, the threefold deposition based on (these) Peak (syllables) is extracted from the sequence of mantras. (100)

विपर्यायक्रमेणैव ते च सिद्धास्त्रिभिः[३३८] पुनः[३३९] ।
ओकारश्च[३४०] षकारश्च मिकारश्च त्रि–उलिकाः[३४१] ।। १०१ ।।
नायकास्तत्र विन्यस्य[३४२] तेषां[३४३] पिण्डं[३४४] स्वरूपतः ।

उपदेशेन विन्यासं करोत्यावेशमुत्तमम्[३४५] ।। १०२ ।।
कनिष्ठं मध्यमं ज्येष्ठं मध्यमं योनिमध्यतः[३४६] ।
अपरं यत् कनिष्ठं च योनिमध्ये[३४७] तृतीयकम्[३४८] ।। १०३ ।।
एवं क्रमेण विन्यासं न कुर्यादपि चान्यथा ।
अधिकारत्रयं[३४९] शम्भो ज्ञात्वा यजनमारभेत्[३५०] ।। १०४ ।।

रत्नपञ्चकविन्यासं[३५१] वक्ष्याम्याहमतः[३५२] परम् ।
सिद्धसंकेतसिद्धानां प्रोक्तं सर्वत्र पञ्चकम् ।। १०५ ।।

तृतीयं दशनं देव्यास्तस्यात्मानं[३५३] हृदि पुनः ।
नितम्बं च शिखा तस्या दक्षस्तनविभेदितम् ।। १०६ ।।
वामकुण्डलसंपूर्णं[३५४] खशक्तिशिवभेदितम्[३५५] ।

रत्नपञ्चकमाख्यातं प्रोक्तं सर्वजनप्रियम्[३५६] ।। १०७ ।।
ओषमैत्रचसिद्धानां[३५७] सिद्धं ह्यमरिकाक्रमम्[३५८] ।

लाभ्यं[३५९] तेन च गूढार्थं प्रकटं कुलकौलिकम्[३६०] ।। १०८ ।।
कर्मक्षयान्महादेव विद्येयं[३६१] पञ्चधा भवेत्[३६२] ।

सेव्या सन्ताने[३६३] सततं[३६४] ततः कर्मारिहो भवेत्[३६५] ।। १०९ ।।
रत्नाद्यं[३६६] यत् परं पिण्डं तच्च[३६७] आधारमण्डले[३६८a] ।
चतुर्थं कण्ठदेशे तु पञ्चमं तुर्यमण्डले ।। ११० ।।

Furthermore, there are the three Siddhas in reverse order. (The Siddhas) of the three lineages (are denoted by) the letters O (for Oḍḍīśa), ṢA (for Ṣaṣthīśa) and MI (for Mitreśa). They are the leaders there (of the three lineages) and their (mantric syllabic) form (piṇḍa) is to be deposited according to (their) essential nature. (101-102ab)

The deposition (performed) according to the teaching brings about the most excellent form of possession (āveśa). (The lineages are those of) the Youngest, the Middle One and the Oldest. The Middle One is in the centre of the Yoni. The other one, the Youngest, which is the third, (is also) in the middle of the Yoni. One should perform the deposition in this order and not in any other way. O Śambhu, once know the triple authority, one should commence the sacrifice. (102cd-104)

The Deposition of the Five Jewels

After this, I will explain the deposition of the Five Jewels.[44] (This) Pentad is everywhere said to belong to the Siddhas of the Convention of Siddhas (siddhasaṁketa). (105)

(Extract) the third tooth of the goddess (Ga) and (the following letter) again is her Self (Sa) in the heart (Pa). Her buttock (Ma) and topknot (Na), conjoined with the right breast (Cha), filled with the left earring (Ū) and conjoined with the Void of Śakti and Śiva (Ṁ).[45] (106-107ab)

The Five Jewels, said to be loved by all, have been explained. The transmission of Amarikā (the Immortal One) – which belongs to the Siddhas (called) O (for Oḍḍiśanātha), ṢA (for Ṣaṣṭinātha), Maitra and CA (for Caryānātha) – has been accomplished. (107cd-108ab)

The profound meaning made manifest (prakaṭa) of the Kulakaula (teaching) can be acquired by means of this. O Maheśvara, (this) fivefold Vidyā operates by the destruction of Karma. (This Vidyā) should always be practiced (sevyā) within the Tradition (santāna); (thereby one becomes) a destroyer of enemies. (108cd-109ab)

The first Jewel, which is the supreme seed-syllable (piṇḍa), is located in the Circle of the Foundation (ādhāramaṇḍala). The fourth is located in the throat and the fifth is in the Circle of the Fourth State (turyamaṇḍala).[46] (109cd-110)

एकवीरान्[३६८b] न्यसेत् पञ्च न तेषां दीपनं क्वचित्[३६९] ।
ऐंकारान्तरयोगेन[३७०] भगमध्ये लयंगताः ॥ १११ ॥
क्षेत्रस्था विन्यसेत् पञ्च स्वभावेन च दीपिताः[३७१] ।

चिरायुर्न्यासमात्रेण[३७२] अच्छिद्रो भवते नरः ॥ ११२ ॥
दिव्यपीठपुरक्षोभं वीरसिद्धिमवाप्नुयात्[३७३] ।

प्राप्नोति विविधान् भोगान् वीरैः पञ्चाशद्भिः[३७४] सह ॥ ११३ ॥
यद्यावर्तयते देव स्मरणात् पठनादपि[३७५] ।
सर्वसिद्ध्यालयं तस्य योगिनस्तु[३७६] प्रवर्तते ॥ ११४ ॥
दिव्यदृष्टिः[३७७] पुरक्षोभं सिद्धिः पञ्चाश्रितेन[३७८] तु ।

दशलक्षकृते जाप्ये[३७९] तीव्राज्ञा संप्रवर्तते ॥ ११५ ॥
पञ्चरत्नेन संसिद्धिः[३८०] निर्वाणं प्राप्यते पदम् ।

मतार्थं पूर्वतो ज्ञात्वा मन्त्रपदं[३८१] स्फुटम्[३८२] ॥ ११६ ॥
एतद् वै[३८३] कौलिकं सूत्रं षोढान्यासेन[३८४] वेष्टितम्[३८५] ।

षोडशान्वयमन्त्रौघं[३८६] क्रमं षोडशरूपिणम् ॥ ११७ ॥
एतद्[३८७] विमलविज्ञानं[३८८] कुलमार्गविनिर्गतम् ।

कुलं च षोडशैर्भेदैः सन्तानं[३८९] षोडशैः[३९०] पुनः ॥ ११८ ॥
षोडशाज्ञाप्रसूतिस्तु न्यासमञ्जूषकोद्धृतम्[३९१] ।

गोपनीयं प्रयत्नेन तान्त्रिकानां न दर्शयेत् ॥ ११९ ॥
एवं प्रभावमाख्यातं[३९२] षोढान्यासस्य सुन्दर ।

Deposit the five solitary ones (ekavīra) (directly just as they are). They (do not need to be) energized in any circumstance. One should deposit the five (Jewels) that, energized by their very nature, are located in the field and, by internal conjunction with the syllable AIṀ, have dissolved away in the middle of the Yoni.[47] (111-112ab)

By its mere deposition, a man becomes free from (any) physical defects (acchidra) and has a long life. He obtains the Accomplishment of a Hero (vīrasiddhi), namely, the arousal (kṣobha) of (the energies in) the body (pura), which is the divine seat (of the deity) (divyapīṭha). (112cd-113ab)

He gets diverse pleasures (bhoga) with the (the power of the) fifty heroes (who govern the letters). O god, if that yogi causes (the Vidyā) to rotate (through its phonemes) by recalling it or even by reading it, he comes to possess the repository of all accomplishments. One who is established in the Five (Jewels) (obtains) yogic power (siddhi), divine sight and the Arousal of the City. (113cd-115ab)

The intense (form of the) Command functions once one has repeated (this Vidyā) one million times. Accomplishment is attained by means of the Five Jewels (as is) the plane of Nirvāṇa. (115cd-116ab)

Once one has, first of all, understood the meaning of the scripture (matārtha), (each) part (pada) of (every) mantra (mantrapada) (becomes) clear. This indeed is the Kaulika Sūtra, enveloped by the sixfold deposition (ṣoḍhānyāsa). (116cd-117ab)

(It is) the Current of mantra (mantraugha) of the sixteenfold teaching (anvaya), that is, the sixteenfold transmission (krama).[48] This is the pure (vimala) knowledge that has emerged from the Kula path. (117cd-118ab)

Drawn from the casket (mañjūṣaka) of depositions, it is the Kula with sixteen divisions, the Tradition (santāna) with sixteen (parts) and the progeny of the sixteenfold Command. (118cd-119ab)

It should be kept hidden with effort and should not be shown to Tāntrikas. O fair one, the power of the sixfold deposition has thus been explained. (119cd-120ab)

गुरूपदेशतो[३९३] ज्ञेयं संहितार्थसमुच्चयम्[३९४] ।। १२० ।।
विस्तरं पूर्वमाख्यातं लक्षपादाधिके[३९५] मते ।
अत्र संक्षेपतः[३९६] प्राप्तं[३९७] चतुर्विंशत्सहस्रके[३९८] ।। १२१ ।।
षोढान्यासस्य सूत्रं तु आख्यातं तव सुन्दर ।

इत्याद्यावतारे महामन्थानभैरवयज्ञे अन्वये[३९९] सप्तकोटिप्रमाणे मेरुमार्गविनिर्गते
लक्षपादाधिके आद्यपीठावतारिते[४००] विद्यापीठमार्गे विमलषट्कनिर्णये
कादिभेदे आज्ञापारमेश्वरे स्वामिनीमते श्रीचतुर्विंशत्सहस्रसंहितायां
अव्वाक्रमभाषिते[४०१] षोढान्यासमञ्जूषाक्रमवर्णने
क्रमोदयो नामानन्दः[४०२] ।। २४ ।।

The aggregate of the meaning of the scripture (saṁhitā) should be known from the instructions of the teacher. (Its) extent has been previously explained in the scripture (mata) of 125,000 (verses). It has been received in a concise form here, in (the scripture) of twenty-four thousand (verses) (caturviṁśatsahasra). O fair one, I have told you the Sūtra of the Sixfold Deposition (ṣoḍhanyāsa).
(120cd-122ab)

This is the (twenty-fourth) chapter which is the emergence of the transmission (kramodaya) with regards to the description concerning the Transmission of the Casket of the Sixfold Deposition. It belongs to the primordial descent into the great sacrifice of the Churning Bhairava in the tradition (anvaya) that consists of seventy million (verses) that has emerged on the Path of Meru and (extends) for more than a hundred thousand quarter (verses). It has been brought (down to earth) into the first sacred seat along the path of the Seat of Knowledge (vidyāpīṭha). It is the ultimate purport of the Pure Six Thousand (verses) (vimalaṣaṭka) in the division beginning with 'KĀ' in the venerable scripture of twenty-four thousand (verses) (known as) the Svāminīmata of the Supreme Lord's Command as uttered within the Tradition of the Mother (avvākrama).

पञ्चविंशानन्दः

श्रीनाथ उवाच[१]

कुलं च [२]षोडशैर्भेदैर्मया[३] ज्ञातं[४] महेश्वरि ।
विपर्यायेण[५] अपरं[६] स्वाभाविककुलं[७] कथम् ।। १ ।।

षट्चक्रं षोडशाधारं त्रिलक्षं व्योमपञ्चकम् ।
संस्फुटं[८] च न मे ज्ञातं[९] कुलमार्गक्रमेण[१०] तु ।। २ ।।
इदानीं कथ्यताम् देवि कुलभेदं यथा भवेत् ।

श्रीवक्रा उवाच[११]

एतत् प्रश्नं[१२] महाश्रेष्ठं देवदेवावतारितम्[१३] ।। ३ ।।
विचारं तस्य वक्ष्यामि कुलपञ्चाशिकाक्रमम् ।
कुलमूलक्रमं[१४] शम्भो[१५] शृणु वक्ष्यामि भैरव ।। ४ ।।

अधोमुखं तु प्रथमं[१६] कन्दनालसमुद्भवम् ।
गुप्तं तं[१७] कन्दचक्रं तु अधोमुखव्यवस्थितम् ।। ५ ।।
चतुर्दलसमायुक्तं[१८] पद्मरागसमप्रभम् ।
चत्वारस्तस्य भेदाश्च आधारे चक्रनायकाः ।। ६ ।।
पिण्डं तस्य प्रसादं तु[१९] हिमकुन्देन्दुनिर्मलम्[२०] ।

तस्य ऊर्ध्वे[२१] द्वितीयं च योगराजमधोमुखम्[२२] ।। ७ ।।
वह्निकपिलसंकाशं[२३] ज्वालाज्वलितविग्रहम्[२४] ।
तस्य भेदाः[२५] षडिर्ज्ञेयाः[२६] चक्रेशं[२७] स्वाधिष्ठानकम्[२८] ।। ८ ।।
तस्य पिण्डं[२९] महारावं आरक्तं[३०] शुद्धवासनम्[३१] ।

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

The Fifty (Verses) concerning Kula.

Preamble

Śrīnātha said:

O Great Goddess, I have understood the Kula with sixteen divisions. (What is) the other innate (svābhāvika) (nature), which is (realised) by a process of reversal (viparyāyena)? (1)

I have not clearly understood the Six Wheels, the Sixteen Supports, the Three Signs and the Five Voids according to the Kula path. O goddess, tell (me also about) the Kula division (kulabheda).[1] (2-3ab)

The Six Wheels[2]

The venerable (goddess) Vakrā said:

This question, brought down (to earth by you), the God of the gods, is the best one. I will (now) tell (you) the teaching (vicāra) (concerning this, namely), the transmission of the Fifty (Verses) concerning Kula (kulapañcāśikākrama). O Śambhu, listen as I explain, O Bhairava, the Sequence of the Root of Kula (kulamūlakrama). (3cd-4)

The Wheel of the Foundation

The first one faces downwards[3] and arises from the tube in the Root (kanda) (genital centre). That is the hidden Wheel of the Root that faces downwards. It has four petals and is as brilliant as a ruby. Four are its divisions. The (residents thereon) are the masters of the Wheel in the Foundation (ādhāra). Its seed-syllable (piṇḍa) is Grace (prasāda) (HSRŪAUṀ), pure (white like) snow, the moon and jasmine. (5-7ab)

The Wheel of the Self-supported

Above it is the second one, the King of Yoga that faces downwards. It is tawny red like fire and its form burns with flames. Its divisions should be known to be six. It is the Self-supported (svādhiṣṭhāna), the Lord of the Wheel. Light red in colour, its seed-syllable (piṇḍa) is the Great Sound (mahārāva) (KHPHREṀ) and its abode is pure. (8-9ab)

तस्य ऊर्ध्वे[३२] तृतीयं तु चक्रं नाभिहुताशनम् ॥ ९ ॥
महारत्नं महादीप्तं तस्य भेदानि[३३] वै[३४] दश ।
स्वरषष्ठसमाक्रान्तं[३५] बिन्दुसंस्थशशाङ्कधृक्[३६] ॥ १० ॥
दाडिमीकुसुमप्रख्यं ज्वलन्तं[३७] भैरवानलम् ।
तं[३८] पिण्डं मणिपूरस्य सिद्धस्य इति निश्चयम्[३९] ॥ ११ ॥
चक्रनायकविख्यातं[४०] सुरसिद्धनमस्कृतम्[४१] ।

चतुर्थं तस्य ऊर्ध्वे[४२] तु हृदि चक्रमधोमुखम् ॥ १२ ॥
वर्णं[४३] तद्गैरिकाभासं तस्य भेदानि[४४] द्वादश[४५] ।
चक्रनायकविख्यातं[४६] तत्रानाहतभैरवम्[४७] ॥ १३ ॥
खेचरीहृदयं तस्य पिण्डं[४८] द्वादशवर्णकम् ।
ध्यानं[४९] तस्य भवेद् रक्तमीषद्श्यामविमिश्रितम्[५०] ॥ १४ ॥

अतोर्ध्वं[५१] संप्रवक्ष्यामि अपरं चक्रनिर्णयम् ।
हिमकुन्देन्दुधवलं[५२] तस्य भेदानि षोडश[५३] ॥ १५ ॥
विशुद्धं भैरवं तत्र कथितं चक्रनायकम्[५४] ।
तस्य पिण्डं[५५] भवेद् वाहं[५६] त्रिपदेन विभेदितम् ॥ १६ ॥

हरितं तस्य वर्णं[५७] तु नीलजीमुतसन्निभम् ।
तस्योर्ध्वं[५८] परमं चक्रं तुर्यस्थानगतं पृथु[५९] ॥ १७ ॥
गोक्षीरसदृशानन्दं[६०] तेजोरूपं भगाकृतिः[६१] ।
तस्य भेदद्वयं प्रोक्तं आज्ञाचक्रेश्वरं प्रभो[६२] ॥ १८ ॥
वाग्भवं तस्य तत् पिण्डं सिन्दूरारुणसन्निभम् ।

षट्त्यागात्[६३] सप्तमं ऊर्ध्वं[६४] आकाशे शून्यमण्डले ॥ १९ ॥
तुर्यातीतं[६५] तु तत् प्रोक्तं तस्मात् षट्कं[६६] विनिर्गतम्[६७] ।
सृष्टिक्रमेण ऊर्ध्वाद्धि[६८] चक्रौघं तत्[६९] विभाव्यते[७०] ॥ २० ॥

The Wheel of the City of Gems

Above it is the third Wheel, the fire in the navel.[4] (It is) the Great Jewel; greatly inflamed, its divisions are ten. Pervaded by the sixth vowel (Ū), it bears the Moon established in the Point. (Red) like a pomegranate flower, it is the burning fire of Bhairava. That is the seed-syllable of the accomplished City of Jewels (maṇipūra) (RŪṀ). This is the teaching. This is said to be the Lord of the Wheel, honoured by the gods and Siddhas. (9cd-12ab)

The Wheel of Unstruck Sound

The fourth (Wheel) is above it. It is the Wheel in the heart that faces downwards. Its colour is like that of red chalk and its divisions are twelve. The Lord of the Wheel there is said to be the Bhairava of (the Wheel of) Unstruck Sound (Anāhatabhairava). The Heart of the Skyfarer (khecarīhṛdaya), consisting of twelve letters, is its seed-syllable (piṇḍa) (HSKHPREṀ). Its visualized form (dhyāna) is red mixed with a little blue. (12cd-14)

The Pure Wheel

I will tell (you) another teaching concerning the Wheel above this. White as snow, the moon and jasmine, its divisions are sixteen. The Bhairava there, said to be the Lord of the Wheel, is the Pure One (viśuddha). Its seed-syllable is VĀHAṀ, divided into three parts. (15-16)

The Wheel of the Command

The colour (of the Wheel of the Command) is green and it is like a dark blue cloud. Above it is the supreme Wheel that, extensive, is located in the abode of the Fourth State. It is (white) like cow's milk and is bliss (itself). It is brilliant energy (tejas) and its form that of the Yoni. It is said to have two divisions and is the Lord who is the master of the Wheel of the Command (ājñācakra). Its seed-syllable is Vāgbhava, red as vermillion. (17-19ab)

The Circle of the Void

Abandoning the six (Wheels below), it is the seventh (Wheel, located) in the Sky – that is, within the Circle of the Void (śūnyamaṇḍala). That is said to be (the state) Beyond the Fourth[5] from which the group of six (Wheels) have emerged. That current of the Wheels is contemplated from above in accord with the process (krama) of emanation.[6] (19-20)

द्विरार[७१] तुर्यचक्रं तु कण्ठे[७२] वै षोडशारकम् ।
हृदयं द्वादशारं तु नाभिर्वै[७३] दशभिः[७४] स्मृतः ॥ २१ ॥
षडारं योनिचक्रं तु चतुरार[७५] गुद[७६] स्मृतम् ।

पुनः सिद्धक्रमं तेषां विशुद्धादिक्रमेण तु ॥ २२ ॥
विशुद्धं षोडशैर्भेदैः[७७] द्वादशैस्तु[७८] अनाहतम् ।
दशभिश्च मणिर्भिन्नः[७९] स्वाधिष्ठान[८०] षडात्मकम् ॥ २३ ॥
आधारे[८१] भेदाश्चत्वार[८२] आज्ञा[८३] भेदद्वयं विदुः ।

अकारादिविसर्गान्ता भेदानि[८४] षोडशः[८५] स्मृताः ॥ २४ ॥
ककारादिठकारान्ता द्वादशानि[८६] अनाहते ।
डकारादिफकारान्ता भेदानां दशकं मणौ ॥ २५ ॥
बकारादिलकारान्त[८७] भेदषट्कं क्रमेण तु ।
स्वाधिष्ठाने[८८] महादेव आधारे तु यथा शृणु ॥ २६ ॥

वकारादिसकारान्ता भेदाश्चत्वाराधारगाः[८९] ।
षष्ठं चक्रं भ्रूवोर्मध्ये[९०] हक्षद्वयविनिर्मितम् ॥ २७ ॥

हक्षद्वयविनिर्मुक्ताः[९१] श्लोकानि[९२] द्वादशः[९३] स्मृताः[९४] ।
षट्त्यागात्[९५] सप्तमे[९६] मुक्तिस्तत्रानन्द[९७] व्यवस्थितम् ॥ २८ ॥

अपरं षोडशाधारा[९८] लक्षत्रितयमेव च ।
अमृतादिविसर्गान्ताः कलाधाराणि[९९] षोडश[१००] ॥ २९ ॥
तेषां च योगिनीसिद्धाः स्वशरीरे व्यवस्थिताः ।

अनन्त[१०१] चैव आकाशं इन्दुः[१०२] ईश्वरसंज्ञकम् ॥ ३० ॥
उदयं ऊर्जनाथं च ऋक्षकर्णं च ऋषभम्[१०३] ।
लिप्ताङ्गं लूलिहश्चैव[१०४] एकपादं महेश्वर[१०५] ॥ ३१ ॥
तथा वै[१०६] रावणो नाम ओवली नाम औमुनिः ।
अम्बुनाथं अह्नवाह[१०७] आधाराः षोडशः[१०८] स्मृताः ॥ ३२ ॥

The Wheel of the Fourth State[7] has two rays while (the Wheel) in the throat has sixteen. The (Wheel of the) heart has twelve rays while the navel is said (to be divided) into ten. The Wheel of the Yoni (yonicakra)[8] has six rays while the rectum is said to have four. (21-22ab)

Again, the Sequence of the Siddhas[9] of these (Wheels) begins with the Pure (Wheel) (and continues) in due order. The Pure (viśuddha) (Wheel is formed) with sixteen divisions, (the Wheel of) Unstruck Sound with twelve. The (Wheel of the City of) Gems is divided into ten. (The Wheel of the) Self-supported is sixfold. There are four divisions in (the Wheel of the) Foundation and (the wise) know that (the Wheel of) the Command has two. (22cd-24ab)

The sixteen divisions are said to be the letters from A to Emission (visarga). The letters from Ka to Ṭha are the twelve in (the Wheel of) Unstruck Sound. The letters Ḍa to Pha are the ten divisions in (the Wheel of the) Jewel. (Next comes), O Great God, in due order, the sixfold division within (the Wheel of) the Self-supported consisting of the letters from Ba to La. (24cd-26abc)

(Now) hear how things are in (the Wheel of the) Foundation. The divisions within (the Wheel of) the Foundation are four, namely, the letters beginning with Va and ending with Sa. The sixth Wheel is between the eyebrows and is made of the two, Ha and KṢa. (26d-27)

The Twelve Verses are said to be free of the two, Ha and KṢa. By abandoning the (other) six, liberation is in the seventh (Wheel) and there Bliss is well established.[10] (28)

The Sixteen Supports

The next (topics are) the Sixteen Supports and the Three Signs. The sixteen supports of the energies (kalā) are (the letters) from A to Emission (visarga). Their Yoginīsiddhas reside within one's own body. (29-30ab)

O Great Lord, the Sixteen Supports are said to be Ananta (Endless) (A), Ākāśa (Space) (Ā), Indu (Moon) (I), the one called Īśvara (Lord) (Ī), Udaya (Arising) (U), Ūrjanātha (Lord of Strength) (Ū), Ṛkṣakarṇa (Bear Ears) (Ṛ), Ṛṣabha (Bull) (Ṝ), Liptāṅga (Oiled Body) (ḷ), ḶLiha (Ḹ), Ekapāda (One-footed) (E), Rāvaṇa (AI), Ovalī (Lineage) (O), Aumuni (the Sage Au) (AU), Ambunātha (Lord of Water) (Ṁ) and Ahvavāha (the Bearer of of the Call) (Ḥ).[11] (30cd-32)

एते चैव महासिद्धा आद्यन्ते ऐँसमायुताः[१०९] ।
एतैस्तु व्यापितं पिण्डं तेषां[११०] स्थानानि षोडश[१११] ॥ ३३ ॥

प्रथमं[११२] घण्टिकायां[११३] तु द्वितीयं तालुमण्डले ।
मज्जे[११४] मेदे तथा शुक्रे अन्यच्चैव[११५] तु कुण्डली[११६] ॥ ३४ ॥
स्नाय्वस्थित्वचरोमाणि[११७] केसरं[११८] च तथामृतम् ।
मांसं च रुधिरं चैव वाडवानल[११९] मारुतम्[१२०] ॥ ३५ ॥
आकाशं च तथा देव एवमाधारषोडशः[१२१] ।

तेषां ओलित्रयं देव सत्त्वरजस्तमस्त्रयम्[१२२] ॥ ३६ ॥
लक्षत्रयं[१२३] समासेन मनो बुद्धिरहंकृतिः[१२४] ।
तेषां वै त्रीणि[१२५] सिद्धाश्च कूटस्था ओषमित्र[१२६] च[१२७] ॥ ३७ ॥

एतेषां[१२८] तु लयं[१२९] देव पञ्चव्योमस्तु[१३०] भैरव ।
आधारे हृदये चैव तथा कुले[१३१] कपाटके ॥ ३८ ॥
पञ्चव्योमगतं लक्षं[१३२] भित्त्वा[१३३] चैव तु खेगतिः[१३४] ।

सोममण्डलमध्यस्थं अपरं सूर्यमण्डलम्[१३५] ॥ ३९ ॥
वायुमण्डलमध्यस्थं अपरं व्योममण्डलम् ।
आकाशं पञ्चधा प्रोक्तं अधो[१३६] मध्ये च मूर्धनि ॥ ४० ॥

एतेषां व्यापकाः पञ्च बिन्दुमार्गप्रभेदकाः[१३७] ।
शिवाद्यन्तसमायुक्तं तेषां वै सिद्धपञ्चकम्[१३८] ॥ ४१ ॥
पृथिव्यापस्तथा तेजो वायुराकाशमेव च ।
एते पञ्च महाभूता निर्मिताः[१३९] सृष्टिकारकाः[१४०] ॥ ४२ ॥
श्रीकण्ठः शङ्करोऽनन्तः सादाख्यः[१४१] पिङ्गलस्तथा ।
पञ्चैते[१४२] सृष्टिकर्तारः[१४३] सिद्धाः पञ्चकुले[१४४] तथा ॥ ४३ ॥

श्रीकण्ठः पृथिवी ज्ञेयः शङ्करो[१४५] आप उच्यते ।
तेजोऽनन्त इति[१४६] प्रोक्तः सादाख्यो वायुरुच्यते ॥ ४४ ॥
आकाशः पिङ्गलो ज्ञेयः पञ्चैते[१४७] सृष्टिकारकाः ।

These great Siddhas are conjoined with (the seed-syllable) AIṀ at the beginning and the end. The body (piṇḍa) is filled with them and their locations are sixteen.[12] (33)

The first is in the uvula (at the back of the throat and) the second in the Circle of the Palate; (the others are) in 3) the fat, 4) marrow and 5) semen. Another (support) is 6) Kuṇḍalinī and the 7) sinews, 8) bones, 9) skin, 10) hair, and 11) saliva (amṛta), 12) meat, 13) blood, 14) the Fire of the Aeons (vāḍavānala), 15) the vital breath (vāyu) and 16) the spaces (ākāśa) (in the body). Such, O god, are the Sixteen Supports.[13] (34-36ab)

The Three Signs

O god, their three lineages (oli) are the three, sattva, rajas and tamas. The Three Signs are, in brief, the mind, intellect and ego.[14] They correspond to the three Siddhas who are within (three) Peak (seed-syllable mantras), namely, O (Oḍḍīśanātha), ṢA (Ṣaṣṭhanātha) and Mitra (Mitranātha). (36cd-37)

The Five Voids

O Bhairava, their merger (corresponds to) the Five Voids in 1) the Foundation, 2) the Heart, 3) the Kula and 4 and 5) (the Two) Door (Panels) (kapāṭaka).[15] Once pierced through the Target within the Five Voids, (one achieves) flight (khegati).[16] (38-39ab)

In the middle of the Circle of the Moon is another one, namely, the Circle of the Sun. In the middle of the Circle of the Wind (there is also) another one, namely, the Circle of the Sky. Space (ākāśa) is said to be fivefold, below, in the middle and on the head.[17] (39cd-40)

The Five Siddhas

The five that pierce the Path of the Point pervade them. These five Siddhas are conjoined with Śiva at the beginning and the end. Earth, Water, Fire, Air and Space, these are the five gross elements. They are created (as well as being) the agents of emanation. Śrīkaṇṭha, Śaṅkara, Ananta, Sādākhya and Piṅgala: these five are the five Siddhas who are the agents of emanation in the five Kulas. (41-43)

Know that Śrīkaṇṭha is Earth and Śaṅkara is said to be Water. Ananta is said to be Fire and Sādākhya is said to be Air, while Piṅgala should be known to be Space. These five are the agents of emanation.[18] (44-45ab)

एतद् वै कुलमार्गं[१४८] तु तवाख्यातं रहस्यकम् ॥ ४५ ॥
गुप्ता कुलवधू यद्वत् तद्वद् गोप्यतरं कुलम्[१४९] ।

उद्धारं पूर्वतो ज्ञात्वा पश्चाद्[१५०] यजनमारभेत् ॥ ४६ ॥
एतत् कुलक्रमाचार[१५१] बिन्दुमण्डलभेदितम् ।
तत्र लक्षे[१५२] मति[१५३] कृत्वा रुद्रशक्तिः प्रवर्तते ॥ ४७ ॥

अधो मध्ये च ऊर्ध्वे[१५४] वा आत्मतुल्याधिकारकम्[१५५] ।
कुर्याच्चैव स्वदेहस्य चित्तं दमयते[१५६] ततः ॥ ४८ ॥
बहिरन्तरभावेन तदा चोत्पद्यते[१५७] सुखम् ।

तत्कुलाकुलमादाय[१५८] शरीरं षट्कभेदितम् ॥ ४९ ॥
नवसंज्ञ[१५९] पुनर्भूयः[१६०] कुलभेदार्णवं भवेत् ।

शङ्खं शक्तिस्तथा योग[१६१] महागृह[१६२] चतुर्थकम् ॥ ५० ॥
पञ्चमं च प्रभु[१६३] प्रोक्तं पादं तु[१६४] षष्ठमुच्यते[१६५] ।
अतीतमावली[१६६] चैव उत्तरौ[१६७] परिकीर्तितौ[१६८] ॥ ५१ ॥
तस्योत्तमं महादेव[१६९] आनन्द[१७०] नवमं कुलम्[१७१] ।
कुलं तु नवधा भिन्नं विख्यातं सर्वतोमुखम्[१७२] ॥ ५२ ॥

उड्डामरं सिद्धकौल[१७३] गणाख्य[१७४] खेचरीमतम् ।
चन्द्राख्य[१७५] रौरवं देव वीराख्य[१७६] भूतडामरम् ॥ ५३ ॥
नवमं तु महाकौल[१७७] प्रत्ययं स्वाधिकारकम्[१७८] ।
तेनावतारिता चाज्ञा[१७९] लक्षपादाधिके मते ॥ ५४ ॥

तस्मात् तत्[१८०] सिद्धकौल[१८१] तु तदा कौलस्य प्रत्ययम्[१८२] ।
अवस्था उन्मनी भाव[१८३] एतत् कौलोपदेशकम्[१८४] ॥ ५५ ॥

कुलकौलं समाख्यातं आद्यान्त[१८५] तमनाहत[१८६] ।
कुलमेकं विजानीयात्[१८७] व्योमपञ्चकभेदितम्[१८८] ॥ ५६ ॥
आसनं भेदनं तेषां कुलपञ्चाशिकाक्रमम् ।

This, indeed, is the secret Path of Kula and I have told it to you. Just as a widow of good family is (kept) hidden, so Kula is to be kept most secret. (45cd-46ab)

Once one has known the enunciation (of the seed-syllables), (only) then should one begin the sacrifice. This is the practice (ācāra) of the Kulakrama, associated with the Circle of the Drop. Rudra's energy (emerges) once the mind has been fixed on that target. (46cd-47)

Below, in the middle and above, one should form a controlling authority (adhikāraka) who is equal to the Self of one's own body; the mind is thereby controlled. Then bliss arises inwardly and externally. (48-49ab)

The Nine Kulas

Having assumed the (division into) Kula and Akula, the body is (further) divided into six. Then, there should be the nine names and the ocean of the Kula division. (49cd-50ab)

(The first three divisions are) Śaṅkha (Conch), Śakti (Energy) and Yoga (Union), with Mahāgṛha (Great House) as the fourth, while the fifth is said to be Prabhu (Lord) and Pāda is said to be the sixth. Atīta (Beyond) and Āvalī are said to follow after. O Great God, better than that is Ānanda (Bliss), the ninth Kula.[19] Kula, divided ninefold and facing everywhere, has been explained. (50cd-52)

1) Uḍḍāmara, 2) Siddhakaula, the one called 3) Gaṇa, 4) Khecarīmata, 5) the one called Candra (Moon), 6) Raurava (Terrible), 7) the one called Vīra,[20] 8) Bhūtaḍāmara and 9) Mahākaula as the ninth.[21] This is the sign of attainment (pratyaya) and is the self-regulating authority that brought the Command down into the scripture (mata) that consists of a hundred and twenty-five thousand (verses). (53-54)

Therefore that is the Siddhakaula. Thereafter (one experiences) the sign of accomplishment of a Kaula. The state is the Transmental (unmanī) and that condition imparts the Kaula (teachings). (55)

It is called Kulakaula and is conjoined, in the beginning and end, with Unstruck Sound. Know that there is (only) one Kula[22] conjoined with the Five Voids. Their seat (āsana) is their division, which is the tradition of the Fifty (Verses) Concerning Kula. (56-57ab)

इत्याद्यावतारे महामन्थानभैरवयज्ञे[१८९] अन्वये[१९०] सप्तकोटिप्रमाणे मेरुमार्गविनिर्गते
लक्षपादाधिके आद्यपीठावतारिते[१९१] विद्यापीठमार्गे विमलषट्कनिर्णये कादिभेदे
आज्ञापारमेश्वरे स्वामिनीमते श्रीचतुर्विंशत्सहस्त्रसंहितायां अव्वाक्रम—
भाषिते[१९२] कुलपञ्चाशिकाधिकारवर्णने क्रमोदयो
नामानन्दः ।। २५ ।।

This is the (twenty-fifth) chapter which is the emergence of the transmission (kramodaya) with regards to the description the Fifty (Verses) concerning Kula. It belongs to the primordial descent into the great sacrifice of the Churning Bhairava in the tradition (anvaya) that consists of seventy million (verses) that has emerged on the Path of Meru and (extends) for more than a hundred thousand quarter (verses). It has been brought (down to earth) into the first sacred seat along the path of the Seat of Knowledge (vidyāpīṭha). It is the ultimate purport of the Pure Six Thousand (verses) (vimalaṣaṭka) in the division beginning with ‘KĀ' in the venerable scripture of twenty-four thousand (verses) (known as) the Svāminīmata of the Supreme Lord's command as uttered within the Tradition of the Mother (avvākrama).

षड्विंशानन्दः

श्रिनाथ उवाच

किं कुलं किं क्रमाचारं[१] का पूजा क्रममण्डले[२]।
कथयस्व महेशानि प्रसादाद् वद मे प्रभो[३] ।। १ ।।

श्रीवक्रा उवाच[४]

क्रमाद्यं मूलसूत्रं[५] तु वृत्ताध्युष्टप्रमाणतः[६] ।
तस्यारभ्य[७] क्रमात् सृष्टिः इत्याह[८] खेचरसमम्[९] ।। २ ।।

या[१०] सा[११] शक्तिर्भगाख्या[१२] त्रिविधगतियुता[१३] त्र्यक्षरा[१४] त्रिप्रकारा[१५]
तस्या[१६] श्री–ओड्डियाणं[१७] परकलसहितं[१८] मध्यसंस्थं सुदीप्तम्[१९] ।
तच्छ्रीजालन्धराख्यं[२०] प्रकटितनिलयं[२१] दक्षिणे चैव कोणे
वामे श्रीपूर्णपीठं[२२] पशुजनभयकृत्[२३] कामरूपं तदग्रे[२४] ।। ३ ।।

तस्योर्ध्वे तिस्रपीठं[२५] परमकलयुतं[२६] चन्द्रपीठं ललाटे
त्रिकोणान्ते[२७] समस्तं परमशिवकलाक्षोभितं[२८] दिव्यमोघम्[२९] ।
तन्मध्ये[३०] वक्रलिङ्गं[३१] परमसुखकरं बिन्दुरूपं त्रिभिन्नं[३२]
नित्यानन्दस्वरूपं[३३] तदुपरिमथनात्[३४] षट्प्रकाराधिकारम्[३५a] ।। ४ ।।

पूर्वाम्नायक्रमौघं[३५b] तदुपरि अपरं वृद्धकौमारबालम्
एवं व्याप्तं समस्तं[३६] स्थितिलयजननी[३७] रुद्रशक्तिस्त्रिभेदैः[३८] ।

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

The Root Sūtra and the Hymn to Māyā

Preamble

Śrīnātha said:

What is Kula? What is the Practice of the Krama (kramācāra)? How is the rite of worship in the Kramamaṇḍala? Tell (me), O Great Goddess; by (your) grace, O Lord, explain. (1)

The venerable (goddess) Vakrā said:

The first Root Sūtra[1] of the Tradition (krama) consists of three and a half verses. Starting from that, in due order (krama), comes emanation. Thus it is said to be equal to the Skyfarer. (2)

The Root Sūtra

That energy called the Yoni (bhaga), endowed with three dynamic modes (gati)[2] consists of three letters[3] and (triangular) has three aspects (triprakāra).[4] Well energized in the middle is the venerable Oḍḍiyāna, endowed with the Supreme Energy (parakalā). That venerable (sacred seat) called Jālandhara, whose abode[5] has been made manifest, is in the right corner. In the left (corner) is Pūrṇa, the venerable sacred seat that inspires fear in the fettered (paśu).[6] In the front of that (Yoni) is Kāmarūpa.[7] (3)

Above that is the sacred seat (called) Tisra[8] (and that too) is endowed with the Supreme Energy.[9] The sacred seat (called) Candra is on the forehead[10] (above the Triangle).[11] Within the Triangle is the entire Divine Current (divyaugha),[12] aroused with[13] Śiva's Supreme Energy.[14] In the centre of that (Triangle) is the Crooked Liṅga (vakraliṅga)[15] in the form of the Point that gives supreme bliss.[16] It is divided into three[17] and its nature is eternal bliss.[18] By churning it from above, the sixfold authority (is established).[19] (4)

Above the current of the transmission (krama) of the previous tradition (pūrvāmnāya)[20] is another one[21] consisting of the Aged, the Youth and the Child. In this way, everything is pervaded[22] by the three divisions[23] of Rudra's energy,

चिञ्चाज्ञा कादिभेदैरकुलकुलमयानन्ददा बोधरूपा[३९]
गुर्वाज्ञा[४०] षट्प्रकारा[४१] पशुभयहरणी[४२] चन्द्रबिम्बस्य मध्ये[४३] ॥ ५ ॥

नित्यक्लिन्ना सुरक्ताभयमुदितपरानन्दशक्तिः[४४] प्रसिद्धा[४५]
कुर्वन्ती शाम्भवौघं[४६] क्षुभितवरतनुः[४७] श्रीकुजा दिव्यलिङ्गम्[४८] ।

मयावतारितं[४९] तुभ्यमाद्यसूत्रमधोमुखम्[५०]
या सा शक्तिः पराख्याता सा च देवी भगाकृतिः ॥ ६ ॥

तस्यान्ते[५१] सा परा देवी पीठानां पीठदेवता[५२] ।
या सा शक्तिर्भगाख्याता गतिस्तस्यास्त्रिधा[५३] पुनः ॥ ७ ॥

आदिकादिथकारादिब्रह्मविष्णुमहेश्वराः[५४] ।
ज्येष्ठा वामा च रौद्री च द्वादशश्लोकभेदिताः[५५] ॥ ८ ॥

परा सा रुद्रशक्तिस्तु त्रिभिः[५६] स्थानैर्व्यवस्थिता[५७] ।
ललाटे हृदये योनौ क्षरते[५८] त्रिषु कारिषु ॥ ९ ॥

शुक्रं च[५९] शोणितं कृच्छ्रं[६०] नाडीत्रितयसन्धिषु ।
इडा च पिङ्गला चैव सुषुम्ना मध्यमा त्रयः ॥ १० ॥

एवमानन्दयोगेन त्रिशक्तिः स्वाधिकारिका[६१] ।
तस्यायातं[६२] क्रमं देव बालकौमारवृद्धकम् ॥ ११ ॥
पीठपञ्चकसंयुक्तं क्रममेकं[६३] त्रयोलिषु[६४] ।

आनन्दानन्दबिन्दुश्च[६५] अक्षरं[६६] परमा कला ॥ १२ ॥
पीठान्येते[६७] क्रमात् पञ्च अन्तरङ्गे प्रतिष्ठिताः । who is the mother of preservation and destruction.[24] She is Ciñcā's Command, which is consciousness (bodha) and, by means of the divisions of the (tradition) beginning with KĀ,[25] she bestows the bliss that consists of Kula and Akula.[26] (She is) the sixfold[27] Command of the teacher[28] who, in the middle of the lunar orb, removes the fear of the fettered.[29] She is well known as Nityaklinnā (Ever Wet); beautifully passionate (suraktā), (she is) the energy of supreme bliss, delighted by fearlessness.[30] Her excellent body is aroused[31] and she fashions the Śāmbhava current.[32] She is the venerable (goddess) Kujā, the Divine Liṅga.[33] (5)

The Wisdom Sūtra: An Explanation of the Root Sūtra

I have brought down (to earth) for you the First Sūtra, which faces downwards. That energy called 'Supreme' (Parā) is the goddess whose form is the Yoni (bhagākṛti). (6)

Within her, the same Supreme Goddess, are the deities of the sacred seats. The dynamic modality of that energy called the Yoni (bhaga) is then again threefold. (7)

The (series of) letters beginning with ‘A', ‘Ka' and ‘Tha' (correspond, respectively) to Brahmā, Viṣṇu and Maheśvara and (the three energies) Jyeṣṭhā, Vāmā and Raudrī conjoined with the Twelve Verses.[34] (8)

She is the supreme energy of Rudra established in three places. She oozes (nectar) into the three agents (kārin) (there), that is, into the Forehead, Heart and Yoni. (9)

Semen, blood and hardship (kṛcchra) (flow) in the junctures of the three psychic nerves (called) Iḍā, Piṅgalā and Suṣumṇā, the middle one. (10)

In this way, by the Yoga of Bliss, the triple energy exercises her own authority. O god, the sequence of the Child, Youth and Aged depend on her. (Ultimately), there is (only) one Krama, associated with the five seats, in the three lineages. (11-12ab)

Bliss (ānanda) (O), the Drop of Bliss (JĀ), the Letter (akṣara) (PŪ), the Supreme (paramā) (KĀ) and Energy (kalā) (TI): these, in due order, are the five internal sacred seats. (12cd-13ab)

बहिरङ्गे च ते कूटा[६८] ओजापूका[६९] च तिस्रकम्[७०] ॥ १३ ॥
समस्तं च कुलं[७१] कौलं शिवशक्तिकलावृतम् ।

आनन्दावृतवृन्दस्तु[७२] आनन्दे तु प्रवर्तते ॥ १४ ॥
उद्भवानन्दचित्तस्य समत्वं च प्रवर्तते ।
तन्मध्ये[७३] सूक्ष्मलिङ्गं[७४] तु दिव्यलिङ्गमधोमुखम्[७५] ॥ १५ ॥

परमाकाशमध्यस्थं[७६] चन्द्रमण्डलमध्यतः ।
तदा तत्[७७] सुषिरं[७८] याति[७९] लक्षितेनान्तरात्मना ॥ १६ ॥

पश्यते[८०] तु समाधिस्थो[८१] बिन्दुरूपं नभस्तलम्[८२] ।
चिदानन्दसमुत्पत्तिः[८३] आवेशः संप्रवर्तते ॥ १७ ॥
तद्रूपं च स्वरूपं च इत्याश्रावणप्रत्ययम्[८४] ।

मथिते चित्तचैतन्ये[८५] मथितं कर्मसंश्रयम्[८६] ॥ १८ ॥
मथनादपि चक्रस्य योगावेशं[८७] मुहुर्मुहुः ।
आरक्तं[८८] तत्कुले[८९] चक्रं तत्रस्थं बिन्दुमण्डलम् ॥ १९ ॥

भेदितं द्रावितं[९०] यस्मात्[९१] मथितं स्मरणेन[९२] तु ।
षट्प्रकारैर्विभिन्नं[९३] तु भेदैश्चैवाष्टविंशतिः[९४] ॥ २० ॥

चतुष्कं पञ्चकं[९५] षट्कं चतुष्कं पञ्चकं[९६] चतुः ।
षट्प्रकारक्रमं[९७] ह्येतत्[९८] यो वेत्ति[९९] स च कौलिकः ॥ २१ ॥

आदौ पीठचतुष्कं तु[१००] चत्वारः पीठदेवताः[१०१] ।
सिद्धपञ्चकमन्यं[१०२] तु ज्ञानषट्कसमन्वितम् ॥ २२ ॥

महन्तारीपञ्चकं[१०३] च[१०४] ओलित्रयकुलक्रमम्[१०५] ।
अष्टाविंशतिभिर्भेदैः[१०६] प्रकाराणि[१०७] षडिः[१०८] स्मृताः ॥ २३ ॥

Externally, they are the Peak (seed-syllables corresponding to) O (Oḍḍiyāna), JĀ (Jālandhara), PŪ (Pūrṇagiri), KĀ (Kāmarūpa) and Tisraka. Together (samasta) (they constitute) Kula,[35] while Kaula (the sixth component) is enveloped by the energy of Śiva and Śakti. (13cd-14ab)

The aggregate, enveloped in the bliss (of the energy of Śiva and Śakti), functions within bliss. (Thus) there comes about the equilibrium (samatva) of the mind which is the bliss of the outpouring (udbhava) (of bliss). In the middle of that is the subtle Liṅga, the Divine Liṅga that faces downwards.[36] (14cd-15)

It is in the core of the Supreme Void in the middle of the Circle of the Moon. Then, perceived by the Inner Self, it enters the cavity (suṣira) (of the Void). (16)

He who is established in contemplation (samādhi) sees the surface of the Void which is in the form of the Point. (Then) penetration (āveśa), which is the arising of the bliss of consciousness, takes place. The experience of the proclamation (of the scripture) (āśrāvaṇapratyaya) is that that is one's own nature.[37] (17-18ab)

When mental consciousness (cittacaitanya) is churned, the (very) foundation of Karma is churned. So too, by churning the Wheel, the possession of Yoga (yogāveśa) takes place again and again.[38] The Wheel in that Kula is the Circle of the Sun[39] and is light red (in colour). The Circle of the Point is located there. (18cd-19)

The First Sequence of Twenty-eight[40]

Churned by Passion (smaraṇa), (the Point) is split up and melted. It is (then) divided into six parts and twenty-eight divisions. (20)

A group of four, (then of) five, six, four, five and four: this is the sequence of the six units (prakāra) and he who knows it is a (true) Kaulika.[41] (21)

The first is the group of four sacred seats and the four deities of the sacred seats. Another (that follows) is the group of five Siddhas endowed with the sixfold knowledge.[42] (22)

And there is the pentad of Mahantārī[43] and the Kulakrama along with the three Lineages (oli). (In this way) the six parts are said to consist of the twenty-eight divisions. (23)

एतैर्भिन्न[१०९] कुलात्मान[११०] तदा आनन्दसन्ततिः ।
कलिस्यान्ते[१११] च कामाख्ये समीपस्थं च पञ्चकम्[११२] ।। २४ ।।

अवस्था च कुले कौले तिस्राख्ये[११३] जायते हि[११४] च ।
स चाष्टाविंशमो[११५] भेदो[११६] भविष्ये[११७] च भविष्यति ।। २५ ।।

एवं ते पञ्चभिः[११८] पीठाः[११९] पूर्वसूत्रे विसर्पिताः ।
तथा च देवतादीनि[१२०] सृष्टिन्याये अतः शृणु ।। २६ ।।

गजजिह्वा अग्निजिह्वा[१२१] तडिज्जिह्वा तृतीयका ।
शुक्रजिह्वा च अमरा[१२२] रसजिह्वा च पञ्चमी ।। २७ ।।

तेषां सिद्धीः[१२३] क्रमात् पञ्च इदानीं[१२४] प्रवदाम्यहम् ।
चन्द्रार्कानलबिम्बस्थ[१२५] बिन्दौ च[१२६] गणपञ्चकम् ।। २८ ।।

आवेश[१२७] घूर्णिरानन्दः[१२८] ऊष्मा क्रोषणशोषणम्[१२९] ।
एतद् वै ज्ञानषट्कं तु प्रकृतिस्थं प्रमेयतः ।। २९ ।।

माया च शाम्भवी शक्तिः[१३०] इच्छा ज्ञानी[१३१] क्रिया तथा ।
एतच्चतुष्कमाख्यात[१३२] पञ्चकं महन्तारिका[१३३] ।। ३० ।।
शब्दा[१३४] स्पर्शा रसा देवी रूपव्यापी[१३५] च[१३६] गन्धिनी[१३७] ।
एते[१३८] वै त्वदहंकार्याः[१३९] पञ्चक[१४०] परिकीर्तितम् ।। ३१ ।।

विमलान्तरमात्मान[१४१] एवं ओलित्रिक[१४२] स्मृतम् ।
एव[१४३] ते क्रमभेदानि कथितान्यष्टविंशतिः ।। ३२ ।।
एतैर्भिन्नं महालिङ्गं दिव्यमण्डलसंज्ञकम् ।
तेषां विद्यान्वय[१४४] यच्च[१४५] परा सा परमा कला ।। ३३ ।।

The Tradition of Bliss (ānandasantati) (arises) when the essence (ātman) of Kula is divided by these (divisions). At the end of the Age of Strife in Kāmākhya, the pentad is at hand. (24)

And there arises the state that is in Kula and Kaula within (the sacred seat) called Tisra. This is the twenty-eighth division that will occur in the future.[44] (25)

Such are your five sacred seats that have emerged in the previous sūtra. Now, in the same way, listen to the (teachings concerning) the deities and everything else, according to the order of emanation. (26)

The Second Sequence of Twenty-Eight

Gajajihvā (Elephant Tongue), Agnijihvā (Fire Tongue) with Taḍijjihvā (Lightning Tongue) as the third; (the fourth is) Śukrajihvā (Sperm Tongue) and the immortal Rasajihvā (Juice Tongue), the fifth. (27)

Now I will tell (you) their five accomplishments (siddhi) in due order. (This) group of five is located in the Moon, Sun, Fire, the Image (bimba) and the Point. (28)

Possession (āveśa), mystic inebriation (ghūrṇi), bliss (ānanda), (mystic) heat (ūṣmā), shouting (ākroṣaṇa) and drying out (ṣoṣaṇa): this, indeed, is the sixfold knowledge located in Nature (prakṛti) in the midst of objectivity. (29)

Māyā, (which is) Śāmbhavīśakti, will, knowledge and action: this is said to be the group of four. The pentad of Mahantārikā (consists of the goddesses) Śabdā (Sound) and Śparśā (Touch), the goddess Rasā (Juice i.e. Taste), Rūpavyāpinī (Form-pervading i.e. Sight) and Gandhinī (Smell). These, the products of your ego, are said to be the group of five.[45] (30-31)

The pure inner Self is in this way said to be the triad of Lineages (oli). Thus, I have explained the twenty-eight divisions of your Krama.[46] (32)

Concerning the Great Liṅga – the triangular Divine Maṇḍala in the Body

The great Liṅga, which is termed the Divine Maṇḍala, is divided with these (divisions). The lineage of knowledge (vidyānvaya) is the Supreme (Goddess) who is the paramount energy (kalā). (33)

नित्योदिता[१४६] सुसूक्ष्मा च नासाग्रे संव्यवस्थिता ।
ऊर्णतन्तुनिभाकारा[१४७] गोक्षीररहिमशीतला ॥ ३४ ॥

तयासौ जीवते[१४८] जीवो दिव्यलिङ्गं महेश्वर[१४९] ।
तस्य सिद्धान्वयं सर्वं भेदाश्चैवाष्टविंशतिः[१५०] ॥ ३५ ॥

तया प्राशितमात्रा या अन्तर्भावः प्रवर्तते ।
त्रिनाडिसंगमं[१५१] स्थूलं एकत्र[१५२] यत्र तिष्ठति ॥ ३६ ॥

तेन तं[१५३] त्रिपुरं पीठं त्रिभिः स्रोतप्रवाहकम्[१५४] ।
तिस्राख्यं[१५५] च ललाटस्थं[१५६] ब्रह्मग्रन्थिरधोमुखी[१५७] ॥ ३७ ॥

ललाटसुषिरं[१५८] चक्रं प्रत्ययं[१५९] ज्ञानरश्मयः ।
एवं व्याप्तं क्रमं मेरोर्योगिनी[१६०] च[१६१] अधोमुखी ॥ ३८ ॥

सा शक्तिः परमा तत्र स्थिता विश्रामकारिणी ।
दक्षिणोत्तरयोः पार्श्वे जननी चलते[१६२] पुरे ॥ ३९ ॥

भगमध्यमशृङ्गस्य[१६३] तस्याग्रे तु[१६४] लयं पुनः ।
एवं सा रुद्रशक्तिस्तु त्रिभिर्भेदैः[१६५] प्रतिष्ठिता ॥ ४० ॥

आदिस्थाने स्थिता तत्र देवदेवी कुलेच्छया ।
ददते ज्ञानसद्भावं कुटिलाङ्गी स्वतन्त्रतः ॥ ४१ ॥

तदानन्दः[१६६] प्रवर्तेत[१६७] मोक्षमार्गमहोत्सवः[१६८] ।
आज्ञां[१६९] गुरुमुखाद् लब्ध्वा रुद्रशक्तिः प्रवर्तते ॥ ४२ ॥

वक्त्राद् वक्त्रगता[१७०] आज्ञा बन्धुभूता कुलक्रमे ।
वाचासिद्धिः[१७१] कुले कौले[१७२] भवनात्[१७३] संप्रवर्तते ॥ ४३ ॥

Perpetually active (nityoditā), she is extremely subtle and is located (between the two channels of the breath) at the tip of the nose. Her form is (that of very subtle fibre) like a spider's thread, and (she) is as cool as snow and (white) as cow's milk.[47] (34)

O Great Lord, it is due to her that this living being (jīva), the Divine Liṅga, lives.[48] To it belongs the entire lineage of the Siddhas and the twenty-eight divisions. (35)

She is the assimilated energy (prāśitamātrā) (of Kuṇḍalinī). It is due to her, merely by her being eaten, that the inner (mystic) state (antarbhāva) comes about. It is where the gross union of the three psychic channels (nāḍī) abides together in a single place. (36)

Therefore that is the sacred seat of the Three Cities (tripura) that, by the three (lineages), transports the current (srotas) (of the teaching). Again, (the sacred seat) called ‘Tisra' is located in the forehead. It is the Knot of Brahmā that faces downwards.[49] (37)

The Wheel (corresponding) to the cavity (suṣira) in the forehead is the experience (pratyaya) (which is the sign of accomplishment) and (consists of) the rays of knowledge. In this way the Krama of Meru is pervaded and the Yoginī[50] faces downwards. (38)

She who is established there is the supreme energy who brings repose (viśrāmakāriṇī). The Mother moves in the City on the right and on the left. (39)

Again, merger (occurs) in front of that, in the middle corner of the Yoni.[51] In this way, she, Rudra's energy, is well established with (her) three divisions. (40)

The Goddess of the gods resides there, in the first place (ādisthāna), by the will of Kula. (And from there), she whose limbs are crooked freely bestows the essence of knowledge. (41)

Then the bliss, which is the great festival of liberation, arises. Once the Command has been obtained from the teacher's mouth, Rudra's energy[52] begins to function. (42)

(Transmitted) from mouth to mouth, the Command is (one’s) companion in the Kulakrama. It is the Accomplishment of Speech (vācāsiddhi), the contemplation (bhāvanā) that takes place within Kula and Kaula.[53] (43)

कर्मणा[१७४] मनसा वाचा त्रिशुद्धिर्भक्तिवत्सले[१७५] ।
तस्याज्ञा वर्तते शिष्ये भावहीनो[१७६] न सिद्ध्यति ।। ४४ ।।
पशुपाशभय[१७७] शिष्ये अन्यथा च[१७८] भवेद् ध्रुवम्[१७९] ।

रुद्रशक्तिर्महादेवी अमोघा च जगत्सुता ।। ४५ ।।
दिव्याज्ञायाः[१८०] स्वरूपा सा सिद्धरूपा त्वनेकधा ।

नित्यक्लिन्नाप्रभावेन अतिरक्तस्वरूपतः[१८१] ।। ४६ ।।
उदयं लभते शिष्यः[१८२] परमानन्दलक्षणम् ।

प्रतिरूपा च[१८३] या शक्तिः प्रसिद्धा च्छायजा[१८४] परा ।। ४७ ।।
कुर्वन्ती[१८५] नित्य[१८६] कर्माणि मनेच्छया[१८७] यथा सुधीः ।
मोचयेच्छक्तिचक्रस्थो[१८८] दिव्यलिङ्गतनुर्धरः[१८९] ।। ४८ ।।

चन्द्रादित्यजले च्छाया अग्निसोमार्कदर्पणे ।
तथा सा तारकान्ते[१९०] च परा देवी सुसूक्ष्मगा[१९१] ।। ४९ ।।

पशुर्धारा[१९२] यथा पश्येत्[१९३] कुटिला[१९४] च अधोमुखीम्[१९५] ।
सा च देवी ह्यहं मूर्तिः कुब्जिका कुलकौलिनी ।। ५० ।।

तस्याः[१९६] सूत्रक्रमं चोक्तं क्रम–ओघ[१९७] विनिर्गतम् ।
प्रज्ञार्थं संगतं पश्येन्मूलसूत्रोपदेशकम्[१९८] ।। ५१ ।।

इत्यागमविशुद्धस्य प्रज्ञासूत्रमय[१९९] हर ।
मलस्यैवोपघातार्थं[२००] निर्णीतामिह[२०१] संहिताम् ।। ५२ ।।

अनेन सूचितं सूत्रं[२०२] मूलसूत्रं तु मूलतः ।
प्रज्ञासूत्रविनिर्मुक्तो योऽन्यथा अवधारयेत् ।। ५३ ।।
न तस्य[२०३] सूत्रं न मूलं तु न ज्ञानं ज्ञेयरूपतः[२०४] ।

By action, mind and speech, the triple purity abides in one who is the darling of devotion. The Command of (such a one) abides within (his) disciple. Otherwise the disciple will certainly fear the bondage of the fettered.[54] One who is devoid of deep spiritual feeling (bhāva) is not successful. (44-45ab)

Rudra's energy is the Great Goddess; she is the unfailing mother of the universe. She is the essential nature of the Divine Command and (her) nature is (fully) accomplished in many ways. (45cd-46ab)

The disciple achieves elevation (udaya), the mark of which is supreme bliss, through the power of (the goddess) Nityaklinnā (Perpetually Wet) by virtue of (her) extremely loving (atirakta)[55] nature. (46cd-47ab)

She is the energy who is every form. Supreme and well known, she is born from the shade (of the Tree of Consciousness)[56] and always acts according to the mind's desire. The wise own who is established in the Wheel of Energies (śakticakra), and who has as (his) body (this) Divine Liṅga, is freed. (47cd-48)

The Supreme Goddess, established within the extremely subtle, is the shade (cchāyā) in the net (of the rays) of the Sun and Moon, (reflected) in the mirror of Fire, Moon and Sun. And in the same way she is within the Star (tāraka i.e. the Point).[57] (49)

Crooked and facing downwards, (she is seen below), just as the fettered soul sees the earth (below him). And I am that goddess, the Form (mūrti) (of Ultimate Reality) (called) Kubjikā, the Kaulinī (energy of) Kula. (50)

The Transmission of (the goddess's) sūtra (sūtrakrama) has been explained, namely, the Current of the Transmission (kramaugha) that has emerged (into the world). One should perceive the sense of (its) wisdom and coherence which instructs in (the true sense of) the Root Sūtra. (51)

O Hara, this is the Wisdom Sūtra of one who has been purified by the scripture. (This) scripture (saṁhitā) has been taught here in order to destroy (the individual soul's) impurity. (52)

(It is a) 'sūtra' because it is by this that (the teaching) is expounded (sūcita). Moreover, it is the 'Root Sūtra' because (it is the very) root (of the teaching). He who does not possesses the Wisdom Sūtra, (or) who understands it in another (incorrect) way, does not possess the sūtra, nor the root (of the teaching), nor knowledge of that which is to be known. (53-54ab)

न कुलं च क्रमं नैव नाचार्य[२०५] नैव पुत्रकम्[२०६] ॥ ५४ ॥
तस्मात् सर्वप्रयत्नेन मूलसूत्रं समाश्रयेत्[२०७] ।

श्रीनाथ उवाच

क्रमौघं[२०८] मूलसूत्रं तु प्रज्ञासूत्रेण बोधितम् ॥ ५५ ॥
त्वन्मुखाच्च मया ज्ञातं सिद्धोऽहं नात्र संशयः ।
दिव्यानन्दप्रकाशोऽयं[२०९] उत्पन्नस्त्वत्प्रसादतः[२१०] ॥ ५६ ॥

ऐँ[२११] नमोऽस्तु ते महामाये अजिते तेजरूपिणि[२१२] ।
सोममण्डलमध्यस्थे[२१३] नादरूपे खमाश्रिते[२१४] ॥ ५७ ॥

ऐंकारविग्रहावस्थे[२१५] दिव्यलिङ्गे नपुंसके ।
कलिस्यां[२१६] परमे मातः[२१७] अन्ते[२१८] अम्बे[२१९] कुलाम्बिके ॥ ५८ ॥

आदिपीठसमुद्भूते[२२०] पञ्चाशत्पीठमाश्रिते[२२१] ।
वह्निकपिलसंकाशे[२२२] स्फुरन्नाडीप्रबोधके ॥ ५९ ॥

विसर्गान्ते[२२३] समुद्भूते वाग्भवे परमेश्वरि ।
हकारार्धकलाधारे शून्यभूते खगोदिते[२२४] ॥ ६० ॥

बिन्दुस्थे चैव चन्द्रस्थे खेचरीचक्रमाश्रिते ।
देवीनां गुरुमानाम्बे[२२५] कुब्जिके परमेश्वरि ॥ ६१ ॥

ईश्वरान्तर्गते मातः[२२६] आत्मानन्दविभेदिते ।
कूटस्थे देवदेवेशि[२२७] योगपीठे व्यवस्थिते ॥ ६२ ॥

दुर्गमार्गोदिते[२२८] भीमे मण्डलान्ते कलौ युगे ।
आवर्ते च निरावर्ते[२२९] लये[२३०] विश्रामकारिणि[२३१] ॥ ६३ ॥

(He has) no Kula, no Krama, no teacher and no disciple. Therefore, one should make every effort to attend (to the meaning of) the Root Sūtra. (54cd-55ab)

Śrīnātha said:

From your mouth I have know the Current of the Krama, that is, the Root Sūtra, explained by the Wisdom Sūtra. (Thus) I have achieved the goal (siddho 'ham): there is no doubt about it. This is the light of divine bliss which has arisen by your grace. (55cd-56)

The Māyāstava[58]

AIṀ! Salutations to you who are Mahāmāyā! Unconquered one! Radiant energy (tejas)! You who reside in the centre of the Circle of the Moon! You who are Sound! O you who reside in the Void (of Ultimate Reality)![59] (57)

O Mother! O Mother of Kula! (Salutations to you) who abide in the form of the syllable AIṀ! (O you who are) the Divine Liṅga (divyaliṅga)! O (female) Neuter (napuṁsakā)![60] O Supreme Mother in the end of the Age of Strife![61] (58)

(Salutations to you) who have arisen from the primordial sacred seat and are established in the fifty sacred seats,[62] tawny like fire and who, pulsing effulgently (sphuran), awakens the channel (nāḍī) (of Kuṇḍalinī)![63] (59)

(Salutations to you) O Supreme Goddess, O Vāgbhava (AIṀ)! (You) arise at the end of emission (visarga), the foundation of the energy of half of the letter Ha, the Void arisen as the Skyfarer![64] (60)

(Salutations to you who are) established in the Point, in the Moon and the Wheel of the Skyfarers (khecarīcakra), O Supreme Goddess Kubjikā! O mother respected as the most senior (gurumānāmbe) of (all) the goddesses![65] (61)

(Salutations to you) O Mother who are within the Lord (īśvara)! (You are) endowed with the bliss of the Self! O Mistress of the God of the gods! (You) reside in the Peak (seed-syllable)! (You) abide within the Sacred Seat of Yoga![66] (62)

(Salutations to you who have) arisen on the path (of Kuṇḍalinī) that is difficult to approach (durgamārgoditā)! O horrifying one (bhīmā) within the maṇḍala in the Age of Strife! O whirpool (of energy) (āvartā)! Free of rotation (nirāvrtā), (you) bring about repose within merger![67] (63)

मङ्गला त्वं महादेवि ॐकारपीठमाश्रिते[२३२] ।
देवि जालन्धरे[२३३] माये पूर्णपीठे अधोमुखि[२३४] ।। ६४ ।।

त्वं च कामेश्वरी क्लिन्ने योगिनी कामरूपके ।
माया त्वं भैरवीशक्तिर्नायकी[२३५] पीठपञ्चके[२३६] ।। ६५ ।।

काली त्वं चैव उज्जैन्यां[२३७] अर्धपीठेश्वरेश्वरी[२३८] ।
त्वं च पीठोपपीठेषु त्वमाद्या क्रममण्डले[२३९] ।। ६६ ।।

पञ्चप्रणवमध्यस्थे पूर्णान्ते कुलमातरे[२४०] ।
मातृचक्रस्थिते देवि षड्योगिनिपरावृते[२४१] ।। ६७ ।।

त्वं च सा डाकिनी[२४२] माया अप्रमेयातितेजसा ।
किङ्किणी ज्वालघोषाणां वीणापटहदुन्दुभी[२४३] ।। ६८ ।।

त्रिधामधामसंघट्टे[२४४] त्रिधागतिसमाश्रिते[२४५] ।
त्रिप्रकारगते[२४६] शान्ते मातृमन्त्रतनुप्रिये ।। ६९ ।।

ऐंकारासनमारूढे[२४७] बिन्दुरूपे त्रिधागते ।
ह्रींकारजननि[२४८] देवि[२४९] क्षाँ क्षाँ क्लींकारभेदनि[२५०] ।। ७० ।।

व्यापकि[२५१] व्याप्तिवर्णानां याँराँलाँवाँनिवासिनि[२५२] ।
हेमहेमावति[२५३] देवि हंसिनि[२५४] हंसमध्यगे ।। ७१ ।।

हंसनादेश्वरि[२५५] भीमे वक्रदेहे[२५६] अधोमुखि[२५७] ।
सुभगे[२५८] विमले शान्ते प्रमेयज्ञानवल्लभे ।। ७२ ।।

O Great Goddess! (you) reside in the sacred seat of OṀ! You are Maṅgalā (Auspicious)! (Salutations to you) O goddess! O Māyā! (You are in the sacred seat of) Jālandhara! (You) face downwards in the sacred seat of Pūrṇa(-giri)![68] (64)

O Klinnā (Wet One), you are Kāmeśvarī (Mistress of Passion), the Yoginī in Kāmarūpa. You are Māyā, the energy Bhairavī and mistress in the five sacred seats.[69] (65)

And you are Kālī in Ujjain and the mistress of the Lord of the Half Sacred Seat.[70] You (are present in all) the sacred seats, (both) primary and secondary;[71] you are the first (goddess) (ādyā) in the Kramamaṇḍala. (66)

(Salutations to you), O Mother of Kula (who is) within the Full (Moon) in the midst of the Five Praṇavas;[72] (you) reside, O goddess, in the Wheel of Mātṛkā surrounded by the six Yoginīs.[73] (67)

You are Ḍākinī who is Māyā, immeasurable due to (your) intense energy (atitejas). Not an object of knowledge, (you are) the radiant energy beyond. (You are) Kiṅkiṇī (Tinkle), the vīṇā, the barrel drum and kettledrum[74] of the roaring sounds of the flaming fire (of consciousness). (68)

O conjunction (saṁghaṭṭa)[75] of the abode of the three abodes! You who are established in the threefold movement (of energy) and are of three kinds! Peaceful one! You are the beloved whose body is mantra and the letters (mātṛ)! (69)

O you who are in the form of the Point! Threefold, you are seated on the seat that is the letter AIṀ! O (you who) are the mother of the syllable HRĪṀ! O goddess who pierces through (bhedanī) the syllables KṢĀṀ, KṢĀṀ and KLĪṀ.[76] (70)

You pervade (vyāpakī) the letters of pervasion (vyāptivarṇa)! (You) reside in (the seed-syllables) YĀṀ, RĀṀ, LĀṀ and VĀṀ! O goddess! O golden daughter of the mountains! O (you who are) amidst the Gander (haṁsa)! (Indeed, you are) the female Gander (haṁsiṇī)![77] (71)

O terrible one (bhīmā)! Your body is crooked and you face downwards! O (you who are) the mistress of (Unstruck) Sound! O fair one! O pure and peaceful one! O you who are the beloved of the knowledge of that which is to be known! (72)

ब्रह्मरूपस्वरूपे च ऐँ–ह्रीँ–श्रीँ–समयावृते ।
ह्रीँकारत्रिगुणावर्ते[२५९] ह्रीँ ह्रीँ मन्त्रतनु[२६०] प्रिये ।। ७३ ।।

मायारूपधरीदेवि गजजिह्वे गजेश्वरि ।
त्वमेव विद्युज्जिह्वा च[२६१] ह्राँ ह्रीँ ह्रूँ[२६२] च[२६३] भगोद्भवे ।। ७४ ।।

भवोद्भवे भवातीते तुर्यस्थे[२६४] तुर्यमूर्धनि ।
प्रशान्तपदमारूढे[२६५] षट्त्यागात्[२६६] सप्तमेश्वरि ।। ७५ ।।

सूक्ष्मे चैव सुसूक्ष्मे[२६७] च सुस्थिते[२६८] च सुराधिपे ।
आनन्दे[२६९] च निरानन्दे[२७०] अमरीक्रमभूषिते ।। ७६ ।।

ग्लूँकारे[२७१] पार्थिवे ब्राह्मी[२७२] स्लूँकारे[२७३] त्वं च[२७४] वैष्णवी ।
प्लूँकारे त्वं कुले रौद्री म्लूँकारे[२७५] त्वं च ईश्वरी ।। ७७ ।।

न्लूँकारे[२७६] नायकी नन्दा नित्यानन्दपरे[२७७] रता ।
माया त्वं सर्वसिद्धीना[२७८] पीठानां संस्थिता उमे ।। ७८ ।।

मे माते[२७९] परमे माये मे शिवे मे सरस्वति ।
मे माता मे च मे भार्या मे च जीवान्तरालये ।। ७९ ।।

प्रभुर्मे[२८०] दिव्यशक्तिस्त्वं आरक्ते[२८१] तत्त्ववाससे ।
सर्वाङ्गसुन्दरि[२८२] क्लिन्ने जीवनाडिगते शुभे ।। ८० ।।

ह्राँह्रीँह्रूँकारमन्त्रैस्तु[२८३] चलसे[२८४] स्यन्दसे[२८५] जगत् ।
मन्त्रावेशपदे गौरि शक्त्यन्ते[२८६] च समाश्रिते ।। ८१ ।।

O you whose nature is the absolute (brahmarūpa)! You are enveloped in AIṀ, HRĪṀ and ŚRĪṀ,[78] (which are the seed-syllables of the) Rule (samaya)! You are enveloped by the three qualities (guṇa) of the syllable HRĪṀ![79] You are the beloved whose body is the mantra HRĪṀ HRĪṀ! (73)

O goddess who bears the form of Māyā! O Gajajihvā (Elephant-tongued)! O Gajeśvarī (Mistress of the Elephants)! And you are also Vidyujjihvā (Lightning Tongue)[80]! HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRŪṀ! O (you) who have emerged from the Yoni (bhagodbhava). (74)

O you who emerge out of phenomenal existence and are beyond it! You are established within the Fourth State at the head of the Fourth State! O you who are mounted on the plane of perfect tranquillity! By abandoning the six (lower states), you are the mistress of the seventh (supreme one)![81] (75)

O subtle one, O extremely subtle one! O mistress of the gods, well established! O bliss! O Bliss of Stillness! You are adorned with the Transmission of Amarī (the Immortal One)! (76)

You are Brāhmī in the earth syllable GLŪṀ and Vaiṣṇavī in the syllable SLŪṀ. You are Raudrī in the Kula in the syllable PLŪṀ and Īśvarī in the syllable MLŪṀ.[82] (77)

You are the mistress Nandā in the syllable NLŪṀ, devoted to the supreme and eternal bliss within it.[83] O Umā! You are established as the magic (māyā) of all magical powers (siddhi) of the sacred seats. (78)

O my mother! Supreme One! Māyā! My Śivā! My Sarasvatī! O innermost recess of my soul! You are my mother, you are my wife. (79)

You are my lord and my Divine Power. Intensely passionate one (āraktā)! (You) reside in (ultimate) reality (tattva)! O (you who) are beautiful in every limb! O wet one! O auspicious one! (You) are present in the Channel of the Soul (jīvanāḍī)![84] (80)

By means of the mantras consisting of the syllables HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRŪṀ, you move and melt the universe.[85] O Gaurī! (You are) on the plane of possession (āveśa) (brought about by) mantra. You are at the extremity of Power![86] (81)

कुलमातङ्गिनीचक्रे विद्यादेवीति[२८७] कुब्जिके ।
पूर्णचन्द्रनिभाकारे चन्द्रपूर्णभगानने[२८८] ॥ ८२ ॥

सप्ताविंशपदैर्भेदै:[२८९] अष्टाविंशत्पदोद्भवे[२९०] ।
चक्रनायकि कौलीशे[२९१] ईश्वरीकुलमाश्रिते[२९२] ॥ ८३ ॥

सिद्धपञ्चाशरूपेण[२९३] कमले कमलेश्वरि ।
अट्टहाससमुद्भूते[२९४] हंसमण्डलभूषिते ॥ ८४ ॥

सोममण्डलमध्यस्थे माया त्वं सूर्यमण्डले ।
त्वमग्निमण्डलान्तस्थे दीप्तजिह्वे[२९५] महेश्वरि ॥ ८५ ॥

वायुवेगे मनान्तस्थे[२९६] परापरविसर्पिते ।
शून्ये शून्यान्तरावस्थे मारुति[२९७] सिद्धसेविते ॥ ८६ ॥

निरालम्बे गते देवि आकाशे दुरतिक्रमे[२९८] ।
ज्ञानविज्ञानगम्भीरे ज्ञेयरूपे[२९९] च केवले ॥ ८७ ॥

स्थितिलयकरीदेवि[३००] जननि[३०१] तत्त्वमण्डले ।
तत्त्वानां[३०२] क्षोभणी शक्ति:[३०३] अज्ञानतमभेदनी[३०४] ॥ ८८ ॥

मातरी[३०५] सर्वदेवानां मम प्राणप्रिये उमे ।
विश्वेश्वरी[३०६] जगद्धात्री संप्रदायप्रदायिनी[३०७] ॥ ८९ ॥

नमस्ते परनिर्वाणे जगद्योनिमहाम्बिके[३०८] ।
स्मर त्वं समयं[३०९] पूर्वं स्नेहेन मनविग्रहम्[३१०] ॥ ९० ॥
तुष्टा[३११] भव परेऽस्माकं माता[३१२] त्वं त्रिदशैरपि ।

इति मायास्तवं[३१३] प्रोक्तं योगीवाणीक्रमागतम्[३१४] ॥ ९१ ॥
तस्यावतारं कुरुते वक्रिका पीठदेवता ।

O Kubjikā! (You are) the goddess of the Vidyā (Vidyādevī) in the Wheel of Kulamātaṅginī (the Kula Sweeper-woman). O you whose face is the Yoni of the Full Moon, and whose form is like that of the full moon![87] (82)

O you who have emerged from the parts (pada) of the (Sequence of) Twenty-eight divided into twenty-seven parts (pada)![88] O Mistress of the Wheel! O Mistress of Kula! (You are) established in the Īśvarīkula! (83)

O Mistress of the Lotus! (You are) in the Lotus (Maṇḍala) in the form of the fifty Siddhas. You have come forth from Aṭṭahāsa[89] and are adorned with the Circle of the Gander (haṁsamaṇḍala)! (84)

O you who reside in the middle of the Circle of the Moon (somamaṇḍala)! In the Circle of the Sun, you are Māyā. O Maheśvarī! Flaming tongue! You reside within the Circle of Fire![90] (85)

O you who are the force of the Wind and reside within the mind! You have emerged from the supreme (transcendence) and the inferior (immanence)! O Void! You are the vital breath (mārutī)! (You) reside within the Void and are served by the Siddhas! (86)

O goddess! You are within Space which is unsustained and hard to traverse! You are profound with knowledge and consciousness! O (you who) should be known! O you who are alone (and unique)![91] (87)

O goddess who brings about persistence and merger! O Mother in the Circle of the Principles of Existence![92] (You) shatter the darkness of ignorance and are the energy that arouses the principles (to engage in their functions). (88)

O Umā! You who are dear to my (very) life! You are my mother and (the mother) of the gods. You are the mistress of all things, the benefactor of the universe, she who bestows the tradition.[93] (89)

Salutations to you who are the supreme Nirvāṇa! O Great Mother, Womb of the universe! Recall with affection the form of the mind, your ancient Rule. You who are the mother even of the gods, be satisfied with us![94] (90-91ab)

Thus the Hymn to Māyā (Māyāstava) has been uttered. It has come through the transmission of yogis' speech and Vakrikā, the deity of the sacred seat, brings it down (into the world). (91cd-92ab)

सुखमारोग्यसंपत्तिमवस्थां[३१५] लभते नरः ॥ ९२ ॥
सर्वपापविनिर्मुक्तो भवते तत्क्षणादपि ।
न तस्य पुनरावृत्तिर्मायास्तवमुदीरणात्[३१६] ॥ ९३ ॥

इहैव प्राप्नुयाद् भोगान्[३१७] लाभं[३१८] पूजायशः[३१९] श्रियः ।
अवस्था क्रमयुक्तस्य पारम्पर्येण[३२०] तस्य च ॥ ९४ ॥
समयाचारयुक्तस्य तीव्राज्ञा संप्रवर्तते ।

इत्याद्यावतारे महामन्थानभैरवयज्ञे अन्वये सप्तकोटिप्रमाणे मेरुमार्गविनिर्गते[३२१]
लक्षपादाधिके आद्यपीठावतारिते[३२२] विद्यापीठमार्गे विमलषट्कनिर्णये[३२३]
कादिभेदे[३२४] आज्ञापारमेश्वरे[३२५] स्वामिनीमते श्रीचतुर्विंशत्सहस्र—
संहितायां[३२६] अव्वाक्रमभाषिते[३२७] मूलसूत्राधिकारवर्णने
मायास्तवाधिकारो नामानन्दः[३२८] ॥ २६ ॥

(Through it) a man achieves happiness, the state (of liberation) and the wealth of good health, and in that very moment he is freed of all sin. By reciting the Hymn to Māyā, there is no more return for him (into this world). In this very place he gains profit, enjoyments, the fame of (performing) the sacred rites (pūjā) and (many forms of) wealth (and power) (śrī). (92cd-94ab)

He possesses the state of one who is part of the transmission (kramayukta) because he belongs to the lineage. And, intent on the Practice of the Rule (samayācāra), an intense (level of the) Command operates (within) him. (94cd-95ab)

This is the (twenty-sixth) chapter dedicated to the Hymn to Māyā that forms a part of the Description of the Authority of the Root Sūtra. It belongs to the primordial descent into the great sacrifice of the Churning Bhairava in the tradition (anvaya) that consists of seventy million (verses) that has emerged on the Path of Meru and (extends) for more than a hundred thousand quarter (verses). It has been brought (down to earth) into the first sacred seat along the path of the Seat of Knowledge (vidyāpīṭha). It is the ultimate purport of the Pure Six Thousand (verses) (vimalaṣaṭka) in the division beginning with ‘KĀ' in the venerable scripture of twenty-four thousand (verses) (known as) the Svāminīmata of the Supreme Lord's command as uttered within the Tradition of the Mother (avvākrama).

सप्तविंशानन्दः

श्रीनाथ उवाच

देवि सिद्धे[१] जगत्स्वामि[२] आदिनाथे[३] कुलोद्भवे ।
ब्रूहि[४] ज्ञानोपदेशं तु यत् सारं पश्चिमान्वये ॥ १ ॥
प्रकटं कुरु[५] कौलीशे पूजा—आगममण्डलम्[६] ।

श्रीवक्रा उवाच[७]

सारं शैवस्य जगतो[८] भुवनाकृतिमण्डलम् ॥ २ ॥
बाह्यस्थं च स्वदेहस्थं अन्तरङ्गं चिदात्मकम् ।
तदहं संप्रवक्ष्यामि[९] गुरुमण्डलकं यथा ॥ ३ ॥

योऽसौ[१०] अनादिरव्यक्तः[११] शिवः परमकारणः ।
मन्त्रमूर्तिरभून्नाथ[१२] लोकानुग्रहहेतुना ॥ ४ ॥

अवतीर्णस्तु भूलोके[१३] अनुग्रहकरः परः ।
पूज्योऽसौ[१४] मण्डले देव नवात्मानन्दभैरवः ॥ ५ ॥

पञ्चमूर्तिधरो नाथः षोडशावयवान्वितः ।
नवधामूर्तिमाश्रित्य[१५] अवतीर्णः कलौ युगे ॥ ६ ॥
पञ्चाशद्रुद्रमूर्तिस्थो[१६] यथा पूज्यस्तथा[१७] शृणु[१८] ।

तस्योद्धारं[१९] महादेव श्लोकैः पञ्चभिः सूचितम्[२०] ॥ ७ ॥
अकारे चत्वरे[२१] मध्ये पञ्चमं[२२] च तथा पुनः ।
लकयक्षतनं[२३] रमडखं[२४] चेति विपर्ययेत्[२५] ॥ ८ ॥
ड[२६] ढ[२७] ठ ट दपर्यन्तं सृष्ट्या[२८] मेरोर्विनिर्गतम् ।
मण्डलं तं[२९] स्मृतं देव द्वितीयं चाधिकारयोः[३०] ॥ ९ ॥

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

The Maṇḍala of the Transmission (kramamaṇḍala) and the Maṇḍala of the Teachers (gurumaṇḍala)

The Maṇḍala of the Teachers

Śrīnātha said:

O goddess! O accomplished one (siddhā)! Lord (svāmin) of the universe! O first teacher (ādināthā)! O outpouring of Kula! Impart the teaching concerning the knowledge which is the essence of the Western Tradition (anvaya). O Kaulīsā, make the Maṇḍala of the Scripture and the rite of adoration clear (to me). (1-2ab)

The venerable (goddess) Vakrā said:

The essence of the Śaiva (scripture) is the maṇḍala of the universe whose form is that of the worlds. It is located (both) outside (in the external world) and within one's own body. The (most) internal one is (pure) consciousness. I will explain this, the Maṇḍala of the Teachers (gurumaṇḍala).[1] (2cd-3)

He who is beginningless, unmanifest, benign (śiva) and the supreme cause assumed, O Lord, a form consisting of mantra in order to grace the world. (4)

Having descended into the world, he is the supreme bestower of grace. He, the Bhairava of the bliss of Navātman should, O god, be worshipped in the maṇḍala. (5)

He is the Lord (nātha) who has five forms (pañcamūrti) and possesses the sixteen limbs (avayava). Having entered into the ninefold form,[2] he has descended down (into the world) during the Age of Strife and resides in the form of the fifty Rudras. Listen to how he should be worshipped. (6-7ab)

O Great God, the enunciation of his (mantra) is outlined in (the following) five verses: in the letter A, in the fourth, in the middle and, again, the fifth and (then) the reverse La Ka Ya KṢa Ta Naṁ and Ra Ma Ḍa Khaṁ. Ḍa Ḍha Ṭha up to Da have come forth from Meru by way of (the order of) emanation. That, O god, is said to be the second maṇḍala of the two who have authority.[3] (7cd-9)

इन्द्र आपस्तथा तेजो वायुराकाशमेव च ।
ज्ञानोऽय[३१] कुण्डली कोटिः[३२] तृतीया वरवर्णिनि[३३] ॥ १० ॥

हृदय[३४] समय[३५] चैव सर्वज्ञं च कदम्बकम् ।
खगीशं गुरुनाथं च रत्नबीजं चतुर्थकम् ॥ ११ ॥
कदम्बं विमलौघ[३६] च समयं भैरवावली ।
पादुकान्ते[३७] मनु[३८] स्मृत्वा पूजयेद्[३९] गुरुमण्डलम् ॥ १२ ॥

विद्यापीठाग्रतो देव गुरुमण्डलपूजनम् ।
पूर्वक्रमे[४०] यथा चोक्तं पञ्चासनसमन्वितम् ॥ १३ ॥

प्रसादत्रयसंभिन्नं अर्चयेत्[४१] गुरु[४२] पञ्चधा ।
ईशकोणात्[४३] समारभ्य यावन्मध्यं तु पञ्चमम् ॥ १४ ॥

मण्डलं चाधिकार[४४] च सिद्धाः[४५] समय[४६] योगिनी ।
पञ्चधा पञ्चभिर्भिन्नं[४७] पञ्चधाकौलिनीयुतम्[४८] ॥ १५ ॥

वाग्भवं मायया सार्धं लक्ष्मीप्रसादभेदितम्[४९] ।
नवात्मानन्दसंयुक्तं पञ्चभिर्गुरुमण्डलम्[५०] ॥ १६ ॥
पादुकान्तं महादेव पूजयेत् सततं वरम् ।

अन्तरङ्गगताः[५१] पूज्याः[५२] मण्डलानि तथात्मनि ॥ १७ ॥
आधारे प्रथमं प्रोक्तं द्वितीयं योनिमण्डले ।
तृतीयं नाभिचक्रे तु चतुर्थं[५३] च[५४] अनाहते ॥ १८ ॥
पञ्चमं कण्ठदेशे तु आदिनाथं तु मूर्धनि ।
श्रीकण्ठादि पिङ्गलान्त[५५] पञ्चधा पञ्च कल्पितम् ॥ १९ ॥

प्रभाते चैव मध्याह्ने[५६] सन्ध्याकाले[५७] तु सुन्दर ।
विद्यापीठाग्रतः कुर्यात्[५८] गुरोरग्रे तु पञ्चधा ॥ २० ॥
आराधनं तु[५९] कर्तव्यं संपूर्णं सिद्धिदं भवेत् ।
न रिक्तं मण्डलं कुर्यात्[६०] गुरोरग्रे कदाचन ॥ २१ ॥

Earth (indra), Water, Fire (tejas), Wind and Sky[4] – O most excellent lady of the gods, this is knowledge, Kuṇḍalī, which is the third polarity. (10)

One should worship the Maṇḍala of the Teachers having recollected the mantra which the (Teacher's) Sandals (pāduka), and (having worshipped therein) 1) the Heart, 2) the Rule, 3) the omniscient Kadambaka Tree, Khagīśa, who is the Lord and Teacher (gurunātha), 4) the seed-syllable of the Jewel (ratnabīja) as the fourth, 5) the Kadamba which is the pure Current (of the teaching), and 6) the Rule which is the series of Bhairavas. (11-12)

O god, the worship of the Maṇḍala of the Teachers takes place in front of the Seat of Knowledge (vidyāpīṭha) as explained in the preceding transmission (pūrvakrama).[5] (13abc)

The (Maṇḍala of the) Teachers has five seats and is conjoined with three (repetitions of the syllable of) Grace (prasāda – HSRŪAUṀ).[6] The teacher, fivefold, should be worshipped starting from the north-east corner up to the center, where the fifth (resides). (13d-14)

(The following should be worshipped): the Maṇḍala, Authority, the Siddhas, the Rule and the Yoginī. (Thus the Circle of the Teachers), divided into (these) five, is fivefold and is endowed with the fivefold Kaulinī (Vidyā).[7] (15)

The Circle of the Teacher (is formed) by means of (the following) five: (the seed-syllable called) Vāgbhava (AIṀ) along with Māyā (HRĪṀ), is conjoined with Lakṣmī (ŚRĪṀ) and Grace (KHPHREṀ) and is endowed with the bliss of Navātman (HSKṢMLVRYŪṀ).[8] O Great God, one should constantly worship (this, the) best of things within the (Teacher's) Sandals (pādukā). (16-17ab)

The Inner Worship of the Maṇḍala of the Teachers

One should worship the internal maṇḍalas within oneself in the same way. The first is said to be in the Foundation, the second is in the Maṇḍala of the Yoni, the third in the Maṇḍala of the Navel, the fourth in (the Maṇḍala of) Unstruck Sound, the fifth in the throat, while Ādinātha (the Primordial Lord) is in the head. The five, fivefold, are conceived to begin with Śrīkaṇṭha and end with Piṅgala.[9] (17cd-19)

One should do (this) five times at dawn, noon and at sunset, O fair one; one should worship in front of the Seat of Knowledge (vidyāpīṭha) and the teacher. (If the worship is) complete, (it) bestows success. One should never (leave) the maṇḍala empty at any time in front of the teacher.[10] (20-21)

यथावित्तानुसारेण कृत्वा संपूर्णपूजनम्[६१] ।
आरात्री[६२] चन्दनं दीप[६३] वीरद्रव्यसमन्वितम् ।। २२ ।।
निवेदनं प्रकर्तव्यं साष्टाङ्गं[६४] च नमस्करेत् ।
त्रिधा च पञ्चधा चैव साष्टाङ्गं[६५] दण्डवत् सुधीः ।। २३ ।।

प्रदक्षिणशतं कृत्वा पूजयेद् गुरुपादुकाम् ।
एतदाचारसमयं[६६] पालयेत् सततं बुधः ।। २४ ।।

पालनाद् भवते सिद्धिः[६७] अन्यथा नरकं व्रजेत् ।
ओलिपर्वेषु सर्वेषु नित्यनैमित्तिकेषु च ।। २५ ।।
मण्डलक्रमपूजायां सर्वं[६८] संपूर्णतां व्रजेत् ।

अतः परं प्रवक्ष्यामि शृणु भैरव तत्त्वतः ।। २६ ।।
श्रीक्रमं तु ततः पूज्यं[६९] यथोक्तं श्रीकुलागमे ।
तस्यावतारं संक्षेपात् पर्यङ्के सततं कुरु ।। २७ ।।

मृगाजिने तु संकल्प्य आसने वाग्भवं शुभम् ।
श्रीखण्डचन्दनं शुद्धं[७०] कंकुमं चालिमिश्रितम्[७१] ।। २८ ।।

अभिमन्त्र्य च विद्यायाः क्रमं लिख्य[७२] त्रिधाविधम्[७३] ।
आद्यक्रमस्य वृद्धस्य[७४] योगपीठं त्रिधोदितम्[७५] ।। २९ ।।
तद्बाह्ये लिख्य[७६] षट्कोणं[७७] ऐंकारेण[७८] तु वेष्टयेत् ।

अष्टारं पद्मकं बाह्ये मेखलात्रितयावृतम्[७९] ।। ३० ।।
चतुष्कोणं[८०] तु[८१] तद्बाह्ये संलिख्यं[८२] च सुसूत्रितम्[८३] ।

षट्कोणचक्रसंयुक्तं[८४] कौमारस्य क्रमं लिखेत् ।। ३१ ।।
अष्टारपद्मसंयुक्तं[८५] क्रमं बालक्रमस्य च ।
एवं ते क्रमभेदोऽयं[८६] मण्डलस्य प्रकाशितम् ।। ३२ ।।

Once one has made the mind full (and satisfied) according to one's means, one should make the offering of a flame (ārātrika), sandalwood and a lamp along with the substance of the Heroes, and salute (the maṇḍala) with a full-length prostration. The man of sound intellect should prostrate the full length (of his body, as straight as) a stick three or five times. (22-23)

Having circumabulated it a hundred times, one should worship the teacher's sandals. The wise man should always observe this, the rule of (right) conduct. (24)

By observing it (he gets) success (siddhi); otherwise, (if he fails to do so), he goes to hell. (He should perform this ritual) on the lunar days sacred to the lineages (oliparva) and in the course of the regular and occasional rites. Through the rite of worship (krama) of the maṇḍala everything is perfectly fulfilled. (25-26ab)

The Kramamaṇḍala

O Bhairava, now I will expound the next (teaching) as, in truth, it is. Listen. The Śrīkrama should be worshipped next, as explained in the scripture of the Śrīkula. You should always perform (the rite of) its descent onto the pedastal (paryaṅka) (of the maṇḍala).[11] (26cd-27)

One must first fashion the auspicious Vāgbhava (AIṀ) on a seat made of deerskin with pure sandalwood (paste) and vermillion mixed with wine. (28)

Having invoked and written the threefold transmission (krama) of the Vidyā, (next comes) the Sacred Seat of Yoga (yogapīṭha)[12] of the first sequence, which is that of the Aged, and which has manifest (udita) threefold.[13] (Then,) having drawn a hexagon outside it, (the Point) should be enveloped with the syllable AIṀ.[14] (29-30ab)

Outside (the hexagon) is a lotus of eight rays encompassed by three round enclosing lines (mekhala) and, outside that, a well-formed square should be drawn. (30cd-31ab)

Having done that, one must draw the Transmission of the Youth, in conjunction with the wheel of the hexagon and the sequence of the Transmission of the Child in conjunction with the lotus with eight rays. In this way, this division of the Kramas of the maṇḍala has been revealed to you. (31cd-32)

न्यासभेदं यथा[८७] देव वृद्धकौमारबालके[८८] ।

प्रथमः[८९] शब्दराशिस्तु द्वितीया मालिनी तथा ।। ३३ ।।
विद्यात्रितयमेवं तु तदङ्गानि चतुर्थकम् ।
अघोर्यष्टकमेवं तु तथा सिद्धाङ्गपञ्चकम् ।। ३४ ।।

षोढान्यासमिदं कृत्वा पश्चाद् यजनमारभेत्[९०] ।
वृद्धक्रमस्य[९१] ज्येष्ठस्य न्यासावरणमुत्तमम्[९२] ।। ३५ ।।

अथ मध्यमसिद्धस्य कौमारस्य[९३] यथाक्रमम् ।
प्रथमं[९४] तद्ग्रहं[९५] क्षेत्रं द्वितीयं बीजपञ्चकम् ।। ३६ ।।
द्वादशाङ्गं तृतीयं च सिद्धाङ्गं च चतुर्थकम् ।
पञ्चमं तु षडङ्गं स्यात् पीठन्यासं तु षष्ठकम्[९६] ।। ३७ ।।
खेचरं[९७] सप्तमं नाम कृत्वा यजनमारभेत् ।

अथ तृतीयकं वक्ष्ये[९८] क्रमस्यावरणं[९९] पुनः ।। ३८ ।।
प्रथमा समया विद्या सिद्धाङ्गं च द्वितीयकम् ।
तृतीयं तु षडङ्गं स्यात्[१००] श्लोकानि[१०१] तु चतुर्थकम्[१०२] ।। ३९ ।।
पञ्चमं चाधिकारं[१०३] स्यात् षष्ठं क्षेत्रपरिग्रहम्[१०४] ।
सप्तमं रत्नविन्यासं विद्यान्यासं तथाष्टमम् ।। ४० ।।
एवं न्यासक्रमं न्यस्य[१०५] पश्चाद् बालक्रमं यजेत् ।

क्रमाणां मण्डलं ज्ञात्वा एकचक्रे तु पश्चिमे ।। ४१ ।।
सिद्धाङ्गं च षडङ्गं च द्वावेतौ तु विशोधयेत् ।

The Depositions of the Three Transmissions

O god, (I will now tell you) of the various depositions (to be performed in the Transmissions) of the Aged, the Youth and the Child.[15] (33ab)

The Depositions of the Transmission of the Aged

1) The first is that of the Assembly of Sounds, 2) the second is Mālinī, 3) then the triple Vidyās and 4) its limbs as the fourth, 5) the Octad of Aghorī and 6) the Pentad of the Limbs of the Siddhas.[16] (33cd-34)

Once one has performed this sixfold deposition (ṣoḍhānyāsa), one should commence the sacrifice. (This), the covering of the deposition of the Transmission of the Aged – namely, that of the Eldest (jyeṣṭha) – is the best. (35)

The Depositions of the Transmission of the Youth

Now, in due order, comes (the Transmission) of the middle Siddha, that of the Youth. 1) The first is (the deposition of) the field of Tadgraha, 2) the second is the Five Seeds, 3) the Twelve-limbed is the third, 4) the Body of the Siddhas is the fourth, 5) the fifth is the Six Limbs (ṣaḍaṅga) while 6) the Deposition of the Sacred Seats is the sixth. And having performed the seventh, namely 7) that of the Skyfarer, commence the sacrifice.[17] (36-38ab)

The Depositions of the Transmission of the Child

Now, again, I will tell (you) the third sphere (āvaraṇa) of the Transmission. The first is the Samayā (Vidyā). The second is the Body of the Siddhas. The third is the Six-limbed. The (Twelve) Verses is the fourth. The fifth is (the Triple) Authority. The sixth is the Enclosure of the Field. The seventh is the deposition of the (Five) Jewels, while the eighth is the deposition of the Vidyā.[18] Having deposited the sequence of the depositions (nyāsakrama) in this way, one should afterwards offer sacrifice to the Transmission of the Child. (38cd-41ab)

Having learned the maṇḍala of the Transmissions within the one Wheel of the Western (Kula), one should purify these two, namely, the Limb of the Siddhas and the Six-limbed. (41cd-42ab)

विश्वामित्रकपालं तु सुसिद्धं योगिनां शुभम् ।। ४२ ।।
पीठाग्रे द्रव्यसंपूर्णं व्रतीनां नृकपालकम् ।

कोङ्कणास्त्रेण संशोध्य कवचेनावगुण्ठयेत् ।। ४३ ।।
मूर्तिं प्रविश्य[१०६] हृदये[१०७] नेत्रे[१०८] षण्मुखमाहरेत् ।
शिखासान्निध्यकरणं संपूर्णं तु शिरेण[१०९] तु ।। ४४ ।।

एवं षड्विधसंस्कारं[११०] मूलविद्यां[१११] नियोजयेत् ।
योनिमुद्रा महामुद्रा तयासौ[११२] मुद्रितो भवेत् ।। ४५ ।।

अवतारं ततो देव करालाख्यं[११३] नियोजयेत् ।
मूलविद्यां[११४] त्रिधा जप्त्वा सान्निध्यं क्रममण्डले ।। ४६ ।।

अपरं द्वितीयं[११५] पात्रं[११६] चन्दनामृतपूरितम् ।
पञ्चकाद्येन[११७] संस्थाप्य पुनस्तेनाभिमन्त्रितम्[११८] ।। ४७ ।।

अथ तृतीयकं पात्रं स्थापितं[११९] रत्नपञ्चके ।
तेन यष्ट्वा[१२०] पुनस्तत्र दक्षिणोत्तरमध्यतः ।। ४८ ।।

एवं[१२१] पात्रत्रयं पूर्वं कृत्वा पूजां[१२२] समारभेत् ।

चन्दनेन तु विन्यासं विद्याया आत्मसन्ततौ[१२३] ।। ४९ ।।
भकारादिचकारान्तं स्थाने स्थाने पृथक् पृथक् ।
आत्मानं धूपितं कुर्याद् विन्यासं मूलविद्यया ।। ५० ।।
अङ्गन्यासं समारभ्य स्व–ओल्या[१२४] तु यथाक्रमम् ।

The Worship of the Transmission (kramārcana)

The First Vessel – the Skull

[19]A coconut in place of a skull (viśvāmitrakapāla) is auspicious for yogis and is easily available (susiddha). For those who observe the Vow, a human skull (should be placed) in front of the maṇḍala,[20] well filled with the sacrificial substances. (42cd-43ab)

It should be enveloped with the Armour once it has been purified with the Weapon of Koṅkaṇa and, having introduced the Form (mūrti) (of the deity) into the Heart,[21] one should bring (Vaṭuka) the Six-faced One[22] into the (third) eye. The invocation[23] of the Topknot (śikhā) is completed by means of the Head. (43cd-44)

(Once performed) the sixfold purification (saṁskāra) in this way, one should apply the root Vidyā. (The adept) is sealed with the Great Gesture (mahāmudrā), that is, with the Gesture of the Yoni (yonimudrā).[24] (45)

Then, O god, one should apply the 'descent' (avatāra) called Karāla. Once (one has) repeated the root Vidyā three times, the presence (of all the mantras) (sānnidhya) (is established) within the Kramamaṇḍala. (46)

The Second Vessel

The other, that is, the second vessel, is filled with the nectar of sandalwood (oil) once it has been installed with the first group of five (mantras) and, again, invoked with those same (mantras). (47)

The Third Vessel

Now the third vessel is placed on the Five Jewels once offerings have been made there, again on the right, on the left and in the middle. (48)

Once the three vessels have been prepared in this way, one should commence the rite of adoration (pūjā). (49ab)

The Vidyā is deposited onto one's own lineage with sandalwood paste. The letters Bha to Ca (of the root Vidyā are placed) individually in (their own) particular place. Having begun the deposition of the limbs in due order within one's own lineage (oli), one should offer incense to the Self and (perform) the deposition with the root Vidyā (49cd-51ab)

तिलतैलाष्टदीपानि[१२५] पञ्चाद्येन प्रदीपयेत् ।। ५१ ।।
दिग्विदिक्षु च[१२६] पीठस्य अधिवासमनन्तरम् ।

चन्दनं धूपसौगन्धकुंकुमाक्षतसंयुतम्[१२७] ।। ५२ ।।
मूलमन्त्रस्य सिद्धस्य कुर्याद् दान[१२८] च सन्ततौ ।

मुद्रात्रितयं कृत्वादौ ततः पूजां समारभेत् ।। ५३ ।।
पूर्वक्रमेण कर्तव्यं देहस्थं क्रमपूजनम् ।
पश्चाद् बाह्ये तु पीठस्थं सबाह्याभ्यन्तरं क्रमम् ।। ५४ ।।

चन्दनाक्षतसंमिश्रैरादौ[१२९] कुर्यात् क्रमार्चनम् ।
श्वेतपुष्पैः सुगन्धैश्च तैस्तु पूज्यं कुलक्रमम्[१३०] ।। ५५ ।।

अभावाद् रक्तपुष्पैस्तु तथा पीतैः सुगन्धिभिः ।
सुमनाचम्पकैः पद्मैस्तथा[१३१] नीलोत्पलैः शुभैः ।। ५६ ।।
देशाचारेण[१३२] लब्धैस्तु[१३३] तैस्तु पूज्यं कुलक्रमम् ।

निर्गन्धैश्च सकण्टकैर्भग्नैः[१३४] संकुचितैर्द्रुमैः[१३५] ।। ५७ ।।
क्रमपूजा न कर्तव्या मनसापि[१३६] सुरेश्वर ।

धूपार्चनं पुनश्चैव पृथक्[१३७] आज्ञाक्रमं पुनः ।। ५८ ।।
अलिपूजा ततः कार्या वैष्णवीपदमात्रतः[१३८] ।
प्रत्यय[१३९] व्याकुलं तत्र महारावः प्रवर्तते ।। ५९ ।।
सान्निध्यमतुलं चोग्रं पशूनां च भयावहम् ।

मूलमन्त्रेण विद्याया वामपाण्यक्षसूत्रकम्[१४०] ।। ६० ।।
स्फाटिकं पुत्रजीवं वा मात्रा अष्टोत्तरं शतं ।
द्विमात्रां वा त्रिमात्रा[१४१] वा इच्छया वा मनीषिणाम्[१४२] ।। ६१ ।।
स्थूल[१४३] वा सूक्ष्ममणि[१४४] वा न मेरु[१४५] लङ्घयेत् क्वचित् ।

After the preliminary purification (adhivāsa), one should, with the first group of five mantras,[25] light eight lamps of sesame oil in the primary and secondary directions (around) the maṇḍala (pīṭha).[26] (51cd-52ab)

One should make an offering to the lineage (santati) of the accomplished root mantra of sandalwood along with vermillion, fragrant with incense and unbroken grains of rice. (52cd-53ab)

Having first made the three gestures,[27] one should commence the rite of adoration. One should perform the worship of the Transmission (kramapūjana) in the body in accord with the previous rite (pūrvakrama). Then (one should worship) the internal and external Transmission externally, in the sacred seat. (53cd-54)

One should first perform the worship of the Transmission (kramārcana) with mixtures of sandalwood paste and unbroken rice grains. One should worship the Kulakrama with white and fragrant flowers. (55)

If there are none, (one may do so) with red or yellow sweet-smelling flowers and with beautiful campaka flowers and auspicious (red) and blue lotuses. One should worship the Kulakrama with those (flowers) obtained according to the common practice of the place. (56-57ab)

O Lord of the gods, one should not worship the Transmission even mentally with flowers that are without smell, that have thorns and sharp points, or that are bent or wilted. (57cd-58ab)

One (should) again worship with incense and (then) (worship) the Transmission of the Command separately. Then the liquor should be worshipped (alipūjā) with the word 'vaiṣṇavī'.[28] (This) stimulates realisation (pratyaya) and the Great Sound (mahārāva) (of Ultimate Reality) arises there. By means of the root mantra of the Vidyā, (the adept experiences) an unequalled proximity (sānnidhya) (to the deity) which, for fettered souls, is terrible and frightening. (58cd-60abc)

The Rosary of the Hand

The left hand can serve as a rosary;[29] otherwise (one can use a rosary made of) crystal or Putraṁjīva.[30] (A single) measure (of the rosary consists of) 108 (beads). (It may be) of double or triple measure as the wise desire. Whether the beads are big or small, one should not cross over the Meru in any circumstance (kvacit).[31] (60d-62ab)

अंगुष्ट[१४६] वर्जयित्वा तु यथा प्राप्त[१४७] चतुष्टयम् ।। ६२ ।।
मध्यमौ[१४८] द्वौ तथा वर्ज्यौ[१४९] वामावर्तपरिभ्रमात् ।
एतत्[१५०] पाणिकृतं जप्यं अक्षसूत्रेण वा कृतम् ।। ६३ ।।

चूलाग्रममलं शुद्धं उपरिस्थमक्षमालया[१५१] ।
तं च[१५२] मेरुं विजानीयाल्लङ्घनान्नरकं व्रजेत् ।। ६४ ।।

वामावर्तक्रमेणैव[१५३] सद्योजातं विधीयते ।
तदारूह्य परं ध्यानं मन्त्र[१५४] वापि च मुक्तिदम् ।। ६५ ।।

स्व—ओल्यामात्मपीठस्य[१५५] आत्मान[१५६] मण्डलेऽपि वा ।
मन्त्रत्रिष्कोणमध्ये[१५७] तु अथवा पूर्णविद्यायाम्[१५८] ।। ६६ ।।
द्विचत्वारिंशत्संज्ञाया[१५९] जप्यं ध्यानं त्रिकोणके ।

कुर्यात् तन्मानसं जप्यं आत्मकूटमथापि वा ।। ६७ ।।
मुद्रितं योनिमुद्रायाममानामाङ्कित[१६०] शिवम् ।

आदौ तन्मूलविद्याया अग्निकुण्डस्य मध्यतः ।। ६८ ।।
ध्यानमारक्तकृष्णं तु कुर्यात् कर्मानुरूपतः ।
ऊर्ध्वमध्यमधः कुर्यात् संस्कारं च तथा पुनः ।। ६९ ।।
मम योनिगतं ध्यायेन्न बाह्ये विनियोजयेत् ।

इत्याद्यावतारे महामन्थानभैरवयज्ञे[१६१] अन्वये सप्तकोटिप्रमाणे मेरुमार्गविनिर्गते
लक्षपादाधिके आद्यपीठावतारिते विद्यापीठमार्गे विमलषट्कनिर्णये कादिभेदे
आज्ञापारमेश्वरे[१६२] स्वामिनीमते श्रीचतुर्विंशत्सहस्रसंहितायां अव्वाक्रम—
भाषिते[१६३] क्रममण्डलगुरुमण्डलाधिकारवर्णने[१६४]
क्रमोदयो नामानन्दः ।। २७ ।।

Omitting the thumb, one reaches the fourth (finger). Similarly, the two middle (fingers) should be omitted while moving in an anticlockwise direction.[32] This is (the way mantra is) repeated with the hand or by means of a rosary. (62cd-63)

Know that the Meru is the stainless and pure peak of the crest (cūlāgra) that is at the top of the rosary. By crossing over it, one goes to hell. (64)

By moving (through the rosary) in an anticlockwise sequence, one attains Sadyojāta. Mounting up to him, (one achieves) supreme meditation (dhyāna) and the mantra bestows liberation. (65)

One should practice the repetition of mantra and meditation (dhyāna) in the Triangle in one's own lineage (oli) of one's own sacred seat and of the Self (ātman) in the maṇḍala. (This should be done) in the middle of the triangle of mantra or in the complete Vidyā[33] called that of the forty-two (syllables). (66-67ab)

Alternatively, one may perform the same mental recitation of the Peak (seed-syllable) of the Self.[34] Śiva is sealed and marked with (the energy of the Vidyā) called the New Moon (amā) within the Gesture of the Yoni (yonimudrā). (67cd-68ab)

Initially, in the middle of the heart, one should meditate on the root Vidyā which is light red or dark blue according to the work (karman). Then one should perform the purifying sacrament (saṁskāra) above, in the middle and below. One should meditate on (all this) as being within my Yoni. (This meditation) should not be directed outside. (68cd-70ab)

This is the (twenty-seventh) chapter which is the emergence of the transmission (kramodaya) with regards to the description of the authority of the Maṇḍala of the Teachers (gurumaṇḍala) and the Maṇḍala of the Transmission (kramamaṇḍala). It belongs to the primordial descent into the great sacrifice of the Churning Bhairava in the tradition (anvaya) that consists of seventy million (verses) that has emerged on the Path of Meru and (extends) for more than a hundred thousand quarter (verses). It has been brought (down to earth) into the first sacred seat along the path of the Seat of Knowledge (vidyāpīṭha). It is the ultimate purport of the Pure Six Thousand (verses) (vimalaṣaṭka) in the division beginning with 'KĀ' in the venerable scripture of twenty-four thousand (verses) (known as) the Svāminīmata of the Supreme Lord's command as uttered within the Tradition of the Mother (avvākrama).

अष्टाविंशानन्दः

श्रीनाथ उवाच

श्रुतं देवि मया सर्वं पूजाविधिं[१] यथाक्रमम् ।
अधुना श्रोतुमिच्छामि क्रममेकं त्रिधा[२] कथं ।। १ ।।

श्रीवक्रा उवाच[३]

शृणु नाथ प्रवक्ष्यामि क्रममेकं त्रिधा यथा ।
ओलित्रितयभेदेन बालकौमारवृद्धके[४] ।। २ ।।

वृद्धक्रमं तु प्रथमं ज्येष्ठ – ओलिक्रमागतम्[५] ।
मन्त्रिणां[६] तु यथा देव आयातं ज्ञाननिर्णयम्[७] ।। ३ ।।

पीठानामाद्यवर्णाश्च ओजापूकाचतुष्टयम्[८] ।
ते युगानि चत्वारस्ते[९] पीठानि[१०] ऐहिकीभुवि[११] ।। ४ ।।

ते च पञ्चमहाभूताश्चतुर्व्यापकसंयुताः[१२] ।
ॐकारादिक्रमेणैव व्योमतत्त्वादितः क्रमात् ।। ५ ।।

ॐकारं[१३] व्योमतत्त्वस्थं जाकारं[१४] तेजसि[१५] स्थितम्[१६] ।
पूकारमापतत्त्वस्थं[१७] काकारं[१८] पृथिवीगतम्[१९] ।। ६ ।।

कुर्याच्छक्तिमधस्तेषां[२०] अधःशक्त्याङ्गसंस्थया[२१] ।
तेषामधोगतं[२२] पार्थं[२३] आपो[२४] दण्डश्च मालिनी ।। ७ ।।

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

The Authority of the Triple Transmission

Preamble

Śrīnātha said:

O goddess, I have heard the entire method by which the rite of adoration should be performed in due order. Now I want to hear how (it is that) the one Transmission is threefold. (1)

The venerable (goddess) said:

O Lord, listen, I will explain how the one Transmission is threefold according to the division of the three lineages (oli) within (the Transmissions of the) Child, the Youth and the Aged.[1] (2)

The Transmission of the Aged

The Group of Four Sacred Seats

The first is the Transmission of the Aged, which has come through the Transmission of the Lineage of the Eldest (jyeṣṭhā). O god, it is how the teaching of the knowledge of those who recite mantra has came down (through the transmission of the Tantra). (3)

The initial letters of the sacred seats are the four O, JĀ, PŪ and KĀ. These, your four sacred seats, are the (four) Ages here in the world. (4)

And the five Great Elements are endowed with these four pervading (seats). Thus, (all five) beginning with Space (*vyomatattv*a) (correspond), in due order, to the (the sacred seat of) OṀ[2] and the rest. (5)

The (sacred seat of) OṀ is established in Space, JĀ (i.e. Jālandhara) resides in Fire (tejas), PŪ (i.e. Pūrṇagiri) is in Water while KĀ (i.e. Kāmarūpa) is in Earth.[3] (6)

Place Energy (śakti) below them by means of the energy that resides in the lower limb. Below them (all) is the Earth, (then comes) Water, the Stick (daṇḍa) and Mālinī. (7)

एवं पीठाश्चतुर्भिन्ना[२५] लाञ्छिता[२६] चन्द्रसूर्ययोः[२७] ।
आज्ञा मूर्ध्नि कृता ह्येषा[२८] ख्याता[२९] पीठचतुष्टयम्[३०] ॥ ८ ॥

तेषां[३१] चतुर्विधं ध्यानं वक्ष्ये[३२] आत्मगतं प्रिय[३३] ।
अघोरसदृशोद्याणं[३४] जाकारं[३५] पुरुषं विदुः ॥ ९ ॥

पूकारं वामदेवं तु काकारं[३६] सद्यरूपकम्[३७] ।
अन्तरङ्गे स्थिता[३८] देव्यो[३९] भ्रूमध्ये[४०] हृदि नाभिगाः ॥ १० ॥
योनिमध्ये समाख्यातास्तेषु[४१] देव्याचतुष्टयम् ।
ककारादिषु[४२] चत्वारः[४३] स्त्रीनपुंसकभेदिताः[४४] ॥ ११ ॥

पीठेश्वर्यः[४५] समाख्याताः पीठध्यानसमायुताः ।
तेषु सिद्धाश्च चत्वारः पूज्याः पीठचतुष्टये ॥ १२ ॥

हरशब्दश्चतुर्न्यासं[४६] हरशब्दश्चतुष्टयम्[४७] ।
आद्यदीर्घैश्चतुर्भिन्नं[४८] आज्ञायाः[४९] शिखराङ्कितम् ॥ १३ ॥
पीठबीजाश्च[५०] चत्वारः[५१] ध्यानं तेषां च पूर्ववत् ।

अतः परं प्रवक्ष्यामि व्योमपञ्चकनिर्णयम् ॥ १४ ॥
व्योमं[५२] तु[५३] पञ्चधा स्थाप्य शक्त्याधस्तेजबृंहितम्[५४] ।
दीर्घपञ्चकसंभिन्नं बिन्दुनादैरलंकृतम्[५५] ॥ १५ ॥

व्योमपञ्चकमेतद्धि ध्यानं तेषामघोरवत्[५६] ।
आज्ञासंक्रामकं देव तस्य मन्त्रक्रमं भवेत् ॥ १६ ॥

ये चोक्ता[५७] व्यापकाः[५८] पञ्च तेजोरूपा[५९] महाबलाः ।
तेषां स्थानानि[६०] वै पञ्च अस्मिन् शास्त्रे प्रचक्ष्महे[६१] ॥ १७ ॥
श्रोत्रे[६२] नासापुटे वक्त्रे ज्ञातव्यं व्योमपञ्चकम् ।

पृथिवी[६३] चापतत्त्वं तु तेजो वायुः खसंज्ञकम् ॥ १८ ॥
शक्तितत्त्वं तथा षष्ठं तेषां चैवाधो[६४] रविः ।

Divided thus into the four sacred seats and marked within the Sun (Ha) and Moon (Sa), this, the Command placed on the head, is said to be the four sacred seats. (8)

O dear one, I will now tell (you about) their visualized form (dhyāna) within myself. Udyāṇa is similar to Aghora. Know that JĀ (i.e. Jālandhara) is Puruṣa (i.e. Tatpuruṣa). (9)

PŪ (i.e. Purṇagiri) is Vāmadeva, while KĀ (i.e. Kāmarūpa) is Sadya (i.e. Sadyojyota). The goddesses reside within them. They are said to be between the eyebrows, in the heart, in the navel and in the Yoni. The four goddesses are in these (places). The four, divided into neuter and female, are in (the sacred seats) KĀ (i.e. Kāmarūpa) and the rest.[4] (10-11)

They are said to be the mistresses of the sacred seats (piṭheśvarī) and are associated with the visualization (dhyāna) of the sacred seats. Four Siddhas are to be worshipped within these four sacred seats. (12)

(Their mantra is) the word HARA, the fourfold deposition, (again) the word HARA and the group of four conjoined with the four long (vowels) beginning with Ā and marked with the Crest of the Command[5] along with the four seed (syllables).[6] Their visualized form (dhyāna) is as before. (13-14ab)

The Pentad of Space

Next I will explain the teaching concerning the Pentad of Space (vyomapañcaka). Having already established Space five times, it is augmented with the Brilliance (tejas) located below Energy, conjoined with the pentad of long (vowels) and adorned with Sound and the Point.[7] (14cd-15)

This, indeed, is the pentad of Space. Its visualized form is like that of Aghora.[8] O god, its sequence of mantras (mantrakrama) transmits (saṁkrāmaka) the Command.[9] (16)

The aforementioned five pervading (seed-syllables) consist of brilliant energy (tejas) and are very powerful. Their locations are five and we will tell (you where they are) in this scripture. One should know that the Pentad of Space is in the ears, nostrils and the mouth. (17-18ab)

The Hexad of the Command

(The hexad is comprised of) Earth (Va), Water (La), Fire (tejas) (Ra), Air (Ya), that (which is) called Space (Ha) with Energy (śaktitattva) (Sa) as the sixth and the Sun (Ha) below. (18cd-19ab)

तथा तद् वायुतत्त्वं च नादाक्षरविभेदितम् ॥ १९ ॥
बिन्दुस्थं नादशक्तिस्थं आज्ञाकूटं महेश्वर[६५] ।

गुदे[६६] योनौ तथा नाभौ हृदि कण्ठे[६७] भ्रुवोन्तरे[६८] ॥ २० ॥
एतेषां कथितं षट्कं संकेतेन च षड्विधम्[६९] ।

श्वेता[७०] च प्रथमा वर्तिर्द्वितीया[७१] पीतरूपिनी[७२] ॥ २१ ॥
तृतीया नीलवर्णा च चतुर्थी हरिता भवेत् ।
पञ्चमा[७३] गैरिकाभा च[७४] षष्ठी आरक्तवर्णिका ॥ २२ ॥

पञ्चकं[७५] चापरं[७६] वक्ष्ये महन्तार्या मनोहरम् ।
हंसेति[७७] पञ्चधा स्थाप्य अ–इ–उ–ए–ओसमन्वितम्[७८] ॥ २३ ॥
नादशक्तिसमाक्रान्तं[७९] महन्तार्याश्च पञ्चकम् ।

कुक्षिभ्यां[८०] स्तनयोर्मध्ये कुर्यात्[८१] पृष्ठेऽपि कारकं ॥ २४ ॥
श्वेतं[८२] पीतं च आरक्तं हरितं[८३] गणपञ्चकम्[८४] ।

ध्यानं[८५] वै पञ्चधा तेषां त्रिकमध्ये[८६] यथा[८७] भवेत् ॥ २५ ॥
त्रिकण्टकं समाख्यातं विद्यात्रितयमभ्यसेत् ।
आधारे हृदये तूर्ये[८८] तेषां स्थानत्रयं[८९] भवेत् ॥ २६ ॥
आरक्तं प्रथमं ध्यानं द्वितीयं पीतकं भवेत् ।
तृतीयं[९०] शुद्धधवलं[९१] सत्त्वराजसतामसम्[९२] ॥ २७ ॥

सप्ताविंशतिभेदैस्तु[९३] मन्त्रक्रमं[९४] समुद्धृतम् ।
तस्य संज्ञाक्रमं वक्ष्ये साम्प्रतं शृणु भैरव[९५] ॥ २८ ॥[९६]

ओजापूकाचतुष्कं[९७] तु कापूजा–ओचतुष्टयम्[९८] ।
प्रकटं[९९] पीठदेवस्य[१००] मन्त्रपीठे निरन्तरम् ॥ २९ ॥

Then that Air principle, conjoined with the letter (denoted by) Sound, established in the Point and the energy of Sound, O Great Lord, is the Peak (syllable) of the Command. (19cd-20ab)

(They are located) in the anus, the Yoni, the navel, the heart, the throat and between the eyebrows. (Thus) their group of six has (thus) been explained according to the sixfold convention. (20cd-21ab)

The first wick (varti) is white, the second is yellow, the third blue, the fourth green, the fifth brown and the sixth is light red. (21cd-22)

The Pentad called Beginningless

I will tell (you) of another pentad, namely, the beautiful one of (the Vidyā) of Mahantārī. First establish HAṀSA five times along with A, I, U, E and O and conjoin it with Sound: this is the pentad of Mahantārī. (23-24ab)

One should establish the (mantra's) agent (kāraka) in the two armpits, between the breasts and also on the back. The pentad of the group is white, yellow, light red and green. Their visualized form is (thus) fivefold.[10] . . . (24cd-25abc)

The Triple Thorn

. . . as it is in the midst of the Triad (trika). The Triple Thorn (trikaṇṭhaka) has been explained. It is the triple Vidyā that should be practiced. Their three locations are in the foundation, the heart and the skull (tūrya). The first visualized form is light red, the second yellow and the third pure white (corresponding) to sattva, rajas and tamas (respectively).[11] (25d-27)

The Conventions

The sequence of mantras with (its) twenty-seven divisions has been explained. O Bhairava, I will now tell (you) (the corresponding) sequence of denotations (saṁjñākrama); listen. (28)

The Group of Four Sacred Seats and Goddesses

The tetrad O, JĀ, PŪ, KĀ and the four KĀ, PŪ, JĀ, O belong to the deity of the sacred seat and are clearly manifest without break in the sacred seat of mantra (mantrapīṭha). (29)

तेषां वै गुप्तनामानि अवि–मे–ते–असंज्ञया ।
मन्त्रदेव्यस्ततो देव तेषां नामचतुष्टयम् ।। ३० ।।
सममेति च साकारं[१०१] इति देव्याः[१०२] परिग्रहम्[१०३] ।
उपदेशवशेनैव[१०४] पीठदेव्याः[१०५] समर्चयेत्[१०६] ।। ३१ ।।

व्योमपञ्चकमेवं तु मन्त्रयुक्तं समभ्यसेत्[१०७] ।
तेषां वै देवताः[१०८] पञ्च पूजाकाले प्रचक्ष्महे[१०९] ।। ३२ ।।

व्योमं[११०] तु पञ्चधा कुर्यात् तेषां पञ्चाधिकारकम्[१११] ।
कांसिरेफसिये[११२] पञ्चसंयोगाद् व्योमपञ्चकम् ।। ३३ ।।

ततश्चाज्ञा भवेत् षट्कं गुप्ता[११३] संज्ञा क्रमस्य वै ।
आज्ञाकुकारसंभिन्नं षड्विधं[११४] च नियोजयेत् ।। ३४ ।।

तेष्वग्रे[११५] संगता देव्यो[११६] अधिकारक्रमे[११७] स्थिताः ।
लवरहयशः षड्भिः[११८] संकेताश्च प्रकीर्तिताः ।। ३५ ।।

तथा सिद्धाश्च चत्वारः पूर्वोक्तक्रमसंयुताः[११९] ।
असन्ततिसु[१२०] पञ्चैतास्तेषां[१२१] गुप्ताभिधानकम् ।। ३६ ।।

विषुवं[१२२] संक्रमणान्तं[१२३] अनादिपञ्चक्षेत्रकम्[१२४] ।
त्रिकं त्रिकण्टकादीनि[१२५] विद्यात्रितयभूषितम् ।। ३७ ।।

एकारं[१२६] च अकारं च ककारं[१२७] च तृतीयकम् ।
एषां गुप्ताभिधानानि[१२८] कु कु कु देवतात्रयम् ।। ३८ ।।

चतुष्कं पञ्चकं षट्कं चतुष्कं पञ्चकं त्रिकम् ।
एतानि षट्प्रकाराणि[१२९] भेदानि[१३०] सप्तविंशतिः[१३१] ।। ३९ ।।

Their secret names are (indicated) by the terms AVI, ME, TE and A. O god, their four names are the goddesses of the mantra. SA, MA, METI and SĀ are the forms of the goddesses. One should worship the goddesses of the sacred seats in accord with the teaching. (30-31)

The Pentad of Space

One should practice the Pentad of Space along with mantra. I will (now) tell (you) of their five deities (worshipped) in the course of the rite of adoration (pūjā). (32)

One should fashion Space five times. They have five (spheres of) authority. By the conjunction of the five KĀṀ, SI, RA, SI, YE, (one obtains) the Pentad of Space. (33)

The Hexad of the Command

Thus the Command becomes the Hexad (which is) the secret name of the Krama. One should apply (the seed-syllable) which is sixfold conjoined with the Command and the letter KU. (34)

The goddesses that reside in the Transmission of Authority are united before them. They are known as the six conventions. LA, VA, RA, HA, YA and ŚA: these are said to be the six conventions. (35)

The Four Siddhas

Similarly, there are four Siddhas associated with the aforesaid Transmission. The five are in the lineages (santati) of A and they (each) possess a secret name. (36)

The beginningless fivefold field is the Equinox (viṣuva) located at the end of the transition (saṁkramaṇa). The triad is the Triple Thorn and the rest adorned with the three Vidyās. (37)

The letters (are) E, and A (with) KA, which is the third. Their secret names are the three deities KU, KU and KU. (38)

The six units (prakāra) are the Tetrad, the Pentad, the Hexad, the Tetrad, the Pentad and the Triad, (and so) the divisions are twenty-seven. (39)

आदौ पीठचतुष्कं तु चत्वारः पीठदेवताः[१३२] ।
व्योमपञ्चकमन्य[१३३] तु आज्ञाषट्कं तथापरम् ।। ४० ।।
पुनः सिद्धचतुष्कं तु अनादिरिति पञ्चकम् ।
त्रिकण्टकं तथा[१३४] वाच्य[१३५] ज्येष्ठ–ओलिक्रमोद्धतम्[१३६] ।। ४१ ।।

एतद्[१३७] वृद्धक्रमाख्यातं पञ्चप्रणवदीपितम् ।
स्थानमन्त्रसमायुक्तं ध्यानधारणसंयुतम् ।। ४२ ।।

देहस्थ[१३८] पूजयेद् यस्तु स भवेत्[१३९] कुलयोगिनः[१४०] ।
ज्येष्ठ–ओलिक्रमाख्यातं पूजितव्यं तु देशिकैः ।। ४३ ।।

विद्यापीठात् समारभ्य क्रमं पूज्य[१४१] यथार्थतः ।
उपदेशवशेनैव लब्ध्वा गुरुमुखाद् यजेत् ।। ४४ ।।
अन्यथा विघ्नदा चक्रे गुरोराज्ञा[१४२] न लङ्घयेत् ।

अथ द्वितीयक[१४३] वक्ष्ये कौमार[१४४] मध्यमोलिकम्[१४५] ।। ४५ ।।

वृद्धक्रमे[१४६] क्रमेणैव उपदेशयुतं यथा[१४७] ।
पूर्णपीठात् समारभ्य मध्यमोल्या[१४८] क्रमार्चनम् ।। ४६ ।।

तेषां नामानि[१४९] वर्णाश्च तत्त्वयुक्ता[१५०] मनीषिणाम् ।
शक्त्याधिष्ठितचत्वारः[१५१] हरमायासनस्थिताः[१५२] ।। ४७ ।।

आ–ई–ऊ–ऐस्वरैर्भिन्ना[१५३] नादबिन्दुकलाङ्किताः[१५४] ।
एवं पीठानि चत्वारि[१५५] पीठदेव्याश्चतुष्टयम्[१५६] ।। ४८ ।।

आद्यं वर्णं चतुर्न्यास[१५७] नपुंसकत्रिकं तथा[१५८] ।
चतुर्दीर्घसमाक्रान्ताः[१५९] खशक्त्या शेखराङ्किताः ।। ४९ ।।
उ–ऊ–शून्यकला[१६०] चन्द्रः[१६१] शिवबीज[१६२] चतुर्विधम् ।

The four sacred seats which come first are the four deities of the sacred seats. (Next comes) the Pentad of Space, then the Hexad of the Command, the four Siddhas and the Pentad (called) Beginningless. Then one should utter the Triple Thorn taken from the Transmission of the lineage (oli) of the Eldest. (40-41)

This is said to be the Transmission of the Aged, inflamed with the Five Praṇavas and endowed with mantra, location, visualized form and meditation (dhāraṇa). (42)

He who worships it in the body is a Kula yogi. (This is) said to be the Transmission of the lineage of the Eldest which should be worshipped by the teachers. (43)

One should worship the Krama correctly, beginning with the Sacred Seat of Knowledge (vidyāpīṭha). Having obtained it in accord with the teaching from the teacher's mouth, one should offer sacrifice (to it). Otherwise the teacher's Command causes obstacles in the Wheel. (Thus) one should not disobey it. (44-45ab)

The Middle Lineage and the Transmission of the Youth

Now I will tell (you) about the second one, namely, (the Transmission of the) Youth which is the Middle Lineage (ulika). (45cd)

The worship of the Krama (kramārcana) in the Middle Lineage takes place, according to the teaching, in due order, as in the Transmission of the Aged commencing from the Seat of Fullness (pūrṇapīṭha). (46)

Their names and letters, associated with the principles, are those of the wise. The four are presided over by Energy (Ba) and are on the seat of Hara (Bha) and Māyā (I). (47)

They are conjoined with the vowels Ā, Ī, Ū and AI and are marked with the energy of Sound and the Point. Such are your four sacred seats and the group of the four goddesses of the sacred seats. (48)

The first letter and the fourfold deposition along with the triad of neuters, united with the four long (vowels) and with the energy of Space, and marked with the Crest (śekhara), U, Ū and the energy of the Void and the Moon: (this constitutes) Śiva's fourfold seed. (49-50ab)

तच्चैक[१६३] सर्वतो देव द्वितीयं द्विगुणीकृतम् ।। ५० ।।
तृतीयं तु त्रिधा स्थाप्य[१६४] चतुर्थं च चतुर्गुणम् ।
पञ्चमं पञ्चगुणितमेतद् वै[१६५] कुलपञ्चकम् ।। ५१ ।।
पञ्चजो[१६६] भ्रजमानोऽसौ[१६७] प्रसाद[१६८] शिवमक्षरम्[१६९] ।

शम्भुशक्तेर्भवेत् षट्कं विद्याषट्कं यथा भवेत् ।। ५२ ।।
हर–ईषट्कषट्क[१७०] च क्षोभकेन कृतं शिरम् ।

फ–र–ए–मेति[१७१] चन्द्रार्कौ[१७२] द्वावेतौ[१७३] षड्विधा[१७४] कुरु ।। ५३ ।।
तेषामन्ते स्थिता षड्भिः[१७५] दीर्घबिन्दुशिखान्विता[१७६] ।
अक्षरा षडिभिर्विद्या[१७७] स्वयम्भोः[१७८] षट्कमित्यपि ।। ५४ ।।

व्योमपञ्चकनामानि[१७९] इदानीं व्याप्तिपञ्चकम्[१८०] ।

पृथिव्यादि[१८१] त्रिधा स्थाप्य ईश्वरेण विभेदितम्[१८२] ।। ५५ ।।
आप्तत्त्व[१८३] त्रिगुणीक्र्ट्य[१८४] दीर्घत्रयविभेदिताः ।

चतुर्थं वायुतत्त्व[१८५] तु रत्नत्रितयभेदितम् ।। ५६ ।।
पञ्चमं व्योमतत्त्व[१८६] तु त्रिकलाङ्कितभेदितम्[१८७] ।

त्रिधास्ते[१८८] व्यापकाः पञ्च बिन्दुनादपदाङ्किताः ।। ५७ ।।

तदादौ बिन्दुतत्त्वं तु पृथिव्यासनमेव च ।
आ–ई–ऊ–कारभिन्नास्ते खचन्द्रशिखराङ्किताः ।। ५८ ।।

एवं ते त्रीणि सिद्धास्तु[१८९] संस्थिता ज्ञानरूपतः ।
यथाक्रमेण वृद्धस्य मन्त्रक्रम[१९०] समुद्धृतम् ।। ५९ ।।

विधानं च महादेव यथा कौमारवृद्धकम् ।
तथा संकेतभाषा[१९१] च नामसंकेतसूचनम्[१९२] ।। ६० ।।

O god, everywhere that is the first one, while the second (is the same) doubled. Having established the third three times, the fourth is (the same) quadrupled. The fifth is (the same repeated) five times. This is the Pentad of Kula (kulapañcaka). This, born of (these) five, shining intensely, is Grace (prasāda) (HSRŪAUṀ),[12] which is Śiva's syllable. (50cd-52ab)

The hexad belongs to Śambhu's energy and is the same as the Hexad of Knowledge (vidyāṣaṭka). The hexad is the group of six (consisting of) Hara and Ī, while the Head is fashioned as (the letter which) arouses (the others) (kṣobhaka). (52cd-53ab)

Fashion (the Vidyā) sixfold (to comprise) Pha, Ra, E, Ma and those two, namely, the Moon and the Sun. At the end of (these letters), along with the six, is located the imperishable (akṣarā) Vidyā endowed with the long Topknot (śikhā) of the Point along with the group of six. This is Svayaṁbhū's hexad. (53cd-54)

(I have told you) the names of the Pentad of Space; now (I will tell you) the Pentad of Pervasion (vyāptipañcaka). (55ab)

Having established Earth and everything else three times, (thus) conjoined with Īśvara and, (having) tripled the principle of Water, they are conjoined with the three long (vowels). (55cd-56ab)

The fourth is the Air principle which is conjoined with the three Jewels. The fifth is the principle of Space which is conjoined with the sign of the three energies. (56cd-57ab)

These five pervaders, marked with the Sound and the Point, are (thus) each of three kinds. (57cd)

The principle of the Point comes at the beginning of that, and (then comes) the seat of Earth. They are conjoined with the letters Ā, Ī and Ū and are marked with the summit (śikhara) of the Moon of the Void. (58)

Your three Siddhas are thus established in the form of knowledge. (And so) the sequence of the mantras (mantrakrama) of the (Transmission of the) Aged has been enunciated in due order. (59)

O Great God, (next comes) the prescription concerning (the Transmission of) the Youth and the Aged, the language of the convention (saṁketabhāṣā) and the convention concerning the names (nāmasaṁketa). (60)

ओजापूकाश्च[१९३] चत्वार:[१९४] कापूजा—ओचतुष्टयम् ।
मा वि सज्ज समु चेति संकेतकमिदं[१९५] पुन: ।। ६१ ।।

एते गुप्ततरा:[१९६] पीठा:[१९७] गुप्ताश्च पीठदेवता: ।
पीठसिद्धाश्च चत्वार:[१९८] संकेतं[१९९] सुसूक्ष्मकम्[२००] ।। ६२ ।।

कुलपञ्चकमन्यं[२०१] तु तस्य संकेत[२०२] पञ्चधा ।
अकु सकु सकुश्चेति अंकु चैव अकुं[२०३] पुन: ।। ६३ ।।
कुलपञ्चकमेतद् हि[२०४] अम्भाषट्कमत:[२०५] परम् ।

अंभां च[२०६] षड्विधां[२०७] कुर्यात् चतु:स्वरविभेदिताम्[२०८] ।। ६४ ।।
तस्याग्रे चाधिकाराणि[२०९] वृद्धदेव्या:[२१०] षडिर्भवेत् ।
आप इति म अंकारं[२११] म अव्वा[२१२] क्रमं[२१३] तथा ।। ६५ ।।
ख[२१४] अ चेद् * भकाराव्वा[२१५] अम्भाषट्कमिति[२१६] स्मृतम्[२१७] ।[२१८]
एतद् वै कौलभाषायां[२१९] मन्त्रक्रममुदाहृतम्[२२०] ।। ६६ ।।

योगपञ्चकमेवं[२२१] तु तस्य संकेत[२२२] पञ्चधा ।
असा सस वयोगेति[२२३] सकु—ई[२२४] ससकौ[२२५] इति ।। ६७ ।।

गुप्तं प्रकटसंयोगात्[२२६] पूर्वक्रमसमायुतम् ।
सिद्धत्रिकं त्रिकस्यैव तेषु[२२७] संकेतकं[२२८] त्रिधा ।। ६८ ।।

सि सि द्ध इति सिद्धास्तु सर्वे[२२९] मन्त्रक्रमोदिता: ।
कृत्वा पूर्वक्रमाचारं[२३०] प्रकाराणि[२३१] समभ्यसेत् ।। ६९ ।।
उपदेशवशेनैव[२३२] कौमारक्रममुद्धृतम् ।
अधुना मध्यमोल्यायां[२३३] क्रमेदं[२३४] चैव[२३५] षड्विधम्[२३६] ।। ७० ।।
चतुष्कं पञ्चकं षट्कं चतुष्कं पञ्चकं त्रिकम् ।
एतानि[२३७] षट्प्रकाराणि भेदानि सप्तविंशति:[२३८] ।। ७१ ।।

आदौ पीठचतुष्कं तु चत्वार: पीठदेवता:[२३९] ।
पूर्णगिर्यं[२४०] समारभ्य उदयं[२४१] मध्यमोलिके[२४२] ।। ७२ ।।

अपरं च प्रवक्ष्यामि बालक्रममनुत्तमम् ।
पूर्वक्रमेण वक्ष्यामि[२४३] मुद्रापीठादित: क्रमात् ।। ७३ ।।

The convention is this: the four O, JĀ, PŪ, KĀ and the tetrad KĀ, PŪ, JĀ, O and MĀ, VI, SAJJA, SAMU. (61)

These are the most secret sacred seats and the deities of the sacred seats are also secret. The Siddhas of the sacred seats are four: this is the subtle convention. (62)

The Pentad of Kula is another (group of five). Its convention is fivefold: AKU, SAKU, SAKUḤ, AṀKU and AKUṀ. This is the Pentad of Kula. (63-64ab)

(Now) follows the Hexad of Aṁbhā. One should conjoin four vowels to AṀBHĀ, which is of six kinds. In front of it are the (fields of) authority, the group of six goddesses of (the Transmission of) the Aged. ĀPA, MA, AṀ, MA, AVVĀ, and KHA, A, along with with the letter BHA and AVVĀ: this is said to be the Hexad of Ambhā. This indeed is the sequence of the mantras uttered in Kaula language. (64cd-66)

Similarly, the convention concerning the Pentad of Yoga is fivefold, as follows: ASĀ, SASA, VAYOGA, SAKUĪ, and SASAKAU. (67)

It is hidden, (but) due to (its) clearly manifest conjunction, it is conjoined to the previous Krama. The three Siddhas correspond to the Triad and their convention is threefold. (68)

SI, SI, DDHA – these are the three Siddhas. They have all emerged from the sequence of mantras. Once one has performed the practice of the previous Krama, one must exercise the (six) units (prakāra) (of the Krama). (Thus) the Transmission of the Youth has thus been extracted in accord with the teaching. (69-70ab)

Now this sixfold Krama (will be explained) in the Middle Lineage. The Tetrad, the Pentad, the Hexad, the Tetrad, the Pentad and Triad – within this are the six aspects and twenty-seven divisions. (69cd-71)

The four sacred seats and the four deities of the sacred seats come in the beginning. The arising (of the mantras) in the Middle Lineage starts with Pūrṇagiri. (72)

The Transmission of the Child

(Now) I will explain the next one, namely, the Transmission of the Child, which is the best. I will tell (you) it according to the previous Transmission, in due order, beginning from the Sacred Seat of Gesture (mudrāpīṭha).[13] (73)

पीठानामाद्यलिङ्गानि चतूरत्नसमायुताः[२४४] ।
आत्माकूटाः[२४५] कृताः सर्वे पश्चात् पीठचतुष्टयम्[२४६] ॥ ७४ ॥[२४७]

मन्त्रदेव्यः[२४८] पुनस्तेषां चत्वारः[२४९] साम्प्रतं भवेत्[२५०] ।
प्रथमं वाग्भवं बीजं मायाबीजं द्वितीयकम् ॥ ७५ ॥
तृतीयं सूर्यबीजं तु खेचरं तु चतुर्थकम् ।
विद्यात्मानं[२५१] महाकूटं एकं देव[२५२] चतुर्विधम् ॥ ७६ ॥

पञ्चमं नवधा पिण्डं शुक्रादीनां[२५३] भवेद् यथा ।
शक्त्याकाशान्तजं[२५४] रुद्रं[२५५] इन्दुरानन्दबोधकम्[२५६] ॥ ७७ ॥
तरङ्गं[२५७] शक्तिपातं तु नवात्मानन्दविग्रहम् ।

खशक्तिमस्तकाक्रान्तं आक्रान्तं[२५८] नादमूर्धनि[२५९] ॥ ७८ ॥
ओजापूकेषु चेत्यादौ[२६०] शक्त्यावेशं[२६१] तु धारणा[२६२] ।

आदिनाथक्रमाख्यातं[२६३] पञ्चमं सिद्धनायकम् ॥ ७९ ॥
श्रीनाथं श्रीगुरुं[२६४] मूलं आज्ञासन्ततिनिर्णयम्[२६५] ।
सर्वं[२६६] क्रमेषु साधारं आधारमिति भैरवम् ॥ ८० ॥

तस्योच्चारणमात्रेण सर्वावस्थो भविष्यति ।
सिद्धपञ्चकमेवं[२६७] तु चतुःपीठेषु संस्थितम् ॥ ८१ ॥
पञ्चमं यत् परं नाथं श्रीगुरुं[२६८] मध्यनायकम् ।
सिद्धौ[२६९] द्वाविति विख्यातौ[२७०] आद्यपीठस्य सुव्रत[२७१] ॥ ८२ ॥

अपरं ज्ञानषट्कं तु वक्ष्ये कौलस्य नायकम् ।
विद्यायाः कारणं चात्र तच्च[२७२] एव चतुर्विधम्[२७३] ॥ ८३ ॥

सहजं माययारूढं आनन्दकुलभेदितम् ।
म–एखफरपिण्डस्थं[२७४] वाग्भवस्थं महेश्वर ॥ ८४ ॥
तुर्यतोरणशक्त्यधो[२७५] व्यापकं कुलयोगिनाम् ।

The Four Sacred Seats

The original (ādya) Liṅgas of the sacred seats are endowed with the four Jewels. All the Peak (syllables) of the Self[14] are formed (first) and then the four sacred seats. (74)

Now come the four goddesses of their mantras. The first is the seed-syllable (called) Vāgbhava (AIṀ). The second is the seed-syllable of Māyā (HRĪṀ). The third is the seed-syllable of the Sun (ŚRĪṀ), while (the seed-syllable) of the Skyfarer (KHPHREṀ) is the fourth. (Thus), O god, the one Great Peak (syllable), which is that of the Vidyā, is fourfold. (75-76)

(Now I will explain) how the fifth is the ninefold Body (piṇḍa) of Śukra and everything else. The blissful form of Navātman mantra is Energy (Sa), Space (Ha), the Last-born (KṢa), Rudra (Ma), Indu (La), Bliss (Va), the Awakener (Ra), the Wave (Ya) and the Descent of Power (Ū). (77-78ab)

The Head is covered with the Energy of Space (Ṁ), it is placed on the head of Sound. And (placed) at the beginning of O JĀ PŪ KĀ, the meditation (dhāraṇā) is the penetration of Energy. (78cd-79ab)

The Transmission of Ādinātha, the fifth lord of the Siddhas, has been explained. He is Śrīnātha, the venerable teacher (śrīguru), the root of the teaching of the lineage (santati) of the Command. Everything in the Transmissions has a base (ādhāra), and the base is Bhairava. (79cd-80)

One becomes (master of) every state by its mere utterance. In this way, the group of five Siddhas reside in the four sacred seats. The fifth is the Supreme Lord (nātha) who is the venerable teacher, the master (nāyaka) in the centre. O keeper of good vows, two Siddhas (Ādinātha and Oḍḍīśa) are said to belong to the Primordial Sacred Seat (ādyapīṭha). (81-82)

The Hexad of Knowledge

(Now) I will tell (you) of another Hexad of Knowledge, the master of Kaula. The cause of the Vidyā is here fourfold. (83)

The Innate is mounted on Māyā (Ī), conjoined with the Kula of Bliss, residing in the body consisting of Ma E Kha Pha Ra and in Vāgbhava (AIṀ); O Great Lord, located below the energy of the fourth arcade (toraṇa), it pervades (all) Kula yogis. (84-85ab)

तत् स बिन्दुरधो दण्डं अनिलार्णवपूरितम् ॥ ८५ ॥
घण्टानिर्घोषसहितं अंगुष्ठेन शिराहतम् ।
हंसवर्णोदये सिद्धं[२७६] द्विनपुंसकभेदितम् ॥ ८६ ॥

आक्रान्तं नादवर्णाभ्यां तथान्यं[२७७] व्यापकं भवेत् ।
चत्वारो[२७८] व्यापकाकाशे तदधः शक्तिबिम्बकम् ॥ ८७ ॥

विसर्गस्थं[२७९] महादेव्या व्यापकं सर्वतोमुखम् ।
सृष्टिक्रमेण मूर्धादि आज्ञाचक्रादिविग्रहं[२८०] सुधीः[२८१] ॥ ८८ ॥[२८२]
ज्ञानषट्कमिदं[२८३] तथ्यं देवानामपि दुर्लभम्[२८४] ।

अपरं च महन्तार्याः पञ्चकं साम्प्रतं विदुः ॥ ८९ ॥
तृतीयस्य तु वर्गस्य द्वितीयवर्णनायकम्[२८५] ।
कर्तव्यं पञ्चगुणितं[२८६] दीर्घपञ्चकभेदितम्[२८७] ॥ ९० ॥

आज्ञामण्डलमध्यस्थं[२८८] त्रिरावर्तं[२८९] महेश्वरम्[२९०] ।
स चैकं केवलं भूयस्तेषां[२९१] चादिस्थितं कुरु ॥ ९१ ॥

ओलित्रितयसिद्धाश्च त्रिकं तेषां यथा भवेत् ।
अनुनासिक[२९२] चत्वारि[२९३] अधो बिन्दुकृतानि[२९४] वै ।॥ ९२ ॥
एकीभूतं महाकूटं[२९५] योजयेत्[२९६] त्रिविधं पुनः ।
ऊकारं चैव ईकारं आकारादि विभेदयेत् ॥ ९३ ॥

नादशक्तिकलाभिन्नं ज्येष्ठमध्यमकं[२९७] न्यसेत्[२९८] ।
त्रिभिरोलीषु[२९९] ते[३००] देव मन्त्रचक्रं त्रिधोद्धृतम् ॥ ९४ ॥

एतन्मन्त्रक्रमं[३०१] चक्रं संकेतं[३०२] तस्य गीयते ।
देवीनामाद्यवर्णेन[३०३] गुप्तं पीठचतुष्टयम्[३०४] ॥ ९५ ॥

That is the Point; below (it) is the Stick filled with the Ocean and Wind along with the Sound of the Bell and the Thumb; conjoined with the Head, united with two neuters, (the seed-syllable) is complete (siddha) when the letter of the Gander arises. (85cd-86)

Another pervader is (formed when this seed-syllable) is covered by the two letters of Sound. The four are in the space of the pervaders below which is the Image of Energy (śaktibimbaka). (87)

The pervader residing in Emission along with the Great Goddess is present everywhere. The Head and the rest emerge in accord with the sequence of emanation; from (this they) have the forms of the Wheel of the Command and the rest (of the Wheels). This is the Hexad of Knowledge, the truth which is hard to obtain even by the gods. (88-89ab)

The Pentad of Mahantārī

Now know another (part), the Pentad of Mahantārī. The master of the second letter of the third group (of letters) should be multiplied five times and it is conjoined with the five long (vowels). (89cd-90)

The Great Lord of three turns is in the centre of the Circle of the Command (ājñāmaṇḍala). He is one and alone. Make him the first of them (all). (91)

The Triad of Siddhas

(Now I will tell you) about the Triad of the Siddhas of the three Lineages. Below there are four nasals (anunāsika) formed with the Point. One should then apply the Great Peak which has been made one and is of three kinds. One should divide up the letters Ū, Ī, Ā and the rest. (92-93)

One should deposit the Lineages of the Eldest and the Middle One conjoined with the power of the Energy of Sound with the three in the lineages. (In this way), O god, your wheel of mantras is extracted three times. (94)

That sequence of mantras (matrakrama) is the Wheel. (Now) its convention will be explained. The group of the four sacred seats of the goddesses is concealed by the first letter. (95)

तथा तेनैव पीठानां ज्ञेयं देव्याचतुष्टयम्[३०५] ।
अंकुनाथ[३०६] च[३०७] चि[३०८] चैव ककाराक्षरसंज्ञया ॥ ९६ ॥

एवं सिद्धं चतुष्कं तु युग्मसंज्ञा तु पञ्चकम् ।
शिखाशेखरमाक्रान्त[३०९] कु–इ–अवसमायुतम् ॥ ९७ ॥
सिद्धपञ्चकमेतद्धि[३१०] पीठेषु च समारभेत् ।

ज्ञानषट्कस्य संकेतं इदमाकर्णता[३११] प्रभो ॥ ९८ ॥
आखे इति विसश्चैव अविद्या च तथा परम् ।
मम[३१२] चेति तथा स्वासू[३१३] आ–मे–इ ज्ञानषट्ककम् ॥ ९९ ॥

अपरं च महन्तार्याः[३१४] पञ्चकस्य च सूचनम्[३१५] ।
अविमा ह्येकतो[३१६] व्याप्तिः[३१७] समु[३१८] चेति च यो मुखः[३१९] ॥ १०० ॥
स च अन्यक्रमेणैव[३२०] समस्तेष्विति[३२१] पञ्चकम् ।

एवं ते षट्प्रकाराणि भेदानि सप्तविंशतिः[३२२] ॥ १०१ ॥
आदौ पीठचतुष्कं तु चत्वारः पीठदेवताः[३२३] ।
सिद्धपञ्चकमन्यं[३२४] तु ज्ञानषट्कं तथापरम् ॥ १०२ ॥
महन्तार्याः[३२५] पञ्चकं च ओलित्रिकमनन्तरम् ।

एतद् बालक्रमाख्यात[३२६] पञ्चप्रणवभेदितम् ॥ १०३ ॥
लक्षाश्रमपदसंयुक्त[३२७] वृद्धकौमारक[३२८] स्मृतम् ।
आख्याता च कनिष्ठोलिः[३२९] कामरूपादितः[३३०] क्रमात् ॥ १०४ ॥

ज्येष्ठं मध्यमसंज्ञं च तथा बालं तृतीयकम् ।
आख्यातं पश्चिमाम्नाये क्रममेकं त्रिधाविधम्[३३१] ॥ १०५ ॥

ओलिभेदेन कर्तव्यं स्व–ओल्यां[३३२] क्रमपूजनम् ।
स्व–ओलि[३३३] मण्डलं चक्रं क्रमं मन्त्रोपदेशकम् ॥ १०६ ॥
पारम्पर्यमुखाम्नायं सिद्धसन्तानसन्ततौ ।
भाषासंकेतकं[३३४] सूत्रं ज्ञात्वा आज्ञा प्रवर्तते ॥ १०७ ॥

And one should know the four goddesses of the sacred seats by means of that same (letter). The lord (nātha) is AṀKU and CIṀ along with the designation of the letter Ka. (96)

The Tetrad is accomplished in this way, while the Pentad is the designation of the pair. Covered by the Crest (śekhara) and the Topknot (śikhā) and conjoined with KU I AVA: this, indeed, is the Pentad of the Siddhas, which should be applied within the sacred seats. (97-98ab)

Now listen to the convention concerning the Hexad of Knowledge. ĀKHE and VISA followed by AVIDYĀ and MAMA, and so too SVĀSŪ and Ā ME I: (this is the convention of) the Hexad of Knowledge. (98cd-99)

(Now follows) another presentation of Mahantārī's Pentad. A VI MĀ is the pervasion due to oneness and SA MU which is the face is by means of the other Krama within all of them (samasta). This is the Pentad. (100-101ab)

Such are your six aspects (prakāra) and twenty-seven divisions. The four sacred seats and the four deities of the sacred seats come in the beginning. Next comes the Pentad of Siddhas; after that (comes) the Hexad of Knowledge, the Pentad of Mahantārī and then the triad of Lineages. (101cd-103ab)

This is said to be the Transmission of the Child which is conjoined with the Five Praṇavas. (The Transmissions of) the Aged and the Youth are said to possess a hundred thousand parts (of mantras) (pada) (that are each) hermitages (for divine beings). The Lineage of the Youngest has been explained from Kāmarūpa onwards, in due order. (103cd-104)

The Eldest, that called the Middle One and that of the Child as the third: the one triple Transmission in the Western Tradition has been explained. (105)

The Importance of Worshipping the Triple Transmission (śrīkrama)

The worship of the Transmission (kramapūjana) should be performed within one's own lineage in consonance with the division of the Lineages. The Command operates (pravartate) once one knows one's own Lineage, the maṇḍala, the Wheel, the Transmission, the teaching concerning the mantras, the oral tradition of the line of teacher's (pāramparyamukhāmnāya) (transmitted) in the Family (santati) of Siddhas, and the sūtra that establishes the convention (bhāṣāsaṁketaka) concerning the (Kaula) language. The Kulakrama should be worshipped after (one has learnt this), never otherwise. (106-107)

पश्चात् कुलक्रमं पूज्यं[३३५] अन्यथा न कदाचन ।
ओलिरन्या[३३६] क्रिया चान्या[३३७] अन्यं[३३८] मन्त्रपरिग्रहम्[३३९] ॥ १०८ ॥
पूजाविधानमन्यं तु मण्डलं व्युत्क्रमेण तु ।
वृद्धकौमारबालं[३४०] वा अन्यं वा खेचरक्रमम्[३४१] ॥ १०९ ॥[३४२]
अशुद्धं श्रीक्रमं यस्मादभ्यस्तोऽपि न सिद्ध्यति ।
सिद्ध्यते वा प्रमादेन गुरुवक्त्राद् विनिर्गतम् ॥ ११० ॥
अन्ते[३४३] विघ्नप्रदं शिष्ये[३४४] अशुद्धं चैव[३४५] शोधयेत् ।

अशुद्धं पूजयेद् यस्तु दद्याद् यः शास्त्रलोपकृत् ॥ १११ ॥[३४६]
स तस्य हनते[३४७] नूनं शिष्यमाचार्यस्तत्क्षणात्[३४८] ।
शिष्यस्य ग्रहणात्[३४९] मृत्युरचिरादपि[३५०] नान्यथा ॥ ११२ ॥

सद्भक्तस्य[३५१] स्वशिष्यस्य शास्त्रलोपं[३५२] न कारयेत् ।
अभक्ते च शठे देव[३५३] क्रियालोपकरे तथा ॥ ११३ ॥
न तस्य दापयेद्[३५४] ज्ञानं क्रमं मण्डलकादिकम् ।
तथा कुलागतां चाज्ञां[३५५] उपदेशं च[३५६] गोपयेत् ॥ ११४ ॥

भयात्[३५७] प्रीत्यार्थलोभाद् वा महत्वपदकांक्षया ।
यो[३५८] ददेत् क्रममोघानां[३५९] स याति[३६०] नरकं ध्रुवम् ॥ ११५ ॥
अवियोगाच्च मरणं[३६१] संस्कारं नैवमर्हति ।

क्रमं विद्यागमं[३६२] योगं[३६३] गोपनीयं[३६४] प्रयत्नतः ॥ ११६ ॥
सर्वस्वं रक्षयेत् ज्ञानं चौरेभ्यो द्रविणं यथा ।

पञ्चोपचारपूजायां अर्चयित्वा कुलागमम् ॥ ११७ ॥
आद्योघं[३६५] चिन्तयेद् बुद्ध्या[३६६] अन्तरङ्गेन[३६७] सुव्रत ।
बहिरङ्गं यदा कुर्याद्[३६८] दर्शयेदितरे जने[३६९] ॥ ११८ ॥
आज्ञाभङ्गं[३७०] न संदेहः[३७१] ख्यापनान्नरके[३७२] गतिः ।

कर्मणा मनसा वाचा त्रिशुद्धिर्भक्तिवत्सल[३७३] ॥ ११९ ॥
सद्भक्तस्य[३७४] विनीतस्य द्वादशाब्दपरीक्षिते[३७५] ।
अनुग्रहं[३७६] प्रकर्तव्यं शास्त्रं तस्यावतारयेत् ॥ १२० ॥

(If) the Lineage (is one) and the rite (kriyā), the form of the mantras, or the prescibed method of performing the rite of adoration (pūjāvidhāna) are other (than those of that Lineage), or if the (worship of the) maṇḍala is not in the proper sequence, or if (the Transmissions of) the Aged, Youth and Child and the Skyfarer are other (than those of that Lineage), the Śrīkrama[15] is impure and, even if one is well practiced, he is not successful. Or even if (the Krama) is attained (but) has come from the teacher's mouth by mistake, it will ultimately cause the disciple difficulties and, impure, it should be purified. (108-111ab)

The teacher who, transgressing the scripture, worships an impure (Krama) and gives it (to others) will certainly destroy his disciple the very moment (he is initiated). And by taking (such) a disciple, (the teacher) will soon die (also). (Nor will it be) otherwise. (111cd-112)

One should not induce a disciple who is truly devoted to transgress the scriptures. (Nor) should (the teacher) give knowledge, the Transmission, the maṇḍala and the rest to one who is not devoted, who is deceitful or who omits (the required) ritual. (Rather) he should conceal the teaching and the Command that has come through the Kula. (113-114)

He who gives the Transmission of the Currents (ogha) (of mantras) out of fear, (mere sensual) affection, greed for wealth or with a desire for high position, will certainly go to hell. And by not desisting, (he will certainly) die and will not be worthy of (the last) rites (saṁskāra). (115-116ab)

(And so) one must strenuously conceal the Transmission, the Scripture of Wisdom (vidyāgama) and Yoga. One must protect the wealth of knowledge as one does riches from thieves. (116cd-117ab)

Having worshipped the Kula scripture in the course of the rite of worship in which five offerings are made (pañcopacārapūjā), one should, O keeper of good vows, inwardly (antaraṅgeṇa) think of the Primordial Current (ādyogha) with the intellect. If one does this outwardly and shows it to other people he will, without a doubt, transgress the Command and, by telling it (to others, he will) go to hell. (117cd-119ab)

O beloved of devotion, the triple purity is (achieved) by means of action, speech and mind. One should grant the true devotee grace and the scripture should be brought down for him once he has been tested for twelve years. (119cd-120)

अन्यथा नैव कर्तव्यं जिह्वोपस्थनिमित्तये ।
जिह्वोपस्थनिमित्तये[३७७] श्रीक्रमं प्रवदन्ति ये[३७८] ॥ १२१ ॥
कथयन्ति मुखाम्नायं आज्ञाशास्त्रमिदं[३७९] कुलम् ।
न तेषामैहिकी सिद्धिः परत्र च न[३८०] विद्यते ॥ १२२ ॥

अक्रमाल्लोभमोहाद् वा मिथ्याहंकारगर्वितः ।
अक्रमाद्[३८१] गृह्यते शास्त्रं आम्नायं मुखकौलिकम्[३८२] ॥ १२३ ॥
तत्[३८३] तस्य निष्फलं सर्वं[३८४] आकाशे कुमुदं यथा ।
तथा च निष्फला चेष्टा अक्रमाचरणाद् भवेत् ॥ १२४ ॥

क्रमपूजारताः[३८५] शान्ता रागद्वेषविवर्जिताः[३८६] ।
ते च योग्याः[३८७] कुले कौले शेषास्त्वन्तरजातयः[३८८] ॥ १२५ ॥

लोभाद् यो गृह्णते[३८९] शास्त्रं ऐहिकार्थं च सुन्दर ।
कीर्त्यर्थं च यशार्थं[३९०] वा पुत्रकस्य कृतेऽथवा ॥ १२६ ॥
मन्त्री क्रमपदस्यार्थे[३९१] अधिकारं प्रयच्छति[३९२] ।
स तस्य हनते[३९३] देव महाद्रोहो[३९४] न संशयः ॥ १२७ ॥
विष्ठामध्ये कृमिर्भूत्वा अमेध्ये[३९५] सूपजीवति[३९६] ।
प्रत्युत्तारं[३९७] न विद्येत तद्वत् तस्याधमा गतिः ॥ १२८ ॥

क्रमं च त्रिविधं प्रोक्तं स्थूलं सूक्ष्मं तथा परम् ।
शाक्तं[३९८] च शाम्भवं[३९९] चैव आणवं[४००] च तृतीयकम् ॥ १२९ ॥
परापरं[४०१] च अपरं परं चेति त्रिकण्टकम् ।[४०२]
एकं त्रित्रिकभेदेन त्रिधा ओलिक्रमं विदुः ॥ १३० ॥

स्थूलं वृद्धक्रमाख्यातं[४०३] ज्येष्ठ–ओल्याधिकारकम्[४०४] ।
सूक्ष्मक्रमं च कौमारं सुसूक्ष्ममिति[४०५] गीयते ॥ १३१ ॥
परं बालक्रमं भाव्यं[४०६] कनिष्ठोलितृतीयकम्[४०७] ।
एकं[४०८] एव[४०९] त्रिधा भिन्नं क्रममेकं त्रिकण्टकम्[४१०] ॥ १३२ ॥
श्रीक्रमं तु त्रिधा प्रोक्तं[४११] त्रिधा ओलिक्रमं विदुः ।

Otherwise it should not be done just for (the pleasure) of the tongue or the genitals. Those who speak of the Śrīkrama (simply) for (the pleasure) of the tongue or the genitals and who talk (openly) of the oral tradition, the scripture of the Command and this Kula, do not attain success (siddhi) here or in the next (world). (121-122)

All this is as fruitless as a lotus in the sky for one who, proud because of (his) false ego, takes up the scripture and the Kaula oral tradition (associated with it) out of sequence (akrama) and without a lineage (akrama) due to the delusion of greed. Similarly, (all ritual) action is fruitless by (performing it) without the Krama. (123-124)

Those who are devoted to the worship (pūjā) of the Krama and are devoid of attachment and aversion are fit (to belong) to Kula and Kaula; the rest belong to other castes. (125)

O handsome one! The reciter of mantra who takes the scripture out of greed or for a worldly purpose or for the sake of (personal) glory or a son (putraka) and (with these aims in mind) gives (others) authority (to explain) the meaning of the parts (pada) (of the mantras) of the Krama is, without a doubt, a great crook and his (life) will (certainly) be destroyed. Having become a louse (living) in the midst of feces, he spends his life in impure things. There will be no rising out of it and his course will be downward in the same way. (126-128)

The Transmission (krama) is said to be of three kinds: gross, subtle and supreme. (It is) the Triple Thorn (consisting of the modalities of) the Individual Soul (āṇava), Energy (śākta) and Śiva (śāmbhava) as the third. (These correspond respectively to) the Supreme (para), Middling (parāpara) and Inferior (apara) (levels). (The wise) know that the one Transmission of the Lineages, divided (thus) into three triads (tritrika), is threefold. (129-130)

The gross one is said to be the Transmission of the Aged which is the authority of the Lineage of the Eldest. The subtle Transmission is that of the Youth which is said to be extremely subtle. The Transmission of the Child – that is, the Lineage of the Youngest which is the third – should be considered to be supreme. (In this way) the one (Krama) is divided threefold. The one Krama is the Triple Thorn. (Thus) the triple Śrīkrama has been explained. (The wise) know it to be the triple Transmission of the Lineages.[16] (131-133ab)

मम देहाद् विनिष्क्रान्ताः[४१२] क्रमाश्चत्वारि[४१३] सुन्दर ।। १३३ ।।
खेचरं[४१४] च क्रमं चाद्यं वृद्धकौमारबालकम्[४१५] ।
तेषां चतुर्युगा[४१६] सिद्धिः स्व–ओल्यानुक्रमं[४१७] तथा ।। १३४ ।।

कृते तु खेचरं प्रोक्तं त्रेता[४१८] वृद्धक्रमं तथा ।[४१९]
द्वापरे क्रमकौमारं[४२०] कलौ बालक्रमं क्रमम् ।। १३५ ।।

एवं ते क्रमचत्वारः[४२१] युगान्ते चावतारिताः ।
कलौ युगे महादेव क्रमं ज्ञेयं चतुर्विधम् ।। १३६ ।।

तेषां च उदयं[४२२] वक्ष्ये तथा चास्तमनं[४२३] पुनः ।
उदयास्तमनेनैव ज्ञेयं क्रमचतुष्टयम् ।। १३७ ।।

मम देहाद् विनिष्क्रान्ता[४२४] विधानं तेषु[४२५] तच्छृणु ।

अनामानामसंलग्ना तन्मध्ये खेचरं[४२६] क्रमम् ।। १३८ ।।
निर्गतं ज्ञानसामर्थ्यान्मज्जमध्ये[४२७] लयंगतम्[४२८] ।

अपरं यत् क्रमं वृद्धं मम क्रोधाद् विनिर्गतम् ।। १३९ ।।
स्नायोरन्तर्गतं[४२९] देव एतच्चास्तमनं स्मृतम् ।[४३०]

कौमारं नाभिचक्रस्थं तस्मात् स्थानाद्[४३१] विनिर्गतम्[४३२] ।। १४० ।।
लयं[४३३] च शोणिते तस्य उदयास्तमनं[४३४] त्विदम्[४३५] ।

तथा बालक्रमं नाम योनिचक्राद् विनिर्गतम् ।। १४१ ।।
विलीनं शुक्रमध्ये[४३६] तु उदयास्तमनत्रयम्[४३७] ।

The Four Transmissions and their Origins

O handsome one, the four Transmissions have emerged out of my body. The Transmission of the Skyfarer is the first (while) the triple Transmission of the Aged, the Youth and the Child is another. They (achieve) success in the four Ages in due order according to their own lineage. (133cd-134)

The Skyfarer is said to be (the Transmission) in the Kṛta Age. The Transmission of the Aged is the one in the Tretā Age. The Transmission of the Youth belongs to the Dvāpara Age while the Transmission of the Child is the one in the Age of Strife. (135)

In this way, your four Transmissions have been brought down (to earth) at the end of (each) Age. O Mahādeva, one should know that in the Age of Strife the Transmission is of four kinds. (136)

I will (now) tell (you) their arising and then their falling away. The fourfold Transmission should be known along with (its) arising and falling away. (137)

(The four Transmissions) have emerged from my body. Listen to the method that concerns them. (138ab)

The Nameless (goddess) is conjoined with the Nameless (god); the Transmission of the Skyfarer is in between them. It has emerged from the power of knowledge and is merged into the marrow. (138cd-139ab)

The other Transmission, namely, that of the Aged, has emerged from my anger. O god, it is located in the sinew and that is said to be (its) falling away. (139cd-140ab)

(The Transmission) of the Youth is located in the Wheel of the Navel and has emerged from there. It merges in the blood. This is its arising and falling away. (140cd-141ab)

Similarly, the Transmission of the Child has emerged from the Wheel of the Yoni and has merged into the sperm. (These are) the three arisings and (their) falling away. (141cd-142ab)

क्रमत्रयसमायुक्त[४३८] उदयास्तमनसंयुतम् ॥ १४२ ॥
स शिष्यः पश्चिमाम्नाये शेषाऽन्ये नामधारकाः ।

शृणु नाथ प्रवक्ष्यामि क्रममेकं त्रिधा यथा ॥ १४३ ॥
यस्मिन् काले लयं सर्व[४३९] मम देहे प्रजायन्ते[४४०] ।
न चन्द्रार्कग्रहा[४४१] ऋक्षा[४४२] न लोको नैव[४४३] पर्वतः ॥ १४४ ॥
नाहं देव न च त्वं[४४४] वा शून्यं भूतं चराचरम् ।
तस्माच्चैव[४४५] निराकाराद्[४४६] दिव्याज्ञायाः[४४७] समुद्भवः ॥ १४५ ॥

शिवेच्छा[४४८] निर्गता शक्तिरंकुराकाररूपिणी[४४९] ।
तडिल्लता[४५०] समाकारा द्योतयन्ती नभस्तलम् ॥ १४६ ॥

तेन चीर्णं तपं[४५१] चोग्रं[४५२] दिव्याज्ञाया जितेन्द्रियम् ।
ततः[४५३] सा उन्मना जाता वृद्धत्वं समुपागता ॥ १४७ ॥

अंकुरं तु द्विधाभिन्नं साकारं[४५४] तु निरञ्जनम् ।
शिवशक्तिसमायोगः[४५५] गीयते सर्वजन्तुषु ॥ १४८ ॥

त्वं शिवो[४५६] देव कौलीश[४५७] अहं सा कुब्जिनी परा ।
मम रूपत्रयो[४५८] जातः[४५९] खेचरकारणेन[४६०] तु ॥ १४९ ॥

प्रत्यूषे बालरूपाहं युवाहं दिनमध्यतः ।
निशाचारेण वृद्धाहं मम एषा[४६१] त्रिधा गतिः ॥ १५० ॥
तस्मात् तु[४६२] त्रिविधं प्रोक्तं क्रममेकं कुलक्रमे[४६३] ।

बालक्रमे च बालाव्वा[४६४] तदा बालक्रमं भवेत् ॥ १५१ ॥
मध्याह्ने युवकौमारं तेनासौ[४६५] मध्यमः[४६६] स्मृतः ।
वृद्धं तु वृद्धरूपी स्यात् सन्ध्याकालसमर्पितम्[४६७] ॥ १५२ ॥

त्रिभिर्मूर्तिवशेनैव[४६८] क्रममेकं[४६९] त्रिधा भवेत् ।
तेषु विद्या[४७०] ह्यहं देव्या षड्वक्त्राङ्गसमन्विता[४७१] ॥ १५३ ॥
तथा कुलाष्टकं बाह्ये[४७२] क्रममण्डलवेष्टितम् ।

The one who possesses the three Transmissions and (their) arising and falling away is (a true) disciple was belongs to the Western Tradition. All others (merely) bear the name (of one but nothing more).[17] (142cd-143ab)

The Arising of the Triple Transmission

Listen, O lord, I will explain how the one Transmission is triple. When everything was merged into my body, (when) there were no sun, moon or stars, no constellations, no world or (even a single) mountain, O god, (when there was) neither you, nor I, the mobile and immobile (universe) was a Void. (Then) the Divine Command emerged out of that formless (state).[18] (143cd-145)

The energy of Śiva's will emerged in the form of the sprout (of emanation);[19] shaped like a lightning flash, she illumines the surface of the firmament. (146)

Thus the Divine Command, subduing the senses, (performed) long and terrible austerities. And so she developed[20] and became the Transmental. (147)

The sprout was divided into two. (One part became) the Formed (immanence) and (the other) the Stainless (transcendence) (nirañjana). (Such) is said to be the union of Śiva and Śakti (that takes place) within all living beings. (148)

O god Kaulīśa! You are Śiva and I am that Supreme (goddess) Kubjinī. My triple form has arisen by virtue of the (Transmission of) the Skyfarer.[21] (149)

At dawn my form is that of a young girl. I am a young woman in the middle of the day and by practice at night (niśācāra) I am old. This is my triple condition. This is why the one Transmission is said to be of three kinds in the Kulakrama. (150-151ab)

When Bālāvvā[22] (the Girl Mother) is in the Transmission of the Child, it is the Transmission of the Child. At midday comes (the Transmission) of the Youth and so it is said to be the Middle One. The (Transmission of the) Aged, of aged form, is offered at sunset. (151cd-152)

(Thus), the one Transmission is threefold because of (these) three forms. Within them I am the Vidyā, the goddess with six faces and limbs.[23] The Octad of Kula[24] is outside, enveloped by the Kramamaṇḍala. (153-154ab)

मण्डितं यैस्तु त्रैलोक्यं[४७३] नानारूपं नभाकृति ॥ १५४ ॥
तेन ते मण्डलाः[४७४] प्रोक्ता उद्यास्तमनवर्जिताः[४७५] ।
मण्डला द्योतगाः सर्वे त्रिधा बद्धमशेषतः[४७६] ॥ १५५ ॥
क्रमोदयमिदं ह्येतत् त्रिधा बद्धमशेषतः ।

अतः परं प्रवक्ष्यामि कुलदेव्याष्टकं यथा ॥ १५६ ॥
अष्टवर्गाक्षरान्यष्टौ[४७७] ऐंकारान्तविभेदिताः[४७८] ।
नादबिन्दुसमाक्रान्ता नाभिस्थाः[४७९] कुलदेवताः[४८०] ॥ १५७ ॥[४८१]

बीजत्रयं तु प्रासादं रावबीजं तु पञ्चमम् ।
अष्टावन्ते समासृज्या[४८२] वर्गदेव्यस्त्वनन्तरम् ॥ १५८ ॥

ब्राह्मी माहेशि[४८३] कौमारी वैष्णवी च वराहिका[४८४] ।
इन्द्राणी चैव आग्नेयी चामुण्डा चेति चाष्टमी ॥ १५९ ॥
नवमी च महालक्ष्मी[४८५] सविसर्गप्रदीपिताः[४८६] ।
पञ्चप्रणवादितः[४८७] कृत्वा संयोगान्नवकं प्रति[४८८] ॥ १६० ॥
विच्चेति[४८९] पादुकान्तं तु कृत्वा यजनमारभेत् ।

ओलीनामेतत्[४९०] समयं[४९१] समयायुक्तविद्यया[४९२] ॥ १६१ ॥
क्रमस्यावरणं[४९३] प्रोक्तं ज्ञात्वा सिद्ध्यारिहो[४९४] भवेत् ।

सप्ताविंशतिभेदानि[४९५] त्रिविधेन[४९६] क्रमेण तु ॥ १६२ ॥
उक्ता ये[४९७] च मया देव तेषां संकेतकानि[४९८] मे ।
पादुकानां च पीठानां[४९९] सिद्धनाथक्रमेण[५००] तु ॥ १६३ ॥
देवता ये क्रमे सर्वे[५०१] अव्वाशब्दं[५०२] नियोजयेत् ।
पादुकान्तं तथाग्रे तु क्रमं पूज्यं[५०३] यथाविधिः[५०४] ॥ १६४ ॥

एतेषां[५०५] च क्रमाणां च उदयास्तमनं[५०६] पुनः ।
आद्यक्रमस्य देवेश[५०७] उदयं[५०८] चाद्यपीठके ॥ १६५ ॥
लयं वै तिस्रपीठे तु आद्यस्य खेचरस्य च ।

Those are said to be your maṇḍalas that neither arise nor fall away, because the Triple World of diverse shapes, whose form is space, is adorned (maṇḍita) with them. All the *maṇḍala*s abide within the radiance (of ultimate reality). This is the Arising of the Transmission (kramodaya). Everything, in its entirety, is bound threefold. (154cd-156ab)

The Octad of Kula

I will now go on to tell (you) about the group of eight Kula goddesses.[25] The eight (goddesses correspond to) the eight classes of letters (of the alphabet) and are conjoined in the end with the syllable AIṀ. Pervaded by Sound and the Point, they are the deities of Kula and are located in the navel. (157)

(The order is as follows): the three seed-syllables,[26] that of Grace (prasāda) (HSRŪAUṀ)[27] and the seed-syllable of Sound (rāva) (KHPHREṀ) as the fifth. The goddesses of the classes are to be emitted, afterwards, at the end of the eight. (158)

(They are) Brāhmī, Māheśī, Kaumarī, Vaiṣṇavī, Vārāhikā, Indrāṇī, Āgneyī and Cāmuṇḍā as the eighth. The ninth is Mahālakṣmī. They are all illumined by emission (visarga). Once the Five Praṇavas have been placed first, by the conjunction with the group of nine (goddesses) and VICCE has been placed at the end of the Sandals, one should commence the sacrifice. (159-161ab)

This is the Rule (samaya) of the Lineages along with the Vidyā conjoined with the Samayā (mantra). The encompassing covering (āvaraṇa) of the Transmission has been explained. Once (this has been) learned, (the adept) is one who destroys the enemies of the Transmission. (161cd-162ab)

Conclusion

O god, I have spoken about the twenty-seven divisions according to the threefold Transmission and their conventions. One should add the word 'Avvā' to the (names of) the deities of the Sandals and the sacred seats and of all those in the Transmission. The Transmission should be worshipped, according to the enjoined method, within the Sandals and in front (of them).[28] (162cd-164)

(Now I will tell you) again (about) the arising and falling away of these (deities) and the Transmissions. O lord of the gods, the arising of the first Transmission takes place in the Primordial Seat. Merger takes place in the sacred seat called Tisra of the first (Transmission, which is that of) the Skyfarer. (165-166ab)

तथा वृद्धक्रमस्यैव उदयं तिस्रपीठके[५०९] ॥ १६६ ॥[५१०]
कामरूपे[५११] लयं तस्य[५१२] कौमारस्य तथा पुनः ।
उदयं पूर्णगिर्यायां लयं तस्याद्यपीठके[५१३] ॥ १६७ ॥
तथा बालक्रमस्यैव उदयं कामरूपके ।
लयमोंकारपीठे[५१४] तु एतत् क्रमविनिर्णयम् ॥ १६८ ॥

आख्यातं पूर्वसूत्रेऽस्मिन्[५१५] ज्ञात्वा चान्वयिको भवेत् ।
क्रमपूर्वे[५१६] समाप्ते तु आज्ञासूत्रं तु योगिनः[५१७] ॥ १६९ ॥
सकृदावर्तनात् तस्या[५१८] आज्ञासिद्धिर्मलक्षयम्[५१९] ।

इत्याद्यावतारे महामन्थानभैरवयज्ञे अन्वये सप्तकोटिप्रमाणे[५२०] मेरुमार्गविनिर्गते[५२१]
लक्षपादाधिके[५२२] आद्यपीठावतारिते[५२३] विद्यापीठमार्गे[५२४] विमलषट्कनिर्णये[५२५]
कादिभेदे आज्ञापारमेश्वरे[५२६] स्वामिनीमते श्रीचतुर्विंशत्सहस्रसंहितायां[५२७]
अव्वाक्रमभाषिते[५२८] क्रमत्रिधाधिकारवर्णने
क्रमोदयो नामानन्दः ॥ २८ ॥[५२९]

Similarly, the arising of the Transmission of the Aged takes place in the sacred seat called Tisra. Its merger takes place in Kāmarūpa. Again, in the same way, the arising of (the Transmission of) the Youth takes place in Pūrṇagiri and its merger in the Primordial Seat. Similarly, the Transmission of the Child arises in the Kāmaūpaka and merges into the sacred seat of OṀ. This is the teaching concerning the Transmission. (166cd-168)

It has been explained in this, the first sūtra. Once known, (the adept) becomes a member of the tradition. The Sūtra of the Command of (accomplished) Yogis (comes next) when the previous Transmission is complete. By repeating it (āvartana) once, (the adept attains) the accomplishment of the Command and (his) impurity (mala) is destroyed. (169-170ab)

This is the (twenty-eighth) chapter which is the emergence of the transmission (kramodaya) with regards to the description of the Authority of the Triple Transmission. It belongs to the primordial descent into the great sacrifice of the Churning Bhairava in the tradition (anvaya) that consists of seventy million (verses) that has emerged on the Path of Meru and (extends) for more than a hundred thousand quarter (verses). It has been brought (down to earth) into the first sacred seat along the path of the Seat of Knowledge (vidyāpīṭha). It is the ultimate purport of the Pure Six Thousand (verses) (vimalaṣaṭka) in the division beginning with ‘KĀ' in the venerable scripture of twenty-four thousand (verses) (known as) the Svāminīmata of the Supreme Lord's command as uttered within the Tradition of the Mother (avvākrama).

ऊनत्रिंशानन्दः

श्रीनाथ उवाच

अहं शिष्यः[१] स्वरूपेण कृपां [२]मे कुरु कौलिनि[३] ।
यत् किञ्चिदाज्ञया देवि प्रसादं क्रियतां प्रभो[४] ।। १ ।।

अनादिनिधने[५] शान्ते आदिनाथे कुलोद्भवे ।
कन्दगुह्यान्तरावस्थे[६] नमामि परमामृते ।। २ ।।

द्वादशान्ते त्रिकोणस्थे[७] कन्दाधारसमुद्भवे ।
वामे वामान्तरालीने[८] नमामि परमाव्यये ।। ३ ।।

सर्वकामैः सुसंपूर्णे इच्छाशक्तिरधिष्ठिते[९] ।
इच्छया सृजसे[१०] सर्वं[११] त्रैलोक्यं सचराचरम्[१२] ।। ४ ।।

कामेश्वरीति कामाख्ये कामरूपे स्वयंभुवे ।
कामपीठान्तरावस्थे कामरूपे नमामि ते ।। ५ ।।

बिन्दुमध्याद् विनिष्क्रान्ते[१३] कामेश्वरि[१४] भगालये ।
गुप्तकामाख्यगुह्यान्ते महासिद्धैरलंकृते[१५] ।। ६ ।।
सर्वरत्नेषु खचिते[१६] महामणिविभूषिते ।
मुक्ताफलप्रवालाद्यैर्भूषिते[१७] सुमनोरमे ।। ७ ।।
वज्रवैडूर्यरचिते[१८] इन्द्रनीलैर्विचित्रिते ।
अनेकरत्नसंदीप्ते महारत्नविभूषिते ।। ८ ।।
सुगन्धगन्धबहुले[१९] कुंकुमोदकचर्चिते ।
कर्पूरादिभिर्धूपैश्च[२०] मदिरानन्दनन्दिते ।। ९ ।।
सुगन्धामोदबहुले[२१] पञ्चकाद्ये मनोहरे ।
नानाकुसुमजातीभिर्नानावर्णैरधिष्ठिते[२२] ।। १० ।।
पूज्यसे सिद्धवृन्दैश्च[२३] चन्द्रतारागणावृते ।
खेचरीचक्रमध्यस्थे मन्दरस्थे[२४] नपुंसके ।। ११ ।।

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

The Sūtra of the Teaching concerning the Visualization of the Goddess's Form

Hymn to the Goddess Kubjikā

Śrīnātha said:

O Lord, I am (your) disciple by (my very) nature;[1] be gracious to me, O Kaulinī. O lord goddess, grace me in whatever way by (your) Command. (1)

O primordial mistress (ādināthā)! You are without beginning or end, tranquil, begotten of Kula; you reside in the Cave of the Root[2] (kandaguhya)! O supreme nectar! I salute you. (2)

O you, who reside in the Triangle in the End of the Twelve and have emerged out of the foundation of the Root! O Woman (vāmā)! Inwardly merged within woman! Supremely imperishable one! I salute you.[3] (3)

You who, sustained by the power of the will, are completely full of all (fulfilled) desires, emanate the Triple World along with all that moves and is immobile, by (your) will (alone). (4)

O self-born one! (You are) Kāmeśvarī (the Mistress of Passion) in Kāmākhya.[4] O passion who resides in the Sacred Seat of Passion! I salute you. (5)

O Mistress of Passion who has emerged from the centre of the Point! Abode of the Yoni in the cave of the hidden Kāmākhya! Adorned by great Siddhas! (You who) shine in the midst of all the jewels! Adorned with great jewels! Adorned with pearls, corals and (other semi-precious stones)! Most beautiful one! Made of diamonds and opals! Beautifully various with (many kinds of) topaz! Shining with countless jewels! Adorned with jewels of great (value)! Fragrant with sweet-smelling scent! Smeared with vermillion water! (Adorned) with camphor, incense and all else! Joyous with the bliss of wine! Fragrant with fine scent! (Worshipped) with the five (offerings) and the rest! O beautiful one! (Worshipped) with flowers of many kinds and attended by people of many castes! O you who are encompassed by the moon and hordes of stars, you are worshipped by (many) circles of Siddhas! Resident in the midst of the Circle of the Skyfarers! Resident on (mount) Mandara! Neuter one! (6-11)

पञ्चाशल्लिङ्गजननि[२५] योनिरूपे महाम्बिके ।
गुह्यान्तावस्थिते देवि गुहागहनवासिनि[२६] ।। १२ ।।

न स्त्री न च[२७] पुंलिङ्गं[२८] आनन्दं[२९] तन्नपुंसकम् ।
रत्नैकादशसंस्थाने[३०] त्वं हि देवि विराजसे ।। १३ ।।
ख्यातुं[३१] त्वां नैव शक्नोमि संक्षेपेणोदितं मया ।
महारत्नस्तवं[३२] गुह्यं दिव्यानन्दप्रवर्तकम् ।। १४ ।।

स्तुतिं[३३] कृत्वा तु पृच्छामि कामरूपे शृणु प्रिये ।
कश्चाहं त्वं[३४] च का देवि किं नाम इह[३५] गीयते ।। १५ ।।

न जानामि स्वरूपं ते तेजशक्त्याः[३६] प्रभावतः ।
प्रणामं[३७] वर्णरूपं वा पारम्पर्यव्यवस्थितम्[३८] ।। १६ ।।
पीठं मन्त्रोपदेशञ्च[३९] क्रमाचारं[४०] यथा स्थितम् ।
मम[४१] लीना सदा मग्ना[४२] नाहं जानामि ते पदम् ।। १७ ।।

देवदेवप्रिये देवि मम प्राणेषु वल्लभे ।
न त्वया रहितं किञ्चित् पश्यामि सचराचरे ।। १८ ।।

प्रसादं कुरु मे गौरि भक्तस्य मां[४३] सुलोचने ।
किञ्चिद् रहस्यं देवेशि[४४] कौलज्ञानं[४५] सुदुर्लभम्[४६] ।। १९ ।।
यस्यावतारमात्रेण[४७] सिद्धिर्भवति कलौ[४८] युगे ।
तदहं श्रोतुमिच्छामि निःसंशयं[४९] वदस्व मे ।। २० ।।

श्रीवक्रा उवाच[५०]

शृणु ईश्वर तत्त्वेन कारणं गूढमुत्तमम्[५१] ।
गुह्याद् गुह्यतरं गुह्यं गोपनीयं प्रयत्नतः ।। २१ ।।

योगिनीहृदयं गुह्यं अतिगुह्यं[५२] सुरक्षितम् ।
रक्षणीयं[५३] सदा शम्भो चौरेभ्यो[५४] द्रविणं यथा ।। २२ ।।

O you whose form is the Yoni! (You are) the mother of the fifty Liṅgas, O great mother! O goddess who lives in the secret place! You who live in the depths of the Cave! (12)

Neither male nor female, that bliss is neuter.[5] O goddess, you shine within the place of the Eleven Jewels. I cannot say (everything about) you, but I have uttered in a concise form the secret Hymn of the Great Jewel[6] that inspires divine bliss. (13-14)

O dear one, you who are Passion! (Now that I) have praised (you), I am asking (you a question); listen, O goddess! Who am I? Who are you? What is the name (of the deity) that is proclaimed here (in this world)? (15)

I do not know your (true) nature due to the influence of the power of (your) radiant energy (tejas). (Nor do I know the way to offer) salutation or (the true nature of each) phoneme as established by the tradition, (or that of) the sacred seat or the teaching concerning mantra, the practice of the Krama as it (truly) is. You are perpetually merged within me (and yet) I do not know your (true) state (pada). (17)

O goddess, beloved of the God of the gods, you who are the beloved within my vital breaths, I see that nothing is devoid of you in the moving and immobile (universe). (18)

O fair one with beautiful eyes! Grace me, (your) devotee. O mistress of the gods! I wish to hear the subtle secret, the Kaula knowledge which, hard to acquire, brings success in (this) the Age of Strife merely by its descent (into the world). Tell me (this in such a way that there can be) no doubt (about it). (19-20)

The venerable (goddess) Vakrā said:

O Lord, listen to the supreme and secret cause (of all things) as it truly is. (This), the secret which is more secret than (the greatest) secret, should be kept concealed with effort. (21)

It is the Heart of the Yoginī, the secret which is extremely secret and well guarded. O Śambhu, it should always be protected as one does wealth from thieves. (22)

परतेजाद्[५५] विनिष्क्रान्ता[५६] अव्यक्ता व्यक्तरूपिणी ।
दक्षभागे स्थितः शम्भुः वामे[५७] विष्णुः प्रकीर्तितः ।। २३ ।।
मध्यवर्ती स्थितो[५८] ब्रह्मा बिन्दुरूपी महाबलः ।
तन्मध्यवर्तिनी[५९] चाहं तेजोरूपेण संस्थिता ।। २४ ।।

भूर्भुवःस्वादिलोकेषु[६०] स्थावरेषु[६१] चरेषु च ।
नक्षत्रग्रहराशीषु[६२] कृमिकीटादिषु स्थिता ।। २५ ।।

मातृकावर्णरूपा च मम योन्यान्तरे स्थिता[६३] ।
पीठोपपीठक्षेत्राणि चत्वाराणि[६४] तथा परे ।। २६ ।।

योगिनीसिद्धनिलयं[६५] यत्[६६] किञ्चिद् वाङ्मयं स्थितम् ।
सृजामि सकलं विश्वं संहारिष्याम्यहं[६७] पुनः ।। २७ ।।

गुह्ये[६८] हृदि[६९] तथा वक्त्रे[७०] स्थिताहं परमा कला ।
स्थूलसूक्ष्मविभागेन शृणु[७१] मूर्तिं[७२] यथा[७३] स्थिताम्[७४] ।। २८ ।।

तां[७५] तेऽहं[७६] संप्रवक्ष्यामि[७७] दिव्यरूपां महाबलाम्[७८] ।
एकाक्षरा परा प्रोक्ता सिद्धानां ज्ञानभूमिका ।। २९ ।।

योगविद्या महाविद्या रुद्राणां हृदये स्थिता[७९] ।
रुद्रखण्डे[८०] तु रुद्राणां परा ज्ञानानुवर्तिनी[८१] ।। ३० ।।

कामाख्ये[८२] समया[८३] प्रोक्ता पीठदेवी च[८४] पूर्णके[८५] ।
योगिसंज्ञा[८६] च ॐकारे[८७] मुद्रात्रितयमण्डले ।। ३१ ।।

विद्यात्रितयसंयुक्तं अवतारं[८८] युगे[८९] युगे[९०] ।
ओलीनां[९१] गोत्रवर्गेऽस्मिन्[९२] अमर्यादिषु शासने[९३] ।। ३२ ।।

परा एकाक्षरा[९४] पूर्वं[९५] तव देव निदर्शिता[९६] ।
तां[९७] प्रवक्ष्याम्यहं[९८] सम्यक्[९९] सुसूक्ष्मां[१००] लक्षमध्यगाम्[१०१] ।। ३३ ।।

(I who am) unmanifest and (whose) form is manifest, have emerged from the supreme radiant energy (tejas). Śambhu is on the right, while Viṣṇu is said to be on the left. Brahmā, of great might and in the form of the Point, is between (them). I abide in the form of radiant energy in the midst of them.[7] (23-24)

(I) reside in the worlds of Bhūḥ, Bhuvaḥ, Svā and the rest, in (all) moving and immobile things, in the constellations and planets and (even) in such (insignificant creatures) as lice. (25)

My form is that of the letters of the alphabet (mātṛkāvarṇa) and in the Supreme (Reality) – that is, within my Yoni – are located the four primary and secondary seats. (26)

I create and destroy the entire universe, (including) the abode of the Siddhas and Yoginīs and whatever is made of words. (27)

I, who am the Supreme Energy (kalā), reside in the secret place (i.e. the genitals), the heart and the head. Listen (as I explain) (how my) form (mūrti) abides in (its) gross and subtle aspects. (28)

I will tell you of that divine and greatly powerful form (rūpa). The single syllable (Vidyā) (ekākṣarā)[8] is said to be Parā (the Supreme Goddess), the Siddhas' plane of knowledge. (29)

It is the Knowledge of Yoga (yogavidyā), the great knowledge that resides in the heart of the Rudras. She who follows after knowledge is the Supreme (Goddess) of the Rudras who reside in Rudra's part (khaṇḍa). (30)

In Kāmākhya she is called Samayā; in Pūrṇaka she is Pīṭhadevī (the Goddess of the Sacred Seat); (in the sacred seat of) OṂ she is called 'Yogi'; (these are the three) in the Maṇḍala of the Three Gestures (mudrātritayamaṇḍala).[9] (31)

The descent (avatāra) conjoined with the three Vidyās[10] takes place in every Age in the clans (gotra) and in Amarī and the rest of the lineages in the teaching. (32)

O god, I have shown you the Supreme (Vidyā) of one syllable before. Extremely subtle and located in the centre of the goal,[11] I will tell you about it properly. (33)

आदौ ह्रस्वस्वरा प्रोक्ता उन्नता किञ्चिद्[१०२] दृश्यते[१०३] ।
नीलोत्पलदलश्यामा[१०४] वीरभस्मसमप्रभा[१०५] ।। ३४ ।।

षड्वक्त्रा[१०६] षट्प्रकारा च[१०७] चिच्छक्त्यन्तरचारिणी[१०८] ।
नेत्रैरष्टादशैश्चैव[१०९] वर्तुलैश्चावलोकिनी[११०] ।। ३५ ।।
द्वादशैश्च[१११] भुजैर्युक्ता[११२] नानास्रग्दाममण्डिता ।
प्रेतसिंहासनासीना[११३] नानाभरणशोभिता[११४] ।। ३६ ।।
कुलकोटिसहस्राणां[११५] आरूढा कुलशासने[११६] ।

तस्या:[११७] पिण्डविधानोक्त[११८] देवानामपि दुर्लभम्[११९] ।। ३७ ।।

अनन्त[१२०] पादयोर्नित्य[१२१] नुपूरपरिमण्डणम्[१२२] ।
तक्षकं कटिबन्धे तु मेखलायां[१२३] विराजते[१२४] ।। ३८ ।।
कर्कोटक[१२५] कर्णौ[१२६] देव्या:[१२७] कण्ठे वासुकिभैरवम्[१२८] ।
मुकुटे कुलिकं चैव गोनास:[१२९] कर्णकुण्डले ।। ३९ ।।

खर्जुरमुद्रिकांगुल्यैरन्ये[१३०] नागकुलानि[१३१] च ।
भ्रूदण्डे[१३२] संस्थित:[१३३] पद्मो[१३४] महापद्मो[१३५] द्वितीयके[१३६] ।। ४० ।।

खट्वाङ्गं[१३७] पाशमभय[१३८] अक्षसूत्रं सुशोभनम् ।
मञ्जरीं रत्नखचित[१३९] विद्युतपुञ्जसमद्युतिम्[१४०] ।। ४१ ।।
कोट्यागमकरेणैव[१४१] शङ्खपालस्तथोत्तरे ।
कपालं वरद[१४२] चैव त्रिशूलं कर्मदर्पणम्[१४३] ।। ४२ ।।

दक्षिणे च करे देव्या अमरीद्रव्यपञ्चकम् ।
कलशं द्वानवत्याया: शतैर्द्विभि: विराजते ।। ४३ ।।

स्वरमाला शिरे[१४४] देव्या[१४५] वर्णहारावलम्बिनी[१४६] ।[१४७]
वृश्चिकैर्गलके हार[१४८] शतार्धेन[१४९] विराजते ।। ४४ ।।

The Visualization of the Twelve-armed Form of the Goddess Kubjikā[12]

It is said that she is the short vowel in the beginning and appears to be bent over (unnatā).[13] Dark blue like a blue lotus,[14] she has the lustre of Heroes' ashes. (34)

She is the inwardly-moving energy of consciousness[15] with six faces and (six) aspects (prakāra).[16] She (sees) with her eighteen round eyes[17] and, adorned with many garlands, she has twelve arms. Adorned with many ornaments, she is seated on a ghost[18] who serves as her throne (pretasiṁhāsana).[19] She is established in the Kula teaching concerning thousands of millions of Kulas.[20] (35-37ab)

The method concerning (the goddess's) body, hard to acquire even for the gods, has been explained. (37cd)

The (serpent) Ananta[21] is ever (coiled around her) feet as the anklets that decorate them. (The serpent) Takṣaka[22] appears beautiful as the girdle that is wraped around her waist. Karkoṭaka[23] (hangs from) the goddess's ears, while Vāsuki[24] Bhairava (adorns her) neck. Kulika[25] is on (her) crown and Gonāsa on (her) earrings. (38-39)

(She wears) scorpions as rings for (her) fingers and other families of snakes. On (one) eyebrow is (the snake) Padma and Mahāpadma is on the other.[26] (40)

(She carries) an ascetic's staff (khaṭvāṅga),[27] a noose and a beautiful rosary (while making the gesture of) fearlessness. (In her other hands she holds a) bouquet (of flowers) embossed with jewels, the light of which is like a net of lightning flashes, in (another) hand (she holds) countless scriptures (?) and in the left one, the sun. (In her other hands she holds) a skull, trident, the mirror of Karma[28] and (she makes the gesture of) bestowing boons.[29] (41-42)

In the goddess's right hand is a jar with the five potions of immortality (amarīdravya)[30] that look splendid (coupled with the goddess's Vidyā) of two hundred and ninty-two (syllables).[31] (43)

On the goddess's head is a garland of vowels. A necklace of letters hangs (from her neck). The necklace around her neck is made of fifty scorpions and looks beautiful.[32] (44)

परादेवीमुखं पूर्व[१५०] ऊर्ध्वस्थ[१५१] राजते[१५२] शुभम् ।
गोक्षीरधवल[१५३] दिव्य[१५४] कलासप्तादशीयुतम्[१५५] ॥ ४५ ॥[१५६]

द्वितीयं मूर्ध्नि[१५७] वक्त्र[१५८] तु गगन[१५९] नाम मालिनी ।
शङ्खेन्दुतुहिनाभासं सौम्यमूर्ति:[१६०] सुशोभनम् ॥ ४६ ॥

तृतीयं पूर्ववक्त्रं तु पाण्डुर[१६१] क्रोधविह्वलम्[१६२] ।
सिद्धयोगेश्वरीख्यात[१६३] मन्त्रविग्रहभूषितम्[१६४] ॥ ४७ ॥

नीलोत्पलनिभप्रख्यं कालिकाख्यं तु दक्षिणे[१६५] ।
दंष्ट्रं कराल[१६६] रौद्रं च किञ्चिद्रक्तायतेक्षणम्[१६७a] ॥ ४८ ॥

दाडिमीकुसुमप्रख्यं सौम्यमानन्ददायकम् ।
पञ्चमं त्रिपुरा नाम पूर्णचन्द्रेव[१६७b] वर्तुलम् ॥ ४९ ॥

उमाखेचरिपूर्वं तु पश्चिम[१६८] श्वेतरूपकम् ।
सर्वानुग्रहकृद् दिव्यं ध्यातं मोक्षफलप्रदम्[१६९] ॥ ५० ॥

स्वच्छदर्पणसंकाश[१७०] हृदयं तु विराजते ।
बालार्ककिरणप्रख्यं शिरस[१७१] तेजवर्चसम्[१७२] ॥ ५१ ॥

तडित्कोटिसहस्राभा[१७३] शिखा भास्वररूपिणी[१७४] ।
कवचं तेजदुर्भेद्य[१७५] दुष्प्रेक्ष्य[१७६] बहुरूपिणम् ॥ ५२ ॥

नेत्रौ चन्द्रार्कतुल्याभौ[१७७] तृतीयं वह्निसन्निभम् ।
अस्त्रं कालानलच्छायं लेलिहानं सुदु:सहम् ॥ ५३ ॥
सर्व[१७८] संहारयेत्[१७९] त्वेव[१८०] तेजसा परिभावयेत्[१८१] ।

पृथिवी जानुदेशे तु अपो नाभ्यां व्यवस्थित:[१८२] ॥ ५४ ॥
तेजो हृदयमध्ये तु कण्ठस्थाने तु मारुतम्[१८३] ।[१८४]
आकाशं तु[१८५] ललाटस्थ[१८६] ब्रह्मा नाभिगत[१८७] विदु:[१८८] ॥ ५५ ॥

The Goddess’s Six Faces and Six Limbs

[33]First comes the face of the Supreme Goddess. Auspicious, it is located above and shines (there). Endowed with the seventeenth (lunar) power,[34] it is divine and white as milk.[35] (45)

The second face is on the head; it is the sky and belongs to Mālinī. Very auspicious, its demenour is serious (saumya) and looks brilliant (white) like a conch, the moon and snow.[36] (46)

The third is the eastern face. It is white and distraught with anger. It is said to be Siddhayogeśvarī, adorned with the form of mantra.[37] (47)

In the south (is the face of the goddess) called Kālī. (Its colour) is like that of a blue lotus. It is fierce and terrible with protruding teeth and the eyes are long and slightly red.[38] (48)

The fifth (head) is (red) like a pomegranate flower and bestows tranquil bliss. Round like the full moon, it is (that of) Tripurā.[39] (49)

The western face is white and presided over by Umākhecarī. Divine and the bestower of grace to all, contemplated, it gives the fruit of liberation.[40] (50)

The Goddess’s Six Limbs

(The goddess’s) heart shines like a clean mirror and (her) head, brilliant with radiant energy (tejas), shines like the rays of the young (rising) sun.[41] (51)

(Her) topknot shines like a hundred million lightning flashes. (Her) armour, of many forms, is made of brilliant energy (tejas) which is hard to pierce, (or even) to look at.[42] (52)

The light of (her) two eyes is like that of the Sun and Moon,[43] while the third (eye) is like Fire. (Her) weapon, hard to bear, is like the Fire of Time which destroys (all things with its) licking (tongues).[44] One should overcome and destroy all things thus with (her) radiant power (tejas).[45] (53-54ab)

The Five Elements in the Goddess's Body and Conclusion

Earth is located in (her) knees.[46] (The gross element) Water is in (her) navel. Fire (tejas) is in the centre of (her) heart, while Air is in (her) throat and Space on (her) forehead. (54cd-55abc)

हृदि मध्ये स्थितो विष्णुः कण्ठस्थं रुद्रसंज्ञकम् ।
ईश्वर[१८९] तु ललाटस्थं तदूर्ध्वे शिवमव्ययम् ॥ ५६ ॥

सर्वव्याप्तिस्वरूपेण विश्वरूपा यशस्विनी[१९०] ।
अग्निवासपरीधाना[१९१] तेजपुञ्जसमप्रभा[१९२] ॥ ५७ ॥

ध्यायेद्[१९३] देव्यास्त्विदं रूपं आपूर्यन्तं विचिन्तयेत् ।
एषा सा उन्मना सूक्ष्मा सा[१९४] कला भुवनान्तरे ॥ ५८ ॥

उदिता[१९५] कलिकाले तु देवदेवी जगत्सुता[१९६] ।
आकाशे[१९७] मर्त्यलोके च[१९८] पाताले हाट्टकेश्वरे[१९९] ॥ ५९ ॥
संस्थिता ओलिवर्गे[२००] तु आज्ञारूपा च कोङ्कणे[२०१] ।
देव्या मूर्तिमिमां शम्भो ज्ञात्वा[२०२] यजनमारभेत् ॥ ६० ॥[२०३]

इत्याद्यावतारे[२०४] महामन्थानभैरवयज्ञे अन्वये सप्तकोटिप्रमाणे मेरुमार्गविनिर्गते लक्षपादाधिके आद्यपीठावतारिते विद्यापीठमार्गे विमलषट्कनिर्णये कादिभेदे आज्ञापारमेश्वरे[२०५] स्वामिनीमते श्रीचतुर्विंशत्सहस्रसंहितायां अव्वाक्रम–भाषिते देव्यामूर्तिध्यानोपदेशसूत्रं ॥ २९ ॥

(The wise) know that Brahmā is in (her) navel. Viṣṇu is in the centre of (her) heart, while Rudra is in (her) throat. Īśvara is on (her) forehead, while above that is the imperishable Śiva.[47] (55c-56)

Universal pervasion by nature, she is all things (viśvarūpā) and greatly renowned. (Her) garment, a shining network of brilliant energy, is (her) fiery abode. (57)

Meditate on this form of the goddess. Imagine that it is (perpetually) filling (all things).[48] This is the subtle Transmental (ūnmanā), the energy within the worlds. (58)

She is the goddess of the gods who has given birth to the universe and who has (manifestly) arisen in the Age of Strife.[49] She resides in space, in the mortal world, in the hell of Haṭṭakeśvara,[50] in the Lineages and in Koṅkaṇa as the Command.[51] O Śambhu, once one has known this form of the goddess, one should commence the sacrifice.[52] (59-60)

This is the Sūtra of the Teaching concerning the Visualization of the Goddess's Form. It belongs to the primordial descent into the great sacrifice of the Churning Bhairava in the tradition (anvaya) that consists of seventy million (verses) that has emerged on the Path of Meru and (extends) for more than a hundred thousand quarter (verses). It has been brought (down to earth) into the first sacred seat along the path of the Seat of Knowledge (vidyāpīṭha). It is the ultimate purport of the Pure Six Thousand (verses) (vimalaṣaṭka) in the division beginning with `KĀ' in the venerable scripture of twenty-four thousand (verses) (known as) the Svāminīmata of the Supreme Lord's command as uttered within the Tradition of the Mother (avvākrama).

त्रिंशानन्दः

श्रीनाथ उवाच

एतद्रूपं त्वया देवि कथितं गूढमुत्तमम्[१] ।
रहस्यं पुनः[२] पृच्छामि पूजा—आगममण्डलम्[३] ॥ १ ॥
व्याख्यालिखनकाले च विधानं संस्फुटं[४] वद ।

श्रीवक्रा उवाच[५]

लिख्यमाने महादेव चातुर्विंशसहस्त्रके[६] ॥ २ ॥
श्रीमते मतराजाने[७] खण्डत्रयमहाकुले[८] ।
विधिहीनस्य विघ्नानि जायन्ते[९] च यथा शृणु[१०] ॥ ३ ॥
उत्पाताः[११] संप्रजायन्ते विघ्नानि च अनेकधा[१२] ।
व्याधयश्च प्रकुप्यन्ते[१३] राजानः स्वजने अपि[१४] ॥ ४ ॥
स्वगृहे कलहो नित्यं उद्वेगश्चातिदारुणः[१५] ।
सगोत्राश्च[१६] प्रकुप्यन्ते कलहं च परस्परम्[१७] ॥ ५ ॥
अर्थहानिरलाभश्च वियोगश्च सुहृद्बधः[१८] ।
कपोताश्च गृहे नित्यं आरुहन्ति[१९] विशन्ति[२०] च ॥ ६ ॥
गृद्राः[२१] काकाश्च काकोलाः[२२] पर्यटन्ति[२३] गृहोपरि[२४] ।
परिवेशं[२५] तु सूर्यस्य[२६] अकाले कुहुकं[२७] भवेत् ॥ ७ ॥
गर्भान्[२८] स्त्रवन्ति गर्भिण्यो[२९] गर्जनं[३०] चापि जायते[३१] ।
उल्कापाता[३२] दिशो दाघो[३३] पार्श्वतश्चाग्निदीपनम्[३४] ॥ ८ ॥
रात्रौ स्वप्नानि रौद्राणि[३५] पश्यते[३६] सततं[३७] प्रिय[३८] ।
चन्द्रस्वातिप्रकोपेन[३९] वाता[४०] वायन्ति भीषणाः[४१] ॥ ९ ॥
प्रविशन्ति गृहस्यान्ते[४२] व्यालाश्चातिविषोत्कटाः[४३] ।
पठेदनादराद्[४४] यस्तु जायते तस्य तदृशम्[४५] ॥ १० ॥

CHAPTER THIRTY

The Prescribed way of Writing and Explaining the Scripture

The Copying and Worship of the Scripture

Śrīnātha said:

O goddess, you have told (me) about that form (of yours) which is secret and best. What I am (now) asking (you) about is the secret of the worship of the scripture and the maṇḍala. Tell (me) clearly what is to be done (vidhāna) when the (Tantra) is explained and written.[1] (1-2ab)

The venerable goddess said:

O Great God, when (this) the Śrīmata, the king of Matas, the Great Kula in three parts (khaṇḍatraya), consisting of twenty-four thousand verses,[2] is being transcribed, obstacles arise for one does so without the prescribed method. Listen to how this is. (2cd-3)

Evil omens, many kinds of obstacles and diseases arise. Kings become angry even with their own people. Quarrels go on constantly in one's own home and one suffers from terrible worry. Clan members get angry and quarrel with one another. (4-5)

One loses money and there is no gain. (One suffers) separation (from one's loved ones) and troubles occur to one's friends. There are always pigeons (boding misfortune) in one's house. They climb up it and enter (it). (6)

Vultures, crows and ravens walk about on top of (one's) house. The sun has a halo (boding misfortune) and the new moon (kuhuka) is at the wrong time. Pregnant women abort, it thunders (for no reason), comets fall, the directions burn and fires start next to one (without any cause). (7-8)

O beloved, one always sees terrible dreams at night and winds blow, instigated by the wrath of (the constellation) Svāsti and the moon. (9)

Wild animals, savage and very poisonous, enter one's house. This is what happens to one who reads (this scripture) without respect. (10)

रक्षन्ति सिद्धयोगिन्यः[४६] सिद्धाश्च दण्डधारकाः[४७] ।
कोटिकोटिस्त्वसंख्याता[४८] श्रीमतेद[४९] महाकुलम् ॥ ११ ॥

अदृष्टविग्रहा नित्यं योगसिद्धा महाबलाः[५०] ।
रक्षन्ति श्रीमत[५१] देव शासने कुलयोगिनः[५२] ॥ १२ ॥

दशदिक्षु[५३] प्रवर्तन्ते शिवारावा भयंकराः[५४] ।
पिङ्गलाश्च गृहे नित्यं शब्दं कुर्वन्ति दारुणम्[५५] ॥ १३ ॥

गृध्रचिता[५६] वरारोह[५७] विशन्ति तस्य मन्दिरे ।
एवमादि[५८] महोत्पाता[५९] विधिहीनस्य निश्चितम्[६०] ॥ १४ ॥

समयघ्नस्य विशेषेण[६१] विघ्नसंख्या न विद्यते ।
तदर्थस्तु[६२] विधिः कार्यो[६३] लिख्यमाने[६४] च प्रत्ययम्[६५] ॥ १५ ॥

संविधास्यामि[६६] ते देव सर्वविघ्नविनाशनम्[६७] ।
यत्नतो[६८] पुस्तक[६९] रक्ष्य[७०] संस्पर्शात्[७१] तद्बहिःकृतैः[७२] ॥ १६ ॥

यत्नेन[७३] तु[७४] विधिः कार्यो[७५] यावद्[७६] ग्रन्थः[७७] समाप्यते ।
तत्संस्थानविहीनत्वात्[७८] स्पष्टं[७९] नैव प्रजायते ॥ १७ ॥

तिथिं पूर्णां[८०] समासाद्य[८१] सूर्येण तु समन्विताम् ।
गुरुवारेऽथवा देव दुष्ट–ऋक्षं[८२] विवर्जयेत्[८३] ॥ १८ ॥
अष्टम्यां[८४] वा चतुर्दश्यां[८५] शुभ–ऋक्षणयोगतः[८६] ।

एकान्ते विजने रम्ये[८७] पशुदृष्टिविवर्जिते ॥ १९ ॥
गोमयेनोपलिप्ते[८८] च निम्नोन्नतविवर्जिते[८९] ।
कृत्वा मण्डलकं तत्र चतुरस्रं समन्ततः ॥ २० ॥
पुष्पप्रकरसंकीर्णे स्वस्तिकोपरि[९०] शोभिते[९१] ।

विदिक्षु दीपकास्तत्र दातव्या घृतबोधिताः[९२] ॥ २१ ॥
स्वस्तिकोपरि[९३] संस्थाप्य कुम्भं चालिप्रपूरितम्[९४] ।
पूजयेत्[९५] तु[९६] त्रिखण्डं वै[९७] पुष्पमालाविभूषितम्[९८] ॥ २२ ॥

Perfected Yoginīs and Siddhas, bearing sticks in countless millions, protect this Śrīmata, the Great Kula. (11)

The Yogasiddhas are always invisible and they are very powerful. O god, the Kula Yogis belonging to the tradition (śāsana) protect the Śrīmata. (12)

The frightening howls of jackals resound in the ten directions. There are always owls in the house and they make a frightening sound. (13)

O handsome one, vultures who attend funeral pyres enter his temple. These and other great (and terrible) omens (appear) to one who does not possess the prescribed (ritual) method. This is certain. (14)

Countless obstacles (arise) particularly for one who violates the Rule (samaya). Thus one should apply the prescribed method (vidhi) for that purpose, and (so) while writing (the Śrīmata), (instead of evil portents) a sign of accomplishment (pratyaya) (appears). (15)

O god, I will ordain the destruction of all your impediments. The book should be protected with great effort from being (even) touched by outsiders. (16)

The prescribed method should be applied with effort until the book is finished. It is because that (method) is not applied that (what is written in the book) is unclear.[3] (17)

(One should start to copy the Śrīmata when) the moon is full[4] on a Sunday.[5] Or else, O god, on Thursday. One should avoid (doing so on days when) harmful constellations (prevail). (One can also begin) on the eighth lunar day or on the fourteenth in conjunction with an auspicious constellation. (18-19ab)

One should first fashion a square maṇḍala in a lonely place[6] that is beautiful, where there are no people and out of sight of the uninitiated (paśu). (The ground should) be flat and smeared with cow dung. (It should be made) beautiful with heaps of flowers strewn on top of the svastika (drawn in the maṇḍala). (19cd-21ab)

There, in the intermediate quarters, one should place lamps that are kept lit with clarified butter. When the jar, full of wine, has been placed on top of the svastika, one should worship the Trikhaṇḍa[7] (i.e. the Śrīmata) that has been (previously) adorned with garlands of flowers.[8] (21cd-22)

आसने तु[९९] त्रिखण्डं तु खण्ड[१००] वै मातृखण्डकम्[१०१] ।
मन्त्रखण्डं तु वै मध्ये नवात्मानेन[१०२] पूरितम् ॥ २३ ॥

तत्र पुस्तकमारोप्य लिखितं वा[१०३] अलेखितम्[१०४] ।
वेष्टयेद् वस्त्रयुग्मेन हेमगर्भ[१०५] तु कारयेत् ॥ २४ ॥

पूज्यं पञ्चोपचारेण नैवेद्यं विनिवेदयेत् ।
बहिर्बलिः[१०६] प्रदातव्यो[१०७] आचार्येण[१०८] विधानवत्[१०९] ॥ २५ ॥

ततो मङ्गलनिर्घोषैर्लेखयेत्[११०] श्लोकपञ्चकम्[१११] ।_*
संवर्तामण्डलं सूत्र[११२] अवतारं क्रमस्य तु ॥ २६ ॥
व्याख्येय[११३] लेखयेत्[११४] क्वापि[११५] यथाविधिरनुक्रमात् ।

समयीसाधकान्[११६] पुत्रान् योगिन्यश्च कुमारिकाः ॥ २७ ॥
आरात्री[११७] पूर्वतः कार्या[११८] अलिपात्राणि पूरयेत् ।
शिरसा[११९] कुलकुम्भं तु नत्वा चैव ततः पुनः ॥ २८ ॥
कुमार्याह्वानयेच्चाष्टौ[१२०] गन्ध[१२१] धूप[१२२] प्रदापयेत् ।
योगीश्वरान्[१२३] समीपस्थान्[१२४] योगिनः[१२५] कुलदीक्षितान्[१२६] ॥ २९ ॥
पूजयेत् कुसुमैः श्रेष्ठैः श्रेष्ठधूपेन[१२७] धूपयेत् ।
संतर्प्य अलिना सर्वं मत्स्यमांसानि दापयेत् ॥ ३० ॥

तदन्ते[१२८] प्रार्थयेच्चाज्ञा[१२९] भगवत्याः[१३०] कुलदीक्षितान्[१३१] ।
श्रीमतं तु[१३२] लिखिष्यामि अविघ्नेन[१३३] प्रसिद्ध्यतु[१३४] ॥ ३१ ॥
लब्ध्वानुज्ञस्तु[१३५] योगीन्द्रः[१३५ख्ज] पूजयित्वा[१३६] कुलक्रमम् ।
संपूज्य पुस्तकं तत्र विधिना च प्रयत्नतः[१३७] ॥ ३२ ॥
देहस्था[१३८] देवताः सर्वाः[१३९] तर्पयेद् भक्तितत्परः[१४०] ।

ततो मङ्गलनिर्घोषैः शंखवादित्रनिःस्वनैः[१४१] ॥ ३३ ॥
दिव्याङ्गनासुगीतैश्च[१४२] संवर्तामण्डलं लिखेत् ।
लेखकश्च ततः पूज्यः स्रगवस्त्रासवादिकैः[१४३] ॥ ३४ ॥

माङ्गल्यैस्तूर्यनिर्घोषैः स्तोत्रवीणामहास्वनैः ।
प्रथमेऽहनि देवेश कुर्याच्चक्रप्रपूजनम्[१४४] ॥ ३५ ॥

The Trikhaṇḍa (should be worshipped) on (its) seats (āsana). One section (khaṇḍa) is the Section concerning the Mother (mātṛkhaṇḍaka),[9] while the Section concerning Mantra (mantrakhaṇḍa), filled with Navātman, is in the middle. (23)

The book, whether (fully) written or incomplete, is first placed there. Then one should wrap it in two pieces of cloth and have a golden container (hemagarbha) made (for it).[10] (24)

One should worship it with the five offerings and offer sacrificial food (naivedya). The teacher should offer external animal sacrifice (bali) in accord with the prescribed method. (25)

Thus, one should cause to write, along with auspicious acclamations, the Five Verses – that is, the Sūtra of the Saṁvartāmaṇḍala,[11] which is the descent of the Krama. (Then) it should be written and explained[12] somewhere, according to the enjoined method and in due order. (26-27ab)

One should first of all (worship) the ordinary initiates (samayin), adepts (sādhaka), (spiritual) sons, Yoginīs and virgins (by) waving lamps and filling the vessels with liquor. Then having bowed one's head to the Kula jar, one should invite eight virgins (kumārī)[13] and offer (them) scent and incense. One should worship with the best of flowers the Yogīśvaras, yogis and Kaula initiates who are nearby and make them fragrant with the best incense. Having sprinkled them all with wine, one should offer (them) fish and meat. (27cd-30)

Finally, one should request those who have been initiated into the Kula of the goddess (bhagavatī) for permission (ājñā), (saying): 'I will write the Śrīmata. May it be completed without impediment!' (31)

Once obtained permission, and the Kulakrama and the book have (both) been worshipped there with effort according to the prescribed method, the good lord of yogis,[14] intent on devotion, should offer lustration to the deities in the body.[15] (32-33ab)

Then, with auspicious acclamations, the sounds of conches and musical instruments and the beautiful songs of heavenly damsels, one should draw the Saṁvartāmaṇḍala. Then one should worship (the teacher who) has drawn it with garlands, clothes, wine and the rest. (33cd-34)

O lord of the gods, one should worship the manḍala (cakra) on the first day with the auspicious sounds of tabors, vīṇās and hymns. (35)

चक्रक्रीडां[१४५] समाश्रित्य[१४६] तुहिनं[१४७] क्षेपयेत् सुधी: ।
एवं तु प्रथमे दिने[१४८] प्रत्यहं शक्तित: पुन: ।। ३६ ।।

क्रियते[१४९] च विधिप्राज्ञै: बलि:[१५०] रात्रौ दिने दिने ।
यावत् समाप्यते[१५१] ग्रन्थ:[१५२] तावत्[१५३] कुर्याद् विधिं[१५४] त्विमाम् ।। ३७ ।।

अन्यथा[१५५] प्राप्नुयाच्छापं[१५६] महान्तं योगिनीकुलात्[१५७] ।
तदर्थं[१५८] भक्तिना[१५९] लेख्यं[१६०] अन्यथा विघ्नदायकम् ।। ३८ ।।

इति एवंविधं देव श्रीमतेदं[१६१] महाकुलम् ।
नापुण्यो[१६२] लभते मर्त्यो[१६३] योगिनीगर्भवर्जित: ।। ३९ ।।

इदं गुह्यं च[१६४] सर्वस्वं चातुर्विंशत्सहस्रकम्[१६५] ।
नैव देयमभक्तानां न शठान्[१६६] क्रूरकर्मिणाम् ।। ४० ।।

तान्त्रिकानां[१६७] न दातव्यं तार्किकाणां[१६८] विशेषत: ।
न दाम्भिकाय मूर्खाय न देयं क्लीवक्रोधिने[१६९] ।। ४१ ।।
नाहंकृते[१७०] च पापिष्टे[१७१] च्छद्मके चोपजीवके[१७२] ।

स्वर्गपातालिका[१७३] भोगा: येन त्यक्ता हि[१७४] सुन्दर[१७५] ।। ४२ ।।
संसारभयभीतात्मा गुरुस्मरणमाश्रित:[१७६] ।
देयं[१७७] गुर्वान्विते शिष्ये अभक्ते[१७८] च न दापयेत् ।। ४३ ।।

गुरुभक्ताय शान्ताय समयाचारनि:स्पृहे[१७९] ।
गूढज्ञानसुशान्ताय[१८०] सत्यवादीजितेन्द्रिये[१८१] ।। ४४ ।।
इहजन्मावधिर्येन[१८२] संन्यस्तं[१८३] गुरूणां प्रति[१८४] ।
मनोवाक्कायकर्मणा[१८५] गुरोरिच्छानुवर्तिन:[१८६] ।। ४५ ।।
तस्य देयमिदं गुह्यं द्वादशाब्दपरीक्षिते[१८७] ।

संकेतं यो विजानाति[१८८] तथा सांवत्सरं क्रमम् ।। ४६ ।।
मूलसूत्रं क्रमं देयं पारम्पर्यगुरुक्रमम्[१८९] ।
तथा वै षोडश:[१९०] पर्वा:[१९१] सूचितास्ते महीतले[१९२] ।। ४७ ।।

The wise man should pass that day engaged in play with the congregation (cakrakrīḍā). (By worshipping) in this way on the first day, he is empowered for each day (that follows). (36)

The wise who know the prescribed method offer animal sacrifice (bali) at night every day. One should practice this method until the book is finished. (37)

(If one does it) in any other way, he brings upon himself a great curse from the Yoginīkula. And so, that matter (tadartha) should be written with devotion, otherwise it gives rise to (many) obstacles (to one's goals). (38)

And so, O god, a mortal who is not meritorious and who is not the Yoginīs' son (yoginīgarbha) does not acquire this Śrīmata which, being such as it is, it is the Great Kula. (39)

This is the secret, the wealth of the Scripture of Twenty-four Thousand Verses (cāturviṁśatsahasraka). It should not be given to those who are not devotees or to those whose deeds are cruel. (40)

It should not be given to Tāntrikas and especially not to logicians. (It should not be given) to a deceitful man, a fool, an impotent or wrathful person, nor to an egoist, a greatly sinful person, a liar or one who lives off others. (41-42ab)

It should be given to one who has abandoned the experiences (bhoga) of (both) heaven and hell who, frightened by the fear of transmigratory existence, is intent on recollecting (his) teacher. It should be given to the disciple who has a teacher (he truly venerates), not to one who has no devotion. (42cd-43)

This secret should be given, after a trial period of twelve years, to one who is tranquil and devoted to the teacher. (To one) who, by virtue of the practice of the Rule (samayācāra), is free of desire and – perfectly tranquil due to (his) (profound and) hidden knowledge (gūḍhajñāna)[16] – has conquered the senses and speaks the truth. (He should be one) who has deposited before the teachers (everything he has done) up to this lifetime by means of the activity of (his) body, speech and mind and follows the teacher's will. (44-46ab)

The Root Sūtra,[17] the Krama and the teaching (pāramparya) of the transmission of the masters (gurukrama) should be given (only) to one who knows the convention (saṁketa)[18] and the liturgical year (sāṁvatsarakrama).[19] Similarly, I have told you of the sixteen sacred days (parvan) (that pass) on the surface of the earth. (46cd-47)

संप्रदायवशेनैव[१९३] तस्य देयं कुलागमम् ।

नाभिवर्त्तिरहीका[१९४] च वज्रसन्धिः[१९५] कपाटयोः[१९६] ॥ ४८ ॥
संकेतान् वेत्ति[१९७] योऽप्यत्र[१९८] तस्य देयं कुलागमम्[१९९] ।

श्रीनाथ उवाच

तव[२००] शिष्योऽहं[२०१] प्रीतः[२०२] सिद्धोऽहं[२०३] भैरवो हरः[२०४] ॥ ४९ ॥
कृतमन्त्राधिकारी च[२०५] अद्याहं कुलनायिके[२०६] ।
कुलक्रमं च कौलं च उपदेशः कथं क्रिया[२०७] ॥ ५० ॥
ब्रूहि ज्ञानं सुरेन्द्राख्ये[२०८] वक्राम्नायः कथं कुलम् ।

श्रीवक्रा उवाच[२०९]

नाभिवर्त्तिरहिस्तार्क्ष्यो[२१०] विद्या वज्रः[२११] कपाटयोः[२१२] ॥ ५१ ॥
ज्ञानमष्टप्रकारोऽयं[२१३] वैष्णवं पश्चिमान्वयम् ।
यो जानाति वरारोह[२१४] स भवेन्मतबोधकः[२१५] ॥ ५२ ॥

श्रीनाथ उवाच

का नाभिवर्त्तिका[२१६] देवि अहिर्वृक्षश्च[२१७] कौ[२१८] पुनः ।
का विद्या कश्च वज्राख्यः[२१९] कपाटौ[२२०] च कथं वद[२२१] ॥ ५३ ॥

श्रीवक्रा उवाच[२२२]

मूलं नाभिः[२२३] कुलं मेरुर्वर्त्तिरात्मा च[२२४] मालिनी ।
पारम्पर्यमहिज्ञानं[२२५] सन्धिराज्ञाक्रमोदयम्[२२६] ॥ ५४ ॥

वृक्षं[२२७] वज्रकुलं[२२८] द्वीपं षट्कोणाख्यं कपाटयोः[२२९] ।
एतद्[२३०] दीपनविज्ञानं कादिभेदे उदाहृतम् ॥ ५५ ॥

He should be given the Kula scripture (kulāgama) in accord with the (teachings of) the tradition (saṁpradāya). (48ab)

The Kula with Six Parts – the Convention Concerning the Thunderbolt

The Wick of the Navel is the female serpent and the Conjuction of the Thunderbolt (vajrasandhi) of the two Door Panels. The Kula scripture should be given to one who knows the conventions here also.[20] (48cd-49ab)

Śrīnātha said:

I am your beloved disciple; I am the Siddha, Bhairava and Hara. O Kulanāyikā, today I have been made fit to (recite) mantra. (What is) the Kulakrama, Kaula, the teaching and the rite (kriyā)? O you who are called the mistress of the gods, tell (me this) knowledge. (What is) Vakrā's tradition? How is Kula? (49cd-51ab)

The venerable (goddess) Vakrā said:

The Wick of the Navel is the serpent Tārkṣa. The Vidyā is the Thunderbolt (Conjunction) of the two Door Panels. This is the eightfold Vaiṣṇava knowledge of the Western Tradition. O handsome one, he who knows it awakens (others) to the teaching (mata). (51cd-52)

Śrīnātha said:

O goddess, what is the Wick of the Navel? And what are the serpent and the tree? What is the Vidyā? Again, what is called the Thunderbolt? (Finally) tell (me) what the two Door Panels are. (53)

The venerable (goddess) Vakrā said:

The Navel is the Root. Kula is Meru while the Wick is the Self and Mālinī.[21] (The teaching) belonging to the succession (of teacher's and disciples) is the Knowledge of the Snake. The Conjunction is the arising of the Transmission of the Command (ājñākrama). (54)

The Tree is the Thunderbolt Kula, which is the Island called the hexagon of the two Door Panels.[22] This, the knowledge of illumination (dīpanavijñāna), is taught in the Kādi division. (55)

पुनरन्यं[२३१] तु[२३२] भेदेन शृणु भैरव तत्त्वतः ।
नाभिर्मेरुक्रमं[२३३] कीर्तिः[२३४] भेदाज्ञा[२३५] सप्तविंशतिः ॥ ५६ ॥
षट् पदाः षडि मुद्राश्च[२३६] चतुरादौ चतुः पुनः ।
पञ्चकं च[२३७] तथा षट्कं पुनः पञ्चात्मकं चतुः[२३८] ॥ ५७ ॥

एवं क्रमोदयं[२३९] यत्[२४०] तत्[२४१] कर्णात् कर्णोपदेशकम्[२४२] ।
पूजाक्रमविधानं[२४३] तु नाभिज्ञानं कुलक्रमम् ॥ ५८ ॥

तस्य[२४४] वर्तिस्त्रिकोणे[२४५] तु त्रिष्कोणा[२४६] शक्तिरव्यया ।
सा भूमिः[२४७] स्थितिविश्रामं तस्याम्नायं[२४८] मुखागमम्[२४९] ॥ ५९ ॥

अहिराकाशमुदधिः[२५०] संवर्तमिति[२५१] मण्डलम् ।
सद्यावेशक्रमारुह्य[२५२] वामावर्तपरिभ्रमात् ॥ ६० ॥

वायुमण्डलमाख्यातं तुर्यस्थमहिसंज्ञया[२५३] ।
तत्र लक्षं विनिक्षिप्य भूमिकां[२५४] ग्राह्य वैष्णवीम्[२५५] ॥ ६१ ॥
सा कला[२५६] द्रवते[२५७] तत्र गोलकामृतचन्द्रिका[२५८] ।
एतत् समाधिकरणं[२५९] योगिनीनां प्रपद्यते ॥ ६२ ॥

ज्ञात्वाचारगतिं रुद्र अहिशब्दं समभ्यसेत् ।
तारणाद्[२६०] गुरुतार्क्ष्यञ्च[२६१] विद्याराजं नवात्मकम् ॥ ६३ ॥

स एव भैरवोऽनन्तः[२६२] शुक्रादिः[२६३] परिकीर्तितः ।
तार्क्ष्य एवं समाख्यातं[२६४] गुरूणां परमो[२६५] गुरुः ॥ ६४ ॥
भकारादिचकारान्ता[२६६] विद्याराज्ञी[२६७] शिवानना[२६८] ।
गुरोरुत्सङ्गगा विद्या[२६९] पञ्चान्ते पञ्चमूर्धनि[२७०] ॥ ६५ ॥

विद्या चन्द्रकला[२७१] ज्योत्स्ना महन्तार्या प्रकीर्तिता[२७२] ।
अनया[२७३] भावितात्मा तु[२७४] स[२७५] चात्मा नवधा[२७६] स्मृतः ॥ ६६ ॥

Listen, again, O Bhairava, to something else as it actually is in accord with (its) division. The Navel is the Transmission of Meru,[23] which is Fame, while the Command of (this) division is in twenty-seven (parts).[24] (These are) the six parts (pada) (of the Krama), namely, the six gestures, four in the beginning then four again, the Pentad, the Hexad and then that which consists of five (parts) and four. (56 -57)

Thus, the emergence of the transmission (kramodaya), is the teaching transmitted by word of mouth. The procedure of the liturgy of the rite of adoration (pūjākrama) is the Kulakrama which is the Knowledge of the Navel. (58)

Its Wick is in the Triangle and is (the goddess's) Triangle (triṣkoṇā) who is the imperishable energy (of the deity) (śakti). She is the Plane (bhūmi) (of ultimate reality), the repose of persistence. Her tradition (āmnāya) is the oral scripture (mukhāgama). (59)

(She is) the serpent, the ocean, the sky and the maṇḍala called 'Saṁvarta'. (She is such) once she has ascended upwards by (her) anticlockwise motion onto the Transmission (krama) that brings about immediate possession. (60)

The Circle of the Wind (vāyumaṇḍala), established in the Fourth State, is called the ‘serpent' explained before. Having fixed one's goal there, one should lay hold of Vaiṣṇavī's plane. That energy (kalā), the Ball of the Nectar of Moonlight, melts there. That instrument of the contemplation of the Yoginīs (samādhikaraṇa) is (thus) attained.[25] (61-62)

O Rudra, once one has known the way of conduct (ācāra), one should practice what is called the 'serpent'. He saves (tāraṇa) and so is the teacher Tārkṣya who is Navātman, the king of Vidyās. (63)

He is said to be Bhairava, Ananta, Śukra and so on. He is called Tārkṣya, the supreme teacher of (all) teachers. The queen of Vidyās, Śivānanā (Jackal-faced) (consists of) the letters starting with Bha and ending with Ca.[26] She is the Vidyā who sits next to the teacher[27] and (she is both) at the end of the five (Praṇavas) and at the beginning of the five (Praṇavas).[28] (65)

(This) Vidyā is the Energy of the Moon. She is the Moonlight (jyotsnā) and is called Mahantāryā.[29] The Self is sanctified by her and that Self (as Navātman) is ninefold. (66)

विद्योपदेशमाख्यातं[२७७] देवानामपि दुर्लभम् ।
वज्रात्मन:[२७८] स्मृतं पिण्डं वज्रपिण्डं[२७९] च षड्विधम् ।। ६७ ।।

कुलं तत् षट्प्रकारं तु उक्तं वै सर्वदेहिनाम् ।
आधारादिभ्रुवोरन्तं[२८०] षट्प्रकारमहार्णवम्[२८१] ।। ६८ ।।
वज्रसंकेतमाख्यातं[२८२] नात्र कार्या विचारणा ।

तं[२८३] च वृक्षं[२८४] स्वकं पिण्डं वृक्षस्य बाह्यत:[२८५] क्रमम् ।। ६९ ।।
तस्योदयं[२८६] च विलयं शिवशक्तिगमागमम्[२८७] ।
शक्तिर्मूलं[२८८] कलापूर्णं संपूर्णमिति पूरक:[२८९] ।। ७० ।।

तस्योर्ध्वे श्वसनो[२९०] यस्तु संहार इति[२९१] रेचक: ।
स शिव: कुलवृक्षस्य प्रलयोदयकारक:[२९२] ।। ७१ ।।
द्वाविमौ[२९३] च कपाटाख्यौ[२९४] प्राणापानस्वरूपकौ ।

एवमष्टप्रकारोऽयं[२९५] ज्ञानमालोक्य पश्चिमम्[२९६] ।। ७२ ।।
पश्चिमाज्ञाविशुद्धा[२९७] ये[२९८] श्लोकार्थप्रतिपादका:[२९९] ।
ते[३००] जानन्ति इदं शम्भो विमलं पारमेश्वरम् ।। ७३ ।।

ज्ञानमष्टप्रकारस्य श्रीमतं सप्तकोटिकम् ।
देवतानां मुखाम्नायं गूढार्थमुपदेशकम्[३०१] ।। ७४ ।।

महत् कष्टतरं दुर्गं रुद्रांशो[३०२] वेत्ति पश्चिमम् ।
न चापि विन्दते मर्त्य:[३०३] संप्रदायमहौषधम् ।। ७५ ।।

The teaching concerning the Vidyā, which is hard to acquire even by the gods, has (thus) been explained. It is said to be the Body (piṇḍa) of the Thunderbolt (vajrātman), and the Body of the Thunderbolt (vajrapiṇḍa)[30] is of six kinds. (67)

That is said to be the Kula with six parts (ṣaṭprakāra) of all embodied beings. The great ocean of the six parts extends from the (Wheel of the) Foundation up to the eyebrows. (Thus) the convention concerning the Thunderbolt has been explained; one need not reflect (further) here (about this).[31]
(68-69ab)

The Body as the Tree

And that Tree is one's own body (piṇḍa). Externally the Krama of that Tree is its arising and merger (that correspond to) the going and coming of Śiva and Śakti. Śakti is the Root that, full of (all the lunar) energies (kalā), is completely full (saṁpūrṇa). Thus it is (inhalation and is called) 'the one that fills' (pūraka). (69cd-70)

Exhalation (recaka), the breath which follows after that, is that of withdrawal (saṁhāra). That is Śiva (the Lord) of the Tree of Kula who brings about creation and destruction. These two are exhalation (prāṇa) and inhalation (apāna) and are called the Door Panels. (71-72ab)

O Śambhu, those who have become pure by the Command of the Western (Kula) and who expound the meaning of the verses (of the scripture) know this, the pure (scripture) of the Supreme Lord,[32] once they have perceived this eightfold knowledge of the western (tradition) in this way.[33] (72cd-73)

The Language of the Scripture, the Oral Tradition and Admonishments

The Śrīmata, which of consists of seventy million (saptakoṭika) (verses), is the knowledge of (this) eightfold (reality). It is the oral tradition of the gods that teaches the profound (hidden) reality (gūḍhārtha). (74)

He who is an aspect of Rudra (rudrāṁśa) (alone) knows the Western (Tradition), which is great, extremely hard (to comprehend) and difficult to penetrate. (An ordinary) mortal does not acquire the great medicine of the tradition (saṁpradāya). (75)

क्रियाकारकसंबन्धं विभक्तिलघुप्रत्ययम्[३०४] ।
समासै: सप्तकैर्भेदं[३०५] गुप्तं कुलवधू[३०६] इव ।। ७६ ।।

क्लिष्टशब्दैर्विभज्येत[३०७] तस्मात् क्लिष्टं[३०८] त्यजेद् बुध: ।
अपशब्दैश्च सरलैस्तैस्तु[३०९] शैवोऽभिगम्यते[३१०] ।। ७७ ।।

संकेतवर्णमेकेन[३११] मुखाम्नायेन शोधयेत् ।
न चापि लटलोटैस्तु[३१२] शुष्कतर्कादिभिस्तथा[३१३] ।। ७८ ।।

व्याख्यायामागमे[३१४] देव दिव्या वाणी स्वतन्त्रस्था[३१५] ।
विपरीतमिदं ज्ञात्वा दिव्याम्नाय: प्रवर्तते ।। ७९ ।।

एवं पाण्डित्यमुत्सृज्य सरलं[३१६] कौलिकागमम् ।
श्रोतव्यं च मुखाम्नायं[३१७] कर्णात् कर्णान्तरागतम्[३१८] ।। ८० ।।

अक्षरार्थोपदेशश्च[३१९] संप्रदायश्च[३२०] कौलिक: ।
निगर्भश्च[३२१] षडेवैते[३२२] संप्रदाया उदाहृता: ।। ८१ ।।

सारं श्लोकोपदेशं[३२३] च निर्णीतं[३२४] तव भैरव[३२५] ।
कौलिकाज्ञापरं नास्ति श्रीमतात् परतरं न हि ।। ८२ ।।
मुखाम्नायात् परं नास्ति शेषं त्यज्यं[३२६] पलालवत् ।
एवं सञ्चिन्त्य यत्नेन मुखकौलं समभ्यसेत् ।। ८३ ।।

आज्ञावर्ति: शिव: पन्था वृक्षच्छाया सोमो[३२७] रवि: ।
परं परमहंसं च[३२८] कुवेरं[३२९] पीठमावली[३३०] ।। ८४ ।।
कुमारी कर्तरी भाषा मात्रात्मा[३३१] मातरी तथा[३३२] ।

पूर्वपश्चिममध्यं[३३३] च वामदक्षिणकोणकम्[३३४] ।। ८५ ।।
योनिषट्कं[३३५] च शृङ्गाटं[३३६] आदिक्षान्तं[३३७] कुलेश्वरम् ।
यो हि वेत्ति[३३८] इदं ज्ञानं[३३९] स साक्षाद् भैरव: स्वयं ।। ८६ ।।

The relationship between the cases and the verb, case endings, short (and long syllables), verbal affixes and suffixes, classification into seven (types) of compounds – (all this) is kept hidden as one does a woman of good family. (76)

(The sense) is lost (vibhajyeta) by using difficult words. Thus the wise man should refrain from (using) difficult (expressions). The (true) Śaivite (can) understand (the meaning of the teaching even) by means of simple and (even) ungrammatical forms (apaśabda). (77)

One should purify (one's understanding of) the letter of the convention by (referring to) the one (true) oral tradition. (It should not be done) by those who speak like fools (laṭa) and blockheads (loṭa) by means of dry logic and the like. (78)

O god, there is a divine form of speech (vāṇī)[34] which is independent (svatantrastha) that (operates) in the scripture and (its) commentary. The Divine Tradition comes into being when this (reality), which is the reverse (of falsity), has been grasped. (79)

Abandoning in this way (dry) scholarliness, one should listen to the Kaulikāgama, which is easy (Sanskrit), and to the oral tradition, which has been passed down from ear to ear. (80)

These are said to be the six (kinds of) traditional teaching (saṁpradāya): the letter (akṣara), the meaning (artha), the teaching (upadeśa), the tradition (saṁpradāya), the Kaulika (meaning) and the implicit sense (nigarbha).[35] (81)

O Bhairava, the essence (of the scripture) and the teaching concerning the Verses has been taught to you. There is nothing higher than the Kaulika Command, there is nothing superior to the Śrīmata, there is nothing higher than the oral tradition – everything else should be abandoned like rotten meat. Having reflected (on the matter) thus with effort, one should practice the (teaching of) the oral Kaula tradition. (82-83)

(Consider the following): the Wick of the Command, Śiva, the Path, the Shade of the Tree, the Moon and Sun. The Supreme, the Supreme Gander, Kuvera, the sacred seat and the series (of teachers) (āvalī), Kumārī, Kartarī, Bhāṣā, Mātrā, and Mātarī.[36a] (84-85ab)

(The corresponding directions are) east, west and the middle and the corners in the north and south.[36b] (There is also) the (hexagram consisting of the) group of six Yonis (yoniṣaṭka), the Triangle (śṛngāṭa) and Kuleśvara (who consists of the letters) ranging from A to KṢa. He who knows this knowledge[36c] is Bhairava himself, directly apparent. (85cd - 86)

एवं[३४०] क्रमार्थतस्तत्त्वं सप्तकोट्याद्[३४१] विनिर्गतम् ।
यो हनेत् पशुभावात्मा[३४२] गुरुस्तेन[३४३] हनीकृत:[३४४] ॥ ८७ ॥
परत्रं हारितं तेन मेरु[३४५] तेनैव लङ्घितम् ।

इदं मतमिदं योगमिदं[३४६] तत्त्वं[३४७] कुलार्णवम् ॥ ८८ ॥
कुलौघं[३४८] क्रम—ओघं[३४९] तु ज्ञानौघं[३५०] च तथोत्तमम् ।
पूजनीयं प्रयत्नेन[३५१] हन्यते[३५२] न कदाचन ॥ ८९ ॥

पञ्चस्त्रोतात्मके[३५३] शैवे षष्ठे कुलविनिश्चये ।
अजवक्त्रात् परं शान्तमिदं[३५४] तत् सारसंग्रहम्[३५५] ॥ ९० ॥

सिद्धसन्तानसुभगं[३५६] प्रत्ययाज्ञाविशारदम्[३५७] ।
नाम्ना क्रमोदयज्ञानं[३५८] श्रीखगेशीमहामतम्[३५९] ॥ ९१ ॥

श्रीनाथ उवाच

सत्यमेतत् त्वया प्रोक्तं कौलिकं प्रत्ययात्मकम्[३६०] ।
कौलज्ञानात् परं नास्ति दुर्लभं मतसंग्रहम्[३६१] ॥ ९२ ॥

कोटिकोटिरसंख्याता मया शास्त्रावतारिता:[३६२] ।
पृच्छकानुमतेनैव सर्वे[३६३] ते च पलालवत्[३६४] ॥ ९३ ॥

विभागं च प्रमाणं च शास्त्रमञ्जूषकं शृणु ।
सप्तकोटिप्रमाणेन मतं वै पारमेश्वरम् ॥ ९४ ॥
कोटिपञ्चाशल्लक्षैकं[३६५] सहस्रं[३६६] शतसंख्यया ।
शतार्धं[३६७] शतपादं च सद्योजाताद् विनिर्गतम् ॥ ९५ ॥

नवनवतिर्लक्षाणि[३६८a] लक्षकोटिस्तथैव च ।
तथान्या:[३६८b] कोटिपञ्चाशद् वामदेवाद् विनि:श्रिता:[३६९] ॥ ९६ ॥

In this way, the truth (tattva) has emerged from the teaching (artha) of the Krama, that is, from the (scripture of) seven thousand million (verses) (koṭi). The teacher whose condition is that of (an uninitiated) fettered soul (paśubhāva) damages it and thus (by doing so) has caused (great) harm. He has stolen away the other world. He has crossed over Meru.[37a] (87-88ab)

This is the doctrine (mata). This is Yoga. This is the truth (tattva). This is the Ocean of Kula. One should worship with effort the Current of the Kula, the Current of the Krama and the most excellent Current of Knowledge. One is (thereby) never destroyed. (88cd-89)

The Descent of the Scriptures

This, the synopsis of the essence (of the teaching) (sārasaṁgraha)[37b] that has (come) from the Mouth of the Unborn (ajavaktra), is the supreme and tranquil (reality taught) in the the sixth (current) amongst the five currents of Śaiva (scriptures).[38] (90)

The finest part of the Line (santāna) of Siddhas, it is proficient in the Command of Insight (pratyayājñā). It is the knowledge that comes by the arising of the transmission called the great Mata of the venerable (goddess) Khageśī (the Mistress of the Skyfarers). (91)

Śrīnātha said:

You have told (me) that truth which is the Kaulika (teaching), the nature of which is the direct experience (pratyaya) (of ultimate reality). There is nothing higher than Kaula knowledge. The Compendium of the Mata is (indeed) hard to acquire.[39] (92)

I have brought countless millions of millions of scripture down (to earth) as the one who enquired (of me) wished. (But) they are all (useless) like rotten meat. (93)

Listen to the casket of scriptures, (its) division and extent. The extent of the (versions of) the Pārameśvaramata is seventy million (verses), ten million, five million, one thousand, one hundred, fifty and twenty five. It has came from (the mouth of) Sadyojāta. (94-95)

Another (series of scriptures) has emerged from (the mouth of) Vāmadeva. (These consist of) nine million nine hundred thousand (verses), one hundred thousand, ten million and five hundred million (verses). (96)

कोटीन्ययुतचत्वारि[३७०] लक्षाः[३७१] पञ्चाशकोटिकाः[३७२] ।
सहस्रशतसंख्या च सहस्रैकं[३७३] शतं तथा ॥ ९७ ॥
शतलक्षसहस्रं च अघोरात्[३७४] तु विनिर्गतम् ।

अर्बुदं चार्बुदं[३७५] चैव खर्वश्चैव परापरम् ॥ ९८ ॥
षट्सहस्राणि कोटिश्च लक्षपादं सहस्रकम् ।
शतमर्धं[३७६] च पादाख्यं तत्पुरुषाच्च विनिर्गतम् ॥ ९९ ॥

ईशानस्य तु वक्त्रस्य पञ्चमस्य महात्मनः ।
विचार्यतोऽपि[३७७] यत्नेन शास्त्रसंख्या न विद्यते ॥ १०० ॥

एवं वै शास्त्राम्नायं तु मतं ज्ञात्वा समभ्यसेत् ।
पञ्चश्रोतोद्भवा[३७८] ह्येते ग्रन्थसंख्यासमन्विताः[३७९] ॥ १०१ ॥

लोकाचारस्य हेत्वर्थे[३८०] मया ते परिकीर्तिताः[३८१] ।
षष्ठमं यन्महावक्त्रं तद् गुप्तं तु मया कृतम् ॥ १०२ ॥
ग्रन्थानां[३८२] तु शतं सार्धं तस्माद् वक्त्राद् विनिर्गतम् ।

स्थितं तत्[३८३] खेचरीचक्रे निगूढे[३८४] संप्रकाशितम्[३८५] ॥ १०३ ॥
शास्त्रावतारमञ्जूषं किञ्चिद् वक्ष्याम्यहं[३८६] शृणु ।

(A third series of scriptures) has emerged from (the mouth of) Aghora. (These consist of) four hundred thousand million (verses), five thousand million, one hundred thousand, one thousand, one hundred and ten thousand million. (97-98ab)

(A fourth series) has emerged from (the mouth of) Tatpuruṣa. (These consist of) one hundred million (verses), (then again) a hundred million, ten thousand million, one hundred thousand, ten million, twenty-five thousand, one thousand and (finally) fifty. (98cd-99)

The scriptures that have come from the mouth of the great-souled Īśāna, the fifth one, are innumerable. Even after much streneous thought (one could not number them). (100)

Having learned the tradition of the scripture, the Mata, practice it. These are (the scriptures) that have emerged out of the five currents along with the number of (their) verses. (101)

I have told you about them for the sake of the common, worldly practice (lokācāra). I have concealed the sixth great face. One hundred and fifty books have come from that face; they are within the secret Wheel of the Skyfarers (where they have been) revealed. (102-103ab)

Listen: I will (now) tell (you) something of the casket of the (tradition concerning) the descent of the scriptures. (13cd-104ab)

नि:शेष[३८७] (१) — प्रवर (२) — प्रचुर (३)[३८८] — रत्नचूडामणि (४) — तिलकमञ्जूष[३८९] (५) नि:श्वास (६)[३९०] — हारीत (७) — सोमार्कप्रलयसमोपेत[३९१] (८) — महाकालभैरव (९) — सोमार्क (१०) — त्रिपुरान्तर (११)[३९२] — वैहाय (१२) — कुलमञ्जरी (१३) — उदधि (१४)[३९३] — पञ्चरात्र[३९४] (१५) — वामनभट्टारक (१६)[३९५] — भट्टिनी (१७) — भट्टकुल (१८) — अनन्त (१९) — गर्भ (२०) — गरुड (२१) — अनन्त (२२)[३९६] — रुद्र[३९७] (२३) — ईश्वर (२४) — लाङ्गलि (२५) — मातङ्ग (२६) — मातङ्गी (२७) — मदनोन्मत्त (२८) — नीलाम्बर (२९) — नील (३०)[३९८] — कनकावली (३१)[३९९] — निर्वाणयोगसिद्धान्त (३२) — संख्योपेत[४००] (३३) — महात्रैलोक्य — लोकलोकेश्वर (३४) — वज्रवृन्द (३५)[४०१] — योगपट्टा (३६) लोकविचार (३७)[४०२] — सृष्टिविचार (३८) — अकुलशृङ्ग (३९) — शृङ्खुली (४०) — सद्य (४१)[४०३] — वाम (४२) — तत्पुरुषेश्वर (४३) — परब्रह्मबोधि (४४)[४०४] — ब्रह्मशान्ति (४५) — ब्रह्म्योपाख्यान (४६) — शब्दब्रह्म (४७) — सूक्ष्मब्रह्म (४८) — अनन्तादि (४९) — पृथु (५०) — स्कन्द (५१)[४०५] — नन्दि (५२) — महाकाल (५३) — वाथुल (५४) — शवर (५५) — अघोर (५६) — कपिल (५७) — जटेश्वर (५८) — गौरीश्वर (५९) — महाबोध्यन्तम् (६०)[४०६] ।

श्रीनाथ उवाच[४०७]

किमेभिर्वर्णितैर्देवि[४०८] न च किञ्चित् प्रयोजनम् ॥ १०४ ॥
चतुर्विंशतिसाहस्रं श्रीमतं वक्रिकामतम्[४०९] ।
तदहं श्रोतुमिच्छामि[४१०] प्रसादाद् वक्तुमर्हसि ॥ १०५ ॥

श्रीवक्रा उवाच

क्रियापादं[४११] तथा ज्ञानं[४१२] योगपादं तृतीयकम् ।
चर्यापादं चतुर्थं तु चतु:पादा तु संहिता ॥ १०६ ॥

रक्षणीया प्रयत्नेन मृगवत्ससुतो[४१३] यथा ।
श्वेतै: पुष्पै: सुगन्धाद्यैश्चन्दनेनाधिवासितै:[४१४] ॥ १०७ ॥
अलिना दिव्यधूपेन दीपकैश्चरुकै:[४१५] शुभै: ।
पूजनीयं हि[४१६] सततं[४१७] महाभक्तिसमन्वितै: ॥ १०८ ॥

(These scriptures are) Niḥśeṣa, Pravara, Pracura, Ratnacūḍāmaṇi, Tilakamañjūṣā, Niḥśvāsa, Hārīta, Somārkapralaya, Mahākālabhairava, Somārka, Tripurānta, Vaihāya, Kulamañjarī, Udadhi, Pañcarātra, Vāmanabhaṭṭāraka, Bhaṭṭinī, Bhaṭṭakula, Ananta, Garbha, Garuḍa, Ananta, Rudra, Īśvara, Lāṁgali, Mātaṅga, Mātaṅgi, Madanonmatta, Nīlāmbara, Nīnla, Kanakāvalī, Nirvāṇayogasiddhānta, Saṁkhyā, Mahātrailokya, Lokalokeśvara, Vajravṛnda, Yogapaṭṭā, Lokavicāra, Sṛṣṭivicāra, Akulaśṛṅga, Śṛṅkhalī, Sadya, Vāma, Tatpuruṣeśvara, Parabrahmabodhi, Brahmaśānti, Brahmyopākhyāna, Śabdabrahma, Sūkṣmabrahma, Ananta and the rest, Pṛthu, Skanda, Nandi, Mahākāla, Vātula, Śavara, Aghora, Kapila, Jaṭeśvara, Gaurīśvara and, finally, Mahābodhi.

The Worship, Writing, Protection and Efficacy of the Śrīmata

Śrīnātha said:

O goddess, what is the use of the (scriptures you have just) named? (They) serve no purpose. I want to hear the Śrīmata, (otherwise known as the) Vakrikāmata of twenty-four thousand (verses). By (your) grace, tell (it to me). (104cd-105)

The venerable (goddess) said:

(This) Saṁhitā is composed of four sections (pāda), namely, the Kriyāpāda and the Jñāna (pāda), with the Yogapāda as the third and the Caryāpāda as the fourth.[40] (106)

One should make as great an effort (as possible) to protect it with care, as one would a newly-born animal. (The scripture) should be worshipped constantly with white flowers, sweet scents and the like, fragrant with incense and with liquor (ali), sacred incense, lamps and auspicious sacrificial food (caru), (all offered) with great devotion. (107-108)

व्यावृत्ताक्षिप्तचित्तेन[४१८] क्रमपूजा न सिद्ध्यति ।
गुरुमण्डलं[४१९] कृत्वादौ पूजयेत्[४२०] गुरुपञ्चकम् ॥ १०९ ॥

सिंहासनमिदं[४२१] पूज्य[४२२] त्रैलोक्यं पूजितं भवेत् ।
प्राणवद् रक्षणीयं तु पालनीयं गुरोर्वचम्[४२३] ॥ ११० ॥
* * *[४२४] नैव * * * (?)[४२५] पशूनां न प्रदर्शयेत् ।

एकान्ते[४२६] विजने रम्ये दुष्टसत्त्वविवर्जिते ॥ १११ ॥
सुगन्धगन्धबहुले[४२७] मिष्टधूपाधिवासिते ।
चन्द्रोदयपरिच्छन्ने[४२८] पूजासंभारसंवृते ॥ ११२ ॥
दीपार्घचरुकैश्चैव क्रमिकैर्भक्तिवत्सलैः[४२९] ।
हेमवस्त्राद्यलंकारैर्गुरुं[४३०] संपूज्य भक्तितः ॥ ११३ ॥

कुमारी योगिनी पूज्या[४३१] हेमदानादिसुवरैः[४३२] ।
अनुज्ञाताभिषिक्तैस्तु[४३३] अच्छिद्रं[४३४] तु मतं मम ॥ ११४ ॥
एवं भवतु[४३५] तैरुक्तं अर्चिता[४३६] पृच्छ्यते[४३७] शुभम् ।
अवधार्य गुरोर्वक्त्राद्[४३८] दीपनं मन्दबुद्धिनाम् ॥ ११५ ॥

आगमश्रवणादाशु[४३९] महावेशः[४४०] प्रवर्तते ।
गृहीतव्यं[४४१] महादेव सर्वस्वं योगिनीकुले[४४२] ॥ ११६ ॥

श्रीमतेदं[४४३] कुले दीपं दुर्लभं पारमेश्वरम् ।
विधिहीने[४४४] न[४४५] व्याख्येयं[४४६] न लेख्यं तु कदाचन ॥ ११७ ॥

म्लेच्छपत्रे न[४४७] लेख्यं तु[४४८] न लेख्यं ताडिपत्रके[४४९] ।
लिखितव्यं परे[४५०] भूर्जे सुशुद्धे ग्रन्थिवर्जिते ॥ ११८ ॥
भवेत्[४५१] सिद्धिप्रदं देव अन्यथा न कदाचन ।

मसिं च संप्रवक्ष्यामि यादृश्या लिख्यते मतम् ॥ ११९ ॥
अन्यथा विघ्नदं देव[४५२] न लिखेत[४५३] कदाचन ।
तच्छृणुष्व महाभाग मसीकरणमुत्तमम्[४५४] ॥ १२० ॥

The worship of the Krama (kramapūjā) is not successful (if performed) by (one with a) distracted and busy mind. Having fashioned the Maṇḍala of the Teachers, one should worship the Five Teachers.[41] (109)

When this throne has been worshipped, the Triple World has been worshipped. (The scripture) should be protected as one does one's life. The word of the teacher should be followed.   *.[42] It should not be shown to the uninitiated. (110-111ab)

The teacher should be worshipped with devotion by the votaries of the Krama who are beloved of devotion by (offering him) lamps, water, the sacrificial pap, gold, clothes and other such ornaments. (It should be done) in a solitary place where there are no people, one that is free of savage animals, which is beautiful, fragrant with fine scent, purified with sweet incense, covered (with the light of) the rising moon and equiped with the requisites of worship (pūjāsaṁbhāra).
(111cd-113)

A virgin Yoginī should be worshipped (there) with beautiful gifts of gold and the like by those who have received permission to do so and have been consecrated. Having said: 'my teaching (mata) is without fault. So be it; (let it be copied)!' and having worshipped (her), (they) ask (her) what is auspicious (or otherwise).
(114-115)

Having heard attentively from the teacher's mouth (the teaching), which is illumination (dīpana)[43] for those of slow intellect, the Great Penetration (mahāveśa) quickly takes place by listening to the scripture.[44] O Great God, one should (thus) lay hold of the essence of the Yoginīkula.[45] (116)

This, the Śrīmata of the Supreme Lord, is the lamp of Kula which is hard to acquire. It should not be explained to one who is devoid of the enjoined method, nor should it ever be written (by one such as him). (117)

It should not be written on paper (mlecchapatra) or palmleaf, but on the best, purest birch-bark free of knots. (O god, in this way the Śrīmata) gives success and never in any other.[46] (118-9ab)

Now I will tell you about the ink with which the Mata should be written. O god, it should never be written in any other way, otherwise it gives rise to (many) obstacles. Listen, O most handsome one, to the best way in which the ink is made.
(119cd-120)

सिन्दूरं लाक्षया तोयं दूतीकुंकुममिश्रितम् ।
स्त्रीपुष्पमलिनाथं तु तथा वै वैष्णवं रसम् ॥ १२१ ॥

उपदेशवशेनैव[४५५] अङ्कयेल्लोहकर्परि[४५६] ।
अर्धशेषं तु संगृह्य अघोरास्त्रेण मन्त्रवित् ॥ १२२ ॥
तच्च ते संप्रवक्ष्यामि विघ्ननिर्नाशनं परम् ।

ऐँ ह्राँ ह्रीँ ह्रूँ[४५७] प्रस्फुर प्रस्फुर[४५८] घोर[४५९] घोरतर तनुरूप
चट चट प्रचट प्रचट कह कह वम वम घाटय घाटय[४६०] हूँ हूँ हूँ[४६१] फट् फट् फट्।

अघोरास्त्रमिदं देव मम क्रोधाद् विनिर्गतम् ॥ १२३ ॥
सप्तोच्चारणमात्रेण षोढान्यासफलं लभेत्[४६२] ।

षट्प्रकारा मसी प्रोक्ता तया लेख्यं[४६३] मतं त्विदं ॥ १२४ ॥
अन्यथा न लिखेद्[४६४] देव लिखितं विघ्नदायकम् ।
यथा व्याख्याविधिः ख्याता तथा लेखनकर्म[४६५] च ॥ १२५ ॥

लेखकं भक्त[४६६] शुद्ध[४६७] च[४६८] पारम्पर्यविशारदम् ।
गुरुभक्तिरतं[४६९] शान्तं कुलागमप्रपूजकम् ॥ १२६ ॥

कुमारीयोगिनीभक्तं ब्रह्मचर्यपरायणम्[४७०] ।
कुलशास्त्ररतं दक्षं दम्भमायाविवर्जितम् ॥ १२७ ॥
सुस्नातं[४७१] मन्त्रपूतं च यक्षकर्दमचर्चितम्[४७२] ।

वस्त्रयुग्मं परीधाय[४७३] पुष्पमालाविभूषितम् ॥ १२८ ॥
सुधूपधूपितं कृत्वा अनामां[४७४] हेममुद्रिकाम्[४७५] ।
कटकङ्कणहारैश्च[४७६] हेमगोदानदक्षिणैः[४७७] ॥ १२९ ॥
तोषयित्वा[४७८] तु[४७९] स्वगुरुं यथाविभवविस्तरम् ।

(The ink should contain) vermillion (sindūra) with lac and water mixed with the consort’s red cosmetic powder (dūtīkuṁkuma), menstrual blood, liquor (alinātha) and Vaiṣṇava juice. (121)

(Then) the knower of mantra should enscribe it in accord with the teaching once he has laid hold of the remaining half (contained) in an iron bowl with the Weapon of Aghora. I will tell you that, the supreme destruction of obstacles. (122-123ab)

AIṀ HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRŪṀ PRASPHURA PRASPHURA GHORA GHORATARA TANURŪPA CAṬA CAṬA PRACAṬA PRACAṬA KAHA KAHA VAMA VAMA GHĀṬAYA GHĀṬAYA HŪṀ HŪṀ HŪṀ PHAṬ PHAṬ PHAṬ

AIṀ HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HŪṀ Explode with light! Explode with light! O terrible one! Most terrible one! Subtle One! Crackle like fire! Crackle intensely! KAHA! KAHA! Vomit! Vomit! Beat! Beat! HŪṀ HŪṀ HŪṀ PHAṬ PHAṬ PHAṬ

O god, this is the Weapon of Aghora that has emerged from my anger. Merely by reciting it seven times, one gains the fruit of (the full) sixfold deposition. (123cd-124ab)

The ink (masī) with six ingredients (ṣaṭprakārā) has been explained. This Mata should be written with that. Otherwise (without this ink), O god, it should not be written, (for if it is) written (with the wrong ink), it gives rise to (many) troubles. (Thus) just as the method concerning the commentary has been explained, so has the procedure for writing (the Śrīmata). (124cd-125)

The writer (should be a) pure devotee, versed in the tradition, intent on devotion to (his) teacher, tranquil, a worshipper of the Kula scripture. (126)

(He should be) devoted to the virgin Yoginī and practice celibacy. (He should be) intent on the Kula scripture, skilful, free of deceit and magic (māyā), well bathed, purified by mantra and smeared with perfumed paste (yakṣakardama).[47] (127-128ab)

He should don a pair of pieces of cloth. Then, having adorned (his teacher) with garlands of flowers, having well fumigated (him) with incense and having placed a gold ring on (his) ring finger, (he should) satisfy his teacher according to his means with gold bracelets, necklaces and gifts of cows and gold as the sacrificial fee. (128cd-130ab)

आरात्री[४८०] कारयेत् पश्चात्[४८१] कुलकुम्भं प्रपूरयेत् ।। १३० ।।
तत्रस्थमागमं[४८२] पूज्य[४८३] दिव्यवस्त्रविभूषितम् ।
क्रमं च पूजयित्वा तु गुरुमण्डलपूर्वकम् ।। १३१ ।।
दातव्या[४८४] दीपमाला[४८५] तु मतराजस्य[४८६] सुन्दर[४८७] ।

वीरभोज्यं[४८८] प्रकर्तव्यं यथा ख्यातं पुरा मया ।। १३२ ।।
परशिष्ये न दातव्यं ददेदादेशपूर्वकम् ।

अन्यथा ददते यस्तु स विघ्नैश्चाभिभूयते ।। १३३ ।।
सुपरीक्ष्य[४८९] प्रदातव्यं दूतीनां क्रमभाषितम् ।

कर्मणा मनसा वाचा त्रिशुद्धिर्भक्तिवत्सले[४९०] ।। १३४ ।।
तस्येद[४९१] श्रीमतं दद्याद् अथवा स्वगुरोज्ञया ।

अन्यथा न प्रदातव्यं गुरुशुद्धिविवर्जिते[४९२] ।। १३५ ।।
अर्थलोभाद् भयात् प्रीत्या न[४९३] दद्याच्च कदाचन[४९४] ।

एतत् समयं[४९५] देवेश प्रयत्नाद् धारितो[४९६] मया ।। १३६ ।।
भक्तिहीने शठे क्रूरे निःसत्ये[४९७] कलहप्रिये ।
तान्त्रिके द्वेषदुष्टे च गर्विते च अहंकृते[४९८] ।। १३७ ।।
पारम्पर्यविनिर्मुक्ते[४९९] नैव लोभात्[५००] प्रदापयेत् ।

ओलिशुद्धिविनिर्मुक्ते[५०१] क्रमशुद्धिविवर्जिते ।। १३८ ।।
समयभ्रष्टे[५०२] च पापिष्टे[५०३] वञ्चके[५०४] गुरुदूषके ।
ईश्वरे चित्तलोभिष्टे तथा पापरते जने ।। १३९ ।।
ज्ञानोपजीवकासक्ते[५०५] कायस्थे हेतुवादिने ।

लक्षरागचले[५०६] शिष्ये कार्यार्थी[५०७] भक्तिवत्सल[५०८] ।। १४० ।।
अभक्ते चैव कृपणे[५०९] चपले पानलम्पटे[५१०] ।
देवार्चनविनिर्मुक्ते[५११] शौचाचारविवर्जिते[५१२] ।। १४१ ।।
कपटव्रतचारिणे[५१३] मतराजं न दापयेत् ।

Then he should wave lamps (before the Śrīmata). After that he should fill the Kula jar (with liquor). (After that) the scripture that is placed there and adorned with divine clothes should be worshipped. (Then) having worshipped the Krama after the Maṇḍala of the Teachers, O handsome one, a garland of lamps should be offered to the King of Matas. (130cd-132ab)

One should take a Hero's Meal as I have previously explained. It should not be given to another (teacher's) disciple, but should (only) be given with prior permission. (132cd-133ab)

He who gives it in any other way is overcome with troubles. The Krama taught by the Dūtīs should be given (only) after (the disciple) has been well tested. (133cd-134ab)

O beloved child of devotion, the triple purification (takes place) by means of action, speech and mind. This Śrīmata should be given to (such a) one (who is thus purified) or else (who is) in accord with the teacher's command. (134cd-135ab)

Otherwise, one should not give it to one who has not been purified by the teacher. It should never be given out of greed for money, fear or (mere) affection. (135cd-136ab)

O Lord of the gods, this is the Rule I have kept with effort. One should not give it out of greed to one who has no of devotion or to one who is deceitful, cruel, false, enjoys quarelling, a Tāntrika, a person who hates, (utters) malicious (words) or to one who is proud, egoistic or without a lineage. (136cd-138ab)

(It should not be given) to one who (has not undergone) the purification of the lineages (oli) and the Krama, to one who has fallen from the Rule, a great sinner, a cheat, one who denigrates the teacher, a (rich selfish) lord, one who is mentally greedy, a person devoted to sin, one who makes a living from knowledge, one who is attached, a clerk (kāyastha) or to a logician. (138cd-140ab)

O beloved child of devotion, one should not give (this), the king of Matas, to one who is deceitful because of (his) attachment to (some selfish) goal, a disciple who has (some ulterior) purpose, to one who is not devoted, mean, fickle, dedicated to drink, who does not worship the gods, who does not observe cleanliness or who practices deceit. (140cd-142ab)

स्थिरचित्ताङ्गभावे च सर्वस्वविनिवेदके ।। १४२ ।।
कर्मणा मनसा वाचा विशुद्धे[५१४] भक्तिवत्सले[५१५] ।
भिन्नदेहाङ्गभावे[५१६] च[५१७] गुर्वाम्नायविशारदे[५१८] ।। १४३ ।।
मतराजं प्रदातव्यं[५१९] द्वादशाब्दपरीक्षिते[५२०] ।

नार्थलोभाद् भयात् प्रीत्या नोपरोधेन[५२१] विद्यया ।। १४४ ।।
न दातव्यमिदं[५२२] रत्नं ज्ञानकोषं[५२३] कुलागमम् ।

पुत्रस्यापि न दातव्यं किं पुनरितरे जने[५२४] ।। १४५ ।।
विशेषेण[५२५] न दातव्यं कार्यार्थी[५२६] भक्तिवत्सल[५२७] ।

कलौ युगे महाघोरे स्वल्पचित्तैस्त्वचेतनैः[५२८] ।। १४६ ।।
आचार्यैः[५२९] शक्तिहीनैश्च ज्ञानहीनैश्च निश्चयैः[५३०] ।
ते तु[५३१] ये दीक्षिता देव शिष्याश्चैवापरीक्षिताः[५३२] ।। १४७ ।।
प्रमादेन[५३३] कथञ्चित् स्यात्[५३४] दुःखान्यनुभविष्यन्ति[५३५] ।

भक्तिहीनं[५३६] क्रियाहीनं भावहीनं तु चुम्बकम् ।। १४८ ।।
न ज्ञानं निर्मलं[५३७] तस्य नैव दद्यात् कुलागमम्[५३८] ।

आज्ञापहारः कर्तव्यः परिहार्यः प्रयत्नतः ।। १४९ ।।
तदा सिद्धिं[५३९] लभेन्मन्त्री[५४०] अन्यथा पापकृन्मतः ।

The king of Matas should be given to one whose mind and limbs are firm, who offers (freely his whole) wealth, who is pure by way of (his) action, speech and mind, to one who is a beloved child of devotion, one who is detached from the body, who is an expert in the Tradition of the Masters (gurvāmnāya)[48] and who has been tested for twelve years. (142cd-144ab)

This jewel, a treasury of knowledge, the Kula scripture, should not be given out of greed for money, fear, (mere) affection, constraint or for (mere intellectual) knowledge. (144cd-145ab)

It should not be given even to (one's) son (if he is not qualified to receive it), what (to say) of other people. Especially, O beloved child of devotion, it should not be given to one who has (some ulterior) purpose. (145cd-146ab)

O god, in this very terrible Age of Strife, untested disciples, initiated by mistake by thoughtless teachers with little intellect who are devoid of power and (whose) doctrines are devoid of knowledge, will experience (many kinds of) sufferings. (146cd-148ab)

The knowledge of one who has no devotion, who does not practice the rites, who is devoid of deep sentiment and who is a rogue (cumbaka) is not pure. One should not give (him) the Kulāgama. (148cd-149ab)

The Command should be taken away (from him) and (he) should be streneously avoided. Then the reciter of mantra attains success (siddhi), otherwise he is considered to be a sinner.[49] (149cd-150ab)

निर्वाणोत्तरयोगे[५४१] च तथा कालोत्तरे परे ॥ १५० ॥

ऊर्ध्वस्रोते च करणे[५४२] तथा स्वच्छन्दभैरवे[५४३] ।
नित्यातन्त्रे यामले[५४४] च तथा च त्रिपुरार्णवे ॥ १५१ ॥

यामले रुरुभेदे च तथा च ब्रह्मयामले ।
ओडामरे[५४५] डामरे वा तथा वै चर्चिकाक्रमे ॥ १५२ ॥

पिच्वाख्ये[५४६] तु महादेव अथवा कालिकाक्रमे[५४७] ।
तन्त्रे च भैरवे वापि[५४८] सोमसिद्धान्तलाकुले[५४९] ॥ १५३ ॥

तुम्बुरे चैकवीरे[५५०] वा जयातन्त्रे तु वासुके[५५१] ।
मातङ्गे ब्रह्मतन्त्रे च प्रतिष्ठापारमेश्वरे[५५२] ॥ १५४ ॥

आणवे[५५३] पिङ्गले[५५४] चैव रसस्वच्छन्दके तथा ।
वाचस्पते[५५५] च आद्ये वा लक्षपादेऽथ सुन्दर[५५६] ॥ १५५ ॥

वाममार्गे च गौर्यायाः सिद्धयोगेश्वरीमते ।
मते पिचुमते चैव तथा देव्यामते तु[५५७] च ॥ १५६ ॥

शिवादूतीमते देव खेचर्याश्च[५५८] मतोत्तरे[५५९] ।
मते डामरदूती[५६०] च तथा वै सुन्दरीमते ॥ १५७ ॥

मङ्गलाया मते चैव व्योमसन्तानसन्ततौ[५६१] ।
व्योमगर्भे[५६२] हृषीकेशे तथा चैव[५६३] तु गह्वरे ॥ १५८ ॥

दीक्षिता ये कलौ देव शिष्यास्तन्त्रागमेषु[५६४] च ।
कलौ युगस्य[५६५] संसिद्धिं न ते प्राप्यन्ति[५६६] पुत्रकाः[५६७] ॥ १५९ ॥

(The Tantras are): Nirvāṇayogottara and the Kālottara. *(There is) Para,* the Ūrdhvasrota and Karaṇa as well as the Svacchandabhairava. (There is the) Nityātantra, a Yāmala and the Tripurārṇava. (150cd-151)

(There is another) Yāmala, the Rurubheda, and the Brahmayāmala, Oḍāmara, Ḍāmara, as well as the Carcikākrama. (Another is) the one called, Picu and so too, O Mahādeva, the Kālikākrama as well as the Bhairavatantra, Somasiddhānta, and Lākula. (152-153)

(Others are) the Tumbura, Ekavīra, Jayātantra and Vāsuka. (There is the) Mātaṅga (Āgama), the Brahmatantra, Pratiṣṭhā, and Pārameśvara. (154)

(Others are the) Āṇava (Tantra), Piṅgala, Rasasvacchandaka and, O beautiful one, the Vācaspati, Ādya, and Lakṣapāda. (155)

(Others are) the Vāmamārga of (the goddess) Gauryā, the Siddhayogeśvarīmata, the Mata, the Picumata, as well as the Devyāmata. (156)

(There are the) Śivādūtīmata, Khecarī, Matottara, Ḍāmaradūtīmata, Sundarīmata, Maṅgalāmata, the lineage of the Vyomasantāna,Vyomagarbha, Hṛṣīkeśa and Gahvara. (157-158)

O god, those disciples and spiritual sons (putraka) who have been initiated in the Age of Strife into the Tantras and Āgamas (such as these) will not attain success in the Age of Strife. (159)

यावन्न कुलसिंहस्य क्रमोदय[५६८] महीपते ।
पश्चिमस्य गृहस्यैव पुत्रकानां प्रवेशनम्[५६९] ।। १६० ।।
तावत् तेषां कुतो भोग्यं कुतः प्रत्यय[५७०] कौलिकम् ।

कुतो मोक्ष[५७१] दरिद्राणां कुलक्रमविवर्जिताम्[५७२] ।। १६१ ।।
पुनर्दीक्षारिहाः[५७३] सर्वे मेरुमार्गविवर्जिताः[५७४] ।[५७५]
भविष्यन्ति कलौ देव पश्चिमे सिंहदर्शने[५७६] ।। १६२ ।।

कृत्वा[५७७] त्यागं गुरोः पूर्वं त्यक्त्वा पूर्वाश्रमक्रमम् ।
ततश्चानुग्रहं कुर्यात् सविशेष[५७८] तु पश्चिमे ।। १६३ ।।
अन्यथा पशवः[५७९] सर्वे भ्रामितास्ते मया कलौ ।

युगानुरूपतो[५८०] मोक्ष[५८१] दर्शनं दर्शनं प्रति ।। १६४ ।।
कृतयुगे[५८२] ऊर्ध्वस्त्रोत[५८३] वै त्रेतायां दक्षिणं तथा ।
द्वापरे[५८४] वामस्त्रोत[५८५] तु पश्चिम[५८६] कलिरुच्यते ।। १६५ ।।
कलौ तु पश्चिमं स्त्रोत[५८७] सद्योजातं कुलक्रमम् ।
उदय[५८८] चतुर्धा[५८९] प्रोक्तं युगानां शैवदर्शने ।। १६६ ।।

यस्य यस्य युगस्यैव अन्तर्धान[५९०] गतस्य च ।
तस्य तस्य भवेत् सिद्धिरन्यथा न कदाचन ।। १६७ ।।
युगोऽन्य[५९१] दर्शनं चान्यं तथा चान्य[५९२] गुरुस्तथा ।
सर्वं त[५९३] निष्फलं तस्य यथाज्यं भस्ममध्यतः[५९४] ।। १६८ ।।

एवं ज्ञात्वा तु प्रथम[५९५] कलिस्या[५९६] पश्चिम[५९७] गृहम्[५९८] ।
गुरुश्चाह[५९९] च पूर्वेषां श्रीमतार्थे[६००] महेश्वर[६०१] ।। १६९ ।।

मम[६०२] ॐकारपीठे तु अवतार[६०३] महेश्वर ।
तथाधिकार[६०४] सिंहस्य[६०५] आख्यातं दक्षिणापथे[६०६] ।। १७० ।।
तत्रैव प्रत्यय[६०७] शुद्धं चतुष्पादेषु[६०८] संस्थितम् ।

क्षेत्रमाहात्म्य[६०९] शिष्याणां वर्तते च गृहे गृहे ।। १७१ ।।
मुद्रास्फोटादि वेधञ्च कोङ्कणे दक्षिणापथे ।

O Lord of the Earth, unless the Transmission of the Lion Kula (siṁhakulakrama) arises and the spiritual sons (putraka) enter the Western House, how can they possess the object of pleasure (bhogya) (or achieve) Kaula realisation (pratyaya)? (160-161ab)

How is liberation possible for those poor people who do not have the Kulakrama? O god, in the Age of Strife they will become the destroyers and enemies of initiation and will not possess the Path of Meru in the Western Teaching of the Lion (siṁhadarśana).[50] (161cd-162)

Once one has given up the tradition of one's previous stage of life (āśrama)[51] and abandoned (all things) before the teacher, (the latter) should then grace him in a special way in the Western (Tradition). All those (who act) otherwise are fettered souls, deluded by me in the Age of Strife. (163-164ab)

Liberation and the doctrine (darśana) accord with the Age (of their revelation). In the Kṛta Age (the revealed doctrine is that of) the Upper Current, in the Tretā Age, the Right (Current), in the Dvāpara Age, the Left Current while the Western Current, which is the Kulakrama of Sadyojāta, is (the one revealed) in the Age of Strife. The fourfold arising (udaya) of the Ages has (thus) been stated according to Śaiva doctrine (śaivadarśana).[52] (164cd-166)

One has success (siddhi) if the Age in which (the teaching) has been hidden accords to the one that one is in, and never otherwise. (If) the Age is one and the teaching (darśana) and the teacher are another, then all that will be fruitless for him, like (offering) clarified butter into ashes. (167-168)

Once one has understood (the matter) thus, (one knows that) the Western House is the first (and best) in the Age of Strife. And, O Great Lord, I am the teacher of the meaning of the Śrīmata of the ones that (came) before. (169)

O Great Lord, I have descended into the sacred seat of OṀ and the authority of the tradition (siṁha) has been explained in the Deccan (dakṣiṇāpatha). There insight (pratyaya) is pure and established on (all) four legs. (170-171ab)

(A eulogy of) the glory of (that) sacred area (kṣetra) is in the home of every disciple. Explosions at a mere gesture (mudrāsphoṭa) and the piercing (of the inner centres by Kuṇḍalinī) take place (everywhere) in Koṅkaṇa, in the Deccan (dakṣiṇāpatha). (171cd-172ab)

तत्राज्ञा ख्यापिता पूर्वं मया पूर्णाख्यसंज्ञके ॥ १७२ ॥
नाख्यातं[६१०] मानवे गुह्यं गुरुणा दक्षिणापथे ।

तवाख्यातं तु सिद्धस्य रहस्यं मेरुमार्गगम्[६११] ॥ १७३ ॥
पीठोद्याणे[६१२] त्रिमुद्रायां मण्डलं च कुलागमम् ।

चतुर्विंशतिसाहस्त्रं उद्धृतं लक्षपादकात् ॥ १७४ ॥
मयापि खेचरात् प्राप्तं हिमवन्तान्मुखागमम्[६१३] ।

प्राप्ते[६१४] कलियुगे शंभो[६१५] म्लेच्छराज्ये तथोत्तरे ॥ १७५ ॥
मधुमन्थनावतारे[६१६a] [६१६b]रावणस्य समागमे ।
तस्मिन् चैवाद्यपीठस्य[६१७] श्मशाने करवीरके ॥ १७६ ॥
रुद्रांशकस्य सिद्ध्यस्य विद्धचित्तस्य[६१८] भैरव[६१९] ।

अधिकारं[६२०] प्रदातव्यं एतत् सिद्धकुलागमम् ॥ १७७ ॥
उपदेशं[६२१] यथावस्थं[६२२] निशाचारेण[६२३] कौलिकम्[६२४] ।

संहितार्थं महत्यर्थं कथनीयमदृष्टवत् ॥ १७८ ॥
दद्याद्[६२५] ज्ञानं[६२६] क्रमाम्नायं कीर्त्यर्थं दक्षिणापथे ।

सविशेषं च हृदयं[६२७] चातुर्विंशत्सहस्त्रकम्[६२८] ॥ १७९ ॥
दातव्यं धीपुरे शक्त्या रूपमाश्रित्य मानवम् ।

मानवस्य तु शिष्यस्य भावशुद्धस्य सुन्दर ॥ १८० ॥
तस्य दद्यान्न दोषोऽस्ति[६२९] अन्यथा दोषभाग्[६३०] भवेत् ।

तेनैवाराधिता पूर्वं अहं त्रिदशमण्डले ॥ १८१ ॥
तस्य तुष्टा ह्यहं शम्भो[६३१] निर्मितो[६३२] मर्त्यलोकतः[६३३] ।

मानवेन तु[६३४] रूपेण सिद्धोऽसौ[६३५] नात्र संशयः ॥ १८२ ॥
जन्मजन्मान्तराभ्यासात् अहमाराधिता हर ।

There, I imparted the Command in (the seat) called Pūrṇa. The secret that was not told amongst men was (imparted) by the teacher in the Deccan (dakṣiṇāpatha).[53] (172cd-3ab)

I have told you who are the Siddha, the secret on the Path of Meru, the maṇḍala and Kula scripture within (the Triangle called) the Triple Gesture which is in the garden of the sacred seats. (173cd-174ab)

The (Śrīmata) of twenty-four thousand (verses) has been taken from (that of) one hundred and twenty-five thousand. I too have obtained the oral scripture (mukhāgama) from Himavat, the Skyfarer. (174cd-175ab)

O Śambhu, when the Age of Strife comes and the rule of the barbarians (mleccharājya) (is established) in the north with Rāvaṇa's arrival[54] and the descent (of the teachings takes place by) the churning of the honey (of the ocean of the Yoni),[55] one should give authority, O Bhairava, to the Siddha whose mind has been pierced (with divine power) and who is a part of Rudra (rudrāṁśa). (This should be done) in the cremation ground (called) Karavīra belonging to the First Sacred Seat.[56] (175cd-177abc)

This is the scripture of the Siddhakula. This is the Kaulika teaching established by the practice that takes place at night (niśācāra). (177d-178ab)

The meaning of the scripture, its great meaning, should be told as if (the scripture) had not been seen. One should impart the knowledge, which is the Krama tradition, in the Deccan in order to (spread) the fame (of the deity). (178cd-9ab)

In particular, assuming a human form, one should impart the heart (of the scripture, namely) that of twenty-four thousand verses, within the citadel of the intellect (dhī) by means of the power (of grace). (179cd-180ab)

O handsome one, it should be given to a human disciple whose sentiment is pure. (Thus) there is no defect; otherwise, one shall have no share of it. (180cd-181ab)

O Śambhu, I was worshipped by him in the past in the midst of the Circle of the Gods (tridaśamaṇḍala). I was pleased with him (and so I) fashioned (him) in the world of mortals. (181cd-182ab)

He is, without a doubt, a Siddha in human form. O Hara, I was worshipped by (his) practice from one birth to another. (182cd-183ab)

पूर्वं[६३६] रुद्रांशको यस्तु स लभेद्धि[६३७] कुलागमम् ।। १८३ ।।
सिद्धो[६३८] मानुष्यरूपेण निर्मितो मर्त्यलोकत:[६३९] ।

उपकाराय जन्तूनां स लभेत्परमं[६४०] मतम् ।। १८४ ।।
वेत्त्यसौ[६४१] संहितार्थं तु दुर्बोध्यं देवदुर्लभम् ।

सूत्रसंकेतभाषार्थं पारम्पर्यक्रमागतम् ।। १८५ ।।
तत्राहं[६४२] मन्त्रमूर्तिस्था[६४३] त्वं[६४४] तत्र परमो गुरुः ।

तत्र पूजा त्रिकालं तु कर्तव्यं[६४५] मण्डलं पुन:।। १८६।।
यथाहं च तथा त्वं च[६४६] तथा वै खेचरं क्रमम् ।

यथागममहाज्ञानं तथासौ मतबोधक: ।। १८७ ।।
पश्यते[६४७] ज्ञानचक्षुभ्यां[६४८] न द्वैतं[६४९] गुरुणा सह[६५०] ।

तस्यापमानं[६५१] द्रोहं[६५२] च वचनलङ्घनं तथा[६५३] ।। १८८ ।।
न कर्तव्यं कदाचिद् वा[६५४] विद्वेषं न[६५५] समाचरेत् ।

अन्धकारे[६५६] यथा दीपो[६५७] निशायां तु निशाकर: ।। १८९ ।।
तथासौ दीपको मन्त्री ओलीनां गोत्रसन्ततौ[६५८] ।

तस्यैव[६५९] यत् कृतं किञ्चित् परार्थं[६६०] चैव[६६१] पुत्रकै: ।। १९० ।।
तत् सर्वं मे प्रमाणं तु तस्य तिष्ठाम्यहं पुरे ।

मन्त्रसिंहासनं तस्य अधिकारं[६६२] त्रयोलिषु ।। १९१ ।।
मतबोधकसिद्धस्य आख्यातं[६६३] दक्षिणापथे[६६४] ।

योजनशतदूरस्थं[६६५] पश्यते[६६६] ज्ञानचक्षुषा ।। १९२ ।।

रिक्तहस्तैर्न[६६७] सिद्धि:[६६८] स्यात् पूर्णहस्तेन[६६९] सिद्धिभाक् ।

The one who is a part of Rudra should, first of all, obtain the Kula scripture. (He is) the Siddha who has been fashioned in the form of a man in the world of mortals. (183cd-184ab)

In order to help people, he should obtain the supreme Mata. He (is the one who) knows the meaning of (this) scripture which is hard to understand and obtain (even) by the gods. (184cd-185ab)

(It is) the meaning of the language of the convention of the sūtra that has come down through the sequence of the line of teachers (pāramparyakrama). There I am established in the form of mantra and you are the supreme teacher. (185cd-186ab)

There the rite of adoration takes place at (all) three times, and (so) one should fashion the maṇḍala (there). Just as I am so are you – and such, indeed, is the Transmission of the Skyfarers (khecarakrama). (186cd-7ab)

Just as is the great knowledge of scripture, so is he the one who awakens to (the meaning of) the Mata. He (who) sees with the eyes of knowledge (realises) that there is no duality (between himself) and the teacher. (187cd-188ab)

One should never disrespect him, do violence (to him), disobey (his) words or despise (him). (188cd-189ab)

This reciter of mantra is the illuminater of the lineages of the family of the clan (gotrasantati), just as a lamp is in the darkness and the moon at night. (189cd-190ab)

Whatever he does is for the sake of others, and along with (his) spiritual sons (putraka), he is the means of my knowledge (pramāṇa) and I abide in the city of his (body). (190cd-191ab)

The lion throne of mantra, which is the authority in the three lineages of this accomplished one who awakens to (the teaching) of the Mata, has been explained in the Deccan. (191cd-192ab)

He (can) see with the eye of knowledge (an object even) at a hundred leagues distance. (192cd)

Those whose hands are empty (and do not bear offerings to their teacher and the deity do) not (achieve) success. (But, on the contrary), one whose hands are full is successful. (193ab)

पश्यत्यसौ महामन्त्री गुरुं प्रत्यक्षभैरवम्[६७०] ॥ १९३ ॥

अन्यगोत्रस्य शिष्येन[६७१] चर्चां[६७२] नैव[६७३] तु कारयेत् ।

कन्यसोऽपि[६७४] गुरोरोघे[६७५] स ज्येष्ठ इति[६७६] मन्यते ॥ १९४ ॥

स्व–ओल्यां[६७७] च क्रमं[६७८] तस्य शोध्यं[६७९] वक्राकुलागमे[६८०] ।
ततः सिद्धिर्भवेच्छिष्ये[६८१] अन्यथा न कदाचन ॥ १९५ ॥

यस्येदं[६८२] श्रीमतं देव गृहे तिष्ठति पूजितम्[६८३] ।
तस्य लक्ष्मी सदाकालं[६८४] अहं[६८५] तिष्ठामि[६८६] तत्पुरे ॥ १९६ ॥
यत्र[६८७] यत्र शुभं[६८८] किञ्चित् तत्राहं चाधिकारिणी[६८९] ।

पठते यस्तु तत्त्वज्ञः[६९०] सकलं वा तदर्धकम् ॥ १९७ ॥
अर्धार्धमथ पादं[६९१] वा[६९२] श्लोकमेकं[६९३] तदर्धकम् ।
तस्य ज्ञानफलावाप्ति इहलोके[६९४] च भुक्तिभाक्[६९५] ॥ १९८ ॥
स[६९६] पुनर्विन्दते[६९७] सर्वं चतुःपादं[६९८] क्रमेण तु ।

प्रत्यक्षं चिञ्चिणीनाथं[६९९] मायारूपेण मानवः ॥ १९९ ॥
यो योऽवलोक्यते[७००] जन्तुः[७०१] सोऽपि याति परे पदे ।

दर्शनात् स्पर्शनादेव[७०२] आलापात्[७०३] सह संगमात् ॥ २०० ॥
पापीनां[७०४] जायते सिद्धिर्ज्ञानदीक्षा[७०५] प्रवर्तते ।

पठितं शृणुते[७०६] यस्तु श्रीमतेदं[७०७] कुलागमम् ॥ २०१ ॥
मन्त्रोद्धारं तु यः पश्येत् प्रमादादविभावितः ।
तत्क्षणाद्[७०८] दीक्षितोऽसौ[७०९] वै गतोऽसौ पश्चिमे गृहे ॥ २०२ ॥

गुरुमण्डलकं कार्यं आगमस्य गुरोग्रतः[७१०] ।
साष्टाङ्गप्रणिपातैस्तु त्रिप्रदक्षिणपूर्वकैः ॥ २०३ ॥
नमस्कारेन्महाभक्त्या[७११] अभिवन्द्य पुनः पुनः[७१२] ।
तस्य वेत्ता पुनर्मन्त्री[७१३] पूर्णसिद्धिः[७१४] प्रवर्तते ॥ २०४ ॥

ते शिष्याः क्रमिकाः[७१५] शुद्धाः यैर्दृष्टं श्रीमतं त्विदम् ।
ते मुक्ता जीवमान्तोऽपि[७१६] अन्ये[७१७] जीवन्तका मृताः ॥ २०५ ॥

That great reciter of mantra sees his teacher as Bhairava directly visible. (193cd)

One should not discuss (matters of doctrine) with disciples of other spiritual clans (gotra). (194ab)

Even the youngest member of the teacher's spiritual current (gurvogha) is considered to be the oldest (amongst those who are not). (194cd)

The Krama in his own lineage is to be purified (in the manner taught) in the scripture of the Vakrākula. Thus the disciple will have yogic power (siddhi) within himself. Otherwise never. (195)

O god, I, the goddess of wealth (Lakṣmī) am always present in the home of one in which this Śrīmata is present and is worshipped. I am the authority wherever there is anything auspicious. (196-197ab)

The knower of reality who reads it all, or half or a quarter (of it), or (even just) one verse, or a half or a quarter (of one), gets the fruit (of it) in this world and he enjoys worldly benefits. He then gradually gets the entire (scripture) and (all) four parts (pāda) (of it). (197cd-199ab)

Ciñciṇīnātha is directly visible in (his) Māyā form as a man.[57] Whoever he gazes at, that person also reaches the supreme plane (of existence). (199cd-200ab)

Sinners gain yogic power (siddhi) (just) by seeing (him) (darśana), touching (him), speaking or meeting (with him), and the Initiation of Knowledge takes place.[58] (200cd-201ab)

He who hears this Kula scripture, the Śrīmata being read, or who, due to negligence, is unnoticed and sees the extraction of the mantras, is initiated that very moment and enters the Western House.[59] (201cd-202)

One should fashion the Maṇḍala of the Teachers of the scripture in front of the teacher.[60] It (should be) worshipped repeatedly with great devotion by performing full-length prostrations preceded by triple circumambulations. Then the reciter of mantra (comes to) know it and (he achieves) complete success. (203-204)

Those disciples are pure and belong to the tradition (kramika) who have seen this Śrīmata. They are liberated although still alive, while the others, (although) alive, are (as if) dead.[61] (205)

इह जन्म[७१८] समासाद्य येनाभ्यस्तं न श्रीमतम् ।
तथा नाकर्णितं भक्त्या वृथा तस्य तु जीवितम् ।। २०६ ।।
येनावधारितं नैव महारत्नं कुलागमम् ।
पुनस्तद्[७१९] दुर्लभं तस्य अन्यजन्मनि[७२०] जन्मनि ।। २०७ ।।
प्राप्तो मणिर्यथा शुद्ध:[७२१] चन्द्रकान्ति[७२२] त्यजेन्नर:[७२३] ।
भूयोस्त[७२४] दुर्लभं तस्य तथा श्रीश्रीमतं नृणाम् ।। २०८ ।।
यो द्विषेत् श्रीमत[७२५] देव आचार्यं मतबोधकम् ।
यात्यसौ[७२६] नरकं घोरं यावद्[७२७] भूतसंप्लवम्[७२८] ।। २०९ ।।
श्रीनाथं भैरवं चैव पादुकामिति उच्चरेत् ।
अग्रत: पार्श्वतो[७२९] वापि क्रमत:[७३०] स्वगुरोग्रत:[७३१] ।। २१० ।।
यत्र यत्र[७३२] गतो मन्त्री त्रितयं तु समुच्चरेत् ।[७३३]
शिवायेति[७३४] न वक्तव्यं मन्त्रमेतत्[७३५] षडक्षरम् ।। २११ ।।
नोच्चार्य[७३६] कौलिके[७३७] मार्गे पादुकामिति उच्चरेत्[७३८] ।
मण्डलं च क्रमोद्धारं कारयेन्मतसन्निधौ ।। २१२ ।।
अथवा भव्यते[७३९] भक्त्या गुरुमण्डलपूजनम्[७४०] ।
कृत्वादौ क्रमपूजां च पुष्पधूपादिभि: क्रमात् ।। २१३ ।।
चन्दन[७४१] कुंकुम[७४२] चैव कस्तूर्या च विलेपयेत्[७४३] ।
अलिपिशितसंयुक्तं दीपं प्रज्वाल्य[७४४] शोभनम् ।। २१४ ।।
पुष्पप्रकरं कर्तव्य[७४५] सुगन्धं गन्धमोदितम्[७४६] ।
कुमारी[७४७] पूजयेदेका[७४८] तथा आचार्यपुत्रकम् ।। २१५ ।।
आदौ मन्त्राश्च मुद्राश्च गुरुपञ्चकमण्डलम्[७४९] ।
मम[७५०] विद्यामूलसूत्र[७५१] नत्वा ध्यायेत्[७५२] कुलागमम् ।। २१६ ।।
एकान्ते विजने रम्ये दुष्टजन्तुविवर्जिते ।
आचार्यं स्वगुरुं वाथ गुरोर्मातामथापि[७५३] वा ।। २१७ ।।
एषामाज्ञा[७५४] प्रर्थयित्वा[७५५] ददादेशमिति[७५६] ब्रूयात्[७५७] ।
मतार्थ[७५८] भवत्वस्माकं तथा सिद्धिस्तु[७५९] कौलिकी ।। २१८ ।।
ईदृशेन विधानेन ततो वाच्यं महेश्वर[७६०] ।

The life of one who, born here (in this world), has not practiced the Śrīmata or listened to it with devotion, is useless. (206)

He who has not paid attention to the Kula scripture, the great jewel, (will find it) hard to acquire it again in subsequent lifetimes. (207)

Just as upon finding a flawless gem, a man should give up a moonstone (and keep the gem) which is hard to acquire again, such is the case with the venerable Śrīmata for men.[62] (208)

O god, he who hates the Śrīmata and the teacher who awakens (to the meaning of the) Mata goes to a horrible hell until all things are destroyed. (209)

One should utter (the words) 'Bhairava', 'Śrīnātha' and 'pādukā' in due order, in front and to the sides, before his teacher. (210)

Wherever the reciter of mantra may be, he should recite ('pādukā' which is) the third one. He should not say 'śivāya'. This six-syllabled mantra[63] should not be uttered on the Kaulika path. One should say 'pādukā' (instead). (211-212ab)

One should cause the maṇḍala to be fashioned and the Krama extracted close to the Mata. Otherwise, one can contemplate the worship of the Maṇḍala of the Teachers with devotion. (212cd-213ab)

Having first worshipped the Krama with flowers and incense in due order, one must smear (it with) sandal paste and vermillion along with musk and (make offerings) of meat and wine. Having lit a beautiful lamp, one should make a sweet-smelling heap of flowers daubed with scent. (213cd-215ab)

One should worship a virgin along with the teacher and (his) apprentice (putraka). (And then, having) first (uttered) the mantras, (made) the gestures, (worshipped) the maṇḍala of the five teachers and bowed to the Root Sūtra of my Vidyā,[64] one should study the Kula scripture in a beautiful, solitary place where there are no people or ferocious animals. (215cd-217ab)

(The disciple) should request either the officiant (ācārya), his teacher or the teacher's mother[65] for the Command. (Then) he should say:

"Give (us your) permission (ādeśa). May we have the meaning of the Mata and the Kaulikī accomplishment (siddhi)." Then, O Maheśvara, it should be uttered (by the teacher) according to this prescription. (217cd-219ab)

अन्तरङ्गीसुभाषादिशुद्धं[७६१] चातिमनोहरम् ।। २१९ ।।
किञ्चित्काकलिशब्देन[७६२] सिद्धान्तं तत्र कारयेत् ।

सद्यातिललिता[७६३] भाषा गान्धर्वादिरनेकशः[७६४] ।। २२० ।।
तया[७६५] समयमेवोक्तं[७६६] श्रद्धया[७६७] तत्[७६८] पठेन्नरः ।
अन्यथा सिद्धिहानिः स्यात् साधकस्य[७६९] भवेत् ततः[७७०] ।। २२१ ।।

निशाचारेण व्याख्यातं[७७१] कुलाचारेण[७७२] कारयेत् ।

व्याख्याने या विधिः पूर्वं तवाख्याता वरानन[७७३] ।। २२२ ।।
कृत्वा[७७४] चाकर्णयेदेव नान्यथा तु कदाचन[७७५] ।

दिव्ये[७७६] मनोरमे[७७७] स्थाने पशुदृष्टिविवर्जिते ।। २२३ ।।
पुष्पप्रकरसंकीर्णे सुगुप्ते चाधिवासिते ।
महाधूपसुगन्धाढ्ये[७७८] आचार्यः पूर्वसंमुखः[७७९] ।। २२४ ।।
पश्चिमाभिमुखैः शिष्यैः श्रोतव्यं च कुलागमम् ।

गुप्ते प्रकाशयेच्छिष्यं[७८०] दातव्यं च मुखागमम् ।। २२५ ।।
तथा[७८१] गूढार्थचित्तं[७८२] स्यादचिरं[७८३] वा भविष्यति[७८४]।

तन्मूलक्रमविद्यां[७८५] च षोढान्यासं यदुद्धृतम् ।। २२६ ।।
अलिना कुंकुमेनैव लिख्य[७८६]पूज्य[७८७] प्रदापयेत् ।

गृहीत्वा क्षाम्यते[७८८] शिष्यः[७८९] अलिना शोधितं[७९०] पिबेत् ।। २२७ ।।
तत्पश्चात् समया श्राव्या संक्षेपेणाष्टकं[७९१] च यत्[७९२] ।

न निन्द्याद्[७९३] योगियोगिन्यो[७९४] नेक्षेन्नग्नां परस्त्रियम् ।। २२८ ।।
न जातु[७९५] कुत्सितं ब्रूयात् अनिच्छन्तीं न कामयेत् ।

गुरुपत्नीं[७९६] वीरभार्यां[७९७] वक्रिकां[७९८] वामनीं तथा ।। २२९ ।।[७९९]
कुमारीं[८००] व्रजिकां[८०१] चैव च्छिन्ननासां न कामयेत् ।

एवं वै समयाः श्राव्याः[८०२] संक्षेपेण वरानन[८०३] ।। २३०।।
पूरतः[८०४] कथयिष्यामि चतुःषष्टिसमयान्[८०५] यथा ।

The teaching (siddhaanta), which is very beautiful and pure with fine esoteric dictums, should be expounded there briefly in sweet tone of voice. (219cd-220ab)

The Rule has been uttered many times by that speech (bhāṣā) which is (charming) like that of the celestial musicians, and which is artistically expressive (atilalitā) and easy to grasp. Man should study it with faith. Otherwise, the adept's accomplishments are annulled. (220cd-221)

(The teaching) has been explained (essentially) as (being) the Conduct at Night (niśācāra).[66] (The teacher) should have (his disciple) apply (it) by the Conduct of Kula (kulācāra). (222ab)

O handsome one, the way (of listening to) the explanation (vyākhyāna) was told to you before. Once it has been applied, one should listen (to the scripture) in the same (way). It (should) never (be done) in any other way. (222cd-223ab)

One should listen to the Kula scripture in a sacred and pleasing place out of sight of the uninitiated. (It should be) strewn with heaps of flowers, well hidden, purified and rich with the fragrance of fine incense. The teacher sits facing east with the disciples facing west. (223cd-225ab)

The Kula scripture should be given and explained to the disciple in secret. In this way the mind should be (centred) on the deep (hidden) meaning (of the scripture), or it will be so in a short time. (225cd-226ab)

Once it has been written with vermillion and liquor[67] and worshipped, (the teacher) should give the Vidyā of the main Krama (mūlakrama) and the sixfold deposition (to his disciple). (226cd-7ab)

Taking (the sacrificial drink),[68] the disciple is graced and, once it has been purified, he should drink it with liquor. After that he should be made to hear the Samayā (Vidyā) in brief along with the group of eight (mantras of the Mothers). (227cd-228ab)

One should not criticise yogis or Yoginīs and one should not (look) at a naked woman of another (man). One should never use vulgar language or desire a woman who does not want (to be desired). (228cd-229ab)

One should not desire the wife of the teacher, the wife of a Kaula yogi (vīra), a hunchbacked woman, a female dwarf, a virgin, a nun or (an adulteress) whose nose has been cut off. (229cd-230ab)

In this way, O handsome one, (the teacher) should cause (the disciple) to hear the Rules in brief. Later on I will tell (you all) the sixty-four Rules[69] (completely). (230cd-231ab)

गुरोराज्ञां[८०६] न लङ्घेत लङ्घनान्नरकं भवेत् ॥ २३१ ॥
पालनाद् भवते सिद्धिः पदं प्राप्नोति शाश्वतम् ।

कुगृहे कुजने देव स्थाने चैव तु कुत्सिते ॥ २३२ ॥
पशुमध्ये न चाख्येय[८०७] आगमार्थं[८०८] मुखागमम् ।

नैव दद्यात्[८०९] तु सहसा पशूनां[८१०] न प्रदर्शयेत् ॥ २३३ ॥
संवृत्य तूष्णीमास्थाय[८११] तदा मौनं समाचरेत् ।

गुर्वोघं[८१२] यस्तु जानाति[८१३] तथा सांवत्सरं[८१४] क्रमम् ॥ २३४ ॥
मण्डलं मूलसूत्रं तु तस्य देयं मुखागमम्[८१५] ।

अन्यथा निर्गुणं शिष्यं ज्ञात्वा भक्तिसमन्वितम् ॥ २३५ ॥
स्वशिष्य[८१६] च ततः[८१७] कृत्वा तदा देयं मुखागमम् ।

अन्यथाभावुकं[८१८] शिष्यं नैव दद्यान्मुखागमम्[८१९] ॥ २३६ ॥
अवस्थां[८२०] उन्मनीभावं आज्ञाप्रत्ययपूर्वकम् ।
जानाति[८२१] देहजं चिन्हं सोऽस्ति[८२२] शिष्यः[८२३] कुलागमे ॥ २३७ ॥

स्फुरते[८२४] प्रत्ययावस्था[८२५] यस्य तिष्ठति भावना[८२६] ।
सहजमेलकं[८२७] शम्भो स भवेन्मतभाजनः ॥ २३८ ॥[८२८]

क्रमभक्तिरता ये च पीठाराधनतत्पराः ।[८२९]
तेष्वग्रे दर्शयेत्[८३०] देव भक्तिहीनान् विवर्जयेत् ॥ २३९ ॥[८३१]

There, with sweet-sounding words, (the teacher) should impart the doctrine (siddhānta), which by virtue of its esoteric, fine language and the rest is pure and very beautiful. (219cd-220ab)

One should not disobey the teacher's Command. By transgressing (his commands, the disciple goes to) hell. Success (siddhi) (is achieved) by observing it and he (who does so) attains the eternal plane (of existence). (231cd-232ab)

O god, the meaning of the scripture, the oral scripture, should not be explained in a bad household, amongst bad people, in a place of ill repute or amongst the uninitiated (paśu). (232cd-233ab)

It should not be given out hastily (sahasā). It should not be shown to the uninitiated (paśu). (But), covering (the scripture) quietly, one should practice (it in) silence. (233cd-234ab)

The oral scripture, the maṇḍala and the Root Sūtra should be given (only) to one who knows the Current of the Teachers (gurvogha) and the liturgical year (saṁvatsarakrama).[70] (234cd-235ab)

Or else, when (a teacher) comes to know of a disciple (of another teacher) who does not have the yogic power (guṇa) (imparted by initiation but) who possesses devotion, he should adopt him as his own disciple and then the oral scripture should be given to him. (235cd-236ab)

One should never, in any other circumstance, impart the oral scripture to a disciple who is otherwise disposed. He who knows the Transmental state heralded by the signs of attainment of the Command is (a true) disciple of the Kula scripture. (236cd-237)

He for whom the state of realisation (pratyayāvasthā) manifests, whose contemplative absorption (bhāvanā) abides (without change) and who (experiences) the spontaneous union (sahajamelaka) (of Śiva and Śakti), possesses the Mata. (238)

O god, the (scripture) should be shown (only) to those who are devoted to the Transmission (krama) and who are intent on worshiping the sacred seats. One should avoid those who are devoid of devotion. (239)

गुरोरुपजीवका[८३२] ये च कपटव्रतधारिणः ।
न तेषां सह संभाषं[८३३] श्रीमतं न[८३४] प्रकाशयेत्[८३५] ।। २४० ।।
मतमेकमिदं सारं[८३६] देव्यादेशात्[८३७] प्रकाशयेत् ।
ये बुध्यन्ति नरा देव ते मुक्ता नात्र संशयः ।। २४१ ।।

इत्याद्यावतारे महामन्थानभैरवयज्ञे अन्वये[८३८] सप्तकोटिप्रमाणे[८३९] मेरुमार्गविनिर्गते लक्षपादाधिके विद्यापीठमार्गे विमलषट्कनिर्णये[८४०] कादिभेदे आज्ञापारमेश्वरे[८४१] स्वामिनीमते श्रीचतुर्विंशत्सहस्रसंहितायां अव्वाक्रमभाषिते श्रीकुलागममाहात्म्यवर्णने[८४२] लिखनव्याख्यानविधिर्नामानन्दः[८४३] ।। ३० ।।

One should not converse with those who live off the teacher and who are intent on practicing deceit. The Śrīmata should not be shown (to them). This essence (sāra) (of the scripture), the one Mata, should be revealed (only) at the goddess's command. O god, those who understand (it) are, without a doubt, liberated beings. (240-241)

This is the (thirtieth) chapter called the Prescribed Way of Writing and Explaining (the Scripture), which comes in the course of describing the greatness of the scripture of the Śrīkula. It belongs to the primordial descent into the great sacrifice of the Churning Bhairava in the tradition (anvaya) that consists of seventy million (verses) that has emerged on the Path of Meru and (extends) for more than a hundred thousand quarter (verses). It is on the path of the Seat of Knowledge (vidyāpīṭha) and is the ultimate purport of the Pure Six Thousand (verses) (vimalaṣaṭka) in the division beginning with `KĀ' in the venerable scripture of twenty-four thousand (verses) (known as) the Svāminīmata of the Supreme Lord's command as uttered within the Tradition of the Mother (avvākrama).

The

Kumārikākhaṇḍa

of the Manthānabhairavatantra

Volume Three Part Two

Notes to the Edition and Translation of Chapters Seventeen to Thirty

Mark S. G. Dyczkowski

CONTENTS OF THE NOTES OF VOLUME THREE

Contents i-vii

Notes of the Sanskrit Text of Chapter Seventeen 1

Notes of the Translation of Chapter Seventeen 5

Notes of the Sanskrit Text of Chapter eighteen 22

Notes of the Translation of Chapter Eighteen 28

Notes of the Sanskrit Text of Chapter Nineteen 37

Notes of the Translation of Chapter Nineteen 44

Notes of the Sanskrit Text of Chapter Twenty 51

Notes of the Translation of Chapter Twenty 53

Notes of the Sanskrit Text of Chapter Twenty-one 57

Notes of the Translation of Chapter Twenty-one 60

Notes of the Sanskrit Text of Chapter Twenty-two 64

Notes of the Translation of Chapter Twenty-two 66

Notes of the Sanskrit Text of Chapter Twenty-three 68

Notes of the Translation of Chapter Twenty-three 73

Notes of the Sanskrit Text of Chapter Twenty-four 79

Notes of the Translation of Chapter Twenty-four 86

Notes of the Sanskrit Text of Chapter Twenty-five 98

Notes of the Translation of Chapter Twenty-five 102

Notes of the Sanskrit Text of Chapter Twenty-six 124

Notes of the Translation of Chapter Twenty-six 131

Notes of the Sanskrit Text of Chapter Twenty-seven 149

Notes of the Translation of Chapter Twenty-seven 152

Notes of the Sanskrit Text of Chapter Twenty-eight 158

Notes of the Translation of Chapter Twenty-eight 167

Notes of the Sanskrit Text of Chapter Twenty-nine 172

Notes of the Translation of Chapter Twenty-nine 176

Notes of the Sanskrit Text of Chapter Thirty 201

Notes of the Translation of Chapter Thirty 214

Appendix I The Forty-seven Depositions of the Siddhakhaṇḍa 228
The Nyāsasūtra 228

Appendix II The Deposition of the Mālinī Alphabet according to Chapter Five of the Ambāmatasaṁhitā 232

Appendix III The Fifty Yoginīs of the Mālinī Alphabet 239

Appendix IV Comparative Chart of the Mālinī Order of the Alphabet 269

Appendix V The Assembly of Sounds 275
The Production of the Assembly of Sounds from the Meruprastāra 275

Appendix VI The Fifty Bhairavas of the Assembly of Sound 282

Appendix VII A Comparative Chart of the Contents of the Assembly of Sounds 313

Appendix VIII The Krama and its Worship 316

Appendix IX The Krama of the Śrīmatottara The Krama of Twenty-eight expounded in the commentary of the Śrīmatottara on the Saṁvartāsūtra 334

Appendix X The Worship of the Scripture 381

Diagrams

1. The Triangle of Sun, Moon and Fire 142
2. The Hexagram of the Krama of Twenty-seven 360

Figures

The Fifty Mālini Śaktis

1. Nādinī 239
2. Grasanī 240
3. Nivṛtti 240
4. Pratiṣṭhā 241
5. Vidyā 242
6. Śānti 242
7. Cāmuṇḍā 243
8. Priyadarśanī 243
9. Guhyaśakti 244
10. Nārāyaṇī 245
11. Mohanī 245
12. Prajñā 246
13. Vajriṇī 246
14. Kaṅkaṭā 247
15. Kapālinī 248
16. Śivā 248
17. Ghorā 249
18. Cchirvarā 250
19. Vāgeśī 250
20. Sarasvatī 251
21. Śikhivāhī 252
22. Bhīmā 252
23. Vāyuvegā 253
24. Lāmā 253
25. Vināyakī 254

26. Pūrṇimā 255
27. Jhaṅkārī 255
28. Kurdanī 256
29. Dīpinī 256
30. Jayantī 257
31. Kapālinī 257
32. Pāvanī 258
33. Icchāśakti 258
34. Ambikā 259
35. Paramātmā 259
36. Chagalī 260
37. Pūtanā 260
38. Amoṭī 261
39. Lambikā 261
40. Saṁhārī 262
41. Mahākālī 262
42. Kusumā 263
43. Śukrā Devī 264
44. Tārā 264
45. Jñānī 265
46. Kriyā 265
47. Gāyatrī 266
48. Sāvitrī 267
49. Dahanī 267
50. Phetkārī 268

The Fifty Bhairavas of Śabdarāśi

1. Śrīkaṇṭha 282
2. Ananta 283
3. Sūkṣmīśa 283
4. Trimūrti 284
5. Balīśa 285
6. Arghīśa 285
7. Bhūtīśa 286
8. Atithīśa 287
9. Sthāṇu 287
10. Hara 288
11. Jhaṇṭīśa 289
12. Bhūtīśa 289
13. Sadyojāta 290

14. Anugrahin 291
15. Krūra 291
16. Mahāsena 292
17. Krodhīśa 292
18. Rudra 293
19. Pracaṇḍa 294
20. Śiva 294
21. Ekapāda 295
22. Kūrma 295
23. Ekanetra 296
24. Caturānana 297
25. Ajita 297
26. Śarma 298
27. Someśa 298
28. Lāṅgalīśa 299
29. Dāruka 300
30. Ardhanārīśa 300
31. Umākānta 301
32. Āṣāḍhin 301
33. Daṇḍīśa 302
34. Dhātrīśa 302
35. Mīneśa 303
36. Meṣa 303
37. Lohita 304
38. Śikhīśa 305
39. Chagalaṇḍa 305
40. Dviraṇḍa 306
41. Mahākāla 306
42. Vālīśa 307
43. Bhujaṅga 307
44. Pinākīśa 308
45. Khaḍgīśa 308
46. Bakīśa 309
47. Śvetarudra 309
48. Bhṛgu 310
49. Lakulīśa 310
50. Saṁvartaka 311

Tables

1. A Comparative Table of the Mothers Governing the Classes of Letters and their Locations 45

2. Table of the Six Faces of Śabdarāśi 48
3. The Deities of the Limbs of the Assembly of Sounds 48
4. A Table of Triads 56
5. Table of Elements, Praṇavas, Wheels and States 63
6. Table of the Twelve Yoginīs of the Deposition of the Limbs of the Twelve Verses 95
7. The Three Signs according to the Ṭīkā 116
8. The Three Signs according to the Kulakaulinīmata 117
9. Table of Triads: The Encompassing Body of the Goddess 133
10. Table of the Contents of the Gurumaṇḍala 154
11. Table of Correspondences between Seats, Faces and Locations 167
12. Table of Correspondences between the Three Transmissions and Trika 168
13. Table of Correspondences of the Four Transmissions according to Chapter Twenty-eight 168
14. Kubjikā's Six Faces according to the Yogakhaṇḍa 193
15. Table of Five Goddesses of the Maṇḍala 223
16. Comparative Chart of the Mālinī Alphabet 269
17. A Table of the Letters, Bhairavas and Locations of the Assembly of Sounds 313
18. Table of the Six Yoginīs 342
19. Table of the Contents of the Four Sacred Seats of the Transmission of the Aged 349
20. Table of the Contents of the Five Jewels of the Transmission of the Aged 350
21. Table of Contents of the Hexad of Knowledge of the Transmission of the Aged 351
22. Table of the Five Pure Ones of the Transmission of the Aged 351
23. The First Group of Five Sacred Seats of the Middle Transmission 352
24. The Group of Six of the Middle Transmission 353
25. Table of the Contents of the Four Sacred Seats of the Transmission of the Youngest 354
26. Table of the Contents of the Five Jewels of the Transmission of the Youngest 355
27. Table of the Contents of the Five Jewels of the Transmission of the Youngest 356

28. Table of the Contents of the Group of Four of the Transmission of the Youngest 356
29. Table of the Eight Mothers 361
30. Table of the Krama in Relation to the Energies Leading to the End of the Twelve 363
31. Table of the Group of Four Sacred Seats (Pīṭhacatuṣka) 366
32. Table of the Five Pure Ones (Vimalapañcaka) 368
33. Table of the Hexad of Grace (Nugrahaṣaṭka) 370
34. Table of the Group of Four Siddhas (Siddhacatuṣka) 372
35. Table of the the Five Jewels (Ratnapañcaka) 373
36. Table of the Group of Four Mothers (Ambācatuṣka) 374
37. Table of the Group of Six Yoginīs 375
38. Table of the Octad of Kula 377
39. Table of the Last Eight Locations 380

NOTES OF THE SANSKRIT TEXT OF CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

1. घ्, छ्: श्रीवक्रोवाच २. घ्, च्, छ्: दिव्योघे
3. M → N. See above, note to 1/3a.
4. घ्, च्: –मार्गेण; AS: मेरुमार्गं च 5. AS: अन्वये चात्र देवता
6. घ्, छ्: –द्वय; all other MSs: –अन्वय
7. SamP and All MSs except झ्, ञ्: –ता; AS: निर्गमं पीठमप्यानं सिद्धाङ्गायुगभेदितम्
8. ग्: तष्णी; ङ्: देव; AS: –भूतं. M → N.
9. See above, note to 6/10b.
10. क्, ग्: चै; all other MSs except घ्, ङ्, च्, छ्, ज्: च
11. AS: गुहावासं वृक्षश्चैव * * * * 12. M → N. See above, note to 1/5d.
13. All MSs: अथा; AS: संकेतसिंहकं किञ्चिद्; SamP: अंवा. अथा is a frequent error for अव्वा. Many examples of this error are found in the colophons of this text.
14. घ्: –नि; AS: विद्यया गुहवासिनी
15. All MSs except ख्, घ्, छ्, ज्: गृह. M → N. See above, 3/49a.
16. The addition of a final anusvāra to the nouns and adjectives in the following passage has made all the masculine nouns neuter.
17. ङ्: –व; AS: भेदो मन्थानभैरव: 18. AS: श्रोत्रं
19. ख्, ङ्: –वाग्र; च्, ग्: मार्गं; ज्: –मार्ग
20. All MSs and SamP: प्रकल्पयेत्. This emendation agrees with the reading in the AS.
21. See above, note to 1/4a. 22. M → N. See above, note to 1/2c.
23. AS: आश्रम * * * * * (?) अविकारं तु कोङ्कणे
24. ङ्: + तिं; छ्: स्थितिर्व्रें; AS: शुद्धं स्थिति 25. AS: श्रीकामरूपके
26. ख्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: कीर्ति–; all other MSs and SamP: कीर्त्ति–; क्, छ्, ज्, झ्: –चिञ्चिणी–; AS: कीर्तिचिञ्चिनिवृक्षस्. See above, note to 6/10b.
27. AS: देवेशि 28. All MSs: कुलं क्रमं
29. IC. All MSs and the SamP agree on this reading. Cf. 17/55a.
30. ग्, घ्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: –त 31. AS: श्रीकौलिक उवाच
32. ख्, घ्, च्, छ्: –मार्ग; AS: मेरुमार्ग. M → N. IM 6. 33. AS: भेदं च
34. All MSs: अन्वय 35. AS: अन्वयोघा कथं भवेत्
36. AS: ॐकारं नाम किं पीठे 37. All MSs: सिद्धाश्चैव; AS: युष्मद्भेद:
38. AS: कथं भवेत् 39. ख्: गुहावास्यंतरं 40. AS: गुहावासं कथं तूष्णी
41. AS: वृक्षश्चैव कदम्बक: 42. AS: संकेतं सिंहकं गोत्रं
43. See above, note to 1/11c. 44. AS: विद्या किं गुहवासिनी
45. AS: गोत्रं अमरिका कीदृग् वाममार्गं कथं भवेत्।
46. ङ्: –य; घ्, च्, छ्: –यं; AS: आश्रमं
47. All MSs except घ्, छ्: प्रत्यये. See above, note to 1/4a.
48. AS: कोऽत्र 49. M → N. See above, note to 1/2c.
50. AS: कोङ्कणं च कथं भवेत् 51. ख्, घ्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: –शिला; all other MSs: शिलो–
52. All MSs: योनि; AS: किं तु ब्रह्मशिलाजन्म
53. क्, ङ्, छ्: निर्ग–; ज्: निर्गदस्वे 54. AS: स्थितं तत्र कथं भवेत्
55. IC. 56. All MSs: कीर्ति: 57. ङ्: कथं + च
58. All MSs: चिञ्चिणी; AS: कीर्तिचिञ्चिनिवृक्षं किं सागरं तु कथं भवेत्।
59. घ्, च्, छ्: सिद्धि 60. YKh (1): 61. छ्: –वक्रोवाच
62. M → N. See above, note to 1/5d. 63. IC.

64. See above, note to 1/11c. 65. छ्, ज्: षट्–

66. Missing in MSs घ् and छ्

67. Cf. 5/47a, 31/106c and 68/46a. See note to 3/22b.

68. ग्: भदे 69. M → N.

70. All MSs except ख्, घ्, च्, छ्: मेरुं. M → N.

71. The ending has been dropped for the metre. 72. ङ्: सा–

73. ग्, घ्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: –ट 74. घ्, ङ्, छ्: त्रयो–; ग्: त्रिभि–

75. Here, as usual, we notice the tendency to make neuter what would normally be masculine proper names, especially when listed together. Thus, I have emended चिंचि: accordingly. 76. All MSs: चिंचि:

77. ङ्: –द. M → N. See above, note to 3/46b.

78. ख्, ङ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –देवं 79. All MSs: सृष्टिं

80. ख्, घ्, च्: विकार–; छ्: विकाराज्ञा– 81. All MSs: स्थिता:

82. All MSs: एते–; झ्: विज्ञातमात्रास्तु; all other MSs: विज्ञान–

83. च्: व्यापिग्या. I take this to be a deviant stem derived from व्यापिनी. See above, 2/34d and note. 84. A locative would be better here.

85. ग्: तरङ्गानीर्; घ्, छ्, ज्: तरंगानिर्; all other MSs: तरंगानि 86. घ्, च्, छ्: –चन्द्रा

87. क्: कायेभ्यु; ग्, च्: कायेव्यु; ङ्: कायेकायपु

88. घ्, छ्: –स्त्वंगे, च्: –स्तंगे; all MSs except घ्: –स्तुंगै:– 89. All MSs: दीपिता:

90. घ्, छ्, ज्: –गा. M → N. 91. घ्, च्, छ्: ऋ *; all other MSs: ऋजु

92. क्, ग्, ङ्: दाडिमि– 93. घ्, छ्: दौ 94. क्, ग्, झ्: गुहकामायारूं

95. ख्, ङ्: ऋश्यते; all other MSs: दृश्यते

96. The noun qualified here needs to be supplied; perhaps आश्रमम् is meant.

97. घ्, च्, छ्: –तवा 98. ग्: –श्रमद्; घ्: गुहाम्रमा; छ्: गुहाम्रमाद्

99. All MSs except ख्, ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: शुद्ध:– 100. घ्, छ्, ज्: –द्या

101. घ्, छ्: इन्दुविन्दु–; all other MSs: इन्द्र–

102. ख्, ङ्: ख्यातौ; घ्, च्, छ्: –तो 103. There is a break in the syntax here which needs to be bridged by inserting ताभ्याम् or the like. All MSs except छ्: भुषितां

104. क्, ग्: संहारेकर्त्तारम्; ख्, ङ्: –संघारे–; घ्, च्, छ्: –संघात–; all other MSs: –कर्तारं.
See above, note to 2/12.

105. ग्: स्थित; घ्, ङ्, छ्: स्थित:; ज्: स्थिता; all other MSs: स्थितम्

106. All MSs: ब्रह्ममयं. The emendation agrees with the reading in the SamP.

107. ग्, झ्: विष्णु अयं; all other MSs: विष्णु: अयं 108. All MSs: रुद्रमहेश्वर:

109. घ्: –देवे *यो; छ्: –देव *यो 110. ग्, घ्, ङ्: ज्येष

111. All MSs: ॐकारमिति 112. क्: + तु सा 113. छ्: –मनुंगे

114. All MSs: सामुद्र–. 115. छ्, ज्: त्रिष्कोणायां। For the unusual feminine form त्रिकोणा cf. above, 16/72d. 116. The SamP adds: तत्र चौंकारनिर्गमा सिद्धान्वये प्रकीर्तिता which is 17/2cd. 117. This pāda is one syllable too long.

118. गुहावासिनी is apparently meant here. Cf. above, 17/3d.

119. क्: विनार। I take this to mean बिन्दुरूपेण

120. M → N. See above, note to 1/5d. 121. All MSs: मेरु:

122. क्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: –तां. This is a defective compound meaning: संज्ञा भेदतया स्थिता

123. ग्, च्, छ्, ज्: देवीं 124. क्, ङ्: –वीं; छ्: हर–ई; all other MSs: हरयी.
Although I have chosen to make an emendation, one could postulate that हरयी is a deviant derivation of the word हरा (→ हरया → हरयी).

125. F → N. 126. IC. 127. ख्, ङ्: –हाकं
128. क्, ग्, च्, ज्: अव्वा; Missing in MSs घ् and छ्. 129. च्: त्रय; घ्, छ्:
130. Missing in MSs घ् and छ.
131. घ्: रुद्वयत्रयसंस्थिता; छ्: अद्वयत्रयसंस्थिता; all other MSs except ख्: पञ्च स्वयं स्थिता
132. As elsewhere the root क्रीड् (1P) is treated as if it were ātmanepada.
133. घ्, छ्: भैरवे 134. All MSs except छ्: –ष्ठितं
135. घ्, छ्: –या 136. ङ्: सिहासमु– 137. ख्, ग्, च्: अवर–
138. क्, ग्: –विंव्यं; all other MSs except ख्, घ्, छ्, ज्: मह्य–
139. All MSs except ग्, ङ्: –षोडषस्वर–
140. M → N. See above, 3/49a.
141. SamP andAll MSs: सृष्टिमेवोक्तम्
142. SamP: कालसंभवं;। कला has been shortened to कल for the metre.
143. All MSs except घ्, छ्: अस्मि
144. क्, ङ्, झ्: अमरं त्वं; all other MSs: अवरत्वं. This emendation agrees with the reading in the SamP. 145. च्: प्रिये 146. IC.
147. N → M. 148. SamP: –संज्ञाया 149. ङ्: –त
150. All MSs: सा 151. ग्, ज्: प्रपुजयेत्
152. अमरत्वम् has been shortened to अमरत्व and followed by sandhi.
153. लम्बकनाम्ना विश्रुतम् would be better Sanskrit.
154. The form of this dative is that of masculine nouns stems ending in ‘i '. The regular form does not fit the metre.
155. तम्, or the like, needs to be added to complete the syntax.
156. ख्, ङ्: + त्सु; घ्, च्, छ्: पिवस्वम; ज्: पिवस्वम्
157. क्, ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: एषो 158. क्, ख्, ग्, ङ्, च्, ज्: मेरुमंदर–; छ्: मेरुमण्डर–
159. DS. See above, note to 6/153d. 160. छ्: वर्णावर्णंत–
161. ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: पूजा 162. ग्: वु–
163. ग्, ङ्, ज्: योगिनीं; all other MSs: योगिनी
164. Possibly what is meant here is: ये तत्र स्थिता ते विश्वमध्ये क्रमार्चनं प्रकुर्वन्ति
165. च्, छ्, ज्: परिलखितं; परिलिखितम् is the correct form.
166. IC. 167. M → N. See above, note to 1/4a.
168. All MSs except घ्, च्, छ्: रुद्र: 169. ख्: प्रत्यख्यं
170. छ्: समु * हतां
171. All MSs except घ्, छ्, ज्: मयाधिकारे. M → N. See above, note to 1/2c.
172. Possibly तत्र ह्यहमधोमुखी is meant here. Otherwise, one could perhaps emend to ह्यधोमुखम् which would be in concord with अधिकारम् (M → N). But this is less likely. The goddess is frequently said to be in the middle of the Triangle where she rests facing downwards. See, for example, 3/49d and 7/50ab.
173. ख्, ग्, ज्: –कोंकणवतारे; घ्: –रं; च्: कोंकणावतार। कोंकणावतारे is correct but makes the fifth syllable long. Moreover, the sixth syllable is short instead of long as it should be. 174. क्, ख्, ङ्: –कमलाव्व; घ्: कमलाम्वा
175. क्: –थ; छ्, ज्: सृष्त्यर्थं 176. घ्: जन्मस्थाने 177. ङ्: –य
178. घ्: चांक्तरु–; all other MSs: चांकुरु–; SamP: तत्रां वा कुरु देवता
179. SamP: स्मृता: 180. क्, ग्, ङ्: तच्छुवेत्; च्: तछवेत्; छ्: तच्छवेत्
181. All MSs except छ्, ज्: महेश्वर:
182.क्, ग्, झ्: स्थित्या–; all MSs: –म

183. क्: कीर्ति; all other MSs: कीर्ति:

184. All MSs except घ्, छ्: सिंचाख्य–

185. क्, ग्, घ्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: –नं. व्याप्तम् is the correct form. Cf. 18/14a. Note how the correct form appears in 18/13c followed by this deviant form in 18/14a demonstrating clearly how the latter is an alternative form which serves to gain an extra syllable for the metre.

186. All MSs except घ्, च्, छ्: मेरुं

187. All MSs except घ्, च्, छ्: रमती

188. तत्र, or the like, is required to complete the sense.

189. All MSs except ख्, घ्: सागरं

190. घ्, छ्: –सिद्धीत्य–. F → N.

191. छ्: मत्राणि; all MSs: –णि. M → N. 192. All MSs: योगन्धा

193. छ्: सह: 194. च्: तस्य 195. Missing in घ्.

196. च्: अहं था; all other MSs: अथाहं 197. क्: + हे

198. ख्, च्, छ्, ज्: विन्दति 199. See above, note to 3/12c.

200. क्, ङ्: स्वानू–; च्: –भव; छ्: स्वान्भवं. M → N. The addition of विद्यते, or the like, would improve the syntax.

201. The final vowel of the proper name क्लिन्ना, which is the first member of this compound, has been shortened for the metre. 202. क्: तस्यात्

203. क्: सिद्धीन्न्–; अदूरमस्ति is meant. 204. छ्: या

205. ङ्: रमत्स्य 206. ग्, ङ्: * धकोत्तम:

207. क्: मेचियर्ज्जतूनं; all other MSs: मेचियर्ज्जतून्. The root मुच् is 2P and 6U मुञ्चेत् would be correct.

208. This reading and the irregular concord is confirmed by the reading in the SamP. See above, note to 1/5b. 209. ग्, षाड 210. All MSs: ततोपलक्षितम्

211. The root कथ् is 10U and so कथयेत् would be correct.

212. Although the genitive may be used with verbs meaning ‘to speak of’ it is not normally used as the case of the person that is spoken to. See above, note to 5/62a. 213. छ्: –हीनं– 214. ज्: इत्या * वतार

215. क्: –ज्ञ 216. छ्: मेरुमार्ग * * * ते

217. ग्: + णक्ष; छ्: लक्षपा * धिके 218. छ्: –र 219. छ्: स्वामिनीमे *

220. घ्, छ्, ज्: अथा–; all other MSs except ख्: अंबा–

221. क्, ग्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: –वर्णान; घ्: –वर्णनु

NOTES OF THE TRANSLATION OF CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

1. The first part of this chapter, from verses two to seven, is the Santānasūtra. The rest of the chapter is dedicated to an explanation; it is set in the technical and symbolic language of the Kubjikā Tantras. The Santānasūtra is a list of sixteen 'conventions' (saṁketa), that is, topics, points of doctrine or brief teachings (numbered one to sixteen in the translation) concerning the lineage of the transmission, its nature, founder and the maṇḍala from which it originates. The latter is the triangular core of the Saṁvartāmaṇḍala, which is described in the Root Sūtra (see chapters 26, 38 and 42). Recited in the course of the ritual, the adept would memorize this and other similar sūtras to enable him to recall each point along with the explanation he received from his teacher. Presumably, in the course of time the explanation was set to writing and came to form the second half of this chapter.

The Saṁvartārthaprakāśa (fl. 6a-6b) reproduces most of this chapter and comments on it in its usual brief manner. Chapter 53 below consists of another, shorter, Santānasūtra, which is also called the Jñānasūtra. A few of the 'conventions' we find in this Santānasūtra are also found in that one. They are compared in the notes. There is a more substantial correspondence with chapter 22 of the Ambāmatasaṁhitā. The first fifteen odd verses that introduce the Santānasūtra are essentially the same in the KuKh and AS. KuKh 17/2-6 = AS 22/2cd-7ab and AS 22/12-16ab essentially (but not literally) in large part correspond to KuKh 17/8-12ab. These have been compared in the critical apparatus of the edition.

These verses are a list of sixteen 'conventions' and a series of questions concerning them. The rest of the chapter is a response to these questions. Thus the sixteen 'conventions' are the same in both texts; however, the explanations, although compatible, differ. According to the AS, the sixteen 'conventions' are taught in the Transmission of the Child (bālakrama). They are as many mantras or seed-syllables that should be deposited on the body to purify it as a preliminary to the worship of the Śrīkrama. The teacher projects them onto the body of the disciple as a part of his consecration (abhiṣeka). As usual, if this is done correctly and successfully, the disciple shakes and exhibits the other signs of attainment (pratyaya) that accompany the penetration of the energy of the deity into his body. Our text prefers to focus on aspects and parts of the maṇḍala and their formation as symbols of phases or states of emanation and levels of sonic consciousness. In order to understand the answers to the questions we must know this language of symbols. By now the reader who has read attentively will have absorbed much of this language and have a sense of its meaning. Even so, he will be assisted in the more obscure cases with brief 'translations'.

2. The SamP says:

These Bhairavas who are 'on the Path of Meru' – that is, on Kailāśa – are mountains. Thus these, the aforesaid Bhairavas are Śivas, the most excellent, well known everywhere in the Tantra. Kubjā's mountain is to the west of Kailāśa. One should know that the Western tradition is there.

athavā | merumārge kailāśe ete bhairavāḥ parvatasvarūpāḥ santi | tena te taduktabhairavāḥ [vā] śivās [śivā] tu varāḥ [varā] sarvatra tantre prasiddhāḥ | kailāśapaścime kubjācalas tatra paścimāmnāyatvaṁ veditavyam |

Kubjā's mountain may be the World of the Lineage – the Santānabhuvana described at the beginning of the KMT, ŚM and the ṢSS. The World of the Lineage is 'the Western Tradition said to be the House of the Moon. Those who know this should know that (it is located) on the western side of Meru in the western region of the earth, east of mount Gandhamādana.' (ṢSS 1/26cd-7) Schoterman comments: 'The location of Santānabhuvana corresponds to that of the Candraparvata [Mountain of the Moon] in the KMT (1/56d ff.), and the Candradvīpa (Island of the Moon) in the 47th chapter of the ṢSS: meru (KMT: meroḥ) paścimadigbhāge gandhmālyasamīpataḥ (KMT 1/59cd = ṢSS 47/106ab).' The ṢSS (1/29) adds that:

The (World of the) Lineage of the Cavity of Brahmā should be imagined to be within a triangle. It is the Saṁvartāmaṇḍala. The Mountain of the Moon (candraśilā) is located there. And this (the Mountain of the Moon) is (also) said to be the Cave of the Moon situated in the locus of emission (visargasthāna). It should be known to be the Sacred Seat of Yoga (yogapīṭha) (as) I have clearly explained. It is the foundation (ādhāra) of Suṣumṇā, (both) the End of the Twelve and what is located at the end of it. That is the divine maṇḍala, that people should worship and visualize. That is the best Wheel and, divine, it is where the universe is well established.

brahmarandhrasya santānaṁ bhāvagamyaṁ trikoṇagam |
saṁvartamaṇḍalaṁ tac ca tatra candraśilā sthitā |
sā ca candraguhā proktā visargasthānam āśritā |
yogapīṭhaṁ ca vijñeyaṁ kathitaṁ mayā sphuṭam ||
suṣumṇādhārabhūtaṁ tu dvādaśāntaṁ tadantagam [k, kh: -ntaṁ tadaṅgatam] |
etat tu [k, kh: tan] maṇḍalaṁ divyaṁ pūjyaṁ dhyeyaṁ tu [k, kh: ca] sannaraiḥ ||
etac cakravaraṁ divyaṁ [k, kh: devi] yatra viśvaṁ pratiṣṭhitam | ṢSS 1/29-31ab

In other words, Meru is the triangular core of the maṇḍala which, as the source of scriptures and the teachings, is the Seat of Yoga where they are worshipped. It is the 'foundation of Suṣumṇā' which is the Path of Meru through which the teachings pour down into manifestation.

3. SamP: The lineage (anvaya) there is the deity. The lineage is the school of the Divine Current (divyaughadarśana). The deities in the scripture of the Western tradition, Brahmā, Viṣṇu, and Maheśvara, reside there in the Siddhakrama.

anvayaṁ tatra devateti | anvayaṁ divyaughadarśanam | tatra paścimagranthe devatā brahmaviṣṇumaheśvarāḥ tatra siddhakrame sthitāḥ |

4. The participle nirgama- literally means 'going out', 'coming forth', 'departing from', 'setting out', 'coming out' and hence appearing, as a flower does when the bud blossoms. As a substantive it is what has gone, or come out emerged and appeared. In this case, the SamP explains that 'what has emerged and appeared' is the Āgama (nirgamam āgamaśāstram). However, further ahead (see 17/27) Sādākhya is said to be that which has come forth (nirgama) from the sacred seat of OM. Perhaps Mukundarāja had the term 'nigama' in mind. Although totally unknown to early Tantric literature, this became a common term for the Śākta Tantras from about the 14th century onwards. The earlier meaning of the term is, according to Monier-Williams: 'an insertion (especially of the name of a deity into a liturgical formula); the place or passage (especially of the Vedas) where a word occurs or the actual word quoted from such a passage; the Veda or the Vedic text; any work auxiliary to and explanatory of the Vedas; a sacred precept, the words of a god or holy man.'

5. AS 22/3ab: What has emerged is the imperishable sacred seat. It is the body of the Siddhas conjoined with the couple.

nirgamaṁ pīṭham avyayaṁ [-pyānaṁ] siddhāṅgaṁ [siddhāṅgā] yugmabheditam [yuga-] |

According to verse 17/26 below, there are only two Siddhas. One creates and the other destroys. Mukundarāja offers a different, generic explanation. He writes:

The Siddhas are the hosts of gods mentioned in the Manthānabhairavatantra who are Śiva's attendants (dūta). They are said to be fit to be a part of the lineage by virtue of the perfection (they have) attained in the lineage in order to counter the attendants of Yama (the Lord of Death).

siddhā manthānoktadevagaṇāḥ śivadūtās teṣām anvaye yamadūtanivāraṇārthe siddhatvalābhenānvayayogyatve [-tvaṁ] kathitāḥ [-tam] |

6. AS reads: tūṣṇībhūtaḥ – 'the Silent One'.

7. The SamP explains that:

The god is (called) Tūṣṇī (literally 'silent') because (he is a) Liṅga made of stone. He is Kubjakeśvara and the one who resides in the cave is Kubjikā, the mistress of the sacred seat and she also is a stone. She spoke to him (the god Tūṣṇī who is) Śrīnātha.

śilāliṅgatvāt tūṣṇī devaḥ kubjakeśvaras taṁ śrīnāthaṁ prati guhāvāsī [-vāsinī] kubjikā pīṭheśvarī sāpi śilāsvarūpā uvāceti śeṣaḥ |

Concerning Tūṣṇīnātha's cave dwelling, see above 3/1 and note. The Silent Nātha emulates the goddess who silently contemplates 'the energy of austerity and ecstatic celibacy' (above 6/3-4a) and where she induces her same 'state of flight' in others (ibid.).

8. Above in chapter four in the Mālinīstava the goddess is praised:
GLAUṀ! O mother of the Kadamba tree, (you who are) adorned with groves, gardens, mountains, bowers and caves!

The goddess is commonly associated with the Tamarind and, less often, with the Kadamba and Bilva. The SamP explains that:

There is a Kadamba tree there. One should understand by the word 'and' that there is also a Tamarind (ciñcinī) and a Bilva tree there as well. From the point of view of consciousness (these trees) are located in in the cave of the lotus of the Heart and other (inner centres). The Tree is the peak syllable made of the letters Ha and Sa.

tatra kadaṁbavṛkṣo 'asti | ciṁcinīvṛkṣam apy asti bilvaṁ vṛkṣam api ca śabdād grāhyam | vijñānapakṣe hṛtkamalaguhādiṣu sthitāni [sthitā] | vṛkṣaṁ hakāra-sakārakūṭam |

Concerning these three trees and their relationship to the Wheels in the body and states of consciousness see below 46/20-26.

9. The SamP comments: The sign of accomplishment in a Kaula lineage is like the bliss (one experiences) after having drunk (that sacrificial) substance (dravya) that is like nectar (i.e. wine). That (sign of accomplishment), such as dialogue with the host of tutelary deities, is the essence, that is, the excellence of travelling on that path.

anvaye pratyayaṁ sāram iti | amṛtopamaṁ dravyaṁ pītvā yathānandaḥ tathānvaye kaule sati pratyayaṁ tadadhidevagaṇasaṁbhaṣaṇādikaṁ sāraṁ tanmārgagamanotkṛṣṭam |
See above 17/38-39 and note.

10. The SamP says that: Koṅkaṇa is a particular country where there is complete authority and (the adept) can see (etc.) the deities of that Āgama (that is, the MBT).

koṁkaṇo deśaviśeṣaḥ | tatra sarvādhikāratā tadāgamadevatādarśanādikaṁ labhate |

Mukundarāja, the author of the SamP, was most probably a Newar. It is hard to say when he lived, but he was probably not very early. One wonders how much he actually knew about the worship Kubjikā in Koṅkaṇa. He says that she is worshipped in a cave in the form of a stone along with Tūṣṇīnātha who is represented by a Liṅga (see above, note 7). This seems quite possible. In the texts she is called the Goddess of the Stone – Śilādevī, perhaps a reflection of her outer form as it actual was. Unfortunately, the Portugese destroyed almost everything in the part of Koṅkaṇa they conquered in the 16th century. We have no way of knowing whether Kubjikā was a public deity there at any time.

11. The SamP explains that:

The Kulakrama is (a Kaula ritual) which includes the offering of lamps and the like. May the person who knows (this) in this way come to know (it more completely). This is the essence of the Kaula (teachings) that has emerged from the Kulakrama. He should recite this sūtra during the sacrifice. This is the intended sense. And having learned the sixteenfold convention, may he be a member of the lineage.

kulakramaś ca dīpayāgādikam | yaḥ puruṣa evaṁ jānāti jānīyāt | ayaṁ tu kaulikaṁ sāraṁ kulakramavinirgatam iti yāgavelāyām etat sūtraṁ pathed ity abhiprāyaḥ | ṣoḍaśātmakasaṁketaṁ jñātvā cānvayiko [cānviyiko] bhaved iti |

12. AS: How is Koṅkaṇa? The AS generally refers to Koṅkaṇa more often than the KuKh. Here the question 'what is authority?' is replaced by a question concerning Koṅkaṇa – the land where in the course of the development of her Tantras the goddess came to most clearly exercises her authority.

13. See above, note to 17/2.

14. The three Peaks are the corners of the Triangle of Meru. The three gods reside in the transmissions of the Siddhas in the three seats in the corners.

15. The subject appears to be the three gods, Brahmā, Viṣṇu and Rudra, who reside in the three Peak seed-syllables in the corner of the Triangle. They are related, presumably, to the three Transmissions. These are purified by projection into the body and identification with the three Principles Ātmā, Vidyā and Śiva that cover the entire range of Principles. The latter are well known and are routinely purified in Śaiva and Śākta rituals by rinsing the mouth (ācamana) three times. The Ṭīkā provides deeper parallels:

Thus the place (is triple as the place of) birth (i.e. the genitals), the heart and the head. That (group of places is the location of) the triple purification, (the transmissions of) the Child, the Middle One and the Eldest. It is the Triple Principle of Ātmā, Vidyā and Śiva. The most profound Lord resides there. That place is Śāmbhava, the omniscient Kulākula. That place is supreme and is (universal) pervasion. One should worship it with the flowers of the Command that are the unfolding of the outpouring of Śiva's energy.

tasmāj janmahṛdayaśirasthānam I tad eva triśuddhimayaṁ bālamadhyamajyeṣṭham [k kh: -jyeṣṭha] I tad eva tritattvamayam ātmā [k, kh: ātma] vidyā śivaś ca I tatra vartate atigahaneśvaraḥ I tat [kh: ta] sthānaṁ śāṁbhavaṁ sarvajñaṁ kulākulaṁ [k kh: -la] param [k kh: panam + I sa] I vyāptimayaṁ taṁ sthānam I ājñāpuṣpaiḥ [k. kh: -puṣpaḥ] śivaśaktyollāsavikāsaiḥ pūjayet I

16. The House of the Command of Kubjikā, the tree goddess Ciñcinī, is the Yoni.

17. See above note to 2/34cd-35ab. Taraṅginī is the normally the Transmental, not the Pervasive One – vyāpinī, and so I have translated 'vyāpinyā' (= vyāpinī) as an adjective rather than a proper name.

18. The Great Goddess is the syllable AIṀ, which is so powerful it is 'energized' by itself. Even so, the goddess's triangular limb is 'adorned by the three jewels' which are, I suppose, the syllables in the corner of her Triangle, namely, the 'Triple Peak': HRĪṀ ŚRĪṀ KLĪṀ (ṭīkā (MS K fl. 173a: trikūṭaṁ hriṁ kliṁ śrīṁ trikoṇam).

19. The Path is the Path of Meru, which descends along Suṣumṇā in the body from the lower corner of the Triangle in the End of the Twelve.

20. The 'secret maṇḍala' is the triangular Yoni where the goddess's 'hermitage' is located, that is, the lunar Point in the centre that flows with the nectar of her lunar energy.

21. According to the AS, the first deity of the lineage (anvayādyā) is as follows: Śakti, who is called Śivā, is at the beginning. She is the Inexplicable (anākhyā) who is Mind Beyond Mind. (Like) the risen sun, (she is) the Supreme Terrible One (Parā Bhimā) who goes by the name Vakrā.

ādau śaktiḥ (śakti) śivākhyātā anākhyā yā manonmanī I uditārkaḥ (-ko) parā (rarā) bhīmā vakrānāmena (cakra-) sā bhavet II AS 22/23

22. Concerning the two seasons, see above 14/121.

23. Cf. 14/21-22ab.

24. According to the ṢSS (42/65), the deity has seven faces. The first six faces are arranged along the axis of the body, that is, the central channel of Suṣumṇā. They correspond to the Six Wheels. The lowest face is that of the Yoginī Picu, who is said to have the form of a tortoise. This is possibly why the anus is called the Tortoise Machine (kūrmayantra – ṢSS 29/22, see below, note to 17/35-36ab). Thus Suṣumṇā that emerges out of it is called the Channel of the Tortoise.

In this verse the Tortoise Channel emerges out of the centre of the Triangle in the End of the Twelve and transports the Nectar produced there in the lunar Point. But in this case also the Tortoise Channel is Suṣumṇā as it is when it is associated with other centres in the subtle body. Thus according to the NT (7/3) the Tortoise – Kūrma – is one of the sixteen supports (ādhāra). It is located in the chest along with the Channel of the Tortoise, which is Susumṇā through which Kuṇḍalinī rises (see below 40/145). However, according to the ṢSS, the Support of the Tortoise (kūrmādhāra) is in the back of the mouth where the Yogi drinks the lunar nectar that drips from above. There we read:

The channel that is Śakti is located at the end of the uvula (lambaka). One should conjoin that (Śakti) to the end of it and pierce through it in the prescribed manner. One should conjoin the Vāḍavī energy in the Support of the Tortoise within the maṇḍala. That is said to be Śakti's Mouth in the most excellent and venerable Kubjimata. O fair lady, Mālinī (nādiphānta) is condensed by means of that division. (In this way) there is, without a doubt, the flight (of the liberated state).

ūrdhvaṁ [gh: ūrddha] nālā [gh: nālas] tu yā śaktir lambikānte [kh: śakti; k, kh: lambakāntaṁ] tu saṁsthitā [gh: -tāḥ] ||
tasyāgre yojayet tāṁ [k kh gh: taṁ] tu bhedayed upadeśataḥ [gh: -śitaḥ] |
maṇḍale [k, kh: -lā; gh: maṅgalā] vāḍavīśaktiṁ [k kh gh: -śaktiḥ] kūrmādhāre [kh: -ra] niyojayet ||
śaktivaktraṁ tad evoktaṁ śrīmatkubjimatottame [gh: śrīmatkuvjikāmatottame] | tenaivākuñcyate [gh: tenaivakucyate] bhede [kh: bhedena; gh: nyena] nādiphāntaṁ tu sundari ||
khagatir nātra [gh: khagati-] sandehas . . . . | ṢSS 10/144cd-147a

Commentary: Conjoin the upper Channel which is Śakti to the end of the uvula. Conjoin the energy, in the form of Fire, to the end of Energy from above that in the prescribed manner. When one repeats (the movement) above and below mutually then it is called Śakti's Mouth. By means of what? By means of that which begins with Na and ends with Pha, that is, Mālinī. Flight (is attained) by means of that Mouth of Śakti.
ūrdhvaṁ [k kh gh: ūrddhva] nālāṁ [k: -laṁ; kh: -lā; g gh: -la] śaktiṁ [k: śaktir-; kh: śaktiḥ; g gh: śakti] lambikānte [g: -nta; gh: -kāntaṁ] niyojayet || vahnirūpāṁ [k kh g gh: -pā] śaktiṁ [k kh g gh: śaktiḥ] śaktyante niyojayet || tasmād ūrdhvam upadeśataḥ [k: tasmādūrdhvādaśaḥ; kh: tasmāt | ūrddhvāt |; g gh: tasmād ūrddha-adadhaḥ] || adhordhvam iti [kh: adhaḥ adhaḥ ūrddham | iti; gh: adhādūrddha iti] parasparaṁ kriyate abhyāsaṁ tadā [k: tathā hi; g gh: tathāpi] śaktivaktram ucyate || kena || nādiphāntena mālinyā || tena śaktivaktreṇa

khegatiḥ ||

25. The KMT (10/120-128) describes how the letters line the sides of the goddess's Triangle. Forty-eight are distributed along the sides. The remaining two - the letters Ha and KṢa – are said to be two Siddhas in the middle of which is Kubjikā. In other words, the Two Siddhas are on the two sides of the Triangle of the goddess's Yoni. There they represent the two breaths and the polarities in general.

26. Concerning Oṁkāra, the first sacred seat, the AS teaches:

> The (first) sacred seat has come forth from (the deity's) will. It is born of mantra and in the midst of the Skyfarers. Contemplate its (reality) established in AIṀ and in the Endless, which is the Current (of the teachings) linked to Meru.

tasyecchānirgataṁ pīṭhaṁ manujaṁ (yānujaṁ) khagamadhyagam (khara-) ||
aiṁsthaṁ (estha) meruyutoghānaṁtasthaṁ tasya vicintayet | AS 22/25cd-26ab

27. As a comment the SamP inserts here: 17/2cd 'what has emerged is in the (sacred seat called) Oṁkāra and is said to be in the lineage of the Siddhas.'

28. Meru is a pyramid. Projected in two dimensions, it is a triangle with a point in the centre corresponding to its 'middle peak' i.e. the summit of the pyramid. Thus the goddess is at once on the peak of Meru and in the Void of the Cave in its very core. The Cave is where first the goddess, and then the god, attain the liberated Śāmbhava state of consciousness (see above 3/170). It is where the goddess practices 'austerity and ecstatic celibacy' (see 6/3). The goddess is herself the Ocean of the Yoni, the Triangle of energies that contains all the letters – śabdarāśi (see above, note on 14/64cd-66ab). Both the container and the contained, she is also within it and sustains it as the Point in the centre of the Triangle. The letters adorn her as would a garland. These energies are her divine qualities and so, as their foundation, she also transcends them, even as she 'wears' them.

29. The Tree in the centre is the seed-syllable of Navātman Bhairava – the Lord of the Tree. Its shade and roots fill the maṇḍala which is thus, by extension, also the Tree. The goddess in the AS teaches:

> O Bhairava, I will tell (you about) the Kadamba tree that is there in the middle. The Āmalaka (fruit) (i.e the Point) is in the scalpel (i.e Navātman) and above is the nondual plane. Having placed it in the City of the Moon, the Pure One (that is, the maṇḍala), which is the (fully) grown Kadambaka, venerated by all the gods, is always in the End of the Twelve.

tatra madhye kadambaṁ tu vṛkṣaṁ vakṣyāmi bhairava |
āmalako salakāyāṁ ūrdhvavarṇ advayaṁ padam ||
*vimalaṁ candrapuryasthaṁ (-purya ) kṛtvā vṛddhaṁ kadambakam |

dvādaśāntasthitaṁ nityaṁ sarvadevanamaskṛtam || AS 22/-29-30

30. The abode of the Ocean of Letters is the Yoni. It encompasses the syllable AIṀ in the centre which is the most important place and so is rightly called the Great Place, which is the very essence of the energy of the Yoni (see above 17/39). This is the Point in the centre. It is the 'foundation' encompassed by the Yoni. Like the hub of a wheel, it is its support. This is called the Lion and so is the Lion Seat (or Throne) upon which the goddess sits.

The AS explains what the Teaching of the Lion (siṁhasaṁketa) and the Vidyā Guhāvāsinī (the Goddess who Dwells in the Cave) as follows :

I will tell (you) about the teaching (saṁketa) of the Lion that has come out of the (Point) whose form is a ball. The form of Bhairava is in the Lotus of the Heart and his deity (the goddess) is next to him. The Lion's Roar has come forth from the middle of the Island (which is the Triangle in the centre of the maṇḍala) in many forms (or 'from Bahurūpa'). It is the first and supreme syllable of the Wheel of the Mad Elephant (Mattamātaṅga) (that is, the Point). [. . .] The Principle of the Self is Guhāvāsinī, the Parā Vidyā. She has come forth in many forms (or : 'as Bahurūpa'), as one and as many, of many kinds. She is the Yoni of all living beings and (extends) from the head up to the feet. (She is) the Vidyā who is said to be the goddess of the Wheel who shines within the Cave. Possessing Fire, she is in the Wheel of the Island (i.e. the Triangle), adorned with the Lord of Meru. (The reality) made of the seed of the Cave (that is the Triangle) has come forth there from the midst of the Water. Located in the middle of the Pure Wheel (the Point), the Moon melts.

siṁhasaṁketakaṁ vakṣye golākārād vinirgatam |
hṛtpadme bhairavākāraṁ utsaṅge tasya devatā ||
siṁhanādaṁ dvīpamadhyān nirgataṁ bahurūpataḥ |
mattamātaṅgacakrasya ādisthaṁ paramākṣaram || [. . .]
ātmātattvaṁ parā vidyā aṣṭadhā guhavāsinī |
nirgatā bahurūpeṇa ekānekam anekadhā ||
sā yoniḥ sarvabhūtānāṁ mūrdhnādicaraṇāvadhiḥ |
cakradevī smṛtā vidyā guhāmadhye virājate ||
dvīpacakre agniyutā merunāthavibhūṣitā (-taṁ) |
guhābījamayaṁ tatra toyamadhyād vinirgatam ||
viśuddhacakramadhyastho [-sthaṁ] galitaḥ kulacandramāḥ | AS 22/31-32, 34-37ab

31. We are told that the House is the City of the Moon (above 17/4), that is, the maṇḍala. So this answers Śrinātha's question concerning the latter.

32. This is Khecarīcakra located at the End of the Twelve.

33. According to the ṢSS the Tortoise Machine is the anus (see above, note to 17/23-25). This is the location of the Tortoise Seat on which one sits to worship the deity. It represents the cosmic tortoise – an incarnation of Viṣṇu – that served as the base on which the churning rod was fixed to churn the Milky Ocean. The well-known myth relates how the gods and demons churned the Ocean with the help of Viṣṇu's snake Ananta who served as the rope. In the context of the rich symbolism of the Kubjikā Tantras, this is the Ocean of Letters of the Yoni in the core of the Saṁvartāmaṇḍala. The Tortoise Seat is the fixed Point in the centre. The churning of this Ocean generates the waves of sonic energies and metaphysical principles that combine and flow together to form the flux of the stream of emanation and the Current of the Teachings (see below, 57/87cd-89).

Suṣumṇā threads through the centre of the maṇḍala like an axle through the hub of a wheel. The energy rising up through it as the Point of the Command energizes the maṇḍala and impels its rotatory motion – thus 'churning' the sonic energies within it, arousing them out of their potential state into activity. The centre thus abides immobile while the maṇḍala rotates around it, impelling the cyclic movement of Kuṇḍalinī, which is the inward breathing that rises and falls along the channel of Suṣumṇā.

Perhaps a practice is also meant here similar to the one described in chapter 29 of the ṢSS that leads to the attainment of the Vision of Form. Engaged in that at a certain stage:

One perceives yogis and those who have accomplished Yoga along with the (other) hosts that are in the Void (of consciousness) (vyoman). They are all in the form of Points (of light). They are visible in some places and in others they move (out of sight).

When the vital breath is in the Base of the Jar (ghaṭādhāra), fix the mind (citta) there. The Tortoise Machine (kūrmayantra) is said to be the anus. One should fix (the breath) there (also). (Thus) the Point becomes fixed. That is the vision of Form (rūpadarśana).

yogino yogasiddhā ye dṛśyante vyomagā gaṇāḥ [k: maṇāṁ] ||
bindurūpās tu te sarve kvacid dṛśyanti yānti ca |
ghaṭādhāragataṁ prāṇaṁ cittaṁ tatra sthiraṁ [k, kh:-taṁ] kuru ||
kūrmayantraṁ gudaṁ proktaṁ nirodhaṁ tatra kārayet |
sthiratā jāyate bindor etat [k, kh: viṁdur-] tad rūpadarśanam ||
ṢSS 29/20cd-21 (= KMT 19/57cd-58), 22

The commentary explains: 'The Base of the Jar' is the root of the throat. One should make the breath go there, that is, one should (hold the breath) without exhaling. One should then again fix the mind there itself. This is the upper place (sthāna). Again, the Tortoise Machine, which is a name for the location of the anus, is blocked in the lower portion. One should induce the process of contraction (saṁkocavṛtti) by the motion of the vital breath. Then the Point, which consists of multifarious manifestations (nānābhāsa), becomes fixed (sthira). It is fixed down below.

ghaṭādhāraṁ kaṇṭhamūlam || tatra gataṁ prāṇaṁ kārayet || nocchvased ity arthaḥ || cittaṁ punas tatraiva sthiraṁ kāryam iti ūrdhvasthānam || adhobhāge punaḥ kūrmayantrasya gudasthānanāmno [k, kh: -nāmnaḥ] nirodham || saṁkocavṛttiḥ prāṇagatyā kāryā || tadā bindurūpaṁ nānāvabhāsamayaṁ [k: nānābhāsamayaṁ] sthiraṁ bhavati || bindor adhaḥ [k: viṁvadhaḥ; kh: vindvadhaḥ] sthiratā [k, kh: sthirāḥ] jāyate [k, kh: jñāyante] ||

(This) Point is one hundred-thousandth part (of a drop of water) and it sustains the entire universe. O Pārvatī, it becomes clearly manifest (sphuṭa) by means of the Yoga of constant practice. When the vital breath is within the Base of the Jar, one should squeeze it with the Tortoise Machine. One should not exhale for a month. What the Lord says is true!

(Both) beyond the energies and within the energies, (the Point) is the abode whose nature blazes with (the energy of) the Command. Knowledge without end of all things, it reveals the unfailing Command. O fair lady, the gross form is visible everywhere.

lakṣāṁśena [k, kh: śaṁ tu] bhaved bindor bibharti sakalaṁ jagat |
satatābhyāsayogena sphuṭaṁ bhavati pārvati ||
ghaṭādhāragataṁ prāṇaṁ kūrmayantreṇa pīḍayet |
nocchvased māsam ekaṁ tu tathyam īśānabhāṣitam ||
kalātītaṁ [k, kh: -bījaṁ] kalāntastham ājñārūpojjvalaṁ puram |
anantasakalajñānam amoghājñāprakāśakam ||
sthūlarūpaṁ varārohe sarvatraiva pradṛśyate |
ṢSS 29/23-26ab (24 = KMT 19/58cd-59ab and 26ab = KMT 19/70ab)

Commentary: It is one hundred-thousandth part. Of what? Of a drop of water. As such, it is extremely subtle and ‘sustains', in the sense of filling and pervading, the entire universe. This is its power (sāmarthya) and this is a description of its vitality (vīrya). (Next comes) an exposition of the particular qualities of (the Point), which is such (as has been described). (It is) ‘beyond the energies', that is, without parts (and also) ‘within the energies', that is, it pervades the manifestation of parts. It ‘blazes with (the energy of) the Command', that is, it is made manifest by the power of knowledge (jñānaśakti). The conscious nature without end (which is both) supreme and (also) all things (sakala), it reveals the Command and is perceived everywhere by practice. This is the Northern Path, that is, the path of the entry (of the breath), because it is emanation. Thus it is of Bhairava's nature and gives rise to Bhairava's state.

iti lakṣāṁśena śatasahasrabhāgena || kasya || bindor jalakaṇasya bhavet saṁtiṣṭhed ity arthaḥ || tādṛgbhūtaḥ sūkṣmātisūkṣmo [k, kh: -kṣmaḥ] bibharti sakalaṁ jagad iti bibharti pūrayati [ṭīkā: + vyāpayati] sakalaṁ jagat niḥśeṣaṁ viśvam iti sāmarthyaṁ yasya || iti vīravyāvarṇanam [k:-varṇaṁ] || tādṛgvidhasya viśeṣaṇaṁ kathyate || *kalātītaṁ niraṁśaṁ [kh: * raṁśaṁ] kalāntastham aṅgāvabhāsavyāpakaṁ tathā ājñārūpojjvalaṁ jñānaśaktyāvabhāsitam* || anantaṁ [k: anantaraṁ] paraṁ sakalaṁ [k: sakala] cidrūpaṁ ājñāprakāśakaṁ sarvatra dṛśyate abhyāsavaśāt || iti uttaraṁ mārgaṁ praveśamārgam ity arthaḥ sṛṣṭitvāt || ata eva bhairavarūpeṇa [k, kh: -rūpatvaṁ] bhairavatvaṁ [k, kh: -tve] karoti ||

We recall that the yogi also contemplates the goddess Raudrī in the body by blocking the anus (see above 13/121).

34. The SamP reads: kaulikaṁ kālasaṁbhavam that is: '(the act of churning) is the Kaulika arising of Time'. Possibly this is a reference to the Poison of Time (kālakūṭa) produced when the gods and demons churned the Milky Ocean. The myth is well known and is a common metaphor. See Dyczkowski 1992: 62.

35. Suṣumṇā is the center; see below 26/10

36. The Five Jewels are a series of five mantras dedicated to the Yoginīs in the five spheres of the world. See below 44/32 and chapter sixty-two. It is also a name for the Five Praṇavas, which is what is meant here (see below 19/88-89). The goddess's clan is the series of sonic energies of the alphabet (see note to 1/2a above). The Five Praṇavas encapsulate them all both collectively and individually.

37. The clan is that of the goddess Amarikā (17/4). Like many other names that become popular in the later sources, Amarikā – the 'Little Immortal One' is unknown to the KMT. Even though also not common in the later sources, it is important enough that her tradition is called 'the Clan of Amarikā' (amarikāgotra). The fifty letters in the Yoni are the teachers of this spiritual clan. It is normally linked to the Five Jewels, (see 24/107cd-108ab and 62/61). As the AS (22/4ab) says: 'The Clan has come from Amarikā with the group of five seed-syllables (gotraṁ amarikāyātaṁ pañcakaṁ bījarūpakam).' The CMSS explains why their presence is essential:

O goddess, the Yoni is said to be the Cave of the Goddess. In this way, I have explained the Cave to you, O fair-faced (god). The word 'go' (denotes) the divine nectar that comes from the Five Jewels. O great goddess, there in the middle is the most excellent Clan of Amarikā.

bhagaṁ tu kathitaṁ devi guhā devyā udāhṛtā [all MSs: mudāhṛtam] ||
evaṁ tu kathitā [all MSs: kathitaṁ] tubhyaṁ guhā caiva varānane |
gośabdam amṛtaṁ divyaṁ pañcaratnasamudbhavam ||
tatra madhye [gh: missing] mahādevi amarikāgotram uttamam | CMSS 7/16cd-18ab

Filled with this divine nectar, the letters form powerful, blissful mantras. Thus the CMSS (9/121cd) enjoins: 'Extract these excellent and divine mantras in the Clan of Amarikā (ete mantravarā divyā amarikāgotre uddharet).'

38. In their own cryptic way, these verse explain why the clan of the goddess Amarikā is 'on the Path of the Left' (cf. above 17/4cd). Full of the letters of her Clan dripping with the goddess's divine nectar, the Yoni is in the End of the Twelve. She is on the left side of the god and so the nectar that flows from there down into the inner centre called Lambaka – in the the uvula at the back of the throat – flows along the 'Path of the Left' (vāmamārga). It is the 'Nectar of the Left' (vāmāmṛta), which is the most excellent inner form of the Kaula sacrificial substance. The Kaula Yogi who drinks the nectar of the Yoni in this way is engaged in the Practice of the Left through which he achieves immortality. Thus the SaṁP (top of fl. 6b) says: just as (the goddess) is on the left side, one must worship by means of the Practice of the Left (yathā vāmabhāge sthitā yā sā vāmācāreṇa pūjayet).

In the following reference from the AS, the word 'lambaka' is implicitly derived from 'ālambana' – 'support'. This 'support' is the maṇḍala, that is, the Yoni which is the City of the Moon, the Western House of the goddess Kubjikā. The Original Form (bimba) of the deity is there. Sight and worship of this Yoni, which contains all the teachings and from which they proceed, brings about the penetration of the Command.

The support (ālambana) is the Kaulika tradition in the first House, which is Candrapura. The Command that has come forth from the Great Original Form is spontaneously present there. The lineage of the House is twofold – the Kula clan (gotra) and (the Kula) family. He who knows it at the end of (this) Age is in the Western House. Otherwise one should not bow to one who does not know it. If one does not bow to the Yoni, the Command is taken away. Purification takes place by means of (the application of) the hundred energies (mātrā) (of the letters in the Yoni) – thereafter the Command functions. Penetration (by the Command) sent (by the deity), shaking, (yogic) sleep, and rolling (inebriation) are the signs of attainment; (thus even) great fear certainly ceases.

ālambaṁ (ālaṁva) kaulikāmnāyaṁ ādau candrapure (caṁdre-) gṛhe ||

nihitājñā svayaṁ tatra mahābimbād vinirgatā I kulaṁ gotraṁ ca santānaṁ gṛhāmnāyam iti dvidhā II yo jānāti yugasyānte sa bhavet (bhave) paścime gṛhe I anyathā yo na jānāti praṇāmaṁ naiva kārayet II praṇāmaṁ (-ma) na kṛtaṁ (kṛta) bhage (bhagaṁ) ājñāyā (ājñāṁ tu) haraṇaṁ bhavet I mātrāśatena saṁśuddhis tadājñā saṁpravartate II preśanāveśanaṁ (-nā) kampaṁ (kaṁpa) nidrā ghūrmis tu pratyayāḥ (-yaḥ) I AS 22/7cd-11ab

39. Cf. 17/33. The Great Place is the energy which is the Ocean of the energies of the letters. See 24/40-42ab

40. According to the AS: The light of the Moon that shines in the Void within the head is the Hermitage which is the sign of accomplishment. He who deposits it within oneness is penetrated (by the energy of the Command) at the end of oneness.

khe mūrdhni kṛtacandrābhaṁ āśramaṁ (āśrama) pratyayātmikam II advaitānte nyased yas tu tasyāveśaṁ pravartate I AS 22/43cd-44ab

41. Concerning the Mountain of Jewels, see note 75 to 13/96. Regarding varṇa (= svara) and avarṇa (= asvara) see intro. vol. 1, p. 359 ff..

42. The letter in the centre of the Mountain, i.e. the triangle in the middle of the maṇḍala, is AIṀ. See 3/13-14ab.

43. The 'full sacred seat' is in once sense the goddess's maṇḍala, which is replete with all the sacred seats and so full and complete. In another sense it is the sacred seat of Koṅkaṇa, which is not just one seat amongst the others. Rather it is the seat that contains them all. There in the centre of Koṅkaṇa, the full and sacred maṇḍala, the goddess as the triangular syllable AIṀ 'faces downwards'. Cf. 3/49d and 7/50ab.

44. Cf. 3/49d and 7/50ab.

45. The MBT repeatedly extols the Deccan in general, and Koṅkaṇa in particular, as the land where the goddess descended into the world and established her seat of authority. From here the power of her Command radiates out through the rest of the subcontinent, just as the energy of Kuṇḍalinī in the base of the spine radiates throughout the body. Thus, as the AS (22/46ab) declares: 'Koṅkaṇa in the Root Wheel (kandacakra) is said to be authority (koṅkaṇaṁ kandacakre tu adhikāraḥ prakīrtitaḥ).' The following lines tell us that there is a lotus here, and so the the goddess is the Mother of the Lotus who gives birth to her sacred universe.

46. Brahmā, who presides over creation, is present at the two extremities of the Channel of Suṣumṇā. One is the Cavity of Brahmā on the crown of the head; the other is the Place of Brahmā at the base of the spine (see 3/103 and note). Enclosed in a blooming lotus, it is the Yoni (17/11) in the centre of the goddess's maṇḍala, the Triangle of Meru full of the energies of the letters, which is here called the Stone (see above, 3/1 ff and 3/32). Like a sprout emerging from a seed, the goddess Kuṇḍalinī emerges from the Point in the middle of the maṇḍala and pervades it with her energy (see 3/119 and intro. vol. 1, P. 39-40 and 224-225). She is, in a sense, born there and so it is called Brahmā's Stone of Birth. Rising from here, the yogi attains every accomplishment (siddhi) of which the Stone of Birth is thus the source and embodiment (17/5).

47. Presumably, the Root of the Bulb is that of the Lotus in the Place of Birth. This is, I suppose, the Point that secretes its blissful, seminal fluid into the Yoni of the goddess who is aroused to receive it. Abiding there in the lower genital center, it is the Hermitage and maṇḍala of the goddess, which is appropriately called Passion – Kāmākhya. Here the yogi experiences the firm, unwavering state of his consciousness. Thus the AS (22/51cd) declares: 'Stability (sthiti), which is consciousness (bodha), is said to be within Kāmarūpa (kāmarūpe (-rūpa) sthitiḥ proktā ākhyātā bodharūpiṇī).' The adept who maintains his consciousness there, without falling into the grip of the disturbing fluctuations of desire, finds stability there where others are disturbed. Thus the SamP says: 'Stability is the abiding that those who reside there make and which they attain. And Kāmarūpaka ('in the form of passion') is the one place of that state (sthitis tatsthalavāsibhir yathā sthitiṁ [sthiti] kṛtvā tathā gatāḥ | kāmarūpakaś ca taddeśaikasthalaḥ).'

48. Literally: 'I will make fame in the (tree) called the tamarind.' In one respect, 'Fame' is the quality a being acquires by the grace of the deity by virtue of which the spiritual power received in this way is well known and praised in the world. In another deeper sense it is the energy of the goddess, which is embodied in her sacred syllable AIṀ – symbolized by the tamarind tree. The following passage from the AS describes how this energy is aroused by reciting the goddess's syllable and projecting it into the body.

Pierce the supreme syllable which is the seat (āsana) of (the goddess's maṇḍala called) the Wheel of the Mad Sweeper with (the Point, anusvāra, which is the letter) at the end of the Individual Soul (pudgala). (The energy) that moves within the modality (prakāra) in the Root should pierce the complete group of five sacred seats by means of the Point. (This is the) Vidyā of one syllable (AIṀ) which is Fame that is praised in (all the) universe.

One should deposit it in the locations of the doors in all the Lion transmissions (of the Kaula traditions). (It should be deposited) in the door of the anus in one's own form (svākāra) at the end of the letter Ma . . . in the door of the mouth and in the two ears and the eyes. One should recollect Fame of ten kinds (thus) collectively. Abiding there as Space, (she is) Bhagamālinī. Having repeated it ten million (ayuta) times, he is successful just by means of the deposition. . . . there are (seen) the signs of attainment. Otherwise, (just) by recollecting (it), (one attains) success (siddhi) and penetration (āveśa) takes place repeatedly. If this happens in the disciple, it generates his (spiritual) wealth in that City of the Moon at night (within Māyā) like the shore of the Ocean (of infinite energy) (from which one plunges into it).

(Thus) the Great Sound is withdrawn (into Silence), and the accomplishment (siddhi) which is said to be Ciñcinī unfolds, if the body has been opened out by consciousness. Having (thus) performed (the disciple's) consecration with the Vidyā, the surface of the earth shakes. (This is) the Fame in the Tamarind Tree that has been brought down into the Principle of the Vidyā. He who knows (this), the Western Tradition, is a hero who destroys the fetters.

mattamātaṅgacakrasya [-vaktrasya] hy āsanaṁ paramākṣaram |
vedhayet pudgalāntena prakārāntaracāriṇī [prakārāṁtaṁ-] ||
*khaṇḍe * bindunā pūrṇaṁ (?) vedhayet [-yat] pīṭhapañcakam* |
ekādaśākṣarī vidyā kīrtibhūtā jagatstutā ||
siṁhakrameṣu sarveṣu dvārasthāneṣu vinyaset |
*gudadvāre svakāre ca makārānte tu * * * (?)* ||
*mukhadvāre * * * * (?) karṇadvāradvayoḥ punaḥ* |
siṁhakrameṣu sarveṣu dvārasthāneṣu vinyaset |
*gudadvāre svakāre ca makārānte tu * * * (?)* ||
*mukhadvāre * * * * (?) karṇadvāradvayoḥ punaḥ* |
locanāś ca samāsena kīrtiṁ daśavidhāṁ [-dhā] smaret ||
saṁsthitā vyomarūpeṇa tatrasthā bhagamālinī |
japitvāyutam [-mutam] ekaṁ tu siddhyate nyāsamātrataḥ [-kaḥ] ||
 * * * * * * (?) nya vartante pratyayāni ca* |
athavā smaraṇāt siddhir āveśaś ca muhurmuhuḥ ||
yadā pravartate śiṣye karoty evāsya [karty eṣāmasya] saṁpadaḥ |
tasmin candrapure rātrau velā iva mahodadheḥ ||
saṁhṛtaṁ (?) ca mahārāvaṁ sā [sa] ca (?) siddhir vikāsinī |
ciñcinī kathitā [-taṁ] dehaṁ caitanyonmīlitaṁ yadā ||
tasya vidyābhiṣekaṁ tu kṛtvā kampati bhūtalam [-le] |
kīrtiś [kīrttiṁ] ciñcinivṛkṣe tu vidyātattve 'vatāritā [-taṁ] ||
yo vetti paścimāmnāyaṁ [-ya] sa śuraḥ pāśaho [-hā] bhavet | AS 22/52-61ab

49. The SamP says: The tamarind (ciñciṇī) is a particular kind of astringent fruit. One should imagine that fame is there (to be magically obtained from it).

ciñcinir [ciṁcini] amlaphalaviśeṣaḥ | tatra kīrtiḥ [kīrti] kalapanīyā |

It appears that Mukunda did not actually know what the Tamirind Tree symbolizes in the Kubjikā Tantras. The goddess resides in this tree and so she has the same name. This is the Tree in the centre of the maṇḍala – the triangular Meru. This Tree is the goddess's seed-syllable. She pervades it and from there radiates out into the rest of the Triangle. The 'fame' of the tamarind is due to the presence of the goddess within it. It is, in other words, the energy of the goddess in her seed-syllable. The tamarind is in the City of the Moon. The first Siddha is said to have bent it with his power and so acquired fame.

50. The SamP explains that: The Ocean (in this case) is the Ocean of Words. There (one will find) accomplishment. (One attains) success by the study of the śāstra.

sāgaraḥ śabdasāgaraḥ | tatra siddhir [siddho] bhavet | śāstrādhyayanena siddhir [siddho] bhavati |

The Ocean is the Point, the Great Place, the Unbroken Maṇḍala of the Point encompassed by Meru (17/39) which, in the centre of the Triangle – here called the Heart – is at its apex and hence beyond it (24/41). See 14/64cd-66ab and notes; also 2/34cd-5ab and 65/10ff.

51. The Body of Kula is made of the energies of the letters. See note to 2/32 above.

52. The maṇḍala of Nityaklinnā is the Yoni.

NOTES OF THE SANSKRIT TEXT OF CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

1. क्: किञ्चिन्च्; all MSs: –चोद्यमहं 2. ज्: वुद्धिकौ *? ल्य–

3. ग्: वसस; घ्, छ्: वसते, ङ्, च्: वसनते 4. All MSs: विज्ञानभूयिष्ठे

5. Missing in MS क् 6. M → N. See above, note to 1/7d.

7. घ्, च्, छ्: मूल 8. छ्: किं न्वयं; other MSs: किन्वयं

9. All MSs: संज्ञाभेदा–. Interrogative pronouns need to be supplied throughout this and the next line. 10. घ्: –णा 11. ग्, छ्: कुल

12. ग्: न्यानि; other MSs: न्यासानि 13. घ्: न्यष्टव्यं; IM 5. 14. ङ्: योग–. M → N.

15. The final vowel of धारणा has been shortened for the metre.

16. All MSs: –विद्या 17. All MSs: आज्ञा 18. IM 5.

19. छ्: श्रीवक्रोवाच 20. घ्: येन्मे; छ्: जन्म

21. क्, ङ्: बहुर्भेदे–; ग्, घ्, छ्: –दैतत्सर्व्वं ख्, च्: –भेदै–; ज्: वहुर्भेदै–

22. छ्: प्रभो वैश्व 23. ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: –णी 24. घ्: –रः

25. All MSs: स्थितः 26. घ्: –गै; छ्: –गैर्

27. व्याप्य would be correct. The direct object, त्वम्, should be supplied.

28. छ्: मंगुलो 29. ग्, घ्, ङ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –न्ध

30. The ending has been dropped for the metre.

31. क्, ख्, ग्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: –लः 32. All MSs: प्रबुद्ध–

33. All MSs: प्रबोधन्ते। The subject is missing. Perhaps a part of the text has been lost. 34. All MSs: पुनर्भवेत् 35. छ्: –कतृत्वं

36. All MSs: कुरुतेच्छया IM 5. 37. All MSs: ह्यहं

38. Missing in MS ग्; all other MSs: प्रेरितं

39. क्: पश्येत्; ख्, ज्: पश्येसे; ग्: पशेस; घ्, ङ्, छ्: पशेसे 40. ग्, ज्: –ह

41. तुत्यं. The dative has replaced the genitive to make the seventh syllable long. See above, note to 10/47d. 42. ग्, छ्: –ष

43. ख्, ङ्: भुवनीतिकं; ग्: भुवनातिकं 44. See 17/48c and note.

45. ङ्: –जाले * 46. All MSs: मोहितः

47. See above, note to 7/47a. 48. ग्: –स्त्राण्येनेकानि घ्, छ्, ज्: सर्वे–. Genitives are required here, not nominatives. See above, note to 10/47d. 49. ङ्: चिन्तिता

50 M → N. 51. See above, note to 3/12c.

52. क्, ख्, घ्, ङ्, च्: सर्वांगमनु–; ग्, छ्, ज्: सर्व्वंग–. In making this emendation, I presume that an ‘m' has been inserted between the last two members of this compound to maintain the metre. See above, note to 3/21b.

53. क्: विचरते त. See above, note 3/140d. 54. छ्: सर्व्वा

55. क्: न्यस्तं–; न्यस्तमात्रेण would be correct but too short for the metre.

56. छ्: –वक्रो वाच 57. See above, note to 6/1a.

58. All MSs: –तिः 59. ग्, छ्, ज्: विनिः– 60. क्: –नीं

61. ग्: –घोरिकाष्ठकं; all other MSs except छ् and ज्: –घोरिकोष्ठकं

62. All MSs: सिद्धाङ्गं– 63. All MSs: विद्या वै 64. M → N.

65. M → N. See above, note to 7/12d.

66. See above, note to 6/1a. 67. All MSs: पश्चाय

68. All MSs: मालिन्यादिसु M → N. See above, note to 6/115c.

69. क्: कृत्वो 70. A genitive is required here. See above, note to 10/47d.

71. The ending of एकाग्रेण has been dropped to accomodated the metre. Cf.
18/78d and 19/77b. 72. All MSs: रावस्याध– 73. क्, ग्: –न
74. SamP and all MSs except क्, झ्: स्या च 75. छ्: –योनश्च
76. घ्, च्, छ्: –र 77. विलोमाच्छिरोमालिका would be correct but makes the fifth syllable long. शिरस् is treated as a thematic noun regularly throughout the following passage. Cf. 10/25d and 15/19a.
78. ङ्: अद्य 79. छ्: –ध्वजास्याधौ 80. छ्: लोचनो
81. क्, ग्: पा * शिरं; A dual number is required here. See above, note to 5/46d. 82. See above, note to 5/64d. 83. छ्: द्वां वेतो
84. क्: कर्णा–; all other MSs except झ्: कर्णयोन्– 85. घ्, च्, छ्: –भ्या
86. ङ्: –त; SamP and all other MSs except झ्: –ता
87. ङ्: उ – ऊ–; घ्, च्: इ –उ–; all other MSs: इ –ऊमध्ये
88. ख्, घ्, ङ्, च्, छ्: विसर्गान्तपि; ग्, ज्: विसर्गान्तयि
89. SamP: क्, ख्, ग्, च्, छ्, ज्: –धो; झ्: –धौ; ङ्: –धे 90. SamP: सृष्टि–
91. This is a contraction of हनुमाननुज–. A dual number is required. See above, note to 5/46d. 92. घ्, च्, छ्: –कालिका 93. All MSs: कर्णिकया
94. आद्यस्वर– would be the regular order.
95. छ्: वागीश्वरी; SamP and all other MSs: वागेश्वरी 96. छ्: न्यसे
97. The anusvāra required here would make the fifth syllable long.
98. All MSs: ल्हान्त–। स्कन्धयोरुभयोः, the correct sandhi, is one syllable too long. 99. ग्, घ्: एठा–; ङ्: द्रठा–; छ्, ज्: डठासनौ. N → M. 100. क्: युं
101. IM 5. 102. क्: –न्तो; all other MSs except ख्, ङ्, छ्, ज्:
कुर्यान् 103. All MSs: गौर्याधः–; SamP: गोर्याध–
104. घ्, छ्: वस्त * ल–; SamP and all other MSs: वस्त–. A locative is required here. 105. SamP: पुंगलस्य 106. All MSs: ज आंतं च इमातं
107. All MSs: हस्तांगुल्यो–; घ्, ङ्, छ्: –ग्रमु; ग्, ज्: –ग्रम; all other MSs: –ग्रमे;
SamP: –ग्रम 108. छ्, ज्: वामहस्तं –
109. ख्, ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: इय–; ङ्: इ * मध्य– 110. ज्: संपूर्णणं
111. SamP: –धिस्थितम् 112. ग्, ङ्: –निमकं; SamP and all other MSs:
निधामकम् 113. SamP: क्, ग्, घ्, च्: –चोर्द्ध; छ्: चोद्ध
114. ज्: –भवेन; SamP: रजोद्भवेन 115. Here, as throughout the text वर्ण– (M) is treated as neuter. 116. All MSs: प्राणेति
117. SamP: ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: तस्यात् 118. घ्: मानसनंगाग्यं; च्: मानसमंगाह्यं; छ्, ज्: मानमनंगाग्यं;
all other MSs: मानमनङ्गांग्यं; SamP: मानंमनङ्गाग्यं
119. SamP and all MSs: सयां 120. SamP: ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: तगं
121. ख्, घ्, ङ्, च्, छ्: शान्तं 122. छ्: दक्षिणात्तरतत्तस्या
123. SamP and all MSs: वान्तग 124. IC. A locative is required here.
125. See above, note to 2/22b. The same form occurs, for example, below in18/43b and 18/44d.
126. क्, ग्: साधासाद्या; ख्: साध्यासाध्यौ; घ्, च्, छ्: –व्यो, ङ्, ज्: साध्यासाध्यो; छ्: साधासाव्यो; all other MSs: –साध्या; SamP: साध्यसाध्यो 127. ग्: –रान्तां 128. IM 6 + 7.
129. SamP and all MSs except क्, झ्: कंभकं
130. SamP and all MSs: नाभि–
131. द्व्यभ्यस्तम् would be correct. Cf. 18/41b and see note to 1/2d.
132. घ्: च; SamP and all other MSs: व

133. क्: –थ; घ्, च्, छ्: षचा–; SamP: पवां–
134. क्: तु; SamP: –गान्तगं 135. क्, ग्, झ्: शुक्लेदं; ङ्: –द. M → N. See above, note to 3/12c. 136. क्: –न्यासं. Cf. 18/41c and see note to 1/2d. 137. घ्, छ्: स्फि * वुभौ; च्: * * स्थितावुभौ। उभौ replaces द्वौ
138. ख्: रावणं; SamP and all other MSs: रावणां
139. SamP: क्, ग्: –गृह्ये. See above, note to 5/64d.
140. SamP and all MSs: –ज्जातुकौ
141. छ्: पुद्गलान्तांतगौ; ज्: पुड्गलान्तांतगौ; SamP: पुंगलांतांतगौ
142. ग्, छ्, ज्: –फन्तं समु–; all other MSs: –फान्तं समु–
143. ग्: +या; ज्: –या; SamP: –या. See above, note to 2/22b.
144. छ्: –स्त्व 145. छ्: सिव्यति
146. The root न्यस् is 4P so न्यस्यति would be correct. See 18/97b.
147. The regular form of the accusative plural of देवी is देवीः.
148. SamP: क्, ख्, ङ्, ज्: –या 149. SamP and all MSs: ग्रसनी
150. घ्, च्, छ्: चैत
151. ग्: शान्तिचा–; all other MSs except क्, झ्: शांति–; SamP: शान्तिः चा–
152. SamP: मोहिन्या 153. छ्: –शक्ति च 154. SamP: छ्, ज्: –न्या
155. ङ्: कालि * 156. This verb requires a direct object. But it seems that here it simply functions as a filler to maintain the metre.
157. वाह्निनी would be the regular feminine form. Cf. 18/53c.
158. See above, note to 5/29d. 159. घ्: –देगिका 160. All MSs: उलामा
161. घ्, च्: –वक्ष्या; छ्: –यक्ष्या; ज्: –यक्ष्म; all other MSs: –क्ष्य; SamP: –यक्ष्म
162. SamP: क्, ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: संकायां; घ्, च्, छ्: संकार्यां; all other MSs: शकायां. This emendation is very tentative.
163. All MSs: परि–; छ्: –जांनिका 164. SamP and all MSs: च्छिकला
165. क्: पूतनी 166. All MSs except घ्, च्, छ्: आमोदी
167. SamP: लंबोकोदरी 168. All MSs: संघारी
169. छ्: –युधाः; SamP and all other MSs except घ्, च्: चक्रसुनायुधाः
170. ताराक्षिणी would be correct. Cf. 18/50d.
171. SamP: क्, ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: दर्हनी 172. IM 5 + 6.
173. SamP and all MSs except ख्, ङ्, छ्: आश्रमं–
174. A singular would be better here.
175. त्रयाणाम् would be correct but is too long for the metre. 176. घ्: द्ये
177. SamP and all MSs: –ता
178. तेषाम्, or the like, is required to complete the syntax.
179. SamP: –न्याय 180. छ्: शिरोहीण–
181. क्, ख्, ङ्: चन्द्रा–; ग्: चन्द्राद्धा–; छ्, ज्: चन्द्रार्द्धांकित–; SamP: चन्द्राद्धांकितमेवं
182. SamP: –विनिमुक्तं 183. IC. 184. क्: स *
185. SamP: ग्, ज्: –ज्योतिःयेषु; The compound should have a plural ending.
186. All MSs: –ताः 187. N → M.
188. SamP and all MSs: सर्वतो 189. All MSs: ख्याता 190. छ्: –ला
191. SamP: सम्यज्ञातेषु 192. क्: पुनर्ज्ज
193. Anusvāra has been added for the metre. ; SamP: –कर्म
194. ख्: वर्त्तमानस्यैर्–; SamP and all other MSs: वर्त्तमानास्यै. कर्मनः is the implied substantive. 195. SamP: छ्, ज्: ज्ञातैः–

196. ग्: ज्ञातै:बिजै:– ङ्: क्षयां 197. All MSs: भवत
198. क्: तस्मद् न्यास–; all other MSs: तस्मद्भ्यास–. IM 6 + 7.
199. च्: –कं 200. क्: सक्तिस्त्वं; ख्, घ्, ग्, ङ्, च्, छ्, ज्: शक्तिस्त्व
201. ग्, ज्: –शक्तिश्रीदा–; घ्: –शक्तिसिदात्मिका; च्: –शक्तिमिदत्मि *; छ्: –शक्तिस्त्रिदात्मिका
202. ज्: –न 203. घ्, च्, छ्: रविसोम– 204. N → M.
205. M → N. 206. घ्, च्: अर्द्ध; all other MSs: अर्द्धं
207. All MSs except ख्, ङ्: –नागवेगेन
208. M → N. See above, note to 3/46b. –मनसानन्दो would be regular. A syntactically correct sentence could be formed by breaking up this sentence into two dependent clauses thus: सैवावस्था प्रप्यतेयत् सुखाह्लादमनानन्दं पदं।
209. ख्, ङ्: –तेहाद्भवा; all other MSs except ज्: –देहाद्भवा
210. All MSs: –याधिकारकम्. DS. See above, note to 2/22b.
211. ख्, ग्, ङ्, च्, छ्, ज्: मध्यण् विषवह्निमध्ये गता is meant here.
212. ख्, ङ्, झ्: आवर्त्तांता; ग्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: आवर्त्तांत
213. See above, note to 7/13c. 214. क्: –ला:
215. All MSs except घ्, झ्: –णा:
216. क्: बिन्दू–; ख्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –यायिनी; ग्: यागिनी; ङ्: –यायनी
217. छ्: व्याप्त 218. क्, ग्: + तशेषभुवनान्तिकं . DS.
219. छ्: वाग्भव; all MSs except ख्, ङ्, ज्: वाग्भवे 220. घ्: द्वीतीयं
221. दीपकत्रयम् would be correct but the sixth syllable would be short. See above, note to 1/2c. 222. SamP and all MSs except घ्, झ्: बीज
223. The ending has been dropped for the metre.
224. SamP and all MSs: दीपनेषु 225. SamP and all MSs: मालिनी
226. M → N. 227. मुच्येत् would be correct. Cf. 18/87c.
228. छ्: –र्थ 229. All MSs: न्यासेदं च
230. The stem of the regular gentive plural of the agent noun योगिन् is strengthened here, as in other places in this text, to accomodate the metre. See 32/20c, 58/35c, 59/11a, 62/74a, 80c, 65/16a, 66/31c (वियोगीनाम्), 45a, 54c, 57c and 79a. Note also that this form invariably appears to adjust for the long seventh syllable in the first or third quarter of a verse and almost always appears in passages that are common to YKh (1).
231. See 3/10d and note. 232. All MSs: शिरच्छेदक–. नाम्ना, the correct form, is too short for the metre. See above, 6/57b.
233. See above, note to 3/74b. 234. छ्: एष
235. All MSs except क्, झ्: अव्यक्ता
236. See above, note to 3/52c. 237. All MSs: –द्यं. IC.
238. क्, ग्, झ्: भाविनी 239. M → N. 240. ख्: युक्तं. IC.
241. See above, note to 4/38c. 242. M → N.
243. ग्: तस्या– 244. Cf.18/24b and note.
245. घ्, च्, छ्: –मध्य: 246. ख्, ङ्: स्थित; घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: स्थित:
247. क्, ग्: नृ 248. Cf. 18/7cd.
249. All MSs except ग्, झ्: पुरुषे 250. Cf. above.
251. All MSs: जीवो. 252. च्: तदा; ते. Missing in MS ग्; missing in MS च् from here to पञ्चभूतानि 253. क्, ग्: कर्मे. An accusative has replaced the required locative. 254. The optative has replaced the present tense. See above, note to 3/14c. 255. क्, ग्, ज्: ज्ञानं; ङ्: ज्ञान; other MSs: ज्ञातं 256. All MSs: पुरुषं 257. क्, ग्, ज्: तै:; छ्: तै. IC. 258. All MSs:

–तानि 259. All MSs: पुरुषस्य 260. All MSs: दृता: | IC. 261. ग्: कर्म्मा
262. ग्, छ्, ज्: कर्म्म: 263. क्: पर्त्तयन्ति; other MSs: प्रवर्तति। Missing in MSs घ्, च् and छ् up to केवलम् 264. ग्: –ल 265. All MSs except ज्: –व्यदिषु 266. ख्: –त्वं. The regular form, – तमसेकत्वे, does not fit the metre. See above, note to 13/2b.
267. ग्, ज्: –म: 268. All MSs: प्रवर्तति। Cf. above, 18/83cd.
269. IM 6 + 7. 270. All MSs: भूतानि–.
271. M → N.
272. ग्, घ्: तस्माद्भ्यासा; छ्, ज्: यस्माद्भ्यासा; all other MSs: यस्माद्यासा
273. ख्: प्रवर्तते 274. I take this to be in concord with पञ्चभूतानि.
275. Cf. 18/73a and note. 276. All MSs except क्, झ्: साधके
277. ग्, घ्, च्, छ्, ज्: –दा 278. All MSs except क्, ख्, ङ्: सर्व
279. ग्: –समासेमासेन 280. All MSs: मालिन्या.
281. MS च् ends here. क्: * न्मया 282. मालिनी has developed to मालिन्या (on the analogy of देवी → देव्या cf. 2/34d) to make the seventh syllable long. 283. घ्: अस्यामभ्यासकरं; छ्: अस्यामभ्यासकणं. IM 6 +
7. 284. SamP: भे * त् 285. SamP: छ्, ज्: षट्विधं
286. ग्: –यत् 287. छ्: षद्भि:; SamP: षट्भि:
288. SamP: छ्: –भेद्यैर् 289. छ्: कृतीं; SamP and all other MSs except ग्: कृताम् 290. SamP and all MSs: द्वे 291. ज्: षट्विधम्– 292. SamP: ज्: षद्विधं 293. राजन् has been made neuter, as it were, by developing the stem to राजन–. Compare the analogous formation of आत्मान– from आत्मन्, for which see note to 3/10d.
294. SamP: ख्, ग्, घ्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: मालिन्यायानि–.
295. घ्, छ्: –रेश्च 296. घ्: चर्म–. Note how, in lists of this sort, words can remain seperate or form coordinative compounds with other members of the list freely, as required by the metre. As such compounds are the result of simply dropping endings as required, they exhibit the case, gender and number of the last member, which simply retains the original form it has as a single, uncompounded word.
297. क्: थत्रि:; ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: थडि:; घ्: –षड्भि; SamP: –षडि:
298. क्: मालिन्यंमा:–; ग्, छ्, ज्: मालिन्यंगा:–; SamP: मालिन्यंगा:–
299. क्: सचरी 300. छ्: –ज्जिह्वाञ्च
301. छ्: क्रलांविका; all other MSs: कुलाम्बिकाम्
302. मोहिनी and मारिणी are the regular forms.; SamP: मारिणी
303. The change to neuter here can be conceived as setting this proper name in concord with बीजम्, as happens throughout with other names of the seed-syllables and with letters when वर्ण– is treated as neuter.
304. ‘M' has been inserted to gain a syllable for the metre. See above, note to 3/21b. ; SamP: + षष्ठी पृथगंगेषु देवता।। कुर्याद् बीजत्रयं चादौ तथा कामेश्वर पुन:।। देवतामाश्रमं
305. क्, ग्: षष्टी; ख्, ङ्, ज्: षष्ठि:; घ्, छ्: षड्भि; षड्भि
306. Missing in क्, ग् and ज्

307. क्, ग्: + पृथगं गेषु देवता; ज्: पृथगंगेषु देवता। कुर्याद् बीजत्रयं चादौ तथा कामेश्वरं पुनः।।
308. ग्, ज्: नयनेऽपि; SamP: न्यसनेपि 309. See 18/46cd.
310. छ्: पश्यत. This parasmaipada verb is here treated as being ātmanepada. 311. All MSs except क्, ग्, छ्, ज्: –भजनः 312. झ्: मंगलाग्रे 313. घ्: –धी. The syntax in this line is so imperfect that one wonders whether this may be due to the loss of part of the text in this place. 314. घ्: –देवि; छ्: –दे * 315. SamP and all MSs: उकार. M → N. 316. क्, ग्: –नमकितं; घ्: विंदुनामेकितं; छ्: विंदुनामकितं; all other MSs: –विन्द्विनमकितं; SamP: विञ्द्विन्दुनमंकितं 317. All MSs: दीप–
318. क्, ख्, ग्, घ्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: बिन्दु इन्दु–; क्, ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: –शिराक्रान्तं; ख्: शिरो–; ङ्:
शिर–; SamP: बिन्दु इन्दु शिराक्रांतं 319. All MSs: चक्र– –ले
320. All MSs: –धामं। This emendation agrees with the reading in the SamP.
321. All MSs: –चक्र– 322. This is the genitive of दीपनी; compare the form मालिन्यायाः in 18/105b. See above, note to 2/22b.
323. SamP and all MSs: मोहनीधः 324. The hiatus in this compound serves to gain an extra syllable for the metre. See above, note to 3/77d.
325. पश्चिमवक्त्रे would make the fifth syllable long.
326. N → M. 327. All MSs: –देवि
328. The same form occurs above in 18/45d, 67b, 103b; see note to 2/22b.
329. This line is missing in MS घ् and छ्.
330. घ्, छ्: –भेच्. The dropping of the nominative/accusative singular ending, followed by sandhi with इदम्, is such a regular feature of the Sanskrit of the text that no further notice need be taken of it. 331. घ्, छ्: छेष्टं 332. IC. The nominative neuter plural of पापानि is set in concord with a masculine plural attribute throughout the next two lines also.
333. भविष्यन्ति would be correct. 334. क्: –र
335. अयम् is treated as if it were both masculine and neuter. Thus on the one side it agrees with योगप्रयोगः and on the other it links with the neuter ending of the substantive at the end of the line. In the next line, it links it with the accusative. 336. ग्, छ्, ज्: गुरोराजा– 337. A personal pronoun is required here, unless we take अयम् to be in irregular concord with –राजकम् or as functioning as an acc. sing. See note to 1/5b. 338. IM 5 + 6.
339. क्: विदुंवके; ग्, छ्, ज्: विदंवके; all other MSs: विदंवकै 340. ज्: यावन्ने
341. M → N. 342. घ्, छ्: कुल 343. The meaning here seems to be: तावत् कुलक्रमन्यासानां विषये 344. ख्, ङ्, ज्: काचिता; घ्: काविता; छ्: कांचिता 345. घ्: –ग्य; छ्: –ग्यां 346. छ्: श्रय–. श्रेयः– would be correct but makes the fifth syllable long. 347. ख्, ग्, ङ्: –र्य; घ्, छ्: अर्थैश्वर्य 348. The plural required here would make the seventh syllable long.
349. घ्: –मद्–. M → N. 350. All MSs: –न्वयम् 351. घ्, छ्: तदा–
352. All MSs: नादिकान्त– 353. छ्: –वतारे 354. घ्, छ्: –विंशत्–
355. All MSs: अथा– 356. ग्: क्रमा; all other MSs except घ्, छ्, ज्: क्रमो

NOTES OF THE TRANSLATION OF CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

1. See intro. vol. 2, p. 254 ff.. 2. See below 19/17.

3. After discussing the Samayā Vidyā in previous chapters, the text has moved on to discuss other basic mantras and depositions of the Kubjikā Tantras. According to the ṢSS 12/87, Mālinī, Śabdarāśi, Trividyā and Aghorāṣṭaka, along with the deposition of twelve and six limbs, constitute the body of Kula. The first four of these six are treated in the same order in this and the following chapters.

4. It is standard practice to perform a series of six depositions of mantras and syllables onto the body. This identifies it with the body made of the mantras of the deity. This chapter of our text opens with the god addressing the goddess as 'you who are my body!' Possessing this body, the adept is identified with the god and, thereby purified, he is ready to worship the deity he has become. Indeed, he is the teacher himself:

O Mother of the Śrīkula, the teacher (ācārya) is accompanied by the guardians of the idols (mūrtipāla). He possesses supreme bliss and, self-controlled, he has performed the sixfold deposition.

ācāryo [kh, g: ācārya] mūrtipālaiś [kh: -pālaś] ca sametaḥ śrīkulāmbike |
paramānandasampannaḥ [g: -nnāḥ; other MSs: -panno] ṣoḍhānyāsakṛto yamī ||
KRU 14/145

Externally, the adept's body made of mantras is the 'outer' differentiated, immanent form of the deity. Inwardly, he is one with the deity's essential, formless and transcendental nature. This condition he renews daily, each time he performs the sixfold deposition in order to worship:

O mistress of the gods, having risen in the morning, having performed the morning rite and then having again offered bali to the ghosts (bhūta), he should purify the body. Once he has performed the great sixfold deposition and is conjoined to the presiding deity of the Wheel, he offers sacrifice. He should then make the offering to the fire (homa) along with (the deities) who possess a (divine) form (mūrti).

The best of teachers is himself as pervasive as am I (the god). O beloved, his form is the Void (vyomarūpa) and, endless, he has no master (but is himself the Lord) and is not present (in this world of bondage) (anāśrita). These are said to be those who possess a divine form who have taken up their abode on the plane of Stillness (nirācāra). Their bodies are girt (sannaddha) with mantras and they are skilled in ritual.

prātar utthāya deveśi kṛtvā [all MSs: kṛta] pūrvāhnikakriyām ||
punar bhūtabaliṁ datvā dehaśuddhiṁ tu [k, kh: -śuddhistu] kārayet |
kṛtvā ṣoḍhāmahānyāsaṁ yuktāṁ [sarve: yuktaṁ] cakrādhidevatām ||
yaṣṭvā paścāt prakurvīta [k, g: prakūrvita] homaṁ mūrtidharaiḥ saha |
svayaṁ vyāpī [kh: vāpī] yathaivāhaṁ [g: tathai-] tathā bhūtvā gurūttamaḥ [ṅ: gurutama] ||
vyomarūpas tathānantaḥ [kh: -nantaṁ; g: -nantā] anātho 'nāśritaḥ [kh: nāśitaḥ; g: hyanāthonāśrita] priye |
ete mūrtidharāḥ [kh: -dharāṁ] proktāḥ [g: -ktā] nirācārapadāśritāḥ ||
mantrasannaddhadehāś [kh: -saddhattadehāś] ca kriyācāraviśāradāḥ |
KRU 13/155cd-159ab

Intimately related to the deity, it is not surprising that the six depostions should vary in contents from school to school. Conversely, despite the normal variations, the six are recognisably the same in the Kubjikā sources. The earliest in time, one may take the basic set of six depositions to be the one in the KMT. Said to constitute the Body of Kula the six are (KMT 17/82 = KnT 2/11): Mālinī, the Assembly of Sounds, the Triple Vidyā, the Octad of Aghorikā, the Twelve Limbs and the Six Limbs (cf. Agnipurāṇa 145/1-5; Schoterman 1977: 936.).

This and the following chapters of our text describe the goddess's body made of mantras. Thus the KuKh reproduces in its own way the KMT where, from the middle of chapter 17, the goddess's body is described as the same set of mantras with a few variations. There the body is that of the goddess Mālinī. She emerges from the sixteen syllables that constitute the names of the four sacred seats. The KMT (17/80-84) goes on to explain:

> She is Mālinī and her body are the Siddhas. She burns intensely with the flames of the Three Principles. She is conjoined with Aghoryāṣṭaka and is filled with the Twelve Limbs. She possesses the Six Limbs and is generated from the body of Asitāṅga. She is Maheśvarī and her body is mantra. Mālinī, Śabdarāśi, the Triple Vidyā, Aghorikāṣṭaka, the Twelve Limbs and the Six Limbs: this is the body which is Kula. The Five Jewels are on (her) forehead, throat, chest, secret part and feet. Her garland is the Twelve Verses. She shines with the Thread of Brahmā that extends from the feet to the topknot. Her two shoulders are Tadgraha. Her face is formed with the five seed-syllables. This should be deposited along with five OṀs.

Mālinī is explained in this chapter of our text; the Assembly of Sounds in the following one and the Triple Vidya in the one after that. We note in passing that the KRU (10/15) considers these three to be the basic constituents of the Trika Tantra (see Dyczkowski 1986: 84). The Vidyā of the fourth deposition, the Aghorikāṣṭaka, otherwise called Aghoryaṣṭaka, is presented next (in 21/1-29). The deposition of the Limbs of the Siddhas is only mentioned (21/30), and is not described fully. As a standard group, the Five Praṇavas may also be called the Sequence or Convention of the Sacred Seats (pīṭhakrama- KuKh 9/22; pīṭhasaṁketa- KuKh 9/31cd). For the pentad of seed-syllables and the five sacred seats, see 8/92cd–100 and cf. 9/19cd-26ab. The deposition of the Five Praṇavas, which is a part of this series, is presented in KuKh 21/31-48.

This series of depositions concludes with chapter 22 which is dedicated to a different Ṣodhānyāsa, called the Lion Throne of the Vidyā. Ṣoḍhā, in that context is the supreme (parā) energy, which we may understand to be vitalizing power and essence, as it were, of the previous six depositions that are the 'outer' form of this Ṣodhānyāsa.

5. These lines introduce a second set of six depositions. The Samayā Vidyā and its deposition is presented here as the one that 'has authority over the field of Tadgraha' (KuKh 23/62). The mantra called Tadgraha is deposited on the body first (23/1-20) and then the deposition of the goddess Vidyā completes it. In this way the Trika mantra Tadgraha, formed from the three Trika Vidyās - Parā, Parāparā and Aparā, is integrated into the Kubjikā system of mantras. The two depositions thus form a single composite whole. The Twelve Limbs is a name for another Trika mantra called Twelve Verses to which the first part of chapter twenty-four is dedicated (24/13-75). Next comes the deposition of the Enclosure of the Field, that is, of the syllables that line the walls of the Triangle in the centre of the maṇḍala (24/77cd-86ab) followed by those of the Triple Authority (24/88-104) of the three transmissions and the Deposition of the Five Jewels (24/105-112ab). Chapter 24 ends with the statement that it is the Sūtra of the Sixfold Deposition. Presumably, chapter 23 and 24 in which these six depositions are described make up this sūtra.

6. What follows is the deposition on the body of the letters of the alphabet in the Mālinī order. See appendix 1 where this data is tabulated and compared with presentations of the Mālinī sequence of the alphabet in other sources. I have put the corresponding letter in brackets after its location and noted variants in the footnotes. The code is based on the names of the letters listed in KuKh 8/34cd-40ab. It appears that this code is peculiar to the KuKh. Certainly, it is not common. Note that the position of the letters in relation to one another is with respect to their location in the Meruprastāra. The letters in brackets are those of the Mālinī alphabet.

7. The Topknot – śikhā – is Kubjikā herself in the form of a flame – śikhā. It is commonly represented as facing downwards, which is the direction of her penetrating movement down into the body. Referring to the 'inner' nature of the goddess's Vidyā in the centre of the Triangle in the End of the Twelve, the YKh (1) says:

Maheśvarī, the goddess Flame (śikhā) is within the three corners of the Three Peaks (trikūṭa). The Command of Kukārā, who is the mistress of the Wheel and the leader of the Siddhas, is said to be there.

śṛṅgatrayatrikūṭasthā [k: śṛṁgatrayaṁtrakūṭasthāṁ] śikhā devī maheśvarī | [kh: śṛṅgatrayatrikūṭasthā saptakhaṇḍasamanvitā -kandha- ||]
kukārājñā smṛtā [k: smṛtāṁ] tatra [k: taṁtta; kh: kukārā kakārā sā smṛtā khañjī] cakreśī siddhanāyikā [k: -nāyīkā] || YKh (1) 16/11cd, 14ab.

8. Ekapāda – the One-footed is the letter E, which is shaped like an inverted triangle. In this case, the One-footed is the downward-facing triangle of the entire Meruprastāra. However, in the following line it is the letter E.

9. These letters are indeed located at the end of the lowest row of letters in the Meruprastāra in reverse alphabetical order.

10. Pha is below Ca. So Ca can be said to precede it in the sequence down that column in the prastāra.

11. Ī is also the nose in the ṢSS and the MVT, but there it comes after the eyes. This is the location of the ears according to the KuKh of which the letter is Ṇa. The letter Ṇa also corresponds to the ears also in both the ṢSS and the MVT.

12. Note that according to the ṢSS the ears come after the nose. Here the two ornaments (presumably of the goddess's ears) come in between. In the ṢSS they follow after, thus: nose > ears > ornament of the right ear > ornament of the left ear. However, even so, the letters here for these limbs are the same as in the ṢSS.

13. The Sky is the letter Kha. The letter Gha is above it in the Meruprastāra.

14. According to the ṢSS this entry should be the tongue. I have chosen to emend the Sanskrit accordingly from karṇikayā ('(serves as) an earring') to lalanayā ('(serves as) the tongue)'. The goddess's ornaments have already been mentioned and these are presumably those of her ears, so another earring would be redundant. Moreover, Māyā is both the name of the Mālinīśakti of the tongue and the letter I. The Skull is the letter Ṭa in the Mālinī order of the alphabet according to ṢSS. The letter above it is indeed I in the prastāra.

15. Only the letter Ṭha is mentioned in the ṢSS for both palms.

16. The ṢSS agrees that Ḥ is on the back of the hands but places this letter after Jha and Ña. According to the ṢSS, Jha and Ña correspond to the fingers of the left and right hands, respectively. According to the KuKh they are the tips of the nails of the fingers. The Yoginī of this letter according to the ṢSS is Saṁjīvanī – 'She Who Gives Life' who may be related to the individual soul.

17. The goddess holds a vessel containing the five sacrificial substances, concerning which see Ṭīkā fl. 79b quoted in the note to KuKh 29/43. The substances are consecrated by the mantras of the Five Jewels.

18. Hara is Bha, Ja is the letter above it.

19. SamP reads: rajodbhavena – 'by that which is generated from the menses'.

20. Pa is in the heart according to the ṢSS.

21. Anaṅga is Ha. The letter that comes after it in the prastāra is Sa.

22. It appears that the text takes the three letters Pa, Ha and Sa that correspond to the heart, breath and Self, respectively, together as a triad consisting of three aspects of the heart of the goddess. At the individual level (āṇava), it is the heart itself. At the empowered (śākta) level and that of Śiva, it is the vital breath and the Self, respectively, both of whom reside in the heart. They can indeed be seen to form a separate group sandwiched between the trident of the goddess and her two breasts. Concerning this important triad, see intro. vol. 1, p. 441 ff..

23. Bha, which is Hara, precedes Cha in the prastāra.

24. Nectar is the letter A. The eighth letter in the column of letters headed by A is KṢa.

25. The seat of the letter A is the letter below it in the prastāra, namely, Jha. The seat of that is the letter below Jha which is Ma. In this way the 'seat is repeated twice'.

26. The daughter of the Mountain is the letter Dha whose seat is Ṁ.

27. Rāvaṇa is the letter Ṛ. The letters born from it are the remaining three 'neuter' vowels, namely. Ṝ ḷ and Ḹ. The two letters at the end of this series in the reverse order, with respect to their location in the prastāra, are E and AI.

28. See appendix 1 for a comparative table of the letters, names of the Yoginīs associated with them and parts of the body of the deity where they are located according to this and other selected sources.

29. Schoterman makes a few interesting observations concerning the order of the letter Tha in the Mālinī alphabet. These are summerized in the following lines; for details refer to Schoterman (1981: 217). In a good number of cases in the KMT and the ṢSS, the letter Tha is placed between Ḹ and Ca. This is also the case in the MVT (3/37b). In other, later Kubjikā texts, Schoterman notes, the letter Tha follows immediately after Na. He cites the KnT as an example along with the Agnipurāṇa (143-147), which has drawn from the Kubjikā Tantras. He also points out that this is the order found in the ŚM. This fact, Schoterman feels, supports his view that the ṢSS predates the ŚM. But this to me seems highly unlikely. In fact, the evidence generally indicates the contrary. Schoterman concludes that: 'Although it is rather hazardous to draw any conclusions at this phase of research it seems that the letter Tha was originally located between the Ḹ and the Ca, while in later texts its position was shifted forwards, following immediately after the Na. In this way the two initial letters of the nādiphānta-order correspond with the two final letters: Na, Tha, . . ., Da, Pha compared to the usual order of the alphabet.’

30. The next letter, corresponding to Guhyaśakti in the ṢSS, is Ī. Here this energy has been shifted to the 43rd place. Ī is also the letter of the nose in our text but the position of this limb, as we have already noted, has been shifted. Here the sequential order of the limbs is: eyes > ears > ornaments of the ears > nose. In the ṢSS the order is eyes > nose > ears > ornaments of the ears. If the Śaktis corresponding to the limbs are the same in both texts, in the KuKh these should be Priyadarśinī > Nārāyaṇī > Mohanī > Prajñā > Guhyaśakti which is the serial order in the Ṭīkā. I suppose that this is also the correct order in the KuKh. Guhyaśakti in our list replaces Krūradevī in the ṢSS. Some sources have Śukrā as an alternative name for this energy because she is the energy presiding over the goddess's sexual fluids (śukra). Krūra is the name of the Bhairava who is the consort of the goddess who presides over this letter. She is accordingly called Krūraśakti in the Mālinī series in some sources. The placement of Guhyaśakti (meaning, in this case, ‘the Energy of the Genitals’) may have seemed appropriate as the goddess's sexual fluid is the energy of the goddess's genitals.

31. Gandhaśakti does not appear in any of the lists of the Mālinīśaktis I have seen. As her name suggests, she is the energy corresponding to the nose. This is indeed the location of this energy in both the Ṭīkā (where this energy is called Guhyaśakti) and in our text.

32. This energy is called Karālinyā according to the ṢSS. Kaṅkaṭā is also the name according to the Ṭīkā.

33. According to the ṢSS this energy is called Kapālinyā. She is called Kālikā in the Ṭīkā, as she is here.

34. ṢSS calls this energy Khirvarā. The Ṭīkā calls her Vīrā.

35. This energy is called Māyā in both the Ṭīkā and the ṢSS. This also appears to be her name above in verse 18/31.

36. She is called Śikhivāhinī, which is the grammatically correct form, in both the ṢSS and the Ṭīkā.

37. ṢSS calls this energy Bhīmā, and the Ṭīkā, Bhīṣaṇī.

38. Both the ṢSS and the Ṭīkā call this energy Lāmā while all the MSs of the KuKh and the SamP read Ulāmā. I have emended to Sulāmā.

39. ṢSS and Ṭīkā both call this energy Jhaṅkārī. She governs the letter Jha.

40. ṢSS and Ṭīkā both call this energy Kūrdanī. She governs the letter Ña.

41. The ṢSS calls this energy Saṁjīvanī and she governs Ḥ. According to the Ṭīkā, Dīpanī is in this place and governs the letter Ra.

42. According to the ṢSS this energy is called Dīpanyā.

43. This energy is called Pāvanyā in the ṢSS and Pāvanī in the Ṭīkā.

44. According to both the ṢSS and the Ṭīkā this energy is called Paramātmā. The text of KuKh here appears to be corrupt. All the MSs and SamP read this and the following entry together as ‘parijāmbikā’ which makes no sense.

I have therefore emended the reading to 'parajāmbikā'. The corresponding entry in the list of the parts of the goddess's body reads 'prāṇātmānam' (KuKh 18/38ab) in all the MSs.

45. The name of this energy according to the ṢSS is Chagalī. According to the Ṭīkā it is Chagalaṇḍī. It corresponds to the letter Cha and so as the name here tells us, it is the 'energy (kalā) of Cha'.

46. ṢSS calls this energy Lambodaryā and the Ṭīkā Lambodarī.

47. See note 31 above.

48. The correct form is Tārākṣiṇī, cf. 18/50d. This energy is called Tārā in both the ṢSS and the Ṭīkā.

49. The Ṭīkā calls this energy Jñānī.

50. A 'hermitage' (āśrama) is a place where a deity or Siddha resides. In this case, the 'hermitage' is the limb of the goddess's body where the corresponding letter is located. Thus variant reading – 'āsanam' –(seat) found in manuscript Cha is significant. The body of the goddess is covered with 'hermitages' which are the seats of her energies, the letters of the Mālinī alphabet.

51. Thus each unit consists of 1) a part of the body, 2) a letter or syllable, and 3) the name of the goddess.

52. The KnT presents the Mālinī deposition in full. On the basis of this source Schoterman explains: 'It appears that Mālinī is of three kinds: 1) bhavā 2) sthairyā 3) saṁhārī – the threefold cycle of existence (creation, maintenance, absorption). The Mālinī-nyāsa in its creative aspect is composed of the nyāsa of all fifty letters and their *śakti*s in their usual order from A to KṢa. Thus 'a vāgeśvarī' on the crest; 'ā āmoṭi' on the head; etc. The nyāsa of Mālinī in her aspect of maintenance is composed of the fifty letters and their *śakti*s in the nādiphanta-order, and the third nyāsa (absorption) begins with KṢa and its śakti up to A with Vāgeśvarī. It is significant that the order of the various parts of the body is always the same (from the crest to the left foot) in all three *nyāsa*s: only the order of the letters with the accompanying *śakti*s is changed. In the mantra accompanying the actual nyāsa a distinction is made between the three kinds of nyāsa as well. In the nyāsa of creation the name of the śakti is always in the vocative singular ('a vāgeśvari'); in the nyāsa of maintenance the name of the śakti is in the first, or nominative singular case provided with the visarga ('kṣa saṁhāryāḥ'), as the KnT explicitly states (prathamāntā visargayuktā)." (Schoterman 1981: 218).

53. Anaṅga is either visarga or Ha. In this case, I suppose, it is visarga, which is written as two dots one on top of the other. If visarga is 'without a head', I suppose this means that only the bottom dot remains and so becomes anusvāra. The Unbroken Maṇḍala is probably the Kramamaṇḍala of this school, namely, the Saṁvartāmaṇḍala. Its simplified form is the letter AI. The Moon above it is anusvāra, the Moon of the Point – Indubindu. Above that is the series of subtle principles that mark the stages of the upward, silent resonance of the nasalization as stages in the expansion of consciousness up to the Transmental. In other words, the text here prescribes that the syllable AIṀ should be deposited at the beginning of each of the fifty units – one for each letter – that constitute this deposition.

54. The solar and lunar breath (prāṇa and apāna) symbolized by the letters Sa and Ha are conjoined in the central channel of Suṣumṇā by the Wheel of the Point, that is, anusvāra (Ṁ), to form HAṀSA. Here HAṀSA is called Prasāda Bhairava. This is the upward-moving breath (udāna) that transports Kuṇḍalinī, which is the energy of bliss (ānandaśakti), upwards. The progressive development of this energy in its ascent culminates in the attainment of the plane of contentment (āhlāda) that expands out downwards to fill all things (cf. note 88 to 13/104).

Nirañjana – the Stainless – is the pervasive state of Śiva, said to be supreme bliss (13/79-80ab). This is the condition represented by the Point between Ha and Sa of HAṀSA. Sa is the pervasive state of the Principle of Poison (viṣatattva). This is the Sun. Ha is the emissive state of the Principle of Passion (kāmatattva). This is the Moon. The Point in between that marks the union of the two is the Stainless. It is the energy of the goddess (13/119) that pours out from the supreme level down to earth coupled with the pervasive, supremely blissful state of Śiva, the supreme principle (13/79-80ab). Concerning this triad see appendix 6 of vol. 2 of the edition and translation.

55. Kuṇḍalinī rises in an anticlockwise spiral. This is the movement which generates bliss and corresponds to the goddess in her aspect as the energy of bliss (see below 59/92). Thus, the end of the rotation of this energy comes at the climax of the ascent of Kuṇḍalinī and completes the development and the emergence of the liberating power of bliss. As we have seen above (note 13/76cd-7ab), Fire and Poison represent, amongst other things, the two polarities of the movement of Kuṇḍalinī. One is the downward clockwise spiral movement and the other is the upward anticlockwise one. The climax of the upward motion is the centre between them. This is where the Stainless Principle (nirañjanatattva) is located. This is the Yoni, the goddess who is the stainless form of Mahāmāyā (39/29cd-30ab). See appendix 6 of vol. 2 of the edition and translation.

56. The 'House whose form is Mālinī' is the Yoni that contains all the letters. The 'crooked line' is the spiral formed within the triangle of Mālinī by the arrangement of the letters within it (8/26cd-27). The supreme form of Mālinī is the 'authority of Mālinī' – the Transmental energy of the Stainless Principle that pervades the three corners of the Triangle marked by the sacrificial pits of the Moon, Sun and Fire. The subtle form of Mālinī is the Triangle and the gross, the 'crooked line' of letters that fills it.

57. See above, 13/119.

58. These three seed-syllables are uttered at the beginning of each unit of the deposition. Like lamps, they give it light and energy.

59. One could also translate: (The adept) is free within the Lamps.

60. The body, made of the five elements, is the domain of Nature. By depositing Mālinī's sonic energies on the body it is immersed in the sacrificial pit, that is, the Triangle pervaded by Mālinī's energy, which absorbs and transforms it; and so, the individual soul is liberated from the tyranny of Nature and the five elements.

61. The Person is pervaded by the sixteen energies of the Full Moon (AS 5/156cd-157ab).

Notes Of The Sanskrit Text Of Chapter Nineteen

1. ङ्, छ्, ज्: अथा 2. क्, ख्, झ्: चान्यं 3. ङ्: पञ्चाण–; छ्: –रूपिणीं
4. छ्: –संकर्णिण 5. SamP: –राशि 6. ङ्: –रत्
7. ख्: तुर्यस्वं; ङ्: –स्व; छ्: तुर्येस्थंण् सुरेश्वरः treated as neuter, is the subject here.
8. छ्: –राव– 9. तम् replaces तत्, see 2/4b and note.
10. छ्: पचं 11. All MSs: शब्दमधिस्थितं; SamP: –मधःस्थितम्.
Concerning the formation of this compound, see above, note to 3/21b.
12. M → N. See above, note to 1/2c.
13. SamP: –पदास्थं. पदस्थं would be correct but too short for the metre. Cf.
19/9c. 14. छ्, ज्: –व्रह्मं 15. M → N.
16. घ्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: –न. M → N. 17. IM 5. 18. घ्, छ्: –पद
19. ख्: ज्ञेयतदा–; ग्, घ्: ज्ञेया–; ङ्: तदाधौर्ध्वे; छ्: ज्येयातदाधौर्द्ध; ज्: ज्ञेयातदाधौर्द्धे. DS. See above, note to 7/51d. Although all the nouns in the preceding few verses have been made neuter, ज्ञेयाः is masculine plural.
20. ङ्: गुरोगुरुतर–; other MSs: गुरोर्गुरुतर– 21. छ्: यो
22. घ्: –का 23. ख्: सर्वै
24. ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: –वस्थात्तदा. Cf. 19/6c for the use of अवस्थ– as an equivalent of स्थ–. 25. छ्: पर 26. क्: –वे
27. See 3/10d and note. 28. See above, note to 6/10b. 29. छ्: –संक्षया
30. M → N. See above, note to 1/7d.
31. See above, note to 1/11c. 32. M → N. See above, note to 3/46b.
33. Cf. above. 19/10c. 34. ज्: रुद्रात्वयं
35. All MSs: रुद्रानि। M → N. 36. ग्: ख–. M → N. 37. M → N.
38. M → N. 39. –राशिक is treated as a neuter noun throughout the following section.
40. This numeral should be a singular substantive. Cf. above, 11/70a and see note to 6/47b. 41. All MSs: प्रकृति–
42. क्, ख्, ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: विज्ञानं. M → N.
43. ङ्: सन्तोन–. M → N. See above, notes to 1/3a and 1/5c.
44. Here, as in a few other places, the word शब्दराशिः is declined as if it were feminine rather than masculine. 45. M → N.
46. देवता has become देवतः and is declined accordingly. See above, note to 5/81c. 47. ङ्: उलितये 48. ङ्: उलितर्ये
49. क्: क्रम; all other MSs: क्रमा 50. See above,
51. All MSs: राशी– 52. All MSs except ङ्, झ्: पूर्वोक्त 53. All MSs:
–मेदानीं 54. See above, note to 1/4a. 55. All MSs: स च 56. क्: मार्ग. M → N.
57. ङ्, छ्, ज्: तस्यो– 58. ख्, ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: –देव; ङ्: पुनर्द् देवं
59. आत्मान– is treated as the strong stem here just as happens in the more common deviant form आत्मानम् for the nominative singular. See above, note to 3/10d. 60. M → N.
61. ङ्: एत। KuKh 19/22cd-24 = 19/50 cd-55ab, 52. 50d: परं
62. M → N. See above, note to 7/12d.
63. ङ्: भगोंजातं; all other MSs: भर्गोजातं
64. See above, note to 1/4a. 65. All MSs: स च; 51c: एवं

66. This numeral should be a singular substantive. Cf. above, 11/70a and 19/16a and note to 6/47b. 67. See 18/72c and note.
68. 51d: आदिक्षान्तं क्रमेण तु 69. घ्, छ्: –वीन्यासं 70. छ्: –सस्कृतं
71. ङ्: + बीज 72. All MSs and SamP: बीजक्रम–; SamP and all MSs except क्, ख्: –ता
73. घ्, छ्: + शब्दब्रह्मक्षरा (घ्: स–)यान्ति संस्कारा वृत रस्मय।
कृतकृत्यक्रमोघोरं प्रकृतिन्वे सुराधिप।
शव्दब्रह्माक्षराणाञ्च सृष्टिरास्या क्रमोदय:।
अनुलोमेन सिद्धस्य तेन त्वं शब्दराशिकम्।
शब्दन्तु पृथिव्याहञ्च * * * * * * * *।
मालिन्या शब्दराशिस्तु उतप्रातमसेषत:।
दीप तेन विनिर्मुक्तं अन्त:सुन्यं महेश्वर।
तस्माच्चारदो शब्दराश्यां दीपनं समुदाहृतं। These extra lines are found below as KuKh 19/53-56.
74. घ् ङ्: अनंगभ्य; SamP and all other MSs: अनंगत्य
75. ङ्, ज्: –याभ्य; SamP and all other MSs: यात्य
76. All MSs: त–
77. SamP and all other MSs except ग्, ङ्, झ्: प्रातं
78. ङ्: तेतस्य. See above, note to 4/11d.
79. घ्: –न्यास्य; SamP and all MSs: षोढा–
80. छ्: द्वावतौ
81. क्: गयतौ; other MSs: गयनौ 82. SamP: घ्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: चव
83. All MSs: कलं प्रोक्तं 84. ङ्: द्वया 85. ङ्: देवं
86. घ्: –याहृतौ; ङ्, ज्: मुदाहृतौ; छ्: मुपाहृतौ; other MSs: –सव्यमुद्रहृतौ; SamP: –मुदाहृतौ
87. SamP and all MSs: वेकलान्तं 88. Missing in MSs ख्, ङ् and झ् up to दन्तपंक्तिषु
89. SamP and all MSs: महेन्द्राद्य 90 ज्: पात्य–; all other MSs: यात्य–; SamP: * *?
91. SamP: मुख– 92. DS. See above, note to 7/51d.
93. SamP and all MSs except क्, ख्: ऊर्द्ध। घ्, छ्: शुभाविते; SamP: सुभाषिते
94. SamP and all MSs except ग्, घ्, छ्: विह्ला–
95. SamP and all MSs except क्, ख्, ग्: स्मृत:
96. घ्, छ्: व्रह्मणी 97. ङ्: भुशं–
98. SamP and all MSs: अधोंगानि
99. क्: हीदानीं; घ्, छ्: –नी; SamP and all other MSs: चदेदानीं
100. SamP and all MSs: द्विजासन
101. SamP: ग्, ङ्, झ्: –पात्य; घ्, छ्: प्रभुंपात्य; ज्: प्रभूपात्य
102. All MSs except ङ्, झ्: बाहू 103. All MSs except घ्: कुर्परं
104. All MSs: हनुमंत
105. शिरस् is often but not invariably treated as शिरम्
106. ङ्: –दक्षहस्ते ; all other MSs except क्, ख्: –हस्त 107. All MSs: ततो–.
108. All MSs: मा–; ङ्: –र 109. ग्, ङ्, ज्: –नखाग्रम; घ्, छ्: –खाग्रसु झ्: –नखान्
मम; SamP: –नंखाग्रमे
110. ग्, ङ्: –वर्ग. M → N. वर्ग– is treated as neuter throughout the following passage. 111. घ्, छ्: पञ्चमा
112. SamP and all MSs: –सूर्यस्य 113. All MSs: पदाधं

114. घ्, छ्: शिर; ङ्, झ्: शिरः; SamP: शिरः
115. घ्, छ्: –जोजितम् 116. छ्: हशिरं
117. SamP and all MSs except ङ्: कूर्परे
118. ङ्: माहेश्वर्या समायुतं; घ्: अ– 119. ङ्: + शक्तिसूर्यस्य विंवस्ययदाद्यं धमुत्तं
120. All MSs: –गुल्यो 121. घ्, छ्: –वर्ग
122. घ्, छ्: कोमा–; SamP: कौमारी
123. SamP and all MSs: गौर्यायाम्. If this reading – which is in all the MSs and the SamP – is correct, a locative has replaced the required genitive (see above, note to 10/47d). I have chosen to emend. Concerning the transformation of the word गौरी to गौर्या, see note to 2/22b; cf. 21/8b, 12c, and 22b.
124. घ्, छ्: चार्य; SamP and all other MSs: चार्यं 125. ङ्: व
126. ग्, घ्, छ्: स्क्रिरे; SamP: * ?खिरं
127. ङ्: तस्यातनन्द; झ्: –तनं 128. All MSs except ख्, घ्, ङ्, झ्: दक्षते
129. घ्: रु–उ 130. ग्, घ्, छ्, झ्: अधः; ष न्: रुत्राधा
131. ख्, ग्, ङ्, झ्: –याः 132. ग्, ङ्, झ्: उकाराद्यं 133. घ्: गत
134. घ्, छ्: –ण 135. The final vowel of अंगुलि– has been lengthened to make the sixth syllable long in this irregular compound.
136. SamP: ग्, ङ्, ज्, झ्: तखातया; घ्, छ्: –तया; all other MSs: तखातथा
137. SamP: घ्, छ्: वत्; all other MSs: व
138. SamP and all MSs: कौलिकाम् 139. ङ्: टवर्ग
140. SamP and all MSs except क्, ख्, ङ्: –सरं 141. घ्, छ्: –मार्ग
142. घ्, छ्: –जतैः; ङ्: विराजिते 143. घ्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: ऽध; SamP: पृथिव्याधस्य; IM 6.
144. क्: स्पिज–; ख्, झ्: स्पि * वामन्; स्पि* वामंतो; SamP: जवामंती.The word order in this compound has been reversed.
145. क्: –वोरुकं; ख्: तोराधं वारुकं; ग्, ज्: –तीराधं वारुकं; घ्, छ्: निलाधश्चारुकं; ङ्: राधंवारुकं; झ्:
तोरोधं वारुकं; SamP: राधंवोरुकं. M → N. 146. ङ्: जघयांव 147. ख्, ङ्: कृतं
148. Missing in MSs घ् and छ् 149. घ्, ज्: धूम्रध्वजास्यधो; घ्, छ्: –ध्वजस्याधौ; all other MSs: –धो. See above, note to 8/104a. 150. क्, ग्: –पृष्ठे–
151. SamP and all MSs: स्मृतः 152. ङ्: –सिरमाश्रित्य
153. SamP and all MSs except घ्, छ्: –ल्या
154. क्, ख्, ग्, ज्, झ्: नजा–; ङ्: नजाग्रतः; घ्, छ्: नखाग्रसु 155. SamP: वाराह्यादिस्थितं
156. घ्, छ्: पद्वयौ 157. घ्, छ्: वर्णादयो; ङ्, झ्: वर्णादय; all other MSs:
वर्णादये; SamP: वर्णादयः 158. SamP and MSs ख्, ग्, ज्: सीर्यं; घ्: श्रीर्यं; छ्:
शीर्घं 159. All MSs: –षु
160. SamP and all MSs: नाचान्तरगता 161. All MSs: कुक्षि
162. क्, ख्, ग्, ज्, झ्: –तन्तरा; ङ्: तत्ता; all other MSs: तन्नरा
163. घ्: सर्वतोसुखा; छ्: सर्वतौसुखा; all other MSs: –मुखा
164. घ्, छ्: ष्ठेशिरं; SamP and all other MSs: स्व–
165. क्, ख्, ग्, ज्, झ्: –वंससृ; घ्, छ्: –सस्थं; ङ्: ससृ *; all other MSs: –वंसस्तु;
SamP: पृष्ठवंससृ
166. ग्: सृक्मूर्द्धमुदरं; घ्, छ्: सृष्णर्द्वमुदरं; ङ्: सृव्भूर्धमुदर; झ्: सृकमूर्द्धेमुदरं; other MSs:
सृव्यूर्द्धमुदरं; SamP: सृक्मूर्द्धमविसं 167. घ्, छ्: तदला–; all MSs: तदरान्तं
168. SamP and all MSs: ह्रदयां 169. All MSs: –राशिक; SamP: –राशिकः
170. SamP and all MSs except घ्, छ्: इन्द्राद्या– 171. छ्: वर्ग
172. SamP and all MSs except ख्: योगिनीं

173. ख्, ङ्: त्वंचण् त्वच् is the regular form.

174. SamP and all MSs: कपालमाद्यस्थं. Neither the regular कपालस्योर्ध्व– nor कपालोर्ध्व– fit the metre. Concerning the formation of this compound, see above, note to 3/22b.

175. क्: शैध्वढाहारादिशोभितं, ख्: सौ; ग्: जटाहारादि– सौणिताम्, घ्, छ्: जटाहारादि शौनितां; ङ्: सौणिरां जटाहातादि, ज्: शौणितां जटाहारादि; झ्: सौशिरां जटाहारादि; SamP: जटाहारादिसौणितां

176. घ्: दृथान्तरगतं; छ्: ढथान्तरगतं; all other MSs: तथान्तरगतं

177. All MSs: स्नायु नङ्ग– अधस्थितम्

178. घ्: चकार; SamP and all other MSs: –र

179. ङ्: –तत्वा; SamP and all other MSs: व्यापका– 180. क्, ग्: –यो

181. झ्: विधि; घ्: विवि; छ्: विद्वि

182. ग्: प–; ङ्: तत्वयं–; झ्: –हं. See above, note to 3/12c.

183. झ्: स्वपिड–; घ्: स्वपिण्डंकलयोगनी; छ्: स्वपिण्डंकालयोगिनां; all other MSs except ग्: –कारयोगिनाम्; SamP: –कारयोगिताम्

184. ङ्: कुवलस्य; झ्: कुवरस्य 185. ङ्: सवास्थि–; all other MSs: स चा–

186. क्, ख्, ज्, झ्: हकारा– 187. क्: –मण्डले; घ्, छ्: सुक्र–

188. ख्, ङ्, झ्: –मं 189. M → N. See above, note to 6/133a.

190. घ्, छ्: वायुस्तत्व– 191. ङ्, छ्, झ्: –धिस्थितं; SamP: –दिस्थितं

192. घ्, छ्: परि * ज्यया 193. ङ्: वर्गतितमधस्थं–; all other MSs: वर्गातीतमध–

194. All MSs: प्रतिमामत्र– 195. SamP: ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्, झ्: दैव

196. देवी has become देव्या 197. All MSs: महालक्ष्मी–

198. घ्, छ्: अमृतादिमनङ्गा; SamP and all other MSs: अमृतादिमनङ्गं च. KuKh 19/50cd-51b, 52 = KuKh 19/22cd-24.

199. KuKh 19/22cd: एतद् (ङ्: एत)

200. M → N. See above, note to 7/12d.

201. KuKh 19/23ab: —कुलमेकं

202. SamP: ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्, झ्: भगा–; घ्, छ्: भर्गा–; KuKh 19/23ab ङ्: भगोंजातं; other MSs: भर्गोजातं

203. All MSs: प्रत्ययाम्. See above, note to 1/4a.

204. KuKh 19/23cd: स च

205. ख्, ग्, ङ्, झ्: पञ्चासद्भिभेदै–; ज्: –भिर्भेदंरादि–; KuKh 19/23cd: –भेदैः न्यस्त्वा क्षोभो

206. ङ्: क्रमंन–; KuKh 19/23cd: ऽभिजायते

207. All MSs: एतदक्षार–; KuKh 19/24ab: घ्, छ्: –वीन्यासं

208. Ms छ् of KuKh 19/24ab and MSs ख्, घ्, छ्, झ्: –सस्कृतं; ग्: –संस्कारे–

209. छ्: –क्रमोन्यासं; all other MSs except क्: –क्रमा–; KuKh 19/24cd: तदा (ङ्: + बीज) बीजक्रमन्यासं

210. All MSs except क्, ख् of KuKh 19/24cd and क्, घ्, छ्: –ता; SamP and all other MSs: अविजाता

211. KuKh 19/24cd: मुच्यते

212. घ्: शब्दब्रह्म–. Lines 19/53-56 are also found above after 19/24cd in MSs घ् and छ् The variant readings are labelled V.

213. घ्: –वृतरश्मयः; छ्: –रस्मयः; V घ्, छ्: संस्कारवृतरस्मय

214. क्: –क्रमाघौघं; ङ्: क्रमोघोघं; all other MSs: क्रमोघौघं; SamP: –क्रमौघौघं V घ्, छ्: –क्रमोघोरं 215. ङ्: प्रारा–

216. छ्: न्वे; V घ्, छ्: प्रकृतिन्वे 217. V घ्, छ्: –ब्रह्माक्षराणाञ्च

218. ङ्: सृस्थिरास्या; झ्: मृष्टिरास्या; Other MSs: सृष्टिराध्या; V SamP and all other MSs: –रास्या

219. All MSs: क्रमोदयम्. In an extra repeated passage above in MSs घ् and छ् after verse 19/24 where this line appears, we find the regular masculine form. Moreover, there is little support for a deviant gender in the rest of the text.

220. ङ्: –मेण; छ्: अतुलोमेन 221. M → N. 222. M → N.

223. Missing in MS घ्, झ्: पृथवीं–; ख्, ग्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: पृथिवीं–; V: पृथिव्याहञ्च IM 5. Next quarter missing in V. 224. All MSs: पृथिव्या 225. घ्: हञ्च * * *

226. छ्: –रास्यान्तु; all other MSs: –राश्यास्तु–; V: –राशिस्तु M → F. Cf. 19/59b.

227. घ्: –त; all other MSs: उतप्रोतं

228. All MSs: जग–। V: उतप्रातमसेषत: One wonders whether to emend or not. See above, note to 6/134d. 229. V: दीप तेन 230. घ्, छ्, ङ्: अन्त–

231. ङ्: –रं 232. घ्: तस्मान्–; ङ्: छब्दराश्यादौ; all other MSs: तस्मां तच्छराश्यादौ; V: तस्माच्चारदोशब्दराश्यां

233. SamP and all MSs: गजेन्द्रा– 234. घ्, छ्: बीज

235. क्: आद्यन्त 236. ङ्: संपुतं

237. SamP: –रास्या–. M → F. Cf.19/55c.

238. SamP: ख्, घ्, ङ्, ज्, झ्: न्यसे; छ्: न्यस 239. ङ्: –तंयुतं

240. ख्: गृह्यं. See above, note to 5/64d. 241. SamP: शक्त्याशन–

242. ङ्: –त 243. All MSs except ज्: तदध:स्थितम्. IC. But see above, note to 3/41c. 244. SamP : षडविधं 245. ङ्: –यत्

246. SamP and all MSs: सुरैर्भेद्य 247. Although these words are conjoined by sandhi they are treated together as a compound.

248. ख्, छ्, ज्, झ्: –मूर्द्ध; ङ्: ऊर्द्धमुर्द्ध; SamP: –मूर्द्धं

249. SamP: घ्, छ्, ज्: पूर्व; ङ्: पूर्वं

250. छ्: दक्षिणोत्तर; SamP and all other MSs: पश्चिमं

251. ग्, घ्, ङ्: –त्तर; छ्: पश्चिमं 252. झ्: –स 253. घ्: भुक्रीशं

254. M → N. Cf. above, 1/3d and note. 255a. एत; IC.

255b. All MSs: सिद्ध 256. SamP: –योक्तव्या; all MSs except क्: –यो–

257. ङ्: –षट्क

258. All MSs except ख्, छ्, ज्, झ्: वरानने; ङ्: वराणन

259. SamP: ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्, झ्: –पेन; घ्, छ्: पेनै

260. SamP and all MSs except घ्, छ्: अतांदिषु 261. छ्: कुर्याद्

262. SamP: ख्, ङ्, ज्, झ्: ह्चिरेण 263. ङ्: –र

264. See above, note to 3/12c.

265. घ्, छ्: –धोच्चरेत्; ज्: षद्विधोद्धरेत्; SamP: षट्–; By dropping the neuter ending and forming sandhi with the stems कूट– and –विध– two syllables have been saved to accomodate the metre in this pada.

266. ज्: षद्–; SamP: षट्भि: 267. ङ्; स्वरै–

268. घ्, झ्: –भुषणाम्, ङ्: –भूषण; ण् शिरोभूषणम्, the regular form, makes the fifth syllable long.

269. छ्: नीलककण्ठं; झ्: –कंठ

270. घ्: शिखया; ङ्: शिषा; छ्, ज्: शिखां; SamP and all other MSs: शिकां; the instrumental required here, is too long for the metre.

271. SamP and all MSs except ख्, ग्, घ्: योज्य 272. SamP: वर्मस्थंमेक–

273. झ्: नेत्रयो–, ङ्: –योन्यस्य 274. ङ्: –रास्त्रे; SamP and all other MSs: कपिलास्त्रे
275. ङ्: भैरवीः
276. झ्: षड्भि–; SamP: षट्–. युक्तानि has been reduced to युक्ता for the metre.
277. घ्: –आध्यस्; छ्: –नाद्यस्; all other MSs: –नाद्यः; SamP: –नाद्यस्
278. SamP: झ्, छ्, ज्: भवेन्यासन् 279. Missing in MSs झ् 280. ङ्: संपुतेन
281. All MSs except क्: –गाः 182. SamP: व्यापकं त्वेन
283. SamP and all MSs: सदीप्ता 284. All MSs except घ्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: एषा
285. SamP and all MSs: सदीप्ता– –ता
286. ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्, झ्: न्ययते; Cf. 18/46d.
287. ग्: –हा; other MSs except ख्, ङ्, छ्, ज्, झ्: –मुक्तारिहो
288. घ्, छ्: सा, ङ्: मोहि; all other MSs: सोहि
289. क्: –राश्य–; छ्: –राश्या–; other MSs: –रास्या– 290. ङ्: –क्षोभंस्तथा
291. See 5/33d and note. 292. M → N. 293. ङ्: परमंवित्तियत्र
294. ख्, ङ्, झ्: –प्राप्तिमुक्तो; ग्, घ्: –प्रप्तिमुक्तो; छ्, ज्: –स्थानेपदप्राप्तिमुक्तो
295. M → N. 296. घ्, छ्: अधिस्थानं
297. M → N. See above, note to 1/4a.
298. All MSs except क्, ग्, घ्: रासौ
299. See above, note to 1/5a. 300. All MSs except क्: –राशि
301. All MSs: स्मृतं 302. All MSs: रुद्र्तवं–; ग्, घ्: मुतिर्–, ङ्: मूर्त्ति–
303. घ्, छ्: यस्या; all other MSs: तस्या
304. ख्, ङ्, छ्, ज्, झ्: मूर्त्ति–; घ्: –नवात्तनं. See above, note to 3/10d.
305. See 18/24b and note. 306. ख्, ग्, ङ्, झ्: –वर्त्तः; घ्: हृगुर्ल्लाकलसंवर्त्त; छ्: भृगुर्लाकुलसंवर्तर्; ज्: भृगुर्लाकुलसंवर्तः; SamP: भृगुर्ला–; As often happens, this coordinative compound is in the singular. It is treated as masculine, whereas most members of this list are, as usual, treated as neuter.
307. ङ्, छ्, ज्: पिनाकितं 308. घ्: चाद्यं–; झ्: चार्घा–
309. M → N. 310. See above, note to 3/52c.
311. ग्: चतुतपिणं 312. ग्: + दीपनंशब्दराशिकं
313. घ्: एस; छ्: एष 314. M → N. 315. Cf. 3/10d.
316. ङ्: विछीशं; all other MSs: विच्छीशं
317. This line is missing in MS ग् 318. All MSs: कलस्यैव
319. This line is missing in MS ग्
320. IM 5 + 6. See above, note to 6/10b.
321. घ्, छ्: त्रिवलीं–; ज्: –लीत्तर– 322. This line is missing in MS ग्
323. SamP: ङ्, छ्, ज्: तूर्यन्तं 324. घ्: तत्र–
325. This line is missing in MS ग्
326. घ्: भंभावयोत्; ङ्: सभाद–; छ्: भंभावयेत्
327. This line is missing in MS ग् 328. IM 6 + 7.
329. ङ्: पुषोज्वलम् missing. 330. ग्, ज्: तद्वर्म–
331. –हारिणी would be correct but too long for the metre.
332. All MSs except क्, ख्, घ्, छ्, ज्: तेजाख्या. See above, note to 4/11d.
333. SamP: –स्थान 334. क्: दात्रि–
335. ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्, झ्: स्फुरनाद्यं; घ्: स्फरत्काद्यां; छ्: स्फुरन्ताद्यां
336. All MSs: अंकुशा– 337. All MSs except क्, झ्: –ग्रन्थो

338. All MSs: इकारान्ता 339. All MSs: शिवः–; SamP: –शक्तिर्–
340. M → N. 341. ग्, घ्, छ्: ऊर्द्ध; ज्: ऊर्द्धे
342. ग्: + शिर्त्रषु देवंनवान्मानं विच्छिशंवृक्षनायकं; M → N. 343. M → N.
344. ग्: नास्ति 345. छ्: मुहुम्मुहुः 346. All MSs: तुर्यस्थं
347. M → N. See above, note to 3/46b.
348. ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्, झ्: –क्रम 349. IC. See above, note to 1/5b.
350. Cf. below, 58/16b and 64/24b. 351. SamP: भिहितो–
352. Missing in MS छ्
353. छ्: + च. A locative would be consistent here. 354. ङ्: –कं
355. ङ्: सवं 356. SamP: छ्: –धिस्थितं 357. All MSs: तयो
358. DS. The position of यथा तथा has been reversed.
359. All MSs: –संकाशं. IC. 360. घ्, छ्: –र; IM 6 + 7.
361. घ्: मंजिसकृशं; ङ्, ज्, झ्: मजिष्ठ–; छ्: –सहृशं
362. ज्: ह्यल्काग्निवग्; झ्: ह्य– 363. IM 6 + 7. 364. घ्: –यो
365. छ्: –श. IM 6 + 7. 366. M → N.
367. क्: सिद्ध्यारिभो; ख्, ग्, ज्, झ्: सिद्ध्यारिहो; घ्: –हो; ङ्: सिद्धारिहो
368. ज्: –वृंर्हितं 369. All MSs: –नेषु 370. घ्: षडेक्रम–
371. All MSs except घ्, छ्: –ने 372. ग्, घ्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: –गाः
373. झ्: कु *–. M → N. 374. M → N. 375. घ्, छ्, ज्: इत्याद्या–
376. ख्, ङ्, झ्: आद्यपीठमार्गे; घ्, छ्, ज्: –वतारिते
377. Missing in MS ख्, ङ् and झ्.
378. घ्, छ्: अम्वा–; other MSs: अथा–
379. ग्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: –धिकारे–

NOTES OF THE TRANSLATION OF CHAPTER NINETEEN

1. This is the Wheel of the Command where the Fourth state is experienced (see above 3/133). The Point there is identified with the Divine Will (icchā). It is in the centre of the triangle in which the letters of the alphabet that constitute the Assembly of Sounds are written. Placed above each letter in the form of anusvāra, it transforms it into a seed-syllable mantra. These seed-syllables are the waves of nectar of this, the Ocean of the Point (bindvarṇava).

2. Varṇa (lit 'letter'), śabda (lit. 'word') and rava (lit. 'sound') all denote the same ultimate reality, namely the Sound Absolute embodied in the figure of Bhairava, the Assembly of Sounds (śabdarāśi) who is the subject of this chapter. In these verses we are told that it is represented by the Point in the centre of the Triangle which, in the form of anusvāra, is conjoined with each letter making up the fifty aspects of the Assembly of Sounds. The Point, as we have had occasion to observe on several occasions, is the goddess as the Transmental (unmanā) which is the Command. Indirectly, therefore, we are told here that the divine energy of the Command is also the energy of mantra which, pervading the letters, transforms them into mantras. This is the Sound of Kubjikā, the Yoginī who is the energy of Speech (vācchakti).

3. These four Yogic states are discussed in the KMT chapter 17-19. There they constitute the last group of four of the Sequence of Twenty-eight. See also beginning of chapter 11 of the KMT where they are equated with the four seats, and below at 44/6cd-8ab for the same equation. This identification implies that the four states are included in the Triangle. Beyond Form is the Command, the Transmental in the center, from which the other three originate and which thus contains them. Here this is called the Stainless (nirañjana).

4. Kuṇḍalinī is also said to be the Body of fifty letters. As such she is Taraṅginī. See above note to 2/34cd-35ab.

5. Concerning the Tree of Speech see intro. vol. 2 p. 118 ff..

6. The expression 'kārikākramasantati' also means 'the lineage of the transmission of the (goddess) who acts'.

7. The transmission begins with the Rudra called Bhargas or Bhargojāta – the sun. See above, note to 2/7cd-8ab. Above (see 8/26cd) the alphabet, each letter of which is governed by a Siddha, is called the 'sequence (krama) of *mātṛkā*s'. Śabdarāśi is the assembly of the fifty 'male' letters. When these are understood to be energies it is called the Sequence of Mātṛkās who are their fifty female counterparts. One could say, in general terms, that they are the partners of the Bhairavas but in more elaborate expositions and practical applications, they are the Yoginīs (who could also be called *mātṛkā*s) who govern the letters of the Mālinī alphabet. The Yoginī of the letter a particular Bhairava governs couples (with him) in the corresponding triangular compartment (i.e. yoni) of the goddess's Triangle. We notice that the Yoginīs of the letters of the Mālinī alphabet give up their place in the Mālinī sequence when coupling with their corresponding Bhairava. In this case, the female must adapt to the male for union to take place. In other cases, as for example when Bhairava does the rounds of the sacred seats (as described in chapter six above), the mobile, transforming male must adapt to the fixed, unchanging female.

8. According to the Ṭīkā, the form of the mantra for each of the letters is: 1) the letter, 2) the name of the presiding deity, in the dative and 3) the part of the body where it is found in the locative. Thus, for example, the first letter is deposited on top of the head by touching that part with the fingers of the right hand whilst uttering a śrīkaṇṭhāya śirasi.

According to the Ṭīkā (fl. 140a) the Five Praṇavas are first deposited on the thumb and fingers up to the little finger in order to purify and energize them. They are then are deposited in the following five places on the head: AIṀ – right eye, HRĪṀ – left eye, ŚRĪṀ – left nostril, KHPHREṀ – right nostril, and HSŪAUṀ – mouth. Next, the sixteen vowels are deposited on sixteen parts of the head. Then the consonants are deposited in groups on the rest of the body. The first four groups of five are placed on the arms and legs, right and left. Then one group of five covers parts of the trunk of the body. Then two groups of four correspond to the bodily constituents (dhātu) along with the letter KṢa, which represents all the constituents collectively. According to the Ṭīkā, the group of vowels is governed by the male deity and the remaining groups by the Mothers, which in this case are seven, not eight. The layout in our text differs. Here there are eight Mothers, one for each of the groups. There is an extra principle, which is, perhaps, what the goddess refers to as 'the energy of my own body'. This is related to the semi-vowels that correspond to the first four of the eight constituents of the body. The remaining four constituents, represented by the spirants, are governed by Cāmuṇḍā. Thus, Mahālakṣmī, who governs KṢa, is the ninth. Unlike the account here, the Ṭīkā attributes the limb marked by the letters of each group to the presiding deity of that group as noted in the following table.

1. A Comparative Table of the Mothers Governing the Classes of Letters and their Locations

Category of letters	Diety (KuKh)	Deity (Ṭīkā)	Limb (Ṭīkā)
Vowels	Brahmāṇī	Mahākaulīśa	Head
Gutturals	Māheśvarī	Brahmāṇī	Right arm
Palatals	Kaumārī	Māheśvarī	Left arm
Cerebrals	Vaiṣṇavī	Kaumārī	Right leg
Dentals	Vārāhī	Vaiṣṇavī	Left leg
Labials	Indrāṇī	Vārāhī	Trunk of the body
Semi-vowels	?	Indrāṇī	Four *dhātu*s
Spirants	Cāmuṇḍā	Cāmuṇḍā	Four *dhātu*s
KṢa	Mahālakṣmī	Mahālakṣmī	Eyebrows. All *dhātu*s

9. See appendix 7 of this volume for a table of the letters and their corresponding B hairavas and locations on the body of the Assembly of Sounds.

10. All MSs and am SamP read vekalāntaṁ here. I have emended this to dve kalānte. If Kalā is Ū, then the end of Ū is Ṛ and Ṝ which is below Ū. But it seems that Kalā is U if the head of Mahendra is Ū. Otherwise Mahendra would be Ḍa which is inconsistant with what is said next.

11. If Mahendra is Ṝ, the two letter preceded by it are ḷ and Ḷ, which is correct.

12. Rājendra may be AI, which precedes O and AU. Or else, if the correct translation is ‘the two that precede Rājendra’, then Rājendra is Ṁ.

13. Dha is Girijā. Its seat is Ṁ.

14. This must be the uvula, whose letter is Ṁ.

15. The gods of the letters (variously called Bhairavas, Rudras and Siddhas) that preside over the letters that constitute the body of Śabdarāśibhairava are not mentioned. Instead, the Tantra takes care to refer to the Mothers who preside over the classes of letters. In other presentations of Śabdarāśi they are omitted or sometimes, as in the AS, their presence is emphasized (see appendix 5 of this volume). Note that in this context, at least, an equivalent male presence in the female body of Mālinī is absent.

16. The right hand is Gha. So it appears that Hanumān is Kha as Gha is above Kha.

17. The letter Ca is above Pha in the grid. In this sense, I suppose, Pha precedes it.

18. In this case I suppose the head of the letter Ca is the one that follows it in alphabetical order.

19. Gauryā or Gaurī is Ī. Ṭa is the letter that comes after it in the grid.

20. According to the ṢSS the limb of the body corresponding to this letter is the right buttock. According to the KnT it is the right shank. The ṢSS appears to be correct as the right shank is mentioned separately next.

21. The seat below Gaurī which is Ī is Ṭha.

22. The Great Conch should be the letter Śa. Below this is Da.

23. This should therefore be the letter Ṣa.

24. As Na is the required letter, Anaṅga must be visarga.

25. Blood is Ra. Above it is the letter Bha.

26. KṢa is located behind the letter Ha, which is in the centre of the Meruprastāra. This is represented by writing this conjunct consonant in a box attached to the bottom of the middle box in the bottom row of the Meruprastāra. See diagram in vol. 4, note 19. Here this conjunct consonant, treated as an independent letter, is said to be conjoined with Emission and so the form of its corresponding seed-syllable is KṢAḤ.

27. See below 24/96.

28. The AS explains the invariable relationship between Mālinī and Śabdarāśi as that between Śiva and Śakti, creation and destruction, that pervades every single thing:

Without Śabdarāśi, (Mālinī) has no power. In this way, the play of emanation and withdrawal takes place everywhere in the universe, the triple world, moving and immobile. When Śabdarāśi is present (sthita), this primordial (ādi) emanation is present in the lineage. When Mālinī is present, it is said to be beginingless withdrawal. (Thus) the triple world is woven warp and woof with the distinction (bheda) between being and non-being. One who knows this from the teacher (guru) is (himself) said to be an excellent teacher (deśika). Otherwise the accomplishment (siddhi) in the lineage, the Command endowed with pulsing radiance (sasphura), wanes away. He who is ignorant of this does not belong to (any) lineage, he is devoid of the teaching and authority. O Lord of the gods, if he knows the oneness (sāmarasya) of Mālinī and Śabdaraśi as Śiva and Śivā, then the Command is endowed with pulsing radiance. He is certainly qualified for the initiation by piercing.

śabdarāśiṁ [-rāśi] vinā cāsyāḥ [-syā] śaktitvaṁ [śaktistvaṁ] vidyate na hi ||
itthaṁ sarvatra jagati [-tāṁ] trailokye sacarācare |
sṛṣṭisaṁhārayogena etat krīḍanakaṁ sthitam ||
śabdarāśisthite [-to] ādisṛṣṭir eṣā sthitānvaye |
mālinī tu sthitānādiḥ saṁhāraḥ parikīrtitaḥ ||
astināstivibhedena otaprotaṁ [otatprota] jagattrayam |
etad yo vetti [veti] gurutaḥ sa deśikavaraḥ [-ra] smṛtaḥ ||
anyathā nānvaye [anvaye] siddhiḥ sasphurājñā vihīyate |
pāramparyavinirmuktaḥ [-kto] upadeśavivarjitaḥ ||
adhikāravihīnas tu bhavate [bhavante] yo na vetti tat [taḥ] |
sāmarasyaṁ [-rasya] śivābhyāṁ tu mālinīśabdarāśayoḥ ||
yadi jānāti deveśa tadājñā sasphurā bhavet |
vedhadīkṣādhikāras tu bhavet tasya na saṁśayaḥ || AS 5/112cd-118

29. Thus, I suppose, we get the following six syllables: KHSKṢMLYAṀ KHSKṢMLYIṀ KHSKṢMLYUṀ KHSKṢMLYṚṀ KHSKṢMLYEṀ KHSKṢMLYOṀ.

30.

2. Table of the Six Faces of Śabdarāśi

Direction of Face	Deity	Seed-syllable
Above the upper	Tūṣṇīśa	KHSKṢMLYAṀ
Upper	Kulīśa	KHSKṢMLYIṀ
East	Śrīkaṇṭha (Aghora)	KHSKṢMLYUṀ
West	Uttareśa	KHSKṢMLYṚṀ
South	Anantīśa	KHSKṢMLYEṀ
North	Sadāśiva	KHSKṢMLYOṀ

31. Unfortunately, I have not been able to decipher the code to arrive at the form of the seed-syllables of the limbs. The letters of the first one appear to be Kha Ha and Sa and the sixth limb La. To this seed-syllable the six long vowels (i.e. Ā Ī Ū AI AU and AḤ) and anusvāra are added to make the six varieties. Thus, the first syllable is KH H S * * LĀṀ.

32.

3. The Deities of the Limbs of the Assembly of Sounds

Limb	Bhairava (KuKh)	Bhairava (AS)
Heart	Aghora	Kulīśa
Head	Amogha	Vimala
Topknot	Nīlakaṇṭha	Ananta
Armour	Ekavīra	Ciñciṇī
Eye	Piṅgala	Kadamba
Weapon	Kapāla	Kālāgni

The second column records the names of the Bhairavas of the six limbs of Śabdarāśibhairava. Those in the third column are taken from the Ambāmatasaṁhitā (5/128cd-129).

33. Cf. 19/56.

34. The AS (5/131ff.) describes how the figure of 'the best of men' (puruṣottama) (AS 5/134ab) should be drawn and the letters of the Assembly of Sounds projected into him. This, I suppose, is the Person of the Word (śabdapuruṣa), who is transferred into the body of the adept.

35. Navātman i.e. HSKṢMLVRYŪṀ is the basic sonic form of the Bhairava who is Kubjikā's consort. According to the KRU (8/69ab), Navātman's subtle form is the Assembly of Sounds (śabdarāśi), that is, the fifty letters of the alphabet present in the inner movement of the sonic energy of Kuṇḍalinī, which in this verse is called 'the form of Rudra's being' (rudratvamūrti). His gross, visualized form, called Śabdarāśi-Navātman, is described in the KRU (8/70cd-79). By conjoining this syllable to each of the letters, they are transformed into mantras, each of which has its sphere of influence or 'wheel' (cakra). The Assembly of Sounds – Śabdarāśi – is thus essentially the Word Absolute –

Śabdabrahman – understood to be the assembly of the energies of the letters, transformed by the addition of Navātman into powerful mantras. The god explains this to the goddess in the KRU:

> O mistress of the gods, mantras and the Lords of Mantras have come forth from me. Mantras are said to be (the letters) beginning with A and ending with KṢa, which are fifty in number. O mother of Kula, the Lords of Mantra are (the Bhairavas) beginning with Śrīkaṇṭha and ending with Saṁvarta. The past, present and future are all accomplished by means of the Word (śabda), and Word originates from Letter. Word is nowhere perceived devoid of Letter. You and I, O large-eyed one, are established as Word. This (has assumed the form of) an aggregate (samudāyagata) in the imperishable liturgy of the Word. They are (all) associated with Navātman and (each) possessing Wheels are in the form of Wheels.

utpannā mama deveśi mantrā mantreśvarās tathā ||
ādikṣāntāḥ [k, kh:-khyātā] smṛtā mantrāḥ [gh: mantrā] śatārdhaparisaṅkhyayā |
śrīkaṇṭhādyāś ca mantreśāḥ saṁvartāntāḥ [kh: saṁsaṁvartānāḥ; g: -ntā; gh: savartātā] kulāmbike ||
bhūtaṁ [gh: bhūta] bhavyaṁ [gh: bhavī] bhaviṣyaṁ ca vartamānaṁ [kh: varṇṇamānaṁ] tathaiva ca |
śabdena sādhyate [g: sādhya] sarvaṁ [g: sarvasa] śabdo [k, kh: śabde] varṇasamudbhavaḥ [g: varṇamanudbhavaḥ] ||
na varṇena vinā śabdaṁ kvacid evopalabhyate [g: evoparabhyate] |
ahaṁ tvaṁ ca viśālākṣi śabdanāmapratiṣṭhitau [g: -tisthitau] || samudāyagataś cāyaṁ akṣarākṣarapaddhatau [g: -varddhatau] |
navātmanā yutā hyete sacakrāś cakrarūpiṇaḥ [k: -cakrakrarūpiṇaḥ] ||
KRU 5/71cd-75

36. Cf. above, 3/49.

37. Navātman is Vṛkṣīśa, more commonly known as Vṛkṣanātha, the Lord of the Tree (see above 2/29-31 and notes). The Tree grows out from the Point formed from the combined seed of the god and the goddess in the centre of the Triangle in the core of the maṇḍala (see above, note to 6/9). Like the goddess, the god also resides in a tree of which he is the master. Wrapped around this, the Tree of Brahmā, is Kuṇḍalinī, the energy of Speech that spirals around it in three and a half coils on which are strung the energies of the letters that fill the Triangle.

38. See above, 3/37cd-38ab where the Vidyā in the form of the goddess's triangle is depicted in the same way as sitting close to Śambhu, that is, in union with him (see note 96 to 3/63-64ab and cf. 7/52cd-53ab).

39. Concerning the Knot of Brahmā, see note to 7/40cd-41ab.

40. Alternatively one could translate: 'is Śiva's (extreme) limit (avadhi).'

41. In this context Śiva is Śabdarāśi and Śakti is Mālinī. Deposited from the top of the head to the tips of the nails of the toes and back, they generate energy which expands out in the Teacher's Mouth, the Triangle in the centre. This is Nirvāṇa and the Abode of the Thirty-two syllable Vidyā (see below 22/19). This is where they unite. Thus the yogi experiences the Fourth realised state of consciousness of Śabdarāśi Śiva and the Transmental energy of the Command of Mālinī, the Yoni, in a union with him that leads to the liberated state Beyond the Fourth (turīyātīta).

42. The Five Jewels in this case are the Five Praṇavas (see below 24/103cd-115). Thus the ŚM enjoins that: 'one should deposit Navātman encapsulated with the Five Praṇavas (praṇavādyantasaṁpuṭena navātmānaṁ ca vinyaset | ŚM 22/119cd). A variant of this deposition of the letters of Navātman is found in some manuscripts of the ŚM (after ibid. 22/117). Each of the nine units there consists of 1) The Five Praṇavas 2) a letter of Navātman 3) the place of depostion on the body in the locative 3) the salutation 'NAMAḤ' 4) the Five Praṇavas. Thus, for example, the first unit is: AIṀ 5 HA ŚIKHĀSTHĀNE NAMAḤ AIṀ 5. The variables are: 1) Ha – the location of the topknot 2) Sa – the head 3) KṢa – the forehead 4) Ma – the mouth 5) La – the heart 6) Va – navel 7) Ra –genitals 8) Ya – knees 9) ŪṀ – the two feet.

'The location of the topknot' may be taken to be the Cavity of Brahmā on the crown of the head. The second place – the head – is missing here, and instead of the knees there are the thighs and the shanks.

43. The text reads āraktaṁ śuddhadhavalaṁ but there is no substantive qualified by these adjectives. The armour is the next limb that follows in serial order, so presumably that is meant.

44. See above notes to 4/10-11ab.

NOTES OF THE SANSKRIT TEXT OF CHAPTER TWENTY

1. ख्: अनुमा 2. ग्: श्रा– 3. ख्, ङ्: –नी
4. घ्, छ्: पुनरत्यन्तिकंटकं; ङ्: पुनरत्यविकंटकं; ज्: पुनरत्यविकश्रृकं; झ्: पुनलत्यविकश्रृकं; other MSs: - विकश्रृकं. 5. घ्, छ्: –यः 6. ग्: * भा
7. IM 5. 8. क्: प्रथम 9. घ्: * चचत्वारिंशा–; ङ्: –त्वारिशाक्षरो. The ordinal has replaced the cardinal –चत्वारिंशत् for the sake of the metre. See above, note to 3/9c. 10. घ्, झ्: आद्यमृतं
11. क्, ग्, ङ्, छ्, ज्, झ्: खा– 12. All MSs: –योनिः–
13. See above, note to 5/64d. 14. IC. बिन्दु is treated as if it were neuter.
15. ङ्: –तण्। अर्धचन्द्राकृत्यान्वितम् (M → N) would be correct but the fifth syllable is long. 16. All MSs: उका–
17. क्, ग्, झ्: –मसुकम्; ख् चानांमसुकं; ज्: चानंगमसूकं
18. ङ्: पादे; ग्: पाद्र; ज्: पाद्रे 19. All MSs except घ्: भद्रे
20. All MSs: –ग्रहस्यधि – 21. This line is missing in MSs छ् and झ्
22. क्: –सेन– 23. घ्: ए; all other MSs: स
24. घ्: एवै; ग्, ज्, झ्: एवधि 25. झ्: वेधक्रान्तं; ङ्: वेधका * न्तां; छ्: वैधका–; all other MSs except घ्: वेधकान्भांतं 26. क्, ग्, ज्: चै 27. क्, ग्: तृतीय
28. घ्: पूर्वाद्यं षोध; छ्: –वाद्यं षाध; all other MSs: क्, ग्: –धसंस्था; all other MSs: –ध ।
29. क्, ग्: मढन्तं; ङ्: + भानु; other MSs: मढान्तं
30. All MSs: घाधस्थं + तु । See above, note to 3/41c.
31. क्, ख्, ग्: गौरि– 32. All MSs: भवा– 33. ग्: ईश्वराक्रन्तं
34. क्, ग्, ज्: रावातं, ख्, ङ्, झ्: रावतं35. क्: ई
36. All MSs: चैवे–; क्, ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: त्व; ख्, ग्: त्वद्; झ्: त्वं
37. See note to 1/2d. 38. घ्: घनातं; ङ्, झ्: घनासं; all other MSs except छ्: घनांसं 39. All MSs except घ्, छ्: सार्द्ध
40. See note to 1/2d. 41. All MSs: पदामव
42. ख्, ङ्, झ्: द्विजा–; घ्, छ्: विधा– 43. All MSs except घ्, ङ्, छ्: एकारे च 44. क्, ग्, ङ्: पंज– 45. All MSs: विसर्गस्थो–
46. ग्: द्विरभासं. See note to 1/2d. 47. ग्: विच्च– 48. ङ्: –व
49. घ्, छ्: पञ्चचत्वारिंशति; all other MSs: पञ्चचत्वारिंशतिः. The adjectival form –चत्वारिंशती is attested in four places (see 9/68a, 13/151b, 68/64d and 68/80a) and is more appropriate than the deviant cardinal of the MSs (for which see note to 3/9c) and so has been emended accordingly. Note also that this pāda is one syllable too long. 50. घ्, छ्: प्रोक्तास्– 51. छ्: * *पराह्येषा
52. ङ्: आधारां; all other MSs: आधारान् 53. IC.
54. All MSs except ङ्, छ्: मृता–
55. All MSs except घ्, ङ्, छ्: क्षत–. कृत्वा– would be better but makes the fifth syllable long. See note to 3/10d. Cf. 31/40a.
56. ख्, ङ्: शावस्योर्द्ध–; छ्: रावस्योधमधः–; all other MSs except घ्: गावस्योर्ध–
57. See above, note to 3/119d. 58. छ्: सार्ध 59. All MSs: पुरं
60. क्, ग्: अष्कष्टा– 61. घ्, छ्: ज्वरिका
62. क्, ख्, ङ्, ज्, झ्: तस्योर्द्ध; घ्, छ्: तस्योर्द्धे. DS.
63. All MSs except घ्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: पक्षस्तु
64. All MSs except घ्, झ्: पृथु 65. घ्, छ्: तत्र

66. क्: –कयोति; ग्: कयाति 67. All MSs: जिह्ना
68. झ्: ज्ञेवेरा–; all other MSs except ङ्, घ्, छ्: ज्ञवेरा–
69. All MSs: स्मृत: 70. क्: वहुवासिनी. This line appears also above as 8/94cd. See also note to 7/7d. 71. ङ्: सां–
72. क्, ग्: तटधरे व्यसनं; ख्, घ्: तदधभ्य–; ङ्: तदधस्थासनं; ज्: तदधस् व्यसनं. Although the reading in three MSs is correct Sanskrit, I have chosen to emend to the standard deviant form found in this text. See above, note to 3/41c.
73. M → N. 74. क्: हृदयं– 75. घ्: –ने
76. All MSs: स 77. Just as साम्भवम्, the spelling generally found here, has been standardized throughout to शाम्भवम्, so too आनवम् has been standardized to आणवम्. No note is made of this unless the difference may be significant.
78. छ्, ज्: आनवं 79. छ्, ज्: एत 80. घ्, छ्: –क
81. Cf. 18/46a. 82a. घ्, छ्: निजायते; all other MSs जिजायते
82b. All MSs: मालिन्या 83. ग्, ङ्, ज्: एत; छ्: एवं 84. All MSs: येषां
85. For the use of this genitive with तुष्ट– rather than the required instrumental, cf. below 26/90ab. See also above, note to 5/62a.
86. All MSs: ज्ञायन्ति 87. ख्, ग्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: –दा; all other MSs: भेदा:
88. क्, ख्: –ता:; all other MSs: –ता 89. घ्: –तां. IM 6 + 7.
90. M → N. See above, note to 7/12d.
91. झ्: त्रिणि. IC. See 1/2c, 6/22c and notes. 92. ङ्: तृपीठं
93. त्रिदेवता would be correct. 94. Here, apparently, is one of the rare instances in which the masculine noun वृक्ष– is not treated as neuter. See above, note to 6/10b. 95. छ्: गुहात्रीणि
96. ग्, झ्: * शक्ति–; घ्: * सप्ति–; ङ्, ज्: त्रिशक्ति–; छ्: त्रिसप्तिगुण–; all MSs except घ्, छ्: –लाम्. M → N. 97. This line is found only in MSs छ् and ज्.
98. ख्, ङ्: * * मन्थान्– 99. Missing in MS घ् and छ् 100. ख्, ङ्:
–परमेश्वेरे 101. क्: विद्या–

NOTES OF THE TRANSLATION OF CHAPTER TWENTY

1. Line 20/2ab is too corrupt in the MSs to reconstruct.

2. Chapter 11 of the ṢSS deals with the Aghoryaṣṭaka, Trividyā and Tadgraha which are presented in chapters 21, this one and 23, respectively. The Triple Vidyā is presented in chapter 18 of the KMT (which corresponds to chapter 27 and 30 of the ṢSS). The Parāparā Vidyā is presented in KMT 18/4-24, the Aparā Vidyā in KMT 18/25-29 and the Parā Vidyā in KMT 18/30-31. The variants of the Vidyās in these sources will be compared with the ones here.

The passage there concludes by stressing the intimate relationship between the Triple Vidyā with Mālinī and Śabdarāśi and its essentially unitary nature, related to the Trika triad of goddesses Parā, Parāparā and Aparā:

> Conjoined with the utterance of the Praṇava, the (triple) Vidyā consists of the three principles (Śiva, Vidyā and the Self) and she is established in the form (mūrti) of Śabdarāśi and Mālinī. She burns with the qualities of a body made of the Vidyās. KMT 18/32.

3. The text of this chapter is corrupt in places in the MSs., It appears that the Parāparā Vidyā, reconstructed by comparing with its version embedded in the Tadgraha mantra presented in chapter twenty-three, is:

AGHORE HRĪṀ PARAMAGHORE HRAUṀ GHORARŪPE HAḤ GH(O)RĀMUKHI BHĪMABHĪṢAṆI VAMA VAMA PIVA PIVA HA HE RU KṢA RU KṢA RAḤ RAḤ VICCE AIṀ HRĪṀ HAUṀ

The whole Vidyā embedded in Tadgraha below in chapter 23 is:

AGHORE HRĪṀ PARAMAGHORE HRAUṀ GHORARŪPE HAḤ GHORAMUKHI BHĪMABHĪṢAṆI VAMA VAMA PIVA PIVA HA HE RU RU RA RA VICCE AIṀ HRĪṀ HŪṀ HRĪṀ AIṀ HRĪṀ AIṀ KṢAṀ HRĪṀ HSRAUṀ

The first forty-five syllables of the Triple Vidyā inserted into the mantra Tadgraha presented below in chapter twenty-three are as follows:

AGHORE HRĪṀ PARAMAGHORE HRAUṀ GHORARŪPE HAḤ GHORAMUKHI BHĪMABHĪṢAṆI VAMA VAMA PIVA PIVA HA HE RU RU RA RA VICCE AIṀ HRĪṀ HŪṀ HRĪṀ AIṀ

The remaining five syllables of the two other Vidyās combined embedded in Tadgraha are: HRĪṀ AIṀ KṢAṀ HRĪṀ HSAUṀ. See below footnote to 23/1.

The Parāparā Vidyā according to the KMT consists of forty-two and a half syllables (ibid. 18/24ab). The syllables are presented there (KMT 18/4-24) in the Śabdarāśi code in reverse order. What Goudriaan refers to as an 'extended' version of the Parāparā Vidyā (rather than all three) is inserted into the version of Tadgraha of the KMT. The variants and added syllables are noted in brackets:

AIṀ (Tadgraha: + HRĪṀ) AGHORE HRĪṀ HSAḤ PARAMAGHORE HŪṀ GHORARŪPE HSAUṀ GHORAMUKHI BHĪMABHĪṢAṆE VAMA (Tadgraha: + VAMA) PIVA PIVA HAḤ (Tadgraha: HA) HE RU RU (Tadgraha: + RU RU) RA RA (Tadgraha: + RA RA) HRĪṀ HRŪṀ (Tadgraha: HŪṀ) PHREṀ HŪṀ (Tadgraha: HSAUḤ) PHAṬ (Tadgraha: AIṀ)

The three parts of the triple Vidyā are also extracted in ṢSS 11/1 ff. There the Parāparā Vidyā is called Parā Vidyā and the Parā, Parāparā. The Parāparā (= ṢSS Parā) consists, as it does here, of forty-five syllables. According to the ṢSS (11/2-30) it is as follows:

AIṀ HRĪṀ AGHORE HRĪṀ HSAḤ PARAMAGHORE HŪṀ GHORARŪPE HSAUṀ GHORAMUKHI BHĪMABHĪṢAṆE VAMA VAMA PIVA HE HE HE RU RU RA RA SHAIṀ HRŪṀ PHREṀ HRŪṀ AIṀ

The version of the Parāparā Vidyā recorded in the TĀ (30/20-26a and ibid. 16/213-216a, where the Vidyā is presented in the reverse order) consists of thirty-nine and a half syllables and is as follows:

OṀ AGHORE HRĪṀ PARAMAGHORE HUṀ GHORARŪPE HAḤ GHORAMUKHI BHĪMABHĪṢAṆE VAMA PIVA PIVA HE RU RU RA PHAṬ HUṀ HAḤ PHAṬ

4. Here, as in the next few lines, it appears that a part of the text is missing. The three syllables of this part of the Vidyā, namely PARAMA, are clear; as is the last consonant, which is Ra. Following the model of the other versions of the Vidyā, I presume the complete form is PARAMAGHORE.

5. Again referring to the other versions of this Vidyā, it appears that the letter Gha in this part of it has not been mentioned or, more likely, there is a lacuna in the text.

6. Below (21/13bcd-14ab) Prasādabhairava is HRŪṀ. According to the appendix of the Kubjikopaniṣad (p. 158), the syllable of Prasādabhairava is HAUṀ.

7. The three parts of the Vidyā correspond to three 'principles'. Parā corresponds to Śivatattva, Parāparā to Vidyātattva (KMT 18/2) and Aparā to Ātmatattva. See KMT 18/32 and intro. vol. 1, p. 453-454.

8. Just as the previous Vidyā consisted of forty-five syllables in both the ṢSS and our text, the Aparā Vidyā is also three syllables long in both texts. According to the ṢSS (11/30-34) it is: HRĪṀ HŪṀ PHAṬ. The version in the TĀ (30/20cd) it is almost the same, namely: HRĪḤ HŪṀ PHAṬ. According to KMT 18/26b it consists of seven and a half syllables and appears to be: HRAṀ PHREṀ HŪṀ HRAṀ PHREṀ HŪṀ PHAṬ. KMT 18/28b-29 presents a variant (bheda) of the same, namely: AIṀ HRĪṀ HRŪṀ PHREṀ HŪṀ PHAṬ. This is the form found in the Ṭīkā (fl. 71a); the difference is that in the Ṭīkā the penultimate HŪṀ is missing. The two Vidyās, Aparā and Parā combined embedded in Tadgraha below in chapter twenty-three, are: HRĪṀ AIṀ KṢAṀ HRĪṀ HSAUṀ.

9. The first syllable is HRĪṀ so we should get HRĪṀ PHREṀ HRĪṀ. The form is similar to the one embedded in Tadgraha, namely, HRĪṀ AIṀ KṢAṀ HRĪṀ. Perhaps to get to the Vidyā which consists of three and half (adhyuṣṭā) we should add AIṀ. As the syllable of the goddess, who is Kuṇḍalinī in three and half coils, AIṀ could also be called this.

10. The third Vidyā according to the ṢSS (11/36-7ab) (mistakenly called Parāparā there) is HSRAUṀ, as it appears to be here. The last syllable of Tadgraha is this single-syllabled Vidyā. Cf. also below, 23/14.

11. The first line of this verse is the same as 8/92cd above. Above in 8/92cd-94ab the syllable AIṀ, which is the First Praṇava and called there Kuleśvarī Vidyā, is said to be the goddess who dwells in the fire. See note to 3/164-166ab.

12. The ṢSS (11/119 and commentary) explains that the Assembly of Sounds (śabdarāśi) is Śāmbhava, Mālinī is Śākta and the Triple Vidyā is Āṇava. According to 18/38 below, the Heart (consisting of the letters Pa, Sa and Ha) is also of these three types. See note there and intro. vol. 1, p. 474 ff. concerning this important triad.

13. The 'root with three thorns' is the Triple Vidyā which is in three parts. The verse also alludes to the mantra called Tadgraha. It consists of fifty parts (pada). Each part is formed from a letter of the Assembly of Sounds, the corresponding letter in the Mālinī alphabet and a syllable of the Triple Vidyā. The combination of these three, called Trika (below in verse 20/30), is fundamental to the Trika's mantric system and is also esteemed to be 'the root' in the Kubjikā Tantras. Tadgraha is presented below in chapter twenty-three (verses 1 to 20).

14. Each letter corresponds to the sacred seat where the Rudra of that letter resides. These fifty places are listed above 6/212-218. See Dyczkowski 2004: 158, map 1.

15. Cf. below 39/60cd-62 where some of these triads along with others are listed. The three Siddhas considered to be 'within the Triad (trika)' are, as we have seen, Mitranātha, Ṣaṣṭhanātha and Oḍḍīśanātha who reside in the three sacred seats of Kāmarūpa, Pūrṇagiri and Oḍḍiyāna, respectively (see above 2/28 and note). The three deities are Brahmā, Viṣṇu and Maheśvara. The three trees are the Kadamba, Ciñca and the Bilva. Concerning these three trees and their relation to the Wheels in the body and to states of consciousness, see below 46/20-26. According to the KRP fl.15b as reported by Schoterman (1981: 51): Kulācāra holds three caves in high esteem: the Candrākhyā, the Yakṣiṇī and the Śaṅkhinī. According to the ṢSS (1/30), Candraguhā (the Cave of the Moon) is located where emission takes place (visargasthāna), that is, in the Cavity of Brahmā or the End of the Twelve. The three energies are will, knowledge and action. The three Vidyās are Parā, Parāparā and Aparā. The three three channels are Iḍā, Piṅgalā and Suṣumṇā. There are thus eight triads mentioned here, making twenty-four entities altogether. Four triads are listed in 39/60cd-62 where they are related to the three lineages, to conclude that the Tradition (anvaya) consists of triads that relate to the triple division of reality into gross, subtle and supreme.

The following is a table that integrates these two references. I presume that the three deities mentioned here are the three goddesses listed in 39/60cd-62.

4. A Table of Triads

	Supreme	Subtle	Gross
Siddhas	Oḍḍīśanātha	Ṣaṣṭhanātha	Mitranātha
Seats	Oḍḍiyāṇa	Pūrṇagiri	Kāmarūpa
Gestures	Maṭhamudrā	Guhāmudrā	Yonimudrā
Goddesses	Karālā	Padminī	Siddhi
Kula Trees	Kadamba	Ciñcā	Bilva
Caves	Candra	Yakṣiṇī	Śaṅkhinī
Energies	Will	Knowledge	Action
Three Lineages	Skyfarer	Youth	Child
Vidyās	Parā	Parāparā	Aparā
Three Channels	Suṣumṇā	Iḍā	Piṅgalā

NOTES OF THE SANSKRIT TEXT OF CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

1. ङ्: अथांन्या; छ्: –न्य 2. See above, note to 3/22b.

3. DS. See above, note to 6/153d.

4. All MSs: इ The long vowel, attested in other words of this mantra, appears to be more appropriate than the short one, so it has been standardized in all instances. The MSs link ई disjunctively in this way to words in this mantra in as many as four other instances – i.e. परमघोर्या + ई, घोररूपा + ई, घोरमुखा + ई and फेत्कार्या + ई. These are not, of course, regular Sanskrit forms. It would be easy to emend to the intended dative – घोर्या + ई > घोर्यायै – a reading supported by the KMT and SKh. Indeed it is possible that sandhi is intended to take place. This, perhaps, is what is meant by saying घोरमुखा ईकारस्वरभेदितम् (21/5ab). Either way, rather than emending repeatedly to the regular dative, the readings have been standardized to the long vowel and left to the learned reader to decide the most suitable form.

5. क्, ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: –घोर्या इ; all other MSs: –घोर्या *; ख्, ग्, घ्, छ्: + अत:; all other MSs: + इत:

6. ख्, ग्, ङ्: घोरक्षये; all other MSs except घ्, छ्: घोरेक्षये

7. All MSs except ङ्, झ्: हंसविसर्गं; all other MSs: हसविसर्गं

8. All MSs: इ 9. क्, ङ्, झ्: इवाह्यहम्; all other MSs: इवाद्यहं
10. All MSs: चतुर्थी 11. All MSs: –मुखायै 12. All MSs: इकार–
13. IM 5, 6 + 7. 14. See above, note to 5/29d.
15. All MSs: चतु:स्थिता 16. छ्: गौर्यां

17. As before we find the forms पञ्चमा, सप्तमा and अष्टमा in the place of the regular पञ्चमी, सप्तमी and अष्टमी See 16/9b and note.

18. क्, ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: हापींसषुतं; all other MSs: हापीं–

19. The ending has been dropped.

20. The ending has been dropped. 21. All MSs: –स्थान्तिमे

22. DS. Cf. 19/37c, 21/12c and 21/22b. See above, note to 2/22b.

23. छ्: मष्टमा 24. All MSs: साधुना
25. ङ्, ज्: –मेतद्धि; छ्: –मेतद्रि 26. See above, note to 1/5a and cf. 2/6c.
27. All MSs: दीपनेषु 28. All MSs: अघोरा–. 29. क्: प्रद
30. IM 6 + 7. 31. Cf. 19/37c, 21/8b, 12c, 22b. See above, note to 2/22b. 32. ङ्: –समुज्वलं 33. क्, ग्: –स्थ; घ्, छ्: +
च, ङ्: –पवस्थं 34. घ्: –रं 35. All MSs except ख्, ग्, घ्, छ्: वधिलोमाच्च– 36. All MSs: तस्याध:स्थितस्तथा 37. क्, ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: चोर्द्ध 38. All MSs except घ्, झ्: –न 39. ग्: सुमं– 40. क्: तस्यार्ध्वं
41. छ्: पुर 42. M → N.
43. All MSs: यकारस्य 44. All MSs except झ्: ह
45. All MSs: मावृष्टं; . ङ्: कुचेरासनमावृष्टं
46. All MSs: –गुरोपरि. 47. IC.
48. All MSs: सुरसिद्धि–. Cf. above 6/186d and below 25/12b and see above, note to 6/9a. 49. क्: षभ्द्यागात्; छ्: षद्भ्यागात्; ज्: षद्त्यागात्; all other MSs except ख्, ग्: षड्यागात 50. All MSs: हतम् 51. All MSs: प्रोक्तं
52. ख्, ग्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: –प्रिय; all other MSs: प्रिय 53. घ्, छ्: लभ–
54. घ्, झ्: नाथं 55. All MSs except ज्: वाध्ये–

56. क्: –पुराहृतम्; छ्: –पुराद्धृतं 57. See above, note to 6/1a.
58. All MSs except घ्, ङ्, छ्: तोरण
59. ख्, ङ्: शिरंचंद्रार्द्ध; क्, ग्: शिरं * द्रर्द्ध; छ्: –र्द्ध; ज्: शिरंचन्द्रार्द्ध
60. छ्: आनन्द. M → N. See above, note to 3/46b.

61. राजन् is treated here in an analogous manner to आत्मन्. Just as आत्मानम् replaces आत्मा of the nominative singular (see note to 3/10d), similarly राजानम् replaces राजा.

62. ख्, ङ्: राजावस्थो–. The dropping of the ending and the subsequent sandhi has led to the formation of this irregular compound.

63. क्, ख्, ग्, छ्, ज्: कुर्याद

64. All MSs: घोर्यायाष्टकस्य. The form गौर्यायाः also occurs, for example, in 19/37c, 21/8b and 21/12c, see above note to 2/22b.

65. N → M. 66. क्: वीजस्य
67. See 21/21c and note. 68. घ्, छ्, ज्: पद्भ्यां 69. क्: आधार
70. छ्: पृष्टिवंशे; all other MSs: पृष्ठिवंशे 71a. झ्: –द्वयौ
71b. All MSs: स्मृतः 72. All MSs: षष्ठी– 73. All MSs: संघारं
74. All MSs except क्, झ्: अघोर्याद्यत्मकं 75. All MSs त्रिकण्ठा–
76. All MSs except झ्: शब्द 77. ख्, ग्, घ्, छ्: स्पर्शञ्च, ङ्, ज्: श्पर्शं च
78. All MSs except क्, झ्: रूपश् 79a. M → N.

79b. All MSs: स्मृतः 80. ख्, ङ्: –देवताद्यष्टो; घ्, छ्: –देवतान्यष्टौ. ब्रह्माणी has here become ब्रह्माण्या, just as अघोरी is sometimes अघोर्या.

81. The ending has been dropped for the metre.

82. क्, ग्, ज्: सिद्धांगा–; ख्, ज्: सिद्धांगांगसमायुतं; घ्, छ्: सिद्धा–
83. ख्, घ्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: पूर्वे; ग्: पूर्व 84. क्, ग्: –से 85. क्: –ण; ख्: महार्णवं
86. ख्: परम् 87. घ्, छ्: सहद्– 88. ख्: बीज * * कं

89. All MSs except क्, झ्: देव्यायाः तत्व–. This is the genitive of the deviant form देव्या. See above, note to 2/22b. 90. क्, ख्, ज्: –वीर्यं तु; ग्: वीप्र्यन–

91. क्, ग्: –कवि; 92. ङ्: –बीदं
93. All MSs: प्रतिष्ठिता. IC. 94. ङ्, छ्, ज्: अपो 95. ख्, ङ्: नास्ति
96. ख्, ङ्: नास्ति 97. ङ्: नास्ति 98. ख्, ग्, छ्, ज्: वायुहृ–
99. ङ्: –स्थानिना 100. क्, ग्, ङ्: –श्रमा 101. All MSs: आद्यं च
102. ज्: संयुटं; all other MSs except ख्, ङ्, झ्: संपुटं
103. ख्: + लज्वा गुरुपदेशुं न्यस्थव्यं बीजबिजपञ्चकं 104. ख्: भेव–
105. क्, ग्: –नीना 106. झ्: दधं; all other MSs: दयं
107. क्: चांस्त्रमनं 108. क्: सदास्वस्तेन्; all other MSs: सदाभ्यस्तेन
109. घ्, छ्: पुनर्ज्जन्मः 110. IM 5, 6 + 7.
111. See above, note to 3/12c. 112. All MSs: पंकजम्
113. ङ्: अधिकारे– 114. घ्: वसेनैवं; ग्: भनैवे; all other MSs: भवेनैव
115. क्: –सदं 116. क्, ग्: पंचको; छ्, ज्, झ्: –पंचके
117. All MSs except क्, झ्: पुर्व्वते; IC. 118. M → N.
119. क्, घ्: यसम्वित; ख्, ङ्, ज्: यससित; छ्: यसम्विन; झ्: यससितं; all other MSs: यसम्विते
120. All MSs: तेषामग्रत 121. घ्: न्यासे 122. क्: भेवेत्
123. क्: –माद्यं विभूषितम; ख्, ग्: –विभूषितं, ङ्, छ्, ज्: –द्यंतविभूषितं

124. ङ्: आरक्त 125. –याद्यन्तारोपितम् would be correct but the fifth syllable is long. Note also that the gender of nouns here, as throughout this section, is treated as neuter because they are related to पीठम्.

126. ख्: मा– 127. All MSs except झ्: –रूपस्
128. घ्, छ्: प्रथमाद्यं * मध्यसं 129. क्: तिस्रोर्द्धवं; घ्: तिस्रोर्द
130. ख्, ङ्: –द्यतयोजितं; other MSs except झः –तद्योजितम्
131. All MSs: कण्ठ– 132. M → N. 133. झ्: रूपं
134. ग्: स्थितिवै; 135. All MSs except घ्: पूर्वगिर्यके; छ्: पूर्णगिर्यकै
136. ङ्: सहारं. M → N. 137. All MSs: स्थित:
138. M → N. 139. घ्: क्रमेन
140. ज्: + यथाध्यानं तु पीठानां कामरूपादि भैरव।
तथा क्रमेण तत्वानां कुर्याद् वै ध्यानपञ्चकं
141. ख्, घ्, छ्, ज्: मुच्यति. Cf. above 9/19b. 142. ङ्: बन्धना
143. M → N. See above, note to 1/2c. 144. M → N. See above, note to 1/4a. 145. घ्, छ्: तस्मान्; ज्: तस्मा 146. क्, घ्, छ्:
दुल्लभम् 147. ङ्: * * मन्थान– 148. ङ्: –संहितां * 149. All MSs: अथा–

NOTES OF THE TRANSLATION OF CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

1. Variously called the Aghorāṣṭaka (KuKh 21/1), Aghoryaṣṭaka (ibid. 21/9cd), Aghoryādyaṣṭaka (ibid. 21/10d) Aghoryāṣṭaka and Ghoryāṣṭaka in the ṢSS (11/38ab and 11/105ab, respectively), this is a deposition in eight parts called Aghorās or Ghorikās. It is found in variant forms in several Kubjikā texts. In order to edit the text, I refer to three of these sources, the KMT, ṢSS and the SKh. The KMT and our text relate the Aghoryāṣṭaka to the subtle body called the City of Eight (puryaṣṭaka) (see below 21/27-28), which the KMT (18/33) explains is 'located in Aghorī'. It goes on to give eight mantras that are formed from eight parts of the Aghorī Vidyā that make up Aghoryāṣṭaka to which the City of Eight is conjoined. The adept, says the KMT, should deposit the eightfold body (aṅga) in eight vessels (18/35), which are, presumably, the eight constituents of the City of Eight listed below (21/28; see above, 13/4cd-6, note 4). The eight mantras are presented directly in eight lines of prose marked 'verse' 34 of chapter 18 of the edition of the KMT. Each section is deposited on a separate part of the body and on the eight petals of a lotus. The core of each unit is one of the words of the Aghorī Vidyā. This is first given in the vocative and then repeated in the dative; to these, two seed-syllables are added. The ṢSS (11/38-102) basically follows the KMT expanding it by adding syllables and altering some. In both texts the Vidyā is, essentially, as follows:

AGHORE PARAMAGHORE GHORARŪPE GHORAMUKHI BHĪMANĀME BHĪṢAṆE VAMA PIBA

The complete set of eight in the KMT is as follows. The words that appear to be the same as those in our text are in bold characters:

1) HEAD: HRĪṀ RU AGHORE HRĪṀ SHAUṀ AGHORYĀYAI
2) MOUTH: HRĪṀ RU PARAMAGHORE HŪṀ SHAUṀ PARAMA-GHORĀYAI
3) HEART: HRĪṀ RU SHAUṀ GHORARŪPE SHAUṀ GHORARŪPĀYAI
4) GENITALS: HRĪṀ RU SHAUṀ GHORAMUKHI SHAUṀ GHORA-MUKHYAI
5) RIGHT ARM: HRĪṀ PHAṬ BHĪMANĀME SHAUṀ BHĪMĀYAI
6) LEFT ARM: HRĪṀ HŪṀ BHĪṢAṆE SHAUṀ BHĪṢAṆĀYAI
7) RIGHT THIGH: SHAUṀ HRĪṀ HAḤ VAMA SHAUṀ VAMANYAI
8) LEFT THIGH: HRĪṀ HŪṀ PHAṬ PIVA HE SHAUṀ PIVANYAI

The version in the ṢSS is as follows:

1) HEAD: AIṀ HRĪṀ HRŪṀ HSAṀ AGHORE HSAUṀ PARAMARŪPAṀ (?) GHORYĀYĪ RĪPEMAḤ
2) MOUTH: HRĪṀ ṬHAṀ PARAMAGHORE HŪṀ HSAUṀ PARAMAGHORYĀYĪ
3) HEART: HRĪṀ HRASAUṀ GHORARŪPE HSAUṀ GHORARŪPĀYAI
4) GENITALS: HRĪṀ RAHSAUṀ GHORAMUKHYAI GHORAMUKHYA YAḤ KHĪ (76-79 ?)
5) RIGHT ARM: HRĪṀ HŪṀ PHAṬ BHĪMANĀME HSAUṀ BHĪMĀYĪ
6) LEFT ARM: HRĪṀ HRŪṀ HAṀSI (89 ?) BHĪṢAṆE BHĪṢAṆĀYAI
7) RIGHT THIGH: HRĪṀ HSAUṀ HAḤ VAMA VAMANYAI (96 ?)
8) LEFT THIGH: HRĪṀ AIṀ PHAṬ PIVA HE HSRAṀ PIVANYAI

The SKh (MS G fl. 11a) also presents a deposition of this group. It moves from the feet to the head and so is reversed. Nonetheless the units are those of the forward order in the other sources. This is the closest version to the one here I have been able to locate. It is as follows:

1) FEET: HRĪṀ AGHORE GHORYĀYAI HRĪṀ |
2) SHANKS: HŪṀ PARAMAGHORE PARAMAGHORYĀYAI HŪṀ |
3) FOUNDATION: PHREṀ GHORARŪPE HAḤ GHORARŪPĀYAI PHREṀ |
4) ARMPITS: HSRŪAUṀ BHĪMABHĪṢAṆE BHĪMABHĪṢAṆĀYAI HSRŪAUṀ |
5) BACK: KṢŪṀ VAMA PIVA HE VAMA PIVA HĀYAI KṢŪṀ |
6) HEART: HŪṀ RU RU RA RA RU RU RA RĀYAI HŪṀ |
7) MOUTH: KHPHREṀ PHETKĀRĪ PHETKĀRĀYAI KHPHREṀ |
8) HEAD: HSRAUṀ PARĀYAI PARAMAKALĀYAI HSRAUṀ |

2. This 'going and coming' can refer to the breath or the movement of Kuṇḍalinī. However, here it probably refers to the forward and reverse order of the mantra. See 9/59 and note to 3/122cd-123ab. Below (21/23cd) we are told that each of the eight units of the mantra should be conjoined with the word ‘Śiva’ at the beginning and end.

3. See note to the Sanskrit text.

4. I have chosen to follow the reading of the parallel sources, even though the MSs clearly suggest the reading ‘ghorekṣaṇe’.

5. Perhaps this means that in this version of the mantra the two ‘RA RA’ are changed to ‘RĪ RĪ’.

6. See above 7/43.

7. Below (21/13bcd-14ab) Prasādabhairava may be HRŪṀ. See above, note to 20/18.

8. Cf, 23/17-18ab.

9. The ‘six’ are the Wheels in the subtle body. By abandoning them, the yogi goes beyond them into the Circle of the Void (śūnyamaṇḍala) – the ‘seventh’ –where he realises liberation in the state Beyond the Fourth (turīyātīta) (see below, 25/19-20 and note). This is the ground of this seed-syllable and the ultimate state attained by uttering it.

10. The version of the Aghorāṣṭaka in the SKh (see above note to 21/1) is indeed structured in this way. Each of the eight units begins and ends with the same seed-syllable. In that case they are: HRĪṀ, HŪṀ, PHREṀ, HSRŪAUṀ, KṢŪṀ, HŪṀ, KHPHREṀ, and HSRAUṀ.

11. Cf. above 21/1.

12. The text reads trikaṇṭāvaraṇa-, which means ‘that which is has three thorns as an enclosure’. We have seen (above, note 18 8/26cd-27) that tridents energized by seed-syllables mark the corners of the Meruprastāra from which the letters of mantras are extracted. These, I suppose, are the ‘three thorns’.

13. See above, note 4 to 13/4cd-6.

14. See above, note to 10/14 and 10/26, also below 48/33-37ab and note. Above (18/19cd-20) we are told that the limbs of the body of the Siddhas (siddhāṅga) are five and so would fit with a deposition on the fingers of the hand. Depositions of the hand generally mirror those of the six limbs on the body (with the palm and back of the hand as the sixth). The Siddhas are probably the Five Siddhas – one for each limb and finger.

15. These are the Five Praṇavas, which are normally associated with the Five Elements and projected into the Wheels of the subtle body.

16. We may safely infer that the Circle of the Yoni (yonimaṇḍala) denotes the second Wheel, namely, Svādhiṣṭhāna. Compare this with the location of the Five Voids according to 55/2-4ab below. There, in order to make five, the navel centre is omitted; here, the throat centre.

17. The fifth sacred seat is Tisra and the primordial seat is Oḍḍiyāna. See note to 7/4-5ab.

18. The order in which the syllables are listed is that of their elemental counterparts ranging, as usual, from gross to subtle. Conversely, the sacred seats listed in their normal forward order, as they are here, range from subtle to gross. Thus, as we can easily see from the following table, the order of the two series is in reverse with relation to one another. The form of the praṇavas listed here is the most common one. KHPHREṀ is the usual form of the fourth praṇava in our text. The fifth one, here listed as HSAUṀ, is the form found in the KMT. It has several variants.

5. Table of Elements, Praṇavas, Wheels and States

Element	Seed	Praṇava	Wheel	Sacred seat	Colour of the *Praṇava	State
Earth	Energy	KHPHREṀ	Root	Tisra	Green	Extinction
Water	Moon	AIṀ	Yoni	Kāmarūpa	White	Arising
Fire	Sun	ŚRĪṀ	Navel	Pūrṇagiri	Yellow	Persistence
Air	Point	HRĪṀ	Heart	Jālandhara	Light red	Withdrawal
Space	Sound	HSAUṀ	Between the eyebrows	Oḍḍiyāna	Dark blue	Repose

19. The Point (bindu), which is identified with the goddess (here described as 'conjoined to the inner mental organ') as the energy of Transmental and the divine, creative Will, is the Unbroken Maṇḍala of the City, that is of the Kramamaṇḍala, here called the 'invisible' inner maṇḍala. The Kaulinī Vidyā is, normally, the syllable AIṀ.

NOTES OF THE SANSKRIT TEXT OF CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

1. छ्: श्रीवक्रोवाच   2. ग्, घ्: कुर्याङ्

3. तस्यासनम् may be considered to be a case of double sandhi or irregular concord.

4. All MSs: षोडशा. As the cardinal normally assumes the form of an ordinal when the metre requires it (see above, note to 3/108b), I have emended accordingly.

5. All MSs: भेदा. Accusatives, not nominatives, are required here.

6. All MSs except क्, ग्, झ्: + शिरं; IM 5.

7. All MSs except ङ्, झ्: भिदितं 8. All MSs except घ्, ङ्, छ्: तस्यामा N → M.

9. घ्, छ्: द्वादशा   10. All MSs except झ्: ख्याताच्छाया–

11. IM 5, 6 + 7.   12. छ्: चाप्यासन; ज्: चाप्वासन; all other MSs: –सन

13. घ्, छ्: –वीर. As happens normally in this text, the proper name of a neuter object (here बीजम् or the like) is itself treated as neuter in accord with its own peculiar rules of concord.   14. घ्, छ्: स्याच्

15. The final anusvāra has been dropped for the metre.

16. ख्, ग्, ज्: जिह्माभुजस्यैव; घ्: जिह्माभुजासैव, ङ्: जिह्मा तु जस्यैव; छ्: जिह्मातु * * (?) व; all other MSs: –भजस्यैव. IM 6.   17. ङ्: देशमं

18. झ्: येति; all other MSs except घ्: थोनि

19. घ्: –शा; all other MSs: द्वादशां 20. See above, note to 3/52c.

21. All MSs: रुद्रा–   22. ग्, ङ्: द्वि   23. All MSs: गौर्यायां

24. घ्, छ्, झ्: द्वादश: 25. छ्: –सक्ति:–   26. ग्, घ्, ङ्, छ्: समाकृति:

27. All MSs: तस्य   28. ग्, घ्: किंचिङ्   29. All MSs: दीपिता:

30. All MSs except झ्: –नपुंसकं 31. All MSs: तस्यां   32. छ्: अदौ

33. ङ्: + पश्चात् कुर्याद्ङ्गन्यासं आदौ सृष्टिक्रमेण तु।।   34. M → N.

35. All MSs: स्मृत: 36. ङ्: कोपस्था *

37. The ending of कर्णौ has been dropped and the word incorporated into the compound. Thus, both the case ending and number of this compound is irregular.

38. ङ्: योनै:   39. घ्: –स   40. घ्: –नोक्तं

41. क्, ख्, ग्, ज्: गौर्यान्कादिगम:; घ्, छ्: गौर्य्यार्कादिगम:, ङ्: गौर्यान्कादिगम

42. M → N.   43. ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: –शितं   44. ख्, घ्, ङ्, छ्: गमागम

45. छ्: वर्षे–   46. ख्, घ्, ङ्, छ्: –सान्   47. ग्: –शाब्द

48. ङ्: –नवि   49. ग्: –यत्; घ्, छ्: चूर्णायत्

50. घ्, छ्: पर्व्वत:–, ङ्: पर्वतं–. M → N.

51. M → N. See above, note to 5/29a.

52. ग्: विविधांश्चर्यान्; घ्, छ्: –श्चर्याद्. N → M.

53. All MSs: यो यो.   54. All MSs except झ्: वलोकयेज्जंतु

55. क्: के–. See 6/180b and note.

56. ख्: –नदं. See above, note to 3/12c.

57. All MSs except ङ्, छ्, ज्: कालान्तराङ्

58. See above, note to 3/9c.   59. छ्: क्रमै

60. घ्: मेरा–; छ्: मेरोर्–; all other MSs: मोरा–   61. झ्: समालभेत्

62. घ्, छ्: द्वादश: 63. क्, ग्: चित्र

64. क्, ग्: मयते. The regular form in this case of the root दम् (4P) in the active voice would be दाम्यति Cf. 25/48d. 65. क्: –भोगेन् 66. All MSs: –पादेक–
67. घ्: सिद्धि; छ्: सिद्धिल्; all other MSs: सिद्धिर्
68. All MSs: षोढा 69. All MSs: स च
70. घ्, छ्: –दै, ङ्: –भिभेदैः 71. घ्: –सने; all other MSs except झ्: –सन
72. All MSs: समुद्रितम् 73. All MSs: मध्य म कौलेशं
74. All MSs: –युक्तं त्रयोदशान्तेन भूषितम्
75. All MSs: प्लुतेस्वरविवर्जिताम् 76. All MSs except क्, झ्: –मायात; M → N. See above, note to 1/2c. 77. ङ्: गृरे
78. ख्, ज्: –यौपदे–, ङ्: पारम्यपौपदेशं. See above, note to 7/2c.
79. All MSs: ध्याक– 80. ङ्: सकुला 81. IM 6 + 7.
82. ङ्: श्रचमाना 83. ङ्: यनोन्मना
84. ख्, ङ्: रु–; घ्, छ्: को–; all other MSs: कू– 85. All MSs: संघ–
86. All MSs: चास्य 87. क्: देवं
88. क्, ख्, ज्: –जापात्; घ्, छ्: –जापा, ङ्: –जायाद् 89. ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: सिद्धिः–
90. छ्: गति 91. All MSs: –भैर *यज्ञे 92. ङ्: –कोति–
93. घ्, छ्: –मार्ग 94. घ्: –य
95. ख्, ङ्: पर–; घ्, छ्: –र 96. ख्: स्वामिनीचतु– 97. घ्: –र्व्विंशसहस्र–
98. क्: अधाक्रम; all other MSs: अथा–

NOTES OF THE TRANSLATION OF CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

1. See 22/11, cf. 21/1 and note.

2. Cf. 39/147.

3. The word 'ṣoḍhā' is an indeclinable that means 'in six ways'. Indeed, above (18/19cd-20) we have come across a set of six depositions collectively called 'Ṣoḍhānyāsa'. But this is not the only meaning of the word. Chapter 23 of the ŚM is dedicated to Ṣoḍhānyāsa. There it consists of a series of sixteen depositions. Thus in that case 'ṣoḍhā' is equivalent to 'ṣoḍaśa' – sixteen. In this line we are told that Ṣodhā has sixteen divisions; however, the exposition that follows is of a twelvefold deposition (22/11). An Ekākṣaraṣoḍhānyāsa is presented in the SKh (MS G fl. 13a) which is projected into twelve parts of the body. Another more extensive Ṣoḍhānyāsa is recorded in the SKh (MS G fl. 12b) in twenty-four units, however neither of these two appear to be the deposition described here.

Kubjikā is commonly said to be sixfold (ṣaṭprakāra), for reasons we have examined (see intro. vol. 1, p. 698). Possibly for this reason the Supreme Goddess is identified as an energy called Ṣoḍhā (lit. 'the Sixfold One'). According to the KMT, in her transcendental aspect she is 'devoid of the six letters' i.e. forms. In her immanent aspect, she assumes the form of six energies described in the following passage:

Ṣoḍhā is said to be power. She is supreme, the auspicious letter (akṣarā). She is Kuṇḍalī located in the navel. She is supreme and her form the Void. She is one, supreme, subtle, imperishable and consists of radiant energy (tejas). She should be known to be the Supreme Goddess (Parā Devī), the energy devoid of the six letters.

The 'natural' (svābhāvika) (deposition) is said to (takes place when) 1) the energy Sūkṣmā is in Brahmā's place. 2) (This energy) is called Calā in Viṣṇu's place. 3) She who is considered to be Dīptā is in Rudra's place. 4) She is called Stable (sthirā) within Īśvara. 5) Within Sadākhya (she is called) Born of the Melting (dravasaṁbhavā). 6) Those who know reality should know that, established in Śakti, she is the Void. She of Six Qualities (ṣaḍguṇā) is the foundation of the six yogic powers and awakens them; (she is) the Pervasive One, She Whose Form is the Void, the Endless One, She who is Without Lord (Anāthanā) and Entered In (Āśritā), She Who Connects and She Who Disconnects. Thus the one supreme energy, established in the attributes of Being (is various) according to her various functions. Her (various) types (bheda) are due to the variety of (her) functions. In reality there is no diversity (bheda). O goddess, once one performs the deposition in this way, it operates internally. Externally, she is in the form of letters. She is one and (operates) in many ways.

This deposition is the sixfold one with twelve divisions. It is said to take place within the ‘coming and going'. KMT 5/138cd-146ab.

4. The Moon is Sa. The letter above it is Bha. The Sun is Ha; above it is Ma. Perhaps the syllable is ṬHBHMĪṀ. Possibly the head of the Sun and Moon is simply the Half Moon, in which case the syllable is ṬHĪṀ. Either way, the Twelve Gaurīs mentioned below are probably this syllable repeated twelve times.

5. Gauryākā, I suppose, is the collective aggregate of the Twelve Gaurīs. These are the uttered in the 'going' phase marking the rise of Kuṇḍalinī that burns impurity (dahana) as it ascends. The 'coming' phase which is that of nourishment (apyāyana) is marked by the repetition of the second series of syllables that begins with the seed of emanation, that is, AIṀ which is also called the Lion Throne (see above 17/33 note 30) and the letter of the Lion (61/95cd-96).

6. ‘Coming and going’ is, amongst other things, the forward and reverse recitation of a mantra. See note to 3/122cd-123ab.

7. Mālinī is also said to be in the teacher’s mouth (above 18/90).

8. From what follows, it appears that in this case Parā Vidyā is AIṀ which is the goddess who is the Transmental that ‘faces downwards’ and is the female Neuter that flows with lunar nectar. The Ekākṣaraṣoḍhānyāsa presented in the SKh (MS G fl. 13a) consists simply of AIṀ SHAṀ AIṀ deposited in twelve places in the body from the head down to the genitals. Clearly that deposition differs from this one. Nonetheless, the dominant presence of AIṀ appear to be common. Indeed, it is likely that the energy Ṣoḍhā is this syllable. This is deposited in the twelve places in the body listed above (22/12), it seems, with twelve syllables formed from the consonants – Rudras – indicated above in code (22/4cd-8) to each of which is added a Gaurī i.e. the letter Ī is added at the end with the usual nasalization and, if I have understood correctly, with Ū at the beginning.

9. See intro. vol. 1, p. 309 ff. concerning the ‘Neuter’ and the goddess's condition as such.

10. See 24/96.

NOTES OF THE SANSKRIT TEXT OF CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

1. घ्, छ्: –वक्रोवाच 2. All MSs except ग्, घ्, ङ्, छ्: अमूला

3. The fifty sections of the following Mantra are composed of three units, namely, a) one letter of the alphabet in its normal order; b) one letter of the Mālinī alphabet and c) one syllable of an extended form of the Parāparā Vidyā which reads as follows: अघोरे ह्रीं परमघोरे ह्रौं घोररूपे हः घोरमुखि भीमभीषणि वम वम पिव पिव ह हे रु रु र र विच्चे ऐं ह्रीं हूं ह्रीं ऐं क्षं ह्रीं ह्स्रौं. The Mālinī order of the alphabet in the KuKh is as follows: न थ ऋ ॠ ऌ ॡ च ध ण उ ऊ ई ब क ख ग घ ङ इ अ व भ य ड ढ ठ झ ञ अः ट र ज प स ह छ ल आ ष क्ष म श अं त ए ऐ ओ औ द फ.

Although the readings sometimes do not correspond exactly to the combined sequence of the syllables of the mantra, the normal order of the alphabet and that of Mālinī – especially the latter – clearly indicate that this was intended, and so the readings have been selected and emendations made accordingly. 4. All MSs: अ न जा इति 5. क्: पूर्वे

6. All MSs: ति. One wonders whether to emend to घ्विति 7. घ्, छ्: ए

8. ग्: स्मात्, घ्, छ्: स्या * 9. क्, ङ्: इ 10. घ्: ह्री

11. घ्, छ्: च चतुर्दशं 12. All MSs: र 13. घ्: पंचम

14. घ्, छ्: प्रथमं; all other MSs: व्ययं

15. All MSs except घ्: च * 16. Missing in क्; . ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्, झ्: घे

17. All MSs: ने 18. All MSs: दत्वं 19. छ्: ह्रौं

20. All MSs: ज 21. घ्: ऐं

22. ‘M' has been inserted for the metre. See above, note to 3/21b.

23. All MSs: प 24. ग्: त्रयादशमं; घ्: त्रयादशं; छ्: –द * मं. IM 5, 6 + 7. 25. All MSs: एवे; छ्, ज्: एवेति. This is a DS of पे + इति. See above, note to 6/153d. 26. छ्: हन्

27. घ्: त्रिपंचदशं; छ्: त्रिपञ्च *; all MSs: त्रिपञ्चं * 28. क्: चः

29. Missing in MS क्; all other MSs except ख्, छ्, ज्, झ्: चः IM 5 + 6.

30. घ्: द्या; छ्: घा; all other MSs: मो 31. घ्, छ्: एति

32. All MSs: प्य 33. घ्, छ्, ज्: रा

34. क्: सप्तदश; all other MSs except च्, झ्: सप्तादशं IM 6.

35. छ्: खडः; all other MSs: खंडः 36. All MSs: मुश्च

37. अष्टादशक– would be regular. See above, note to 8/59b.

38. ख्, ङ्: ख 39. All MSs except घ्, छ्: ए

40. छ्: उनविंशश्च; all other MSs: ऊनविंशश्च 41. ग्: द्य; ङ्, झ्: य

42. All MSs: व

43. विंश– and विंशतितम – are the regular forms of the ordinal.

44. All MSs except झ्: च

45. क्, ग्, ङ्: द्वयं–। The regular forms are: द्वाविंश– or द्वाविंशतितम–. Cf. the form द्वयत्रिंशमम् in 23/9d. 46. छ्, ज्: च्छ 47. ङ्: य; छ्: थ

48. All MSs: ड 49. All MSs except ङ्, छ्: ऋ 50. All MSs: ढ

51. ग्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: य 52. All MSs: –विंशश्च 53. All MSs: ओ

54. All MSs except छ्: षट्विंशमं। षड्विंश– or षड्विंशतितम– would be regular.

55. All MSs: अः 56. All MSs: प 57. All MSs: –विंशश्च

58. All MSs except ङ्: ऋ 59. All MSs: मश्

60. अष्टाविंश– or अष्टाविंशतितम– would be regular.
61. ग्, ङ्, ज्ः नास्ति; घ्, छ्ः उ 62. घ्ः न्म; छ्ः न्स; all other MSs: ङ
63. All MSs except छ्ः ऊनत्रिंशति 64. All MSs except घ्, छ्ः वृ
65. त्रिंश– or त्रिंशत्तम– would be regular. 66. All MSs: –त्रिंशश्च
67. ख्, ङ्ः –त्रिंश *. The correct forms- द्वात्रिंश– and द्वात्रिंशतितम–.do not fit the metre. Cf. the form द्वयविंशम– in 23/7b.
68. क्ः थ * ह इति; घ्, छ्ः ष प ह इति; all other MSs: थ प ह इति
69. All MSs: त्रयस्त्रिंश 70. छ्, ज्ः रुञ्च; all other MSs: रूं च
71. All MSs: –त्रिंशच्च 72. क्ः छ घ्, छ्ः ष; all other MSs: क्ष
73. IM 5. 74. ङ्ः ल 75. ङ्ः र
76. घ्ः त्र; ङ्ः प:; छ्ः त्र स:; all other MSs: र:
77. घ्ः –विंशश्च; all other MSs: –त्रिंशश्च. IM 5. 78. घ्, छ्ः अ
79. छ्ः रि 80. घ्, छ्ः प; all other MSs: ए
81. घ्, छ्ः व 82. ख्, ङ्ः ऊनचालिश; ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्ः ऊनचालिंश; च्, झ्ः ऊनचात्रिंशं। ऊनचत्वारिंश– would be correct but is too long for the metre. See above, note to 3/9c. 83. छ्ः क्षा
84. घ्ः –ति IM 5. चत्वारिंश– or चत्वारिंशत्तम– would be correct. See above, note to 3/9c. 85. छ्ः स 86. छ्ः मर्
87. घ्, छ्ः थे; ङ्ः ऐ 88. क्ः एकचरिश–; छ्ः –शण्; all other MSs except ग्ः एकचालिंश। This is a contraction of एकचत्वारिंश– made for the metre.
89. All MSs : * * ह्रीं 90. ख्, घ्, ङ्ः –ति; all other MSs: द्विचत्वारिंशति:.
Cf. 23/11d. 91. छ्, ज्ः अ
92. All MSs except झ्ः –श 93. क्, ख्ः चतुश्चत्वारिंशति:; घ्ः –ति; all other MSs: चतुश्चत्वारिंशति: Cf. 23/11d. This emendation corresponds to the deviant form of the ordinals shortened for the metre in this series (see 23/12a). Although one syllable too long, it is better adapted than the reading of the majority of the MSs, which is two syllables too long.
94. घ्, छ्ः पंचचारिंश; all other MSs: पंचचालिश. Cf. 23/12b. 95. छ्ः शे
96. छ्ः ए; ज्ः ऐं 97. छ्ः सट्चाधिका:; all other MSs: षड्वाधिका: IM 7.
98. ज्ः उ; all other MSs: ड 99. ग्, ज्ः ऐ; घ्ः स्हौं; छ्ः स्फौं
100. ग्, ङ्, ज्ः –चालिंश; घ्ः –चारिंशत्; छ्ः ससप्तचारिंशत्. Cf. 23/12a.
101. All MSs: ओ 102. All MSs except क्, झ्ः अष्टचारिंशत्; all other MSs: अष्टचत्वारिंशत्। अष्टचत्वारिंशम् would be correct but does not fit the metre and so I have emended to the deviant form. 103. क्, ख्ः ष ड; घ्, ङ्ः ड 104. क्ः ऐं; ख्ः ऐ 105. ऊनपञ्चाश– or ऊनपञ्चाशत्तम– would be regular. 106. घ्ः ज्ज्व; छ्ः ज्व 107. ख्, ङ्ः प्र
108. घ्ः ह्म्र्यौं, ङ्ः ह्सौ; छ्, ज्ः ह्म्रौं; all other MSs: ह्य्रौं 109. छ्, ज्ः –हेन
110. This line is repeated in MS छ् 111. ख्, ग्, घ्, छ्ः –मर्त्या
112. ख्ः * वनात् 113. छ्ः पण– 114. घ्ः पठते
115. छ्ः –या. See above, note to 3/25d.
116. This word is missing in MS घ् and छ्; ङ्ः शत्र–
117. This word is missing in MS घ् and छ् 118. छ्ः दच्छिद्रो
119. IC. As often happens with nouns with the suffix ‘-in ', the nominative plural here replaces the nominative singular. See above, note to 4/3c.
120. क्ः –अन्तस्य; छ्, ज्ः –टस्थं 121. घ्, छ्ः सदीप्त; all other MSs: सदीप्तं

122. छ्: * द्ग्रहं 123. M → N.

124. ङ्: विधावद्धमशेषत:; छ्, ज्: विधावद्वमशेषत:; all other MSs: विधावध्वमशेषत:

125. M → N. 126. घ्: तं

127. This is an other case of irregular visarga sandhi in which visarga changes to ‘o' before ‘a' without the dropping of the latter. See above, note to 3/22b. 128. All MSs: अन्यायान्न 129. छ्: श्रीवक्रोवाच

130. छ्: समया– 131. ग्, घ्, छ्: विचेति; all other MSs except ग्, घ्, छ्: विर्चेति 132. All MSs: –किं

133. All MSs: कि रि इ म सषट्कार्ध 134. ङ्, छ्, ज्: –त्रितीयकं; all other MSs: –त्रितयकं

135. All MSs: प्रोक्तं 136. घ्, छ्: वीरभी, ङ्: वीरभैं; all other MSs: वीरभै

137. All MSs: यमस 138. घ्, छ्: डम; all other MSs: उम

139. All MSs: मस– 140. M → N.

141. तस्य, or the like, is required to complete the syntax. There are several instances of the same construction in the following lines. See note to 1/2d.

142. The order of the components of this compound has been reversed. Moreover, षष्ठम् would be the regular form of the ordinal. See above, note to 2/25c.

143. M → N. 144. See note to 1/2d.

145. ख्, ङ्: –पद; all other MSs: –पदे। देवताष्टमपदं would be correct.

146. All MSs: ओ

147. ङ्: इ नेकोंकं; all other MSs: इणकंकों IM 5 + 6.

148. All MSs except घ्: द्विद्विपंचं. See above, note to 7/87a.

149. All MSs: णिकंकुं 150. ङ्, छ्, ज्: दशेकाधिकं. ऐकाधिकदशमम् would be a possible regular equivalent of the ordinal एकादशम्. See above, note to 2/25c.

151. ज्: हसक्ति: 152. All MSs: काल

153. ङ्, छ्, ज्: मेनणझङ, all other MSs except घ्: ऋङ 154. IM 6

155. All MSs: पदेदं एष एव 156. All MSs: हर 157. All MSs: पञ्चदश

158. All MSs: षोडश: 159. All MSs: मेनन 160. ङ्: –दश

161. IM 6. 162. All MSs: त र रं

163. घ्: * आष्टमं; छ्: * शाष्टमं. See above, note to 2/25c and 8/59b.

164. ज्: जने; all other MSs: जन. DS.

165. ङ्: विशेति DS. See above, note to 6/153d.

166. All MSs except ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: श्री

167. All MSs except ख्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: ऐ

168. The final anusvāra has been dropped for the metre.

169. विंश– or विंशतितम– would be regular. 170. ङ्: –क्रमे

171. All MSs: एकारादिर् 172. ङ्: णुक्रमात् 173. M → N.

174. ख्, ङ्, ज्: –मार्गेणा 175. All MSs: राधनं 176. छ्: वर्णेश्च

177. छ्, ज्: षष्ठिभि: 178. क्, ग्, ङ्: समयाख्य

179. All MSs except ङ्: नांभ 180. क्: योजित 181. घ्, छ्: आद्यतेन

182. छ्: मनोत्सना

183. All MSs except क्, ख्, झ्: सप्त; all other MSs: स 184. छ्: –रिक्त

185. क्: महान्षाधिकारी, ङ्: षाधिकारां. DS. 186. All MSs: च

187. All MSs: न 188. Here, as often happens, the ordinal has replaced the cardinal for the sake of the metre. See note to 3/108b.

189. ज्: कोंकना 190. ग्, घ्, छ्: क्षर–; all other MSs: ज्वर–

191. See above, note to 2/25c. 192. All MSs: ज्ञातमात्राया IM 7.
193. ङ्: तत्क्षनान्मुछते 194. वद्यापीठेपवीठे. DS.
195. छ्: –पूर्ण 196. All MSs except घ्, छ्: –कपालकैः
197. ख्: –कपालैश्; ग्, ज्: –कपालै, ङ्: नृकलैश् 198. ङ्: तर्पणं
199. छ्: तपः 200. झ्: समया– 201. All MSs: विमुच्येत
202. छ्: –यु 203. M → N. 204. M → N.
205. ग्: यागिनीक्रम–; all other MSs: योगिनीक्रम– 206. ख्: विनिर्विशंके
207. All MSs: समयाकृमं 208. ख्, ङ्, ज्: –तः
209. घ्, छ्: –वा. IM 5 + 6. 210. ङ्: भवे 211. IM 5 + 6.
212. ङ्, ज्: –मायुः दरिद्रो 213. ज्: धनवाग्
214. This pāda is one syllable too long.
215. All MSs: –तुल. M → N. See above, note to 1/2c. IM 6 + 7.
216. This pāda is one syllable too long.
217. All MSs except क्, झ्: दारिद्रं. This pāda is one syllable too long.
218. All MSs except घ्, छ्, झ्: मरभा 219. छ्: सिद्धिरविचान्तरकं
220. M → N. See above, note to 1/7d. 221. छ्, ज्: गुर्वोघं
222. छ्: किंचि 223. All MSs: समयविद्याव्रतस्थेन

224. The regular derivative of the root प्राश् (9P) required here, would be प्राश्नीयात्. Note also that the derivatives of this root are invariably spelt with a dental rather than a palatal spirant. This spelling has been standardized everywhere to the regular form.

225. All MSs: भूचवा–. This emendation is tentative. 226. IM 6 + 7.
227. क्: मन्वितं; ख्, ङ्, ज्: मंच्चितं
228. Apparently मण्डलकस्य पूजां कृत्वा is meant here. 229. ङ्: पुरः
230. संयोगम् or the like needs to be supplied here. 231. ङ्: दह्य–; छ्: हेह्य–
232. उक्त्वा would be correct. 233. ङ्: सिद्धिःनिर्व्वि–
234. विद्यान्यासम् is meant here but does not fit the metre. 235. ङ्: सप्तक
236. All MSs: ना ना 237. All MSs: स्मृतं 238. M → N.
239. All MSs: चक्षुरे 240. घ्, छ्: * कान्ते 241. All MSs: ना ना
242a. ङ्: करणा–; छ्: छ्: करणाभयोदेव; ज्: कर्णो–. उभयकर्णयोः would be correct.
242b. All MSs: कुब्जिक 243. All MSs: भयोमे कुलनासिका
244. ङ्: अघोर 245. क्, ग्: नासिका *
246. ङ्: जिह्वाया; ज्: जिह्वापा, all other MSs except घ्, ङ्: जिह्वाया
247. क्, ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: रांव– 248. All MSs: वा– 249. ङ्: मखि

250. ग्, घ्: –द्वयोरोष्य, ङ्: –नोष्य; छ्, ज्: उष्ठद्वयोरोष्य. The ending here has been dropped followed by a sandhi, thus giving rise to an irregular compound.

251. All MSs: चकारं 252. All MSs: च्छकारं 253. All MSs: जकारं
254. क्, ग्, छ्, ज्: चकृ–; all MSs: –काद्याया 255. छ्: ऋ
256. छ्, ज्: ॡकारं; all other MSs: ऌकारं।
257. All MSs except घ्, छ्: हृदयालानं. See above, note to 3/10d.
258. क्: हं– 259. ख्, ङ्: कोकणि
260. ङ्: –मेवमु–; छ्, ज्: –मेवनु– 261. All MSs: कोंकणे 262. All MSs: ईकारं
263. क्, ग्: –ल; all other MSs except ख्, छ्, ज्: –मण्डलं
264. ख्, झ्: ह्लां 265. All MSs: कारयोः 266. All MSs: कक्षौ
267. M → N. 268. All MSs except छ्, ज्: पृष्टतः

269. All MSs: –शब्दं नितं 270. All MSs: ग्लुँकारं 271. घ्, छ्: हस–
272. A locative is required here. Cf. 23/59c.
273. A plural number is meant here.
274. ग्, घ्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: तथाधारे 275. छ्: च्छाँ; ज्: च्छ्राँ 276. छ्: च्छीँ
277. घ्: चैवोरु–, छ्: ऊरु *युग्मके; ङ्, ज्: ऊ * कयुग्मके
278. छ्: किनिति; all other MSs: किणिति 279. Cf. 23/58c.
280. छ्: किनि 281. झ्: द्वयो
282. क्: –प्राप्ते; all other MSs: –प्राते
283. घ्: स्थानो; ङ्: स्थान 284. ङ्, छ्, ज्: पादांतान् 285. IM 5.
286. क्: उदयो–। अस्तमनम् has apparently been shortened to अस्तमम् for the metre. 287. ङ्: –पुतं 288. घ्, छ्: अपसर्गाद्
289. ङ्: वनिर्गता 290. All MSs: एष 291. छ्: विद्यां * सेन
292. छ्, ज्: सिद्धेत; ङ्, झ्: सिद्धेत् 293. क्, ग्: कुतो–; घ्, छ्: कृतेनैव; ज्: कूतेनैव
294. गुरोरग्रत: would be correct sandhi but too long for the metre.
295. ख्, ङ्: मत्रा 296. कुत्राग्रत:
297. See above, note to 1/4a. 298. All MSs: देव्या च 299. ख्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: कारण्यं
300. All MSs except ग्, घ्, झ्: रुरुते
301. ख्: * * मन्थान–, ङ्: –मण्ठान– 302. ख्, ङ्: –परमेश्वरे
303. All MSs: अथा– 304. ख्: –क्रमोदया; घ्, छ्: –धिकारो * * * * *, ङ्: –नक्रमोदयो

NOTES OF THE TRANSLATION OF CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

1. The goddess's body is made of mantras and is adorned by them. Accordingly, in chapter 18 the KMT presents its exposition of the main Vidyās and mantras in this frame work. First comes the Triple Vidyā who 'burns with the qualities of a body made of Vidyā' (KMT 18/32). This is followed by the Aghorāṣṭaka, which corresponds to the goddess's subtle body (puryaṣṭaka) (ibid. 18/33-35). Then comes the deposition of the Twelve Limbs (dvādaśāṅga), which is the means through which the goddess's 'outer' body is generated (dehaniṣpattikaraṇa) (KMT 18/36-37). This is followed by the deposition of the standard six limbs by which the individual soul, firmly established (sthirīkṛta) in the body of the goddess by the previous deposition, is made manifest (vyaktatvaṁ bhajate) (KMT 1/348d). In this way the 'supreme body and supreme path' is generated (ibid. 18/40ab). Next comes the goddess's belt (mekhalā). This is the mantra called Twelve Verses (Dvādaśaśloka) (see below 24/13-17 and notes). Then comes Tadgraha which is the Thread of Brahmā, the Brahminical cord that, shining brilliantly and fiercely powerful, 'should be hung with the Yoga of Tadgraha from the head to the feet' to adorn the goddess (KMT 18/41ab, 55) .

Tadgraha is said to emerge from A because it begins with this letter. It is given in full in KMT 18/56 and ṢSS 11/102ff. It consists of fifty parts (pada) each of which is in three sections. First comes a letter from the Assembly of Sounds. This is followed by the equivalent letter drawn from the Mālinī alphabet and a syllable of the Triple Vidyā, which consists of the Vidyās Parāparā, Parā and Aparā, in that order. Located 'on the plane of bliss', this triad of the Assembly of Sounds and the rest is said to be the triple form of Kubjikā as Rudraśakti. (KMT 18/57; ṢSS 11/109cd). Thus the three sections of each the fifty parts of Tadgraha are called Raudras who encompass one another in concentric circles (valaya) (KMT 18/54cd-8). The ṢSS (11/109 ff) explains them as follows:

1) The left Raudra: This is Mālinī and is Śākta (i.e. it pertains to Śakti). It is on the right.
2) The right Raudra: This is the Assemby of Sounds and is Śāmbhava (i.e. it pertains to Śiva). It is on the left.
3) Raudrāraudra: This is the triple Vidyā and is Āṇava (i.e. it pertains to the individual soul).

The left is usually feminine and the right masculine. In this case, however, these positions are reversed. Thus the male letter of the Assembly of Sounds comes first and so is on the left, while Mālinī is on the right (KMT 18/58).

A permutation of this basic form is described in the ṢSS. This involves the encapsulation of each unit, placed first in the forward and then the reverse direction, with the Five Praṇavas. The first unit, for example, of this extended form of Tadgraha is as follows (ṢSS 11/110):

AI.Ṁ HRĪṀ ŚRĪṀ PHREṀ HSAUḤ A NA AIṀ NA A HSAUḤ PHREṀ ŚRĪṀ HRĪṀ AIṀ ।

The male letter of the Assembly of Sounds is united to the female letter of the Mālinī sequence. The energy generated from this conjunction is transmitted to a syllable of the Triple Vidyā. In this way a series of conjunctios take place that energize the Triple Vidyā from within, as it were, in each of its parts, and the entire range of principles from Earth to Śiva, which the Triple Vidyā represents, are energized and purified.

In this form they can serve as a part of the the seat upon which the god and goddess sit and consummate the ultimate conjunctio. Thus the KRU presents Tadgraha in the following passage, not as the goddess's thread, which hangs from her and is supported by her, but, on the contrary as the seat that supports both the goddess and the god. The KRU calls this marvellous seat the Lotus of Power (śaktipadma). Here the three part of Tadgraha are identified with the sections – khaṇḍa – of a long Vidyā called Trikhaṇḍā. Originally a Trika mantra, the Kubjikā Tantras consider this to be the 'big' (bṛhat) version of the Samayā Vidyā.

I will tell (you) what has to be understood according to the tradition. Having said that the universal Self (viśvātmā) (took up his) residence on the plane with no support (nirādhāra). Taking up the foundation by himself, he contemplated the Lotus of Power (śaktipadma). As he contemplated the excellent Lotus of Power, the Root of the Point (bindukanda) came into being in the middle of the Wheel of the Foundation. Then from the Root, the sprout of Sound and, in the same way, the stem (nāla) came into being. The Lotus of Power is at the end of that and it has fifty petals. It possesses a calyx and filaments and is as stainless as pure crystal. (21ab)

The series (santāna) of the letters of Mātṛkā has come forth by the upper path in the form of its covering, in order to cover its bed (paryaṅka). The Supreme Lord made it divine and possessed of three parts (khaṇḍa). That supreme seat was emitted endowed with (the powers of) will, knowledge and action. This supreme throne of mantras is the location of the fifty parts. (23)

There, one (part) is Rudrakhaṇḍa, the second is Mātṛkhaṇḍa, while one should know the third to be the excellent Cāmuṇḍākhaṇḍa. (This Vidyā) is called 'Trikhaṇḍā' because (it is formed) by the union of three parts. It accomplishes every purpose and is praised everywhere. (25)

kathayiṣyāmi [kh: kathayāmi] nirṇityaṁ [k, kh: nirṇitya] sampradāyasamanvitam ||
evam uktvā sa viśvātmā [kh: viśvo-] nirādhārapade [kh: -pada] sthitaḥ [gh: -tā] |

ādhāram ātmanotthāya śaktipadmam acintayat [k, g: -yet; kh: padmacintayet] ||
tasya cintayataś [kh, g: ciṁtayatāś] caiva śāktaṁ paṅkajam uttamam |
ādhāracakramadhye tu bindukandam abhūt tadā ||
kandān nādāṅkurodbhūtaṁ [g: -kandādākṣarobhūtaṁ] nālam [kh, g: tālam] evopajāyata |
tadagre [g: tadaṁge] śaktipadmaṁ tu śatārdhadalasaṁkulam ||
karṇikākeśaropetaṁ śuddhasphaṭikanirmalam [kh: -sphatika-] |
*ūrdhvamārgeṇa niṣkrāntaṁ mātṛkāvarṇasantānam [k, kh, c: -saṁtaṁ ; g: -saṁyut; gh, ṅ: -varṇasaṁyutaṁ] ||
tasyācchādanarūpeṇa paryaṅkāstaraṇārthataḥ [kh, g: paryakāsta-] |
*khaṇḍatrayānvitaṁ divyaṁ nirmame [k: ni * me; kh: nirnime] parameśvaraḥ* ||
jñāna-icchākriyopetaṁ sṛṣṭaṁ tat [k, kh, g: sṛṣṭo 'yaṁ] param [kh: varam] āsanam [g: āyatam] |
śatārdhapadasaṁsthānaṁ [k: -ṣadasaṁ-; g: -ne] mantrasiṁhāsanaṁ param ||
tatraikaṁ rudrakhaṇḍaṁ tu mātṛkhaṇḍaṁ [k: -khanda] dvitīyakam |
tṛtīyaṁ caiva vijñeyaṁ [kh: vijñeya] cāmuṇḍākhaṇḍam [kh:-khandam] uttamam ||
khaṇḍatrayasamāyogāt trikhaṇḍā [kh: trikhandā] parigīyate [k: -gīyave] |
sarvārthasādhanī hyeṣā [g: hyeṣāṁ] sarvatrāpi praśasyate [kh: prasacyate] ||
KRU 5/17cd-25

Having thought thus in (his) mind and having come forth outside the body, the lord of the gods sat down there, along with the venerable Kujā. The doer of all things, supreme and imperishable, he who is eternal bliss and who is delighted by supreme bliss sat on that seat with the goddess. Sitting close to him, the goddess enquired of Ādinātha. Smiling and with eyes blooming with wonder, the daughter of the lord (īśvarātmajā) (asked): 'O Supreme Lord, who has offered this seat to us? O Ādinātha tell me (this) supreme wonder'. (29)

The venerable Ādinātha said:

'O mistress of the gods, who else could be capable of removing my seat. O mistress of the Śrīkula, I have brought (it here) myself. It is endowed with the sixfold Path (adhvan) and with the sciences (vijñāna) of Mudrā and maṇḍala. Endless, (it extends up to) the Endless, adorned with mantra and Vidyā. It is endowed with the Assembly of Sounds and the petals of the lotus of Mālinī.

In three states, corresponding to the three Vidyās, and possessing limbs, primary and secondary, I have fitted it out with leaves, filaments and a calyx. (All this is present) on the seat, in the body, and in the enclosures that adorn it. O goddess, that is Tadgraha which has come forth from my body.

evaṁ manasi [g: mānasi] saṁkalpya [gh: sakalpya] bahir niṣkrāmya [k, kh: -nikrāmya] dehataḥ |

tatropaviṣṭo deveśaḥ [kh: devaśaḥ] śrīkujayā [k, kh, g: -kujāyāḥ] samanvitaḥ ||
niviṣṭaś cāsane [kh: niviṣṭa-] tasmin sarvakartā paro 'avyayaḥ |
saha devyā sadānandaḥ paramānandananditaḥ ||
athotsaṅgagatā devī ādinātham apṛcchata [c: -taḥ] |
vihasyotphullanayanā vismayād īśvarātmajā [k: dhī-; kh: rī-; g: vismayodrī-] ||
kenedam āsanaṁ dattam āvayoḥ [kh: tadattam āvayoḥ; g: dattam avayāṣ] parameśvara [k, g: -raḥ; kh: -rā] |
ādinātha samācakṣva [kh: samācakṣa] paramaṁ vismayaṁ mama ||
śrī ādinātha uvāca
aparaḥ ko 'sti deveśi upāhartuṁ mamāsanam |
samarthaḥ śrīkuleśāni [kh: -śānti] svayam evāhṛtaṁ [k:- taṁ; kh: -hataṁ] mayā* ||
mudrāmaṇḍalavijñānaiḥ [g: -jñānaṁ; gh: -ne] ṣaḍvidhādhvasamanvitam |
anantānantaparyantaṁ [ṅ: -nta] mantravidyāvibhūṣitam ||
śabdarāśisamāyuktaṁ [kh: sakṣarāsi-] mālinījalajācchadam |
vidyātrayatridhāvasthaṁ patrakesarakarṇikaiḥ [kh: patrakeśala-; gh: -ke] ||
niveśitaṁ mayā devi sāṅgopāṅgasamanvitam [kh: sāṁgopāga-] |
āsane ca śarīre ca bhūṣaṇāvaraṇeṣu ca ||
ity etat tadgrahaṁ [kh: taḍ-; g: taṁd-] devi mama [gh: māhāme] dehād [kh: dehā] vinirgatam | KRU 5/26-34ab

2. The Triple Vidyā here appears to be:

AGHORE HRĪṀ PARAMAGHORE HRAUṀ GHORARŪPE HAḤ GHORAMUKHI BHĪMABHĪṢAṆI VAMA VAMA PIVA PIVA HA HE RU RU RA RA VICCE AIṀ HRĪṀ HŪṀ HRĪṀ AIṀ HRĪṀ AIṀ KṢAṀ HRĪṀ HSRAUṀ

The Mālinī order of the letters is:

Na Tha Ṛ Ṝ Ḷ Ý Ca Dha Ṇa U Ū Ī Ba Ka Kha Ga Gha Ṅa I A Va Bha Ya Ḍha Ḍa Ṭa Ha Jha Ña Ḥ Ṭa Ra Ja Pa Sa Ha Cha La Ā Ṣa KṢa Ma Śa Ṁa Ta E AI O AU Da Pha

3. Note that according to the ṢSS HSRAUṀ is the Parā (there mistakenly called Aparā) Vidyā with which the Triple Vidyā ends.

4. See above 21/15-16ab.

5. We have seen that the common basic form of Kubjikā's Samayā Vidyā consists of thirty-two syllables (see above 8/43-85ab). This form of the Samayā Vidyā, consisting of sixty-four syllables (23/31), is said to have emerged from the left (23/62), presumably of the goddess. Thus, the other much more common form comes from the right side of the goddess. This form of the Samayā Vidyā is addressed to Kubjikā as the goddess Koṅkaṇā. She is the Mistress of the Sacred Seat (see 23/32) of Koṅkaṇa. This special adaptation of the Samayā Vidyā is found only in the MBT – indeed, perhaps only here in the KuKh. This is another example of the close connection, in the period when this Tantra was redacted, between the Kubjikā school and the land of Koṅkaṇa.

The Vidyā is taught first in the reverse order (23/22-29). The places on the body where the parts (pada) of the Vidyā should be projected are taught next in the forward order (23/52-60ab). As the manuscripts in these sections are even more than normally corrupt and it has not been possible to trace this Vidyā elsewhere, we can attempt to reconstruct it solely on the basis of these two accounts. I emend the corrupt text tentatively supposing that the following is the correct form:

AIṀ HRĪṀ ŚRĪṀ HSAUḤ KUBJIKE RĀ RĀ RE AGHORE PHREṀ AGHORĀMUKHI HRĀṀ HRĪṀ ṄAÑAṆANAME HSRĪṀ KOṄKAṆI KOṄKAṆI HRAUṀ HRAUṀ KAHA SAHA KAHA SAHA GLŪṀ SAMAYE BHAIRAVI AGHORE CCHRĀṀ CCHRĪṀ KIṆI KIṆI VICCE AIṀ

6. According to the form of the Vidyā given in the deposition (below 23/59-60ab) the forward order is BHAIRAVI AGHORE. Here, it seems, the latter word is GHORE.

7. We arrive at KAHA SAHA KAHA SAHA in this way. However, according to description of the deposition, there are three pairs, not just two. But then the number of syllables in the Vidyā would be too many and so is probably incorrect.

8. Presumably, the fourteen seed-syllables in the Vidyā are: AIṀ HRĪṀ ŚRĪṀ HSAUḤ PHREṀ HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HSRĪṀ HRAUṀ HRAUṀ GLŪṀ CCHRĀṀ CCHRĪṀ AIṀ.

9. The eighth sinless life is the one in which the adept attains liberation. See KuKh 12/20cd-21ab and n. 8.

10. 'Cakra' may mean either a centre in the subtle body or a gathering of initiates.

11. A skull on which seed-syllables or a mantra are inscribed can be worshipped as a representation of the deity. According to Abhinavagupta's sources, other objects include: a sword, blade, dagger, a mirror, fire, a piece of cloth, a Liṅga, a jar, lotus, maṇḍala, a vessel, arms and sacrificial thread (TĀ 27/44-46). Abhinava quotes the Picumata (otherwise known as the Brahmayāmala) and the Siddhayogeśvarīmata as saying:

> The sacrifice in a skull without defects is always praised and is the source of accomplishment. A skull in which there are old or new holes, more or less teeth (than there should be) or that has fractures causes loss. The sacrifice performed in a skull free (of these defects) is the most excellent of all. [. . .] The most excellent characteristic of a skull has been explained in the venerable Siddhātantra (i.e. Siddhayogeśvarīmata). (The best skull) is one that has one, two, three or four parts (khaṇḍa) and is shaped like a cow's face (gomukha) or a full moon, (it should be) the colour of lotuses, orpiment (gorocana), pearls, water or crystal. (It should be) auspicious with one, two, three, four or five beautiful holes and fourteen lines (vidyārekhā). A bad (skull) is one that is uneven, distorted, incomplete, (too) long, with depressions or dots. All the various deities should be carved on its surface with a hard, thin scalpel and, beautiful, should be worshipped along with their limbs. TĀ 27/22-23ab, 25-8ab.

According to common Indian belief, the soul finally exits from the body after death only when the skull is broken open or destroyed. Thus, an unbroken skull still contains the presence of the person. Although this is not commonly explicitely stated, this presence keeps the skull alive, as it were, and so renders it particularly fit to be an object into which the deity can be invoked, no less than the living body.

The sacrificial function of the skull is very ancient. The following passage from the Bṛhadaraṇyakopaniṣad (Bṛ. Up. 2/2/3) is perhaps derived from an earlier passage in the Atharvaveda (AV 10/8/9). It teaches the interiorization of the outer sacrificial vessel into the skull. It also implies the use of skulls in non-Vedic rituals of the time:

> There is a cup with its mouth below and its bottom up.
> In it is placed every form of glory.
> On its rim sit seven seers.
> Voice as the eighth is united with prayer (brahman).

The Upaniṣad goes on to explain that this cup is the head. The glory it contains are the vital breaths as are the seven seers on its rim.

12. The rules (samaya) the initiate should observe are listed in detail in chapter 37.

13. Kaulinī, that is, the energy Kauleśī, is in the centre of the Kramamaṇḍala, which is thus her residence and city. See above 11/31-32ab and note to 3/13-14ab.

14. Referring to the teachers, the Ṭīkā explains that: 'one should request them for the remains of the offerings (ucchiṣṭa). One should eat this at all times. There is purity in the body by eating. The meaning is that sin is (thereby) destroyed.

teṣām ucchiṣṭaṁ [kh: mu-] yācayet [k kh: yācyate] | bhakṣayet sarvakālam | bhakṣaṇāc charīre nirmalyatā bhavati | pāpakṣayam ity arthaḥ | Ṭīkā fl. 136a.

15. Below (23/60ab) we are told that AIṀ (vāgbhāva) should be placed in the middle of the face. Thus, I suppose that the seven syllables are AIṀ RĀ RĀ RE KUBJIKE.

16. Above (23/26) this syllable is HSRĪṀ.

NOTES OF THE SANSKRIT TEXT OF CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

1. ख्: वक्त्रं 2. All MSs: त्वया
3. See above, note to 1/5a. 4. क्: अज्ञाता; ग्: मज्ञाता; छ्: तज्ञाता
5. ख्, ङ्: महा 6. क्, ग्: देव 7. क्: श्लोकाथ
8. छ्: श्रीवक्रोवाच 9. छ्, ज्: –शेन. पूर्णाहम्, or the like, needs to be added to complete the syntax. 10. The regular form of the perfect participle passive of the root प्रच्छ् (6P) required here is पृष्टा but this is one syllable too short for the metre. 11. क्, ग्: याऽसौ, घ्, छ्: यासा; ज्: यासौ 12. क्, घ्, छ्: –तो 13. घ्: –र: 14. All MSs: परापरे. An ablative would make correct syntax. 15. All MSs: युगैश्च चतुरशीत्। चतुरशीतिभि: would be correct. 16. ख्, ङ्, ग्, ज्: –धत् 17. All MSs: ततोर्ध्वत:
18. As commonly happens in the Sanskrit of this text, the present tense is used to narrate past action. See above, note to 3/14c. 19. छ्: सून्याकारे 20. छ्: तमेतत्वे; all other MSs: तमेकत्वे. तमसेकत्वे is meant here. See above, note to 13/2b.
21. The nom. sing. of चेतस् has assumed the form of the acc. sing. for the sake of the metre. See above, note to 5/35c.
22. क्: समनं; all other MSs: वमनं
23. Normally the root बुध् is 1U and 4Ā. बोधामि would be correct and fits the metre. 24. M → N.
25. क्: संवर्त्तात्रं; all other MSs: संवर्त्तान्नं 26. ख्: तस्यच्छा; ङ्: तस्यछा
27. The accusative has replaced the required nominative to maintain the metre. 28. घ्: तदा 29. छ्: सून्य–
30. This pāda is one syllable too long. 31. ख्, ङ्: मत्वो
32. ख्: गहमं 33. ङ्, छ्: प्रतिष्ठा; all other MSs: प्रतिष्टा
34. M → N. 35. All MSs: –द्विकुलं. As usual in this text this coordinative compound is declined in the singular.
36. घ्: कलना; छ्: कलनाद् 37. ङ्: –दातं 38. ख्: नादि. M → N.
39. All MSs: स च 40. M → N.
41. All MSs except ङ्, छ्, ज्: कलाद्यं 42. ख्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: सातं
43. All MSs: + स–.
44. क्, ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: सविसर्गद्वि रालयं; घ्: सविसर्गाद्वि चालयं; छ्: सविसर्गाद्वि रालयं . External sandhi has occurred within this compound to gain a syllable for the metre. Cf.
24/17b. 45. All MSs: कामिकं
46. ख्, ङ्: रूषाद्यं; घ्, छ्: कथाख्यं, all other MSs: रूषाख्यं 47. छ्: –पर:
48. क्: व्कलो–; ख्, ङ्, ज्: वक्ला– 49. All MSs: –पद्धति:
50. M → N. See above, note to 7/9d. 51. ङ्, छ्, ज्: कर्णागतानि
52. क्: सप्तोच्चोरे–, ग्: सप्ताचार–; घ्, छ्: सप्ताद्वार–; all other MSs: सप्तो–
53. क्: गृहूते, ख्, ग्: गृह्नीते; घ्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: गृह्नते. We have noted already that गृह्ण– > गृह्न– is a common scribal error. The readings in MSs ख् and ग् therefore clearly suggest the correct गृह्णीते. However, this form is not attested elsewhere in the corpus whereas the deviant गृह्णते (< गृह्नते) appears several times. See above, note to 6/89d.
54. ग्: तस्य देयदेयमिदं; घ्: तस्यादेयमिति; झ्: तस्योदयमिति

55. All MSs except छ्ः कदाचनः 56. घ्ः –संघातः 57. All MSs: सामान्यैर्नैव
58. क्ः –हिव्यैः; ङ्ः महतैर्द्दिव्यैः; महद्भिः would be the regular form.
59. छ्, ज्ः –धिष्ठितैः. Cf. the compound in 24/13d. 60. All MSs: उद्धरे
61. All MSs except घ्, ङ्, ज्ः द्वादशः. See above, 6/67c. 62. All MSs: श्लोकाः
63. घ्ः षत्कूटाधिष्ठिता; all other MSs: –ता
64. घ्ः शुभा; all other MSs: शुभाः
65. ख्, ग्, ज्ः –भेदैः तथा. See above, note to 3/108b.
66. घ्ः षट् कोणभान्तरे; छ्ः षट् नभातरे. See above, note to 3/74b.
67. छ्ः षृष्तिमध्ये– 68. घ्, छ्ः षे 69. घ्ः फक्षस्था
70. क्ः द्वयभेदत 71. क्ः तदधा; all other MSs: तदधः
72. घ्, छ्ः रावमग्नि– 73. See above, note to 3/52c.
74. See above, note to 1/5a. 75. ख्, ङ्ः –मक्षर. M → N.
76. छ्ः व्योमं– 77. All MSs: श्र– 78. All MSs: क्रमो–
79. द्व्यभ्यस्तः would make better syntax. See note to 1/2d.
80. क्ः –र; ख्, झ्ः –क्षरः 81. घ्ः उद्धार्यां; छ्ः उर्द्धार्या
82. All MSs except घ्, छ्ः पद्धतिम् 83. M → N.
84. घ्ः भैरवी 85. See above, note to 5/35c.
86. All MSs: चितोनि 87. घ्, छ्ः अना
88. घ्ः गताः 89. Missing in MS क्
90. क्, ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्ः नंता; झ्ः चक्रेभौममन्त्रा; all other MSs: मंत्रा
91. घ्ः –ताः 92. क्ः गतानंज्ञं. M → N.
93. क्, ख्, छ्ः त च; all other MSs: स च
94. Like the other names for bījas and akṣaras, this too is treated as neuter.

95. (महात्मन् →) महात्मा is the regular form. It has become महात्मानम् here as if it were 'neuter ', just as आत्मन् becomes आत्मानम्. See note to 3/10d.

96. All MSs: ज्वरणाद्– 97. छ्ः भावेतौ

98. ताभ्याम्, or the like, needs to be supplied to complete the syntax.

99. All MSs: उतप्रोतं। उतप्रोतम् is the way ओतप्रोतम् is general spelt in this text. The spelling has been standardized throughout.

100. All MSs: जग–. But note that the deviant form जग– is well attested in this text. See above, note to 6/134d.

101. Note how the feminine of नाथ– is नाथा 102. All MSs: कि

103. क्ः कुतोत्पत्तो–; all other MSs: कुतोत्पत्तौ, or the like, would complete the syntax. 104. घ्, छ्ः निरामयं

105. All MSs: व्याकुलं मे समुत्पन्नं 106. छ्, ज्ः संदिग्वं 107. ख्ः वद *

108. छ्ः श्रीवक्रोवाच 109. M → N. 110. All MSs: अमोघाज्ञां

111. All MSs: इच्छा कामदुघा कला. Cf. 15/44d and 62/104b. See above, note to 3/22b.

112. ग्, झ्ः चिना–; ग्, घ्, छ्ः विद्घना–; all other MSs except ख्ः विद्यना

113. क्ः –तरुत्तागता; ग्, घ्, ङ्, छ्, ज्ः –ननुतांगता 114. All MSs: तृप्ति

115. DS. 116. Again the present tense serves to narrate past events. See above, note to 3/14c.

117. घ्ः हरः 118. घ्ः –व्योहं 119. All MSs: तं

120. M → N. 121. ग्ः –महच्छन; छ्ः शब्दान् ब्रह्मा–; all other MSs: शब्दानुब्रह्मा– 122. ङ्, छ्, ज्ः सांभवेछाख्या

123. All MSs: सशान्तमिति
124. All MSs: लक्षणाम्. This statement appears to be an abbreviated form of सुशान्ता सेति तस्या लक्षणम् 125. ख्, ङ्: कारित्
126. ख्, घ्, छ्: कलाली–; all other MSs: कलोली–. I take कुलाली to be a deviant feminine of कुलाल–. 127. क्, ग्, घ्: अकुला
128. See above, note to 2/5d. 129. All MSs: प्रवर्त्तितम्
130. घ्, छ्: शिखशेषरं. The regular form –शिरःशेखरम् (‘agreeing' with अक्षरम्) would make the fifth syllable long. 131. IM 5. A dual number is required here.
132. घ्: एव 133. छ्: क्रममे त्वं; all other MSs except क्: क्रमे–
134. All MSs except घ्, छ्, झ्: विंद्याद्
135. घ्: व्योमेण. व्योम्ना would be the regular form but is one syllable too short for the metre. See above, note to 3/135d. 136. घ्: चेष्टिता 137. M → N. 138. All MSs: नाममममृतं. this reading is possible and is that of all the MSs. See above, note to 6/57b.
139. All MSs except घ्, छ्, ङ्: विद्व–. Here, as generally happens, the proper name of a neuter noun, in this case अक्षरम् (M → N), has become neuter.
140. All MSs except झ्: तदा ते
141. घ्: द्वादश. For the sake of the metre the ordinal has replaced the cardinal. See above, note to 6/67c. 142. All MSs: –गता
143. क्, ख्: सृष्टिहेतेपलक्षणा; झ्: –हेतोप–; all other MSs: सृष्टिहेतोपलक्षणा
144. क्: न 145. All MSs: सिद्ध– 146. M → N.
147. M → N. 148. घ्, छ्: –कुलांगतं
149. All MSs except घ्, छ्, झ्: तत्त्वाणि
150. त्रिविधो मन्त्री would be the regular form but is too long for the metre.
151. All MSs: णि 152. Compare this irregular concord with the one in 1/2c.
153. क्: सिद्धाम्वयश्चोल्पात्रितत्वं, ख्, ग्, ङ्: सिद्धास्त्रयश्चोत्पात्रितत्वं; झ्: –श्चोपा–; घ्, छ्, ज्:
–श्चोल्पात्रित्वं; ङ्: –श्रोल्पा–. –स्त्रोतस्त्रय– or – त्रिस्त्रोतस्– would be correct.
154. ग्: त्रिपथातरं 155. All MSs: –ममरं 156. All MSs: विज्ञेया
157. All MSs: –भूषणा. N → M. 158. All MSs: सृष्टि
159. घ्, छ्: तद्भवा; all other MSs: तद्भरा 160. All MSs: च
161. क्: महानू * –; ख्: महानूर्मिज्योति–; घ्: महामूर्ति–; छ्: महामुर्तिर्–; all other MSs:
महानूर्मिर्–. See above, note to 3/52c.
162. मनोवेगेन, the regular form would make the fifth syllable long. See above, note to 5/4a.
163. All MSs: माली 164. All MSs: –हत
165. All MSs: अस्यैवमासनं 166. घ्: इदा; ङ्: इदो; all other MSs except ग्, छ्, ज्: ईडा
167. As usual, when the metre requires it, नामन् is declined as if it were a thematic noun. See above, 6/57b. 168. All MSs: नन्ता
169. All MSs except घ्, छ्, झ्: –हतं; all other MSs: –हृतं
170. M → N. 171. ग्: + सू
172. All MSs: स च बिन्दुर् M → N. 173. घ्: विदुर्घनं
174. ग्: भेदन 175. ङ्: कलिति
176. क्, ङ्, ज्: मपहसख–; ख्, ग्: मपहसखरो–; घ्, छ्: म–एहसख–; झ्: मवहसख–; all other

MSs: मफ्रेहसख– 177. All MSs: –ताग्नि:

178. क्: स्वत्वरसजतमैकत्वं; घ्, छ्: सत्वं रजतमेकत्वे; झ्: सत्वरजतमकत्वे; all other MSs: सत्वरजतमेकत्वे. See above, note to 4/10c.

179. क्: व्योमातं–; ख्, ग्,ङ्, ज्: व्योमात–

180. All MSs: व्योमादिस्– 181. घ्, छ्: न्यजायत:; all MSs other: न्यजायन्त

182. IC. 183. ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: कलै:–; all MSs: –ज्ञेया F → M.

184. All MSs: पञ्च आदि– 185. N → M. 186. ङ्, छ्, ज्: सां–

187. ङ्, छ्, ज्: सांभवं 188. See above, note to 3/12c.

189. All MSs: रेफं–; क्: –खेसह– 190. ग्: रोक्तं; all other MSs except क्, झ्: –नोक्तं

191. All MSs: व्योमं. I have choosen to emend, but it is possible that व्योमन् is treated here as a thematic neuter noun. See above, note to 3/135d.

192. ङ्, ज्: वह्निरर्घिस–; all MSs: –युतं 193. क्: –नादेव

194. छ्: भेभेदितं 195. All MSs: विन्दुश्चन्द्र– 196. ङ्: अक्षर

197. Here, as we have had occasion to note in other instances, the gender of the proper name agrees with that of the object named.

198. क्: शून्य 199. छ्: –कलाकितं 200. घ्: एखा

201. ख्, ङ्, झ्: यस्य–; ग्: यसामध्य–; घ्, छ्: –मध्ये–

202. All MSs except घ्: दप–; all other MSs: हप–

203. छ्: षप–; all other MSs: षष–

204. See above, note to 5/64d.

205. क्: लतंतर–; झ्: लरान्त–; all other MSs: लगंतर–

206. This and the following two lines are not found in manuscripts ङ्

207. All MSs except ख्, ङ्, झ्: मायाया 208. घ्: –स्थिता:

209. धाम्ना, the regular form of the instrumental of धामन्, is too short for the metre. 210. All MSs: –गतेयुता 211. All MSs except घ्, छ्: र

212. घ्: शक्ति 213. घ्, छ्, झ्: हसरेकार; all other MSs: हसरैका–

214. क्, घ्: शांभवा 215. ख्, ङ्, ज्: षद्बीजानु–

216. ताम्, or the like, is required to complete the syntax.

217. ग्: गरु– 218. All MSs: –ति: 219. All MSs: महता

220. ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: श्लोकाथ– 221. छ्: जन्मन. जन्मन् is declined here as if it where a thematic noun and जन्मना (which would make the seventh syllable short) is replaced by जन्मेन. See above, note to 3/159a.

222. ख्: –धरौ; घ्: –धरी 223. See above, note to 6/45a and also 1/5d.

224. ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: सर्व 225. All MSs: –न्यनेका– IM 5

226. Regarding the deviant thematic form of the noun राक्षस् see above, note to 6/155c. Cf. KMT 18/78 of which this line appears to be a shortened, garbled version:

तस्य दुष्टान्यनेकानि विघ्नानि प्रभवन्ति न।
शकिनीभूतवेताला: पिशाचोरगराक्षसा:।।

227. The root पलाय् is normally 1Ā.

228. Cf. above, 10/68b 229. All MSs except ग्, घ्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: –मेतमु–

230. घ्, छ्: य 231. All MSs: न्यसन्ति

232. क्, ख्, ग्, ज्: –ज्ञाते, घ्, ङ्, छ्: –ज्ञाने

233. ग्: गति; घ्, छ्: गति: 234. छ्: श्रीवक्रो वाच 235. घ्: चान्यं–; ज्: चान्ये–

236. See above, note to 1/5a. 237. All MSs: द्वादश:
238. All MSs except घ्, छ्, झ्: –योगिन्या. This is another example of irregular visarga sandhi in which visarga changes to ‘o' before ‘a' without the latter being dropped. See above, note to 3/22b.
239. ख्: अभिद्जान्येन; ङ्: अभिधान्येन 240. All MSs: ते 241. ङ्: भीमरुद्रा
242. All MSs except घ्: द्वादश:. See above, note to 6/67c.
243. क्, ग्: वाग्भव–; IC. See above note to 1/2c. 244. क्: देव्या
245. घ्: –येत् 246. All MSs: विन्यस्य 247. All MSs: भद्राच्चा
248. ग्: क्राष्टुकी 249. ख्, ङ्: –नन 250. क्: नांभि–; घ्: –मध्य
251. All MSs: +योगिन्यो; missing from here to सिंहस्ययोगिन्यो in MS क्
252. ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: पंच 253. All MSs except छ्: सिंघस्य
254. All MSs: –दश: 255. घ्, ङ्: एतन्याासं 256. ग्: य *
257. The root लभ् (1Ā) is treated as if it were parasmaipada here to keep the fifth syllable short. See above, note to 4/35b. 258. घ्, छ्: पुष्पलं 259. Here, as in other instances, an compound has been formed with an indeclinable.
260. Even though the syntax would be irregular, I take this adjective to be in concord with योगिनीनाम् of the preceding compound. 261. All MSs: ते
262. छ्: प्रसन्ना त्वरिता गति; all other MSs: प्रसन्ना त्वरिता गति: 263. घ्, छ्: –धरा
264. All MSs: गुप्तं 265. घ्, छ्: पुनरन्यं– 266. क्: क्षत्र–
267. क्, ख्, ङ्, ज्: मृगादि; ग्: गृगादि 268. घ्: वीजानी; छ्: जीवाना
269. ङ्: रु– 270. घ्, छ्: तावन्यासं 271. ख्, ङ्: उपदेश
272. All MSs except क्: देव्या 273. क्, ग्: वर्ण 274. All MSs: प्राण. M → N. This masculine noun is regularly treated as neuter in this text. Cf. 24/91c; see above, note to 6/133a.
275. M → N. For the same deviant gender see, cf. for example, 8/106a.
However below, 24/84a it appears in its regular gender.
276. All MSs: केवलम् 277. छ्: स्वभावनै च
278. ङ्: दीपिता; IC. दीपिताभ्याम् would make sense. 279. All MSs: वर्णदीपा–
280. ग्: आदिकादिक्रमेण तु आदिकादिक्रमे; all MSs except घ्, छ्: –क्रमे
281. M → N. See above, note to 7/12d. 282. M → N.
283. ग्: शक्तिज्ञयं; all other MSs: शक्तिज्ञेयं 284. छ्: स्वरं–
285. All MSs: तं 286. All MSs: यावदेहिनम्
287. ग्, ङ्, झ्: निष्पन्ति; घ्: निष्पत्ति, all other MSs: निष्यन्ति 288. क्: क्षत्र–
289. ज्: वेष्ठिता 290. IM 6 + 7. 291. झ्: सृर्ष्टि–
292. घ्, छ्: मूर्द्धानं– 293. घ्, छ्: क्षेत्रं–
294. क्: हीन; all other MSs: हीनं 295. क्, ङ्, ज्: मन्त्यो नाच;
ख्, झ्: मन्त्र्योनाच; ग्: मन्भ्यानाच; घ्: मर्न्भ्यानांच; छ्: मन्त्योनाञ्च 296. All MSs: आख्यानं
297. All MSs: अभ्यासादन्दमेकेन 298. See above, note to 1/4a.
299. दृश् is again treated here as if it were ātmanepada.
300. घ्, छ्: तत्रा 301. क्, ग्: अधिर; all other MSs: अधिकार
302. अधिकारत्रयम् or अधिकारान् त्रीन् would be correct. 303. झ्: विज्ञान–
304. घ्: + न शृणोति न पश्येत 305. छ्: गुलीनां
306. All MSs: ज्येष्ठ; ज्येष्ठम् and the rest appear to ‘agree' with उलि– (ओलि–) taken to be neuter. 307. कनिष्ठम् is meant here.

308. क्, ग्, ज्: क्रमं–; घ्: –मेत्रयं 309. झ्: तेभ्यां 310. IM 6 + 7.
311. The regular order of the words in this compound has been reversed.
Note also how all the names of seed-syllables and letters in this list are, as usual, treated as neuter. 312. All MSs: –दण्ड 313. All MSs: –क्षीय–
314. क्: खं खं द्रा–; घ्: ख; छ्: ख चन्द्रा– 315. घ्: च्छिव्द–
316. All MSs except घ्, छ्: एतत् 317. All MSs: स एव
318. All MSs: नाबिकाया 319. –कूटमिदम् would be correct but too long for the metre. 320. All MSs: स चैव 321. All MSs: द्वितीयं
322. क्: ओलिं; ख्, ङ्, झ्: लोलि–; झ्: ओलौ 323. All MSs: गुरु
324. ख्: मण्डलं; घ्, छ्: कौप– 325. क्: मध्यमेय all other MSs except ग्, घ्: मध्यम
326. क्: –रूपतम् 327. See above, note to 3/11b.
328. All MSs except क्: शिष्या 329. क्: सिद्धसंमतौ; घ्: सिद्धिसंततु; ङ्, ज्, झ्: –संभतौ;
छ्: सिद्धिसंततौ; all other MSs: सिद्धसंभूतौ 330. All MSs: तस्य 331. M → N.
332. घ्: गुरु–उद्या; छ्: उद्यो; all other MSs: गुरु–उद्यं
333. IC. The required वर्तन्ते does not fit the metre. So the subject of this and the following verb is treated as singular. 334. All MSs: भूयो
335. घ्, छ्: किंचि 336. क्, ख्, ग्, ज्: शांभवा–; घ्, छ्: च्छांभवा–
337. घ्: कुतस्थ– 338. IC.
339. क्: पुरनः; ख्, ङ्, झ्: नास्ति 340. All MSs: ॐ–
341. छ्: त्रि–ऊलिका; all other MSs: –का See above, note to 3/11b.
342. All MSs: विन्यस्य 343. छ्: तेयां
344. घ्: पिण्ड, all other MSs: पिण्डः 345. ग्, घ्: करोभ्यावेश–
346. ग्: –मध्यतिः 347. ख्: –मध्य 348. ख्: तृतीयं
349. All MSs: अधिकारस्– 350. घ्: –भेड 351. क्, ग्: –कन्यासं
352. छ्: वक्ष्याम्यहमतः; all other MSs except घ्: वत्सामा–
353. All MSs: देव्या. DS. See note to 3/10d. This and the following two lines are derived from KMT 18/65-66ab which read: तृतीयं दशनं देव्या आत्मह्णृत्स्थं नितम्बगम्।
शिखान्तसहितं ह्येतत् स्तनवामोपरिस्थितम्।।
कर्णभूषणवामस्थं बीजेनाहतमस्तकम्।
354. घ्, छ्: –कुण्डस– 355. घ्, छ्: –शक्तिः–
356. क्: सर्वत्र पंचकं; ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्, झ्: –प्रिय; घ्, छ्: –प्रिये. This line and the previous three are repeated in manuscripts क् and ग्. The reading सर्वजनप्रियम् is supported in this repeated section.
357. घ्, छ्: ऊषमेमैत्रम–, all other MSs: उषमैत्राम–
358. ग्: ह्येमरि–; घ्: ह्यमरिकाकमं 359. All MSs: लभ्य 360. All MSs: कल–
361. All MSs: विद्येय 362. घ्: लभेड; all other MSs: लभेत्
363. All MSs: संतान 364. All MSs: प्रथमं 365. घ्: भवेड
366. आद्यरत्नम् would be better Sanskrit. 367. All MSs: स च
368a. ङ्: आत्मर–; all other MSs except घ्, छ्: आत्सर– 368b. All MSs: –वीरा
369. घ्: –ड
370. घ्: एतारान्तर–; all other MSs: ऐकारान्तर– 371. ङ्: दी * ताः
372. घ्: चिरायुन्– 373. घ्: –याड
374. छ्: पञ्चाशद्भिस्तथापरा. This numeral should be a singular substantive. Cf.
above, 11/70a and 19/16a, 23c, 51c and note to 6/47b.
375. ङ्: पर्थना– 376. All MSs: योगिनस्य 377. All MSs: –दृष्टि

378. छ्, ज्: –सृतेन. A plural passive verb such as लभ्यन्ते is required to complete the syntax.

379. क्: जाप्य; ग्: जाप्य; घ्, छ्: जप्ये 380. घ्, छ्: –सिद्धिर्

381. All MSs except ग्, घ्: + ज्ञात्वा – 382. घ्: स्फुतं

383. घ्, छ्: एतच्चै; all other MSs: वौ 384. छ्: षोढ्यान्यासेन

385. All MSs except छ्, ज्: वेष्ठितं 386. छ्: –मन्त्रोघं

387. घ्: एत 388. क्: –बिज्ञान

389. M → N. See above, note to 1/5c.

390. घ्, छ्: षोडशिभिः; all other MSs: षोडशभिः. Although the regular instrumental is षोडशभिः it is one syllable too long for the metre and so has been emended to the common deviant form of the cardinal in this text, which is often replaced by the form of the corresponding ordinal. See above, note to 3/108b.

391. क्, ग्: न्यासं–; छ्: –मजूष– 392. M → N.

393. All MSs except क्, ङ्, झ्: गुरो– 394. M → N.

395. घ्: सक्ड– 396. घ्: –यतः 397. घ्, छ्: प्रोक्तं

398. झ्: –सस्त्रके. See note to the colophon of chapter one.

399. छ्: * न्वये 400. ङ्: आद्यापी * वतारिते; झ्: आद्यापीठा–

401. All MSs: अथा–. See note to the colophon of chapter one.

402. घ्, छ्: –नन्द

NOTES OF THE TRANSLATION OF CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

1. 'Kumārikākhaṇḍa' is both the name of this section of the MBT and the land of Bhārata, which is shaped like the trangular – 'part of the Virgin Goddess' that embodies her. Cf. KMT 2/118 and above 6/220cd-221ab.

2. We find several cosmogonies in the Kubjikā Tantras. Although they vary in detail, sometimes to a large extent, they all agree that prior to creation there is a primordial Darkness from which emerges, at the initial moment of creation, the Divine Will embodied in the goddess from whom creation proceeds. Variations in the understanding of the nature of the goddess account for the nature of the universe generated from her and its equivalent in the Kubjikā Tantra's system of representation. Thus, for example, further ahead (cf. below 28/143cd-145), the goddess's triadic nature is emphasized when she emerges out of the pre-cosmic Void as the Transmental as the source of the three Transmissions (krama).

Similarly, the following cosmogony at the beginning of chapter fifteen of YKh (2) serves to explain the progressive generation of the Siddhas. The part quoted extends up to the creation of the first three Siddhas. It goes on to talk about the generation of the Five (see below notes to 25/41-46ab) and Nine Siddhas (see above 7/60ff.) and then of the others (See also Yoga (2) 11/10cd-20):

O Great God (mahādeva), when the universe, mobile and immobile, was a formless Void there was neither you nor I, neither Brahmā nor Keśava (Viṣṇu), neither gods nor the worlds, neither Gandharvas nor Kinnaras, neither Nāgas nor the netherworlds (where they reside). I had burnt (them all) with the Fire of Time (kālāgni). Nothing came into being and all things were darkness wrapped in inertia (tamas). The divine Command arose there in (that) formless ocean. Once again I emanated that (Command), beautiful with the Earth and (the other principles of existence). The God of the gods, the Supreme Lord without beginning, the agent of the emanation of the radiant energy (tejas) (to which belongs all that) extends from Brahmā up to the end of the worlds, slept.

O Hara, the unmanifest god generated the Cosmic Egg (aṇḍa). O fair-faced one, there in the middle, you and I abided for a cosmic age (kalpa). O Bhairava, by the Yoga of the Sequence of Withdrawal (saṁhārakrama), I came to be (saṁbhūtā). O beautiful one, listen to what I, who had just come forth, did. Taking that Egg into (my) hand, I then churned it. Then when the Egg had been churned, Brahmā and Viṣṇu came into being. Thus, the Egg of Brahmā was adorned and (there arose) the great state (pada) of the three and, O god, the Supreme Lord without beginning abided self-established (svayameva). Brahmā, Viṣṇu and Rudra: these are the first Śāmbhava Siddhas. Brahmā resides in the Egg of Brahmā, Keśava in the location of the Yoni (bhagasthāna) and Rudra in that of the Liṅga. I who (thus) possess three natures am threefold, and I generated the three Siddhas in order to create, protect and withdraw (the universe).

yasmin kāle nirākāre [k, kh: -kare] śūnyabhūte carācare ||
na [k, kh: ta] tvaṁ nāhaṁ mahādeva na brahmā na ca keśavaḥ [k, kh: keśava] |
na surā na ca vai lokā gandharvā na ca kinnarāḥ [k, kh: -rā] ||
*na nāgā na ca pātālā dagdhāḥ [k: nagdhā; kh: na (?)] kālāgninā mayā |
utpattir [k, kh: utpattiṁ] nāsti sarveṣāṁ andhakāras tamovṛtaḥ [k, kh: -raṁ tamāvṛtam] ||
*tatrārṇave nirākāre [k: -rai; kh: nirākā (?)] divyājñā yā [kh: (?)] samudbhavā [kh: -va] |
*punar eva mayā sṛṣṭā * pṛthivyādir manoramā [k, kh: -dimanoramā]* ||
prasuptaṁ devadeveśaṁ [k: -devaśaṁ] anādiparameśvaram |
tejaḥsṛṣṭes tu [k: -ṣṭistu; kh: (?)] kartāraṁ ābrahmabhuvanāntikam ||
avyaktena tu devena aṇḍam utpāditaṁ hara |
tatra madhye ahaṁ tvaṁ ca sthitau [k, kh: -to] kalpaṁ varānana ||
saṁhārakramayogena saṁbhūtāhaṁ ca bhairava |
*mayā saṁjātamātre yat [k: -mātrāyā; kh: saṁjātamā * (?)] yat kṛtaṁ śṛṇu sundara ||
tac cāṇḍaṁ [k, kh: sa-] tu kare kṛtvā mathitaṁ tu mayā tadā |
tadā [k: tatsau; tatsyai] cāṇḍasya [kh: vāṇḍasya] mathite [k, kh: mathitu] brahmā [k, kh: brahma] viṣṇur ajāyata ||
brahmāṇḍaṁ bhūṣitaṁ tena [k, kh: tena bhūṣitabrahmāṇḍa] trayāṇāṁ ca [kh: (?)] padaṁ [kh: (?)] mahat |
*svayam eva sthito deva anādiparameśvaraḥ [k: -ra; kh: anādiparame * (?)] ||
brahmā viṣṇus tathā rudraḥ [kh: (?)] ādisiddhās tu [k: -sta; kh: (?)] śāmbhavāḥ [k: -vā] |
*brahmāṇḍasaṁsthito brahmā bhagasthāne tu [kh: (?)] keśavaḥ [kh: (?)śavaḥ] ||
*liṅgasthāne [kh: liṅgasthā (?)] sthito [kh: (?)] rudras tridhāhaṁ [k: rudratri-; kh: (?)] trisvarūpiṇī [kh: (?)] |
sṛṣṭipālanasaṁhāre siddhāś cotpāditā mayā || [kh: (?)] YKh (2) 15/10cd-20

The cosmogony with which this chapter begins serves to explain the origin of Sound and its progressive development to ultimately form the mantra called the Twelve Verses and with it the universe.

3. The Fire of Destruction is the letter KṢa. The last letter, it is the final energy into which all the energies of Speech of the other 49 letters are withdrawn. Note the feminine form of Samvartā. It is the name of the energy of the bliss which rises up out of the centre of the maṇḍala. It is the energy of the Fire of Time which is at once the Year and the energy of Rudra who is the all-consuming Fire. At the same time it is the Fire of the sacrifice (that of the Churning Bhairava, in this case) from which the universe is generated. The energy of Fire thus both creates and destroys. This Fire is situated at the uppermost extremity of the movement of the Breath, and of Sound which is transported by it. It is thus the Śikhā which, as the two meanings of the word suggest, is both ‘flame' and ‘topknot' or ‘crest'.

4. Dakṣa’s incomplete Vedic sacrifice is completed as Bhairava’s Sacrifice. Just as, according to the famous Puruṣasukta of the Ṛgveda (10/90), the creation of the world takes place in a sacrificial session, in the same way, the mantras of the goddess’s Kula are generated through Bhairava’s sacrifice – and with them, the universe. The core of this sacrifice, like its Vedic precident, is the fire. But now the Fire is the goddess. When the fire is ‘cool’, hidden in its embers, the universe abides within the absolute as a potential. When the fire blazes and manifests, it is created. Similarly Kubjikā’s tradition, generated and transmitted through the empowering grace of the deity’s ‘Lion’s Gaze’, is the Lion. When it is hidden as a subtle – ‘atomic’ – potential form in the absolute being of the god, the universe is wrapped in the darkness of the unmanifest condition. When it blazes forth, the universe is illumined by the teaching, the transmission of which is the process of emanation (sṛṣṭi) by which it is created.

5. Kula is energy and Kaula (= Kulakaulika) is the union of Śiva and his energy that precipitates into the transformations through which the creative-cum-destructive process of manifestation takes place when the balance of this union is disturbed.

6. See below 24/42-3 where the five forms of Sound, which are related to the Five Praṇavas, are listed.

7. The same expression – ‘kulāvalitayogena’ – occurs again below in 24/24a. I suppose the meaning of ‘Kula’ here is the ‘series of energies’ of the letters of the alphabet that are embedded in the Twelve Verses.

8. karṇāt karṇagataṁ lit. ‘from ear to ear'.

9. The Kula liturgy refers in one sense to the whole current of the tradition, its transmission through all the phases of manifestation from the transcendent, its teachings and the sum total of the rituals, mantras and yogic practice (kramaugha) (KMT 2/49). It can also mean the Divyaugha (see below 57/92cd-93ab). In a more limited sense the KMT refers to the mantra called the Twelve Verses in this way and this is the meaning here. The mantra is divided into 48 units of eight syllables each. A letter of the alphabet is embedded in each unit. Thus this mantra, which serves as the goddess’s girdle, encompasses her with the energies of the letters enhanced by the energies of the seed-syllables and the mantra. Thus it is particularly powerful. The goddess in the KMT (18/48-54ab) declares:

The Kula liturgy (kulapaddhati) abides in this way (vai) as (the series of letters from) Śrīkaṇṭha (A) to Bhṛgu (Sa). O goddess, the Kula liturgy is divided up in this way. This group of ten and two verses is the plane of supreme nectar.

When this is recited the Mothers are always aroused. Immediate possession takes place and (the one who recites it) becomes a poet. Once this is recited, the accomplishment, which is the Piercing of the Command (ājñāvedha) and everything else, takes place. You should not tell (this) to those who are not devotees. This is the Supreme Goddess's Command. This is (the mantra called) Twelve Verses adorned with a garland of fire. One should respect it as the Doomsday Fire that starts from the feet and ends with the head. O goddess, this Girdle (mekhalā) should be deposited in the reverse order according to the teaching. Its utterance (uccāra) is possession (āveśa) that occurs at each place (within the body). It should be kept hidden with effort and not given to (just) anybody. This is the protector of the living being. Otherwise (if told to those who are unfit or not recited correctly and regularly), it is damaging.

See above note to 3/31-32 where the Twelve Verses are presented in full and discussed.

10. There are two forms of the Twelve Verses. One is the extended form within which are embedded the letters of the alphabet. This lines the sides of the goddess's Triangle in the manner described previously (see above 11/44cd-46ab and Ṭīkā fl. 124a-124b quoted there in the note). The other is the seed-syllable HSKHPHREṀ, described in chapter nine. The account in this chapter of the Twelve Verses begins with a brief summary of the first type and continues with a more extended explanation of the second.

11. According to the SvT (6/24cd-5ab), Haṁsa is the form of Śiva, the Supreme Self beyond the Five Praṇavas. It is the tranquil Śiva, the supreme cause (SvT 6/15). Similarly, below (24/60), the Five Praṇavas are said to be Śāmbhava with the sixth beyond as supreme consciousness. The latter is the syllable HSKHPHREṀ which is called the Peak of Consciousness (caitanyakūṭa). This syllable is commonly added to the Five Praṇavas. There are many examples in the mantras of the Kramas described in chapter twenty-three of the Śrīmatottara presented in appendix 9 of this volume.

12. The goddess is Parā and her 'form' – mūrti – is the syllable AIṀ. It is at the end and the beginning of the sonic energies embodied in the six syllables that, emited in and through it, are 'sustained' by the goddess's Supreme Form (see below 24/38-39). According to the KMT (18/40) the Twelve Verses is the girdle (mekhalā) of the body of the goddess Parā generated by the projection of the mantras of its six limbs. Thus the relationship of this mantra with Parā is represented concretely in her visualized form.

13. This verse refers to the structure of both modalities of the Twelve Verses, focusing especially on the extended form of the Twelve Verses and how it is emitted. It consists of twelve units of two lines each, thirty-two syllables long, that is, the measure of a verse set in śloka metre. Each line consists of sixteen syllables or 'divisions' in two parts, thus making four in each 'verse'. The complete mantra has already been presented above in the note to 3/30-31ab. The following is the first 'verse' to which we may conveniently refer as an example:

*aiṁ haḥ a paramānande haḥ ā siddhidānandane **
haḥ i parāpare hrūṁ phreṁ phaṭ kṣaḥ ī śrīkulāmbike || 1 ||

In each 'verse' the goddess is invoked four times and there are four letters embedded in each 'verse' that run consecutively in alphabetical order so as to cover the first forty-eight letters in the whole mantra. Each verse begins with AIṀ – the seed-syllable of emanation. Thus the 'verses' are 'in the middle of Emanation' issuing forth from it like great waves of luminous sonic energy (cf. below 24/44-45). Again, the Twelve Verses, of which the most essential parts are the forty-eight letters embedded in it, lines the three sides of the goddess's Triangle, to which the text refers as her three 'girdles' (11/44cd-46ab) they form the enclosure (parigraha) of the Triangle (7/12-14ab). To the left and right are the two remaining letters Ha and KṢa 'divided in two' representing Śiva and Śakti (7/35-36ab; see 7/8-36ab).

We have seen that the single syllabic form of the Twelve Verses – HSKHPHREṀ – is in two parts. One is 'with sound' (sasvara) and the other 'without sound' (asvara). The first consists of the six audible letters 'with support' (sālamba) and the latter their development in six higher levels of sonic energy 'within the Void' 'without support'. The 'sixfold sequence' of the seed-syllable that emerges from the Immobile consititutes the Vidyā 'enveloped in Voidness', that is, with the energies of the resonance of the syllable (see below, 24/36-37 and note). It appears that here the full mantra is equated with the first 'immanent' aspect and the seed-syllable with the second 'transcendental' one.

14. The Kulapaddhati is another name for the Twelve Verses, especially when it is understood essentially as the letters embedded within it. Thus the KMT explains that it extends from A to Sa. It is divided into three to form the sides of a triangle. These are: 1) A to AḤ 2) Ka to Bha 3) Ma to Sa.

According to the KMT, as here, it is associated with seed-syllables, but those of the KMT appear to be different from the one here. Here they are only three (with the last recited twice). According to the KMT there are five syllables which are, presumably, to be recited with each letter. Presented in the Mālinī code they are: 1) HRĪṀ 2) AH 3) HPHRŪṀ 4) HPHREṀ 5) KṢAḤ (KMT 18/44-8). However, nothing is said about how these syllables should be applied. They are not a part of the main body of the Twelve Verses.

15. Cf. above 24/14d.

16. Kaulinī is Pūrṇā – the Full One, that is, the Full Moon (24/61). This is her supreme manifest form in which all her energies are displayed and active (sakalā). She becomes the New Moon when she resumes her pure undifferentiated form (niṣkalā) within transcendental stillness. There she is Kuṇḍalinī, the power of Unstruck Sound, that is, Mālinī, who is the Transmental Yoni of manifestation (24/45). She generates the Śāmbhava state resonant with the Six Syllables of the manifest part of the Twelve Verses. See above, 3/121cd-123ab.

17. The seed-syllable form of the Twelve Verses is divided into two groups of six. One consists of the six letters – HA SA KHA PH R E which are the aspects of Kaulinī as the Full Moon into which she is differentiated in the Śāmbhava state (24/48). The other group consists of six subtle energies of Sound. They are represented by the New Moon. These two aspects emerge from each other and merge into one another in the perpetual dynamism of the 'churning' that takes place in the union between the god and the goddess, the fundamental polarities of the one ultimate reality.

18. Cf. above, 19/55 and note.

19. 'Churning' is an evident euphamism for the dynamic union of Śiva and Śakti. We have seen how the KMT (3/30-32) describes Bhairava and the goddess engaged in 'churning' after their marriage and that it is one of the reasons why the goddess is bent (intro. vol. 1, p. 70 ff.). The Yoga of the Churning of Śiva and Śakti is described in the KMT (12/53ab-67ab = ŚM 15/205-218 quoted and explained in the intro. vol. 1, p. 331 ff). The context is a description of the Wheel of the City of Gems located in the navel where it takes place. The HA of exhalation unites there with the SA of inhalation and Kuṇḍalinī, the Point (Ṁ) between them, rises from the Fire of the Navel generated by their 'churning' as the stream of Unstruck Sound of HAṀSA through which the Twelve Verses are generated. Thus the six syllables which represent the manifest aspect are said above to be those of HAṀSA, which, as Unstruck Sound, is the unmanifest aspect and source.

20. The Twelve Verses are the Sound (rāva) of Kālī (24/14), the energy of the New Moon. The emergence and differentiation of this Sound, first in six unmanifest stages and then as the six letters, will be described next.

21. Concerning Kubjikā as Kulālī or Kulālikā – the Female Potter, see intro. vol. 2, p. 104 ff.. Kula is the aggregate of all the energies emitted from the transcendental Void. Kaula are their permutation. The pure Will is identified with Kālī in the previous verse and Samvartā in the next is the energy generated from the transcendent Akula (i.e. the 'non-aggregated'). Here she is appropriately called Kulālī, the female potter. Kulālī's job is to spin the potter's wheel. Similarly, this energy activates the configurations – wheels – of energies, through which the 'pots' of creation are fashioned.

22. Instead of taking these to be a series of nouns, we could understand them to be adjectives qualifying the Nameless, that is, the inner, absolute nature of Bhairava, and translate as follows:

'The first is called the Nameless (anāma), which is eternal, the summit of (the deity's) head, and the light of the great Bhairava that pervades the Western House.'

However, the reference to the 'group of six' in the following sentence seems to support the first translation. If so, these six presumably correspond to the six stages of the utterance of the single syllable Vidyā that are 'Without Support' (see above 9/12-17). As the higher stages of Sound rising through the pervasive Unmanifest, they are 'enveloped with the Void'. Either way, in the following verse the six are treated collectively as the one reality, namely, Bhairava who is the Point (bindu). This Point, I suppose, is the Void that enevelops the goddess, who is also the Point. Indeed, in the Kubjikā Tantras, the Point most commonly represents the goddess rather than the god. And this is what is stated in the following lines where the goddess says that she is present in the Ocean, that is, the Point. So the two pervasive Voids of the two Points – Bhairava and the goddess – unite. Thus the goddess emerges as the Will from her unmanifest condition as the Triangle of the Transmental which generates the Twelve Verses.

23. The Great Place is the Ocean of the Point encompassed by Meru (17/36cd-39). In this context, the latter is Kula, the Triangle of Triads represented by the seed-syllables HRĪṀ, ŚRĪṀ and KHPHREṀ. Akula is HSRŪAUṀ. At 'the end of the Kula of Kulākula' is the Point between HA and SA of the Unstruck Sound. In its more developed form, the Point – also called the Unbroken Maṇḍala – is AIṀ in the centre of the Triangle. This is the goddess's 'lower' immanent form within the Point. As such she is Śāmbhavīśakti who differentiates into the energies of the Śāmbhava state embodied in the six manifest letters HASAKHAPHREṀ. Thus the two seed-syllables of the goddess represent her unmanifest (niṣkala) and manifest (sakala) states.

24. The Ocean is the Point, the nasalizing anusvāra, which together with the Sun – Śiva (SA) and Moon – Śakti (HA) to the right and left, make HAṀSA (cf. above, 24/28). This is the 'Unstruck Sound' of Kuṇḍalinī, the inner energy of the vital breath (prāṇaśakti). It is the inhaled solar breath (prāṇa), which makes the sound SA, and the exhaled lunar breath (apāna), which makes the sound HA. The two breaths travel to and fro from the bridge of the nose where the nasal anusvāra can be heard. This is the point where the breath ends and begins to move. From here originate the five ornaments of Kula, that is, the Five Praṇavas that make up the fivefold Kaulikī Vidyā (see above 8/109cd-110). They have been supplied in brackets after their corresponding 'yogic' name.

25. Cf. above (13/40) where the goddess declared that liberation takes place in the Vessel of Iḍā.

26. The energy of the New Moon generates the Full Moon as the Unmanifest becomes Manifestation and Unstruck Sound is articulated into mantric syllables through which the Elements are created. Thus from the Vessel of Energy, full of potencies ready to be actualized, dawns the Full Moon – the luminary of the Night – and with it the Sun – the luminary of the Day – that together generate the immanent domain of the polarities.

27. MAPHREKHASAHA is the reverse of the audible part of the syllable of the Twelve Verses, that is, HASAKHAPHREṀ. MA is the Point – Ṁ – at the end of the syllable in the order of ascent in the course of its utterance 'from below'. This is the order of withdrawal into the transcendent Unstruck Sound beyond. In this context it is 'uttered' from above, that is, articulated in the order of emanation downwards and so its manifest, immanent form begins with the Point. The first of these six letters encompasses the others, as their source of emanation. The remaining five are embodied in the Five Praṇavas.

'Emanation' in the centre of the Triangle is AIṀ, which is condensed into the Point. It is the seat of the deity and the vessel of all its sonic energies gathered within it as Unstruck Sound. From this unmanifest, inner state arises the sixfold Śāmbhava state, which is represented by the syllable HASAKHAPHREṀ. The five Kaula Praṇavas are Śāmbhava. Their energy is contained and generated in this, the sixth syllable, which is supreme Śāmbhava consciousness (caitanya) (24/60). Thus the goddess first divides into three to assume the form of the triangular Yoni in the centre of the maṇḍala as AIṀ (see note to KuKh 3/13-14ab). This triad consists of the three Qualities of Nature united in a balanced state within the Void of the Point, just as they are within Unmanifest Nature (avyaktaprakṛti, pradhāna). From this First Principle arise the energies of the letters through which the universe of words is generated, just as the metaphysical principles (tattva) arise from Unmanifest Nature.

The Fire of the energy of the goddess burns in the Void in the Centre. Its silent Unstruck Sound is the Transmental energy of the cosmogonic Will that emanates the seed-syllables of the Five Elements, without lossing its essential condition as the Śāmbhava state. Thus, as the Twelve Verses, the outer sonic form of this energy manifests as the six syllables corresponding to its audible manifest letters in its 'lower' immanent aspect while retaining its essential 'supreme' state of transcendence, mirroring the six in their inner condition. The former is symbolized by the Full Moon and the latter by the New Moon. Thus the two groups of six – immanent and transcendent are united (24/62-63ab) in the Twelve Verses, the sonic form of the one lunar goddess.

28. Note that, unlike the previous condition (see 24/49), the Point – anusvāra – (which symbolizes the Void) is apparently missing. But this is not the case. Previously the perspective was from the transcendent that generated the expanse of immanence. Now in this immanent condition the Point represents the Śāmbhava state, which encompasses and generates the remaining five. In this condition the primary polarities 'Śakti – Anāmā' and 'Śiva – Anāma' have emerged. These are conjoined to the group of five syllables, which is the 'primary face' of the Point in the centre. In the following verses, the Five Kaula Praṇavas that are emanated from that and contain and manifest their energy are presented in code.

29. The same set of Five 'Kaula' Praṇavas was extracted previously in chapter eight in the usual forward order, that is, in the 'sequence of emanation.' Kaulinī (8/93-94), Raudrī – there called Mahāmāyā Vidyā (8/98cd-99), the Śāṅkarī Vidyā (8/98cd-99), the Khecarī Vidyā (8/101cd-103ab), and Bhairava's seed-syllable, which there is called the Bhairavī Vidyā (8/104cd-105).

30. The Śāṅkarī Vidyā, the third Kaula Praṇava, extracted above (8/98cd-99) is, as we would expect, ŚRĪṀ. Here, it appears that at least one extra letter has been added at the beginning of it to make HŚRĪṀ.

31. KHA is the letter that denotes the transcendental Void, which I suppose is what is meant here by the 'inexplicable energy of the letters'.

32. Below (24/69) 'Vāgbhava', which is normally the name of the syllable AIṀ, may mean 'Praṇava'. This is apparently the case here also. However, AIṀ may also be meant, which is normally the first Praṇava, along with HSHKPHREṀ. Indeed, we are told in the next verse that 'sixth' Praṇava is the latter syllable.

33. Caitanya is a name of the seed-syllable HSKHPHREṀ; see note 1 to 9/2cd-3ab and 24/16cd-17.

34. The Pūrṇā Vidyā is the Samayā Vidyā of the goddess who has six limbs and six faces. It is recited with the Five Praṇavas at the beginning in the forward order and at the end in the reverse. Here, it seems the extra syllable called Twelve Verses i.e. HSKHPHREṀ is added to them.

35. Normally, 'Vāgbhava' is the syllable AIṀ but in this case it may be a synonym for 'Praṇava'. Although I have not been able to trace this usage of the word elsewhere, except perhaps in verse 24/59, this is probable as it makes no sense to say that they should be in a forward or reverse order if 'Vāgbhava' is AIṀ. Thus, presumably, the three Vāgbhavas are the first three Praṇavas, prefixed in the forward order and suffixed in the reverse order to each mantra. See the following note.

36. The SKh (MS G fl. 22a) records a similar deposition of the Twelve Limbs (dvādaśāṅganyāsa). The structure of each of the twelve units is as follows: 1) The first three Praṇavas i.e. AIṀ HRĪṀ ŚRĪṀ. 2) The initial letter of the Yoginī of that unit with the nasalizing anusvāra. 3) The name of the goddess in the nominative case preceded by the honorific 'ŚRĪ' followed by the word 'devī'. 4) The location on the body in the locative case followed by AIṀ.

The following is a comparative table of the names of the goddesses in each unit and their location according to the KuKh and the SKh. Note that, in all three manuscripts of the SKh, the tenth unit is missing.

6. Table of the Twelve Yoginīs of the Deposition of the Limbs of the Twelve Verses

Name of Yoginī (KuKh)	Name of Yoginī (SKh)	Location (KuKh)	Location (SKh)
Nandā	Nandā	Head	Place of repose
Rudrā / Bhadrā	Bhadrā	Forehead	Forehead
Jayā	Kālikā	Right eye	Left eye
Kālī	Kālasaṁkarṣaṇī	Left eye	Right eye
Karālī	Karāladevī	Right ear	Right ear
Vikṛtānanā	Vikarāladevī	Left ear	Left ear
Kroṣṭukī	Kaṭorākṣī	Tip of the nose	Tip of the nose
Bhīmabhadrā	Bhīmā	Mouth	Mouth
Vāyuvegā	Vāyughaṇṭā	Throat	Throat
Hayānanā	* * * *	Heart	* * * *
Gambhīrā	Gambhīrā	Middle of the navel	Navel
Ghoṣaṇī	Bhīṣaṇī	Genitals	Genitals

37. This subject has already been discussed in a different context in chapter seven (see 7/12 ff.). Recapitulating, we remind the reader that the word parigraha- can mean both 'form' and 'enclosure'. The former applies to the goddess, the latter to the Triangle of the Yoni. Both are implied here. The Triangle is lined with the energies of the letters embedded in the mantra Tadgraha. These are deployed in three rows of sixteen letters to form the sides or 'enclosure' of the Triangle. Thus the Kulapaddhati extends from A to Sa divided into three from 1) A to AḤ 2) Ka to Bha and 3) Ma to Sa. Ha and KṢa, the remaining two letters, are deposited to the left and right of the triangle.

The rows symbolize the range of the series of energies and metaphysical principles that constitute the 'form' of the goddess who is accordingly said to possess 'the beautiful form of the essential nature of (all) the principles of existence' (tattvātmāsuparigrahā 3/118). This is also the enclosure of the field – kṣetraparigraha – of the Triangle formed by the deployment of the three series of letters produced by the energies of the Moon, Sun and Śiva's will (7/12). This is the 'threefold enclosure of the (three) principles' (3/56), namely, those of the Vidyā, the Self and Śiva into which the principles of existence are divided.

38. Ha and KṢa represent Śiva and Śakti (7/35). Placed one on each side of a letter they give rise to an aggregate – piṇḍa – of letters, that is, a seed-syllable mantra that blazes like fire with energy and light. Thus the letters energized in this way are like rows of flames.

39. The vowels are Śakti and the consonants Śiva. The point of contact between them takes place through visarga, the last in the series of vowels. From this contact, emission – visarga – takes place, which generates the rest of emanation.

40. The energy of Rudra is commonly represented by the syllable AIṀ.

Thus the structure of each unit appears to be: AIṀ HA [letter] KṢA AIṀ.

41. The yogi thus shares in the experience of the goddess herself when she experiences Voidness (see above 24/8). This takes place when the vital breath reaches the Cavity of Brahmā. (see above note to 14/10-11ab).

42. The letters correspond to parts of Mālinī's body. We would therefore expect the corresponding deities to be goddesses or Yoginīs, whereas the text refers to them as Rudras. It appears that the syllable consists of the letters Sa Ha KṢa Ma La Va Ra Bha Ha Ra Ā.

43. I have not been able to identify 'chinnamuṇda'. Cāmuṇḍā is Ca.

44. This important group of mantras is discussed at length below in chapter 62; see also 44/32-33. The Five Praṇavas and the five gods who preside over them are sometimes called the Five Jewels (see e.g. below 39/63 and 46/10d-14ab) and the two sets of mantras work together (62/3cd-5ab). They commonly appear in versions of the Krama as a group (this is the context of chapter 62 below). Here they form part of the series of depositions of the goddess's body. Our text follows the KMT, which also treats this deposition, along with the others that conclude with this one, as the KMT (18/74-78ab) declares:

> The body (piṇḍa) has sixteen limbs (avayava) and is well regulated (yantrita) by the sixfold deposition, it bears the garland of the (Twelve) Verses and is adorned with the series of Tadgraha. The Five Jewels are the supreme face endowed with Akula. Once the body endowed with the group of depositions within the body has been fashioned, that (becomes) the goddess's supreme body, grounded in the Śāmbhava plane. The body made of the parts (of mantra) and generated from the parts (of mantra) is established in the Yoga of the Doomsday Fire. The many evil obstacles do not overpower the yogi who is intent on the depositions in accord with the teaching concerning the body made of the parts (of mantras) and, having performed the entire deposition, abides blessed (subhāvita) (by the goddess).

The five mantras invoke the hordes of Yoginīs who reside in five worlds from which they derive their names. According to the KMT (18/63) they are the 'Jewels of the nectar' – amṛtaratna – of Gagana – the Sky, Svarga – heaven, Pātāla – the netherworlds, Martya – the mortal world and Nāraka – hell. Note that the last world is also identified in the sources as that of the snakes – the Nāga (see note to 44/33). Either way, a composite seed-syllable of the Five Jewels is derived from the first letter of the names of the five worlds, presented in code in the following verse.

45. These lines are derived from KMT 18/65-66ab, which are reproduced in the notes to the Sanskrit text. In that version, instead of the goddess's 'right breast' – i.e. the letter Cha, we find the left one, that is, the letter La. Thus, whereas here the seed-syllable is GSPMNCHŪṀ, in the KMT it is GSPMNLŪṀ.

46. It appears that a part of text referring to the second and third Jewel are missing. Presumably these are projected into the navel and the heart.

47. The ‘field’, as we have seen, is the Yoni which is denoted by the syllable AIṀ. Thus, presumably what is meant here is that the syllables of the Five Jewels are encapsulated by the syllable AIṀ and so ‘dissolve away’ into it when it is uttered at the end of each one.

48. According to KMT 18/74, quoted above in the note to 24/105: ‘the body (piṇḍa) has sixteen limbs (avayava) and is well regulated (yantrita) by the sixfold deposition.’

NOTES OF THE SANSKRIT TEXT OF CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

1. Missing in MS छ्. The following verses appear at the beginning of this chapter in manuscripts घ् and छ्:

श्रीमालिन्यादिसमूहेन सावद्वै रत्नपञ्चकं।।
तावन्न्यासं समायोगायो स्थिता कुब्जिकामते।।
क्रमसन्ततसन्यस्तं परामूर्ति (छ्: मूर्तिर्) विचिन्तयेत्।।
आदौ द्वादशभेदेन न्यासं कुर्याच्च कौलिकं।।
षडङ्गं वक्त्रसंयुक्ता गुरुरार्चा (छ्: –नार्च्चा) तु मूर्धनि।।
आत्मानं हृदये न्यस्य पश्चात् षोढा समारभेत् (छ्: समारभवेत् (?))।।
एककालं द्विकालं वा त्रिकालमिति मन्यते।।
अर्धरात्रे गते देव अस्यसेत् (छ्: अल्पसेत्) सततं प्रिये (छ्: प्रिय)।।
कृत्वा सत्वावृतं ज्ञेयं चक्रपूजीयथा विभुः (छ्: वभुः)।।
भवतै (छ्: भवते) ना च मन्त्रज्ञयथाहं च तथा त्वयि (छ्: त्वपि)।।
श्रीनाथं श्रीपति (छ्: श्रीपतिः) शक्त्या सिद्धभैरव (छ्: –हेरव) कौलिकः।।
सवरास्ववर स्वामी सद्यो ज्ञानन्तिरूपिणः।।
भर्तारं (छ्: हर्तारं) कन्दचक्रन्तु अधोमुखधोवस्थितम्।। (छ्: + श्रीनाथ उवाच)

2. ङ्, झ्: चे   3. ङ्, ज्: –दैमया. See above, note to 3/108b.
4. ङ्, छ्, ज्, झ्: ज्ञानं   5. ङ्: –न

6. The omission of sandhi has kept the fifth syllable short but even then the metre is defective as the sixth and seventh syllables are both short, rather then long, as they should be.

7. घ्, छ्: स्वाभाविस–; ङ्: स्वाभाविकं–   8. ङ्, छ्, ज्, झ्: सस्फुटं
9. All MSs except घ्, छ्: ज्ञानं   10. झ्: –क्रमेन   11. छ्: श्रीवक्रोवाच

12. घ्: + चण् प्रश्न–; छ्: + च This masculine noun is almost invariably treated as neuter throughout this text.

13. ख्, ङ्, झ्: देवदेवो–; घ्: देवदेवेनतवितं; छ्: देवदेवेनतारितं   14. ख्, ङ्, झ्: कुलमूल * *

15. The rest of this line and the following one up to –समुद्भवम् is missing in MSs ख्, ङ् and झ्   16. IM 6 + 7.

17. As often happens, तम् replaces तत्   18. घ्, छ्: चतुर्दस–
19. घ्, छ्: हि   20. ङ्: हिमकु * न्दु–   21. क्: ऊर्द्ध्व
22. राजन् has become राजम् for the metre.
23. ङ्, झ्: –कपिक–; all other MSs: वह्निः कपिकसंकाशं   24. ख्, ङ्, झ्: –ज्वलत–

25. All MSs: भेदा   26. क्: षड्विज्ञेया; घ्, छ्: षडज्ञेया; ङ्: षडिज्ञेयो; all other MSs: षडिर्ज्ञेया. See above, note to 10/24d.

27. This masculine proper name is treated here, as often happens, as neuter.   28. छ्: –थानकं   29. All MSs: पिण्ड

30. ङ्, ज्: आरक्तंश्च; छ्: आरक्त; झ्: आरक्तश्च

31. क्, ग्, झ्: आरक्तश्चद्विवासमम्; ख्: आरक्तश्चद्ववासस; ङ्, ज्, झ्: द्ववाससं; all other MSs: –वाससम्   32. क्: ऊर्द्ध; ग्: ऊर्द्ध

33. झ्: भेदा M → N. MS झ् repeats the previous lines from षडिर्ज्ञेया onwards up to here.   34. क्: वे

35. ख्, ङ्, झ्: रक्रान्तंस्वषष्ठसमा. The regular order of the first two words in this compound has been reversed.

36. All MSs except क्, ग्: विंदुसंस्थं–

37. ज्वलन् is the nominative singular ज्वलन्तम् is the accusative singular.

38. Again तत् has become तम्. 39. M → N. See above, note to 3/25d.

40. घ्, छ्: चक्रं. The final anusvāra of चक्रनायकम् (M → N) has been dropped for the metre, thus leading to the formation of an irregular compound. Cf. 25/13c

41. Cf. above 6/186d, 21/17d and 25/12b and see above, note to 6/9a.

42. क्, घ्: ऊर्द्ध; ख्, छ्, ज्: ऊर्द्धे

43. The noun वर्ण– (M) is invariably treated as neuter. 44. M → N.

45. क्, ख्, ग्, ज्: षोडश; all other MSs: षोडश:. Cf. below, 25/14b and 25/21c.

46. Cf. 25/12a and note.

47. All MSs: –भैरव. I have emended to the usual deviant neuter gender of proper names of the Sanskrit of this text.

48. All MSs: पिण्ड 49. ङ्, झ्: ध्यान्

50. All MSs except ख्: –मीषमविमिश्रितम्; all other MSs: –मीषत्स्यामविमिश्रितं

51. DS. 7/25c, 8/89c, and 15/31a. 52. IM 6 + 7.

53. All MSs: षोडश:. The reading has been emended but see above, note to 3/108b. 54. M → N. 55. छ्: पिण्ड

56. M → N. 57. Cf. above, 25/13a.

58. All MSs except क्: तस्योर्द्धे 59. घ्, छ्: पृथक्

60. घ्: गोजीर–. M → N. See above, note to 3/46b. The dropping of the ending of –सदृश, for the sake of the metre, has led to the formation of this irregular compound. 61. ङ्: –कृति 62. All MSs: प्रभुं

63. ङ्, ज्: षद्भ्यागात्; छ्: षक्यागात्; झ्: षद्त्यागात् 64. ङ्, छ्, ज्, झ्: ऊर्द्धे

65. छ्: त्वर्यातीतं 66. All MSs: षट्क 67. ङ्, ज्, झ्: विनिर्गमं

68. All MSs: मुर्द्धादि 69. ग्: चक्रौघगमि; घ्, छ्: चक्रोषमिद; ङ्, ज्, झ्: चक्रौघमिद; all other MSs: चक्रोघमिद. The final anusvāra has been dropped for the metre.

70. क्: * भाव्युते; all other MSs: * भाव्यते

71. घ्: द्वितारं; ङ्: द्विरालं. As द्व्यारम् is too short for the metre, the word has been constructed by treating the numeral prefix द्वि– as a separate word- द्वि:.which, followed by sandhi, produces the peculiar deviant form द्विरारम्. See note to 1/2d.

72. All MSs: कण्ठं. As a shortened form of कण्ठचक्रम् कण्ठ– retains the neuter gender, as happens with गुदम् below in verse 25/22b and with विशुद्धम् and अनाहतम् in 25/23ab etc.

73. ङ्, ज्: –वे 74. All MSs except छ्: दशनि: This is an abbreviated form of दशभिरारैर्भिन्न:. Cf. below 25/23c.

75. घ्: चतुराव; छ्: चतुरावं; all other MSs: चतुरार 76. ङ्, ज्, झ्: शुदं

77. See above, note to 3/108b.

78. See above, note to 6/67c. 79. क्, ग्: मणि; छ्: मनिर्; all MSs: भिन्नं

80. ङ्, छ्: –स्थानं 81. छ्: –र

82. ख्, ङ्, ज्, झ्: –र:; घ्: –च; छ्: –च:. IM 5.

83. The ending of this word has been dropped for the metre.

84. As often happens, although the substantive has changed gender its attributes continue to agree with its original gender.

85. See above, note to 3/108b.

86. In this case द्वादशानि is meant to agree with भेदानि in its altered gender, but this neuter form of the numeral does not exist in regular Sanskrit. See above, note to 7/9d. 87. घ्: –सकारान्तं; ङ्, झ्: चकारादि 88. छ्: –स्थाने

89. ङ्, ज्, झ्: भेदा: चत्वारधारगा:; छ्: –रधारगा: IM 5. DS. 90. छ्: भ्रूवौर्–. IM 5.
91. All MSs: –विनिर्मुक्त: 92. झ्: श्लोक. M → N. See above, note to 7/9d. Here, as in 7/46a, although the masculine noun श्लोक– is treated as neuter, it functions in concord as if it retains its masculine gender.
93. See above, note to 6/67c. 94. छ्: –त:
95. छ्: षह्यागा; ज्: षद्भ्यागात् 96. छ्: सत्यमे
97. All MSs except ग्, ङ्, ज्, झ्: –तत्रामंद; छ्: –तत्राणंदं. M → N. See above, note to 3/46b. 98. DS. 99. M → N.
100. All MSs except घ्, ज्: षोडश:. See above, note to 3/108b.
101. As usual, masculine proper names are generally treated as neuter when listed together although reversion to the original gender is also possible.
102. घ्, छ्: इन्द्र:; ज्: इन्दु:. I take this to be a case of deviant sandhi.
103. All MSs: ऋरिभम्
104. क्: लृ * हाश्चैव; ग्: ऌलिहाश्चैव; घ्: लीलिहाश्चैच; छ्: लीलिहाश्चैव; all other MSs: लृलिहाश्चैव
105. घ्: –रं 106. ङ्, छ्, ज्, झ्: चै
107. छ्: अह्वराहं; all other MSs except ङ्, ज्, झ्: अद्वावाहं
108. Cf. above 25/24d and 25/28b. See above, note to 3/108b.
109. छ्: ऐ–; all MSs except क्, ङ् झ्: –ता 110. All MSs: तासां
111. षोडश: See above, note to 3/108b. 112. IC.
113. All MSs except ङ् झ्: घटिकायां 114. क्: मज्ज; छ्: मर्ज्जे
115. In place of this and the following words on this line MSs घ् and छ् read: कुण्डली चान्यथा भवेत् 116. ग्: कुडली
117. ङ्, ज्, झ्: स्नाप्वस्थित्वचरोमाणि. ‘त्वच्’ is treated as a thematic noun for the sake of the metre. 118. क्, ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: कृसरं, ख्, ङ्, झ्: कृशरं
119. The ending has been dropped to keep the fifth syllable short.
120. The masculine noun मरुत् is treated here as if it were a thematic neuter noun.
121. The order of the components of this compound has been changed to fit the metre. See above, 1/5a and also note to 3/108b.
122. ख्, ङ्, ज्, झ्: सत्वंरज:–; all other MSs: सत्त्वं– 123. Missing in MS झ्
124. झ्: –वुधि– 125. IC. See above, 1/2c and note.
126. All MSs except घ्, छ्: ओघमित्र
127. All MSs except ख्: व 128. झ्: ऐषां; छ्: एतेषा
129. घ्, छ्: लये; झ्: ते लयं. M → N.
130. छ्: –मेस्तु See above, note to 3/135d.
131. क्: कुलं; all other MSs: घ्, छ्: कुल 132. All MSs: लक्ष
133. All MSs: भित्वा 134. क्: चे–; ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्, झ्: च–; घ्, छ्: च्चे–
135. झ्: सूयो– 136. All MSs except क्: अध:
137. छ्: –मर्ग:– 138. छ्, ज्: सिद्धि– 139. All MSs: निर्मिता
140. One wonders whether निर्मितसृष्टिकारका: would not be a better emendation.
141. क्, ग्: सादाख्य, घ्, छ्: सादाक्षो; all other MSs: सादाख्यो This line is the same as YKh (2) 15/23ab.
142. छ्: –त; all other MSs except क्, ख्, ग्, ज्: पञ्चेते 143. छ्: –रा
144. छ्: कलास्

145. See above, note to 3/22b. Cf. YKh (2) 15/23cd: श्रीकण्ठः पृथिवीतत्त्वे शङ्करश्चापसंस्थितः।।

146. This and the next line are the same as YKh (2) 15/24. All MSs and YKH (2): तेजोऽनन्तमिति

147. ङ्, झ्: पञ्चेते. Cf. 25/43c. 148. M → N. 149. छ्: कलं

150. छ्: पंचाद्

151. छ्: कुलं–. M → N. See above, note to 1/7d. 152. छ्: लक्ष

153. All MSs: मतः. One wonders whether लक्षमतः might not be a better emendation. 154. छ्, ज्: ऊर्द्धे

155. M → N. See above, note to 1/2c.

156. छ्: दमयने. See 22/21b and note. 157. छ्: चात्पद्यते

158. घ्, छ्: –कुलंकरमा–; all other MSs: –कुलंकुलमा–. क्: –क्षय

159. क्: जव– 160. झ्: पुनभुयः

161. As noted before योग– is everywhere treated as neuter. KuKh 25/50cd-54ab = KuKh 39/138 -141.

162. All MSs: –गृह. M → N. See above, 3/49a. 163. All MSs: प्रभुः

164. ङ्, झ्: –त. These two words and the following ones in this line are missing in MS ख्. All the MSs read: अतीतं This emendation makes up for what would otherwise be the missing member in the series. See note to the translation.

165. ङ्, झ्: नास्ति; छ्, ज्: षष्ठ उच्यते This line reads in 39/138cd: पदं चन्द्रपुरं प्रोक्तं षट् पञ्चैव विरामनम् 166. ङ्, झ्: * * * – 167. छ्: उत्तमो

168. KuKh 39/139b: उत्तमं परिकीर्तितम्

169. KuKh 39/139c MS: घ्, छ्: वरारोह; all other MSs: वरारोहे

170. M → N. See above, note to 3/46b.

171. KuKh 39/139d: गृहम्

172. Instead of this line KuKh 39/140ab reads: कुले गृहाश्चयो वेत्ति स कले सिद्धिभाग्भवेत् 173. IM 5 + 6. 174. छ्: –यां

175. KuKh 39/141a and MSs ङ्, छ्, ज्, झ्: चंडाख्यं Although this reading is well attested the other has been chosen as a possible name of a known Tantra. Scribes frequently confuse the words चन्द्र– and चण्ड–

176. KuKh 39/141b: घोराख्यं 177. छ्: –कालं

178. See above, note to 1/4a. KuKh 39/141d: आज्ञायत्र प्रकाशिता

179. ख्, ङ्, झ्: चाक्षा 180. All MSs: सौ

181. All MSs: सिद्धि– 182. IM 5. See above, note to 1/4a.

183. M → N. 184. ज्: कौला–

185. All MSs except ग्, घ्, छ्: आयान्तं

186. ग्, घ्: तिमिरहतम्; छ्: तिमराहतं 187. छ्: –याद् 188. छ्: वौम–

189. क्, ग्, घ्: –यज्ञ; छ्: –भै * व–. The next word is missing in MS ख्.

190. घ्: * न्वय; छ्: * न्वये 191. छ्: –ता

192. All MSs: अथा–. See note to the colophon of chapter one.

NOTES OF THE TRANSLATION OF CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

1. The Six Wheels are described in verses 5 to 28 of this chapter, the Sixteen Supports in verses 29 to 30ab, the Three Signs in verses 36cd to 37 and the Five Voids in verses 38 to 49ab. After this come a few verses concerning the Nine Kulas collectively referred to as 'the Ocean of the Kula division' (49cd-56ab). But these verses may be an interpolation. The name of this chapter suggests that it is only fifty verses long. And indeed, the previous topics are covered in this number of verses. Moreover, although the first four groupings are not found together in the KMT, they appear as a standard set in the later Kubjikā Tantras. A hymn in the SKh eulogizes them together as an integral part both of the goddess's maṇḍala and the body:

> I praise the Self present in the Point and the Triangle and (Hexagon) marked with the six energies by means of the path of the Sixteen Supports and the energy of the Three Signs within the lotus of the water of the Five Voids within the channels (of the vital breath) (nāḍī) in the abode of the Heart within the abode (of the body and the maṇḍala) that wanders within the form of Energy by checking the ten vital breaths.
>
> I praise the authority of the Command in the maṇḍala of the support and the sustained that abides constantly in (the Wheel of the) Self-supported in the abode Full of Gems. (I praise its) twofold state in (the Wheel of) Unstruck Sound and in the Pure (Wheel) in (the throat which is) the stick of the head that dissolves away in the Supreme Void by the power of the (Wheel of the) Command.
>
> I praise the radiant energy of the nature of Sound that is (constantly) replenished by Bhairava. Endowed with the three Kulas (of the Triangle, he is) the venerable teacher, clothed in nakedness who (abides) within the Saṁvartāmaṇḍala adorned with the fivefold Command (of the Five Siddhas) in the form of the tradition of the Siddhas as it is in reality, in accord with the modality of emanation.

vande bindugatātmānaṁ triṣkoṇaṁ ṣaṭkalāṅkitam [g: -kalānvitaṁ] |
ṣoḍaśādhāramārgeṇa lakṣatritayaśaktinā ||
pañcavyomāmbukamale nāḍyante hṛtpure [g: rhyahṛt] pure [g: missing] |
daśavāyunirodhena [g: dasa-] bhramate śaktivigrahe [g: sakti-] ||
vande ājñādhikāraṁ [k kh g: -re] tu ādhārādheyamaṇḍale [k: ādhārāceya-] |
svādhiṣṭhāne sthitaṁ nityaṁ maṇipūrṇapure tathā [k kh: tridhā] ||
anāhate dvidhāvasthaṁ viśuddhe daṇḍamūrdhani |
ājñābodhabalenāpi pare vyomni layaṁ vrajet ||
vande [g: caṁdre] nādātmakaṁ tejo [k, kh, g: tejaṁ] bhairaveṇānupūritam [k, kh: bhairavenānu-; g: bhairavenānatupūritaṁ] |

kulatrayasamāyuktaṁ [k kh: -samāṁ-] śrīguruṁ nagnavāsasam [g: -vāsasa] ||
saṁvartāmaṇḍalānte tu ājñāpañcakabhūṣitam |
siddhāmnāyasvarūpeṇa sṛṣṭinyāyena tattvataḥ || SKh 23/23-28

The SKh presents the mantras of these four groups together in serial order as 'the worship of the great Krama of thirty (parts)' (triṁśātmakamahākramapūjā) at the beginning of chapter fifteen that is dedicated to 'the regular and occasional worship of the great Krama (nityanaimittikamahākramapūjā)'. In response to Śrīnātha's question concerning the Krama 'consisting of thirty' (triṁśātmaka), the goddess responds:

The Six Wheels, the Sixteen Supports, the Three Signs and the Five Voids – this is the sequence of worship (pūjākrama) – I will explain the liturgy of knowledge within one's own body.

ṣaṭcakraṁ ṣoḍaśādhāraṁ [g: ṣoḍasā-] trilakṣaṁ vyomapañcakam |
hy etat [k kh: ataḥ] pūjākramaṁ vakṣye svadehe jñānapaddhatim || SKh 15/2

The first line of this verse recurs repeatedly in the Kubjikā sources as well as Tantras of other schools. Although eclipsed by the focus on the later traditions on the Six Wheels, the Sixteen Supports, the Three Signs and the Five Voids where considered to be, no less than the Six Wheels, basic features of the subtle body. Thus, after presenting the mantras of the Six Wheels and the Sixteen Supports the same line comes again to which the SKh adds: 'how can one who does not know (these four) in the body be a Kaulika?' (śarīre yo na jānāti sa kathaṁ kaulikocyate [g: kaulikathyate] ||). Indeed these are the Kaula adept's body. Thus the Ṭīkā explains these categories extensively in the course of commenting on the Sūtra of the Body which introduces the subject (uddeśa) with a similar verse that begins with the same standard line to conclude that:

He who knows the body is the beloved of the family (of initiates) (kula).

śarīraṁ yo hi [kh: bhi] jānāti sa bhavet [kh: -k] kulanandanaḥ || Ṭīkā fl. 147a

No less than Wheels, Supports, Signs and Voids, along with Knots (not mentioned here), are markers of the stages in the ascent of Kuṇḍalinī. This model was already well established when our text was written, although the KMT does not mention it. An important source, which may precede the KMT, is chapter seven of the Netratantra which begins with a variant of the standard line (ṛtucakraṁ svarādhāraṁ trilakṣyaṁ vyomapañcakam | NT 7/1cd). Dvivedi (NṢĀ intro. pp. 115) points out that the early Śrīvidyā tradition also accepted this model.

However, a major modification was introduced. This was the increase in number of the Wheels from six to nine to make them coincide with the nine triangles that constitute Śrīcakra, the famous maṇḍala of this school. Even so, the system of Six Wheels, Five Voids and Twelve Knots was know to the 12th century commentator Amṛtānanda (see dīpikā on the YHṛ p. 287-290) who must have felt that this was an established authoritative tradition and so tried to make it square with the innovation. Later Vidyānanda (c. 13th cent. ?) refers to this system in his commentary on the NṢĀ (p. 67) testifying to its continued importance. Indeed, It was important enough to be incorporated into the teachings of the Gorakṣaśataka. Attributed to Gorakhnātha (c. 14th cent. ?), this is one of the earliest and most authorative works on Haṭhayoga. Echoing the early Tantras with which the author must have been acquainted, he writes:

> How can those yogis who do not know the Six Wheels, Sixteen Supports, Three Signs and Five Voids in their own body be successful?

ṣaṭcakraṁ ṣoḍaśādhāraṁ trilakṣyaṁ vyomapañcakam |
svadehe ye na jānanti kathaṁ siddhyanti yoginaḥ || GŚ 13

2. The Six Wheels are also described above in 3/103ff. and below in 36/28 ff.. Although in the same text, the three descriptions of the Six Wheels do not entirely agree. Of the other two the one in chapter 36 is closer to the one in this chapter, which is closest to the basic model.

3. All the Wheels 'face downwards', presumably because the downward-facing triangle of the goddess is present in each one. As Kuṇḍalinī rises through the Wheels the triangles turn away from the downward path of immanence and face the upward path of transcendence.

4. The navel is the location of the inner fire. We find references to this fire in a wide variety of Tantric sources. According to the Siddhāntāgama, for example, this is the inner fire within which mental oblations (homa) are offered for the inner fire ritual (antaragnikārya). Brunner explains: it is not necessary, as is the case with the inner rite, to mentally perform all the phases of the external rite, as the fire has already been prepared; the sole oblations that is required is that of the nectar (amṛta) which is extracted from Bindu by yogic means. This rite is followed by deep meditation called samādhi, that brings into play a higher subtle centre (the bindu or the dvādaśānta according to the texts)'. (TĀBK vol. 1 2000: 125; see also SP 1, p. 136 and SiSār 47)

The Great Jewel is the Circle of the Navel. It is 'aflame like the fire of the stomach' (see 3/120-121 and notes). This is where the gastric fire (jaṭharāgni) that digests food is located. This is also the location of Bhairava's fire that feeds on the multiplicity of sense objects. According to Kashmiri Śaiva sources, very advanced adepts can realise the unity of consciousness directly by means of this fire through the most intense empowerment of grace (tīvraśaktipāta), by virtue of which duality is assimilated into consciousness rapidly and with great force (haṭhataḥ). Abhinava explains (TĀ 3/259-264):

> The masters have said that the form that transcends (these) limiting conditions is of two types according to whether it comes about by the non-arising of limitations or by their cessation (praśama). Again, (their) cessation is of two kinds according to whether it takes place peacefully or by a process of violent digestion (haṭhapākakrameṇa) (brought about in an instant by Bhairava) who is called the One Who Delights in Devouring Completely and whose nature is perpetually aflame. This cessation, brought about by violent digestion, the third type, which burns the fuel of differentiation (bheda), is worthy (most especially) of being taught. All existing things consigned in an instant (haṭhataḥ) to the fire that burns in the stomach of one's own consciousness abandon the division of relative distinctions and thus by their own power, serve as fuel (for it). When, by (this process of) violent digestion the differentiated nature of things is destroyed, the deities of consciousness feed upon the universe (thus) turned to nectar and, satisfied, repose at one with Lord Bhairava, the Sky of Consciousness who, full and complete (pūrṇa), resides solitary in the Heart.

Similarly, according to the Kashmiri Kālīkrama: Heat (ūṣmāna) belongs to the fire of the stomach, which is in the navel. Its heat is the one that digests. This is its location because even though it pervades the whole body, assimilation (haṭhapāka) can only take place in the stomach. (MP (1) p. 101)

5. The Upaniṣads teach that there is a fourth state of consciousness, beyond waking, dreaming and deep sleep, in which the Absolute-Brahman is experienced. In this state of illumined consciousness, the Self is realised to be the Absolute free of all phenomenal activity and differentiation. In the earliest Upaniṣads, which do not refer to a 'fourth state', this state was equated with lucid (i.e. consciously experienced) deep sleep. The rest people get in deep sleep is the result of an unconscious experience of the repose of Absolute Consciousness and Being. Deussen (1972a: 342) concisely outlines the psychology of the first three states from this perspective as follows:

> The soul is awake when, as a result of its connection with various limiting adjuncts (upādhi), namely, the ten senses that proceed from the mind (manas), it apprehends sensuous objects and examines their differences. When, dreaming, modified by the impressions these make, it sees dream pictures, it is said to be the mind (manas). In the state of deep sleep in which the two kinds of limiting adjuncts, the coarse senses and the subtle mind (manas) are in repose, and the difference conditioned by the limiting adjuncts ceases, the soul is as it were dissolved into its own self and therefore it is said: it has entered into itself (ChāUp. 6/8/1).

However, after deep sleep, one returns into the diversity and limitation of the waking consciousness. The Māṇḍūkyopaniṣad therefore teaches that there is another, fourth, state beyond the three of waking, dreaming and deep sleep. It is described there as follows:

> Not inwardly cognitive, not outwardly cognitive, not bothwise cognitive, not a cognition mass, not cognitive, not non-cognitive, unseen, with which there is no dealing, ungraspable, having no distinctive mark, non-thinkable, that cannot be designated, the essence of the assurance of that which is the state of being one with the Self. Māṇḍūkyopaniṣad 7 (Hume's translation).

Finally, the Maitropaniṣad refers to this state as the Fourth – Turīya – a term which came to be well known in the later Upaniṣads and in all forms of Yogic literature as well as in the Tantras. There we read:

> He who sees with the eye, and who moves in dreams, he who is in deep sleep, and who is beyond the deep sleeper – these are a person's four distinct conditions. Of these the fourth (turya) is the greatest. In the three a quarter Brahma moves; a three-quarter in the last. For the sake of experiencing the true and the false, the Great Ātman (Soul, Self) has a dual nature! – Yea, the Great Ātman has a dual nature! MaiUp 7/11/7-8 (Hume's translation)

Four Aphorisms of Śiva sum up the way Kashmiri Śaivites came to understand these four states centuries later. They are: Knowledge (born of sensory perception) is the waking state. Dreaming consists of thought constructs. Deep sleep is Māyā, the lack of discernment. The consciousness which is the expanse of the Fourth State (abides constantly in) the various (states) of waking, dreaming and deep sleep. (ŚSū 1/7-10). Bhaskara explains (Dyczkowski 1992: 27):

> The Fourth State is said to be (contemplation, that is) the reflective awareness of the compact unity (and undivided Being) of one's own essential nature (svasvarūpaikaghanatā) because it pervades all (other states) of consciousness. It is consciousness, called the expanse of the Fourth State of the abiding condition in which ignorance has fallen away. It is the (inner) nature of the perceiving subject who abides clearly evident and extends (as one), even when the division prevails between the waking and the other states.

The Fourth state is the highest one according to the Upaniṣads. But Kashmiri Śaivism and the Kubjikā Tantras, amongst others, agree that although this state is the highest, it is not perfect, as latent traces of ignorance persist. Thus there is a possibility of falling from it. In an earlier publication (Dyczkowski 1987: 213) the difference between these two levels has been explained as follows:

> The Fourth and Beyond the Fourth . . . are higher, supermundane (alaukika) states of consciousness in which the yogi enjoys bliss and repose (viśrānti) in his own nature by penetrating (samāveśa) into the universal consciousness of the Self, through which he ultimately becomes liberated. Beyond the Fourth is the state of awareness Paramaśiva Himself enjoys when duality has entirely disappeared and everything is realised to be one with consciousness. The Fourth is the state of the awareness of the yogi who, catching hold of the pure subjectivity (upaladhṛtā) flowing through the lower three states, is still actively eliminating his sense of duality.

Abhinavagupta compares the state Beyond the Fourth to the alchemical mercury that transforms the metals it comes into contact with into gold. This transformation, he says, like that brought about by contact with the state Beyond the Fourth, is permanent. We find the same analogy in the KMT (3/104):

> Just as copper that has been pierced with mercury never again becomes copper, similarly, he who has been pierced by the Command (never) re-enters the world of transmigration.

This, the highest, most intense form of the Command is Khecarī, the energy that moves in the Circle of the Void; also called the Wheel of the Nameless (anākhyacakra) (see above 3/114), according to the Kubjikā Tantras, it is the state Beyond the Fourth.

6. Cf. below 25/28 and see note to 26/75. The Circle of the Void is the Wheel of the Skyfarers (khecarīcakra) in the End of the Twelve. The Yoni is in the middle of that Wheel replete with the energies of the letters that emanate down from it to form the flux of energies arranged in the Six Wheels below. As the yogi rose through the Wheels he viewed this process in reverse (viparyāyena) (25/1), that is, in the sequence of withdrawal. Liberated, the Skyfaring Yogi now contemplates it from there, beyond the Six Wheels, 'in accord with the process of emanation'.

7. Cf. above 3/101.

8. This is the Wheel of the Self-supported (svādhiṣṭhāna). According to the KRU, when the goddess is in the Liṅga, she licks this centre and drinks the seed that comes from it.

9. The expression 'sequence of Siddhas' refers to the Siddhas and their consorts in the Six Wheels. Chapter 15 of the SKh presents two sets of mantras for each Wheel. The first set is dedicated to the Siddhas and the other to their consorts in that Wheel. Altogether there are fifty Siddhas and fifty goddesses, each corresponding to a letter of the alphabet. The names of the Siddhas begin, as far as possible, with their corresponding letter. The goddesses are those of the Mālinī alphabet arranged in the normal alphabetical order. The sequence begins from the Wheel of the Foundation. The four letters there are the last four of the alphabet but they are arranged in the reverse order and so appear in the normal forward order starting from the end of the group. The Siddhas and goddesses of the Wheel of the Self-supported are those of the six letters that follow going through the alphabet backwards. Here too their order is reversed as in the previous Wheel. The mantras continue in this way: ten (x 2) for Maṇipura, twelve (x 2) for Anāhata, and 16 (x 2) for Viśuddhi. The Wheel of the Command differs from the others as it contains the 32 Yoginīs and the Siddhas of the syllables of the goddess's Vidyā.

10. Chapter 15 of the ŚM, part of which deals with the 'Six Realities' i.e. the Six Wheels, is called 'concerning the Twelve Verses'. Thus, the ŚM understands, as our text does, that the energies of the letters in the Wheels are those embedded in this mantra, implying that the first five Wheels are collectively the Yoni, which is lined with the letters of the Twelve Verses. We have seen that only the forty-eight letters from A to Sa are embedded in the mantra called Twelve Verses. Ha and KṢa, the remaining two, are placed on the two sides of the Triangle. In this context, their presence in the sixth Wheel implies that, as the abode of the Fourth State, it is set apart from the others, although still related to them. Beyond is the transcendental Śūnyamaṇḍala (see above 25/19-20), the Void of the outer differentiated energies of the letters. See below note to 26/75.

11. The sixteen Siddhas noted are the lords of the sixteen vowels. Accordingly, most of their names begin with the vowel they govern. Another set of the Sixteen Siddhas are said to belong to the lineages of the Kubjikā Tantras (see above 7/75 ff. and below 46/181-199ab). But these may well be the same, as the second set of Sixteen Siddhas are also said to reside in the Sixteen Supports (46/132), which are accordingly called hermitages (46/191) or houses (46/195cd-196ab). The juxtaposition of the two sets may well be a carry-over from an earlier period when the Sixteen Siddhas were identified with the vowels and had not yet acquired, as it were, an historical identity.

The mantras of the Sixteen Supports taught in the SKh are dedicated to the following sixteen mother goddesses (ambā, ādhāradevī). Are they the consorts of these Siddhas? Ambikā, Vidyā, Paramakalā, Amoghā, Amṛtā, Vimalā, Viśuddhā, Pañcātmikā, Nandā. Virūpā, Nārāyaṇī, Māyāyī, Nirānandāyī, Ratnā, Sūkṣmā, Susūkṣmā, and Vidyunmālā.

12. It appears from the brief instruction given here that the mantra of each one is probably formed as follows:

AIṀ [name of the Siddha] + PĀDUKĀṀ PŪJAYĀMI AIṀ [name of the corresponding support in the locative]

If this is correct, the first mantra of the series should be:

AIṀ ANANTAPĀDUKĀṀ PŪJAYĀMI AIṀ LAMBIKĀYĀM

13. We find an interesting description of the Sixteen Supports in chapter four of the Ciñciṇīmatasārasamuccaya. Although the passage is long, it is worth quoting in full. The CMSS is describing practices related to three 'branches of Kula' (kulaśākhā). These are three states discussed extensively by Abhinavagupta and Kashmiri Śaiva masters after him, namely, those of Śiva – Śāmbhava, Śakti – Śākta and the Individual Soul – Āṇava. According to the CMSS, the practice, powers and experiences associated with the Supports relate to the condition of the individual soul (āṇava). There we read:

> The essential nature of the individual soul (aṇu) is the Self, supremely sanctified by the power of consciousness. It resides in a branch of the Kula by means of the Yoga of the penetration of the Supports. O goddess, the place (where a support is located) and the next one give rest to one another. The character (bheda) and accomplishment (of each) is individually sanctified by (the personal) experience (of each one). O goddess, I have explained this. It is said to be the state of the individual soul (āṇava).

aṇur ātmasvarūpaḥ [all MSs: anunāsvarūpaṁ] ca cicchakti-parabhāvitaḥ [kh: -prabhāvitaḥ] ||
ādhārabhedayogena kulaśākhāsamāśritaḥ [g: kulasākhyā-; gh: kulasā-] |
sthānaṁ sthānāntaraṁ devi viśramanti [k kh g: visramanti; gh: visramānti] parasparam ||
pṛthag bhedaṁ [k: bhadaṁ] pṛthak siddhir anubhāvena [all MSs: -madhubhāvena] bhāvitam |
etad [gh: eta] devi mayā khyātaṁ [k gh: kṣātaṁ] āṇavaṁ [all MSs: ānavaṁ] tat prakīrtitam || CMSS 4/27cd-29

Bhairava goes on to describe each of the Sixteen Supports, their location and the experience of the accomplishment (siddhi) attained there. This is the knowledge of this branch of the Kula (śakhājñāna).

1) The Universal Foundation (sarvādhāra): O beloved, one who resides in the Universal Foundation bursts open the foundation of poison (and counters it). He can move a mountain and shakes all the earth.

2) Contraction (saṁkoca): One who resides (in the Support of) Contraction, having attracted all the worlds, enters the cavity of the lower worlds. Without a doubt, he paralyses any army.

3) Wind (vāyu): The adept who resides in (the Support of) the Wind destroys (all) evil-minded (beings) and, having uprooted (them), steals away the pride of snakes.

4) The Wheel of Birth (janmacakra): He who is well established in the Wheel of Birth causes all women to melt (with desire) and brings the (whole) universe under his control. He gets supreme good fortune.

5) The Wheel of the Root (kanda): The Yogi who takes his support from the Wheel of the Root makes statues and the like move and attracts the women of the gods. He leaps into the sky.

6) The Support of Kuṇḍalinī: Mounted on the Support of Kuṇḍalinī, he invokes the troupe of Yoginīs. He pierces through mountains and the like. He gets whatever he wants.

7) The Jar (kumbha): The adept who is established (in the Support of) the Jar and does not go to others, fills the whole universe with the flood of his bliss. He pervades all things.

8) The Herb of Immortality (saṁjīvanī): One who has entered (the Support of) the Herb of Immortality attracts (all to himself) by the control (he has on others) by disturbing (their) minds. (He has the power to) prevent premature death and brings about the awakening that takes place by the initiation by piercing (of the inner centres).

9) The Support of the Tortoise (kūrmādhāra): This Support is said to be 'present in touch' (sparśaga) (CMSS 4/34c). The yogi who is established in the contemplation of the Support of the Tortoise enters another's body (at will). O beloved, (he transforms a woman) who has wrinkles to one without them and a man without wrinkles to one who has them.

10) The Capsule of the Soul (jīvapuṭa): This Support is the ninth in the summarial list of Supports that introduces their more detailed description. There it is said to be 'the capsule that contains the soul of living beings' (bhūtānāṁ jīvasaṁpuṭam) (CMSS 4/34b).

The adept who contemplates Yoga and abides in the Support of the Capsule of the Soul is the lord of all accomplishments and brings all things to an end.

11) The Lola: The adept who attains the place called Lola (in the throat) certainly quickly acquires many kinds of worldly benefits.

12) The Uvula (lambika): The yogi who abides within the Uvula conquers hunger and thirst completely. He attains the juice and elixir of immortality and, accomplished, he conquers death.

13) The Mouth of the Teacher (guruvaktra): This is also called Khañjavaktra (CMSS 4/35b). The yogi who resides in the cave of the teacher's mouth and who is free of craving, becoming one whose body is imperishable, attains the supreme plane.

14) The Equinox (viṣuva): The great god who resides in the Equinox is worshipped by the troupes of Yoginīs and is, without a doubt, capable of elevating the (entire) universe.

15) The Place of Emission: The Yogi who has mounted on (the Support) of Emission attains omniscience and other divine attributes. Like the god Sadāśiva, he is the creator and destroyer (all things).

16) The End of Emission: The adept who, free of the body and unshaking, is properly established in the End of Emission has knowledge of other peoples' minds and of the past and the future. He knows correctly the speech of animals. Free of the stains of (limiting) energies (kalā), he shines in the (transcendental) Sky like the sun. He is a Hero, the lord of all passion (kāma) and is surrounded by the Yoginīs. Full of the juice of his own inherent bliss, his radiant energy is endless and he plays.

udgaṭṭayed [all MSs: udgataye] viṣādhāraṁ [k g gh: viṣadharā; kh: viṣadharaṁ] cālayec ca [k kh gh: svālayec ca] mahīdharam [all MSs: mahīdharām] । kampayed akhilāṁ [k gh: akhitnā; kh: -lā?] corvīṁ [k kh gh: corvī; g: coḍvī] sarvādhārasthitaḥ [g: -sthita; gh: sarvadhāla-] priye ॥ ākṛṣya sarvalokānāṁ pātālavivaraṁ [k g gh: -vicaraṁ] viśet । stambhayet sarvasainyāni saṁkocastho [k: sa-; all MSs: -sthe] na saṁśayaḥ ॥ dhvaṁsayed [g: -saye; gh: dhvasayed] duṣṭacetāṁsi [k gh: -cetāsi] unmūlaṁ [g: unmūla; k gh: utmūla] pratipādayan [k kh gh: pratipādapān; g: patipādapān] । darpaṁ [k: darpa; g: ḍharpaṁ] harati nāgānāṁ mārutasthas tu sādhakaḥ ॥ drāvayed yoṣitaḥ sarvāḥ [all MSs: sarvān] vaśīkuryāc carācaram । paraṁ saubhāgyam āpnoti janmacakre susaṁsthitaḥ ॥ cālayet [gh: -yat] pratimādīni ākarṣet surayoṣitaḥ [k g gh: surapoṣitāḥ; kh: -poṣitaḥ] । plavate [k gh: -tet] khatalaṁ [g: khetalaṁ] yogī kandacakrāvalambakaḥ ॥ kuṇḍalyādhāram ārūḍhaḥ [all MSs: -ḍha] āhvayet [g: āhṛyet] yoginīgaṇam [g gh: yogiṇīgaṇaṁ] । vedhayet [kh: vadhayet] parvatādīni [all MSs: paravādīnī] sādhayed yad yad īpsitam [g: yad īspipsitaṁ] ॥ pūrayed [k kh gh: purayed; g: pūrūyed] viśvam [all MSs: visava-] akhilaṁ svānandaughena [k gh: -dotghana; g: -pyena; kh: -doghana]

sādhakaḥ [g: mā-] |
sarvasaṁkrāmaṇaṁ kuryāt kumbhastho [kh gh g: -sthā] nānyagāminaḥ ||
cittakṣobhavaśākṛṣṭir apamṛtyunibarhanam [k kh: yaṣākṛṣṭi apamṛtyu-; g: -bhavaṣākṛṣṭi-apa-] |
vedhadīkṣātmasambodhaṁ [k kh: -kṣātsasaṁbodhaṁ] kuryāt saṁjīvanīgataḥ [k g gh: -gati; kh: -gatiṁ] ||
kūrmādhārasamādhistho [k gh: kurmodhāra-] yogī parapuraṁ vrajet |
sarujāṁ [g: sarujyāṁ] nirujāṁ [g: nirujyaṁ] caiva nirujaṁ [k kh gh: -jāṁ; g: nirujyaṁ] sarujaṁ priye ||
sthito jīvapuṭādhāre sādhako [gh: -kā] yogacintakaḥ [k kh: -cittakaḥ] |
nidhanaṁ yasyate [all MSs: pasyate] sarvaṁ sarvasiddhīśvaro bhavet ||
lolākhyaṁ sthānam āsādya bhogāni vividhāni ca |
prāpnoti sādhakaḥ kṣipraṁ nātra kāryaṁ [k g gh: kārya; kh: kāryā] vicāraṇam [k g gh: vicāraṇāt; kh: -raṇā] ||
*lambikāntasthito [g: lambi * ntasthito] yogī kṣutpipāsam alaṁ [k: -sa * laṁ] haret [k kh gh: daret]* |
rasaṁ rasāyanaṁ [k: rayāyanaṁ] siddhaṁ labhate mṛtyujid bhavet ||
guruvaktraguhāntasthaḥ [all MSs: -tastha] sādhako vigataspṛhaḥ [k kh: -smṛhaḥ] |
avināśatanur bhūtvā [all MSs: avināsa-] prāpnoti paramaṁ padam ||
viṣuvastho [k gh: visuvasthā; kh g: visuvastho] mahādevo jagaduddharaṇakṣamaḥ [all MSs: jagaduddharana-] |
bhavate nātra saṁdehaḥ [k g gh: -haṁ; kh: -haṁḥ] pūjyate [k kh: pūjaye g gh: pūjate] yoginīgaṇaiḥ [all MSs: yogiṇī-; k: -gaṇai] ||
vaisargikasamārūḍhaḥ [k: -ḍham; kh gh: -ḍhas; g: -samoruḍhaṁs] sarvajñādiguṇān [k kh gh: -guṇāl; g: -ḍhiguṇān] labhet [g: -nabhet] |
hartā kartā bhaved yogī yathā [g: pravo] devaḥ [k gh: -va; g: ḍheva] sadāśivaḥ ||
paracittagatajñānam atītānāgataṁ [gh: paracintagata-] ca yat |
ruditaṁ sarvabhūtānāṁ tattavato [g: tat tato] vetti sādhakaḥ [gh: -ka] ||
visargānte [k g gh: -nta; kh: -ntaṁ] yathāvatstho [k kh gh: yathāvastho; g: paṣāvastho] niṣkampo [k gh: nikampā; g: niṣkemyo] dehavarjitaḥ |
kalākalaṅkarahito [k gh: -kalaṅkāra-; g: kalākalaṁkālahito] bhrājate [gh: trājate] divi sūryavat [gh: mūryavat] ||
sarvakāmeśvaro vīro yoginībhiḥ [all MSs: yogiṇībhiḥ] parāvṛtaḥ |
svānandarasasaṁpūrṇaḥ [k g gh: -saṁpūrṇaṁ] krīḍate ‘nantavarcasaḥ [k kh: krīḍayenanta-; g: kṛḍatenanta-; gh: kriḍatenandavarvasaḥ-] ||

CMSS 4/37-54

The KMT does not refer to the Sixteen Supports. Instead in chapter 17 we find a system of Sixteen Knots (granthi), said to be Supports (ādhāra). The KMT relates the four syllables of the names of each of the four primary seats to them

(see intro. vol. 1, p 599 ff.), thereby probably taking over an earlier model that did not include them. Thus we find the same set listed in the KRU in a passage common with the KMT (KRU 5/143ab-150ab = KMT 17/71-78ab) but no mention is made there of the sacred seats. The Sixteen Knots (granthi) or Supports (ādhāra) are part of the body of the goddess Mahāmāyā. Moving in the vital breath, she fills it and the body with her sixteen energies. In the KRU we read:

> Vṛddhamāyā, born from the southern face (of the goddess), is most powerful. She possesses sixteen Knots, resides in Haṁsa and moves with Haṁsa. Haṁsa is said to be the vital breath and is the principle of radiant energy (tejas). She, in the form of the Sixteen Supports (ādhāra), resides between them. Thus she is said to have Haṁsa as her seat and so it is that she moves with Haṁsa (haṁsagāminī). The Supports of the venerable Kuleśānī are present (in sixteen parts of the body) beginning with the feet and ending with the head. The Knots should be known to be endowed with the seed of Haṁsa. (Thus) O Supreme Goddess, the one called Haṁsa possesses sixteen energies. This, the most powerful (mahattarā) goddess, is known as Mahāmāyā.

paścimānanasaṁbhūtā [k, kh, g: -tāṁ] vṛddhamāyā [k: -māyāṁ] mahattarā |
granthiṣoḍaśakopetā [all MSs: -tāṁ] haṁsasthā [k: -sthāḥ; g: hasasthā] haṁsagāminī [k: -minīṁ] ||
haṁsaḥ [g: -sa] prāṇaḥ samākhyātas tejastattvaṁ [k: -tejatatvaṁ; kh: -tejatatva] tathaiva ca |
*tābhyāṁ madhyasthitā [g: madhosthitā] hy eṣā [k: * pā; kh: hyepā; g: hyeṣāṁ] ṣoḍaśādhāravigrahā* ||
tena haṁsāsanā proktā tathā vai haṁsagāminī |
[k, kh: + tathā vai] ādhārāḥ śrīkuleśānyāḥ [g: śrīkujeśāntāḥ] pādādau mastakāvadhiḥ ||
granthayo 'syās tu vijñeyāḥ [g: -yā] haṁsabījasamanvitāḥ |
kalāṣoḍaśabhir bhinno haṁsākhyaḥ parameśvari ||
eṣā mahattarā devī mahāmāyā prakīrtitā | KRU 5/137-141ab

After listing the Knots / Supports, the KMT and KRU declare in a common passage:

> The goddess has (these) sixteen limbs. She is Khecarī, the mistress of the Skyfarers. She resides in the lotus, in the middle of the lotus. Residing in Haṁsa she moves with Haṁsa (KMT 'transports Haṁsa'). The goddess is both with (manifest) energies (sakalā) and without (niṣkalā). Her body is made of thunder (vajradehā) and she is the Transmental (manonmanī). KMT 17/77-78ab (= KRU 5/149-150ab)

The Sixteen Knots are then listed next along with their locations, as follows: 1) Ananta – middle finger. 2) Kāla – ankles. 3) Raudrī – sole (of the feet ?) 4) Jyeṣṭhā and Vāmā – (right and) left hips. 5) Kāma – foundation of the genitals. 6) Liṅga – just above (the location of the previous one). 7) Brahmā – above and below where the hairs of the body (roma) are located. 8) Soma – just above the previous one. 9) Sūrya – just above that again. 10) Prāṇa – just above. 11) Jīva – just above. Living beings live and die because of this. 12) Viṣṇu – throat. 13) Rudra – palate. 14) Īśa – above that. 15) Sādākhya – above trikūṭi. 16) Māyā – above that flooded with the bliss of desire (icchānanda).

The Ṭīkā, in accord with the source upon which it is commenting, presents an extensive projection of the the Six Paths (ṣaḍadhvan) that is, the cosmic order and its mantric equivalents distributed systematically in the sixteen places in the body where the Supports are located. In this context, the Supports are understood to be extensive world orders (bhuvana) that contain lesser worlds and their corresponding Principles, energies, mantra, parts of mantra and letters that constitute the Six Paths. The Supports are listed in the Sūtra of the Sixteen Supports quoted in full by the Ṭīkā as part of the Sūtra of the Body (Dehasūtra).

Although their names and identity vary, the group of Sixteen Supports (ādhāra) is common to many Tantric and Kaula systems and is carried on to later Yoga traditions. In his commentary on the NT (7/1cd, see Dvivedi 1985: 112-113), Kṣemarāja presents their projection into the body in two modalities (prakriyā). For the first, which is presumably the Tantric, he simply lists the locations of the Supports, which in that modality serve to sustain the individual soul in the body. The locations in the body are practically the same as those listed in the Ṭīkā (Rai 1975: 33). They are: 1) Toe 2) Ankle 3) Knee 4) Anus (meḍhra) 5) Genitals (pāyu) 6) Root (kanda) 7) Channel of the vital breath (nāḍi) 8) Stomach 9) Heart 10) The Channel of the Tortoise (kūrmanāḍī) 11) Throat 12) Palate 13) Middle of the eyebrows 14) Forehead 15) Cavity of Brahmā 16) End of the Twelve.

Kṣemarāja goes on to quote from an unknown source a list of the Sixteen Supports according to the Kaula modality (prakriyā) in which they are said to sustain everything, not just the individual soul. There we read:

One should know that Kula is below the anus (meḍhra) and the one called Poison (viṣa) is in the middle (of it). It is said that the Empowered One (śākta) that impels the Sound of Awakened Consciousness (bodhanāda) is in the Root (mūla). Then, the one called Fire is four fingers above that, below the navel in the Support of Fire (pavanādhāra). In the navel itself is the one called the Jar. The one called All Desire (sarvakāma) is halfway between the navel and the heart. The one called the Vivifier is in the middle of the calyx (udara) of the lotus of the heart. The Tortoise is in the chest and the one called Lola (the glottis) is said to be in the throat. The Support of Nectar (sudhā), that nature of which is nectar (sudhā), is located above the glottis (lambaka). The Lunar One (saumya), enveloped by the energies of the Moon, is located in the root of that same (glottis). The one called the Lotus of Knowledge is between the eyebrows in the Circle of the Sky (gaganābhoga). The Support on the surface of the palate is (called) Raudra and is sustained by Rudra's power. (The Support called) Cintāmaṇi is located on the Crossroad. The Support of the Fourth (state) is in the head, in the middle of the Cavity of Brahmā. The Support of the Channel (of the vital breath) (nāḍyādhāra) is subtle and supreme. It awakens to intense pervasion (ghanavyāpti). These are said to be the Sixteen Supports . . .

The Sixteen Supports are mentioned in the Gorakṣaśataka (verse 13) but they are not described there. The commentator refers the reader to the Siddhasiddhāntapaddhati. (Briggs 1973: 287 fn. 2). Referring to this source, Banerjea (1962: 182) lists and explains the details of the practice at each support. They are: 1) Big toe 2) The Root Foundation (mūlādhāra) 3) Rectum (gudādhāra) 4) Base of the genitals (meḍhrādhāra) 5) Udyāna 6) Navel 7) Heart 8) Throat 9) Uvula (ghaṇṭikā) 10) Palate 11) Tongue 12) Middle of the eyebrows 13) Nose 14) Root of the nose (kapāta) 15) Forehead 16) Cavity of Brahmā.

14. The three Signs, Marks or Targets can be variously conceived within the body and vary according to the practice (sādhanā). According to the Ṭīkā, the three Signs or Marks as follows:

The first is below the navel where Kuṇḍalinī is located (between the Wheel of the Self-supported and the Wheel Full of Gems. See above 7/40cd-41ab). It is the Knot of Brahmā and, (sparkling) like a firefly, it is red in colour. The essential nature of the mind stuff (citta) is located there, that is, the mind (manas) from which knowledge which is consciousness (caitanya) arises. Its form is like a burning coal and (the flame of a) lamp. Gross, it is the abode of the Sun. This is the one called the inner sign. By ‘inner' here is meant ‘in between'; thus one should make (one's) sign in the middle of the body where Kuṇḍalinī is located. In this way one sign called the ‘inner sign’ has been explained.

Now the outer sign will be explained. By ‘outer' is meant outside the inner sign, which is the location of Kuṇḍalinī, that is, above it, which is the location of the heart. It is called the Knot of Viṣṇu and is red and white in colour. It is the consciousness that is the basis of knowledge and is the subtle (kaścit) nature of the Self. It is the nature of substance (dravya) and is subtle. It is the abode of Fire. It is called the outer sign. Why is that? When in relation to the inner sign, which is the location of Kuṇḍalinī, travelling upwards (one reaches) the location of the Heart, then that is the ‘outer sign’. This is the outer sign, which is the second one.

Now the sign that is both will be explained. Why is it the sign that is both? When it resides within both the signs – the inner and the outer – in the supreme form (the other two being gross and subtle) then it is the sign that is both. How else is it? That is independent consciousness located in the Knot of Rudra within the locus of the Point. It is the light which is knowledge and is supreme. It is the abode of the Moon and is bliss 'beyond the Void' (vyomātīta).

prathamaṁ nābhyadhaḥ [k kh: nābhyā-] kuṇḍalinīsthāne brahmāgranthir indragopaka-saṁkāśā [k, kh: -granthiḥ -saṁkāśād; kh: idra-] raktavarṇā [k, kh: -varṇāḥ] | tatra cittarūpam | tad eva manaḥ yasmāc caitanyarūpaṁ jñānam utpadyate | ulkārūpaṁ dīparūpaṁ sthūlaṁ sūryadhāmarūpam ity antarlakṣābhidhānam [k kh: anta-] | tena [k kh: yena] kāraṇena ataḥ [kh: aṁta] antaḥśabdena [k: anta -; kh: ata-] madhyam | tasmāc charīramadhye kuṇḍalinīsthāne lakṣaṁ kartavyam | ity antarlakṣābhidhānaṁ lakṣam ekaṁ kathitam |

idānīṁ bahirlakṣaṁ [kh: -lakṣyaṁ] kathyate | yathā bahiḥśabdena antarlakṣasya kuṇḍalinīsthānasya yad bāhyaṁ tadūrdhvataḥ hṛdayasthānaṁ viṣṇugranthyabhidhānaṁ [k kh: -granthyā- -na] raktaśvetavarṇaṁ caitanyaṁ jñānāśrayaṁ [k kh: -ya] ātmarūpaṁ [k: ātmā-] kiñcit [k kh: kaścit] | tad eva dravyarūpaṁ sūkṣmaṁ agnidhāmarūpam | iti bahirlakṣābhidhānam | kena kāraṇena | yadā antarlakṣasya kuṇḍalinīsthānasthitasya ūrdhvagatyā [kh: -gatyāt] bāhyaṁ hṛdayasthānaṁ [kh: hṛdaye-] tadā bahirlakṣam | iti bahirlakṣaṁ dvitīyam |

idānīṁ ubhayalakṣaṁ kathyate yathā | ubhayalakṣaṁ kena kāraṇena | antarlakṣasya tathā bahirlakṣasya evaṁ lakṣadvayasya yadā pararūpeṇa antarvartate tadā ubhayalakṣam | anyac ca kiṁ viśiṣṭam | taṁ bindusthāne rudragranthau svatantrarūpaṁ cidrūpaṁ caitanyaṁ [kh: caitanyāṁ] jñānarūpam ālokaṁ paraṁ somadhāmānandarūpaṁ [kh: saumadhāmānanda-] vyomātītam |

Ṭīkā fl. 171b -172a

The main features of the Three Signs can be tabulated as follows:

7. The Three Signs according to the Ṭīkā

Sign	Location	Knot	Colour	Nature	Abode
Inner	Navel	Brahmā	Red	Mind-stuff	Sun
Outer	Heart	Viṣṇu	Red / White	Substance	Fire
Both	Point	Rudra	?	Self	Moon

Another version of the Three Signs is found in the context of the inner practice linked to the worship of the goddess Tripurabhairavī taught in the KuKauM. As usual, the Three Signs are visualized along the vertical axis of the body, whilst uttering the corresponding seed-syllable in the course of ascent. There this process is called 'meditation on mantra' (mantradhyāna) and it heralds the repetition of the mantra of Tripurabhairavī.

O goddess, the Foundation (ādhāra) is the arising (of mantra). The Heart is said to be (its) merger. Repose takes place in the Cavity of Brahmā. This is said to be the triple sign. The Foundation is said to be the anus. It is like the red filaments of a flower. Vāgbhava (AIṀ), radiant like a lightning flash, is in the middle of it. Kāmarāja (HRĪṀ) is in the Heart and is brilliant like red lac. The Cavity of Brahmā is said to be the (seed-syllable of) Śakti (ŚRĪṀ) and is like heated mercury.

ādhāram udayaṁ devi layo hṛdayam ucyate ||
viśrāmaṁ brahmarandre tu trilakṣaṁ parikīrtitam |
ādhāraṁ gudam ity uktaṁ raktakiñjalkasannibham ||
vāgbhavaṁ tasya madhye tu visphurantaṁ taḍitprabham |
hṛdaye kāmarājaṁ ca lākṣārasasamaprabham ||
brahmarandhraṁ tu śaktyākhyaṁ hutapāradasannibham |
KuKauM 5/103cd-106ab

8. The Three Signs according to the Kulakaulinīmata

Sign	Location	State	Seed-syllable	Form
Foundation	Anus	Arising	Vagbhāva – AIṀ	Red filaments
Heart	Chest	Merger	Kāmarāja – HRĪṀ	Red lac
Cavity of Brahmā	Top of the head	Repose	Śakti – ŚRĪṀ	Heated mercury

We may compare how Banerjee (1962: 189 ff.) interprets the Three Signs mentioned in the sources attributed to Gorakhnātha. His presentation can be summerized as follows:

1) The inner sign (antarlakṣya). Under this heading come internal objects. These include the Wheels but most particularly Kuṇḍalinī in the channel of Suṣumṇā. Important also are the centres within the head for the practice of concentration. One is the golamaṇḍala. This is just above the forehead and in front of the Cavity of Brahmā. A brilliant light shines there. Concentrating on this light, the yogi will be illumined inwardly with Divine Light.
2) The outer sign (bahirlakṣya): This term covers outer objects that are used as objects of concentration. Banerjee gives the example of colours visualized at various distances from the tip of the nose. The sky is also a good support for this type of concentration. The yogi should not be distracted by other objects he may see. 'Thus,' Banerjee explains, 'even with open eyes he may make his mind free from all the diversities of the objective world and by the power of his abstraction and concentration may see only the differenceless sky before him.' In this way, the yogi experiences the transcendental emptiness (śūnya). He may do the same with sound or he may fix his mind on a celestial body, an idol or the figure of a saint. (ibid. p. 191-192)

3) The middle sign (madhyalakṣya). Banerjee explains that this is: 'any object of special attention, which is not to be conceived as either within the body or outside the body, upon which the mind is concentrated without any direct reference to location [. . .]. The chosen object for the practice of concentration for the time being may be real or imaginary, material or ideal, very small or very big, dazzlingly bright or soothingly cool, of any colour or shape or size, of any form or without form.' (ibid. p. 192).

We may notice here how terminology drawn from the Tantras is applied by Gorakhnāthīs to explain and classify forms of practice that are Yoga in the sense Patañjali understands as concentration, through which the fluctuations of the mind are stilled. Generally in the Tantras we find that although concentration is, of course, essential to the practices taught there, such as the repetition of mantras or inner projections, it is only incidental. The point of the practice is the worship and ultimate union with the deity or gaining power from it. There are a wide range of practices that lead the vital breath, and with it the consciousness of the adept, upwards to the transcendent condition of the deity. However, the stations of this ascent are rarely, if ever, understood to be stages of concentration. They can, of course, be interpretated in this way and this is what Gorakhnātha, as Banerjee has understood him, has done.

The set of Three Signs is the most common. However, we also find others. One we may mention here is a set of Nine Signs. This is found in the KuKauM which prescribes that that should be contemplated as the finest essence (sāra) within the body. The Nine Signs are described there as follows:

The foundation, which is in the genitals (meḍhra), is the form of a flame and its light is like well-heated gold. The one in the navel shines like the solar orb and has the brilliance of the young (newly risen) sun. The one in the heart has the form of the flame in the Yoni and the one in the throat the form of the sun. The (one at the) base of the uvula (ghaṇṭa) has the form of the flame of a lamp and (that one in) the cavity (of the mouth above) is said to have that (same) form. The one above, which is called the uvula (proper) (lambaka), is like the moon. The ninth is in between the eyes and, possessing the radiant energy of the universe, it looks like a gem. The yogi residing in these places should practice the Nine Signs. The Signs present in the nine places are called the Nine Places.

meḍhrādhāraṁ śikhākāraṁ sutaptakanakaprabham ǀ nābhisthaṁ sūryabimbābhaṁ taruṇādityavarcasam ǀǀ hṛdi yoniśikhākāraṁ kaṇṭhe vai bhāskarākṛtim ǀ ghaṇṭaṁ dīpaśikhākāraṁ bilaṁ tadrūpam ucyate ǀǀ tadūrdhvaṁ yat samākhyātaṁ lambakaṁ candrasannibham ǀ ratnābhaṁ cakṣuṣor madhye navamaṁ viśvatejasam ǀǀ etatsthānasthito yogī navalakṣaṁ samabhyaset ǀ navasthānagataṁ lakṣaṁ navasthānaṁ tad ucyate ǀǀ KuKauM 5/131-134

15. The two Door Panels are the inhaled and exhaled breath. See below note to verse 30/48cd-49ab.

16. Elsewhere the Five Voids are equated with five of the Six Wheels within which the goddess, as the energy of the universal Void of the Transmental, moves (see 55/1-4ab below, also above 3/125). In this context, the missing Wheel is the navel (55/2-4ab), whereas the Five Elements (which are equated in places with the Voids) are accomodated into the Six Wheels by omitting the Wheel of the throat (21/35-36). The Netratantra (7/27-29) also fits the Five Voids into its own version of the Six Wheels in its own way as follows:

> The Endless (ananta) Void (kha) is called Birth. The second Void is in the navel. The third one is in the location of the heart. The fourth is in the middle of the Point (between the eyebrows). It is taught that (the fifth one) is called Sound (nāda).
>
> Now the Six Wheels will be declared. In the (Void) called Birth is the Wheel of the Channels (of the vital breath) (nāḍicakra). The excellent (Wheel) called Māyā is in the navel. The Wheel of Yogis is in the heart. The one located in the palate is said to be (the one called) Splitting Apart (bhedana). The Wheel of Illumination (dīpticakra) is in the Point and the one located in Sound is called Tranquil (śānta).

> Kṣemarāja comments: The Endless (Void) (is so called) because it is as if without end and because it is the abode (āśraya) of the universe. (The Void) named Sound (is called this) because it is the abode of Sound. (The Wheel of the Channels is so called) because it is the cause of the extension of the channels (of the vital breath). (The second Wheel is called Māyā) because it is the cause of the knowledge of all the expansion (prapañca) of Māyā in accord with the dictum: '(the yogi achieves) knowledge of the aggregate of the body in the Wheel of the navel' (Yogasūtra 3/25). (The Wheel of Yogis is called this) because it bestows concentration (cittaikāgrya). (The next one is called Spliting Apart) because it should be split apart with effort. (The next is called the Wheel of Illumination) because its nature is illumination (dīpti) and (the last one is called Tranquil) because it bestows tranquillity. . . . These Voids and Wheels should be abandoned because (the former) induce entry into the state of deep sleep whilst (the latter) are the cause of the unfolding of duality.

17. Commenting on the Dehasūtra from which it also draws its account of the Six Wheels, Sixteen Supports and the Three Signs, the Ṭīkā (fl. 172a-173a) explains the Five Voids as follows:

1) The Void of the Elements (bhūtākāśa). The Void of the Elements is (that reality which) begins with Earth and ends with Space. The first is the Earth element. This is present as far as the aforementioned energy of Nivṛtti extends. Then the Water Element, the second one, is present from the ankles to the navel, that is for the extent of the pervasion of the energy of Pratiṣṭhā. In the same way the pervasion of the element Fire corresponds to that of the energy of Vidyā and the pervasion of the element Air to that of the energy of Śānti, whereas the pervasion of the element Space corresponds to that of the energy of Śāntyatīta. Thus the Void of the Elements has been explained as the one that brings together the five (gross) elements.

yat [k kh: taṁ] pṛthivyādivyomāntam [kh: -vyomātaṁ] tad bhūtākāśaṁ | *tathā [k kh: yadā] pūrvoktanivṛtikalāvyāptiparyantaṁ [k: pūrvoktavṛtti-; kh: pūrvvoktavṛtti-] yāvat tatra pārthivabhūtaṁ [k: -ta; kh: * thivabhūta] prathamam [k kh: -ma]* | tathā [k kh: tadā] gulphādinābhyantaṁ pratiṣṭhākalāvyāptiparyantaṁ [k: -vyāptir-] yāvat tatra āpabhūtaṁ [k kh: apābhūtaṁ] dvitīyam | tathā punar vidyākalāvyāptir yāvat [k: -kalāṁvyāpti] tāvat tejobhūtasya vyāptis tathā śāntikalā [k, kh: śakti -] yāvad vyāptis tāvad vāyubhūtavyāptiḥ | tathā śāntyatītakalāvyāptir yāvat [kh: śātyātīt-] tāvad ākāśabhūtasya vyāptiḥ | evaṁ bhūtapañcakamelāpakena bhūtākāśaṁ vyākhyātam | Ṭīkā MS K fl. 172a -172b

2) The Void of the Principles: Now the Void of the Principles is explained. As stated previously, (only) the Earth Principle, supported by the energy of Nivṛtti, is present in the big toe which, as stated before, is the location of the pervasion of the element Earth. Similarly, the Water element, supported by the energy of Pratiṣṭhā, extends from the Principle of Water up to that of Nature along with the Principle of the Qualities (of Nature); (thus) there (these) twenty-four (principles) pervade from the ankles upto the navel. In the same way the element Fire, supported by the energy of Vidyākalā, extends from the navel to the bottom of the uvula. In this way seven principles pervade from that of the Person up to that of Māyā. Again the element Wind, supported by the energy of Śānti, extends from the uvula up to the locus of the Point (between the eyebrows). Such is the pervasion here of the three principles from Pure Knowledge to Sadāśiva. Then the element Space, supported by the energy of Śāntyātīta, extends from the Point (between the eyebrows) up to the End of the Twelve. In this way there is one principle here, namely, Śiva and Śakti (together in one).

*idānīṁ tattvākāśaṁ kathyate yathā pūrvoktapādāṅguṣṭhe pārthivabhūtavyāptisthāne pārthivatattvam ekaṁ nivṛttikalāśrayeṇa vartate [kh: varttati] | tathā prathiṣṭhākalāśrayena [k kh: kalāyena] ambutattvasya [k: aṁvutasyā; kh: aṁvutasya] vyāptir yāvat tāvad āpatattvādi [k: tāvadaptattvādi; kh: tāvat aptattvādi] prakṛtitattvāntaṁ [k, kh: -tatvaṁ] guṇatattvena saha [kh: saṁha] tatra caturviṁśativyāptiḥ [k kh: -viṁśavyāptiḥ] gulphādinābhyantā [k: nābhyantas; kh: -nābhyāṁtaḥ] | tathā vidyākalāśrayeṇa tejobhūtasya vyāptir yāvat tāvat nābher ārabhya [k: nābhyād ārabhya; kh: nābhyād ārabhyo] lambikādho yāvat | tathātraiva puruṣatattvādimāyātattvāntā [k kh: -tatvamāyātatvantaṁ] tattvasaptake vyāptiḥ | tathā śāntikalāśrayeṇa vāyubhūtasya vyāptir yāvat tāval lambikādibindusthānāntaṁ [k kh: tāvallaṁpikādi-] yāvat tathātraiva śuddhavidyādisadāśivāntatattvatrayāṇāṁ [k kh: -vidyā * sadāśivatatvāntaṁtatva-] vyāptiḥ | tathā śāntyatītakalāśrayeṇa ākāśabhūtasya vyāptiḥ yāvat tāvad bindvādiśivāntaṁ dvādaśāntaṁ yāvat | tathātraiva śivaśaktitattvam ekam [k: śivaśaktimekaṁ] | Ṭīkā* MS K fl. 172b

3) The Void of Brahman: Now the Void of Brahmā will be described. This is where the perception of the Brahman takes place. How is that place? That will be explained. It is the Samvartāmaṇḍala consisting of the three Peak (seed-syllables) within the End of the Twelve. The three Peaks (syllables) are HRĪṀ KLĪṀ ŚRĪṀ (that make the Triangle). The Triangle is conjoined with the powers of will, knowledge and action. It is adorned with the three qualities of sattva, rajas and tamas. It possesses the radiance of the Moon, Sun, and Fire. It is enveloped in the three times of the day – morning, midday and afternoon. It possess three ramparts, Brahmā, Viṣṇu, and Rudra, and three doors (made of the humours) wind (vāta) bile (pīta), and phlegm (śleṣma). It is bound with lust, anger, and greed, which are called the three obstructions, namely, the chain, the lock of the doors, and the nails, and it possesses the three channels, Iḍā, Piṅgalā and Suṣumṇā. Such is the form of the Samvartāmaṇḍala in the End of the Twelve. It has been explained here in brief. One should know the details extensively in the Ṣaṭsahasra, or in the Bṛhadāgama. Thus the Void of Brahmā has been explained.

idānīṁ brahmākāśaṁ kathyate yathā yatra brahmopalabdhir bhavati [kh: +yatra vrahmāpalavvir bhavati |] tat sthānaṁ kīdṛśaṁ | tat kathyate | dvādaśānte [k kh: + yataḥ] saṁvartāmaṇḍalaṁ trikūṭamayam [k kh: -kūṭasamayaṁ] | trikūṭaṁ hrīṁ klīṁ śrīṁ trikoṇam [k kh: trikoṇa] | ∇(citram) | icchājñānakriyāśaktitrayayuktam tathā sattvarajastamoguṇatrayeṇa [k kh: -rajastama -] bhūṣitaṁ [k kh: bhāṣitam] tathā candrasūryāgnivarcasaṁ tathā prātarmadhyāhnāparāhnāsandhyāveṣṭhitaṁ tathā [k kh: yathā] brahmāviṣṇurudraprakāratrayasaṁyuktam [k: -prākāratraya-

] tathā vātapittaśleṣmadvāratrayayuktaṁ tathā argaladvārabandhanakīlakatrayoparodhābhidhānaiḥ [k kh: -naḥ] kāmakrodhalobhairbadhvā [k kh: -lobhe vadhvā] tathā iḍāpiṅgalāsuṣumnānāḍitrayayuktam [k kh: iḍānāḍitrayamuktam] | evaṁvidhaṁ [k kh: saṁvidhaṁ] saṁvartāmaṇḍalaṁ [kh: -maṇḍalamaṇḍala] dvādaśānte saṁkṣepād uddeśamātrāt kathitam | vistareṇa [kh: viṣṭhareṇa] ṣaṭsahasre vā bṛhadāgame jñātavyam | iti brahmākāśaṁ kathitam | Ṭīkā fl. 172b

4) The Supreme Void: Now the Supreme Void will be described. The Supreme Void is located on top of the End of the Sixteen in the place of the mountain called Kaumāra at the end of the trail of smoke (dhūmavarti). It is said elsewhere that: 'Mount Kaumāra is the Inexplicable within the End of the Sixteen'. Thus the Supreme Void has been described (see intro. vol 1 p. 413 ff.).

idānīṁ parākāśaṁ kathyate yathā | parākāśaṁ ṣoḍaśāntoparisthitaṁ [kh: -paristhane] kaumārākhye [kh: komārākhye] parvatasthāne dhūmavartiprānte | tathānyatroktaṁ kaumāraṁ parvataṁ yacca anākhyaṁ [kh: asākhyaṁ] ṣoḍaśāntike [kh: ṣoḍaśāṁtikā] || *iti parākāśaṁ [kh: parā * śa] kathitam* | Ṭīkā fl. 172b

5) The Void of Māyā: Now the Void of Māyā will be explained. The Void of Māyā is located above the End of the Sixteen in the End of the Seventeenth, where the trail of smoke dissolves away. The Void of Māyā is in the place that is formless and free of (all) defects. That is said elsewhere: 'The one called Māyā is above that. It is the Supreme Void in the Supreme Place'. Such is the Void of Māyā.

*idānīṁ [kh: idānī] māyākāśaṁ [kh: mā*kāśaṁ] kathyate yathā* | māyākāśaṁ ṣoḍaśāntordhve saptadaśamānte [k kh: saptā-] vartate [k kh: missing] yatra [k: yathā] dhūmravartinī [k kh: -ni] līnā bhavati | anāmaye [k kh: -mayo] nirākāre [kh: -kāra] sthāne tatra māyākāśam | tathānyatroktam | parākāśaṁ pare [k kh: -raṁ] sthāne [k kh: -naṁ] māyākhyaṁ [k kh: māyākhyāmaṁ] tadūrdhvataḥ || iti māyākāśam || Ṭīkā fl. 172b

18. The Five Siddhas appear for the first time in the KMT (3/94-98) as forms Bhairava assumes as the universal teacher and creator. Related already to the Five Elements, through these forms he creates and instructs the universe. He is the Lord who has five forms (see 27/6-7ab, 25/43-44 = YKh (2) 11/23-4. See below 46/165-169ab) When Bhairava receives the Command that gives him the authority to be the teacher of the universe, he is called Ciñciṇīnātha who bestows his grace on the deserving and chastises the wicked (46/33cd). The disciples of four of these Siddhas are listed in chapter 43 where they are said to correspond to four cosmic ages.

19. Verses 25/50cd-54 are repeated below as 39/138-141. See the notes there also. Matsyendranātha, the founder of Kula Tantrism in this Age, is said to have twelve disciples called 'princes' (rājaputra). Six of these did not have disciples, whereas the other six established six lineages (see Dyczkowski 1988: 70 for a chart). These are known to Abhinavagupta – who refers to them in chapter twenty-nine of his Tantrāloka (29/29cd-41) – and to the KMT (1/43) and the Kubjikā Tantras in general, just as they are known to the Kālīkrama Tantras. The KMT presents them as the preceding lineages (pūrvasantāna). These six are 1) Ānanda 2) Āvali 3) Prabhu 4) Yogī 5) Atīta and 6) Pāda. All the MSs read 'atītam' in the place of 'pādam'. But as the former is repeated twice and this set of six is well known, I have emended accordingly.

20. KuKh 39/141b reads Ghorākhya as the name of this Tantra.

21. This group of nine is mentioned again below in 39/140cd-141 where they are described as the ninefold root of the Kaula teachings. The Siddhakaula appears to be the name of a Kaula school whereas the rest, it seems, are Tantras. A text called Candrakaula is mentioned in the KJN (21/4). A Tantra called Candragarbhā appears in the list of sixty-four Tantras in the JY. One called Candrā and another called Candralekhā are mentioned in the Śrīkaṇṭhīyasaṁhitā quoted in the commentary on the Tantrāloka (Dyczkowski 1988: 121, 123). Raurava and Vīra are two Siddhāntāgama. Gaṇa appears in a list of Tantras in the KRU (1/16) as does the Bhūtaḍāmara, which is also mentioned in the list of sixty-four Tantras in the Nityāṣoḍaśikārṇava. The CMSS refers to the Khecarīmata (see above note to 16/5) as does Abhinavagupta, but does not quote it (TĀ 29/165).

22. Kula in this context means the body in the Void of the deity that the adept attains with realisation.

NOTES OF THE SANSKRIT TEXT OF CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

1. All MSs except ख्, छ्, ज्: क्रमाचरं M → N. See above, note to 1/7d.

2. All MSs and SamP: –मण्डलम्

3. See above, note to 4/38c. 4. छ्: श्रीवक्रोवाच

5. घ्: प्रमाद्यंमुलसूत्रन्; छ्: प्रमाद्यंष्टलसूत्रन्

6. घ्, छ्: वृत्ताद्व्यष्ट–; ज्: वृत्ताद्व्युष्ट–; all other MSs: वृत्ताद्युष्ट–

7. तस्मादरभ्य would be correct but too long for the metre.

8. घ्, छ्: –हः; SamP: सृष्टिरित्याह

9. घ्, छ्: खेचरं मम; all other MSs: खेचरं समम् The emendation accords with the sense and is supported by the reading in the SamP, although it involves an irregular short sixth syllable.

10. क्: यो; CMSS घ्: पा. Other versions in the KuKh of the Mūlasūtra in chapters 38 and 42 are collated with this one as is the SamP which quotes it. Variants of this sūtra are also found in AS 25/5a, 6a, 7a, 8a and CMSS 1/4ff.. The following three and a half verses are set in srgdharā metre (see above, note on 1/1a). Here the eighth syllable of the first pāda is long and the fifth short, instead of the other way around.

11. CMSS क्, ख्, घ्, ङ्: शा 12. All MSs except घ्: –भगाख्याता

13. Missing in MS छ् of KuKh 38; KuKh 42, CMSS and MSs घ्, छ्: त्रिपथगतियुता; all other MSs: त्रिविधंगतिसंयुता; KrSūA क्: त्रिविधं–

14. SamP: त्रिरक्षरा; CMSS ग्: त्यक्षरा 15. छ्: त्रि * कारा

16. AS, KuKh 42 and CMSS तस्या

17. घ्, छ्: उड्डियाणे; all other MSs: उड्डियाणं; KuKh 42 घ्: –ओदियानं; AS: श्री – ओडियाणं; SamP: श्री – ऊडियानं. See above, note to 2/28a. This emendation agrees with the readings in most of the other sources.

18. KrSūA क्: पंचकलं– परकला– has been reduced to परकल– for the metre. Cf. below 26/4a. 19. AS: दिव्यसंस्थं सुदीप्तं

20. KuKh 38 घ्, छ्: –राख्ये; ज्: –जालांधराख्य; झ्: –ख्य; ठ्: जालांधराख्या; all other MSs: –जालांधरा–; KuKh 42 ग्, ज्: –जालांधराख्यं; घ्, छ्: –ख्य; AS: तस्या जालांधराख्यं

21. CMSS: –निलये; KrSūA ख्: प्रकतित– 22. KuKh 42 घ्: –पीठ

23. AS: पशुभयजनकृत्; KrSūA: पशुभयजनकं; SamP: –कृद्

24. KuKh 38: पूजितंयेन विश्वम् (छ्: विश्व); KuKh 42 and AS: पूरितंयेन विश्वं; KuSūA: कामरूपं तदन्त (ख्: तदन्ता) 25. घ्, छ्, झ्: तिम्र–

26. घ्, छ्: परमरस–. Cf. previous note. 27. All MSs except ख्, घ्, छ्: त्रिष्कोणान्ते; KuKh 42 क्, घ्, ज्: त्रिष्कोणान्ते; SamP: त्रिकोणान्ते. Concerning the form त्रिष– cf. below 38/7c and see above, note to 3/119d.

28. KuKh 38 and KuKh 42: –लङ्कृतं 29. क्, ग्: –माघं; KuKh 38 छ्: योनिवृन्दं; all other MSs, KuKh 38 and KuKh 42: योगिवृन्दम्

30. KuKh 38 MS ग् and KuKh 42 MS ग्: –मध्य

31. घ्, छ्: चक्र–; CMSS, KuKh 38 and KuKh 42: दिव्यलिङ्गं; KrSūA: लिङ्गरूपं

32. Missing in MSs ख्, ङ् and झ्; KuKh 38: खरूपम् (घ्: षरूपं); KuKu42: खरूपं (ख्, झ्: स्व–; घ्: षरूपं); CMSS and KrSūA: खरूपम्

33. घ्, छ्: नित्यानन्दः–; missing in MSs ख्, ङ् and झ्.

34. AS: तदुपरिमथितं; CMSS: तदुभयमथनं 35a. घ्, छ्: षत्प्रकारा–;

AS, CMSS, KuKh 38, KuKh 42 and KrSūA: षट्प्रकारैर्विभिन्नम् M → N. See above, note to 1/2c. 35b. All MSs: –मोघं
36. KuKh 42: missing in MS क् 37. AS: क्षिति–
38. AS and KuKh 38 ठ्: –भेदैर्य KrSūA: –त्रिभागा. A connecting pronoun is required, such as तस्याः, to complete the syntax.
39. SamP: –रूप 40. KrSūA and CMSS: यस्याज्ञा
41. KuKh 38: षट्प्रसूता; KrSūA and CMSS: बिन्दुभूता
42. KrSūA: –जननी; CMSS च्: –दरणी
43. KuKh 38: सिद्धदिव्यौघरूपा (क्, ग्: –दिव्याघ all other MSs: –दिव्योघ–); KrSūA and CMSS: सिद्धिदा बोधरूपा
44. AS: –भग–उदितपरानन्दशक्ति; KuKh 38: स्वरूपा भगमुदितपरानन्दशक्तिः; KuKh 42: –
भगमुदितपरानन्दशक्तिः; CMSS: स्वरक्ता (ग्: स्वरक्तां) भवमुदितसदानन्ददात्री
45. AS: प्रसिद्ध; CMSS: स्वतन्त्रा
46. All MSs: –वोघं; KrSūA: स्थान (ख्: छानु) कामां; CMSS: तत्र कामं (ङ्: कामां; च्: कामा) 47. All MSs and SamP: क्षुभनि–. This emendation agrees with the reading in the KrSūA and the CMSS.
48. KrSūA: कुब्जिकाख्यां नमामि; CMSS: श्रीकुब्जिकाख्यं नमामि. As this is only a half verse it has not been numbered separately.
49. क्: मायो–; all other MSs: माया–
50. क्: तुभ्यमाद्ये –; ख्, ङ्, झ्: तुभ्यं माद्य– 51. DS.
52. ख्: पीठ * वताः; झ्: –वस्थिताः, all other MSs: देवताः
53. क्, ख्: गमं तस्यास्–; ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: गमन्तस्यास्–
54. This line and the following quarter are quoted in the SamP.
55. ग्, घ्, छ्: द्वादशाः–; all other MSs: द्वादशा– 56. घ्: त्रिभिस्; छ्: त्रिभि
57. घ्: स्थानेर्–; छ्: स्थानेर्व्यवस्थिताः
58. The root क्षर् is classified as 1P. This and the following two lines are quoted in the SamP. 59. Missing in MSs घ् and छ्
60. ग्, घ्, छ्: कृच्छं 61. झ्: –ता 62. DS.
63. क्, ख्, ग्: –मेक; ङ्, ज्, झ्: –मेक 64. घ्, छ्: योस्त्रिषु
65. ख्, ङ्: आनन्दा * * विन्दुश्च DS. 66. ग्: अछरं 67. छ्: –न्यते. IC.
68. घ्, छ्: कूटे 69. ख्, झ्: –पूजा; ङ् –पू *
70. ख्, ग्, ज्: तिम्रकं; घ्, छ्: तिम्रके 71. ख्, ङ्, झ्: कुले 72. क्, ख्: –वृन्देस्तु
73. ज्: + तु 74. क्, ख्, ग्, ङ्, झ्: तु अलिंगम्; घ्, छ्: सुक्ष्मलिंगन्; ज्:
सु * लिंगन् 75. क्: –लिंगं–; ग्, ङ्, झ्: –लिंग–अधोमुखं
76. क्: –मध्यर्स्थ 77. All MSs: स 78. ख्: सुषिर
79. झ्: चाति 80. See 14/12a and note.
81. All MSs: –स्थं 82. छ्: –थलं
83. ख्, ग्, घ्, ज्: विदा– 84. All MSs: इत्याश्रवण–. See note to 1/4a.
85. क्: वित्तचैतन्य; all other MSs: –चैतन्य; SamP: –चैतन्यं. 26/18cd-24ab is quoted in the SamP. 86. SamP and MSs क्, ख्, ङ्, ज् झ्: –संशयम्; ग्:
–कर्मशयम्; all other MSs: –संचयं 87. क्: –वेस्यं; all other MSs: –वेत्सं; SamP:
योगावरसं. M → N. 88. घ्, छ्: आरन्त् 89. घ्, छ्: * त्कुले
90. Missing in MS ख् 91. क्: यस्पात्; घ्: यस्मान् 92. ङ्, झ्: स्मरनं
93. ख्, ङ्, झ्: –र्विविभिन्न; SamP: –प्रकारैवि–
94. ग्: –श्चवाष्टविशति; SamP and all other MSs except क्, छ्: –ति. अष्टाविंशतिः is correct but makes the fifth syllable long. Cf. 26/35d.

95. क्: पचकं 96. ग्: पंचतुकं
97. घ्, छ्: षट्प्रकार: क्रमन्; SamP: –क्रमा
98. घ्, छ्: त्येतद्; ङ्, ज्, झ्: त्येतत्; SamP: ण्येतत्
99. क्, घ्, छ्: वर्ति; ग्, ज्: वत्ति; झ्: वेर्त्ति 100. ख्, ङ्: च; SamP: च
101. ख्, ङ्, ज्, झ्: –ता 102. See above, note to 6/1a.
103. All MSs except घ्, छ्: स–; SamP: महंतारि– 104. IM 5 + 6.
105. I take this to be a coordinative compound, even though it should have a plural ending. 106. घ्: –विंशैभेदै:. See above, note to 11/68b.
107. क्, ग्: प्रकोराणि. M → N.
108. षडि: stands for षट्. See above, note to 10/24d.
109. क्: एतेभिन्नं; ख्: वतैर्–; घ्, छ्: पत्रैर्भिन्नं; झ्: * तैर्भिन्नं
110. See above, note to 3/10d.
111. See above, 6/180b and note.
112. All MSs except घ्, छ्: पंचमम् 113. छ्, झ्: तिम्राख्ये
114. All MSs except क्, ग्: ति; all other MSs: ति
115. घ्, छ्: –विंशतिं; all other MSs: –मं. –विंश– or – विंशतितम–
116. All MSs: भेदं 117. All MSs: भविष्यं 118. IC.
119. ग्, ङ्, ज्, झ्: पीठा N → M.
120. The neuter ending is added here purely for the sake of the metre.
121. IM 5 + 6. 122. IM 6 + 7. 123. All MSs: सिद्धि
124. छ्: इडानीं 125. All MSs: –स्था
126. All MSs: इन्दुर्वा; SamP: इन्दुप् 127. M → N.
128. क्: पूर्णिमानन्दं; all other MSs: घूर्णिमानन्दं Cf. 5/33d and note. The SamP reads घूर्णं and आनन्द: in its regular masculine gender. See above, note to 3/46b.
129. As often happens, this coordinative compound is treated as a neuter collective. 130. छ्: शक्ति
131. See above, note to 2/8a. 132. ख्: –चतुष्कंमा–
133. क्, घ्: महतारिका. IM 5. A genitive is required here.
134. Note how easily a feminine noun is formed simply by suffixing a long ‘a'.
135. –व्यापिनी would be the regular form of the feminine.
136. Missing in MS झ् 137. ख्: गधनी 138. एतद्
139. ख्, ङ्, झ्: एतद् वै महं ते कार्या:;, छ्, ज्: * महंकार्या:; all other MSs: त्वामहंकार्या:.
140. झ्: + पंचकं कार्या:–
141. ख्, ङ्: विमलं तालमा–, झ्: विमलं तालुमा–; all other MSs: विमलान्तारमा– See above, note to 3/10d. 142. छ्, ज्: औलितृकं 143. घ्, छ्: एतत्
144. झ्: विद्यान्व * 145. All MSs: यश्च
146. क्: नित्योता; ग्, घ्, छ्: नित्यादिता 147. ङ्, झ्: ऊर्ण्णा–
148. जीवो. The root जीव् is normally classified as 1P.
149. घ्, छ्: –रं 150. Cf. 26/20d.
151. ङ्, झ्: तृनाति. तृनाति–. M → N. 152. ङ्, ज्, झ्: एकत्रे
153. Here तम् once again replaces तत्. Cf. above, .
154. All MSs: तृभि:श्रोत्रप्रवाहकं. स्रोतस् is treated here as if it were a thematic noun (see above, note to 6/165a). The meaning here, effectively, is: स्रोतत्रयप्रवाहकम्.

155. झ्: तिम्रख्यं

156. ङ्, झ्: प्रवाहकम्; ङ्: + तिस्राख्यं च लास्थं; झ्: + तिम्राख्यं च लास्थं

157. All MSs except घ्, छ्, ज्: –मुखम्

158. ललाटसुषिरचक्रं is better but leaves the sixth syllable short.

159. See above, note to 1/4a. 160. क्, घ्: मेरु–; all other MSs except छ्: मेरुः

161. ख्, ङ्: य; झ्: द्य 162. All MSs: जनते The root चल् is regularly 1P but is also occasionally treated as ātmanepadī in the Epics and Purāṇas.

163. ङ्: –मध्यं–; छ्, झ्: –मध्ये–; ज्: सृंगस्य. IM 6. 164. घ्, छ्: तस्यागुरु

165. क्: तृभिभेदैः; घ्: –भेदै 166. ङ्: –नदः; छ्: –नन्द

167. प्रवर्तते – the reading of MSs ख्, ङ् and झ् would be better grammar but then the seventh syllable would be short.

168. घ्: मोक्षं–; छ्: मोक्षंमार्गमहोत्सवं; all other MSs except ग्: –सवं

169. All MSs: आज्ञा 170. All MSs except क्, घ्, ज्, छ्: वक्त्रा–

171. All MSs: सिद्धि 172. घ्, छ्: कुलकौलं

173. क्: भवनो; छ्, ज्: भावनात्; all other MSs: भवनात् 174. छ्: कर्मना

175. All MSs except ग्, घ्, छ्: त्वसुद्धिर्–; ङ्, झ्: त्वसुद्दिभक्ति–. This same line appears below as 28/119cd, 30/134cd and 30/143ab; cf. also 32/61cd.

176. All MSs except झ्: –हीने 177. M → N.

178. ख्, ङ्, झ्: व; घ्, छ्: स 179. क्, ग्: भवेद्वरं; घ्: भोद्वर; छ्: भवोद्धर; all other MSs: भवेद्वर 180. All MSs: ज्ञा च 181. ख्, छ्: अभिरक्त–

182. All MSs: शिष्यो 183. Missing in MS ख्, ङ् and झ्

184. च्छायाजा has been shortened to च्छायजा for the metre.

185. ङ्, झ्: कुर्व्वती 186. The final anusvāra of नित्यं has been dropped for the metre.

187. घ्: षनेच्छाया; all other MSs except ङ्, झ्: मनेच्छाया । मनसेच्छया would be regular Sanskrit.

188. क्: आचरेत शक्ति–; ख्, झ्: माचयेतशक्ति–; ग्, ङ्, ज्: माचरेत् शक्ति–; घ्, छ्: माचयेच्छक्ति–; ज्: माचयेत्शक्ति–. All MSs: –स्थं

189. घ्, छ्: –लिंगस्–. External sandhi has been retained within this compound in order to make the sixth syllable long.

190. ख्, ङ्: –कांताते; झ्: –तो ते 191. ङ्: * सुक्ष्मगा

192. घ्: पशुधारो; छ्: वशुधारो; ज्: पशुधारा; all other MSs: पर्शुधारा

193. तथा, or the like, is required to complete the syntax.

194. छ्: कटिला; all other MSs: कुटिला 195. All MSs: –खी

196. छ्: तस्या

197. ङ्: क्रम औधं; all other MSs except क्, झ्: क्रम औघं. It seems that a hiatus between words in a compound is so freely allowed, if the metre requires it, that it is made use of even when other alternatives are easy to find. See above, note to 3/77d. 198. क्: पश्यन्–; छ्: –मूत्रो–

199. अयम् is treated here, as in other instances, as neuter.

200. ख्: –पद्यातार्थं 201. All MSs: निर्णीत–

202. अनेन सूचितमिति सूत्रम् would a be syntactically complete.

203. क्: तत्; ख्: सु; all other MSs: स

204. A genitive is meant here.

205. छ्, ज्: नावार्यं; झ्: वार्यं M → N. 206. M → N.

207. All MSs: मूलसूत्रो वधारयेत्   208. छ्, ज्: क्रमाद्यं; other MSs: क्रमोघं

209. झ्: –शायं   210. All MSs except क्, ग्, घ्: उन्पन्नंत्वत्–

211. Note that the seed-syllable at the beginning of this line is not counted in the metre.

212. The regular form - तेजोरूपिणि – does not fit the metre. See above, note to 4/11d. The SamP also notes that this noun has been thematized: तत्र तेजःशब्दो (तेज–) अकारान्तपाठः (अकारान्त–)   213. घ्, ज्: –स्थं   214. SamP: –स्त्रिते

215. छ्: ऐँ–; ज्: एं–   216. SamP: कलिके. See 6/180b and note.

217. घ्: मात; छ्: माते; other MSs: मातो. ग्: + अष्थ; घ्: मात + अंवि. I have accepted the reading मातो as this form of deviant visarga sandhi is common throughout this text. See above, note to 3/22b.

218. ग्, घ्: अथं; छ्: अंवि; all other MSs and SamP: अन्थे

219. क्, ख्, ङ्, ज्: अंवै. See above, note to 3/65a.   220. ख्: समद्भूते

221. SamP: –सृते   222. ख्: –शं; all other MSs: वह्निः–. The order of the first two members of this compound has been reversed.

223. क्, ग्: विसर्गान्त; घ्, छ्: विसर्गान्तं–   224. DS.

225. क्: –मोनावे; ख्: –मानोवे; all other MSs: –मानावे. This emendation agrees with the reading in the SamP.

226. घ्, छ्: मात्रे; all other MSs except क्, झ्: मात   227. झ्: * * देवेशि

228. ङ्: दुर्गमाग्ते   229. ख्, ङ्: निलवर्त्ते; झ्: निलावर्त्ते

230. क्, ग्, ज्: लयि; घ्, छ्: लय; all other MSs: त्वयि   231. ख्: –कारिणी

232. SamP: –सृते   233. SamP: जारंधरे

234. घ्: –मुखे; SamP and all other MSs except छ्: –मुखी

235. All MSs except क्, घ्, छ्: शक्तिः–; SamP: –शक्तिः   236. SamP: पंचपीठके

237. ङ्, ज्, झ्: उजेन्यां; छ्: उर्जेन्यां; SamP: उजन्यां   238. ख्: पीठश्वरे–; छ्: –रि

239. झ्: –लो   240. SamP: –मातरि. Note how मातरे is another deviant form of the vocative मातः, along with माते. See above, note to 5/41b.

241. घ्, छ्: –समाश्रिते; all other MSs: –परिवृते. This emendation agrees with the reading in the SamP and, moreover, unlike the readings of the MSs, fits the metre.

242. झ्: दाकिनी   243. क्, ख्, ङ्, ज्: –पटभदुंदुभी; झ्: पतभ–, all other MSs except ग्, घ्: –पटै–; SamP: –भदुन्दुभी. This appears to be a peculiar bahuvrīhi compound in which all the elements are substantives. Moreover, even though the noun दुन्दुभि– can be either masculine or feminine, the final vowel of the stem has been lengthened, it seems, to give it a more feminine appearance.

244. ख्, ङ्, झ्: तृधामध्वा–

245. छ्: –समासृते; SamP: –सृते. त्रिधा replaces त्रिविध– here.

246. घ्, छ्: त्रिः–   247. घ्: ऐकारा–; all other MSs and SamP: एकारा–   248. All MSs: –नी

249. All MSs except छ्: देवी   250. All MSs except ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: –भेदनी. The reading in the SamP supports this emendation. Cf. 26/88d.

251. All MSs: व्यापकी; SamP: व्यापिकी. A regular form would be व्यापिका. See above, note to 2/5d.   252. All MSs: –निवासिनी

253. SamP and MSs ख्, घ्, छ्, ज्: –हेमावती

254. SamP and all MSs except ग्, ङ्, झ्: हंसिनी

255. All MSs: –नादेश्वरी; SamP: –नाटेश्वरी   256. घ्, छ्: चक्र–

257. All MSs: –मुखी 258. घ्, छ्: शुभगे
259. All MSs: –कारस्–; SamP: ह्रींकारा–; all other MSs except ग्, घ्, छ्: –गुणावर्त्त
260. घ्, छ्: –मंत्रस्– 261. IM 5.
262. क्, ख्: ह्रीँ ह्रीँ हूँ; all other MSs: ह्रीँ ह्रीँ ह्रूँ
263. Missing in all MSs except घ् and छ्
264. Missing in MS झ् 265. SamP: प्रशान्ते–
266. ङ्, झ्: षद्भ्यागात्; छ्: षट्त्वागात् 267. ख्, ङ्, झ्: ससूक्षमे
268. ख्: स– 269. छ्, ज्: आनन्द
270. ख्, ङ्, झ्: निनानंदे; ज्: निरानन्द 271. क्: ह्लूं–; ख्: ह्लूँकार; ग्: ह्यूँ; ङ्: ह्सुँ–; ज्: ह्सूँ–; झ्:
ह्सु–; SamP: ह्सूँकार 272. ख्, ङ्, ज्, झ्: व्रीह्मी 273. ख्, झ्: म्लूं–
274. क्: नास्ति 275. SamP: स्लूँकारे 276. क्: ल्लूं–; ग्: म्लू–
277. क्, ग्: –परे. The order of the last two components of this compound has been reversed. 278. झ्: –सिद्धिणा; SamP: –सिद्धानां
279. क्: मोते; It would be easy to emend to the regular vocative मात: but see above, note to 5/41b. 280. All MSs except छ्, ज्: प्रभुमे
281. All MSs and SamP: आरक्तस्– 282. All MSs: –सुन्दरी
283. क्, ख्, झ्, ङ्, छ्: –मेत्रैस्तु; ङ्, छ्: हंहुंहूँकार–; all other MSs: हँहूँहूँकार. This emendation is in accord with the one in 26/74cd.
284. घ्, छ्, ज्: चलस. The root चल् is 1P. It is only rarely ātmanepadī in common usage. This and the following verb have a causative sense here.
285. घ्, छ्: स्यदसे; SamP. नन्दसे 286. All MSs: गौरी शक्त्यान्ते
287. क्, ग्: –देवीवि 288. The order of the first two components of this compound has been reversed. See above, note to 1/11c. Cf. 7/57a and 7/61a.
289. ग्: सप्ताविंशपदै; घ्: सप्ताविंशत्पदोद्भेदै:; छ्: सप्ताविंशत् * * * *; ङ्, झ्: सप्तविंशत्–;
SamP: –पदै भेदा। सप्तविंशति– would be correct, but does not fit the metre. The deviant सप्ता– before विंशति, विंश and दश is much more common in this text than the regular सप्त–. See above, 5/63d and 7/7c.
290. Missing in MS घ्; क्, ख्: –भवेत्; छ्: * * * * पदोद्भवेत्; ज्: –पदोभवेत्
291. All MSs and SamP: कौलीश 292. SamP: –सृते
293. छ्, झ्: सिद्धा–; all other MSs: सिद्धा:–. The regular form- –पञ्चासद्रूपेण does not fit the metre.
294. ख्, ङ्, झ्: अट्टाहास–; SamP: अट्टहासे– 295. ख्, ङ्: दीप्ते–
296. क्, ग्: मनान्तस्थ। मनसन्त– would be correct but is too long for the metre.
297. ङ्: मारुते; all other MSs and the SamP: मारुती 298. घ्: तुरति; छ्: तुरतिप्रिये
299. ग्: ज्ञेयेरूपं; all other MSs: ज्ञेयेरूपे 300. All MSs: स्थितिर्–
301. All MSs: जननी 302. झ्: –णां 303. SamP: घ्, छ्: शक्ति
304. छ्: आज्ञा–; SamP: –तमोभेदिनी. Cf. above 26/70d. तमो– would be correct but makes the fifth syllable long.
305. घ्, छ्: मातर:; SamP: मातृका. The deviant form मातरी replaces the regular form माता here to gain an extra syllable for the metre. Cf. above 4/3b and see note to 5/41b. 306. झ्: विश्वेरी; SamP: विश्वेश्वरि
307. ख्, ङ्: संप्रदा * प्रदायनी; घ्, छ्: संप्रदाय:–; झ्: संप्रदाप्रदाययिनी
308. SamP: –महांबिबे 309. झ्: सयं 310. घ्, छ्: –हे; झ्: मन *
ग्रहं. The regular form, मनोविग्रहम्, would make the fifth syllable long.

311. ग्: तुषा; घ्: अष्ठा एव; छ्: स्रष्टा; all other MSs: नुषा 312. क्, ख्, ज्: मातास्–
313. M → N. 314. ख्: –ग्रत:; छ्: योगीयानिक्रमाग्रत:; झ्:
योगीयानिक्रमाश्रत:; all other MSs except क्: योगीयानिक्रमागत:; SamP: योगीमानिक्रमाग्रत:
315. ख्: सुखमोरोग्यसंपत्ति–आरोग्य; झ्: सुखमोरोग्यसंपत्ति अवस्था; all other MSs: –संपत्ति अवस्था
316. ख्, ङ्, झ्: पुनरावृत्तिमायास्तव–. The letter 'm' has been inserted for the metre.
See above, note to 3/21b. 317. All MSs: भोगा 318. All MSs: ल्लाभं
319. क्: –यश 320. All MSs: पारंपर्यर 321. छ्: –मेरुमार्ग * * * ते
322. ख्, ङ्: –वतारे 323. ख्, झ्: –निर्णय 324. ख्, झ्: कादिभे *
325. क्: * * परमेश्वरि; ख्, ङ्, झ्: * * परमेश्वरे; ग्: –परमे * *; घ्, छ्: पारमेश्वरी
326. छ्: –सग * संहितायां
327. All MSs except क्, ख्, ङ्, झ्: अम्बा–. See note to the colophon of chapter
one. 328. ख्: ना * नन्द:

NOTES OF THE TRANSLATION OF CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

1. The Root Sūtra embodies in verbal form the essential nature of the place of origin of emanation and so is said to be equal to the Skyfarer, that is, the deity who resides in the transcendental Void. It describes in brief the essential nature, contents and dynamics of the triangle that lies at the centre of the Saṁvartāmaṇḍala, which represents the interface between the transcendent and its immanent emanation of which it is the source. A cardinal theme of the teachings of the Kubjikā Tantras, we have had occasion to examine this more than once in various contexts, both internally as part of the Yogic body, and externally as the site for the worship of the Krama.

There are two other versions of the Root Sūtra in chapters 38 and 42. A variant of the version in chapter 42 is found in the beginning of the CMSS (1/4-6). The Root Sūtra is also reproduced at the beginning of the Kramasūtrādhikāra where it functions as the initial invocatory verse (maṅgalacaraṇa). Apart from one minor variant, the first verse is the same as the one here (see notes to 42/5). Of the three versions in our text, the most elaborate and longest is the one in chapter 38, which we will analyse in due course. Mukundarāja, the author of the Saṁvartārthaprakāśa, quotes the version of the sūtra found here and paraphrases the following verses that explain it with a few additions of his own (SaṁP fl. 4b ff.). He informs the reader that the form of the goddess as power (śakti) is described in the Manthānabhairavatantra (tatra manthāne yādṛśatvenākhyātā) which is the source of all the sūtras he presents in his Saṁvartārthaprakāśa.

Here (26/2) we are told that this is the first Root Sūtra, which may simply mean that it is the first of the three versions of the Root *Sūtra*s in the KuKh, it may also be the earliest version. The six quarters of the following verse and a half correspond to 42/5cd, 42/4cd and 42/6b in that order. The second and last quarter are missing in the version of chapter 38. The remaining quarters correspond to 38/9d and 38/7d-8a, respectively. The first two and the last quarters are missing in the version here. The next three quarters correspond to 26/5b and 26/4cd, in that order. The first four quarters agree with CMSS 1/4. KuKh 38/2-3a agrees with KuKh 42/3-4a. The latter variant is one quarter longer than the former. It is hard to say which of the two versions is the original. This version fits exactly the four quarters of a verse. However, in this version the last of the four sacred seats is not qualified by an attributive compound (bahuvrīhi) as are the other three. The other version is complete in this respect but is one quarter too long (see translation below and the critical apparatus of the Sanskrit of 26/3d).

Further ahead (38/34) we are told that this is the first (ādi) sūtra of the tradition and that the maṇḍala is to be drawn 'as explained in the Root Sūtra in accord with the previous tradition (krama)' (33/62). Perhaps this reference to a 'previous tradition' may be evidence that the Root Sūtra belongs to an early strata of the development of the teachings of the Kubjikā Tantras. At some early stage it may have served the function of the Saṁvartāmaṇḍalasūtra of summarizing in brief the basic form of the Kramamaṇḍala of the Kubjikā school. If so, it would appear that the basic form of the maṇḍala was originally simply this triangle. Then, as the system developed, the maṇḍala expanded and the Saṁvartāsūtra that described it took the place of the Root Sūtra as the first one.

Whatever may be the case, describing as it does concisely the main features of Kubjikā's core maṇḍala, the Root Sūtra is emblematic of the entire system. Thus Śrīpuṇḍarīka, the author the Vimalaprabhā commentary on the Buddhist Kālacakratantra, chooses to quote the beginning of it as the view of this school which he refutes (see ibid. vol. 3 p. 147). The Root Sūtra was particularly popular with the redactors of the MBT and its related texts. Indeed, its very name suggests its special importance amongst the sūtras in the Kubjikā Tantras. Thus we find that there are several expanded versions of it that accommodate new features of the maṇḍala and deeper reflections on its content. One example is found in chapter 58 further ahead which is probably drawn from chapter 28 of YKh (1). Others in YKh (1) are in chapter 38 (79 ff.) and 54 (5 ff). Another is chapter 25 of the Ambāmatasaṁhitā.

2. This expression recurs throughout our sources to describe the goddess. The following is an interesting instance. It is found in the opening verse of YKh (2). Here we can clearly observe how Kubjikā's 'three dynamic modes' are derived from her original identity as Parā, the triadic goddess of the Trika:

I salute (the goddess) called Parā who, in the beginning, middle and end, is endowed with three dynamic modes. She who is subtle and unchanging Aparā, Parāparā the one called Parā who is the supreme will. Hard to understand, comprehensible (only by the enlightened) consciousness of the nature of Supreme Śiva, devoid of (phenomenal) qualities, her nature is the Void. Eternal bliss, venerated by the hosts of gods, she is famous as the (goddess) called Vakrikā.

*yā sūkṣmā nirvikārā [k, kh: -kā ] aparaparaparā yā parākhyā parecchā *durbodhā [k, kh: dūrvoma] bodhagamyā paramaśivamayī [k: -mayīr] nirguṇā [k: * guṇā] khasvarūpā [k, kh: svasvarūpo]* ǀ *nityānandasvarūpā [k: * * * * svarūpā] suragaṇanamitā [k, kh: stuti-] vakrikākhyā prasiddhā*
ādau madhyāvasāne [k: -vasthāne; kh: -vaśāne] trividhagatiyutāṁ [k, kh: -tā] tāṁ [kh: nāṁ] parākhyāṁ [k: -khyaṁ; kh: -khāṁ] namāmi ǀǀ

3. The three letters are HRĪṀ KLĪṀ ŚRĪṀ. See above, note to 25/39cd-40 where the goddess's maṇḍala in the End of the Twelve is described as the Void of Brahmā.

4. See note to 6/28. Each variation, explanation or expansion of the sūtra contributes (despite some repetition) a deeper insight into the dynamics of the goddess as the energy of creative bliss through which the universe is generated. It explains this process as one of self-replication that abides perpetually within its own absolute being. This is done by what could be called the dialectic of the centre and the circumference. The centre and circumference of a circle are relative and mutually dependent. They give rise to one another even as they order and circumscribe space. In the Space beyond space of absolute Being, centre and circumference cannot be distinguished. They collapse into one another. Diety is a circle of which the centre is everywhere and the circumference nowhere. It is everywhere the centre around which extends all that depends upon Deity for its existence.

Bliss is one with two aspects. One aspect is the bliss in the centre. This is bliss that gives bliss. The other is the encompassing bliss of what has been emanated by the bliss from the centre. This is bliss that is blissful by receiving bliss from the bliss in the centre. Thus there are two Yonis – two blissful sources of bliss. One is the encompassing Triangle; the other is the Point in the centre that crowns AIṀ, the goddess's syllable, which is also triangular. This Yoni is called by the synonym bhaga and its energy bhagaśakti (see below 63/76 and intro. vol. 1, 307-308).

The circumference marked by the corners of an equilateral triangle is the body of Emptiness of the centre that is Void. Collapsing and expanding out into one another, they represent the extremities of the divine pulsation. The energy of the play of the polarities of Oneness encompasses it in the eternal dynamism of the self-arousing and creative bliss of absolute consciousness and Being. In this way, the Womb (bhaga yoni) of the goddess emanates, encompasses and vivifies the triad of forces through which all things are created and destroyed at every level of existence.

In relation to the centre and one another, the corners of the triangle are demarcations of space. Right, left and below are the cordinates that serve to locate one thing in spacial relationship with another and demarcate the area of which they indicate the boundry, that is, the straight line that conjoins them. There are seven aspects of each of the triads that mark the corners according to the verses that follow. These have been arranged in the following table.

9. Table of Triads: The Encompassing Body of the Goddess.

Corner	Letter	God	Goddess	Sacred seat	Location	Bodily fluid	Channel
Right	A	Brahmā	Jyeṣṭhā	Jālandhara	Forehead	Semen	Iḍā
Left	Ka	Viṣṇu	Vāmā	Pūrṇagiri	Heart	Blood	Piṅgalā
Below	Tha	Maheśvara	Raudrī	Kāmarūpa	Yoni	Kṛcchra ?	Suṣumṇā

5. SamP: ‘the abode is the house of the Yantra’ (nilayaṁ yantragṛhaṁ).

6. SamP: The word ‘paśu' (denotes) is a person who has not been initiated or one who is ignorant. (This seat is) where, the sight of it frightens such people. (*paśuśabdena [-śabde ] adīkṣitaḥ ajño vā tādṛśajanānāṁ bhayaṁ taddarśanaṁ [-na] trāsaṁ karoti yatra |)

7. SamP: Kāmarūpa is in the corner which is in the front of the Yoni (tadbhagāgre koṇe kāmarūpaṁ).

8. SamP: ‘That’ refers to Kāmarūpa and ‘above’ to the three sacred seats Oḍiyāna and the rest. The purpose of repetition here is respect. (tasya kāmarūpasya | ūrdhvaṁ pīṭhatrayam oḍiyānādi | atra punaruktir ādarārthaḥ |) It appears from what Mukundarāja is saying that he does not consider Tisra to be a separate sacred seat. In his view ‘tisra’ – lit. ‘the three’ – is the aggregate of the three seats in the Triangle above Kāmarūpa. But this is unlikely. The texts repeatedly refer to Tisra (= Trisrota) as a separate seat.

9. SamP: ‘Endowed with the Supreme Energy’ means ‘endowed with the energy of Śiva and Śakti (paramakalayutam iti śivaśaktikalāyutam).

10. Cf. KuKh 38/3. As the Saṁvartāmaṇḍala is on the Brahmarandhra or at the End of the Twelve, the Candrapīṭha, which is said to be on the forehead, should be below it. The sacred seat Tisra is also located here (26/37).

11. SamP: The Moon Point is above the Triangle in such a way that it has the form of the syllable AIṀ. Above that (Triangle which is) the condition of the sacred seats (pīṭhatva), it is said that there is a line that (looks) like a tail. By the word ‘forehead’ (is meant) the knowledge that is above the Yoni.

trikoṇe upari candrabinduḥ [-vindu] yasya [yāśca] aiṁ kārākāram iti yāvat | tatpīṭhatvamupari puchaval lekhanam uktam | lalāṭaśabdena [-śabdana] bhagordhvasthānajñānam [bhagoddhaṁ(?)sthalajñānaṁ] |

12. This consists of eighteen phases of expansion from the Transmenatal up to Śrīnatha. See above 2/20-6 and chapter 57 for an ‘inner’ explanation of these eighteen.

13. The other two versions of the Root Sūtra read ‘adorned with’.

14. ‘Within the Triangle is the entire (samasta) Divine Current.’ (This means that) in the centre of the Triangle is the aggregate (of all things) (samasta). Supreme Śiva is the condition of the letter Ha whose head is adorned with the letter Sa. (His) energy is the letter AU. It is ‘aroused’ – that is, ‘conjoined’ (with Śiva’s energy). Thus (we get the syllable) HSAUṀ. Or else (we may understand) the Triangle (to be) the letter E. Thus (we get) PHREṀ. The syllable PHRA is taken up as the ‘arouser’. Previously, the seed-syllable of Śrī (ŚRĪṀ) (was indicated) by the use of the word ‘śrī’ – ‘venerable’. Again, by the ‘Triangle’ (is meant) just the syllable AIṀ and by the word ‘energy’ the syllable HRĪṀ. Thus (the initiate) performs the daily rite to the divine, that is, the Divine Current, in the Triangle adorned with the Five Praṇavas.

trikoṇamadhye samastaṁ | sakāramastakabhūṣitam paramaśivaṁ hakāratvaṁ [hakārātvaṁ] kalā aukāraḥ [ākāraḥ] | kṣobhitaṁ [kṣaubhitaṁ] yojitaṁ | tena hsauṁ [slauṁ] | athavā trikoṇa aikāras tena phre [hlphre] | kṣobhatvena phrakāragrahaṇam | pūrvaṁ śrīśabdopādānāt śrībījaṁ ca | trikoṇāt puna aiṁkāramātraṁ | śaktiśabdena hrīṁkāraś ca | ataḥ pañcapraṇavabhūṣite trikoṇe nityapūjāṁ [-jā] karoti divyaṁ divyaughatvam |

15. Other sources read: 'divine Liṅga'.

16. In the middle of that Yantra is the Crooked Liṅga, that is, the energy of the Moon. Or else the Liṅga (that is) in the form of the tail above (the triangular body of the syllable AIṀ). By virtue of its state of oneness (samarasabhāva) it generates 'supreme', that is, extreme, bliss and joy. 'The form of the Point' is the Point in the middle of the Triangle with the Half Moon above it.

tadyantrasya madhye vakraliṅgaṁ candrakalā | athavopari puchākāraṁ liṅgam | paramam atyantaṁ sukhaṁ karoti samarasabhāvenānandam [samarasī-] | bindurūpaṁ trikoṇamadhye binduḥ sārdhacandraḥ tadupari ca |

17. The other sources replace 'tribhinnam' – 'divided into three' – with 'kharūpam' – '(whose) form is the Void'.

18. 'It is divided into three' in the form of the Point divided into the energies of will, knowledge and action. 'Its nature is eternal bliss'. It is the Point that is 'eternal bliss' because it is not destroyed and is intense joy that can (only be) realised by Yoga and, subtler than the subtle, its nature is not perceived.

tribhinnam iti | icchājñānīkriyāśaktibhinnabindurūpam | nityānandasvarūpam iti | nityam avināśenānandam atyantāhlādaṁ [atyāhlādaṁ] yogagamyaṁ yad binduḥ | adṛṣṭasvarūpaṁ sūkṣmāt sūkṣmataraṁ [sūkṣmakaṁ] yat |

19. Variant from the other sources: 'by churning fom above, it is divided into six parts'. The energy of the 'churning from above', that is, the union of the Point and the Triangle – the Crooked Liṅga and Yoni – splits up the Point into six which expands out into the hexagram that envelops the Triangle. See above 2/10 and below, 26/18cd-24ab (especially 26/20), 42/4 and chapter 57,

20. Mukundarāja lists the six āmnāyas – ranged in the four directions, above and below – by way of explanation, concerning which see vol. 2 of the introduction p. 349 ff.. Thus for Mukundarāja, as for the later Kubjikā Tantras as a whole, the 'previous tradition' is the Eastern Tradition in relation to this one, which is the Western Tradition. However, in the present context the 'previous tradition' is the prior one in the Triangle, that is, the Divine Current.

21. SamP: 'Above that' - one should know that above the aforementioned modalities (prakāra), energies and the rest is another modality (prakāraka).

tadupari tat taduktaprakāraśaktyādyupari [-śaktyādhupari] bodhyam I aparam anyat prakārakam I

22. 'In this way everything' – all that is emanated is 'pervaded' and abides, having been pervaded by the modality of the inner meditation of Yoga.

evam antaryogadhyānaprakāreṇa samastaṁ sṛṣṭaṁ sarvaṁ vyāptaṁ vyāpakīkṛtvā sthitam I

23. SamP: (Everything) is pervaded by the three divisions (that is everything that) is said to be of three kinds such as mind, speech and action.

tribhedair iti tritriprakārakakathitair vyāptaṁ manovākkarmabhir ity ādibhiḥ I

24. Cf. 26/9 and 38/9. Rudra's energy is established in three places. SamP: She should be realised (to be) the mother, she who is the first to give birth (and as) each instrument of stability in the Six Wheels and the rest and the instrument of merger of the individual soul in Supreme Śiva who is united with Śakti. And she is Rudra's energy. She is the energy Kuṇḍalinī who is united with the Liṅga, that is, Rudra who is in the thousand-petalled lotus.

ṣaṭcakrādiṣu tat tat sthirīkaraṇārthakaṁ paraśive śaktiyukte jīvalayakaraṇārthakaṁ ca jananī [jananīm] cādijananakartrī [vādi-] bodhyā I sā caiva rudraśaktiḥ I rudreṇa sahasradalakamalasthena liṅgena saṁgatā śaktiḥ kuṇḍalinī I

25. SamP: The Ciñcā (tamarind) is a particular tree. The purpose (of this) tree is inner knowledge. It is encompassed by the leaves that are the Wheels of the body and consists of the two Peak (seed-syllables) of (the goddess) Ciñcā namely, the letter Ha and the letter Sa and the rest (that make HSKHPREṀ) or the Nine-syllable (seed HSKṢMLVRYŪṀ). The Command is (the goddess) Vakrā who is the object of designation (of the seed-syllables). (The divisions) beginning with 'Ka' are the consonants. Like (the tradition of the goddess) Ciñcā, there are three divisions due to the division of the Command (into the three transmissions) or the division of the Tantra into the Kādi (Hādi and Kahādi varieties).*

ciñcā vṛkṣaviśeṣaḥ antajñānārthe I dehacakrapatravalitaṁ [-patrāvalitaṁ] vṛkṣaṁ ciñcākūṭadvayaṁ hakāraṁ sakārādikaṁ navākṣaraṁ vā I ājñā vakrā vākyarūpā I kādikā vyañjanavarṇāḥ I ciñcāvad bhedenājñābhedena kāditantrabhedena vā tribhedaḥ I

* We have seen that the tradition of the Kubjikā Tantras is called the 'Kādibheda' because in this Age it originates from Kāmarūpa (see intro. vol. 3, p. 72). However, instead of understanding the text in this way, Mukundarāja explains the expression 'kādibhedaiḥ' in these two other ways that make little sense. One can understand that the energy of the Command, which is identified with that of Speech, can be said to be divided into the energies of the letters. However, it is hard to understand why the vowels are excluded. Moreover, Kādi, along with Hādi and Kahādi, is a name of a branch of the Śrīvidyā tradition, not of this one.

26. SamP: Akula pertains to Śiva and Kula to Śakti. (The goddess's bliss) consists of those two. (Thus she is the goddess) who is made blissful by that and bestows knowledge. 'Consciousness' is Śakti who is like that, namely, her form is dense (compact) consciousness and (she is) of that nature.

akulaṁ śaivaṁ kulaṁ śāktikaṁ taddvayamayaṁ tenānanditā yā tathā jñānadā |
bodha etādṛśī śaktir iti vijñānaghanākārā tadrūpā |

27. SamP: (The goddess is) the sixfold (Command). In the (lotus) of the Foundation she is worshipped as Ḍākinī. In the six-petalled (lotus) in the (Wheel of) the Self-supported (her) nature is Rākinī. In the (lotus) of the City of Gems consisting of ten petals (her) nature is Lākinī. In (the lotus of) Unstruck Sound consisting of twelve petals (she is) Kākinī. (She is) Śākinī in (the lotus consisting of) sixteen petals in the Wheel of Purity and Hākinī in the two petals of (the lotus of) the Command. In these and others ways she is sixfold.

ādhāre caturdale [caturdaśe] ḍākinī pūjitā | svādhiṣṭhāne ṣaḍdale [ṣaṭ-] rākinīsvarūpā | maṇipūre daśadale lākinīrūpā | anāhate dvādaśadale kākinī | viśuddhacakre ṣoḍaśadale śākinī | ājñāyāṁ dvidale hākinī ity ādi ṣaṭprakārā [-rāḥ] |

28. To be more precise, she is the Command who is the teacher. The ultimate and true teacher is really the Command (see above 3/11). Mukundarāja explains that the teacher is Śrīnātha and his Command is the request he makes to know the answers of the questions he asks the goddess at the beginning of this chapter. This is one aspect of the Command. The other aspect is the 'Command of the reply' with respect to the 'question (inspired) by that Command' (tadājñāpraśnaṁ prati cottarājñā).

29. SamP: By means of (the practice of) the purification of the elements and the like she removes the fear, that is, the misfortunes of birth such as (adverse) planetary influences and the like of the fettered who are not skilled in (the practice of) Yoga.

bhūtaśuddhyādibhiḥ paśūnāṁ yoganaipunyābhāvānāṁ bhayaṁ grahādijanmaduritaṁ taddharaṇaśīlā [-dharaṇā-] |

30. SamP: (She is called Nityaklinnā because) in the regular (daily) (nitya) morning and other (rites) she is 'wet', that is, possesses the Command. She is 'suraktā',* that is, the red colour of blood. She removes fear and so is 'delighted' that is, blissful with passion (smera) and (her) hand (offers) a boon and so she is 'supreme', that is, most excellent.

nitye [nityaṁ] prātaḥkṛtyādau klinnājñānvitā [klṛtājñāvitā] | suraktāśoṇitarakta-varṇā | abhayakarā | tena muditā smerasukhā [-mukhā] varahastā ca | tena ca parā utkṛṣṭā |

* suraktā may also means, as I have translated, '(she who is) beautifully passionate'.
SamP: A different view is that (she is abhayamuditavarānandaśaktiḥ). According to this reading she is delighted by boons (vara) and fearlessness. She is 'well known', that is, she has been revealed on the mountain to the west of Kailāsa.

pakṣe varā iti pāṭhe varābhayābhyām ānanditā [parābhayābhām] yā śaktiḥ kubjikā | prasiddhā kailāśapaścimaparvate prakāśitā |

31. Mukundarāja understands this epithet to be related to Śiva. Thus he asks: How is that Śiva? '(His) excellent body is aroused' – His body is most excellent, (as it contains) all the energies (including that of the) gesture of arousal and the Śāmbhava seed-syllable that bring about arousal and the rest.

taṁ śivaṁ kathaṁ bhūtam | *kṣobhamudrāśāṁbhavabījakṣobhakarmakādika-niḥśeṣakalāvaraśreṣṭhaṁ [śāṁbha * bīja- -karmakādikaṁniḥśeṣadala-] tanuḥ śarīram [śarīraḥ]* |

32. SamP: She is united with Kubjikeśa and awakens Śiva whose hands are adorned with a vīṇā etc. 'Sāmbhava (means) the Aghora Weapon and the other (mantras). Fashioning the instrument (of the mantras) VĪṆĀVĀDE SPHURA 2 PRACAṬA 2 KAHARA 2 and the rest she impels (her consort and devotees).

kubjikeśasyotsaṁgagatā [kubja-] ca vīṇākarādibhūṣitaṁ śivaṁ ca bodhayantī | śāṁbhavaṁ cāghorāstrakādikam | vīṇāvāde sphura 2 pracaṭa 2 kahara 2 ity ādi vādyaṁ [cādyaṁ] kurvantī prerayāntī |

33. SamP: Her form consisting of the Yoni, she is embarassed (lajjitā) by the fearful (bhayarūpa) Liṅga.

divyaliṅgaṁ liṅgabhayarūpaṁ prati lajjitā bhagamayarūpā |

Cf. 2/10 and 42/4. See chapter 57 and 26/20. The triad of the Triangle is the bliss that is received and the Point is the Bliss that is given. The Yoga of Bliss is enveloped by Bliss (26/14cd). The centre is the energy of supreme bliss (= Nityaklinnā) = the Point (that gives bliss) = Divyaliṅga = Kujā. The triangle is the cavity which is the body that is aroused and made blissful by passion.

34. For this Triangle see 3/31-32 and 7/12ff.. This verse compares especially with 7/13-15ab.

35. In this case Kula is the totality of the Five Seats that contain the energies and modalities of the Yoni. This is the totality – samasta – of the aggregate – vṛnda 'pervaded by the three divisions of Rudra's energy' (26/5b).

36. When the energy of the Point unfolds, it expands outwards, enveloping the subsequent stages and energies that pour out of its blissful expansion. In the centre, the Point (with the mental energies it contains) abides in a state of blissfully dynamic yet steady equilibrium. The Triangle is the Liṅga in the hexagram, the corners of which are the six sacred seats. The Point is the Liṅga in the Triangle. Śiva and Śakti are on the two sides of this Triangle and are Kula and Kaula.

37. Thus the dimensionless Point, the core of the transcendental Void in the midst of its divine lunar energies, enters the Void. This movement which is Stillness generates bliss that penetrates the yogi eneveloped in the Void of the rapture of pure, undistracted contemplation. This, the scriptures proclaim, is the Self.

38. The 'churning' of mental consciousness by the practice of the Yoga of Bliss leads to identification with the deity and realisation from which arises the Path along which flow the teachings and the scripture and the lineage of their transmission is generated. Thus YKh (2) explains:

Now I will explain the teaching concerning (spiritual) authority (adhikāra), just by knowing which the state of Great Penetration arises. When the plane of the Transmental has been attained and mind has reached a state beyond mind and the mind-stuff and consciousness have been churned in the division of the Churning Bhairava – the Self whose form is Bhairava, free of thought constructs and illusion – the form of Bhairavī and Bhairava shine, radiantly full of rays. Between those two (arises) the lineage, the Path of Meru, supreme (transcendent) and inferior (immanent).

*athātaḥ saṁpravakṣāmi adhikārasya nirṇayam [kh: ni * yaṁ]* I yena vijñātamātreṇa [kh: -na] mahāveśaḥ pravartate II unmanāyāḥ pade [k: pada] prāpte manaś conmanatāṁ [k: cānmanatāṁ; kh: manoconma-] gate I mathite [k: maghite] cittacaitanye bhede manthānabhairave II ātmānaṁ bhairavākāraṁ vikalpamohavarjitam I bhairavībhairavākāraṁ sphurantaṁ kiraṇākulam [k, kh: kiriṇā-] II tayor madhye [k, kh: tayo-] tu santānaṁ merumārgaṁ [k, kh: -mārga] parāparam I YKh (2) 30/1-4ab.

39. See above 3/10 and diagram in the note to verse 3/42.

40. There are two groups of six units (prakāra) listed here. The first of these is simply described in numerical terms in verse 26/21 as consisting of 4-5-6-

4-5-4 ‘divisions’ (bheda). This is the basic and most common grouping of the mantras that make up the Krama. It is the one of the Saṁvartāmaṇḍalasūtra (see above 1/1).

41. The first Sequence of Twenty-eight outlined in the following verses (22-25) consists of the following:
1) The four sacred seats.
2) The Five Siddhas.
3) The Sixfold Knowledge (possessed by the Five Siddhas)
4) The Four deities of the sacred seats.
5) The Five Mahantārīs.
6) The Kulakrama and the three Lineages (oli).

42. See below 26/37

43. See below 26/30cd-31.

44. Tisra (= Trisrotas) is the fifth sacred seat and it will come into existence in the future (cf. above 6/175-177ab and 6/189cd-190ab). The Ṭīkā adds this seat and Candrapīṭha but, in order to maintain the same basic set of four, they are deemed to pervade the others and so are not counted separately. The KuKh accepts the independent existence of both (38/3). The KuKh also refers to Koṅkaṇa as another sacred seat. Essentially, this is the Wheel of the Eight Mothers and is drawn separately (38/3).

45. The SamP lists these groups as follows:

Prakṛti, Prabhā, Māyā and Śāmbhavī: this is the group of four. Śakti, Icchā, Jñānī, Kriyā Mahantārikā is preceded by that. Śabda, Sparśa, Rasa, Rūpa, Gandha, and Vyāpinīni – this is the group of five consisting of the intellect (mahat) and the rest . . . Mukundrāja concludes by saying: (reckoned) together there are twenty-eight deities and their leader is Kubjā.
prakṛti 1 prabhā 2 māyā 3 śaṁbhavī 4 etac catuṣkāṁ | śaktiḥ 1 icchā 2 jñānī 3 kriyā 4 mahantāriketi etat pūrvakaṁ | śabda 1 sparśa 2 rasa 3 rūpa 4 gaṁdha 5 vyāpinīnitīdaṁ [-dhitaṁ] mahadādikaṁ pañcakam | [. . .] samāhāreṇāṣṭāviṁśatir devatāḥ [hāreṇā- tidevatā] | tadadhiṣṭhā kubjā |*

46. The six parts of this Krama are groups of 5-5-6-4-5-3, thus:
1) Five sacred seats.
2) Five goddesses of the sacred seats.
3) Six accomplishments linked to Prakṛti associated with objectivity.
4) Four energies linked to Māyā, here identified with Śāmbhavīśakti. The three energies form the triangular Yoni of Māyā.
5) The Pentad of Mahantārikā. This group is associated with five energies corresponding to the five sensations that are the subtle elements perceived by the five senses.
6) The Three Lineages. These are linked to the inner Self with which they are collectively identified.

47. As here, in the following extract from the Māyāstava of the KMT, the goddess is understood to be the energy of the vital breath which gives life to the individual soul. As such she is Kuṇḍalinī who moves in the channels (nāḍī) of the subtle body and resides in its inner centres. As the breath, she is present 'at the tip of the nose'. Notice that she is described here, as in this verse, as being similar to a thin thread and white, cool and subtle as a snowflake:

> (O goddess) located in the middle of Iḍā and Piṅgalā, shaped (like) a lotus fibre! You are in the centre of the Point, O goddess! Crooked one! Half Moon! You look like a crystal of snow and reside at the End of the Twelve (finger space)! You are called Umā! Gaurī, you are in the Heart! You shine with the brilliance of twelve suns! Void! You reside within the Void! You are called the Gander and support the vital breath! O Supreme Goddess, you are called the uvula (lambā) and you move to the right and the left! You are at the tip of the nose and are transcendent! You transport the thread in the centre! You are the line of the Heart! Supreme bliss, residing in the palate and the head! You are rubbed by the uvula of Sound and are endowed with the eight (yogic) qualities! Aroused one! You are gross and subtle! KMT 24/121-125cd

48. We have seen that the Divine Liṅga is the goddess in the form of the Point (bindu). Here it is identified with the individual who is, therefore, essentially one with the goddess, who gives him life and being.

49. The Knot of Brahmā is Kuṇḍalinī who, 'facing downwards' and 'crooked', is located below the navel between the Wheel of the Self-supported and the Wheel Full of Gems (7/39cd-40ab). Kuṇḍalinī resides here in her lower, sleeping form as the downward-facing syllable AIṀ (60/30). As such it is identified with the energy of the first of the five deities of the Praṇavas. When the same Knot is above in the Triangle in the End of the Twelve, this is Kuṇḍalinī in her upper raised form. (see note to 7/40cd-41ab). This is her supreme form on the 'supreme plane of existence' (64/43) that extends through all the energies of the letters from A to Śiva (Ha) (19/84). Thus the Knot of Brahmā is both 'supreme' (para) and 'inferior' (apara) (60/31-32ab). I suppose, therefore, that Tisra is the sacred seat located above the head, not on the forehead. But this may be an inconsistency. Note that above we were told that the Seat of the Moon (canrapīṭha) is also on the forehead (26/4).

50. Kubjikā, whose seed-syllable is AIṀ, is the Yoginī (see above, 8/42ab).

51. The three divisions are the corners of the Triangle. When the energy of the goddess moves to the right and the left, she impels the movement of the ascending and descending breath. When Rudra's energy moves in the middle, that is, straight up and down, the breath and the phenomenal, fettered state that the other movement sustains dissolves away, as does the outer breath. Thus this energy allows the Self to rest from the strain and fatigue of the activity of fettered existence.

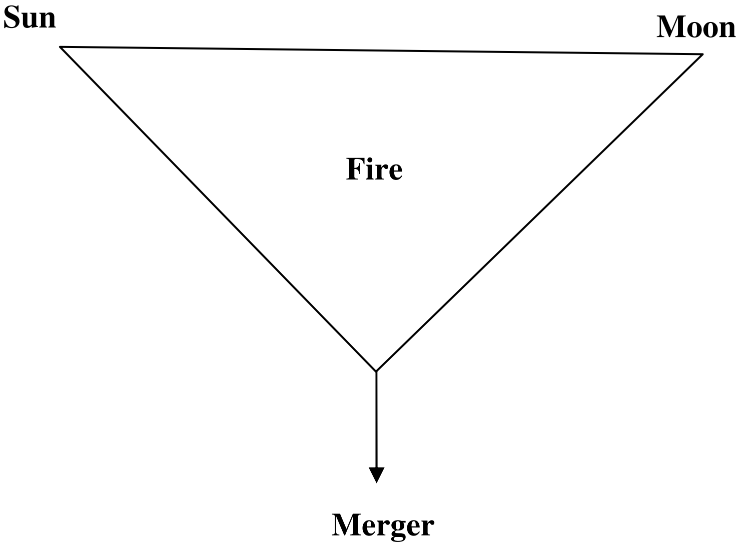
Diagram 1. The Triangle of Sun, Moon and Fire



52. Rudra's energy is the Command. See 26/45cd-46ab.

53. Kula is the aggregate of the five sacred seats, that is, the Triangle. Kaula is the aggregate of the five seats, that is, Kula, enveloped in the energy of Śiva and Śakti.

54. Cf. above, 4/28cd-31ab and note.

55. 'Atirakta' could also be translated as 'passionate'.

56. The Tree symbolizes the niṣkala aspect of the deity, and its shade, the sakala. The Tree is the Point and the shade the maṇḍala around it. (YKh (2) 11/18cd: vṛkṣaṁ tu sakalaṁ vidyāt chāyā tasyaiva niṣkalā)

57. According to ṢSS 25/66 ff. and commentary the Wheel of the Moon consists of the vowels. The Wheel of the Sun consists of the consonants from Ka to Ma and the Wheel of Fire those from Ya to Ha. See note to 11/45-46ab. The goddess is the 'shade' that is the energizing presence in the solar and lunar breath reflected in the energies of the letters, which are those of the body, mind and all emanation. Within the Star, that is the Point in the centre, the goddess is in her undifferentiated, formless aspect which radiates out as the energizing 'shade'.

58. There are at least two other hymns called 'Māyāstava' in the Kubjikā sources. The first is the Śivaśaktisamarasamahāmāyāstava of the KMT (24/114-141), which is reproduced in the KuKauM (5/192cd-219). Another Māyāstava is chapter nineteen of the Ambāmatasaṁhitā. See intro. vol. 2, p. 21 ff. for a translation of the first of these two and and ibid. appendix 1, for the second. This Māyāstava is reproduced and glossed in the SamP (fl. 9a). It has been collated with our text and the comments by Mukundarāja put in the notes.

Mukundarāja visualizes the setting of the Māyāstava to be Kubjā's mountain. She lives there with her attendants, who are embodiments of her epithets, in sacred bathing sites along the Kubjā Ganges river that flows down it. Thus he prefaces his presentation of the Māyāstava saying:

First of all, one should set forth from one's home and go to Kubjā's Ganges on Kubjā's mountain in order to perform the pilgrimage of the gods who are her limbs and attendants. (Then) having completed the pilgrimage concluding with (her) main sacred site (mūlasthāna), return. There are as many sacred seats of the gods (devapīṭha) and their sacred bathing sites (tīrthaka) as there are names (of deities) in this hymn.

tatra prathamataḥ kubjācale kubjagaṅgāyāṁ tadaṅgaparivāradevayātrārthaṁ svagṛhād gacchet mūlasthānāntaṁ yātrāsamāptikaṁ kṛtvā samāgamet | etatstotre yāvanto nāmāni tāvanta eva devapīṭhās tattīrthakāś ca |

59. The SamP explains that: Having gone there one should worship (darśayet) on each of the mountain peaks (on which these aspects of the goddess reside), beginning with the sacred seat of Mahāmāyā up to that of the Little Mother of the Gods (Tridaśamātṛkā). (1) The sacred seat of Mahāmāyā is the sacred bathing place of Mahāmāyā. It is where the demon (asura) was uprooted, that is, was killed etc. (2) The goddess Ajiteśvarī (The Unconquered One resides) on the Ajita (Unconquered) mountain. (3) (Then) in the course of circumambulating the main sacred place (mūlasthāna) (one comes to the goddess) who is Radiant Energy (tejarūpiṇī). There (in that case) the word 'tejas' is thematic (akārānta). (4) (Then comes the goddess who) resides in the centre of the Circle of the Moon. (5) By (invoking the next goddess as) 'you who are sound' (what is implied is that) she sings. O you who reside in the Void (of Ultimate Reality)! is the sixth name.

mahāmāyāpīṭhārambhakatvena tridaśamātṛkāntaṁ yāvat tattatparvataśekhareṣu gatvā darśayet | mahāmāyāpīṭhaṁ [-pīṭhaḥ] mahāmāyātīrthaḥ | mahāmāyāsuro yatroddhāro ghātaḥ [yātaḥ] ity ādi | 1 | ajitācale ajiteśvarī devī | 2 | mūlasthānasya prādakṣiṇyena gatiḥ [gati] tejarūpiṇī | 3 | tatra tejaśabdo [teja-] akārāntapāṭhaḥ [akāranta-] | somamaṇḍalamadhyasthā | 4 | saṁbodhanāt nādarūpe | 5 | gītaṁ [gītaḥ] karoti | khamāśrite iti ṣaṣṭhaṁ [ṣaṣṭha] nāma | 6 |

Thus these vocatives refer to as many aspects of the goddess, situated on mountains arranged in a circle. As the initiate moves from one to another beginning with Mahāmāyā, he salutes the goddess who resides there addressing her in the vocative.

60. See above 3/18-19.

61. The SamP explains that the nine vocatives also in this verse refer to as many tutelary goddesses of the sacred seats (navapīṭhādhidevīgaṇāḥ).

62. See above 6/212-218.

63. According to the SamP, the four vocatives in this verse refer to the descent of the goddess into the four sacred seats. The fifty sacred seats of the goddess (devīpīṭha) are worshipped there by uttering the corresponding fifty letters of the alphabet each with a nasalizing anusvāra thus: AṀ devīpīṭhe ĀṀ devīpīṭhe and so on (catuḥpīṭhāvatāraḥ | aṁ devīpīṭha āṁ [iṁ] devīpīṭha ity ādikaṁ pañcāśatpīṭhakān ca [paṁcātpīṭhakān ca] tatra darśayet pūjayet |)

64. According to the SamP, six sacred seats are implicitly mentioned here as are the presiding seats (ādhipīṭha) of the fifty letters conjoined with visarga, Vāgbhava (AIṀ) and the rest. (ṣaṭ pīṭhāḥ | visargavāgbhavādiyukta-pañcāśadvarṇādhipīṭhāś ca |)

65. SamP: One should know that Kubjikā, the Supreme Goddess (parameśvarī), is the main goddess (mūladevī) in the five sacred seats (pañcapīṭhānte mūladevī kubjikā parameśvarī jñeyā).

66. The SamP simply comments: 'there are the five' (pañcaiva), thereby implying, I suppose, that the five vocative appellations of the goddess in this verse refer to her aspects in the five sacred seats contained in the Yogapīṭha, which here means the Kramamaṇḍala, that is, the Saṁvartāmaṇḍala (see below note to 27/29-30ab). Located in the End of the Twelve beyond the Cavity of Brahmā, it is the base of Suṣumṇā, which does not originate in the body but outside and beyond it. This is the location of emission (visarga) (Cf. ṢSS 1/29-32ab and ibid. 28/15cd-16ab quoted in the notes to 2/18 and 7/47, respectively). Thus established in the male deity, she generates the universe and so is the mother of creation. By virtue of the union with her consort and the emission that it brings about, she is full of the bliss of her own essential nature and, as the mistress of the God of the gods, she resides in the seed-syllable AIṀ and the others in the maṇḍala formed by the emission of her energy, empowering them in their cosmogonic functions.

67. Some MSs read tvayi 'within you'. The Saṁvartāmaṇḍalasūtra says that the goddess who is the power of bliss in the centre of the maṇḍala is 'pleasingly horrific' (subhīmā). The SamP says that: By adding the word 'durga' – 'difficult to approach' (to the words in this verse we obtain the following epithets of the goddess. Thus she is) horrifying because she is difficult to approach (durgabhīmā). (She is the goddess whose) maṇḍala is difficult to approach (durgamaṇḍalā) (in the) Age of Strife that is difficult to approach. (She is a) whirpool (of energy) that is difficult to approach (durgāvartā). (She is also) difficult to approach (in her motionless aspect) free of rotation (durganirāvartā). (She is) merger that is difficult to approach and repose that is difficult to approach (durgaśabdayojanato durgabhīmā durgamaṇḍalā durgakaliḥ durgāvarttā durganirāvarttā durgalayā durgaviśrāmā ca).

68. The SamP simply says that are 'seven sacred seats' (sapta pīṭhāḥ) here.

69. According to the SamP this verse refers to the guardians of eight sacred seats (aṣṭapīṭhapa). It appears, however, that the text itself in this and the previous verse along with the first line of the next refers to the goddesses in five sacred seats, thus:

1) Oṁkāra – Maṅgalā 2) Jālandhara – Māyā 3) Pūrṇagiri – Adhomukhī 4) Kāmarūpa - Kāmeśvarī (Klinnā) 5) Ujjain – Kālī. The goddess Māyā, identified with the energy called Bhairavī, is present in all the five sacred seats.

70. This is Arbuda, that is, mount Abu in Rajasthan. See reference in the ŚM above in note on 11/39 ff. and intro. vol. 1, p. 561 concerning the 'half sacred seat'.

71. SamP: Everywhere the (deities of the) fifty letters are present in the names and are conjoined with each of them; thus, (for these two reasons,) the corresponding secondary sacred seats should be considered to be (in the names).

sarvatra nāmasu pañcāśadvarṇatas tattannāmasaṁyojanatas tattadupapīṭhakāś ca mantavyāḥ |

72. SamP: There are are many types (of mantras formed) with the Five Praṇavas at the beginning and the words 'full mother' (pūrṇāmbā) at the end (pañcapraṇavapūrvakena pūrṇāmbā śabdāntena bahavo bhedāḥ |)

73. Concerning the six Yoginīs, to which a seventh has been added, see chapter sixty-three.

74. These are the 'unstruck sounds' that the Fire burning in the centre of the maṇḍala makes. The Fire is a form of the goddess, thus the Unstruck Sounds are her emanations.

75. Straining to extract the meaning he wants to find, Mukundarāja comments on the word 'saṁghaṭṭa' – 'conjunction' – which he first reduces to 'ghaṭṭa' – meaning 'bank of a body of water used to enter it to wash and bathe' - as 'the presiding sacred seat of a sacred bathing site' (tīrthādhipīṭhaḥ).

76. According to the SamP, the mantras indicated here are sacred seats (pīṭhaka). They are: 1) KṢĀṀ BHEDINĪ 2) KṢĀṀ KṢĀM BHEDINĪ 3) KLĪṀ BHEDINĪ 4) KṢĀM KṢĀṀ KLĪṀ BHEDINĪ

77. We were told above that the goddess is 'within the Lord' (26/62). In this verse we are told that the Lord is Haṁsa, that is, the embodiment of the Unstruck Sound of the inner vital breath. The goddess present within him as his energy is his female counterpart, Haṁsī (see intro. vol. 1, p. 360 ff and 372 ff.).

According to the SamP, the mantras implied here are: YĀṀ VĀSINĪ, RĀṀ VĀSINĪ, LĀṀ VĀSINĪ, and VĀṀ VASINĪ – these are the manifest (aspects). (Along with them are) AṀ VYĀPIKĪ, IṀ VYĀPIKĪ, and so on, along with the fifty letters and their secondary seats.

yāṁ vāsinī rāṁ vāsinī lāṁ vāsinī vāṁ vāsinīti vyaktāḥ | aṁ vyāpikī iṁ vyāpikī ity ādikāḥ paṁcāśadvarṇās [-varṇa] tadupapīṭhāś ca |

Thus it appears that, according to Mukundarāja, the short vowels are the 'letters of pervasion' the goddess pervades.

Here, incidentally, Mukundarāja remarks that: sacred seats are stones whose form is mantra. And from the inner spiritual point of view (adhyātmapakṣa) they are realities (mantrākāraśilāsvarūpāḥ (-rūpa) pīṭhāḥ | adhyātmapakṣatvenārthāś [-rthaś] ca |).

78. These, the first three Praṇavas, are the seeds of creation, persistence and destruction, respectively. They are also the three Peak seed-syllables (kūṭa) in the corners of the goddess's Triangle, which is accordingly called Trikūṭa. See note to 7/35-36ab.

79. HRĪṀ, the energy of persistence, is called the seed of Māyā. Māyā is commonly identified with Nature (prakṛti) and so possesses its three qualities (guṇa) of sattva, rajas and tamas. At the higher, transcendental level, Māyā is Mahāmāyā, the energy of the Transmental embodied in the goddess who is the god's consort.

80. Presumably these are the seed-syllables of the three goddess mentioned here. As Gajajihvā and Vidyujjihvā are two of the goddesses of the five sacred seats (see above 26/27), perhaps Gajeśvarī also presides over another one of them. Maybe Bhagodbhavā presides over another seat or, as Māyā, is the embodiment of the three collectively.

81. We have seen that the sixth Wheel, which is that of the Command, is situated between the eyebrows and is where the yogi experiences for a while the Fourth state of consciousness. Above that, is the state called 'Beyond the Fourth', which is that of complete liberation without possibility of falling. Accordingly, 'by abandoning the six (Wheels)' the yogi achieves liberation (36/110cd) in the seventh which is the Circle of the Void (25/19) (śūnyamaṇḍala). This is where the Yoni in the Supreme Void is located (57/14cd-15ab). In 'the seventh', the yogi realises eternal bliss (25/28). In some places we find that the seventh plane is that of repose while on the eighth merger takes place and that this is the Abode of Bliss, which is Śiva's consciousness (61/81), the 'flawless' (65/9). However, here there is no direct reference to the Six Wheels. But even so, this is not anomalous, as even when there is no such direct link established to the Six Wheels, liberation is said to be achieved on a seventh plane that is attained by abandoning the six lower ones. On the fifth plane the mind is conquered, so the sixth, presumably, is that of the repose of the Fourth State through which the yogi rises to realise the goddess Raudrī in the eternal abode of the Yoni and so, beyond that, attains the supreme plane which is the seventh (62/80). This is the empowered plane of grace which is that of Śiva, the Skyfarer (66/82). Another example of a set of 'six plus one' is found in the following passage in YKh (1):

> The Śiva principle is the first. Sound is another and is the second. The third is the End of Sound. Śakti is another and is the fourth. The Pervasive One is said to be the fifth. The sixth is the plane of oneness (samarasa). By abandoning (these) six, there is liberation in the seventh (plane) where she, the Transmental, is the supreme (goddess – Parā). Liberation is the plane beyond (the differentiated) energies (kalātītapada). One should contemplate it constantly at the end of power (śaktyante, that is, the Transmental). (The reality) beyond being (bhāvātīta) is incomparable. It is the great ocean within the End of the Twelve. It is taught to be the Western Tradition, the House which is said to be the City of the Moon (Candrapura).

śivatattvaṁ tu prathamaṁ nādam anyaṁ [k g: -nya] dvitīyakam [k: -kā] |
tṛtīyaṁ caiva nādāntaṁ [k: nācāṁtaṁ] śaktir anyac caturthakam |
vyāpinī pañcamaṁ [k: yaṁvake; g: pañcakam] proktaṁ ṣaṣṭhaṁ [g: ṣaṣṭaṁ] samarasaṁ [g: samaraṁsam] padam |
ṣaṭtyāgāt [k: ṣagadvyāgāt] saptame [k: same] muktir yatra sā unmanā parā |
kalātītapadaṁ mokṣaṁ [g: mokṣa] śaktyante [g: śaktānte] bhāvayet sadā |
bhāvātītam [g: bhāva-] anaupamyaṁ dvādaśānte [k: -śāṁti] mahodadhiḥ [k: -dadhi] |
nirdiṣṭaṁ [k: nirdiṣṭhaṁ; g: nirddiṣṭa] paścimāmnāyaṁ [g: -māmnāye] gṛhaṁ candrapuraṁ [k g: -ra] smṛtam | YKh (1) 43/23cd-26

I understand the expression 'at the end of power' to mean the 'at the end of the Transmental' which is, indeed, Śiva's power (śakti). If this is correct, then it appears that this is a scheme of eight, rather than seven levels. The first six are the 'six parts' which earlier in the text are said to be sustained by ŚuddhaVidyā. This appears to be the Transmental, as a little futher ahead we read that: 'In terms of emanation, the stainless reality (nirañjaka) possesses six parts (ṣaṭprakāra) within the Transmental' (sṛṣṭinyāye unmanāyāṁ ṣatprakāraṁ nirañjakam). The attainment of this level is a form of liberation 'with (differentiated) energy' (sakala). Beyond it is what is here said to be 'beyond being'. This is liberation 'without (differentiated) energy' (niṣkala). Here the two forms are not distinguished. By attaining the seventh level, one attains both; and so, we can say that there are only seven levels, not eight. See intro. vol. 1, p. 375 ff..

82. The SamP comments: There are many mountains of the nature of mantra on Kailāśa (kailāśe mantrasvarūpācalā bahuvaḥ |

83. The five seed-syllables of these two verses are those of the Five Jewels, concerning which see below, chapter 62.

84. SamP: And each is the dwelling of a sacred seat (tat tat pīṭhanivāsaṁ [-nivāsaś ca] |).

85. The SamP reads 'nandase' – '(you) give delight' in the place of syandase – '(you) melt'. Accordingly the SamP comments that the names of the goddess are: the mover of the universe and the one who delights the universe and so on (jagaccalā jagannandanā ity ādayaś ca |).

86. See above, note to 26/75.

87. SamP: Having gone to the (places) in which Kulakubjikā, Mātaṅginīkubjā, Kubjavakrā and the rest (reside, one returns) again to the abode in the main place (kulakubjikā mātaṅginī kubjā kubjavakrā ity ādiṣu gatvā punar mūlasthāne nivāsaḥ). Here, we may add, the goddess resides as the Full One in her most complete form as the goddess of the Vidyā in her maṇḍala. Here she is not a royal goddess or a brahminical one. Instead she is the goddess of outcaste sweepers, who is worshipped here in this her supreme form. See below chapter sixty-eight (1-20) where the visualized form of the goddess in this aspect is described.

88. Here we are told that the goddess originated from the Sequence of Twenty-eight. This is the Krama of the Saṁvartāsūtra which is, indeed, the first one taught in the Kubjikā Tantras. Here in the KuKh and in the YKh, the main Krama consists of twenty-seven mantras. See above 3/54 and note.

89. According to the KMT, Aṭṭahāsa is the first of the twenty-four sacred sites worshipped in the Pīṭhastava (see table 17 in appendix 8 of KuKh vol. 4). But it is the second place she visits after her tour of the sacred seats (KMT 2/115). See above 16/33cd-34ab.

90. See above note on 26/49.

91. The SamP simply comments that she is the goddess 'who resides in each of the limbs' (tattadaṅgavāsinī [tattadaga-])

92. The SamP adds: 'and (you) reside in each of the sacred bathing sites and at the confluence of each river' (tattattīrthavāsinī ca tattannadīsaṁgame).

93. SamP: In this way it is the tradition of the mother (evaṁ mātṛsaṁpradāyaḥ [mātrā-]).

94. Mukundarāja enjoins that at the conclusion of the pilgrimage around the sacred sites on Kailāsa: 'Having seen (and worshipped) the mothers of the gods, one should make an offering in the Cave which is Kubjā's place in the main site (tridaśamātṛkādarśanaṁ kṛtvā mūlasthāne kubjāsthale guhāyāṁ samārpayet [-yat]).

NOTES OF THE SANSKRIT TEXT OF CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

1. क्, ग्: सिद्ध Verses 27/1-2a are virtual repeats of 8/1-2a. This verse is repeated below as 59/1. 8/1a reads: देवि सिद्धिस्त्वं मे.

2. All MSs except घ्, छ्: उमे स्वामि; see above, note to 5/40c and 4/38c.

3. झ्: –नाथो 4. घ्: कादि; छ्: काहि; झ्: क्रुहि. Cf. this line with 59/2ab. 5. All MSs except घ्, छ्, झ्: + ते
6. KuKh 8: मेरुप्रस्तारमुत्तमम्; KuKh 59: सप्ताविंशद्विविक्रमम् 7. छ्: श्रीवक्रोवाच
8. घ्, छ्: –त; ङ्, ज्, झ्: –त: 9. Missing in MS झ् up to पूर्वक्रमे
10. छ्: योसो 11. All MSs: अनादिम– 12. छ्, ज्: –थ:
13. छ्: भूर्लोके 14. छ्: पूज्योसो
15. Missing in MS ख् up to पञ्चमं. ग्, घ्, ङ्, ज्: –मृत्य; छ्: –मास्त्रित्य
16. घ्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: –स्थ: 17. All MSs: पूज्यं 18. ज्: सृणु
19. M → N. 20. घ्, छ्: प्रसूचितं
21. घ्, छ्: अकारो चतुरा; all other MSs: अकारो चतुरो
22. MS ख् resumes here. 23. घ्: सर्कयक्षतप; छ्: लकयक्षत *
24. ख्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: –उखं 25. घ्: विषया भवेङ्; छ्: विपर्यभयेत्
26. All MSs except ख्, ग्: उ 27. ङ्: छ 28. छ्: सृष्त्या
29. तम् as often happens, replaces तत् here. 30. छ्: वाधिकारयो:
31. All MSs: ज्ञानायं. M → N. The regular ज्ञानमिदम् would not fit the metre.
32. ख्: कौटी; all other MSs: कोटी 33. घ्: सुरवोरिणी; all other MSs: सुरवारिणी 34. All MSs except घ्, छ्: उदयं

35. M → N. See above, note to 6/115c. As usual the items in this list are, for the most part, made neuter.

36. छ्: विमलोघञ् 37. घ्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: –न्त 38. छ्, ज्: मनु
39. छ्: पूजनेद् 40. MS झ् resumes here.
41. छ्: अर्चयेद् 42. Anusvāra has been dropped for the metre. I understand the intended sense here to be: पञ्चविधं गुरुम् अर्चयेत् 43. All MSs: ईशे– 44. घ्, छ्: वाधिकारे; झ्: –रे. M → N. See above, note to 1/2c. 45. घ्, छ्: सिद्धा

46. This is a list of five items to be worshipped, समय is therefore not part of a compound but its ending has been dropped to keep the fifth syllable short. पूज्य–, or the like, should to be supplied for each word. 47. छ्: –न्न

48. Presumably गुरुमण्डलम् is the substantive here.

49. All MSs except घ्, छ्: –प्रासाद– 50. ख्, ग्, ज्: पंचभि:

51. क्: –गतान्; all other MSs: –गता. The correct form would be अन्तरङ्गगतानि. I have emended assuming an irregular concord between substantive and adjectives, which occurs occasionally in this text, rather than accept the reading of most of the MSs and assume that the last syllable has been dropped for the metre.

52. All MSs: पूज्य. IC. 53. ज्: चतुर्थ 54. छ्: तु

55. All MSs: श्रीकण्ठादि पिङ्गलान्तं IM 5 + 6. By reversing the word order here only the fifth syllable would be irregular. 56. घ्: मध्यान्ते

57. क्, ग्: –कालो– 58. छ्: कुर्याद्
59. All MSs: आराध्यस्यापि 60. छ्: कुर्याद्
61. क्: सुपूर्णतन्मना:; all other MSs: संपूर्णतन्मना:

62. आरात्रिकम् is the usual form of this word. Cf. 30/28a
63. M → N. 64. क्, ग्: साष्टंचगं. साष्टाङ्गप्रणामेन has been contracted to साष्टाङ्गम् 65. प्रणमेत् or the like needs to be supplied.
66. M → N, IM 6 + 7. See above, note to 6/115c.
67. Sandhi need not take place between pādas. 68. All MSs: सर्व
69. छ्: पूज्य 70. ग्, झ्: शुर्द्ध 71. IM 6.
72. लिखित्वा would be the regular form.
73. As we have already noted, the adverb of manner formed from a numeral with the suffix –धा frequently replaces the adverb of type formed by suffixing –विध:. Here in this peculiar compound both forms are combined. Cf.
28/105d. 74. Missing in MS ख्.
75. ख्, ग्: त्यधोदितं; घ्: त्रिधादितं 76. क्, ख्, ग्: लिख. Cf. 27/29b.
77. The following replaces the end of this line in MS झ्: चक्रनिर्मुक्तं कौमारस्य क्रमं
लिखेत्। 78. घ्, छ्: ठ–; all other MSs: च–
79. All MSs: मेखलात्रिरवतारितम् cf. the form त्रिरावर्तम् in 28/91b. See above, note to 3/119d. 80. ङ्: चयु:कोणं 81. घ्, छ्: + चैव 82. All MSs: संलिख्य 83. ख्, ङ्, ज्: मु–; घ्, छ्: सुमूत्रितम्; all other MSs except क्, ग्: सुमुद्रितम्
84. All MSs except घ्, छ्: षट्कोणं–; all MSs: निर्मुक्तम्
85. क्: अष्टारं–; all MSs: निर्मुक्तं 86. See above, note to 1/5b and 10/14a.
87. तथा वदामि, or the like, is required to complete the syntax.
88. A plural ending is required here. 89. All MSs: प्रथमा
90. छ्: –यज * मारभेत् 91. IM 5. 92. क्, ख्, ग्: –मुर्त्तमं
93. ख्, झ्: कौमार * 94. The elements in the following list presumably agree with न्यासम् (M → N).
95. A possessive is required here.
96. All MSs except घ्, छ्: षष्टमम्
97. खेचरं agrees with न्यासम् M → N. 98. All MSs: वक्ष्य
99. क्, ग्: प्रमस्या– 100. छ्: –स्या
101. M → N. See above, note to 7/9d. 102. छ्: चतुर्थकं
103. M → N. See above, note to 1/2c.
104. M → N. See above, note to 7/12d. 105. All MSs: न्यासं
106. क्, घ्: प्रवेश्य; all other MSs: प्रवश्य 107. IM 6 + 7.
108. क्, ख्, ग्: नेत्रेषु; all other MSs: नेत्रे *
109. The regular form – शिरसा – would make the sixth syllable short.
Thus, in accord with the general principle that nouns ending in a consonant can be treated as thematic nouns, शिर– replaces शिरस्, as frequently happens when the metre demands it.
110. ज्: षद्विध–. कृत्वा, or the like, needs to be supplied.
111. All MSs: –विद्या 112. All MSs: तेनासौ 113. All MSs: करालाख्या
114. All MSs: –विद्या 115. All MSs except घ्, छ्: द्वितीयकं
116. IM 5. 117. I take the order of the members of this compound to be reversed. 118. घ्: –नाभिसंस्मृतम्; छ्: –संस्तृतं 119. All MSs: स्थापिते. An imperative, or the like, is required here to complete the intended syntax. 120. See above, note to 8/13b.

121. घ्, छ्: एक 122. छ्: यूजां
123. क्: आत्मसन्तनौ; ख्, झ्: आत्मनंततौ
124. छ्: ष्व – उल्यान्. Cf. 27/66a and 28/106b. 125. M → N.
126. Missing in MS छ् 127. घ्: पुष्पसौगन्ध–; छ्: पुष्पंसौगन्ध–
128. ख्, ङ्, ज्: कुर्याद् कानं; ग्: कुर्याद्धारं; ङ्: कुर्याद्धानं; घ्, ज्: कुर्याद् कारं; छ्: कुर्यात् कानं; झ्: कुयाद् कानं. M → N. 129. All MSs: –मिश्रमादौ 130. घ्: –क्रमे
131. क्: * * –स्तथा; ग्: * * तथा; घ्: पुष्पै:; all other MSs: पद्मै:–
132. छ्: दैशाचारेण; all MSs except घ्: दशाचारेण 133. ज्: लध्वस्तु; झ्: लव्धस्तु
134. घ्, ज्: सकटैश्च; छ्: सकटकै–; all other MSs: सकटैश्च
135. क्, ग्: शंकुतै द्रुतै:; ख्: शंकुत द्रुतै:; छ्: संकुचितैद्रुमै:; ज्: शंकुरितैद्रुतै:; झ्: शंकुतद्रुतै:
136. क्, ग्: मनस्यापि 137. One could argue that the simple emendation पृथगाज्ञाक्रमम् would be better then leaving the text as it is. However, I prefer not to emend given the common occurrence of hiatuses of this sort throughout the text. Indeed, here, it seems, is another striking example of how the Sanskrit of this text tends to avoid sandhi, even when, as in this case, sandhi makes no difference to the metre.
138. घ्, छ्: वैष्णवा; ङ्: विक्रमा; all other MSs: विक्रषा
139. See above, note to 1/4a. 140. छ्: –पाण्येक्ष–
141. All MSs except क्: –त्रां 142. घ्, छ्: मनीषिणा:; all other MSs: मनीषिणा
143. IM 6. 144. घ्: –मण्यं–; छ्: –मणाम्
145. All MSs except घ्, छ्: मेकं 146. छ्, ज्: –ठं
147. घ्, छ्: प्राप्त 148. घ्, छ्: –मा 149. छ्: वर्ज्यो
150. All MSs: एष
151. All MSs except ङ्: उपलि–. Apparently, the genitive ending of अक्षमालाया: has been contracted to that of the instrumental for the metre. See above, note to 10/47d. 152. All MSs: स च 153. छ्: –नैव
154. छ्: मन्त्र. M → N. 155. छ्: स्व– तुल्या–. Cf. above 27/51b.
156. A genitive is required here to complete the syntax. The sense is आत्मनो ध्यानं कुर्यात्. See below 27/67bc.
157. घ्, ङ्, छ्: –त्रिकोण–. See above, note to 3/119d.
158. क्, ग्: –विद्याया; all other MSs: –विद्यया
159. छ्, ज्: –शसंज्ञाया; all other MSs except झ्: –रिंश–
160. All MSs: –ममनामांकितं 161. छ्: भैरव * ज्ञे 162. ख्: –परमेश्वरे
163. ङ्, छ्, झ्: अंवा–. See note to the colophon of chapter one.
164. छ्: क्रम * * * मण्डला–

NOTES OF THE TRANSLATION OF CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

1. The Ṭīkā (fl. 83a) also says that there are three forms of the maṇḍala. One is gross. This is the external maṇḍala 'with form' (sākāra) onto which the mantras of the Krama are projected. The second form of the maṇḍala is subtle. This is within the body. The third is supreme. This is the maṇḍala which is reality itself (tattvabhūta).

The Maṇḍala of the Teachers is described twice in our text. Once in this chapter and again in the first part of chapter forty-eight. The two are similar but not the same. The existence of two maṇḍalas appears to be recognised below (27/9) where we are told that the one described in this chapter is 'the second of the two maṇḍalas that have authority'. The syllable Navātman, as the sonic form of Bhairava who is Kubjikā's consort and the first teacher, is important in both maṇḍalas as are the Five Siddhas who embody the Five Praṇavas. However, the latter are the main object of worship in this one. Instead, the primary object of worship in the Maṇḍala of the Teachers in chapter forty-eight is linked to Navātman. A few verses there, probably drawn from the Śrīmatottara (KuKh 48/12-14ab = ŚM 23/38-40ab), outline how it is projected into that maṇḍala. The procedure is described at great length in chapter twenty-three of the Śrīmatottara and the Ṭīkā, which is based on it. See appendix 2 of intro. vol. 2, where the relevent sections in the Ṭīkā and the ŚM are presented in full.

The projection of the Five Siddhas, who are the core of the maṇḍala described here, into the Wheels of the body (27/17cd-19) may perhaps be an indication that this, 'the second maṇḍala', is the internal one, whereas the one in chapter forty-eight is the outer one.

2. These lines briefly describe the composite form of Bhairava who is the First Teacher worshipped in the centre of the Gurumaṇḍala from whom the other teachers emanate. The 'five forms' of Bhairava are the Five Siddhas also called the Five Nāthas. These should not be confused with the five Siddhas who preside over the five sacred seats (see above 8/112-114ab). The 'five forms' of Bhairava in this case are the Five Siddhas who preside over the five gross elements as the agents of emanation in these five Kulas (see above 25/41-45ab and KMT 3/94ab-110). The disciples of the Five Siddhas are listed below in chapter 43 (43/4-30). These five are worshipped in the centre of the maṇḍala (see note to 48/14cd-16ab) and, as we shall see (27/17cd-19), in the five Wheels in the body of the worshipper.

The sixteen limbs of Bhairava are the descendents of the Sixteen Nāthas (see above 7/77 ff. and below chapter 56). The ninefold form consists of the Nine Nāthas who embody the letters of Navātman. The Fifty Rudras are the fifty letters of the alphabet. Bhairava resides in this form in all mantras.

Only the Three Siddhas are missing in this setup, otherwise it would be the same as the one in chapter 25, which describes how the Siddhas in groups of three, five, sixteen and nine are distributed in the body and consciousness.

3. The edition and meaning of verses 8 to 12 are uncertain.

4. The five gross elements correspond to the Five Praṇavas. See above note to 3/99.

5. The Seat of Knowledge (vidyāpīṭha) in Śaivasiddhānta ritual is the place where the scripture is placed and worshipped. It is on the west side of the deity (ŚSP I p. 227). In this case, the Seat of Knowledge is the Kramamaṇḍala (cf. below 27/29-30ab). The Maṇḍala of the Teachers is normally drawn in front of it, as it is here. Thus the Ṭīkā (fl. 83a) enjoins: One should worship the Kramamaṇḍala behind the Maṇḍala of the Teachers (gurumaṇḍalapṛṣṭhe kramamaṇḍalaṁ pūjayet). The Gurumaṇḍala is drawn in front of the scripture and in front of the teacher (see below, 37/69-70ab). Clearly, as two maṇḍalas are located in the same place, the texts imply that they are the same. Indeed, the ritual procedures taught in the Kubjikā Tantras do not require that a separate maṇḍala be drawn for the Seat of Knowldge. The triangular core of the Kramamaṇḍala serves this function, thus 'Vidyāpīṭha' is one of its many names.

6. See above, 25/5-7ab.

7. The Maṇḍala of the Teachers is enclosed by a square. Flowers are placed in the corners of it while reciting the first four Praṇavas. The fifth Praṇava is recited whilst placing a fifth flower in the centre of the maṇḍala. See above, note to 11/28cd-29, also below 48/5cd-10. The Praṇavas are presented in code above as a single Kaulikā Vidyā (8/87cd-107, 109-110ab).

8. Navātman is worshipped in conjuction with the Five Praṇavas in the Maṇḍala of the Teachers. Possibly, therefore, the 'bliss of Navātman' may be conjoined to the fifth Praṇava HSAUḤ and the two considered to be a single unit. But it is more likely that Navātman has replaced the fifth Praṇava. An example of this substitution is found below (see 28/75-78ab). There too the seed-syllables are associated with the Five Siddhas.

9. This Gurumaṇḍala may be worshipped externally in the teacher's sandals. The places where its inner counterparts are worshipped along the axis of the body are listed here can be tabulated as follows.

10. Table of the Contents of the Gurumaṇḍala

Directions	Units	Elements	Syllables	Location	Siddhas
NE	Maṇḍala	Earth	AIṀ	Foundation	Śrīkaṇṭha
SE	Authority	Water	HRĪṀ	Yoni	Śaṅkara
SW	Siddhas	Fire	ŚRĪṀ	Navel	Ananta
NW	Rule	Air	KHPHREṀ	Unstruck Sound	Sādākhya
Centre	Yoginī	Space	HSKṢMLVRYŪṀ	Throat	Piṅgala
(Beyond)				Head	Ādinātha

Ādinātha is, presumably, Navātman Bhairava who is worshipped in the centre (this is the apex) of the maṇḍala. But if this is the case one wonders why Navātman has replaced the fifth Praṇava. Perhaps the reason for this is that each of these are worshipped with a mantra that includes the Five Praṇavas of which the fifth has been replaced with Navātman, as well as Navātman itself – as is the case in the other version of the Gurumaṇḍala described in chapter 48.

10. Offerings made to the teacher are placed on the maṇḍala. The injunction to never leave the maṇḍala empty thus amounts to saying that the disciple should worship the teacher constantly, as he should the deity. Moreover, he should not be stingy or dishonest in any way and always respect the teachers and the deities (see below 36/19cd-22ab).

The Ambāmatasaṁhitā admonishes:

> Once the maṇḍala of all the venerable ones has been fashioned one should never (leave) the maṇḍala empty if one desires the most excellent success. If a greedy person, having drunk (his fill of the liquor offering), empties the maṇḍala (of the offerings), he who has (thus) insulted the Yoginīs is cursed there (not blessed). If the sacrificial offerings and the rest cannot be obtained, one should offer one's own body, son, wife and family along with (his) worldly life. Giving (all this) to his lineage of knowledge (vidyānvaya) and to the Supreme along with himself, by virtue of (his) constant practice, he attains success in this fettered existence.

ārādhyānāṁ ca sarveṣāṁ maṇḍalaṁ ca kṛte sati ||
na riktaṁ maṇḍalaṁ kuryād yadīcchet siddhim uttamām [-mā] |
yadi lobhakaḥ [-ka] saṁpītvā riktaṁ [rikta] maṇḍalakaṁ kuryāt [guruḥ] ||
tatra śāpaṁ bhavet tasya yoginījananindakaḥ |
dravyādīnām alābhena svadehaṁ tu nivedayet || putraṁ [putra] dārāṁ [dāra] kuṭumbaṁ ca [kuṭuṁvāś ca]
saṁsāraparicaryayā |
tasya [tastā] vidyānvayaṁ dhatte abhyāsāt param ātmanā ||

satatābhyāsayogena bhave siddhyāruho bhavet | AS 20/16cd-20ab

11. The word 'paryaṅka-' normally means in common usage a 'couch' or 'bed' (cf. below 37/13a). Here, it denotes the pedastal in which the maṇḍala is drawn or engraved.

The Śrīkrama is invoked into the the maṇḍala. This is done by drawing the maṇḍala in the proper way as prescribed by the scriptures. The procedure is equivalent to the rite of installation of a deity into an icon which, in the form of mantra (mantramūrti) and vital force (prāṇa), is 'brought down' into it. In this case the deity is the Śrīkrama, which is the mantric form of the goddess and of the deities that, also in the form of mantras, emanate from her; surrounding her, they constitute her body present in the maṇḍala.

12. Clearly, the Sacred Seat of Yoga (yogapīṭha) is the triangular core of the Saṁvartāmaṇḍala, previously referred to as the Sacred Seat of Knowledge (vidyāpīṭha) (cf. ŚSP I p. 227 where the two are clearly identified in a mantra used in Siddhānta ritual: oṁ hāṁ yogapīṭhāya namaḥ | oṁ hāṁ hauṁ vidyāpīṭhāya namaḥ | iti vidyāpīṭhaṁ saṁpūjya |)

13. It may appear at first sight that the text is saying that the Kramamaṇḍala it is describing is only that of the Transmission of the Aged, implying that two more need to be drawn for the Transmissions of the Youth and the Child. But this is not the case. The first form of the Krama that is worshipped is that of the Aged. The maṇḍala is therefore drawn initially to accommodate this one. After the mantras of this Krama have been deposited and uttered and the worship of the Krama is completed, the same is done for the next one in the same maṇḍala. Thus, presumably, when the text says that the Yogapīṭha has arisen 'threefold', the reference is to the three transmissions.

14. Perhaps a part of the text is missing here, thus rendering what remains obscure. According to MSs Gh and Ch, the letter is Ṭha. According to the other MSs it is Ca. But neither of these two possibilities appear to make sense. The utterance of AIṀ, the goddess's syllable, in order to 'envelop' it with her energy and presence makes much more sense.

15. Once the Kramamaṇḍala has been drawn, the next thing the adept needs to do is to prepare himself to worship the Krama (kramapūjā, kramārcana) by purify himself. This is done by projecting mantras onto the body. In this way it is purified and filled with the energies of the mantras that energize the body of the deity. This is done in three series of depositions that prepare the adept to worship the three transmissions.

Most of these depositions have been described in chapters 18 to 24 which is the subject of those chapters. This and the following chapter are dedicated to the worship of the Gurumaṇḍala and Kramamaṇḍala. If the layout of the text mirrors (as it appears to do) the liturgy, one would expect these two chapters to follow directly after chapter 24. This leads one to surmise that the two intervening chapters are interpolations.

16. These depositions are found above in: 1) Chapter 19 2) Chapter 18 3) Chapter 20 4) ? 5) 21/1-11 6) 21/30-35.

17. These depositions are found above in: 1) 23/1-20 2) 21/31-37 3) 24/66cd-72 4) 21/30-50 5) 10/25-27 6) 21/31-48 7) ?

18. These depositions are found above in: 1) 11/2-17ab 2) 21/30-50 3) 10/25-27 4) 24/13-75 5) 24/88-104 6) 24/76-86ab 7) 24/105 -112ab 8) 11/2-17ab

19. In the rite described in chapter 11, there are two jars. One, called Vīrapatra, is placed in the centre of the Kramamaṇḍala where the goddess resides. In the other, which is placed in front of it, her consort Navātman Bhairava is invoked. In this case the worship of the Kramamaṇḍala begins by placing three vessels containing offerings to the right, left and middle of it. Perhaps these three are meant as offerings to the basic triad of attendants to which bali is normally offered, namely, the Lord of the Field, Vaṭuka and the Yoginīs (cf. above 11/33cd-34ab). This may indeed be the case but it seems that two procedures have been combined. The third jar is placed on the Five Jewels. These mantras invoke the hosts of Yoginīs and so is meant for them. The text tell us that the Six-faced God, that is, Vaṭuka, is present in the middle jar. But as his presence there is invoked by means of the six limbs of the goddess's Vidyā, this suggests the goddess's presence there also. So, in this case he may function as the goddess's consort. But as he is related to just one of the goddess's limbs, this is unlikely. It is more probable that the 'descent called Karāla' (27/46) who is also invoked into the jar, is the goddess's Bhairava. It is unclear which deity is in the second jar. At any rate we may presume that the three jars function as containers of the deities who receive bali and, in the case of this jar, also as the residence of the goddess's consort.

20. The text reads 'pīṭha', which refers to the Yogapīṭha of the Vidyāpīṭha which we have seen is the Kramamaṇḍala.

21. The six limbs of the goddess's Vidyā are used to invoke her presence and that of Vaṭuka, the Six-faced One. Note that the limbs are in the reverse order. This is because it is necessary to begin with the last two – the Armour and the Weapon – as it by means of these that the deity is introduced into the vessel. This is the procedure when only one jar (*kailaś*a) is placed in front of the maṇḍala (cf. above 11/37).

22. The iconography of Vaṭuka Bhairava resembles that of Skanda. Like Skanda, Vaṭuka has six faces and carries a staff (see below 47/3cd-6 and note). The Kaula Tantras and Vaṭuka's mantras repeatedly stress that he, again like Skanda, is the goddess's son (devīputra). The Newars enhance the remblance further in their iconographic representation of the god by having him sit on a peacock, which is typically Skanda's vehicle.

23. The text reads 'sānnidhyakaraṇam' which is the process of 'bringing (the deity) close by'.

24. Cf. above, 10/36 and note.

25. The five are, I suppose, the Five Praṇavas.

26. Cf. above 27/42cd-43ab and note.

27. The standard set of three gestures (mudrātraya) are those of the Lotus (padmamudrā), the Three Flames (triśikhāmudrā) and the Yoni. These gestures are linked with a complex series of transformations and motions of the vital breath and, with it, consciousness. They are discussed extensively in these perspectives in chapter six (49 ff.) of the KMT which is drawn from the TS. Despite their importance in the KMT and its expansions, the ŚM and ṢSS, they are not prominent in the rites of the MBT. It is possible therefore that these are not the three gestures meant here. According to a parallel description of the formation of the maṇḍala in chapter forty-eight below, the three gestures are made with the little finger, thumb and middle finger, respectively. They are the three gestures made when drawing the three girdles around the core of the maṇḍala (see above 48/14cd-16ab).

28. The text is corrupt. MSs Gh and Ch read 'vaiṣṇavā-'; MS Ṅ reads: 'vikramā-' and the others 'vikraṣā-'. I suppose in making this emendation that Vaiṣṇavī is the goddess of the liquor – although, admittedly, I have not found this identification in the texts.

29. Concerning the use of the hand as a rosary, see above 11/55cd ff.

30. Rosaries are of differing types and give various benefits according to the material they are made of. These are described along with the inner rosary in the KMT (5/112cd-136) (= ṢSS 8/108-132ab). There we learn that:

> According to the teaching that comes from the teacher's mouth, a crystal (rosary is effective and so-called because) it manifests brilliantly (sphuṭate) in the head and exits from it twofold into the Void (ṢSS: khe). ṢSS 8/124 = KMT 5/128cd-129ab

Again:

> Placed in the belly, the Kuṇḍalinī of Nectar sleeps like a son (putra) (in the womb). O fair lady, the living being is led up and down by her. Thus she is (this rosary which is accordingly) called 'one who give life to a son' (putrajīvaka).' KMT 5/131cd-132 = ṢSS 8/127-128ab.

31. Cf. KMT 5/114ab = ṢSS 8/109cd; see above note to 11/58.

32. Cf. above, 11/59.

33. This form of the Vidyā includes the Five Praṇavas at the beginning and end of it.

34. This is HSKHPHREṀ. See 10/25 and note to 9/2cd-3ab.

NOTES OF THE SANSKRIT TEXT OF CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

1. M → N 2. त्रिधा stands, as usual in this text, for त्रिविधम्.
3. छ्: श्रीवक्रोवाच 4. A plural is required here.
5. The word ओलि seems to be particularly free to be incorporated in a compound without being subject to sandhi. Cf. above 27/51b and 27/66a, also below 28/41d. 6. घ्, छ्: मन्त्राणां 7. M → N.
8. All MSs except घ्, छ्: ओका–. All MSs: –पूजा–
9. ख्, ङ्, ज्, झ्: तु चत्वार: ते; घ्: नु चत्वार: ते; छ्: रु चत्वार:. IM 5. IC. चत्वारि would be correct. 10. All MSs: पीठा 11. All MSs: ऐहिका–
12. N → M. 13. As often occurs in the Sanskrit of this text, –कार, normally masculine, is treated as neuter.
14. ङ्: जकार; all other MSs: जकारं 15. ख्, झ्: तेजसं
16. ग्: स्थित 17. All MSs: घ्, छ्: पकारमपतत्वस्थं; all other MSs: एकारम– 18. All MSs: ककारं 19. All MSs: –गतां
20. ङ्, झ्: कूर्याछक्तिरधस्–; छ्, ज्: कुर्याच्छक्तिर–; all other MSs: कुर्यच्छतिर–
21. The regular order of the words of this compound has been changed to fit the metre. अधोऽङ्गसंस्थितशक्त्या is meant here.
22. क्: तेषां मध्यो– 23. पार्थम् is a contracted form of पार्थिवम्.
24. ङ्: आदौ; all other MSs except घ्, छ्: आपौ
25. चतुष्पीथभिन्ना is meant here. 26. All MSs except घ्, छ्: –ता:
27. An instrumental is required here.
28. All MSs except घ्, ङ्, छ्, झ्: –होपा 29. All MSs: ख्यात
30. छ्: पीठं– 31. घ्: तेषा 32. All MSs: वक्ष्येद्
33. क्: पृये 34. All MSs: अघोरे–; ग्: –सदृशाद्याणं; घ्, ङ्, छ् झ्: –द्यानं. IC and DS. See above, note to 2/28b.
35. All MSs: जकार: 36. All MSs: ककारं
37. The regular सद्यो– does not fit the metre. See above, note to 3/103d.
38. ख्: च्छिता 39. All MSs: देव 40. ग्: –मध्य
41. All MSs: –ख्यातातेषु 42. All MSs: ककारादिषु
43. चतस्त्र: is the regular feminine form. 44. ङ्: –ता
45. All MSs: पीठेश्वर्या: 46. All MSs except घ्, छ्: –चतुभ्यासं
47. ग्, घ्, छ्: हरशब्दचतुष्टयं 48. छ्: आद्यदीर्घेश्चतुर्भिन्नं. चतुर्भिर्– would be correct.
49. All MSs: आज्ञाया 50. N → N. 51. क्: चत्वारो; ङ्: * त्वार:
52. See above, note to 3/135d. Cf. 28/33a. 53. छ्: च
54. The correct form, तेजोबृंहितम्, would make the fifth syllable long. See above, note to 4/11d. 55. All MSs: –नादर–. A dual number is required here. See above, note to 5/46d. 56. क्: –द्योरवेत्
57. ग्, ङ्, झ्: चोक्तो This and the following two lines have been moved. See note to the English translation. 58. All MSs except ग्, घ्: त्यापका:
59. ख्, झ्: –रूपो 60. ङ्: स्थाननि; all other MSs except छ्, ज्, झ्: स्थानान् 61. ङ्: प्रक्ष्यहे; all other MSs: प्रवक्ष्महे
62. श्रात्रे. This word, like the following compound, should be dual in number. 63. All MSs: पृथिवीं 64. All MSs: चैवरधो
65. छ्: मदे– 66. घ्, छ्: गुद 67. घ्: कण्ठ

68. घ्, छ्: भ्रूवोत्तरे; भ्रुवोरन्तरे is correct but too long and so has been contracted.
Cf. 30/68c. 69. घ्: षविधं; ज्: षद्विधं 70. झ्: श्वेताश्
71. All MSs except क्: वर्त्तिद्वि– 72. All MSs: –णी 73. क्: पंचामार्; ग्: पंचामा
74. All MSs: भाव 75. घ्, छ्: पञ्चपं 76. All MSs: चोपनं
77. DS. See above, note to 6/153d. 78. This pāda is one syllable too long. 79. घ्: याद–; छ्: पाद– 80. A locative is required here. 81. क्: कुर्यातेष्ठ; all other MSs: कुर्यातेष्ट 82. झ्:
श्वेत्रं 83. All MSs: हरितां 84. All MSs except झ्: गार– 85. घ्, छ्: ध्यान
86. ग्, घ्, ङ्, झ्: तृक; All MSs except घ्: –मध्यं 87. तथा would make better syntax. 88. All MSs: तुये 89. छ्, ज्: स्थाने–
90. ख्, झ्: + आरक्तं प्रथमं ध्यानं; ख्, झ्: द्वितीयं 91. घ्: शुद्धवलं; झ्: शुधवलं.
IM 6 + 7. 92. छ्: सत्वं–; all other MSs: सत्वंराजसनाममं। राजस् has been lengthened to राजस for the metre. 93. ङ्, झ्: सप्त–. See above, note to 7/7c. 94. All MSs: –क्रम 95. क्: भैरव:; झ्: मर्हति
96. Missing in MS झ् from here to 28/116cd. 97. All MSs except घ्, छ्: ठजा– 98. क्, ङ्, झ्: क–; ख्: कामपूता – ओचतुष्टयं 99. All MSs: प्रकटा 100. All MSs except क्, ख्, झ्: –देव्यस्य
101. All MSs except ख्: साकानं 102. All MSs: देव्या 103. M → N. See above, note to 7/12d. 104. ग्: –वसनैव; छ्: –वसेनैव 105. All MSs:
–देव्य: 106. घ्: समर्च्च्ययेड 107. ग्: –सत् 108. An accusative is required here. 109. All MSs: प्रवक्ष्महे Cf. above, 28/17d.
110. See above, note to 3/135d. Cf. 28/15a.
111. All MSs: –कां. M → N. See above, note to 1/2c.
112. क्, घ्: –रेह–; घ्, छ्: –सिसे 113. ङ्: गुप्त 114. घ्: षविध्ञ्; ज्: षट्विधं
115. क्, ख्: तेष्ठग्रे; घ्, छ्: तेषाग्र; तेषामग्रे is meant here.
116. ग्, घ्, छ्: देव्या. I take this to be another case of irregular visarga sandhi.
See above, note to 3/22b. 117. घ्: अधिकार– 118. ज्: षद्धि:
119. ङ्: पूर्वोक्तं– 120. All MSs: असंतसिसु
121. छ्: पंचैता: तेषा; all other MSs except क्, घ्, झ्: पंचैता:
122. घ्, छ्: रिपु * 123. घ्, छ्: + च
124. क्: अनान्तं अनादि:–. All MSs except क्: अनादि:– 125. घ्: –दीरि
126. ख्: अकारं 127. All MSs except घ्, छ्: एकारं
128. M → N. 129. M → N. This and the following line are also found in 28/71cd-2ab (see notes there) and 28/101cd-2ab.
130. M → N. 131. ख्, ज्: –ति 132. ग्: –तां; घ्, छ्: –ता
133. See above, note to 6/1a. Cf. 28/63a.
134. All MSs: त्रिकंदूकस्तथा 135. क्, ग्, झ्: वाव्यं; all other MSs except घ्: चाव्यं. IC. 136. Cf. 28/3b and 28/43c. See note to 3/11b. 137. ज्: एतत् 138. छ्: दैहस्थं 139. ङ्: स * वेत्
140. The plural in the place of the nominative singular –योगी gains an extra syllable for the metre. See above, 4/3c.
141. All MSs: पूज्य 142. क्: –रोज्ञा. A connecting pronoun such as ताम् is required to complete the syntax. 143. ख्: –क 144. घ्:
कौमार 145. घ्, छ्: मध्यमौलिकम्. See above, note to 3/11b. Cf. 28/46d.
146. ख्, ङ्, ज्: –क्रम 147. छ्: तथा 148. घ्, छ्: मध्यमौल्यां

149. All MSs: नामाद्य 150. All MSs: तत्त्वायुक्ता 151. छ्: –धिस्थित–
152. All MSs except क्, ङ्, झ्: –स्थिता 153. क्, ख्: –र्न्ना
154. ङ्: –तां 155. All MSs: ते पीठाश्चत्वार:
156. All MSs: देव्यश्चतुष्टयम् Cf. 28/96b.
157. घ्: चराभ्यासं; ङ्: चतुभ्यासं; छ्: चरार्भ्यांसं; all other MSs except चतुर्भ्यासं
158. All MSs: युता 159. All MSs except ङ्, झ्: –क्रान्ता
160. ख्: –कलोश् 161. All MSs except झ्: चन्द्र
162. ख्: –वीज 163 ख्: –चकं; other MSs: स चैक
164. क्: स्थाप्यु 165. ग्, घ्: व
166. All MSs: पंचजा 167. क्: भजमाना–; all other MSs: भजमानोसौ IC.
168. क्: प्रसांदं 169. शिवाक्षरम् is meant here but as this is too short for the metre, the compound has been broken up. Alternatively one might think of these as separate words with शिवम् treated as neuter.
170. घ्: ईग्रषट्षट्कं; all other MSs: हर–ई–मषट्षट्कं. This compound should be split up into हर–ईषट्कं षट्कम्. 171. क्, ज्: मेचि–
172. क्, ग्: चन्द्रार्की; छ्: चन्द्रार्को 173. घ्, छ्: द्वारेतौ
174. ङ्, ज्: षद्विधा 175. क्, ग्: षभि:; ख्, ज्: षद्भि:; घ्: षभि; छ्: षड्भिर्
176. All MSs: शिखान्विता: 177. This is the instrumental plural of षडि: which at times replaces षट्. See 10/24d and note.
178. All MSs: जयंभो 179. A verb or action noun is required here to complete the syntax. 180. घ्, छ्: व्याप्त– 181. All MSs except ग्, घ्, ङ्: –दिस् 182. All MSs except झ्: –तां 183. All MSs: अंतत्वा 184. कृत्वा would be correct. 185. All MSs except ज्: तत्वत्वं 186. ङ्: –तत्व 187. त्रिकलाङ्कनभेदितम् would be correct. 188. त्रिधा is treated here as an adjective rather then an adverb and so is clearly seen to be equivalent to त्रिविध:.
189. See 1/2c and note. Also 24/41a and 25/37c. 190. All MSs: –क्रम
191. छ्: सके * भाषा 192. छ्: –सूचकं. A verb is required here to complete the syntax. 193. क्: द्रजापुका *; ख्, ग्, ज्: उजापुकाश्च; घ्: –का *.
IM 5 194. घ्: चत्वार 195. M → N. See above, note to 1/5d.
196. छ्: –रा 197. N → M. 198. क्, ग्, घ्:
–सिद्धाश्चत्वार 199. M → N. See above, note to 1/5d.
200. All MSs: सुस्मकं; + छ्, ज्: अपं; all other MSs: अयं
201. All MSs except ङ्: कुलं–. See above, note to 1/1c and 6/1a; cf. 28/40c.
202. The ending has been dropped to keep the fifth syllable short. Cf.
28/67b. 203. ख्: अकं 204. ङ्: धि; छ्, ज्: वि
205. Cf. 28/54d. 206. All MSs: अंभा व
207. ज्: षद्विधा; all other MSs: षड्विधा 208. छ्: चतुस्वर–. All MSs: –विभेदितात् 209. M → N. See above, note to 1/2c.
210. ख्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: देव्यो; all other MSs: देव्या 211. All MSs other except क्, ख्, झ्: अकारं 212. क्, ग्: अर्व्वी; ख्: अम्वा; घ्, छ्: अथा– 213. घ्, छ्: त्तमं 214. घ्: खि 215. घ्, छ्: चेद् रकारार्थी; ङ्, झ्: अ चेन्द्रकाराव्वा. This pāda is one syllable short. 216. घ्, छ्: अभा–; ङ्: –षट्कमत:
217. ङ्: परं 218. These lines are repeated in MS ङ्, अंभावष
द्विधा to एतद् वै कौलभाषायां 219. घ्, छ्, ज्: –या 220. क्, ग्: –मुद्रा–

221. All MSs: योगि– 222. The ending of this word has been dropped for the metre. Cf 27/63b. 223. क्ः अषासे– 224. ख्ः सक – ई
225. घ्ः ससक्यं 226. ख्ः प्रकठसंयोगान्; all other MSs except घ्, छ्ः प्रकठ– 227. A locative has replaced the required genitive to accommodate the metre. Cf. below, 28/138b. 228. M → N. See above, note to 1/5d.
229. क्, ख्, झ्ः सर्व 230. M → N. See above, note to 1/7d.
231. N → M. 232. छ्, ज्ः –वसे– 233. One wonders whether to emend to मध्यमौल्यायाम्. Here as in other places (e.g. 28/45d and 28/46d) all manuscripts except घ् and छ् have the other reading. The sandhi of ओलि/उलि – evidences the same kind of inconsistencies as that of ओघ– for (see above, note to 1/4b). Feminines ending in –ई frequently have alternative forms ending in –या (see above note to 2/22b). The 'original' form of the word is, therefore, ओली which is, in fact, attested. See above, 7/93-94, and note to 3/11b. The form derived from ओलिः \ ओली is much more common. See, for example, the locative मध्यमोल्याम् in 28/46d.
234. See above, note to 3/12c. 235. ख्ः चैवे
236. ज्ः षद्विधं 237. क्ः एतास्मि; ग्ः एताणि; झ्ः एतास्मिन्
238. घ्, ङ्, छ्ः –ति। एतेषु षट्प्रकारेषु भेदाः सप्तविंशतिः would be correct Sanskrit. This and the following line are also found above as 28/39cd-40ab and below 28/101cd-102ab. I have accepted the irregular concord and not emended to सप्तविंशति. Cf.
below, 45/29b. 239. All MSs: देवता
240. An ablative is required here. See above, note to 10/24a.
241. ख्ः उदय. M → N. The word उदय– is generally treated as neuter.
242. क्, ग्, ङ्ः मालिके; घ्, छ्ः –मौलिके. See above, note to 3/11b.
243. The ātmanepada form, वक्षे, is more common.
244. All MSs: चतु– IC. चतु– has been emended to चतू– as sandhi rules demand. One wonders, however, whether this is an irregularity in the Sanskrit or a corruption of the text. 245. All MSs: आत्मकूटा 246. ख्ः पाठ– 247. Following three lines missing in MS ङ् and ज् 248. घ्ः –देर्व्या; छ्ः –दैर्व्या
249. IC. 250. The plural ending required here does not fit the metre. This and the following two lines are found only in manuscripts घ् and छ्. 251. All MSs except झ्ः –मान. See 3/10d and note.
252. घ्, छ्ः देवं 253. क्, झ्ः सक्रा–; all other MSs: सुक्रा–
254. क्ः –आकास्यंतेजं; ख्, छ्, ज्ः शक्त्याकाश्यं–; all other MSs: –आकाश्यंतजं. A plural ending is required for this coordinative compound. As usual, the code names for letters and seed-syllables are given in the neuter.
255. छ्ः रुद्र 256. छ्ः विन्दुवानन्दकोधकं; all other MSs: विन्दुरानन्द–
257. All MSs except घ्, ङ्, झ्ः तरङ्गा; all other MSs: तरङ्ग
258. All MSs except छ्ः आक्रीतं
259. छ्ः –ति 260. All MSs: ओजरेऽसौ त्रिभिर्वाधौ
262. M → N. 262. छ्ः –णात्
263. All MSs: आदिनाथं–; घ्ः –तां; छ्ः –ता। आदिनाथक्रममाख्यातम् is meant here but does not fit the metre. 264. Cf. below, 28/82b 265. A genitive is meant here. See above, note to 10/47d.
266. All MSs except क्, ग्, घ्ः सर्व

267. ख्: सिद्धि– 268. Cf. above, 28/80a.
269. All MSs: सिद्धा 270. All MSs except घ्: विख्यातो
271. ग्, ङ्, ज्: सुव्रते; घ्: सुव्रता 272. All MSs: स च 273. All MSs: विध:
274. क्: म ए * फ– 275. घ्: –शक्त्यर्द्ध; ङ्: –शक्त्यूर्द्धे; all other MSs:
–शक्त्यर्द्धे 276. घ्, छ्: सिद्ध 277. See above, note to 1/1c. 278. ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: चत्वार:; घ्, छ्: चत्वार 279. छ्:
–स्थ 280. ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्: चक्रादिन:, all other MSs: चक्रादित:
281. ङ्, झ्: –विग्रह; घ्, छ्: –सुधी:। All manuscripts except झ् (in which verses 28/28cd-116ab are missing) repeat verses 28/78cd-84ab.
282. क्: +
खशक्तिसप्तकाक्रान्तं आक्रान्तं नादमूर्द्धनि।;
ख्, ग्, घ्, ङ्, ज्: + खशक्तिमस्तकाक्रान्तं (छ्: –मस्तमक्रान्तं) आक्रान्तं नादमूर्द्धनि।
ओजरेसौ तृभिर्वाधौ शक्त्यावेशं तु धारणा।
आदिनाथं क्रमाख्यातं पंचमं सिद्धनायकं।।
श्रीनाथं श्रीगुरुं (ग्: –गुरु) मूलं आज्ञासंततिनिर्ण्णयं।
सर्व्वे (ग्, घ्, ङ्, छ्, ज्: सर्व्व) क्रमेषु साधारं आधारमिति भैरवं।।
तस्योच्चारणमात्रेण सर्व्वावस्था (ङ्, छ्, ज्: –स्थो) भविष्यति।
सिद्धपंचकमेवं (छ्: –मवन्) तु चतु:पीठेषु संस्थितं।।
पंचमंयत् परं नाथं श्रीगुरुं मध्यनायकं।।
सिद्धा द्वाविति विख्यातौ आद्य पीठस्य सुव्रते।।
अपरं ज्ञानषट्कं तु वक्ष्ये कौलस्य नायकं।
विद्यायाः करणं चात्र (घ्: यात्र) स च एव चतुर्विध:।
सहजं माययारूढं आनंदकुलभेदितं (छ्: –त)। The following four lines are missing in MS ख्. 283. ङ्: आज्ञा– 284. ङ्: दुल्लभं
285. ङ्: द्वितीये– 286. घ्: –तुशितं 287. क्, ग्: दीर्घम्–
288. ग्: –मण्डले– 289. All MSs except ख्, झ्: –वर्त्त. त्र्यावर्तं would be correct but does not fit the metre. Cf. 27/30d and note and also see above, note to 3/119d. 290. ख्: महेश्वर:; all other MSs: महेश्वर 291. ख्, ज्: भूय: तेषां 292. The ending has been dropped for the metre. 293. क्, झ्: चत्वार; all other MSs: चत्वार: The numeral has been emended to the regular neuter form, required here to be in concord with बिन्दुकृतानि which presumably agrees with बीजानि or perhaps वर्णानि (M → N) that is implied at the end of अनुनासिक 294. ख्: विन्दु:– 295. ग्: हहा–; छ्: हमा– 296. ज्: योजये 297. ख्, ङ्: –मध्येमक; ग्, छ्, ज्: –क. A dual number is required here. See above, note to 5/46d and cf. above 15/39b.
298. All MSs except क्, झ्: न्यसं 299. The word here is ओली declined like a feminine. Cf. 28/108c. 300. Missing in MS ख्
301. छ्: –मन्त्र * मं 302. छ्: मंकेतं. M → N. See above, note to 1/5d. 303. छ्: देवीना * द्य– 304. All MSs: पीठं– 305. Cf. 28/48d.
306. All MSs except ख्, घ्, छ्, ज्: –नाथ 307. ङ्, ज्: व
308. घ्, छ्: चि 309. ङ्: –शेषर–
310. घ्: –मेतद्वी; छ्, ज्: –मेतद्वि; ङ्, झ्: –मेतधि; all other MSs: –द्धी
311. All MSs: इदान्याकर्णतां 312. ङ्: ममे 313. घ्: ष्वामु; छ्: ष्वामू
314. All MSs except ज्: महंतार्या 315. ख्: सूचकम्
316. क्, ग्: अविमायेत; ख्, ङ्, ज्: अविमायेकत; घ्, छ्: अविमाद्येकत

317. All MSs: व्याप्ति 318. घ्, छ्: समुं–; ङ्: सेमु–
319. N → M. 320. छ्: –क्रमणैव
321. क्: समस्तयं तिणे; ख्, ङ्, ज्: समस्तर्यति; ग्: समस्तयन्ति; घ्: समस्तेयंति; छ्: समस्तेर्यैति; all other MSs: समस्तेष्वेति 322. ख्, ग्, घ्, ज्: –विंशति. This and the following line are virtual repetitions of 28/39cd-40ab and 28/71cd-72ab. See notes there. 323. All MSs except ख्, ज्: देवता 324. See above, note to 1/1c, cf. above, 28/40c and 28/63a. 325. All MSs: महन्तार्या.
IM 5 + 6. 326. बालक्रममाख्यातम् would be correct but too long for the metre. Cf. 28/131a. 327. IM 6.
328. A dual number is required here. See above, note to 5/46d and cf.
above 13/111c. 329. ज्: कनिष्ठोली; all other MSs: कनिष्ठोलि
330. क्: कामे– 331. Cf. 27/29b and note.
332. Cf. 27/51b. 333. All MSs except ख्, घ्, छ्, ङ्: –ओलि
334. छ्: भाखासं– 335. All MSs: पूज्य
336. All MSs: ओलिमन्या. ओलिरन्य: क्रियाचर्यान्या appears to be the meaning here.
337. All MSs: चार्या 338. See above, note to 1/1c.
339. छ्: मत्र–. M → N. See above, note to 7/12d.
340. A plural ending is required here.
341. All manuscripts place this line between 28/111cd and 28/112ab.
342. Missing in all MSs except झ् 343. क्, ग्: अंत
344. क्, ग्, झ्: शिष्य 345. छ्: चैवं
346. All MSs except झ्: + वृद्धकौमारवालं वा अन्यं वा खेचरक्रमं।
347. घ्: हंन्यतेण् The root हन् is normally 2P. The regular form in this case would be हन्ति. See above, note to 6/198a.
348. All MSs: शिष्यमाचार्य 349. क्: गृहूनात्; ख्: गृह्नन्नान्; घ्, छ्: गृह्नतान्; ङ्: गृह्नात्;
ज्: गृह्ननात्; झ्: गृहनात्
350. क्: वृत्युरेचिरादपि; ख्, ग्: मृत्युरविरादपि; घ्, छ्: मृत्युरविवादपि 351. घ्, छ्: सद्रक्तस्य
352. ख्: –लोप 353. घ्: देयं; छ्: देवं 354. All MSs: दापये
355. All MSs: –गतं चाज्ञा 356. All MSs: तु 357. क्: भेयात्
358. ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: या
359. क्, ख्: क्रममाद्यानां; घ्: क्रमसुढ्यानां; ङ्: क्रममाध्यानां; छ्: क्रममढ्यानां; ज्: क्रमांाढ्यानां; all other MSs: क्रममाघानां 360. क्: योति 361. IM 6 + 7.
362. झ्: विद्या * *. M → N. 363. M → N. As the noun योग– is invariably treated as neuter, no further notice will be given of its change in gender.
364. IC. The plural is required here.
365. छ्, ज्: उद्घाद्य; all other MSs: उद्याद्य 366. All MSs: वुध्या
367. छ्: –ण. अन्तरङ्गक्रमेण is meant here. 368. छ्: –या
369. इतरान् जनान् would be correct. 370. M → N.
371. All MSs: संदेहो 372. All MSs except क्, छ्: नरकं
373. All MSs: –वत्सले This same line appears above as 26/44ab and below as 30/134cd and 30/143ab; cf. also 32/61cd.
374. घ्: मद्भक्तस्य; ङ्: सभक्तस्य 375. All MSs except घ्, छ्: द्वादशाब्दं–
376. M → N. See above, note to 3/164a. 377. ङ्, ज्, झ्: –निमित्तंये
378. All MSs: च 379. ख्, झ्: –शस्त्र–
380. All MSs except क्, ग्: नि 381. घ्, छ्: अक्रमा; all other MSs: अक्रमात्

382. मुखाम्नायं कौलिकम् (M → N) is meant here. 383. All MSs: स
384. छ्: सर्व 385. All MSs: –रता 386. ङ्: –तां
387. All MSs: योग्या 388. ख्, झ्: शेषान्यंतर–; all other MSs: शेषाव्यंतर–
389. All MSs: गृह्नते. See above, note to 6/89d.
390. क्, ख्: यशोर्षं, ग्, ङ्,, छ्, ज्, झ्: यशोर्थं; घ्: यशोर्थ. यशसार्थं would be correct but too long for the metre. 391. ख्: –पयस्यार्थे; घ्: –र्थ; झ्: –पथस्यथे
392. झ्: पृयक्षति 393. घ्, छ्: हरते. See above, note to 6/198a.
394. छ्: मदाद्रोहो 395. All MSs except क्: अमेध्य
396. All MSs: मुपजीवति 397. झ्: प्रत्यत्तार 398. घ्: शास्त्र; ङ्: शस्त्रं; all other MSs: शास्त्रं 399. झ्: शाभवं 400. घ्, छ्: आनवं
401. IM 6 + 7. 402. Missing in MSs ख् and झ्.
403. झ्: वृद्धि–. –क्रममाख्यातं would be correct but too long. Cf. 28/103c.
404. M → N. The fiorm here appears to be (ओली) → ओल्या See above, note to 1/2c. Cf. 28/3b etc. 405. छ्: मुसू– 406. क्: नावं; घ्, छ्: भावं; all other MSs: जावं 407. घ्: कनिष्ठोसितृतीयकम्; छ्, ज्: कनिष्ठोली–
408. IC. 409. छ्: एक 410. छ्, ज्: त्रिकण्ठकं
411. ङ्: प्रोक्तो 412. घ्, ङ्, झ्: विरि:क्रान्ता; all other MSs: विनि:क्रान्ता
413. This is one of the very rare instances in which the noun क्रम– is treated according to its regular masculine gender. Even here, however, the numeral is in concord with its usual deviant neuter gender due to the constraints of the metre.
414. क्, ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्, झ्: खचरं; छ्: खचक्रं 415. त्रिक्रममन्यम् (M → N), or the like, is required to complete the syntax. 416. झ्: च तुयुगा
417. छ्: स्वे–ओल्या–. Cf. 27/66a. An ablative would be better here.
418. त्रेतायाम् would be correct here but too long for the metre.
419. Missing in MSs ख् and झ्. 420. The order of the words in this compound has been reversed for the metre.
421. क्: –चत्वारो. This is an irregular compound. 422. ङ्: उदय
423. क्, ख्, झ्: –मन 424. All MSs: विनि:–
425. Note how the locative sometimes replaces the genitive. Cf. above, 28/68d and see above, note to 10/47d. 426. क्, ग्: खेचर
427. घ्: –सामर्थ्यं–; –छ्: –सामर्थ्यंमर्ज्ज–; all other MSs: –सामर्थ्या–
428. All MSs: –गत: 429. क्: स्नायतंतर्गतं; all other MSs: स्नायुरन्तर्–
430. The following three lines are missing in MS झ्.
431. क्, ख्, ज्: –नात् 432. ङ्: वि * र्गतं 433. M → N. लय– is almost invariably treated as neuter. There will be no further note of its change in gender. 434. All MSs except झ्: –मन 435. घ्: द्वि; छ्:
त्विद; all other MSs except झ्: त्विदां 436. क्: शुक्ल– 437. झ्: –मनयत्रयं 438. IC. 439. A genitive is required here. See above, note to 10/47d. 440. All MSs: प्रजायते
As usually happens in the Sanskrit of this text, the present tense serves to denote past action. See above, note to 3/14c. 441. क्, ग्: चन्द्रार्कागहा; all other MSs: चन्द्रार्काग्रहा 442. ङ्: रिक्षा; झ्: रिक्ष्या 443. छ्: नेव 444.
All MSs: तुभ्यं 445. छ्: तस्या– 446. छ्, ज्, झ्: –कारा
447. All MSs except क्, झ्: –दिव्याज्ञाया; झ्: दिव्यज्ञाया 448. छ्: चिवेन्था–
449. ज्, झ्: –रंकुला– 450. ज्, झ्: तदिल्लता 451. See above, note to 5/22a. 452. A verbal form is required here to complete the syntax. 453. All MSs: ततो 454. All MSs: साकरं 455. क्: –समायोगो 456. All MSs: शिवं 457. See 1/3d and note. 458. N → M. 459. ख्, झ्: याता:; घ्, छ्: जाता; all other MSs:

जाता: 460. All MSs: खेचर:–; झ्: –कारणे * 461. All MSs: एष
462. ग्, घ्, छ्: तस्मात *; ज्: तस्मातु 463. ग्, घ्: –क्रमं
464. क्: वालांव्वा. यदा, or the like, is required to complete the syntax.
465. IC. 466. All MSs: मध्यम
467. All MSs except क्, ग्: –काले–
468. ख्, झ्: तृभिमूर्त्ति–। त्रिमूर्ति– would be correct but does not fit the metre.
469. क्: क्रमे– 470. घ्: देव्या
471. क्: –समन्विता:; ङ्, छ्, ज्, झ्: षट्व– 472. क्: वाह्य
473. छ्: तैल्लोक्यं 474. All MSs: मण्डला N → M.
475. छ्: उदस्त– 476. क्: वर्द्ध– 477. ख्: –न्यष्टो
478. क्, ग्: ऐकारा–; घ्: ऐंकारात्; छ्: ऐंकारात–. IC. 479. All MSs: –स्था
480. झ्: –ता 481. The following three lines are missing in MS झ्. 482. झ्: समासृज्य; all other MSs: समामृत्यु
483. The ending has beeen shortened to keep the fifth syllable short.
484. This and the previous line are repeated in MSs घ् and छ्. The initial vowel of वराहिका has been shortened for the metre.
485. All MSs except घ्, छ्: –लक्ष्मी:; इति ता:, or the like, is required to complete the syntax. 486. घ्: –प्रदीपिका:
487. This pāda is one syllable too long.
488. All MSs except छ्: इति 489. ङ्, ज्, झ्: विछेति. DS. See above, note to 6/153d. 490. All MSs: ओलीनामेष IM 6 + 7.
491. M → N. See above, note to 6/115c.
492. All MSs: समयायुत– Presumably what is meant here is समयाविद्यायुक्तम् qualifying समय– 493. क्, ख्, ङ्, ज्, झ्: क्रमल्या– 494. ख्: सिद्धा–; सिद्ध्याहिरा is correct but here, as generally throughout the text, the suffixed – हन् is treated as if it were ह:
495. M → N. Concerning ths deviant numeral see above, note to 7/7c.
496. क्: त्रिविधेने 497. IC. 498. M → N. See above, note to 1/5d. 499. झ्: पीथाठानां
500. क्, ग्: –नाथं– 501. झ्: स सर्व्वे 502. झ्: अवा–
503. All MSs: पूज्य 504. ख्, ग्, ङ्, ज्, झ्: –विधि
505. ङ्: एतांसां; all other MSs: एतासां 506. क्: –मनुं
507. घ्, छ्: देवेन 508. M → N. उदय– is in variably treated as neuter. 509. झ्: तिम्रपीठक 510. ङ्: + तथा वालक्रमस्यैव उदयं कामरूपके।; ज्: + तथा वालक्रमस्यैव उदयं 511. क्, ग्, ज्: –रूप 512. This quarter is replaced by तथा बालक्रमस्यैव in MSs घ् and छ्. These two words appear in MS ग् but they are put in brackets indicating an erasure. 513. छ्: तस्यादिपीठके 514. ङ्: –मौंकर– 515. झ्: पू * – 516. क्, छ्: –पर्व्व; ख्, ज्:
–पर्व्वे; घ्: –पूर्व 517. All MSs: योगिने
518. All MSs except ङ्, झ्: तस्य
519. See above, note to 1/17c. 520. छ्: –ने 521. क्,

ख्: मेरुमार्ग्ग * * * *; घ्, छ्, झ्: –मार्ग * * * ते; all other MSs: –मार्ग * * * *
522. Missing in all MSs except घ् and छ् 523. घ्, छ्: –तारे.
Missing in all other MSs. 524. Missing in all MSs except घ्
525. All MSs except झ्: –षट्के– 526. ख्, झ्: परमेश्वरे; घ्, छ्:
–पारमेश्वरि 527. क्: चतुर्व्विंशत्; छ्: –चतुर्विंतिसहस्त्रसं–; all other MSs except घ्, ज्: –साहस्त्र– 528. घ्, छ्: अंवा–. See note to the colophon of chapter one. 529. MS ङ् ends here.

NOTES OF THE TRANSLATION OF CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

1. All three Kramas described in this chapter consist of twenty-seven 'divisions' (bheda) – i.e. mantras – in six units (prakāra) configured 4-5-6-4-5-3. This appears to be the basic setup in the KuKh, which was probably inspired by the YKh (cf. chapter 17 of YKh (2) where a Krama of Twenty-seven mantras is described). Note that the Krama in chapter twenty-six consists of twenty-eight 'divisions' configured 4-5-6-4-5-4, as we find in the KMT. However, it seems in order to reconcile these two formats. The last unit is said to originally consist of three mantras, to which a fourth will be added which relates to the seat of the future – Tisra (26/25). Thus, the Krama of twenty-seven mantras is the present one, although in actual fact the one of twenty-eight is older.

2. The sacred seat of OṀ is Oḍḍiyāna.

3. Air is missing. Below in 44/15-17ab, the order is reversed. Oḍḍiyāna (OṀ) corresponds to the Earth element and so forth. Mātaṅga is the fifth seat that corresponds to Space. Cf. chart in chapter 21.

4.

11. Table of Correspondences between Seats, Faces and Locations

Element	Seat	Face	Location
Space	OṀ	Aghora	Between the eyebrows
Fire	Jālandhara	Puruṣa	Heart
Water	Pūrṇagiri	Vāmadeva	Navel
Earth	Kāmarūpa	Sadyojāta	Yoni

Cf. 11/19-21a.

5. The Crest of the Command is, I suppose, the Half Moon and Point.

6. The four seed-syllables may be: HRĀṀ HRĪṀ HRŪṀ HRAIṀ.

7. Perhaps the five seed-syllables are: KHRĀṀ KHRĪṀ KHRŪṀ KHRAIṀ KHRAUṀ.

8. Concerning the visualization of Svacchanda Bhairava / Aghora, see the note to 12/15cd-16ab above.

9. It seems that the MSs are corrupt here. The following lines (17-18ab) are misplaced in all MSs where they appear at the end of the following passage concerning the hexad of the Command, of which only the following four verses remain. In most Kramas this group of six is that of the Six Yoginīs, Ḍākinī and the others, which is here called by its 'secret name' (see below. 28/40-41). Moreover, the entire passage concerning the Four Siddhas that should precede it (see ibid.) is missing.

10. It appears that a few lines of text have been lost here.

11. The Vidyās of the Trikā goddesses Parā, Parāparā and Aparā are the three ‘thorns’ of the Vidyā called the Triple Thorn. In the root Trika Tantra SYM, they were already identified with the three qualities of Prakṛti as they are here (see intro. vol. 2, p. 131).

12. See above, 25/5-7ab.

13. This is the seat in the centre corresponding to AIṀ.

14. Ātmakūṭa is the syllable HSKHPREṀ. What is meant is that this syllable is placed first. Thus there are four of them, rather than four varieties.

15. Cf. above 27/27ab.

16. The three transmissions prescribe the three procedures (vidhi) by which the Krama should be worshipped in the Āṇava, Śākta, and Śāmbhava modalities, collectively called the 'Triple Thorn'. This, we have seen, is the mantra called Tadgraha which incorporates the basic Trika triad, the Vidyās Parā, Parāparā and Aparā. The three Transmissions are not just a way of dividing the entire transmission (krama) of mantras and lineages into three groups (39/122cd-127); they are also the three energies of the Yoni (58/26cd-27ab), which, as we have seen, is original a Trika Yoni. Thus the transmissions are understood to be developments of the energies and deities of the Trika and so correspond to the Trika categories of Āṇava, Śākta and Śāmbhava; the correspondences are laid out in the following table:

12. Table of Correspondences between the Three Transmissions and Trika

Eldest	Youth	Child
Gross	Subtle	Supreme
Āṇava	Śākta	Śāmbhava
Apara	Parāpara	Para

Cf. 20/27-28: see also note 54 to 13/69.

17.

13. Table of Correspondences of the Four Transmissions according to Chapter Twenty-eight

Lineage	Level	State	Type	Age	Source	Place of merger	Time of day
Skyfarer	*	*	*	Kṛta	Knowledge	Marrow
Aged	Apara	Gross	Āṇava	Tretā	Anger	Sinew	Sunset
Youth	Parāpara	Subtle	Śākta	Dvāpara	Navel	Blood	Midday
Child	Para	Supreme	Śāmbhava	Kali	Yoni	Sperm	Dawn

18. Cf above, 24/3cd-14 and below 35/78cd-81. One is reminded of the Vedic vision of creation expressed in the famous Nāsadīya Sūkta of the Ṛgveda. There we read:

Darkness was there, all wrapped around in darkness

And all was Water indiscriminate. Then
That which was hidden by the Void, that One emerging, stirring, through power of Ardor (tapas), came to be

In the beginning Loving Desire (kāma) arose, which was the primal cell of the mind.
The seers, searching in their hearts with wisdom, discovered the connection of Being in Non-being. ṚV X/129/3-4 (Griffith’s translation)

According to the cosmogony outlined in this passage of our text, the sequence of emanation is preceded by the Transcendental Void, which is Absolute Being and Pure Consciousness that cannot be characterized in any way, even as Śiva or Śakti. Then, for no reason, the fundamental polarities form and Śiva's Śakti, understood to be his divine will, issues forth from him as the Command. This becames the Transmental that splits into two: transcendent Śiva and immanent Śakti. Thus, the emanation that issues from the union of the polarities is the result of a perpertual self-sustaining cycle of separation, union and transcendence of the opposites, in which the two – transcendence and immanence – paradoxically subsist together without contradiction or break, although, from our point of view, they come one after another and cancel each other out.

Kashmiri Śaiva cosmogony is also Kaula and so is basically the same, although couched in its own terminology. Thus Jayaratha writes (commentary on TĀ 3/67):

> The supreme reality is light itself. It is Anuttara of the nature of supreme reflective awareness. 'Unnameable' (Anākhya), it is full and cannot by given a particular designation such as Śiva or Śakti etc. That very (reality), desirous of manifesting the universe by its own innate freedom, initially manifests the nature of Śiva and Śakti within itself. As it is said:
>
> I always (sadā) offer salutations to the circle of rays of the Lord Absolute (Anuttara). (The circle) that is called Śiva and Śakti and bestows higher and lower fruits.

Similarly:

> Rudra and Rudra's power have dissolved into the 'Mindless' (Amanaska).

Moreover:

> O omniscient one, know that to be Kula, devoid of Śiva or Śakti, (as the reality) from which this varegiated universe arises and wherein it sets.

Akula, characterized as Śiva, is made manifest as that which is other than Kula, which is full supreme consciousness characterized in this way. He who shines, one with the Light, possesses that supreme (power) whose nature is to fill the universe. Thus (it is said that) 'his powers are the entire universe . . . '.

We find similar cosmogonies in the Purāṇas, although there the emergent energy through which the universe is created is normally identified with Prakṛti – as sometimes happens in the Kubjikā sources. In chapter thirteen we noted how the goddess Kubjikā is not only the energy of the Transmental Command, she is also Mahāmāyā who is identified with Prakṛti. The following example of a Purāṇic cosmogony, which explains how the city of Kāśī originated, is drawn from the Kāśīkhaṇḍa of the Skandapurāṇa (4/1/26/8-24). Note that, in this account, desire is the cause of the generation of the male deity from the formless Absolute and also the female from the god. As we find in one of the most famous Upaniṣadic cosmogonies, this desire arises because initially the Absolute felt alone:

> At the time of the ultimate annihilation, when all mobile and immobile beings had perished, everything was in great darkness without sun, stars or planets. [. . .] The Supreme Absolute alone existed. It is what the Śruti always refers to as Sat, Brahman and Ekam (Single). [. . .] It is beyond the reach of the mind; it is not an object of expression in any manner whatsoever. [. . .] It is Nirvikalpa ('having no difference of any sort'), Nirmāya ('free of Māyā') and Nirupadrava ('free from troubles'). This being, whose names are being considered variously and who was moving about alone, had a desire for a second (entity). Hence a form was evolved sportingly by that formless Being. [. . .] After evolving that pure divine form, the supreme being, known as the Brahman that is immutable and all-reaching, vanished. O my beloved, I am the form of that formless one which is called the Supreme Absolute. Both modern and ancient scholars call me Īśvara. Thereafter from my own body, a being that does not swerve away from my person, was created by myself, moving about as I pleased, though alone. It is you [O goddess] that I created. They call you Prakṛti and Pradhāna; the greatest Māyā, possessor of all attributes. [. . .] Simultaneously, [Kāśī] this holy spot was created by me, the primordial Puruṣa, one in the form of eternal Time; in the company of you, the Śakti. (translation by Tagare)

19. Cf. 35/78cd-79.

20. The expression here is 'vṛddhatvaṁ samupāgatā' – lit. '(she) became old'.

21. The Transmission of the Skyfarer is the Transmission of the union of Śiva and Śakti which emerges in between. See above 28/138cd-139ab.

22. Concerning the deviant ambā > avvā, see intro. vol. 3, p. 277 ff., cf. below 28/162cd-164.

23. Concerning the goddess's six faces and limbs see above 10/28-41.

24. The Octad of Kula, i.e. the Eight Mothers, is described above in 14/93-94, especially 16/3 ff. and notes.

25. In this setup, the Wheel in the navel is an eight-petalled lotus. There is an eight-petalled lotus on each petal and a ninth in the centre. Forms of Navātman mantra are projected onto these lotuses, each of which is presided over by a Bhairava. In this arrangement the Mothers are, presumably, the consorts of the Bhairavas of these lotuses and they are thus all related to Navātman. This is perhaps why Cāmuṇḍā has been inserted in the scheme outlined in this passage as an extra Mother to make nine, rather than the usual eight.

26. I suppose that the three seed-syllables are the first three Praṇavas AIṀ HRĪṀ ŚRĪṀ, which are sometimes found together as a triad.

27. See 25/5-7ab.

28. In other words, the form of each mantra is as follows: Five Praṇavas > name of the goddess > AVVĀ > -PĀDUKĀṀ VICCE. Often the Five Praṇavas are also added, in the reverse order (cf. above 7/34-35ab), at the end of a mantra, but this does not appear to be the case here. Thus, for example, the first mantra of the series of Mothers is:

AIṀ HRĪṀ ŚRĪṀ KHPHREṀ HSRŪAUṀ AḤ BRĀHMAṆĪ AVVĀ-PĀDUKĀṀ VICCE

NOTES OF THE SANSKRIT TEXT OF CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

1. MS ङ् ends here. All MSs: शिष्य 2. ख्, घ्, छ्, ज्, झ्: कृपा
3. क्, ख्, ङ्: कौलिनी 4. See above, note to 4/38c.
5. In the hymn that follows, many of the numerous epithets of the goddess are formed simply by adding long ‘a' to the noun stems and then addressing the goddess in the vocative. This is a standard way of reducing grammatical complexities. Compare the Māyāstava above 26/5ff.
6. क्: –गुह्यात्रस्थं; ग्: चस्थ; –अवस्था is equivalent to –स्था Cf. 29/5c.
7. ख्, घ्, छ्, ज्: –स्थो; ग्, झ्: त्रिकाणस्थो
8. वामान्तर– would be correct but does not fit the metre.
9. इच्छाशक्त्यधिष्ठिते is meant here but is one syllable too short.
10. All MSs: सृजते. The root सृज् is normally 1P and 6P but neither of the two regular forms (सृजति and स्रक्ष्यति) fit the metre.
11. ख्, ग्, घ्, ज्: सर्व 12. क्: * चरा– 13. छ्, ज्: विनि:क्रान्ते
14. क्, ग्: कामेश्वरी 15. छ्: महासिद्धचैरलंकृते 16. IM 6 + 7.
17. झ्: –प्रवाराद्यैभूषिते 18. क्, झ्: वज–. IM 6 + 7.
19. IM 6 + 7. 20. छ्: कर्परादिभिधूपैश्च; ज्, झ्: –भिधूपैश्च
21. IM 6 + 7. 22. क्: –जातीभि:नी–; ख्, ग्, ज्, झ्: –जातीभि:नाना–. The regular form, जातिभि:, does not fit the metre. नानाजातिकुसुमै: is what is meant here.
23. झ्: वन्दैश्च 24. छ्: मण्डरस्थे; झ्: मंडलस्थे; ग्: मंदरस्थं
25. IM 6 + 7. All MSs: पंचाशलिंगजननी 26. All MSs: –वासिनी
27. छ्: त्रं (?) व 28. झ्: पुलिङ्गं
29. M → N. See above, note to 3/46b. 30. झ्: रत्नौ–
31. All MSs: स्नातुं 32. घ्, छ्: मया–. M → N.
33. ख्, ज्, झ्: भुतिं; घ्, छ्: भुति 34. Missing in MS ख् 35. All MSs: नाममिह
36. All MSs: –शक्त्या. Once again तेजस् is treated as if it were a thematic noun. See above, note to 4/11d. 37. M → N. 38. झ्: पारम्पर्य–
39. All MSs: मन्त्रोपदेशश्च 40. M → N. See above, note to 1/7d.
41. मयि would be correct. 42. All MSs: मार्गा 43. मम is apparently what is meant here but is too long for the metre and so has been reduced to माम्.
44. IM 5. 45. All MSs: –ज्ञान 46. छ्: सुदुल्लभं
47. क्: –मात्रेस्तु; ग्: –मात्रेन 48. ग्: कलै; all other MSs except क्: कलि
49. छ्, ज्: –य 50. छ्: श्रीवक्रोवाच 51. ख्, झ्: मूढ–
52. छ्, ज्, झ्: अतिगुप्तं 53. झ्: रकणीयं 54. ज्, झ्: चौरभ्यो
55. See above, note to 4/11d.
56. छ्, ज्, झ्: विनि:क्रन्ता; परतेजसो विनिष्क्रान्ता would be correct but disturbs the metre. 57. झ्: वम 58. छ्, ज्, झ्: स्थिता
59. छ्: तन्मध्ये– 60. All MSs except घ्, झ्, छ्: –भुव–
61. Missing in MSs क् and ग्. 62. –राशिषु would be correct but makes the seventh syllable short.
63. I take this to be a shortened form of स्थितानि, agreeing with क्षेत्राणि in the next line.
64. छ्: चत्वराणि. चत्वारि is the regular form of the nominative neuter of चतुर्.
65. IM 6 + 7. 66. झ्: यतत् 67. छ्, ज्: संघरिष्याम्यहं

68. ख्, झ्: गुह्या 69. ज्: ह्रदिस् 70. घ्, छ्: गुह्ये
71. छ्, ज्: सृणु 72. All MSs except ख्, झ्: मुर्त्ति
73. All MSs: यत् 74. छ्: –तं
75. YKh (1): क्, ख्: तं; घ्: त; ङ्: तत् 76. YKh (1): ङ्: वेहं
77. YKh (1): कथयिष्यामि (ख्: कथा–)
78. YKh (1): तव भक्तस्य शंकर 79. YKh (1): क्, ख्, घ्: * ता
80. YKh (1): क्, ख्: रुद्रैं खंडं; घ्: रुद्रैखडं
81. YKh (1): क्, घ्: –वर्णिनी; ङ्: ज्ञानातु–
82. YKh (1): क्, ख्, घ्: –ख्य; ङ्: कामाक्षे
83. YKh (1): क्, ख्, घ्: समाया 84. YKh (1): क्, ख्, घ्: तु
85. YKh (1): घ्: पूर्वके 86. YKh (1): क्, ख्, घ्: योग–
87. छ्: –र; YKh (1): क्, घ्: डंकार; ख्: डंका *; ङ्: ॐकार
88. M → N. See above, note to 1/2c. 89. YKh (1): क्, घ्: जुगे
90. YKh (1): क्, घ्: जुगे; ख्: यु * 91. YKh (1): क्, ख्, घ्:
ऊलिना; ङ्: उलीनां 92. ग्: गोप्रवर्गे; YKh (1): घ्: –स्मि 93. YKh (1):
क्, ख्, घ्: सासने; ङ्: मागन 94. YKh (1): घ्: यका– 95. YKh (1): देव (ङ्:
वेद) 96. YKh (1): पूर्वमेव निदर्शिता (क्: –तां; ख्: निर्दर्शिता)
97. YKh (1): क्, ख्, घ्: ताता; ङ्: तां
98. YKh (1): क्, ख्, घ्: –म्यंहं 99. झ्: सम्यकू; YKh (1): क्, ख्, घ्: सम्यकु
100. YKh (1): क्, ख्, घ्: सुसूक्ष्मं; ङ्: सुशुक्ष्मां
101. ख्, छ्, ज्, झ्: –यां; YKh (1): क्, ख्, घ्: लक्षमध्ययं; ङ्: लक्षमव्ययं
102. छ्, ज्: किंचि 103. YKh (1): दृश्यते किञ्चिदुन्नता (ङ्: –दुत्तमा)
104. YKh (1): क्, ख्, घ्: –मां 105. YKh (1): क्, ख्, घ्: वीरभस्मावगुण्ठितां; ङ्:
वीरभस्मसमप्रभा
106. Missing in MS झ्; all other MSs except छ्: षट्वक्त्रा; YKh (1): क्, ख्, घ्:
षट्वक्त्रा 107. YKh (1): क्, ख्, घ्: नास्ति 108. YKh (1): क्, ख्, घ्: चिछक्त्यंतर–; ङ्: चिछक्त्या च स्वारिणी 109. YKh (1): नेत्रैरष्टादशैर्युक्ता (ख्: –दशैयुक्ता; ङ्:
–युक्त). Cf. 31/95c and note to 3/108b. 110. YKh (1): क्:
–वलाकिनी; घ्: वतुलैश्चावलाकिनी; ङ्: वित्तलैश्चवलाकिनी 111. झ्: द्वादश च; YKh
(1): ङ्: द्वादशै च + तुर्. See above, note to 6/67c. 112. YKh (1): ङ्:
भुजैयुक्ता 113. झ्: –सिंहासना * *; YKh (1): क्, ख्, घ्: –नां 114. YKh (1): क्, ख्, घ्: –भूषितां; ङ्: –भूषिता 115. झ्: कुलकौटि–; all MSs: –सहस्रस्य।
सहस्रकोटिकुलानाम् would be correct. 116. YKh (1): क्, ख्, घ्: –सासन 117.
YKh (1): क्, ख्, घ्: तस्या; ङ्: स * 118. YKh (1): घ्: –नोक्त. The ending of the first compound has been dropped for the metre leading to the formation of another, irregular one. 119. छ्: दुल्लभं 120. YKh (1): क्, ख्: अनंत; ङ्: अयन्त. As usual this and the following masculine proper names are treated as neuter. 121. YKh (1): क्, घ्: पादपादयोनित्यं; ख्: पादयोनित्यं
122. All MSs: नुपूरो–. घ्: –परिमण्डलम्; छ्, ज्: –नं; YKh (1): क्, ख्, घ्: रूपुरोपरिमण्डितं; ङ्: नूपुरोपरिमण्डितं 123. All MSs: –यो
124. क्, ख्: विराजिते; छ्: –जत; YKh (1); कार्कोटं (घ्: –ट; ङ्: ककीटा) मेखलाबन्धं (ङ्:
–लावंवं) कटिदेशे विराजते (क्, ख्, घ्: विनाजते) 125. झ्: कक्कोटकं
126. ज्, झ्: कर्णो. A locative is meant here. 127. IM 5. All MSs:
देव्या 128. छ्: –व; YKh (1): तक्षकश्चावतंसश्च (क्, घ्: –कश्चवांतश्च; ख्: तक्षकश्चवांतं च; ङ्: तक्षकश्चोपवीनं
च) कण्ठहारश्च (क्, ख्, घ्: –हार; ङ्: कंठेहारस्तु) वासुकिः (क्, ख्, घ्: वास्तकिः; ङ्: –की)।

129. क्: –नासो; all other MSs: नासा 130. क्, ख्, ग्: खर्जुरैद्रिका–; घ्, छ्: कर्जुरैमुद्रिका–
131. क्, ख्, ग्, झ्: कानाग–. IC. 132. All MSs: भूदण्डे This emendation agrees with the reading in YKh (1). 133. All MSs except ग्, छ्, झ्: संस्थितो; YKh
(1): क्, ख्, घ्: –तं; ङ्: –ते 134. ख्, ग्, ज्, झ्: पद्म:; YKh (1): पद्मं. N → M.
135. YKh (1): –पद्मं 136. YKh (1): तथैव च 137. झ्: खत्वाङ्गं. IM 6 +
7. This and all the nouns in this and the following lines have a final anusvāra added to them, giving them the appearance of neuter and accusative singulars.
138. घ्, छ्: * * मभयं 139. IM 6 + 7.
140. This line is found only in manuscripts घ् and छ्.
141. Missing in MS घ् and छ् 142. M → N.
143. All MSs: क्रम–; YKh (1): चाक्षसूत्रं (ङ्: चक्षु–) च अमरीद्रव्यपञ्चकं
144. शिरसि would be correct but too long for the metre.
145. YKh (1): तस्या: 146. YKh (1): क्, ख्, घ्: पीयुषोद्यप्रवर्षणीं; ङ्:
पीयूषोद्यप्रवर्षनी 147. YKh (1) adds: वर्णमाला गले (क्, ख्, घ्: मले)
देव्यायावत् (क्, ख्, घ्: व्यावत्) पादतलं (क्, ख्, घ्: –ले; ङ्: पाद * ले) स्थिता (क्, घ्: स्थता)।
148. YKh (1): वृश्चिकैश्च (ख्: + श्च) गले हारं. M → N. 149. YKh (1): ङ्:
सातेद्वनि 150. YKh (1): क्: पूर्व्व 151. YKh (1): मूर्तिस्थं (ङ्: मूर्द्धनिस्थं)
152. झ्: रा * ते 153. YKh (1): ङ्: –ववलं
154. YKh (1): क्, ख्, घ्: कान्तं; ङ्: काशं
155. YKh (1): चन्द्रकोटिसमप्रभं. The word ' सप्तदशीश is invariably spelt सप्तादशी in this text. See above, note to 5/63d. The order of the first two words of this compound has been reversed.
156. YKh (1) adds: श्रवन्तममृतौघं (क्, घ्: –द्यं; ङ्: –मृतोघं) तु कलामष्टादशीयुतं।
157. छ्: मूद्धिन 158. YKh (1): क्, ख्, घ्: ऊर्ध्ववक्त्रं; ङ्: दूर्द्धचन्द्रं
159. छ्: गगणं 160. छ्, ज्: –मूर्ति; YKh (1): श्वेतरूपं विभागेन
सुरासुरनमस्कृतं (ङ्: –नमस्तुते)। 161. All MSs: पान्दुरं; YKh (1): ख्: पांद्रुरं; ङ्: पादुरं
162. All MSs: क्रुद्ध–. The dropping of anusvāra to keep the fifth syllable short has led to the formation of this irregular compound.
163. घ्: सिद्धि–; YKh (1): क्, घ्: –रिख्यातं; ङ्: –योगीश्वरीख्यातं
164. YKh (1): सिद्धयोगिनिसेवितं (ङ्: –शेवितं)
165. क्, ख्, ग्, ज्, झ्: दक्षिणं 166. छ्: दष्ट्रा; other MSs: दंष्ट्रा. IM 5 167a. छ्, ज्: किंचिदुक्ता– 167b. It appears that the ending of this word has been dropped and sandhi has taken place with the following word.
168. छ्: –मां 169. झ्: माक्ष–
170. क्, ख्, घ्, छ्, ज्: स्वच्छं–; ग्: स्वच्छे
171. Accusatives have taken the place of nominatives here to maintain the rhythm of the final nasalisation of the words in these verses.
172. See above, note to 4/11d. 173. All MSs: –सहस्राभां
174. All MSs: –रूपिणीम् 175. तेजस् has be thematized and the order of the words in this compound reversed. See above, note to 4/11d.
176. छ्, ज्, झ्: दु:प्रेक्ष्यं 177. छ्, ज्: –तुल्योभौ 178. छ्, ज्, झ्: सर्व
179. छ्: संघारयेत्; ज्: संघारयत् 180. छ्, ज्: येव
181. YKh (1): स्वर्गं (ख्: श्वर्गं; घ्, ङ्: स्वर्ग) चाष्टविधं (क्, ख्, घ्: –विध्वं) प्रोक्तं प्रेतस्योपरि (क्, घ्: प्रतस्यौपरि; ख्: प्रेतस्यौ–) आसनं (ङ्: आशनं)।
182. YKh (1): जङ्घने {क्, ख्, घ्, ङ्: जघने} पार्थिवं तत्त्वं आपो (क्, घ्: आपा) नाभ्यां व्यवस्थितम्

(क्, ख्, घ्ः नास्ति)। 183. YKh (1): वायु कंठे विजानतः. M → N.
184. YKh (1): क्, ख्, घ्ः नास्ति 185. YKh (1): च 186. YKh (1): ललाटे तु
187. IC. 188. YKh (1): तत्र सर्व व्यवस्थितं 189. M → N.
190. ङ्, झ्ः याशस्विनी 191. छ्ः –नां
192. झ्ः तेन–. See above, note to 4/11d.
193. छ्ः ध्याये 194. YKh (1) and All MSs: स
195. YKh (1): ङ्ः –तार् 196. YKh (1): क्, ख्, घ्ः जगद्गुरु; ङ्ः जगत्पते
197. YKh (1): ङ्ः –श 198. YKh (1): क्, ख्, घ्ः तु
199. All MSs except ङ्, छ्, झ्ः ह–
200. YKh (1): ऊलिवर्गे (घ्ः उलि–) 201. YKh (1): आज्ञा ददति कोंकणै (ङ्ः कोङ्कणे)
202. घ्, छ्ः आज्ञा 203. YKh (1): ङ्ः नास्ति 204. Missing in MS घ् from here to अव्वाक्रमभाषिते. 205. क्, छ्ः –पारमेश्वर; ख्, झ्ः –परमेश्वरे

NOTES OF THE TRANSLATION OF CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

1. The god says that he is the goddess's disciple by his very nature. Their relationship is not just a possible one, as between husband and wife; it is an inherent one. The goddess is not just the god's consort; she is also his mother and, as such, his teacher. Cf. 5/8-14.

2. The Root is above, grounded in the transcendent. The Cave is the Void of the Liṅga (58/7cd-8ab). The Root is the Point and its foundation, the transcendent.

3. The goddess is praised in these two verses as Kuṇḍalinī. As such she has two aspects. Borrowing the terminology of the Kashmiri Śaiva texts, we may call them the upper (ūrdhva) Kuṇḍalinī and the other the lower (adhaḥ) one. These two correspond to her two movements of 'going and coming' (see 3/124 n. 161). In both aspects she resides in a triangle. The upper one faces downwards and is in the End of the Twelve. The lower one faces upwards and is in the Cave of the Root. The Root (kanda), which is said to be the location of the triangle (trikoṇasthāna) is located 'below the navel' (nābhyadhaḥ) (see Schoterman 1981: 81). We have already had occasion to observe that, according to the Kubjikā Tantras, the 'root of the navel' is the location of Kuṇḍalinī when she sleeps in the body in the form of a coiled snake (see above 3/120-121 and below 58/93cd-94ab and 59/75cd-76).

4. This is the seat of the Age of Strife. It replicates the entire Triangle.

5. Cf. 3/46.

6. The Great Jewel is the Circle of the Navel where Kuṇḍalinī resides and so, by extension, is a name of Kuṇḍalinī to whom this hymn is addressed.

7. Brahmā, Viṣṇu and Śambhu are the lords of the three energies, Vāmā, Jyeṣṭhā and Raudrī. The three couples emerge from the unmanifest energy of the goddess to form the triangle that surrounds her and contains her 50 energies that constitute Speech. The form and nature of this Triangle has been discussed above (see 7/12-15ab). Here this Triangle is called the Heart of the Yoginī. There it is called the House of the Yoginī.

8. This is the syllable HSKHPHREṀ; see above 9/1 ff. and notes.

9. This is the triangle in the centre of the maṇḍala. It is called this because it is formed by the energy of the three gestures corresponding to the three sacred seats (see notes 2/14 and 3/48, 8/87). In the KMT and its expansions, the ŚM and the ṢSS, the three Gestures are described in great detail each in three aspects, namely, gross, subtle and supreme. They are: Yonimudrā, Padmamudrā and Triśikhāmudrā. There they are are not specifically associated with sacred seats as is the standard practice in later Kubjikā sources. Note that here the model is triadic; there are only three sacred seats. In this case, I suppose that this is simply to accommodate the standard set of three Gestures. As usual in the triadic model, Jālandhara is missing.

10. See chapter 20.

11. This is HSKHPHREṀ. It is explained in 9/1 ff. The 'goal' is the Point in the centre of the Triangle.

12. Two other forms of the goddess are described in our text. One is Juṣṭacaṇḍālinī Kubjikā who is described in chapter 49 (23cd-40ab). The other is Ciñcinī described in chapter 68 (1-19). The first is the goddess of the Transmission of the Aged. The second is the goddess of the Transmission of the Youth and the one described in this chapter is the goddess of the Transmission of the Child. The Kubjikā of the Transmission of the Child is Kāmeśvarī with six faces and twelve arms. The Kubjikā of the Transmission of the Youth is Tripurā with six faces and eighteen arms. The Kubjikā of the Transmission of the Aged is Mātaṅgi with six faces and six arms. All three forms are drawn from as many sūtras in the YKh (1) (chapter 19). The visualized form described in this chapter is very similar to the one in the Agnipurāṇa (144/30cd-37 quoted by de Mallman 1963: 287 and described ibid. 159-160). There she is called Vajrakubjinī or Vahnikubjinī. The latter name is probably a scribal error for the former. It appears that when the goddess is worshipped in her basic form without reference to the Lineages, this is the one. Concerning the visualized forms of the goddess in the Transmissions described in the Kubjikā Tantras, see intro. vol. 2 p. 142 ff..

13. The Ṭīkā (fl. 9a ff.) describes and explains this visualized form of Kubjikā, who is called there Kukārākṣā devī (the goddess of the syllable KU).

14. The Ṭīkā (ibid.) adds that she is not only dark blue in colour (śyāmavarṇa), but also red in lustre (raktacchavī).

15. The Ṭīkā adds that she is Kuṇḍalinī.

16. In relation to the goddess dwelling in the body, that is, Kuṇḍalinī, these are the Six Wheels in which the goddess resides and from which she radiates her phonemic energies.

17. According to the ṢSS (47/136cd-142), the goddess's eighteen eyes and six faces correspond to the vital breaths and the channels (nāḍī) that convey them. In the left, right and middle eyes of each face, they are as follows:

1) Upper face: Prāṇa – Iḍā, Piṅgalā and Suṣumṇā.
2) Eastern face: Apāna – Nāga, Gāndharī and Kūrma.
3) Northern face: Samanā – Gajajihvā, Puṣā and Kṛkarā.
4) Southern face: Udāna – Paśa, Alambuṣā and Devadatta
5) Western face: Kiṁkuvā (variant: Kujā), Śaṅkhinyā and Dhanañjayā.

I have (thus) told you these, the divine eyes of (the goddess's) faces. They are (aspects of the) pervasion of awakened (yogis). If they are unknown they delude (the unawakened). They are the instruments the adept should view through which the body is produced. Without them the embodied cannot attain an excellent body.

Above that is the goddess's (Krama) beginning and ending with groups of four present in the emanation (sṛṣti). The sixth face is unmanifest, pervasive and facing everywhere. O mistress of the heroes, I have explained the goddess's six faces. The lower face is called (the face of) the netherworld and its purpose is said to be creation.

Commentary: The sixth face is the Face of the Void (khavaktra). The seventh is the lower face. It is the face of emanation (and is called) the Face of Picu.

O goddess, it is said in the Śrīmata that this (is the place where) the sacrifice of the Six Paths (that constitute the universe) takes place. This is the Krama, O mistress of the gods, the imperishable world (pura) within the body. (All) effort in this world is useless for those who do not know (this). How can those who do not practice the inner sacrifice (attain) liberation in the (teachings of) the Kula tradition? O goddess, how can there be liberation if there is no inner sacrifice?

etāni vaktranetrāṇi devyās tu [k kh: divyāstu] kathitāni te ||
vyāptibhūtāḥ prabuddhānām ajñānād [kh: -nāṁ] bhramakārakāḥ [k kh: -kāṁ] |
dehaniṣpattikaraṇā [k kh: -ṇaṁ] draṣṭavyāḥ [k kh: -vyā] sādhakena [k kh: savakena] tu ||
taiś ca [k kh: taccair] vinā na siddhyate [k kh: -nti] dehināṁ deham uttamam |
tadūrdhve [k kh: tadārddhe] sṛṣṭigaṁ [k kh: -tā] devyācatuṣkādicatuṣkāntam [k kh: -catuṣkakam] ||
avyaktaṁ ṣaṣṭhamaṁ vaktraṁ vyāpakaṁ sarvatomukham |
ṣaḍvaktrāś ca mayākhyātā [k kh: mahā-] devyāyā [k kh: -yāṁ] vīranāyake ||
pātālākhyam [k kh: -kṣam] adhovaktraṁ sṛṣṭyarthaṁ [k kh: sṛṣṭā-] saṁprakīrtitam |
ṣaḍadhvayajanaṁ [k kh: -jananaṁ] devi śrīmate saṁprakīrtitam ||
*etat kramaṁ tu deveśi dehasthapuram ākhyātam [k kh: ā * ] |
ye na jānanti loke 'smin vṛthā teṣāṁ pariśramam [k kh:-me] ||
antaryāgavihīnānāṁ kathaṁ muktiḥ [k kh: mukti] kulānvaye | ṢSS 47/139cd-145

The nāḍīs are listed below in KuKh 40/33-34. See the notes there concerning them and the forms of the vital breath.

18. According to the Ṭīkā (fl. 13a) the goddess's seat is made of eight types of beings, namely, gods, Dānavas, Nāgas, Yakṣas, Rākṣasas, Gandharvas, ghosts (bhūta), and planets. The word for 'ghost' – 'preta' – literally means 'one who has gone forth'. This is the name given to a dead person who is in an intermediate state between the living condition and that of an ‘ancestor' (pitṛ). This state normally lasts for thirteen days from the time of death. If for some reason the individual fails to make the transition to the state of an ancestor, he remains in the world of the living as a ghost. The goddess or god may have a ghost of this sort as a vehicle on which they stand (in the case of Kālabhairava, for example) or sit. They may be ghosts of human beings, or sometimes demons, but more usually, they are deities. These ghosts are almost always males. An interesting exception is the Buddhist deity Ekajāta who stands on a female ghost and, garlanded with the heads of female ghouls, brandishes the corpse of a woman. The five ghosts on which Tripurā sits are the five deities corresponding to the Five Praṇavas. One form of Guhyakālī also sits on these five (see Mahākālasaṁhitā Guhyakālīkhaṇḍa 1/44b-45). In her ten-armed form she sits on a lotus throne which is on top of Śiva. He lies prone on a lotus that emerges from Brahmā's navel, who lies below it. Kāmakhyā has a similar form. In this case, Śiva lies prone on a lion and a lotus emerges from his navel on which the goddess sits. Kubjikā's seat is also sometimes described in this way. This is the case in the visualized form described in the AP on which de Mallmann (1963: 226) comments: ‘Kubjikā's throne is superimposed on lions, a corpse and a lotus. In this strange description one should probably recognised a seat analogous to that of Cāmuṇḍā of Patna and Dinajpur. There one can distinguish certain elements of a throne, vegetal motifs and an extended body on which the goddess is sitting or on which she rests one of her feet.’

The symbolism is extensive. In the case of a female deity of this sort, it indicates that she is the active energy of the male deity on which she sits, sometimes even in sexual union. In the first five Wheels within the body where the Five Praṇavas are located, amongst other things, the corresponding deities become passive ‘lifeless' ghosts when the goddess Kuṇḍalinī traverses them. She ‘sits' on the five, corresponding to the five Elements, when she reaches the Wheel of the Command. Beyond that are the higher spiritual principles that are ascending aspects of her nature culminating in the Transmental. Apart from the important symbolic dimension of such vehicles, they also serve by implication to indicate orders of seniority and power. Buddhist deities trample Hindu deities with abandon. An unusual example of the opposite is a rare form of Kālī called Tathāgatanāśakālī described in the Jayadrathayāmala. She tramples the body of a Buddha and wears a garland of Bodhisattvas’ heads. I am grateful to Prof. Sanderson for pointing this out to me.

19. The throne – siṁhāsana (‘lion seat’) – may literally be a lion. That Kubjikā sits on a throne indicates the she is, as de Mallman (1963: 220) observes, ‘assimilated to a royal personage.’ Indeed, despite her more rustic, folk, vegetal and low-caste associations as a Yakṣiṇī, Yoginī, Sweeper (Mātaṅgī) and tribal Śabarī, Kubjikā is a royal goddess, just as these beings to which she is so closely related attain to the status of royal attendants.

20. According to the Ṭīkā (fl. 9a), 'Kula' here means the body. Thus the goddess is 'in this Kula teaching the life of countless bodies, as the condition of the sustainer and the sustained'.

kulaśabdena śarīram | tasmāt kulakoṭīnāṁ [kh: -koṭināṁ] asaṁkhyānāṁ śarīrāṇām ādhārādheyabhāvena [k: -bhāvanā] jīvabhūtā asmin kulaśāsane |

21. Vinatā and Kadrū were two wives of Kaśyapa Prajāpati. Garuḍa was born as Vinatā's son and serpents like Ananta, Vāsuki, Takṣaka, and Kārkoṭaka were the sons of Kadrū. Ananta practiced austerities in various sacred places, for which Brahmā granted him the boon that he would support the world on his hoods. This he does from the bottom of the hell-worlds where, according to the Viṣṇupurāṇa, a tāmasika form of Viṣṇu called Ādiśeṣa Ananta resides. As the deluge at the end of a cosmic Age approaches, Kālāgni Rudra emanates from the faces of Ananta and consumes the three worlds. (cf. TĀ 6/140. For the corresponding inner microcosmic process, see my Doctrine of Vibration p. 211 and Aphorisms of Śiva p. 103-4.) As none can gauge the extent of his nature, shape and prowess, he is called Endless – Ananta (See Mani 1984: 34-35). Viṣṇu lies on him in the cosmic ocean that subsists between one creation and another.

Tantric cosmology, like the Purāṇic, locates Ananta in the hells from where he supports the world. Personifying the netherworlds (de Mallmann 1963 : 199), he is one of the supports of the divine throne. Closely associated with the lower region, he is the tenth of the ten guardians of the quarters (dikpāla) and guards the nadir. Similarly, drawing from Tantric sources, Abhinavagupta (TĀ 8/21-22ab) explains that:

Ananta is the leader of the Rudras of the Hells (lit. the 'frying pan') who are dedicated to sexual passion. He is seated in a boat in the water, drunk with wine; surrounded by snakes, he meditates on Bhairava.

22. Takṣaka is well known as the snake who killed king Parīkṣit who had been cursed to die by his bite. Parīkṣit's son, Janamejaya, in order to avenge his father, arranged a 'snake sacrifice' (sarpasatra) to attract the snake gods and then burnt them in the sacrificial fire. But Takṣaka, due his friendship with Indra, survived. (Mani 1984: 782-783)

23. This snake cheated the sage Nārada who, angered by this, cursed him that he would be paralysed and remain in the forest until Nala came to free him. (MhB Vanaparva, chapter 66, Mani 1984: 390-391)

24. The snake Vāsuki is famous for his great length and size. He was used by the gods and demons as the rope to churn the ocean of milk.

25. These are a standard group of snake gods who are considered to be particularly important. The snake ornaments of the goddess clearly indicate that she is the mistress of snakes. It seems natural that as Kuṇḍalinī, 'the serpent power', she should be a snake goddess (nāginī), but I have never come across this association.

26. The MSs of the KuKh read 'bhūdaṇḍa-' lit. 'the rod of the earth'. This reading has been emended to accord with the reading of YKh (1) which is the source and makes more sense. However, the Ṭīkā retains the corrupt reading which, somewhat forcedly, understands the expression to refer to the goddess's arm. Thus the Ṭīkā (fl. 9b) comments: 'Padma and Mahāpadma are on the two arms, the left and the right' (padmamahāpadmau [k, kh: -padmo] vāmadakṣiṇe bāhudvaye).

These seven snake gods make up a group of Great Snakes (mahānāga) (see de Mallmann 1963: 196-197). Sometimes Śaṅkhapāla or Kūrma is added to them to make a group of eight. According to the KuKauM there are two snakes of each caste (3/256cd-274ab; cf. de Mallmann 1963: 198). These are:
1 + 2) Two Brahmin snakes ('Kulikas'): Śveta and Karmavibhūṣaṇa
3 + 4) Two Kṣatrīya snakes: Vāsuki and Śaṁkha
5 + 6) Two Vaiśya snakes: Mahāvrata and Kṣākhya
7 + 8) Two Śūdra snakes: Karkoṭa and Padma.

27. A khaṭvaṅga is literally the leg (aṅga) of a bed (kaṭu). De Mallmann (1963: 245-246) explains: 'The word, constructed in the same way as a rathāṅga, a wheel, originally meant the leg of a bed, or of the bier used to carry bodies to burn. It appears that it can also denote the platform of this same bier [Īśānaśivagurudevapaddhati 3/43/114]. According to the Tantrasamuccaya [6/137], the effective use of a khaṭvāṅga is that of a club. Even so, in iconographic texts, it is never represented in this way. It is usually figured in the form of a fleshless skull attatched to a tibia: above that it is that of some kind of demon whose grotesque head is replaced by the head of a dead man. The whole is transformed into a 'magic wand', which is attributed exclusively to deities of a sombre nature, that are related to funeral pyres, cremation grounds and cemetaries.'

28. When female beings or goddesses hold mirrors, they are usually part of their cosmetic set. Accordingly in many visualized forms, they also hold a stick used to apply collyrium to the eyes (śalākā). In this case the mirror serves a different function. By means of this mirror, the goddess makes fettered souls see the consequences of their actions. One is reminded of the mirror held by the Buddhist Lord of Death in which the dead view the reflection of their own Karma and judge themselves accordingly.

29. The Ṭīkā presents as many as seven different lists of the goddess's twelve attributes drawn from various sources.
1) The following three are listed in an incomplete line of verse: a skull, rosary, and the Five Potions of Immortality (amarīdravya). The commentator goes on to list the attributes as follows: ascetic's staff, razor, fetter, gesture of fearlessness, rosary and book are in the hands on the left side. A skull, a boon-bestowing gesture, spear, goad, mirror, and sword are on the right.

2) A skull, a book, a pointing finger, jewel ring, ascetic's staff, and the Five Potions of Immortality (amarīdravya) in the left hands. The right hands hold a rosary, trident, sword, a kind of snake (saṅkhapāla), fetter, and a razor. This list adds a seventh, namely, a jar 'made of the fifty principles', which is filled with Soma and wine (surā).
3) A third variant set is recorded in three lines quoted from the Bṛhadāgama and the Kulamuṣṭā. These are: an ascetic's staff, fetter, gesture of fearlessness, rosary, book, and dagger (kaṭṭāraka) in the left hands. A skull, a boon-bestowing gesture, trident, goad, mirror, and sword in the right hands. The skull is large and filled with the Five Potions of Immortality (amarīdravya). On the arm that holds it hangs a garland of wish-granting gems.
4) Next the commentator lists what he considers to be the attributes as follows: an ascetic's staff, skull, a boon-bestowing gesture, fetter, book and mirror in the left hands. A rosary, the gesture of fearlessness, a goad, trident, sword, and dagger in the right hands.
5) Rūpaśiva then quotes another list of attributes, which he says is recorded 'elsewhere' in another Tantra. These are: a skull, boon-bestowing gesture, fetter, book, mirror, and ascetic's staff on the left. Rosary, the gesture of fearlessness, goad, trident, sword, and dagger on the right. To each of these attributes corresponds a gesture (mudrā) the devotee makes as he visualizes the goddess. Ṭīkā fl. 9b-10a
6) Referring again to the Bṛhadāgama and the Kulamuṣṭā, Rūpaśiva lists another set of attributes, namely: a fetter, rosary, book, dagger, skull, trident, lance (karpaṇa), sword, the five potions of immortality, and the Five Jewels.
7) Finally, referring generically to 'other views' (mata), Rūpaśiva lists the following attributes: a skull, rosary, the boon-bestowing gesture, the gesture of fearlessness, fetter, goad, book, trident, mirror, sword, ascetic's staff, and razor. (ibid. 10b-11a).

30. The Ṭīkā (fl. 65a) explains, in the course of describing how the teacher performs the Worship of the Krama (kramapūjana):

With what? (He does so) with the (sacrificial) substance (of the) Immortals (amarīdravya). Brahmā, Viṣṇu. Rudra, Īśvara and Sadāśiva are in the sacrificial substance of the Immortals. (They are said to be) the Five Potions of Immortality (amarīdravyapañcaka). That is (now going, to be) explained. They are the main secretions (viśvakṣāra) (of the body), namely, urine (prasrava), blood (śoṇita), feces (nāla) (lit. yellow orpiment), clarified butter (ajyā), and semen (śukra). Once (the body has been) smeared (udvartana) with the Five Potions of Immortality (as one would with fragrant ointments), one should worship this Tantra of the Hidden Liṅga, which is the Western Tradition. . . . The sacrificial vessel (arghapātra) should be prepared with these same Five Potions of Immortality. First of all (the body is) smeared with (the contents of that) same sacrificial vessel. Then having prepared one's own body to a degree by means of that very vessel, one should worship according to the Krama of the Secret Liṅga. Then, with that same vessel, purified with mantra, once the body has been again prepared, he should eat (what is in) it.

kena | amarīdravyeṇa [k kh: -tantreṇa] | tadamarīdravye [k: tat | amarītantre; kh: tat | amarītantra] brahmaviṣṇurudreśvarasadāśivāntāḥ | amarīdravyapañcakam | tac ca [k kh: teca] kathyate yathā | viśvakṣāraprasravaśoṇitanālājyāśukrāḥ [k kh: prasraviṁ śroṇitam | -śukra] iti amarī | iti amarīdravyapañcakena udvartanaṁ kṛtvā tataḥ idaṁ guptaliṅgatantraṁ paścimakramaṁ pūjayet | . . . anena amarīdravyapañcakena arghapātraṁ kārayet | prathamataḥ tenaivārghapātreṇa udvartya | īśat svaśarīrasamārabhya tatas tenaivārghapātreṇa [kh: tataḥ tenaivārghe-] guptaliṅgakrame [k kh: guptā-] pūjanaṁ kārayet | tatas tenaiva punaḥ mantrapūtenārghapātreṇa punaḥ śarīraṁ samārabhya [k kh: -labhya] tataḥ pātram āharet | Ṭīkā fl. 65a

There are two groups of such sacrificial substances. One consists of five and the other of nine constituents. They are given to the disciple when he receives a name at the conclusion of his initiation. They five are: 1) blood 2) meat 3) bone 4) marrow ('that comes from a skull' – kapālodbhūta) 5) skin. The Ṭīkā glosses this entry as 'kṛtti'. This is 'a hide or garment made of skin; the hide or skin in which the religious student sits or sleeps' (Monier-Williams p. 304).

The nine substances are: 1) Scent – this is (a mixture of) the main secretions of the body (viśvakṣāra). 2) A flower – this is the 'flower of the vagina', that is (menstrual) blood. 3) Water – this is Śiva's water (i.e. urine). 4) Viṣṇu – (woman's ?) urine. 5) Accomplished Meaning (siddhārtha) – 'Meaning' is a word by which one accomplishes that (and so denotes) the locus of the tongue where that Accomplished Meaning, which is spittle, is located. 6) Ecstacy (harṣaṇa) – this is wine (surā). 7) Meat. 8) The Moon – this is Indra's sperm. 9) Sandalwood – this is feces.

gandha iti viśvakṣāram 1 | puṣpam iti [k kh: puṣpa iti] yonipuṣpaṁ raktam 2 | ambu iti [kh: + iti] śivāmbu 3 | viṣṇur mūtram [kh: -sūtraṁ] 4 | siddhārtha iti arthaḥ [k kh: arthāḥ] śabdaḥ [k kh: śabdāḥ] yasmāt siddhyate [k kh: -ti] taṁ jihvāsthānaṁ tatra yad bhavati sa [k kh: sā] siddhārthaḥ [k kh: siddhārthāḥ] lālā 5 | [k, kh: + muditā iti hṛdayaṁ 5 | gaṁdha puṣpaṁ aṁvu siddhārtha |] harṣaṇaṁ iti surā 6 | āmiṣam [kh: āmiyaṁ] iti māṁsam [kh: māsaṁ] 7 | candra indraśukraṁ 8 | candanam [k: candana; kh: cadana] iti viṣā [k, kh: viśā] 9 | iti navadravyāḥ | Ṭīkā fl. 79b

31. This is the Trikhaṇḍā Vidyā. Originally a Trika Vidyā, it is considered to be so important in the Kubjikā tradition that the texts refer to Trikhaṇḍā as the Goddess of the Samayā, just as Kubjikā is. The name of this Vidyā is called 'Trikhaṇḍā' because its fifty 'parts' (pada) and 292 syllables are divided into three sections (khaṇḍa). These are: 1) the Stutikhaṇḍa, 2) Mātṛkhaṇḍa and the 3) Mantrakhaṇḍa which are also called the 1) Brahmakhaṇḍa, 2) Viṣṇukhaṇḍa and 3) Rudrakhaṇḍa, respectively

32. According to the Ṭīkā the goddess wears a garland that extends to her feet consisting of the thirty-four consonants. Thus, along with the garland of vowels around her head, all the letters adorn her. The Ṭīkā refers to the goddess's necklace of scorpions but does not associate it with the letters. Here, the fifty scorpions probably symbolize all the fifty letters.

asya parameśvarī akārādivisargāntasvaraṣoḍaśakena śiromālā kṛtā | tathā kādikṣāntavarṇacatustriṁśāṅgulā [k kh: -la] kaṇṭhe mālā pādatalāvadhiḥ śobhārthe kṛtā [k kh: kṛtāḥ] tathā vṛścikahāraṁ [k: phāraṁ] gale ity ābharaṇam | Ṭīkā fl. 11a.

33. The faces of the goddess are described in the Ṭīkā (fl 11b-13a) and in six short sūtras in YKh (1) (19/57 ff.). The sixty-four Yoginīs associated with the six faces incorporated into the depositions of the goddess's faces (vaktraṣaṭkanyāsa) and energies (catuḥṣaṣṭidevatāyoginīkalānyāsa) are found in the SKh (MS G fl. 43b-44a). As we go along, these will be listed for each face. The main entry is taken from the Ṭīkā which, unlike YKh (1), normally supplies the colours of the Yoginīs. The variants from the other two sources are noted in brackets. Those from YKh (1) are bold and those from the SKh are in italics. Extracts from the Ṭīkā are presented first, followed by those from YKh (1). The main features of the faces presented in YKh (1) are tabulated in the chart in the note to verse 50. Note that throughout the description of these faces the sources repeatedly remind us that the goddess who is visualized and worshipped here is Parā. Kubjikā – her 'surface identity' – is never mentioned.

34. Concerning the seventeenth energy of the Moon, see intro. vol. 1 p. 353-356.

35. See above 10/37cd-38 and note, where the colours of the goddess's six faces according to various sources have been listed in tabular form. The Ṭīkā explains that:

Tranquil and the white colour of milk, that divine face shines like millions of moons. It possesses the seventeenth energy (of the Moon) that secretes (lunar) nectar. Here, before the first (face) is the sixteenth energy of the Moon that is at the end of the New Moon (amāntā). It is the seventeenth, more subtle than the most subtle, that pervades the sixteen energies. Such is the visualization of the uppermost face.

gokṣīravarṇaśvetaṁ ca saumyaṁ [k kh: saumyāṁ] candrakoṭisamaprakhyam ānanam taṁ mukhaṁ divyam amṛtasravamāṇam [k kh: -mṛtaṁ-; k:-sravaṇam; kh: -sravanaṁ] saptadaśakalāyuktam [kh: saptā-] | atra pūrvādi – āmāntā candrakalā ṣoḍaśī [k: ṣoḍaśa; kh: ṣoḍaśaṁ; k kh: + sa ādaśe] | sā ṣoḍaśānāṁ kalānāṁ [kh: + kālānāṁ] vyāpikā [k kh: vyāpakāṁ] sukṣmātisūkṣmarūpā (11k b) saptādaśī | iti [k kh: missing] ūrdhvavaktrasya dhyānam | Ṭīkā fl. 11a-11b

The four energies of this (face) have been described in the Bṛhadāgama. Here this is presented in brief:

The first goddess Parā is praised as having four energies. (They are) Aruṇā (Dawn), Ugrarūpā (Fierce Form), Anaṅgā (Disembodied) and Kusumāvatī (Possessing Flowers).

(Each has, like the goddess Parā,) one face with three eyes and holds a severed head, dagger, skull, and lotus. (Each) wears a cloak of human skin and is adorned with one garland of human heads and (another) of entrails. (Each) sits on a ghost, (their) tongue like a lightning flash, (they) grant boons to adepts (sādhaka). (They are) white, red, grey and flame coloured (respectively). Such are the four energies of the uppermost face.

asya punaḥ kalācatuṣkaṁ bṛhadāgame kathitaṁ [k kh: -ā] kintu ihoddeśaṁ kriyate |
aruṇā ugrarūpā ca anāṅgā [k kh: anagāṅ] kusumāvatī [k: -vīti [kh: -vītī] ||
kalācatasraḥ [k, kh: -catusraḥ] prathamā [k kh: -ma] parā devī tu kīrtitā ||
ekavaktrā trinetrā [k kh: -trāś] ca muṇḍakartaripāṇikā [k: -kaṭṭāri-; kh: -kattāri-] ||
kapālapadmasaṁyuktā naracarmottarīyakā [-kāḥ] ||
antrasragdāmakhacitā [k, kh: atra-] muṇḍamālāvibhūṣitā [k kh: -taṁ] ||
pretārūḍhā vidyujjihvā sādhakānāṁ varapradā ||
śvetarūpā ca raktā ca dhūmrābhā jvalarūpikā [kh: kvala-] ||
ity ūrdhvavaktrasya kalāś catasraḥ [k kh: kalācatuḥ] | *Ṭīkā i*bid.

According to the Sūtra of the Face of Parā (parāvaktrasūtra) of YKh (1):

The Great Face is both supreme (transcendent) and inferior (immanent). Pure, it has the lustre of a mirror. It is energized (dīpita) within Navātmaka by the Lord with eternal bliss. Mounted on the Transmission of the Skyfarers, it is very pure with the beauty of the Moon. Adorned with garlands of pearls, it causes the ocean of nectar to flow (from it).
parāparaṁ mahāvaktraṁ [k, gh: -vakraṁ] nirmalaṁ darpaṇaprabham |

nityānandena nāthena dīpitaṁ ca navātmake ||
khecarakramam [g: -cakrasam-] ārūḍhaṁ candrakāntisunirmalam [ṅ: -sanir-] |
śobhitaṁ muktamālābhiḥ [k, gh, ṅ: -ni] sravantam [g: śravataṁ] amṛtārṇavam ||
YKh (1) 37/58-59

(The goddess of this face) has two arms, three eyes, wears matted hair and a crown; attended by Skyfarers, (she is) divine, and resides at the end of the Transmental.

dvibhujaṁ ca trinetraṁ ca jaṭāmukuṭadhāriṇam [g: -makuṭa-] |
khecaraiḥ [k, gh, ṅ: -rai] sevitaṁ [k, gh, ṅ: śe-] divyaṁ unmanānte [k, gh: -nanti] vyavasthitam || ibid. 37/62

36. From the Sūtra of the Immortal Face (amaravaktrasūtra):

I will tell (you) about the second (face), attended by Siddhas and Gandharvas. It is the face of Amarī (the Immortal One) who is divine Parā. It is (white) like cow's milk and, terrible (ghora), it brings about immediate possession (āveśa) [. . .] Beautiful with every ornament, it has four faces. (The goddess of this face holds) a jar (full of the) drought of immortality (amarīpāna) and in the right (hand) a lotus. Surrounded by six female attendants (dūtī), (this face is) divine and marked with the sign of the Moon.

dvitīyaṁ kathayiṣyāmi siddhagandharvasevitam [g: siddhagandarva-] |
parādivyāmarīvaktraṁ [k, gh: divyamarīcakraṁ; g: cavāmarīdvaktra; ṅ: vivāmarīcakraṁ] gokṣīrasadṛśopamam ||
sadyāveśakaraṁ ghoraṁ . . . . | [. . .]
sarvābharaṇaśobhāḍhyaṁ caturvaktrasamānvitam [gh, ṅ: caturvāhusamanvitaṁ; g: caturvāṅga-] | [k: ?]
kalaśaṁ [g: ?] amarīpānaṁ [g: -panaṁ] utpalaṁ dakṣiṇe kare ||
ṣaḍdūtyāś cāvṛtaṁ [k:yadūtyā? ścābhṛtaṁ; gh: yahatpāś cābhṛtaṁ; ṅ: yaṁdūtyāś cābhṛtaṁ] divyaṁ candralāñchanalāñchitam | YKh (1) 37/68-69a, 72-73ab

This face has six energies. Entries in brackets in bold face are the variants of the names found in the Ṭīkā. Entries in italics are the variants in the SKh. Entries in bold italics are variants that are the same in the Ṭīkā and the SKh: 1) Mālinī (yellow and red) 2) Piṅgalā (form like the filaments of a flower) (Kamalā) 3) Caryā (black) (Nārasiṁhī) 4) Nārasiṁhā (white) (Maheśvarī) 5) Kevalā (blue) and 6) Bālyā (white) (Śilpā / Vallī).

37. According to the Bṛhadāgama quoted in the Ṭīkā, this face has nine energies, namely: 1) Nandinī (Joyous One) 2) Cinnamuṇḍā (Severed Head) 3) Ardhacandrī (Half Moon) 4) Anāmikā (Nameless) 5) Viḍālī (Cat) (Vidyādharī) 6) Amṛtā (Nectarine Amṛtavatī) 7) Siṁhikā (Lioness) 8) Bhīmavikramā (Terrible Valour) 9) Māyā Bhagavatī (Goddess Māyā).

All these Yoginīs look like Siddhayogeśvarī. They have one face and three eyes, matted hair, a garland of human heads and necklace of human entrails. Their cloak is human skin and they all wear earrings made of snakes (vyāla). Intoxicated by the Great Drink (mahāpāna), their faces are fierce. They sit on ghosts and hold a severed head, dagger, sword, ascetic's staff, skull, and lotus.

ekavadanās trinetrā [k kh: -vadanātri-] jaṭāmaṇḍitaśekharāḥ [k kh: -rā] ||
muṇḍasragdāmakhacitā narāntramālābharaṇāḥ [k kh: -ṇā] ||
naracarmottarīyakā vyālakuṇḍalikāḥ sarvāḥ [k: sarvā] ||
mahāpānena [k kh: -yānena] ghūrmitā [kh: -tāḥ] daṁṣṭrāḥ [k kh: daṁṣṭrā] karālavadanāḥ [k kh: -nā] ||
pretasyopari [kh: -syepari] saṁsthitāḥ muṇḍakartarihastāś [k kh: -hastā] ca ||
khaḍgakhaṭvāṅgapāṇikāḥ [k kh: -kā] kapālapadmasahitāḥ | Ṭīkā fl. 11b-12a

From the Sūtra of the Eastern Face (pūrvavaktrasūtra):

I will tell (you about) the third, which is the eastern face that has three eyes. Its form and colour is dark blue (like) an unmoving storm cloud. It is the face of the goddess and possesses fine radiant energy (sutejasa). Sixfold, (the goddess of this face holds) a jar, noose, double-headed drum, skull, ascetic's staff, and five arrows. (This is) the face of Siddhavāmeśvarī in the middle of the sacred seat of Kāma. The face is beautiful (with the pearls that adorn it) and bestows the three (energies) of (the most) intense Command. . . . Those who dislike the path of the Siddhas are obstructed by its mere recollection.

tṛtīyaṁ kathayiṣyāmi pūrvavaktraṁ trilocanam |
kṛṣṇābhramabhrakākāraṁ devīvaktraṁ [k, gh: -putraṁ; g: devīghanta; ṅ: devīṣataṁ] sutejasam || [. . .]
. . . . ṣaḍvidhaṁ kumbhahastakam [ṅ: kuta-] ||
pāśaṁ ḍamarukaṁ kādyaṁ khaṭvāṁgaṁ [g: ṣaṭvā-; gh: -ga] bāṇapañcakam |
siddhavāmeśvarīvaktraṁ kāmapīṭhasya madhyagam ||
vaktraṁ muktakaśobhāḍhyaṁ [g: -sobhāḍhyaṁ] tīvrājñātrikadāyakaṁ [k, gh, ṅ: -tripadāyakaṁ; g: triśajñā-] | [. . .]
dveṣiṇāṁ [k, gh: -ṇā ; g: dvekṣiṇāṁ] siddhamārgasya vighnanti [g, ṅ: nighnanti] smaraṇād api | YKh (1) 37/75, 76cd-78ab, 81ab.

38. According to the Bṛhadāgama quoted in the Ṭīkā (fl. 10b-11a), this face is black and is called Kālikā; it destroys all things. It has thirteen energies, namely: 1) Khecarī (Skyfarer) (vermillion) 2) Bhūcarī (Earth Wanderer) (white) 3) Gaganākhyā (Sky) (Gaganadevī) (red) 4) Trivikramā (Three Strides) (smoky grey) 5) Dikcarī (Direction Wanderer) (colour of fire) (Dikkarī) 6) Gāyatrī (yellow) 7) Sāvitrī (white) 8) Caṇḍikā (Wrathful One) (black) 9) Kātyāyanī (like lightning) 10) Harisiddhā (bright red like the Indian madder) (Parāsiddhā Harasiddhi) 11) Nīlapatākinī (Blue Flag) (white) 12) Tripurābhairavī (dark blue) (13) Kāmeśvarī (Mistress of Passion) (lustre of clouds).

(These goddesses) have one face with big teeth and eight arms. They all hold a corpse, skull, goad, ascetic's staff, dagger, mace, lightning bolt, and bell. They possess all the ornaments and a skull as a crest jewel. They wear a garland of human heads and clothes of human entrails. They eat fat and the Great Nectar and they sit on ghosts.

daṁṣṭrāḥ [k: daṁṣṭrā; kh: daṁṣṭro] ekavaktrā bhujāṣṭakāḥ [k kh: -kā] ||
sarvā maṭakahastāś ca kapālāṅkuśapāṇikāḥ [k kh: -kā] ||
khaṭvāṅgakartṛsahitāḥ [k kh: -tā] satomaravajraghaṇṭikāḥ [k kh: satamarā-vajaghaṇṭikā] ||
sarvābharaṇaśobhāḍhyāḥ [k: -ḍhyā; kh: -dyā] kapālakṛtaśekharāḥ [k kh: -rā] ||
muṇḍasragdāmakhacitā narāntraparivesṭitāḥ ||
mahāmṛtavasābhakṣāḥ pretasyopari [k: pretasya-] saṁsthitāḥ || Ṭīkā fl. 10b

According to YKh (1), the southern face, which is that of Kālī, is the fifth one. Here it is the fourth face, as it is in the Ṭīkā.

From the Sūtra of the Southern Face Dakṣiṇavaktrasūtra YKh (1):

I will (now) tell (you about) the fifth, southern (face), which is black (kṛṣṇa). (The deity of this face) has twelve arms, three eyes, and is adorned with jewels. (It is associated) with the Fierce (karāla) Gesture* and sits along with Bhairava. (This is) Kālikā, the face of Parā, the supreme arising of the sacred seat of Jvāla (i.e. Jālandhara).

In the left (hands she holds) a double-headed drum, noose, razor, lightning bolt, goad, and sword. In the right (hands she holds) a skull, ascetic's staff, pestle, darvipiṁgala (?), (the sword called) Candragarbha,  (?), and the noose of time. A flag is (her) seat and (she is) comfortably seated on Mahāmudrā. Very powerful, (she) holds a conch [. . .].

(Accompanied) by the god Navātman (this is) the right face, which is very terrible (sudāruṇa); with big teeth, ferocious, it is fierce with large, long red eyes. [. . .] (Thus) on the right is the goddess Parā who is worshipped by the Siddhas and Bhairavas.

vāme [k, gh: bhāvyaṁ; g: bhāvyaṇ; ṅ: ḍācyaṁ] ḍamarukaṁ pāśaṁ kṣurikā vajrāṁkuśaṁ [g: vakrākuśe] asiḥ [k, g, gh, ṅ: asi] || dakṣiṇe kādyakhaṭvāṁgaṁ muśalaṁ darvipiṁgalam [gh: -le] ׀ *candragarbhaṁ ca * * * kālapāśaṁ dhvajāsanam* ׀׀ mahāmudrāsukhāsīnaṁ [g: -śina; ṅ: mukhīśīnaṁ] śaṁkhahastaṁ [g: saṅkhahastam; ṅ: śaṁkhehasta] mahābalam ׀ [. . .]

*navātmānaṁ ca [g: *] devaṁ ca [g: * * *] dakṣavaktraṁ [g: * kṣa-; gh: -vakraṁ] sudāruṇam* ׀׀ daṁṣṭraṁ [k, gh, ṅ: daṁṣṭrā; g: daṣṭrā] karālaṁ [ṅ: -la] raudraṁ ca mahāraktāyatekṣaṇam [k: mahārakṣāyate-; gh: mahāyakṣāyate-] ׀ [. . .]
dakṣiṇe [g: dakṣiṇā] ca parā devī [k: devīṁ] siddhabhairavapūjitā ׀׀
YKh (1) 37//92cd-94ab, 95cd-96ab, 98cd

* Each face is associated with a Gesture and a sacred seat. These are recorded in the table in the note to 29/50.

39. The corresponding face, according to both the Ṭīkā and YKh (1), is Mahālakṣmī. Thus the goddess says in the Sūtra of the Northern Face (uttaravaktrasūtra) of YKh (1):

I will (now) tell (you about) the fourth (face) which is that of Mahālakṣmī, the most excellent. (This) face, energized by the three seeds, is said to be the Conqueror of Death (mṛtyuñjaya). It is (red) like the pomegranate flower and shines like the ashes of Kaula ascetics (vīra). [. . .] (The deity holds) a flower, noose, goad, conch, dagger, and a severed head in the left (hands). (In the right it holds) an ascetic's staff, pestle, thorn. spear (paṭṭiśa), javelin, and club. The universe is pervaded by the northern (face) and is attended by the lords (nātha) and Yoginīs.

caturthaṁ saṁpravakṣyāmi [k, g, gh: -vakṣāmi] mahālakṣmīti cottamam [g: cottaram] ׀׀ vaktraṁ mṛtyuñjayaṁ proktaṁ bījatritayadīpitam [gh: -taḥ; ṅ: -dīptitaṁ] ׀ dāḍimīkusumaprakhyaṁ [k: dāḍimmī -; g: -kuśuma-] vīrabhasmasamaprabham ׀׀
[. . .]
*kusumaṁ [g: kumudaṁ] pāśāṅkuśaṁ [g: yāsāṅkuśa; ṅ: pāśāṁku ] śaṁkhaṁ [g: khaḍgaṁ; gh: śa.kha; ṅ: śaṁkha] kartarī muṇḍamuttare [k, g, gh, ṅ: -cottare] ׀׀ khaṭvāṅgaṁ [k, gh, ṅ: -vāṁga; g: khaḍgīśaṁ] mudgaraṁ kuntaṁ [g: konta; all other MSs: kontaṁ] paṭṭiśaṁ [g: ṣaṭviśaṁ] śūlakheṭakam ׀ uttaravyāpitaṁ [k, gh: uttaraṁ-] viśvaṁ [ṅ: viśva] yoginīnāthasevitam [k, gh: yogiṇī-] ׀׀ YKh (1) 37/81cd-82, 85cd-86

According to the Ṭīkā (fl. 12a-12b) this, the northern face, is that of Mahālakṣmī who is red. She has thirteen energies, namely, 1) Lakṣmī (red), 2) Rudrā (white) (Bhadrā), 3) Surudrā (black) (Subhadrā), 4) Tvāritā (bright red like an Indian madder), 5) Naravāhinī (Transported by a Man) (white), 6) Madadravī (Oozing Ichor) (vermillion), 7) Vajriṇī (Thunderbolt Holder) (golden), 8) Bhogavardhinī (Increaser of Pleasure) (ash-coloured), 9) Jayā (Triumph) (like a cage of lightning flashes), 10) Vijayā (Victory) (heated gold), 11) Jayantī (Victorious) (Vaijayantī) (smoky grey), 12) Aparājitā (Unconquered) (white), and 13) Ghaṇṭī (Bell) (grey like a pigeon).

They all sit on ghosts and hold swords in their upraised hands and an ascetic's staff, spear, double-headed drum, dagger, a severed head, and skull. They are naked apart from a cloak of human skin. They wear garlands of corpses and hold severed human heads. They all wear garlands of entrails and are inebriated with the Great Drink (mahāpāna). They are always content with wine (āsava) and, seated on corpses, grant freedom from fear.

pretāsanasthāḥ [kh: pretasanasthā] sarvās tāḥ khaḍgaproddyutapāṇikāḥ [k kh: -prodyuta-] ||
khaṭvāṅgaśūlaḍamarukartṛmuṇḍakarārpitāḥ [k: -ḍamaruṁ- -tā; kh: katṛmuṇḍa-] ||
kapālahastā digvāsā vyāghracarmottarīyakāḥ [kh: vyārghra-] ||
śavasragdāmakhacitāḥ [k, kh: -racitāḥ] karamuṇḍaśiroruhāḥ ||
antramālādharāḥ [k kh: atra-] sarvāḥ [k: sarvā] mahāpānena [k kh: -pīnena] ghūrmitāḥ ||
sadāsavena saṁtṛptāḥ pretārūḍhābhayapradāḥ [k kh: -dā] || Ṭīkā fl. 12b

According to the KuKh the goddess of this face is Tripurā, not Mahālakṣṁī. This Tripurā is not the well-known Tripurāsundarī who is worshipped in Śrīcakra. She is Tripurabhairavī. Although she and Kāmeśvarī (of which Tripurabhairavī is an ectype) continue to be worshipped as independent deities, they are the main prototypes of the goddess Tripurasundarī of the Śrīvidyā tradition. We have already had occasion to note the close relationship established between the Kubjikā tradition and Śrīvidyā by the Triangle in the core of Śrīcakra. Here is another link.

The Kubjikā tradition asserts that Tripurabhairavī originated in its fold. Thus according to YKh (1):

The first descent (Tripurā) makes (into the world) (avatāra) is in the Western House. She is the Bhairavī in the northern face who is arousing and passionate in every (way).

avatāraṁ tu prathamaṁ kurute (g: kauṅkaṇe) paścime gṛhe |
bhairavī uttare (k: uttara) vaktre kṣobhaṇī sarvakāmikā || YKh (1) 43/90

These lines are part of a long section in YKh (1) dedicated to Tripurabhairavī. We notice that she is linked here to the 'northern face'. It appears, therefore, that when this visualized form of Kubjikā was recorded in the sūtras collected together in YKh (1), from which the KuKh largely draws its account, Tripurā was not yet an important part of the pantheon but was already known. Thus according to the Sūtra of the Southern Face, which is that of Kālī, Tripurabhairavī and Kāmeśvarī are two of its thirteen energies. Although unknown to the KMT, Tripurabhairavī rose by degrees to such prominence in the Kubjikā tradition that she came to be worshipped as the goddess of a Krama (see intro. vol 2 p. 216 ff.).

40. The western face is that of Kubjikā herself. Here she is called Umā, the Skyfaring goddess. Presumably, this is the form Umā assumed when she immolated herself in the sacrificial fire prepared by her father Dakṣa. But, as Kubjikā, she is not just Umā. She is Umā who is the Skyfaring goddess Khecarī.

From the Sūtra of the Western Face:

I will tell (you about) the sixth, the western (face) that bestows accomplishment. It is blue and red, has three eyes and is adorned with eighteen arms. It is in the middle of the sacred seat of Trisrotra and is like the young (morning) sun. It bears the weapon (āyudha) of the great iconic form (mahāmūrti) and is the ocean of the triple Command. It burns with the Great Praṇava and sits on the seat of the Gesture of the Yoni. It possesses the Point and Sound and is linked to Umā Bhagavatī. It is the foundation of the three lineages (uli) and is adorned with sixty verses. It is attended by the Siddhas and the rest and is supported by the great Śāmbhava (state).

ṣaṣṭhaṁ ca kathayiṣyāmi paścimaṁ siddhidāyakam [g, ṅ: -dāyikaṁ] |
śyāmaṁ [k, gh, ṅ: śyāma] raktaṁ trinetraṁ ca bhujāṣṭādaśabhūṣitam ||
tisrotrapīṭhamadhyasthaṁ [g: triśrotrapīṭha-] taruṇādityasannibhaṁ [k, gh, ṅ: -dityasaṁbhavaṁ] |
*mahāmūrtyāyudhadharaṁ [g: mahāsūryāyudhavaraṁ; ṅ: -varaṁ] ājñātritayasāgaram [gh: ājñātri * ya-]* ||
mahāpraṇavadīpyantaṁ [k, gh: -dīpāntaṁ] yonimudrāsane sthitam |
bindunādasamāyuktaṁ [k, gh, ṅ: bindunāthasamā-] umābhagavatīsaṁyutam ||
*ulitritayamādhāraṁ [k, gh: śū-; ṅ: * litri-] ṣaṣṭhaślokavibhūṣitam [g, gh: ṣaṣṭa-]* |
sevitaṁ siddhaughādyair mahāśāmbhavadhiṣṭhitam [k, gh: siddhaudyādyai mahāsaṁbhavadhiṣṭitaṁ; g: siddhidoghāghau hāsāmbhavadhiṣṭhitaṁ; ṅ: siddha udyādyaimahāsaṁbhavadhiṣṭhitaṁ] || YKh (1) 37/99-102

According to the Ṭīkā (fl. 10b-11a) this face has nineteen energies, namely: 1) Saṁhārī (Destructress) (bright red like the Indian madder), 2) Vyāpinī (Pervasive) (blue), 3) Vyomā (Sky) (cloud-coloured), 4) Raktavasā (Red Clothes) (colour of fire) (Raktavāsasā), 5) Siddhidevī (yellow) (Sitādevī Siddhādevī), 6) Śuṣkā (Emaciated) (dark blue), 7) Utpalā (Lotus) (black), 8) Śikhaṇḍinī (Peahen) (smoky), 9) Lalitā (Fondled) (vermillion), 10) Vināyakī (variegated), 11) Ambā (Mother), 12) Gaureśvarī (White Goddess) (red) (Aghoreśvarī), 13) Śrī (dark blue), 14) Mukhī (dark blue), 15) Trikhaṇḍā (ochre), 16) Anāmā (Nameless) (shines like fire), 17) Ṭaṅkinī (Axe), 18) Anantā (Endless) (golden colour), and 19) Sarvā, (Everything) (form of lightning) (Sarasvati, Śūcī).

* Instead of Śrī and Mukhī (13 and 14), YKh (1) reads Vijayā and Śrīmukhī. Moreover, Śaśinī appears there as the last Yoginī in the series and 'Anāmā', it seems, is not to be read as a separate entry.

According to the Ṭīkā they are all adorned with many jewels and skulls. They all wear garlands of severed heads and, omnipresent, they sit on ghosts and hold a thunderbolt, double-headed drum, ascetic's staff, bell, scissors, pestle, skull, severed head, bow and reed (kāṇḍa) as the tenth (attribute).

nānābharaṇaśobhāḍhyā [kh: -dyā] nānāturyopaśobhitāḥ [kh: nānāpuryyepa-; k kh: nānāpuryo- -tā] ||
muṇḍamālākṛtāḥ sarvāḥ [kh: sarvā] pretārūḍhāś ca sarvagāḥ [k kh: -gā] ||
vajraṁ [k kh: vajra] ḍamarukaṁ [k kh: taṁmarukaṁ] caiva khaṭvāṅgaṁ caiva ghaṇṭikā ||
kartrī [kh: kantrī] ca mudgaraṁ caiva kādyamuṇḍas [k kh: -ṇḍās-] tathā dhanuḥ ||
kāṇḍaṁ ca daśamaṁ proktaṁ sarvāsāṁ parikīrtitāḥ [k kh: -tā] || Ṭīkā fl. 11a

The goddess of each face is accompanied by a Bhairava. Mantras and seed-syllables adorn the goddess of each face. These are formed from parts (pada) of the Samayā Vidyā, recited along with the Five Praṇavas. These are called Śāmbhava, Śākta and Āṇava Praṇavas in the case of the first three faces, respectively. Along with them there are other mantras or set groups, as noted in the following table.

14. Kubjikā's Six Faces according to the Yogakhaṇḍa

Face	Goddess	Bhairava	Mantra	Mudrā	Colour	Seat
Upper	Parā	Amṛteśvara	Twelve Verses	Padma	Mirror	Moon
Amara	Mālinī	Meghanātha	Five Jewels	Piṅgalā	White	Tisra
East	Siddha-vāmeśvarī	Śilāśekhara	Rāva-pañcaka		Dark Blue	Kāma
South	Kālī	Navātman		Karāla/ Mahā-mudrā	Black	Jālandhara
North	Mahā-lakṣmī	Jyotinātha	Tri-khaṇḍā	Kuraṅgiṇī	Red	Pūrṇa
West	Umā-bhagavatī		Ṣaṣṭha-śloka	Yoni	Blue-red	Trisrota

41. From the Sūtra of the Goddess's Heart (devyāhṛdayasūtra):

(The Heart of the goddess) shines like the noonday sun and has five faces (each) with three eyes. It has ten arms, and matted hair that bears the moon. (It sits) on the seat of the White Gesture and is energized by the Five Praṇavas. White (śubhra), it is delighted by Navātman; very pure, it is very powerful (sutejasa). (Its) form is that of the lustre of a mirror and it is endowed with the rays of knowledge and bliss. (It holds) in the (left) hand a bow, arrow, sword, javelin, ascetic's staff and skull and, in the right, a terrible lance, book and the rest. It is the inner seat and support (ādhāra) of the fettered soul (paśu) and possesses thirty-eight energies. Endowed with the form of the energies of the heart, it is the first, single part (pāda) of the Vidyā. It is conjoined with Vidyānātha and is in the middle of the five maṇḍalas. It is accompanied by the seven verses, adorned with Kubjikā's Krama and associated with Mitranātha. (The wise) know this to be the first Ocean (ārṇava). O god, the Heart, which is the great arising of the Yoginīs, has been described.

madhyāhnārkanibhaṁ [g: -rkamidan; ṅ: -hnārkṣanibhaṁ] dīptaṁ pañcavaktraṁ [k, ṅ: -vaktra] trilocanam |
daśabāhu trinetraṁ ca jaṭājūṭendudhāriṇam ||
śvetamudrāsanasthaṁ tu pañcapraṇavadīpitam |
navātmānanditaṁ śubhraṁ sunirmalaṁ [all MSs: -la] sutejasam ||
darpaṇabhrajakākāraṁ [k, gh: darpaṇābhrajakāvāraṁ; g: darpanābhañjakādhāraṁ; ṅ: darpaṇābhrajakādhāraṁ] jñānānandakarānvitam [ṅ: -karonvitaṁ] |
cāpaṁ [ṅ: cāpaṁ] bāṇo 'siśaktiś ca [k, gh: -śaktiṁ; g: vāno-; ṅ: vāmavāṇosiśaktiñ] ca khaṭvāṅgaṁ kādyapāṇinam ||

dakṣiṇe bhīmapaṭṭīśaṁ [k, gh: bhiśi-; g: bhisa-; ṅ: bhisi-, g: yadvīśaṁ] pustakaṁ [g: pustaka] cāvaśeṣakaṁ [g: cāhuśeṣaka; ṅ: cavraśeṣakaṁ] |
paśorantāsanādhāraṁ [k, gh, ṅ: paśunāṁtrāsanakaraṁ; g: paśūnāntrāsana-] aṣṭatriṁśatkalair yutaṁ [g: aṣṭatriṁśakalairyutaṁ] ||
vidyāprathamapādaikaṁ [k, gh, ṅ: -pādeka; g: -pādekaṁ] hṛtkalākṛtisaṁyutam [k, g, gh: -kalāhṛti-; ṅ: kṛta-] |
vidyānāthena nirbhinnaṁ [g: ni-] pañcamaṇḍalamadhyagam ||
ślokasaptamakaṁ [k, g, gh, ṅ: -ke] sārdhaṁ [k, g, gh, ṅ: śārddhaṁ] kubjikākramabhūṣitam |
mitranāthena saṁyuktaṁ ārṇavaṁ [g: -va] prathamaṁ viduḥ [ṅ: vibhuḥ] ||
*hṛdayaṁ [g: hṛdaya] kathitaṁ deva [g: devaṁ] yoginīnāṁ [k, gh: yogi * nāṁ; ṅ: yogināṁ ] mahodayam [k, gh: grahodayaṁ; ṅ: pahodayaḥ] |
YKh (1) 37/108-114ab

From the Sūtra of the Head (śiraḥsūtra)

(Now) I will tell (you about) the second one, namely, the Head that is worshipped by the gods. It has four faces, eight arms and is very powerful. Full of the ocean of nectar, it is endowed with consciousness (caitanya) (i.e. HSKHPHREṀ) and the part (of the Vidyā called) 'Kubjikā'. It has three eyes and is adorned with jewels. It is full of the sixteen energies and is adorned with millions of skyfarers. It shines like snow, the moon or gold and is endowed with the (Five Praṇavas that are the) Lamps of Kula. It is attended by the Yoginīs, all the Gandharvas and Lords of the Immortals. (The hands) make the gesture of fearlessness, (hold) the nine (sacrificial) substances, a garland of flowers, a mirror, bow, arrows, the triphala (fruits) and make the Gesture of the Cow.

*dvitīyaṁ kathayiṣyāmi śiras tridaśapūjitam [ṅ: śira * daśa-]* ||
*caturvaktraṁ [g: caturthañca] mahātejaṁ bhujāṣṭakasamanvitam [ṅ: bhujāṣṭa * samanvitaṁ]* |
amṛtārṇavasaṁpūrṇaṁ [all MSs: -rṇavenasaṁ-; ṅ: -pūrṇa] caitanyena [g: ceta-] samanvitam ||
kubjiketi [ṅ: kubjaketi] pade [ṅ: pada] yuktaṁ [ṅ: yukta] trinetraṁ [g: trinetra] ratnabhūṣitaṁ [k, gh: rakṣa-; g, ṅ: rakta-] |
*kalāṣoḍaśasaṁpūrṇaṁ vyomagāyutibhūṣitam [k, gh: vyāmagā-; ṅ: -yuti * -]* ||
himendukanakābhāsaṁ kuladīpasamāyutaṁ [k, g, gh: kulādīpā-; ṅ: kalādīpā-] |
yoginīsarvagandharvaiḥ [ṅ: -gandharvau] sevitaṁ amareśvaraiḥ ||
abhayā [g: amaryā; all other MSs: amayā] navadravyāḍhyaṁ [k, ṅ: -dravyādya; gh: nacadravyādya] puṣpamālā ca [k, g, gh: -mālāśca; ṅ: -mālāśva] darpaṇam |
kārmukaṁ vāṇatriphalaṁ [g: vāna-; all MSs: -tripalaṁ] dhenumudrāsamanvitam [all MSs except ṅ: dhanu-] ||

mahānādena [g: -nādotra] muditaṁ śiras [g: śivas-] trailokyapūjitam | [k, gh, ṅ: missing]
śiraḥsūtram [g: śira-] || YKh (1) 37/114cd-119ab

42. From the Sūtra of the Topknot:

O Lord of Kula, I will (now) tell (you about) the third, namely, the King of Topknots. The three cruel ones (krūra) are born of the eastern face and it is energized by them. He has three faces, six arms, is fierce and has flames of fire. (He is) Bhairava who, free of imperfections and well formed by Gesture (mudrā), is seated. He, the lord of the gods, is surrounded by numerous hosts of Yoginīs and, energized by the Five Praṇavas, he is in the company of Sarvarakṣā.* He possesses the beauty of the great Bhairava and he holds a banner, sword, thorn and a thunderbolt in the left. He is adorned with twelve energies. The venerable Kaulika lord who is the King of Topknots bestows liberation.
* MS G reads: Barbarākhyā

tṛtīyaṁ kathayiṣyāmi sikhārājaṁ [k, gh: -rāja] kuleśvara [k, gh: kuleśvaraṁ] ||
pūrvavaktrodbhavāḥ [g: -vā] krūrās [g: ktayas; ṅ: kūlās] trīṇi tābhiś ca [g: nābhiśca; ṅ: tabhiśca] dīpitam |
trivaktraṁ ṣaḍbhujaṁ cograṁ [g: cogra] agnijvālāsamanvitam ||
mudrāvikṛtam āsīnaṁ [g: -vikṛtatamāsīnaṁ] bhairavaṁ vigatāmayam |
anekayoginīvṛndair [k, g, gh: anekayogiṇī-; g: -vṛnde-] veṣṭitaṁ [gh: vaṣṭitaṁ] tridaśeśvaram ||
pañcapraṇavadīpyantaṁ sarvarakṣāsamanvitam [g: varvarākhyāsamāyutaṁ] |
mahābhairavaśobhāḍhyaṁ [ṅ: -dyaṁ] dhvajāsikuntahastakam [k, gh: -śikonta-; g, ṅ: -konta-] ||
vidyuc caiva [k, gh, ṅ: vidyu vaiva; g: vidyut caiva] tathā vāme [k, gh, ṅ: vāma] kalādvādaśamaṇḍitam [k, gh, ṅ: -khaṇḍitaṁ] |
śikhārājeśvaraṁ [g: -śvara] śrīmān kaulikaṁ [k, g, gh, ṅ: -kāṁ] bhuktidāyakam [ṅ: mukti-] || YKh (1) 37/119cd-123

From the Sūtra of the Armour:

O Lord of Kula, I will tell you the fourth, namely, the Armour. It is hard to pierce by (even) the gods and Rakṣasas, Śākinīs, and evil cave-dwelling spirits (guhyaka). Others' yantras, magic spells (kṛtaka), or magic rites (karman) that are hard to withstand are not capable (of harming) one who possesses (this) Armour. By the Yoga of its mere deposition, (one's) enemies come under control.

He has ten faces with three eyes and, blue-red, is very powerful. He sits on the Gesture of the Yoni and is adorned with twenty arms. He shines with the Five Praṇavas and possesses the ten seed-syllables. The seed-syllables of the right face and arm are all there and very powerful. He is accompanied by the pervasive (vyāpinyā) energy and has the brilliance of twelve suns. Bearing the weapons of the three gods, he abides pervading the world. Established in the resonance (nināda) of the Great Sound (mahārāva), he is attended by Yoginīs and Siddhas. Eternal, he bestows accomplishments, desires and the fruits of wordly enjoyment and liberation. Endowed with the tenth verse, he is the destruction of all sin.

caturthaṁ [ṅ: caturtha] saṁpravakṣyāmi [ṅ: saṁpravakṣyāmi] kavacaṁ te kuleśvara |
durbhedyaṁ [k: dubhedye; gh, ṅ: dubhedyaṁ] devarakṣābhyāṁ [k, g, gh, ṅ: -rakṣebhyo] śākinīduṣṭaguhyakaiḥ [k, g, ṅ: -kaṁ] ||
parayantrāś ca kṛtakāḥ parakarmāṇi duḥsahāḥ [k, g, gh, ṅ: -hā] |
hartuṁ [k, g, gh, ṅ: kartuṁ] na śakyante [k, gh, ṅ: śakyate; g: śaṣṭate] tasya kavacaṁ yasya saṁsthitam ||
vinyastamātrayogena [g: -yegena] vaśyam [gh: vaśyamam] āyānti śatravaḥ |
daśavaktraṁ [gh: -kraṁ] trinetraṁ [ṅ: dvinetran] tu śyāmaraktaṁ sutejasam ||
yonimudrāsamāsīnaṁ bhujair [g, ṅ: bhujer] viṁśatibhūṣitam [k, gh: vijñāti-; ṅ: vijāti-] |
pañcapraṇavadīpyantaṁ daśabījasamanvitam || [k, gh, ṅ: missing]
dakṣavaktre [gh: -kre] tu [k, gh, ṅ: bhu] ye [k, gh, ṅ: je] bījāḥ [k, gh, ṅ: bījā] sarve tatra [k, gh: tetra] mahābalāḥ |
vyāpinyāyāḥ [k, g, gh, ṅ: -yā] kalāsārdhaṁ dvādaśādityavarcasam ||
*tridevaśastradhāriṇaṁ [k, gh: tridevaścakariṇya *; g: -dhāriṇyaṁ; ṅ: tridevaṁ * svadhāriṇyaṁ] bhuvanaṁ vyāpya saṁsthitam* |
mahārāvaninādasthaṁ yoginīsiddhasevitam [k, gh: yogiṇī-] ||
siddhidaṁ kāmadaṁ [g: kamadan] nityaṁ muktibhuktiphalapradam [ṅ: bhuktimukti-] |
daśamaślokasahitaṁ sarvapāpapranāśanam || YKh (1) 37/124-130

43. The Moon is in the left eye and the Sun in the right.

44. From the Sūtra of the Eye (netrasūtra):

(Now) I will tell (you about) the fifth, namely, the Eye worshipped by the gods. It resides in the form (mūrti) of the Moon, Sun, and Fire and has the Gesture of the Trident. He has six arms, (his) light is fierce (vikarāla) and is accompanied by Amṛtanātha. Divine, he is worshipped by Mahantārī and is the lord proclaimed by the verse. He is endowed with fifty energies and is born from inexplicable knowledge. He is delighted by the Three Peaks and is endowed with the six sacred seats. He is mounted on the supreme light, (his) form is light and he is everywhere active (udita). Free of (differentiating) forces (kalā) and time, (he is) the omnipresent conqueror of death. By worshipping (him) (yajana) (one attains) all one desires, meditation (dhyāna) and all else and the eight (yogic powers) including the power to become small at will and the others. One gains control of all the gods. Auspicious, fire offerings are made to him and he is the object of devotion (prīṇita).

pañcamaṁ saṁpravakṣyāmi [g: -vakṣāmi] netraṁ [k, gh, ṅ: netra] tridaśapūjitam [sarve: -bhūṣitam] । candrārkānalamūrtisthaṁ [k, gh: -arkkānila-] śūlamudrāsamanvitam ।। ṣaḍbhujaṁ vikarālābhaṁ [g: tri-] amṛtanāthasaṁyutam । *mahantāryārcitaṁ [k, gh: mahā * yārccitaṁ; g: -citaṁ; ṅ: mahāntāyorcitaṁ] divyaṁ ślokena [g: śloke] nāditaṁ [g: nādita] prabhu [all MSs: prabhuṁ]* ।। kalā pañcāśabhir [k, gh: paṁcāśibhir-; ṅ: pañcāśibhi] yuktaṁ akathyajñānasaṁbhavam । kūṭatritayam uditaṁ pīṭhaṣaṭkasamanvitam ।।
[k, gh, ṅ: + ṣaḍbhujaṁ vikarālābhaṁ] parājyotiḥsamārūḍhaṁ [g: -jyoti-] bhārūpaṁ sarvatoditam । kalākālavinirmuktaṁ [g: -mukta] mṛtyujit [ṅ: -jita] sarvatomukham ।। yajanāt sarvakāmāni [g: -māṇi] dhyānādi [g: -dir; ṅ: vyānādi] aṇimāṣṭakam [k, gh, ṅ: maṇimāṣṭakaṁ] । sādhayet [g: sādhaye; gh: -ye] tridaśān [ṅ: -śāt] sarvān prīṇitaṁ [g: prīṇitā] homitaṁ [g: homita] śubham ।। YKh (1) 37/131-135.

45. The goddess is Kuṇḍalinī, the energy of the all-consuming Fire of Time that blazes up from the hell-worlds at the end of a cosmic age to consume the universe of transmigratory existence.

46. The Ṭīkā (fl. 13a) says that the Earth is in the goddess's Yoni.

47. The Ṭīkā locates these deities differently as follows: 1) Brahmā – two feet and hips, 2) Viṣṇu – Yoni, 3) Rudra – heart, 4) Īśvara – throat, 5) Sadāśiva – forehead, 6) Śiva – on the head.

A similar series of projections is part of an initiation based on the Five Principles (pañcatattvadīkṣā), that is, the gross elements set in relation to the goddess's six faces and the Five Praṇavas (see KuKh vol. 8, appendix 1). Initiation thus establishes the original body of the deity in the body of the adept. In that way it mirrors the basic environment in which the goddess operates on the physical, embodied plane where the Five Elements serve as the support and medium of her activity, both within the body and in the outer world. This is true even if the locations in the body do not coincide in all accounts.

48. The Ṭīkā (ibid.) explains that she fills the expanse of Emptiness (kha) with nectar. One should visualize her in the Wheel of the Foundation as resembling the great lord of the snakes.

49. In the Age of Strife, the goddess, as the Transmental, rises up through the micro and macrocosm. The Ṭīkā (fl. 13b) explains that she resides in the maṇḍala of the Sun, Fire and Moon. Also called the Tridhātumaṇḍala (the Maṇḍala of the Three Constituents), it consists of the energies (kalā) of these three luminaries that are parts of (the goddess's) body of radiant energy (tejo'ṅga). The energies should be united within the stainless Principle (niṣkālikatattva), that is, ultimate reality (paramārtha). Once the energies have thus been stilled, one should utter Kuṇḍalinī's mantra, the Vidyā of the 'crooked moving goddess', kauṭilyānugameśvarī. This is done by the upward movement of Kuṇḍalinī first in and through Kula, that is, the six Wheels from the Foundation to the Command. Then up above through Akula. This consists of 1) Vyāpinī (the Pervasive) 2) Samanā (the Equal One) 3) Unmanā (the Transmental). Above this is the Śāmbhava plane located at the End of the Twelve finger space (dvādaśānta). The rise is marked by a series of visible signs of attainment (pratyaya). These are essentially the immense powers the yogi acquires that, as the text says, enable him to even uproot mountains through the power of the Śāmbhava Command he has thus acquired, by practicing the Vidyā and worshipping the goddess Kubjikā.

50. According to the cosmology of the SvT, there are eight hells. The deepest of these is called Sauvarṇa or Hāṭaka, after the name of the Rudra who governs it (see See SvT 10/96b-114 and TĀ 8/30cd-31ab). Although Asuras, Nāgas and Rākṣasas live in the hells and individuals souls are tormented there as a punishment for their evil deeds, by purifying Hāṭaka all are purified (comm. TĀ 8/31cd). Those who worship Śiva as Hāṭakeśvara in the deepest hell, attain both accomplishment and even liberation. Abhinavagupta explains:

> According to the teaching of the Rauravāgama, Śrīkaṇṭha (as Hāṭakeśvara) reigns over each of the worlds and forcefully (haṭhataḥ) bestows various forms of yogic accomplishment (siddhi). Those who have taken vows (vratin) but have behaved in a manner prohibited by scripture and so are sinful (vikarmastha), those who, though initiated, have falled from the rule (samaya) and have failed to perform the rites of expiation (prāyaścitta), those who are adherents and (yet) detractors (dūṣaka) of the left-hand path (vāmācāra), those who live on the sacrificial offerings (dravya) to the gods and fire, those who, though adherents of higher doctrines, practice the mantras of lower doctrines such as those of Garuḍa and the like, all these in their various kinds are servants before the All-pervasive Lord Hāṭaka.
>
> However, those who even there worship (Hāṭaka) the Lord of the Gods with devotion merge into the Īśa principle and (from there merge) progressively into Supreme Śiva. For those who do not do so, it is otherwise. When the fruit of their actions (bhoga) is exhausted, they are burnt by the Fire of Time and cry pitifully. TĀ 8/31cd-36

Kaula traditions teach that, by a reversal of opposites, one can rise to the supreme hieghts from the lowest depths. What is hell for the unrepentent sinner, is the door to liberation for those who are devoted to the Deity. Indeed it is from here that the teachings arise, just as it is from here that the universe of transmigration is consumed from its very root. Thus in the DP of the Kālīkrama, the goddess Kālī hears the subtle Unstruck Sound of the god calling to her. She recounts:

> Having heard (that, I) went to the depths of hell, where Hāṭaka is the lord. I had entered into that Wheel and from that mouth of the God of the gods (which is also the lower mouth of the Yoginī) came forth Kulakaula, the most excellent Kaula knowledge.

śrutvā rasātalaṁ yātā yatra hāṭaka īśvaraḥ ||
tatra cakre praviṣṭāhaṁ kaulajñānam anuttamam |
tadvaktrād devadevasya kulakaulaṁ vinirgatam || DP 1/37cd-38

The goddess rises up from this, the lowest hell, piercing the spheres of existence. The CMSS opens with this vision, which is both of the origin of the teachings and their ultimate goal – the universal pervasion of the goddess who consumes the world of transmigration, returning it to its original condition of Emptiness:

> The supremely pure Siddhanātha, who is all things, resides in the womb in the calyx of the lotus of the consciousness of the divine Sun. Onto the Island of the Moon in the middle of the great ocean, he brought down the supreme light of the consciousness of (the goddess) Ciñciṇī.
>
> I salute the venerable Kukārā of the tradition of the Western Transmission who has emerged from the midst of that, piercing through the great Kula, within the worlds within the sky of the divine firmament, laying hold (all things from) within the cavity of the circle of the lower worlds.

divyārkabodhakamalodaragarbhasaṁsthaṁ viśvātmakaṁ [sarve: visvātmakaṁ] paramanirmalasiddhanātham |
yenāvatāritaṁ mahārṇavamadhyacandradvīpāntare [k: candraḥdvīpāntaraṁ; kh: -candraḥdvīpāntaraṁ; g gh: candreḥdvīpāntaraṁ] paramaciñcinicitprakāśam ||
tanmadhyanirgatamahākulavedhayantīṁ [k kh g gh: -vedhayanti] divyāntarikṣa-gaganāntarabhūtaleṣu |
*pātālacakravivarāntaragrāhayantīṁ [k: -grāha * ntīṁ; gh: grāha * ntī] namāmi paścimakramānvayaśrīkukārām [g: -kujārāṁ; gh: -śrīkukākhā]* || CMSS 1/1-2

51. The goddess dispenses her Command in the three lineages (ovalli) of the three worlds. The Lineage of the Eldest is in the sky. The Middle Lineage is in the mortal world, while the Lineage of the Child is in the hell-worlds (see above notes to 1/1 and 7/60 ff.). The goddess resides in the End of the Twelve, the Heart and the abode of Kuṇḍalinī as these three lineages. (Ṭīkā fl. 13b-14a). Note that, according to the Svacchanda and other Tantras, the hells are triangular (ete 'tighorā narakās trikoṇāḥ parikīrtitāḥ | SvT 10/53ab). The goddess who resides in the triangle thus resides here as well.

52. The visualization of the goddess taught here should be coupled with that of Navātmānātha whom she embraces. Thus the goddess who is Vāgbhava (AIṀ) is coupled with Navātman (HSKṢMLVRYŪṀ). Rūpaśiva promises that he who regularly practices this visualization soon gets all he desires. He attains all the pleasures of the world (including sexual) (kāmopabhoga) as well as liberation while still alive (jīvanmukti). He attains all this no doubt because once he has learnt the Dhyānasūtra, he can go on to worship the Krama (kramārcana) (Ṭīkā fl. 14a). Indeed, this is the usual sequence in most rites of adoration (pūjā). After the preliminary purifications and the rest comes the visualization (dhyāna) of the deity, which is followed by the rite.

NOTES OF THE SANSKRIT TEXT OF CHAPTER THIRTY

1. ख्: मुढ–; झ्: मुध– 2. घ्: पुन 3. झ्: पुज–. I take this to be an attributive compound qualifying रहस्यम्. The hiatus between the first member of this compound and the rest of it is due to the metre. 4. क्, ग्:
सस्फटं; ख्, ज्: सस्फुटं; ṢSS 3/3b: श्रीमतस्य कुलान्वये 5. छ्: श्रीवक्रोवाच
6. ख्, ज्, झ्: चातुर्व्विंशत्– 7. घ्, छ्: तमराजान. राजन् is treated as राजान– here for the metre. 8. घ्, छ्: खड– 9. All MSs: जायते
10. ṢSS 3/3cd = ŚM 1/98ab: विधिहीनस्य विघ्नानियानि ते कथयाम्यहम् 11. घ्: उत्पातो
12. क्, ख्, ग्, ज्, झ्: –धा: 13. घ्, छ्: प्रकुप्यन्ते 14. All MSs: स्वजनादय:
This emendation agrees with the reading in the ṢSS 3/4ab. 15. घ्: तद्वेगश्चा–; छ्:
तद्वेगश्चातिदारुणं; all other MSs: –दारुणं; ṢSS: जायते सह मानुषै:; cf ŚM 1/98cd: कलहोद्वेगद्वन्द्वश्च (ग्:
–द्वेंग–) व्याधिशूलं (ग्: –शूल) ज्वरं तथा॥ 16. All MSs: सखायाश्च ṢSS 3/5a: गोत्राणां चैव उद्वेगं
17. कुर्वन्ति or the like needs to be supplied here. 18. ṢSS 3/5cd: महाहानि
वियोगं च सुहृद्भि: सह जायते 19. क्, ग्: आरहन्ति 20. All MSs except क्, ख्: विसन्ति; ṢSS 3/6ab: कपोतश्च गृहे नित्यं काकाद्याश्च विशन्ति च 21. All MSs: गृध्रा
22. All MSs: काकुल्यो 23. The root अट् is 1P. It is also rarely ātmanepada in general usage. 24. DS. 25. क्: परिवेसं
26. ख्, ग्, ज्: चन्द्रसूर्याल्यां; घ्: चन्द्रसूर्य्यो *; छ्: चन्द्रसूर्यौल्यां; all other MSs: चन्द्रसूर्योल्यां
27. M → N. ṢSS 3/6cd: परिशोचं तु श्वानाभ्यां अकाले मरणानि च
28. घ्, छ्: गर्भा; all other MSs: गर्भा:
29. छ्: गुर्विन्यो; all other MSs: गुर्व्विण्यो. गर्भिणीनाम् would be correct but does not fit the metre. 30. ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्, झ्: गर्जन
31. All MSs: त्रे पिजायते. This line is, it seems, a corrupt version of ṢSS
3/7ab: गगनं गर्जते चैव गर्भपात: प्रजायते 32. घ्: –पाटा
33. क्, ख्, ग्, घ्, झ्: दाद्यात्; छ्, ज्: दाघात् These two emendations agree with the reading in the ṢSS. 34. घ्, छ्: –दीपकं; ṢSS 3/7d: गृहे दाहश्च जायते
35. झ्: रौपाणि 36. ग्, ज्, झ्: पश्यत्; घ्, छ्: यस्यत्; all other MSs:
पश्येत् 37. घ्, छ्: पवित; all other MSs: पवितथं
38. घ्: पाष्ठयो; छ्: पाष्ठया The emendations in this line agree with the readings in the ṢSS. 39. क्: –प्रकोयेत्; ख्, झ्: प्रकापेन; घ्, छ्: प्रकोनेन; ṢSS:
चण्डवेग– 40. घ्: वाता: 41. ṢSS 3/8d: वाता वान्ति
सुभीषना: 42. ṢSS: गृहस्थाने 43. ṢSS 3/9b: व्यालाश्चैव फणोत्कटा:
44. छ्: –राह् 45. घ्, छ्: वे–; all other MSs: ते–
46. All MSs: योगिन्यो 47. ṢSS 3/10b: श्रीमतेदं महाकुलम्
48. क्: कोटिकोटिस्त्वं– 49. See above, note to 3/12c.
50. घ्: –वला 51. क्: श्रीमते 52. All MSs: –योगिनी
53. क्: दसदिक्ष्यु:; ख्, ग्, ज्, झ्: दसदित्यु:; घ्, छ्: दशादित्यु:
54. ṢSS 3/10cd: विध्वंसकानां देवेशि शिवरव: प्रजायते
55. ṢSS 3/11ab: पिङ्गलानां गृहे शब्दं नित्यं कुप्यन्ति पार्वति
56. छ्, ज्: –चित्ता; झ्: –चिर्त्त; चिताग्रध्रा: is apparently meant here.
57. क्, ग्: वरारोहे 58. –आदि is treated here, as elsewhere, as if it were an indeclinable. 59. All MSs except घ्: –ता:
60. इति is required. ṢSS 3/11cd: एवमादीनि विघ्नानि जायन्ते विधिवर्जिते
61. This pāda is one syllable too long.

62. झ्: तदर्थतु; all other MSs: तदर्थं तु 63. All MSs: कार्या 64. All MSs: लेख्यमाने 65. IM 5. See above, note to 1/4a. The emendations in this line are supported by the readings in the ṢSS. ṢSS 3/13b:
व्याख्याकाले च लेखने 66. घ्: संविधो–
67. All MSs except घ्: –विनासनं 68. All MSs: यत्नतः
69. All MSs: प्रथमं 70. All MSs: * रक्ष्यः
71. All MSs: संस्पर्शं 72. घ्, छ्, झ्: –वहिकृतैः 73. छ्: यन्नेन
74. ख्, घ्, छ्, झ्: नु 75. ख्, ग्, छ्, ज्: कार्यः; घ्, झ्: कार्याः
76. All MSs except घ्: यावत् 77. क्: ग्रंथ; all other MSs: ग्रन्थं
78. All MSs: –संस्था च विही– 79. ग्: स्यष्थं; घ्, छ्: स्पष्ठ 80. All MSs: तिथि पूर्णा
81. ख्, झ्: समाण्णोयं; घ्, छ्: समानोयं; all other MSs: समाणोर्यं The emendations in this quarter agree with the reading in ṢSS 3/18a.
82. ख्, ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: –ऋक्ष; झ्: रिक्ष् 83. ख्: विवर्जत्; ग्, घ्, छ्:
विवर्ज्जिते 84. ग्: अष्टम्या 85. क्: चतुर्द्धेश्यां
86. घ्: नयोगतः; ṢSS 3/18d: दुष्टरिक्षविवर्जिते 87. झ्: रमो
88. घ्: –नापलिप्ते; छ्: गोमयोनापलिप्ते 89. ख्, झ्: –न्नत्रविवर्जिते 90. DS.
91. ख्: शोभते; घ्, छ्: सोभितं; झ्: शोभ * 92. All MSs: –ता
93. क्: स्वास्थेकोपरि; all other MSs: स्वस्तकोपरि
94. ṢSS 3/21d: कलशं तु सुशोभनम् 95. ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: पूजये
96. घ्, छ्, झ्: त 97. All MSs: त्रिखंडायाः 98. ख्, ज्, झ्: –मालो–
99. ख्, ग्, छ्, ज्, झ्: आसने स्तु; all other MSs: आसनैस्तु
100. घ्, छ्: कठं, all other MSs: कण्ठं 101. All MSs: –मण्डलम्
102. नवात्मना would be correct. Here आत्मन् is treated as if it were आत्मान–. It is the nominative of this deviant form (i.e. –आत्मानम्), which one encounters most frequently. See above, note to 3/10d. 103. All MSs: च
104. The correct form – अलिखितम् – would make the sixth syllable short.
105. घ्: –गर्भ्भं 106. All MSs: –वलि 107. All MSs: प्रदातव्या
108. घ्, छ्: आचार्येन; झ्: आचायेण 109. ख्: विधावित्; all other MSs: विधानवित्
110. क्: मंगलंनिर्घोषैः–; ख्, छ्, ज्, झ्: मंगलनिर्घोषैः–; ग॰ मङ्गलंनिघोषैः; घ्: मङ्गलनिर्घोषैः लेखकः; ण् छ्: –लेखकः; all other MSs: लेखक. The regular form would be लिखेत्. I have chosen to emend to a deviant form in accord with the Sanskrit of this text, in order to maintain the metre. Cf. 30/27a.
111. क्, ख्, ज्: स्त्वोक–ṢSS 3/29cd: ततो मङ्गलनिर्घोषैः पुस्तकं वाचयेत् ततः
112. The compound संवर्तामण्डलसूत्रम् has been broken up for the metre.
113. घ्, छ्: व्याख्यायं 114. ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्, झ्: लेखये. Cf. above, 30/26b.
115. ख्: कापि 116. क्, ख्: समया
117. All MSs: आरात्रीं। आरात्रिकम् is the usual form of the word. Cf. 27/22c.
118. घ्, छ्: पूर्वतोन्तायं; all other MSs: पूर्वतोन्तार्यं 119. ख्, ज्, झ्: सिरसा
120. क्: कुमार्याह्वानयेच्चाष्टौ DS. 121. All MSs: गंध
122. All MSs except घ्: रूपं 123. All MSs: –श्वरात् 124. All MSs: समीपस्थात्
125. All MSs: योगिन्यः 126. All MSs: –दिक्षितात् ṢSS 3/24cd-25ab:
आमन्त्रयेत् कुमार्याष्टौ चतस्त्रो वा वरानने॥
योगेश्वर्या चयोगिन्यः पूजयेत् कुलदीक्षिताः।
127. All MSs: सृष्टधूपेन 128. क्, ग्, घ्, छ्: तदंत 129. All MSs: –चाज्ञा
130. All MSs: भगवत्यः 131. All MSs: –ताः ṢSS 3/26cd: तदन्ते प्रार्थयेच्चाज्ञा

कुलजानां कुलागमे।। 132. All MSs: श्रीमतोऽहं 133. ग्ः अविघ्नन
134. ग्, घ्ः –तुः 135. क्ः –नुज्ञःसुघ्, छ्ः –नज्ञ; all other MSs: –नुज्ञसु
135 (ख) घ्ः योगीन्द्रौ, all other MSs: योगीन्द्रो; ṢSS: वीरेन्द्रः 136. ṢSS पूजयेच्च
137. ṢSS वरानने 138. All MSs except छ्, ज्ः देहस्थाः
139. All MSs: सर्वे; .SSS: तत्र 140. ṢSS 3/28d: भक्तितो गुरुः
141. ख्, झ्ः शंखावादि–; ग्ः शंखवाहित्रनिःस्वरैः; घ्ः –निःस्वनेः
142. झ्ः दिव्याऱ्गास्तु–; छ्ः दिव्याङ्गनास्तुगीतैश्च
143. The word स्रग् has developed to स्रग– to gain a syllable for the metre.
144. ख्ः कुर्मी– 145. ख्, घ्, छ्, ज्ः –क्रीडा
146. ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्ः समासृत्य 147. All MSs: तद्दिनं
148. घ्, छ्ः दिवसं; all other MSs: दिवसे IM 7. 149. ख्, झ्ः कृयते
150. All MSs: विधिः प्राज्ञैः बलिं 151. घ्ः ससाप्यते M → N.
152. झ्ः गंथं; all other MSs: ग्रन्थं 153. घ्, छ्ः तावन्
154. All MSs: विधिस् 155. झ्ः अ * था. यदि अन्यथा क्रियते तदा is meant here. 156. All MSs except क्ः –च्छायं
157. All MSs except क्ः –कुलान्
158. See 30/15c and note. 159. See above, note to 9/41c.
160. क्ः लेख्ये 161. घ्, छ्ः श्रीमतेहं. See above, note to 3/12c.
162. क्, ख्, ग्, ज्, झ्ः नोपुण्या; छ्ः नापुन्यो 163. क्ः मर्त्या
164. घ्ः व; छ्ः चैव 165. All MSs: चातुर्व्विंशसहस्रकं
166. शठानाम् would be correct but does not fit the metre.
167. घ्, छ्ः तातृकाणां 168. घ्, छ्ः तार्क्किकानां; झ्ः तार्किकाशां
169. घ्, छ्ः –क्रोधिनः. A dual number is required here. See above, note to 5/46d. 170. अहऽम्कृत् is a synomyn of अहंकारः.
Although a noun, it can also function as an adjective in common usage.
171. ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्ः पापिष्ठे 172. क्ः चापजीवके
173. घ्, छ्ः –कात्; all other MSs: –कान्
174. All MSs: भोगान्येन त्यक्तानि 175. घ्ः सुन्दरः
176. घ्, छ्, ज्ः गुरुंसरणमासृतः; all other MSs: गुरुंशरणमाश्रितः
177. A connecting तस्य or the like is required. Cf. 30/46a.
178. झ्ः अभक्तो 179. All MSs except क्ः निस्पृहे
180. झ्ः हूढा– 181. घ्ः –जितेन्द्रियेः
182. ग्ः –वधियैत; घ्ः –वधियेत; all other MSs: –र्येत
183. घ्, छ्ः सत्यस्तं. सर्वम् or the like needs to be supplied here.
184. IM 5. 185. क्ः मनोवाक्तायकर्म्माणा; ख्ः मनोवाक्तायकर्म्माणो; ग्, ज्ः
–कर्म्माणा; घ्ः मनोवार्क्कीयकर्म्माणो; छ्ः मनोवार्क्कीयकर्म्माणौ; झ्ः मनोवाक्वायकर्म्माणो; all other MSs: –कम्माणो
186. See above, note to 4/3c. 187. क्, ख्, ग्, ज्, झ्ः –शाब्दं–; घ्, छ्ः –परिक्षते
188. क्, ग्ः विजानोति This and the following line are approximately repeated below as 30/234cd-235ab. There this quarter reads: गुर्वोघंयस्तु जानाति
189. This line reads above in 30/235ab: मण्डलं मूलसूत्रं तु तस्य देयं मुखागमम्
190. See above, note to 3/108b.
191. पर्वन् (N) is treated here as पर्वः M.
192. All MSs except घ्, छ्, झ्ः महितले
193. घ्, छ्ः –वसेनैव; झ्ः –वसेनैक्त. वशेन here stands for अनुसारेण or the like.
194. अहिका would be the regular form but does not fit the metre. This line is also found below as 30/51cd (version B). This and the following line appear below as 39/85 (version C) and 69/35 (version D). B: नाभिवर्तिरहिस्तार्क्ष्यो (all MSs: नाभिवर्ति–; क्: –अहिस्तार्क्ष्य, ख्: –अहिस्तार्द्ध्ये; ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: –अहिस्तार्क्ष्ये; झ्: –अहिमर्क्ष्ये; all other MSs: अहिस्तार्क्ष्यो) This line is also found in the following passage in the YKh (1) (12/45-46) that appears suddenly there, strangely out of context:

संकेतं कथितं नाथ सप्तकं स्पर्शसंज्ञकं (घ्: स्पशं–)।
नाभिवर्तिरहिश्चैव (क्, ख्, घ्, ङ्: –वर्ति अहिश्चैव) वज्रसन्धिकपाटयो: (ङ्: सत्विकपाटयो:)।।
यो जनाति (ङ्: योजा * ति) स्वयं भेदं तस्य देयं (ङ्: भेदं) कुलागमम् (ख्: –गम)।
अन्यथा (क्: अंन्यथा) नैव दातव्यं कुलशापो (क्: कुलसायो; ख्, घ्: कुलसापो) विधीयते (क्, घ्: विधियते)।।

195. ग्: वज–; B: विद्या वज्र; C: छ्: –सन्वि; all other MSs: –संत्वि

196. घ्: कपाटय:; D: ग्: सन्विर् * जकपातयो:; झ्: सन्विवजकपाटयो:; all other MSs except घ्: सन्विर्वज्रकपातयो:.

197. घ्, छ्: संकेताच्चंति; all other MSs: संकेतार्चन्ति. This emendation agrees with the reading of versions B and D.

198. A: योयत्र 199. छ्: –गमे 200. IM 5.
201. All MSs: शिष्योह्यहं 202. All MSs: प्रीतो 203. ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: सिद्धाहं
204. घ्, छ्: रह: 205. All MSs: –धिकारश्च
206. क्: –नायके; ख्, ज्, झ्: –नायक; घ्, छ्: –नायकम् 207. घ्, छ्: क्रमं
208. घ्, छ्: सुरेन्द्राक्षे 209. छ्: श्रीवक्रोवाच

210. See above, note to 30/48cd. All MSs: नाभिवर्ति–; क्: –तार्क्ष्य, ख्: –तार्द्ध्ये; ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: –तार्क्ष्ये; झ्: –मर्क्ष्ये; A, C and D: नाभिवर्तिरहीका; YKh (1): नाभिवर्तिरहिश्चैव (क्: –वर्ति–)

211. All MSs: वज्र; A: ग्: वजसन्धि:; all other MSs: वज्रसन्धि:; C: छ्: वज्रसन्वि; all other MSs: वज्रसंत्वि

212. D: ग्: सन्विर् * जकपातयो:; झ्: सन्विवजकपाटयो:; all other MSs except घ्: सन्विर्वज्रकपातयो:

213. घ्: ज्ञानमस्त–. Although emendation to ज्ञानस्याष्ट– seems to be required here, the peculiar syntax of this sentence is best left as it is and one should assume that –प्रकारोऽयम् is functioning as the required accusative. See above, note to 1/5b, cf. 30/72c. 214. All MSs except ख्, ग्, छ्: वरारोहे

215. Cf.. AS 20/3cd-4ab: नाभिवर्तिरहिका (नाभिवर्त्ति अह्हीका) च आज्ञा वज्रकपाटयो:।।
यो जानाति क्रममाद्यं (–स्यान्यां) सो भवेन् मतबोधक:।

216. घ्, छ्, ज्: नाभि:–
217. घ्: अहितार्क्षश्च; all other MSs except छ्, ज्, झ्: अहितार्स्क्ष्यश्च
218. All MSs: का 219. क्, ग्: वक्राख्य: 220. झ्: कपातौ
221. घ्: वद: 222. छ्: श्रीवक्रोवाच
223. क्, ग्: मूलं नाभि: कुलं नाभि: 224. All MSs except क्: मेरुवर्त्तिरात्मा. All MSs read न in the place of च. This and the following line occur again below as 39/87.

225. All MSs read: –महीज्ञानं. This emendation is supoorted by 39/87c.

226. All MSs: संधिमा– 227. झ्: वृक्षे; all other MSs: वृक्ष. This and the following line are repeated below as 39/91. See above, note to 6/10b.

228. क्, ग्: वजकुलो; all other MSs: वज्रकुलो 229. घ्: कपाटयो
230. घ्: पटद्; all other MSs: पतद्
231. ज्: पुनरन्यो; all other MSs except घ्: पुनरन्ये 232. All MSs: न
233. झ्: * भिमेरु–; all other MSs: नाभिमेरु–

234. क्: कीर्त्तिर्भेदा–. Although manuscript क् has the correct sandhi, the other reading has been chosen as the absence of sandhi between pādas is very frequent in this text. 235. The order of the two members of this compound has been reversed to eliminate a syllable for the sake of the metre.
236. घ्: षड्भि See 10/24d and note.
237. Missing in MSs ख् 238. All MSs: तथा
239. घ्, छ्: क्रमोदयो; all other MSs: क्रमोदये 240. All MSs: यस्य
241. Missing in all MSs except ग्. 242. This peculiar expression is derived irregularly from the standard idiom कर्णात् कर्णम् (गतं ज्ञानम्).
243. घ्, छ्: –क्रमं– 244. क्: तस्यो; all other MSs: तस्यां
245. All MSs except ख्, झ्: –त्रिकोणं; ख्, छ्: –तृकोशं
246. See above, note to 3/119d. 247. All MSs: भूमि
248. DS. All MSs: तस्याम्नाय 249. झ्: सुखागमम्
250. झ्: –मु * धि:. IM 6 + 7. The ending of आकाश– is retained in this compound to gain a syllable for the metre.
251. संवर्ता is the normal form of this word found in this text.
252. All MSs: –आवेश:–. The ending of क्रम has been dropped for the metre leading to the formation of an irregular compound.
253. झ्: तुर्यस्थ:– 254. All MSs: भूमिका 255. वैष्णवी
256. ज्: कलो 257. See above, note to 3/125a.
258. The first member of this compound should be at the end of it.
259. IM 6 + 7. 260. क्, ख्, ग्, ज्, झ्: तारणात्
261. घ्, छ्: –ताक्ष्यश्च; all other MSs: –तार्क्ष्यश्च 262. क्, ग्: भैरवानंत:
263. All MSs: सुक्रीदि 264. IC. 265. ख्, ग्, ज्, झ्: परमा
266. झ्: भका * दि– 267. क्, ग्: विद्याचाङ्गी 268. घ्: –ना:; झ्: शिवानन
269. All MSs except घ्: विंद्यात् 270. This pāda is one syllable short.
271. All MSs: चान्द्र– 272. All MSs: –ता:
273. All other MSs except छ्, ज्, झ्: अन्या
274. All MSs: भाविताात्मानं 275. All MSs except ख्, ग्, छ्, ज्, झ्: सा
276. क्: सर्वात्मा नेवधा; ख्: स वात्मा नवधा; ग्, ज्: वात्मा नेवधा; घ्, छ्: –नवधा; झ्: वात्मा
नंवधा–; all other MSs: च चात्मा नवधा
277. ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्, झ्: विद्यापदेश–. M → N. 278. All MSs: वज्रात्मान:
279. ग्, छ्: वज– 280. ख्, झ्: –ब्रूवोन्न वै; ग्: –भुवोन्त वै; all other MSS: –भ्रुवोन्तम् वै 281. घ्: षत्प्रकार– 182. M → N. See above, note to 1/5d. 283. तम् here replaces तत्. 384. See above, note to 6/10b. 285. All MSs: वृक्षेन्यं बाह्य तत्
286. उदय– (M) is regularly treated as neuter, as are words derived from लय– (M). 287. All MSs except क्, ख्, ज्: शैव–; झ्: –समागमं 288. All MSs: शक्ति
289. All MSs: पूरकं 290. All MSs: स्वशनं 291. All MSs: संहारमिति
292. छ्: –कं 293. छ्: द्वाविसौ 294. ख्, झ्: कपाटाक्षौ
295. क्, ख्: एतमट–; छ्, ज्, झ्: एतमष्ट–. Cf. above, 30/52a and see note to 1/5b.
296. Missing in MSs झ् 297. क्: + पश्चिमं– 298. छ्: य
299. झ्: शोकार्थ– 300. All MSs except ख्: ये; ख्, झ्: यो
301. The ending of the first part of this compound has been retained for the metre. 302. झ्: रुद्राशो

303. छ्: मर्त्या; all other MSs: मर्त्यो
304. See above, note to 1/4a.
305. क्, ख्, ज्, झ्: सप्तभिर्भिन्नं; all other MSs: सप्तैर्भिर्भिन्नं 306. All MSs: वधूर्
307. All MSs: कष्ट– 308. All MSs: कष्टं
309. ख्, झ्: अपशब्दाश्च सरलोस्तेषु; all other MSs: अपशब्दाश्च सरलास्तेषु is here equivalent to तैः 310. All MSs: शैवा–
311. क्, ख्, छ्, ज्, झ्: संकेतं– 312. All MSs: नट– 313. ख्: शुष्कतकादि–
314. क्: व्याख्यापमागमे; ख्, ज्: व्याख्यापमागमं; छ्: व्याख्यापमोगमं; झ्: व्या * * कमागमं
315. All MSs: स्वतन्त्रता 316. घ्, छ्: सरसं 317. ख्: सुखाम्नायं
318. झ्: कर्णन्तरागतम्; all other MSs: कर्णतरागतं
319. ख्, छ्, ज्, झ्: अक्षराथोपदेशश्च. A plural is required here.
320. The word संप्रदाय–, instead of being treated as neuter, as it almost always is, here reverts to its original masculine gender.
321. ग्, घ्, झ्: निर्गर्भश्च 322. ग्, घ्: –वेते
323. ख्, ज्, झ्: श्लोका–. See above, note to 7/2c. 324. क्, ग्, ज्: निर्णातं
325. घ्: भैरवः; all other MSs: भैरवम् 326. All MSs: त्यज्य
327. क्: समो; all other MSs: समा 328. M → N.
329. M → N. 330. ‘M' has been inserted between the elements of this compound for the metre. See above, note to 3/21b.
331. All MSs: मात्रात्सं 332. क्: पात–; all MSs: -मिति. See above, note to 5/41b. 333. ख्: पूर्वे–. This irregular compound needs to be broken up into पूर्वं पश्चिमं मध्यं च but then the fifth syllable would be long. Lines 30/85cd-87ab, 88cd-91 are repeated below as 45/54cd-59.
334. All MSs: –कोणकं. 45/54d: –कौलिकं 335. झ्: योनिष्कं
336. All MSs except ग्, घ्: सृंगाठं
337. ख्, झ्: –ख्यान्तं; छ्: आरि– 338. All MSs: निवेत्ति. The root विद् does not normally take the prefix नि–. This quarter reads below in 45/55c: एवं वैयो विजानाति
339. ख्, छ्, ज्, झ्: प्रस्नं; all other MSs: प्रश्नं 340. घ्, छ्: पंच
341. The regular ablative plural of कोटि– is कोटिभ्यः, which does not fit the metre. The reading is confirmed below in 45/56b. Cf. 68/118d.
342. This, and the following line is not found in the corresponding passage below in chapter 45. 343. झ्: गुरस्तेन् 344. All MSs: – कृतं
345. All MSs: मेरुं. M → N. 346. M → N. 45/56c reads: इदं मतमिदं ज्ञेयं
347. क्, ख्, झ्: तत्त्व; छ्, ज्: तत्व 348. छ्: कुलोघं
349. This is a good example of how a hiatus can take place freely in a compound if the metre requires it. Cf. below, 45/57a and see above, note to 3/77d.
350. ख्, झ्: ज्ञालौघं क्रम–ओघं तु ज्ञानौघं 351. तदा, or the like, is required to complete the syntax.
352. The MSs घ् and छ् read 45/57d नंदित; झ्: नदिते and all others नन्दिते
353. All MSs: –श्रोतात्मके. See above, note to 6/165a and cf. below 45/58a.
354. ज्, झ्: शान्तं–. 45/58c reads this quarter: आख्यातं तु क्रमाम्नायं
355. See above, note to 5/14b. 356. IM 6 + 7.
357. All MSs: –विशारद 358. घ्, छ्: क्रमोदयो–; ख्, झ्: क्रमोदयं–
359. क्: –श्रीमहामतम्. 45/59d: श्रीकुजेशीमहामतम् 360. क्: परत्ययात्मेकं

361. See above, note to 5/14b. 362. N → M. DS. All MSs except घ्: –आवतारिता 363. All MSs except क्: सर्व्व 364. छ्: पलाभवत्
365. क्: कौटि–; घ्: –पंश–; छ्: –क्षेकं. See above, note to 2/25c.
366. All MSs: सहस्र 367. ख्: शतार्द्ध 368a. All MSs: नवानवति– One wonders whether the MSs do not record a deviant form of this numeral. Compare the recurrent सप्ताविंशति– concerning which, see above, note to 7/7c. 368b. All MSs: तथान्या
369. छ्, ज्: –विनिसृता; झ्: विनि:सृता; all other MSs: विनि:श्रिता
370. F → N. 371. N → M.
372. घ्, छ्: –का. पञ्चाशत् would be correct but makes the fifth syllable long.
See above, note 6/47b. 373. See above, note to 2/25c.
374. क्, ग्, ज्: अघोरा; ख्: अघोर; छ्: –रान् 375. Missing in MS झ्
376. छ्: –मर्ध. The ending of the first number of this compound has been retained for the metre. 377. All MSs except क्: विचार्यतापि 378. ख्, झ्: पंचश्रातोद्भवा 379. क्, ख्, ग्, झ्: ग्रंथा–; घ्, छ्, ज्: पन्था–. All MSs: –समन्विता 380. झ्: हेत्वथे
381. All MSs: परिकीर्तिता. According to this deviant usage परिकीतित– is equivalent to उक्त– or the like. 382. ज्: –णां 383. झ्: ततू
384. क्: मिगूढे 385. ख्, झ्: * प्रकाशितं 386. क्: वर्ज्याम्यहं
387. All MSs: नि:शेष: 388. घ्, छ्: –प्रचरे 389. All MSs: –षं
390. छ्: निश्वास 391. All MSs: –तं
392. क्: –त्रिपुरान्तेर; ख्, झ्: –तृपुरोत्तर 393. All MSs: दधि
394. ख्: –रोत्र 395. All MSs: –भट्टार * 396. झ्: अनन्त *
* * * * * * 397. All MSs: रुद्रम् 398. All MSs: + एता
399. घ्: कनका:– 400. All MSs: –तं 401. All MSs: –विंद्र
402. झ्: –विचाल 403. See above, note to 3/103d.
404. All MSs except घ्, छ्: परं– 405. ख्: पुथुम् कंद; झ्: पुथु स्कन्द
406. All MSs: –वोध्यन्तात् 407. All MSs except घ्, छ्: –नाथोवाच
408. क्: किमेभिर्वशितैर्दैवि; घ्: वर्स्मितैर्–; all other MSs except छ्: –वशितैर्
409. घ्, छ्: वक्रिया– 410. घ्, छ्: संप्रवक्ष्यामि 411. झ्: कृयापदं
412. All MSs: द्रव्यं. This reading makes no sense. Śaivāgamas are theoretically said to be divided into four *pāda*s, invariably we find vidyā, or a synonym, not dravya. However the reading is confirmed in the following line found in both YKh (1) (12/42cd) and YKh (2) (2/11cd): क्रिया चर्या तथा द्रव्यंयोगपादं चतुर्थकम्। It seems that this is an early scribal error that has been transmitted across texts.
413. क्, ख्: मृत्तवत्त्यासुतं; ज्: मृतवभ्यासुतं; ग्: मृतवदभसुतं; घ्, छ्: मृगवतस्यासुतं; झ्: मृगवद्मयासुतं
414. क्, ख्, ज्, झ्: सुगन्धाद्यै:–
415. झ्: दीपैकै: * * * *; छ्: दीपकै: श्चरुकै:; ज्: दीपकै: चरुकै: 416. छ्: दि
417. IM 6 + 7. 418. All MSs: व्यावृत्या–
419. All MSs: –मण्डल The reading has been emended, but it is possible that the final anusvāra was intentionally dropped to maintain the metre.
420. छ्: –येद् 421. क्, ग्: सिंहागनमिदं; ज्: सिंहागमंमिदं; all other MSs: सिंहागममिदं 422. All MSs except घ्, छ्: पूज्यं The regular gerund, पूजयित्वा or the like, needs to be supplied to complete the syntax.

423. छ्: गुरोर्चनः; all other MSs: –वचः
424. ग्: अपष्ठ्यं; घ्: अपष्ठां; छ्: अपप्व्यं (?); ज्: अपष्द्व्यं; all other MSs: अपष्द्यं
425. क्: मुष्याद्यं; ख्, झ्: मुद्व्याद्यं; ग्: मुद्व्याद्यं; घ्: मुघाद्यं; छ्: मुद्याद्यं; ज्: मुद्व्याद्यं
426. क्, ग्: एकोन्ते 427. IM 6 + 7. क्: सुगन्ध् * * अबहुले
428. क्, ख्, ग्: चन्द्रोदयो–; घ्, छ्: चन्द्रोदयोपरिच्छन्न; ज्, झ्: चन्द्रोयोपरिच्छन्ने
429. क्, ख्, झ्: क्रमिकैभक्ति–; घ्: –वत्सरैः
430. क्, ख्, ज्, झ्: हेमवस्त्राद्यलंकारैः–; छ्: –कारैर्गुरु 431. All MSs: पूज्य
432. All MSs: –दानादिवावरैः 433. All MSs: अनुज्ञातोऽभिषिक्तस्तु
434. झ्: अच्छिद्रे 435. ख्, झ्: भव *
436. All MSs: अर्चितं. Here the past passive participle is used in the transative active sense of a gerund (for other examples, see above, note to 5/38b).
437. All MSs: पच्यते. The past tense is needed here. See above, note to 3/14c. 438. ख्, ज्, झ्: –वत्रा
439. क्, ख्, ज्, झ्: –दासुः; छ्: –दासु
440. घ्: संहावेशं; छ्: संहावशः 441. ख्, ज्, झ्: गृहि–; छ्: कुहितव्यं
442. झ्: +यो– 443. M → N. See above, note to 3/12c.
444. All MSs: विधिहीनं 445. क्, ग्: ने 446. क्, ख्, ग्: व्योख्येयं
447. All MSs: म्लेच्छपत्रैर्न 448. क्: लेख्यं *; all other MSs: लेख्येयं
449. All MSs: पत्रकैः 450. All MSs: परं
451. तथा or the like needs to be supplied. 452. क्, ग्: देवं
453. The root लिख् (6P) is treated here as ātmanepada for the metre.
454. क्: –मुर्त्तमम्; ग्: मसि– 455. झ्: –वशनैव
456. क्: क्वाक्षयेत्–; छ्: क्वाठयेल्लोह–; all other MSs: क्वाठयेत्–
457. All MSs except क्, ख्, छ्, झ्: हूँ
458. Missing in MSs क्, ख् and झ्
459. Missing MSs ख् and झ्
460. क्: मातय घातय; ख्, ग्, छ्, ज्, झ्: घातय घातय
461. Missing in MS घ्, छ् and झ्.
462. See above, note to 4/35b. 463. All MSs: लेख्य
464. All MSs: लिखे 465. All MSs except ज्: लिखनकर्म. लिखनक्रिया would be better Sanskrit.
466. All MSs except ज्: भक्त 467. ख्, झ्: शु *
468. Missing in MSs क्, ग्; घ्, छ्: तु 469. झ्: –रंतं
470. झ्: –परा * णं 471. क्: सुस्रातं 472. ख्: –मर्र्च्चितं
473. क्: पराध्याप्य; ग्: पराधाप्य; all other MSs except ज्: परीधाप्य
474. झ्: अनाम; all other MSs: अनामा. A locative is meant here.
475. All MSs: –मुद्रिका 476. The order of the first two members of this compound has been reversed. 477. ख्, झ्: –द * णैः 478. IM 5, 6 + 7.
479. Missing in MS घ् and छ् 480. All MSs: आरात्री 481. छ्: पश्चा
482. छ्: –गतं 483. All MSs: पूज्य
484. ज्: उत्तरया; all other MSs: उत्तार्या
485. ख्, झ्: –मालां; घ्, छ्: –मालान् 486. ख्: मते–
487. घ्: सुन्दरः 488. ख्: –भोद्यं
489. All MSs except ख्, छ्, ज्: संपरीक्ष्य
490. ग्: त्रिशुद्धिभक्ति–. The same line occurs above as 26/44ab and 28/119cd and below as 30/143ab; cf. also 32/61cd.

491. A connecting pronoun such as यस्य is required here to complete the syntax. 492. All MSs except छ्: –शुद्धिर्–
493. All MSs: त्र 494. घ्: कदाचनः
495. घ्, छ्: समय. M → N. See above, note to 6/115c. 496. ग्, घ्: वारितो
497. क्, ख्, घ्, छ्: निःसत्य 498. ग्: अहकृते. Cf. 30/42a and note.
499. ख्, झ्: –विनिर्मुक्त 500. ग्: लाभात् 501. घ्: –विनिम्मुक्ते
502. घ्, छ्: –दुष्टे. This pāda is one syllable too long.
503. ख्, झ्: पापिष्ठं; ग्, घ्: पापिष्ठे 504. ज्: पंचके
505. घ्, छ्: –जीवकोशक्ते. DS. 506. All MSs: लक्षण–; झ्: राग च *
507. IC, cf. 30/146b. 508. All MSs: –वत्सले 509. IM 6 + 7.
510. घ्: योनलंपते 511. ग्: देवार्च्चने–
512. ग्: + नैव लोभात् प्रदापयेत्। ओलिशु– 513. All MSs: –चारिण्ये
514. ख्, घ्, छ्, ज्, झ्: त्रिशुद्धिर्; all other MSs: त्रिशुद्धि 515. The same line appears above as 26/44ab, 28/119cd and 30/134cd; cf. also 32/61cd.
516. झ्: –देहाग– 517. क्: चे
518. क्: –विशारदो; झ्: गुर्वाम्नायर्– 519. All MSs: प्रमादाद्यदि दातव्यं
520. क्, ख्, ग्, ज्, झ्: द्वादशाब्दं– 521. झ्: –परादेन; All MSs: त्रो–
522. क्: न दातव्ये– 523. All MSs: ज्ञानशोकं 524. घ्, छ्: जनैः
525. ग्: विशेषण 526. A genitive, dative or locative would be correct here. Cf. above, 30/140d.
527. All MSs: –वत्सले. भक्तिवत्सले would be the appropriate vocative for the goddess, but as it is the goddess speaking, I have emended to –वत्सल here as well as in the other places this form occurs in this long passage. It is likely that this passage was drawn from a text in which the god is speaking.
528. क्: –वित्तेम; ख्: वित्तमे; ग्, घ्: वित्तम–; ज्, झ्: –वित्तमचेतने; all other MSs: –चित्तम–.
All MSs: –चेतने 529. ख्, झ्: आचार्यैं; all other MSs: आचार्यः
530. क्, ग्, घ्, छ्: निश्चयौ; ख्, झ्: * *यौ; all other MSs: निश्चयौः. The bahuvrīhi
ज्ञानहीननिश्चयैः has been broken up to gain a syllable for the metre.
531. All MSs: षु 532. घ्, छ्: –चैव परीक्षिता; all other MSs: चैव
परीक्षिताः 533. घ्, छ्: प्रसादेन 534. घ्, छ्: स्या 535. All MSs: स
दुःखान्यनुभविष्यति IM 7. 536. M → N. 537. ख्, झ्: निर्मल
538. झ्: कुलोगमम् 539. All MSs: सिद्धिर् 540. घ्: भवेन्मन्त्री 541. The order of the second and third word of this compound has been reversed. 542. IM 6 + 7. Note that the word करण्ऽ– not infrequently appears in this place in the pāda, thus disturbing the metre.
543. घ्: –भैरवः; छ्, ज्: –भैरव 544. IM 5 + 6. 545. क्, छ्: ओडामले
546. All MSs: पिचाख्ये 547. क्, ख्, ग्, ज्, झ्: कालिकाव्यथवा; all other MSs: कालिकाप्यथवा 548. झ्: चापि 549. A dual ending would be more correct here. See above, note to 5/46d and cf. below 30/154d.
550. क्, ख्, ग्, ज्, झ्: –वीपू 551. All MSs: वासुकी
552. A dual ending is required here. See above, note to 5/46d and cf.
above 30/153d. 553. घ्: आनत्वेः; झ्: आनवे 554. ग्: पिङ्गल
555. This locative is irregular. 556. घ्: सुन्दरः
557. All MSs: –मतेषु 558. All MSs: खेचर्याच्च

559. All MSs except घ्, छ्: मतोत्तमे
560. डामरदूतीमते does not fit the metre and so the word order of this compound has been reversed.
561. Missing in MSs घ् and छ्. 562. ग्: व्या–; घ्: व्योमगर्व्भे
563. घ्: वैव 564. All MSs except घ्, छ्: सिम्या–
565. Note the peculiar syntax designed to produced an extra syllable for the metre. 566. प्राप्नुवन्ति, the correct form, is too long for the metre. This form does not appear again in this text. The unneccesary repetition of कलौ leads one to suppose that some error was committed not by a scribe but by the redactor. 567. झ्: पुत्रिका: 568. All MSs: क्रमोदय 569. ख्, घ्, छ्, ज्, झ्: प्रवेशने 570. The ending of this word has been dropped to keep the fifth syllable short.
571. घ्, छ्: मोक्ष. M → N. 572. क्: –विवर्तम्; ख्, झ्: –विवर्जिता:. As above in 4/48d, विवर्जितानाम् has been reduced to विवर्जिताम् to save a syllable for the metre.
573. दीक्षारिहण: would be correct but does not fit the metre. The root हन् when used as a noun at the end of a compound is, anyway, generally declined as if it were –ह rather than –हन् throughout this text.
574. घ्: मेरुमार्गं– 575. Missing in MSs ख् and झ्
576. घ्, छ्: सिं * दर्शने 577. झ्: कृत्या 578. All MSs: सविशेषे
579. ख्: पाश्वव: 580. All MSs except छ्: युगान्–
581. M → N. 582. IM 5.
583. All MSs: –श्रोतं. स्रोतस् is treated as if it were neuter thematic noun. See above, note to 6/165a. Note that the spelling often found in the manuscripts is श्रोतम्
584. All MSs except ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: वापरे. IM 5. 585. All MSs: –श्रोतं
586. All MSs: पश्चिमे 587. All MSs: श्रोतं
588. उदय– (M) is regularly treated as neuter. 589. All MSs: पंचधा
590. ख्, झ्: अन्तरद्धानं; घ्, छ्: अनर्द्धानं 591. See note to 1/1c.
592. क्: तथान्यं 593. घ्, छ्: ते. तम् here replaces तत्
594. घ्: भस्म:मध्यत: 595. IM 5, 6 + 7.
596. See 6/180b and note. 597. घ्, छ्: पश्चिमे
598. M → N. See above, 3/49a. 599. झ्: गुरुचाहं
600. क्, ख्, ग्, ज्, झ्: –गतार्थे 601. घ्: –र: 602. All MSs: सच
603. M → N. See above, note to 1/2c.
604. M → N. See above, note to 1/2c. 605. घ्: सिंहस्य:
606. घ्: –पुथ 607. घ्, छ्: * त्ययं. See above, note to 1/4a.
608. क्, ख्, झ्: चतु:पादेषु 609. The ending of this compound has been dropped to fit the metre.
610. यत् तत्, or the like, is required to complete the syntax.
611. All MSs: मार्गत: 612. घ्: पीठोद्याने; झ्: पीठोद्याशे. The position of the members of this compound has been reversed. They are in the correct order in 60/84b. Cf. 6/25d, 54/11d, and 61/6b and see above, notes to 2/28b and 6/6b.
613. घ्: –मुपागमं। हिमवत: is the regular form. See above, note to 3/158d.
614. क्, ग्, ज्: संप्राप्ते 615. घ्: संभो 616a. घ्, छ्: –मथाना–.
IM 5 + 6. 616b. All MSs: + तु–
617. घ्, छ्: तस्मिस्तेवा–; all other MSs: तस्मिंश्चैवा 618. क्, ख्, ग्: विद्वच्चित्तस्य

619. घ्: भैरव: 620. M → N. See above, note to 1/2c.
621. See above, note to 7/2c. 622. यथावस्थितम् is meant here. 623. घ्: निसाचारेण
624. All MSs except ज्: कौलिके 625. क्: तद्या– 626. क्: तद्या–
627. IM 6 + 7. 628. घ्: चातुर्व्विशसहस्रकं; छ्: चातुर्विंशसहस्रकं
629. छ्: दोषास्ति 630. ग्, झ्: दोषवाग् 631. क्, ग्: शभो
632. ख्: निर्म्मतो 633. A locative is meant here.
634. All MSs except घ्, छ्, झ्: नु 635.All MSs except घ्, झ्: सिद्धासौ. DS.
636. All MSs: पूर्व्व 637. All MSs: लभेहं 638. ग्: सिद्धा
639. Cf. 30/181d. 640. All MSs: लभेन्नवमं
641. ख्: वेस्थासौ; घ्: वेभ्यसौ; ज्: वेत्भ्यसौ 642. घ्: त:त्राहं
643. क्, ख्, ग्: मन्त्रंमूर्तिस्था; all other MSs: –भूतिर्–
644. ग्: त्व 645. IC. 646. ख्: नास्ति
647. Here पश्यते here has a purely active sense, equivalent to पश्यति. Cf.
30/192cd 648. क्: ज्ञाने चक्षुर्भ्यां; ग्: ज्ञाने चक्षुभ्यां
649. ख्, झ्: नाद्वैत, all other MSs: नाद्वैतं 650. क्: सहा
651. M → N. 652. M → N.
653. ख्, घ्, छ्, ज्, झ्: वचन त्वथ लंघनम्; all other MSs: वचनं त्वथ लंघनम्
654. All MSs: स्याद् 655. क्, ग्: र; ख्, झ्: व 656. ग्, ज्: –कार
657. All MSs except क्: दीप: 658. ग्: –सततौ
659. An instrumental is required here. 660. घ्, छ्: परजार्थं
661. क्, ग्: व; all other MSs except ख्, ज्, झ्: च; ख्: + तु
662. M → N. See above, note to 1/2c. 663. ख्: पाख्यातं
664. ग्: –पथो 665. All MSs: योजनाशतदूरस्थो. The serial order of the first two members of this compound has been reversed.
666. Cf. 30/188ab 667. A genitive is required here. See above, note to 10/47d. 668. घ्, छ्: सिद्धि; all other MSs: सिद्धिं
669. All MSs except घ्, छ्: पूर्व्व–. A nominative is required here.
670. प्रत्यक्षभैरवरूपेण is meant here. 671. All MSs: गोत्रशैली च विस्यर्द्धा 672. All MSs: चर्चा
673. घ्: तैच 674. छ्: कन्यसेपि. कनीयस– has contracted to कन्यस–. 675. All MSs: गुरोघेन 676. All MSs: ज्येष्ठमिति
677. क्: स्व–ओल्या. Here the word ओलि is treated like a feminine noun ending in 'i'. See also above, note to 3/77d. 678. घ्, छ्: क्रमसाध्य; ज्: क्रमशोध्यं; झ्: क्रमसोध्यं
679. Missing in MSs क्, ख्, ग्, छ्, ज्, झ्. All MSs except घ्, छ्, ज्: साध्य; घ्:
वक्त्रा 680. छ्, ज्: वक्त्राकुलागमं; all other MSs: वक्त्राकुलागम् 681. All MSs except ज्: सिद्धिं–; घ्: –भ:वेच्छिष्ये. Perhaps it would be better to emend to सिद्धो भवेच्छिष्य:. 682. ग्: यस्यदं 683. All MSs: पूजित:
684. सदाकालं is a redundent expression and an irregular compound.
685. घ्, छ्: अदं 686. घ्: तिष्ठोमि
687. घ्, छ्: न तत्र चा; all other MSs: तत्र तत्र चा IM 5. 688. ख्, ग्, ज्, झ्: शुद्ध
689. ख्: रा– 690. झ्: तत्यज्ञो; all other MSs: तत्त्वज्ञो
691. ख्: पटं 692. क्: वो 693. M → N. See above, note to 7/9d. 694. –फलावाप्तिरिह– would be the regular sandhi. 695. झ्: –भाकू 696. All MSs: य:
697. ग्, घ्, छ्: पुनर्व्विदते 698. घ्: –पा:दं 699. क्: चिचिणीनाथं; घ्:

चिंचिनीनाथं. M → N. 700. घ्, छ्: –वलोकये; all other MSs: –वलोकाय
701. All MSs: जंतु 702. घ्, छ्: स्पर्शनाद्देव 703. घ्: आलायात्
704. All MSs: पापानां 705. All MSs except क्: सिद्धिः ज्ञानदिक्षा
706. The root श्रु is 5P. The correct form is शृणोति.
707. See above, note to 3/12c. 708. All MSs except घ्, छ्: –क्षणा
709. All MSs: -तः सो 710. Cf. 30/210d.
711. घ्: नमस्कारेमहाभक्त्या 712. क्: यकृत् सकृत्; all other MSs: सकृत् सकृत्
713. All MSs: पुनर्मंत्री, IM 5 + 6. 714. घ्, छ्: पूण्य–
715. All MSs: क्रमिका 716. ख्, घ्, छ्, झ्: –मानापि; all other MSs: –मानोपि
717. घ्, छ्: अन्यं 718. घ्, छ्: जन्यं; all MSs: जन्मं But see note to 3/160c. 719. All MSs: पुनस्त
720. ख्, झ्: –जन्म * 721. All MSs: प्राप्तं मणिंयथा शुद्धं
722. ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्, झ्: –कान्ति 723. क्, ख्, ग्: स्त्वजेन्नरः; घ्, छ्, ज्, झ्: स्त्यजेन्नरः
724. ग्, घ्, छ्, झ्: भूयोतं; ज्: भूयोमं 725. क्: श्रीमदं 726. ग्, घ्, ज्: याभ्यसौ
727. All MSs: यावदा 728. क्, ख्, छ्, ज्, झ्: हूत–; ग्: ह्वत–; घ्: ह्नत–
729. ग्: पाश्वता; घ्: पश्यतो; छ्: पश्वतो 730. क्: कमतः; all other MSs: क्रमतो 731.
Cf. 30/203b. 732. घ्: तन्त्र all other MSs: तत्र
733. Following two lines are missing in MSs ख् and झ् 734. ग्: –यति
735. M → N. 736. क्: नोच्चार्य; घ्: नोच्चोर्ध्यं
737. ग्: कौलिक 738. घ्: मुचः रेत्; all other MSs: मुच्चरेत्
739. ग्, ज्, झ्: पव्यते; घ्, छ्: पच्यते all other MSs: यव्यते 740. घ्: –मंदल * * *
741. This and the following word should be a genitive or instrumental.
742. घ्, छ्: कुसुमं 743. All MSs: या विलेपनम्
744. IM 5. M → N. 745. घ्, छ्: –मादितं
746. All MSs: कुमारी 747. All MSs: –देका
748. क्: गुरुपंच * मण्डलं. As the verb is missing it is not possible to say whether the nouns in this line are in their regular case or not.
749. All MSs: सम 750. IM 5 + 6. घ्, छ्: समय– 751 घ्, ज्, झ्: नत्वोद्व्याद्यं; छ्: नत्वोद्ध्याद्यं all other MSs: नत्वाद्ध्याद्ध्यं 752. Assuming that an accusative is required (as the object of प्रर्थयित्वा) the correct form would be मातरम्. The deviant acc. sing. माताम् appears also above in 16/53c. See also note to 5/41b. 753. All MSs except क्: –माज्ञा 754. छ्, ज्:
प्रार्थ–. IM 5 + 6. 755. ख्, ज्, झ्: ददादेशेमिति
756. क्: क्रुवत्; ख्, ज्, झ्: क्रवत्; ग्: क्रुचत्; all other MSs: ध्रुवम्
757. ख्, ग्: मताथ; घ्, छ्: मातार्थं; ज्, झ्: मतार्थ 758. घ्, छ्: सिद्धिसु
759. घ्: महेश्वरः 760. All MSs: अन्तरङ्गीत–; घ्, छ्: –सुद्ध; all other MSs: –शुद्धिं 761. घ्, छ्: काकिल– 762. All MSs: सद्यादि–
763. All MSs: गन्धर्वादि–; घ्, छ्: –वनेकशः
764. All MSs: एतत् 765. M → N. See above, note to 6/115c.
766. घ्, छ्: स्त्रद्धया 767. All MSs: वा 768. घ्: साधकःस्य
769. ख्, ग्, ज्, झ्: नतः; घ्, छ्: नरः 770. All MSs except घ्, छ्, झ्: वाख्यातं
771. ख्: कु * चारेण; झ्: कु * रारेण 772. All MSs except ख्, ग्, छ्, ज्: वरानने
773. ताम्, or the like, is needed to complete the syntax.
774. घ्: कदाचनः; झ्: कदाचने 775. ख्, ग्, ज्, झ्: दिव्य 776. झ्: मनोरम
777. घ्: –सुगन्धाढ्यै 778. All MSs: आचार्यं पूर्वसंमुखम् To complete the syntax भूत्वा or the like is required. 779. झ्: प्रकाशायेत्–; all MSs: –ष्ये

780. All MSs: अथ 781. घ्: –च्चित्त
782. क्, ज्: –विरं; ग्: –धिरं; all other MSs: –षिरं
783. झ्: भा भविष्यति 784. All MSs: –विद्या 785. घ्: लिष्य
786. All MSs except झ् + लिखित्वा। पूजयित्वा would be correct.
787. छ्: क्ष्याम्यते 788. क्: शिष्ये: 789. ग्: शोषितं; घ्: शोधिते
790. क्: संक्षे * णाष्टकं; घ्: संक्षेपेनाष्टकं 791. घ्: येत्; झ्: च भ *
792. छ्: निद्याद् 793. The correct accusative plural required here is योगियोगिनी: but it does not fit the metre.
794. क्, ख्, झ्: जासु; घ्, छ्: जानु; all other MSs: जामु 795. ग्: –पत्नी
796. क्: –भार्या 797. क्: वक्तिकां; घ्, छ्: चक्रिकां
798. The following three lines are missing from here up to 30/231ab पूरत:
कथयिष्यामि– in MS: झ् 799. All MSs except घ्, छ्: कुमारी
800. क्, ख्: व्रजीता:; ग्, घ्, छ्, ज्: व्रजितां 801. ग्: समया श्राव्यो; all other MSs: समया श्राव्या 802. All MSs except ग्, घ्, छ्: वरानने 803. घ्:
पुरत: 804. छ्, ज्: षष्ठिसमया; all other MSs: –समया 805. घ्, छ्: –राज्ञा
806. घ्: वाख्येयं; छ्: व्याख्येयं; ज्: व्यख्येयं 807. क्: –मार्थ
808. IM 6 + 7. क्: नैवोद्द्याघं; ख्: नैवोद्घोद्यं; ग्, ज्: नैवोद्घाद्यं; घ्: नैवोढ्याद्यं; छ्: नैवोढ्याद्यं; झ्:
नैवोद्योद्यं; all other MSs: नैवोद्याद्यं 809. घ्, छ्: पशुना
810. घ्: भूष्णीमास्थाय:. IM 5. 811. ख्, ग्, झ्: गुर्व्वाघं; घ्, छ्: गुर्व्वाद्यं This line is the same as 30/46 cd above. There this quarter reads: संकेतंयो विजानाति
812. क्: जानानि 813. घ्, छ्, ज्: –सरे
814. This line reads above in 30/47ab: मूलसूत्रं क्रमं देयं पारम्पर्यगुरुक्रमम्
815. घ्: स्व:शिष्यं 816. All MSs except घ्, छ्: तत्
817. घ्, छ्: –विवकं; all other MSs: –भुंवकं
818. क्, ख्, ग्, ज्, झ्: दद्यात्– 819. All MSs: अवस्था
820. य: is required to complete the syntax.
821. घ्: नास्थि:; all other MSs: नास्ति 822. All MSs: शिष्यं
823. See above, note to 5/48c. 824. missing in MS झ्:
क्, ग्: प्रत्यषा–; झ्: + देवभक्ति हिनान्वि वर्जयेत् 825. Missing in MS झ्; घ्, छ्: भावया 826. All MSs: सहजा–; ग्: –मेलक 827. This line is missing in MS झ्. 828. Missing in MS झ्
829. क्, ख्, ग्: पव्यते; all other MSs: पश्यते 830. Missing in MS
झ्. 831. क्, ग्: ग्रण्वोप–; ख्: गुण्ठोप–; घ्, छ्, ज्: ग्रश्चोप–; झ्: गष्थो– IM 5 + 6.
832. संभाष:, संभाषा and संभाषणम् are the regular forms.
833. झ्: च 834. झ्: प्रकाशियेत् 835. M → N. सार– is generally treated as neuter. 836. ग्, घ्, छ्: –देशान् 837. घ्: अनवय 838. घ्:
–प्रमाण 839. ख्: –निर्णय; झ्: वि * लषट्कनिर्णय 840. ख्: –परमेश्वरे; घ्:
–पारमेश्वर 841. झ्: –महात्म्येवर्णे 842. ख्, झ्: लिखन * * *
विधिर्नामानन्द:

NOTES OF THE TRANSLATION OF CHAPTER THIRTY

1. After the disciple has received initiation, the teacher dictates the Tantra to him, explaining it as he goes along. This twofold process is called 'vyākhyālekhana' (see below 30/27 and note).

2. KuKh 30/2-33ab roughly corresponds to ṢSS 3/3-28cd. The texts do not coincide completely, although verses, lines and quarter-verses are the same here and there. In some cases, one line of text in the ṢSS is expanded into two in the KuKh. There are extra lines in both texts not found in the other as well as reworking of common lines. The reader is referred to the notes of the edition of the Sanskrit text for details.

According to the ṢSS, the Śrīmata is the KMT as well as its expanded version, the ṢSS. Here the Śrīmata is the Manthānabhairavatantra 'consisting of twenty-four thousand verses'.

3. This passage, which continues up to 30/47, describes how the scripture should be copied and transmitted from the teacher to his disciple and how it should be worshipped on that occasion. ṢSS 3/19-29 deals with the same subject. Here it is resumed from 30/111cd and continues up to the end of the chapter concluding with admonishments to worship and preserve the scripture and conceal it from the unworthy.

4. Sch oterman translates the version of this line in the ṢSS as follows: 'On the tithi [called] Pūrṇā there should be neither sun nor moon.' This occurs when there is a lunar eclipse.

5. The text reads: 'sūryeṇa tu samanvitām' which literally means 'along with the sun' that is, I suppose, on a Sunday or possibly, when the sun is in a favourable asterism.

6. The ṢSS 3/19 says that this should be done in a temple (mandira). As this is a secret ritual meant only for initiates, this is surprising. Thus, presumably, an isolated, deserted temple is meant. Apparently, in order to circumvent this problem, Schoterman has translated this word as 'spot' i.e. place.

7. This is the scripture of twenty-four thousand verses, that is, the Manthānabhairavatantra. See above 30/2cd-3ab. It is named again this way below in 68/48. The three sections (khaṇḍa) are listed below in 69/28cd-29ab. The first section is said be this one, namely, the Kumārikākhaṇḍa. The second is the Siddhkhaṇḍa and the third is the Ādyakhaṇḍa. See intro. vol. 3, p. 99 ff..

8. Concerning the worship of the scripture see appendix X.

9. The MSs read 'mātṛmaṇḍalam' which makes no sense. I have emended to 'mātṛkhaṇḍakam' which may be the Kumārikākhaṇḍa. The Mantrakhaṇḍa may be the Siddhakhaṇḍa.

10. Schoterman translates the equivalent passage in the ṢSS (3/19-23a) as follows:

On a smooth and pleasant spot bright with scattered flowers; on a place heavily scented with incense, [provided] with saffron, aloe and sandal; there he should make a maṇḍala in the form of a regular square. He should mark it with *svastika*s, and at each corner he should put a lamp. The lamps should burn on ghee and rice-flour, and be bright. On the [central] svastika he should place a beautiful jar, filled to the brim with gems, gold and flowers. It is brightly decorated with mango-twigs; around it a white thread is knotted. He covers the [the jar] with a pair of garments.

The Sanskrit that follows reads: tatpṛṣṭhe sthāpya pustakam | pūrṇapātraṁ tadagreṇa sauvarṇatāmbūlapūritam. Schoterman translates: '[he] places the book on top of it [viz. the jar]. In front of the jar is the Pūrṇapātra filled with gold and betel.' I suggest that a more correct translation would be: '[he] places the book behind it. In front of that [book] is the Pūrṇapātra filled with gold and betel.'

11. See note 1 to KuKu 1/1; cf. ṢSS 3/33. The teacher begins by explaining the sequence of twenty-eight mantras (padakrama) to which the 'Five Verses' in the beginning of the ṢSS refer. This makes sense. Mantras are the essential substance of the teaching. The series of mantras that constitute the Krama are the sum of all the Transmission – the Krama in the broader sense. Thus the Saṁvartāmaṇḍalasūtra with which the Tantra begins heralds the 'descent' of the Krama into the human world.

Note that the reference to the "Five Verses' is missing in the version of this passage in the ṢSS, even though the ṢSS begins with this form of the sūtra. It is possible that at an early stage of the redaction, this form of the Saṁvartāmaṇḍalasūtra was transmitted independently. At some stage it was furnished with a written commentary and the two prefixed to the KuKh to make its first two chapters. Thus, although the text here does not necessarily imply that the Kumārikākhaṇḍa is meant to be transcribed first before the other two *khaṇḍa*s of the MBT, it appears, at least, that a redactor of the KuKh chose to begin his text with this sūtra to add to the KuKh's prestige.

12. This explanation is probably not to be written. The statement above (30/1-2ab) that it should be written and explained clearly implies this. See also 30/117.

13. The version in the ṢSS enjoins that just four virgins may be worshipped instead of eight. The eight virgins probably represent the eight Mothers.

14. See above, 5/43 and note.

15. Schoterman's translation of the equivalent passage in the ṢSS (3/24-28) reads:

Thus [are the preparations]. Having paid homage to the Kula-jar, again and again, he should invite eight or four virgins, O Varānanā, and honour these women consecrated in the Kula-[tradition] with the thought: "The Yoginīs are on the same line with Yogeśvarī". With beautiful garments, blossoms, incense and with all kinds of nourishment including liquor and meat, he should honour them properly. Next he should ask the permission of the Kulajās with regard to the one who has entered the Kula-[tradition] with the words: "I intend to explain [the Śrīmata] to [this] pupil. Let it succeed without hinderances." Having obtained [their] consent, the Vīrendra should worship the Kulakrama. Having honoured the book there according to the rules, O Varānanā, next the guru should honour with devotion the deities of the body.

After this, the ṢSS (3/29) enjoins that: 'the pupil should then honour his teacher with [a gift of] cows, land, gold, garments etc. Next he should read the book aloud with a pleasant voice.' Thus Schoterman (1981: 18) concludes that: 'it was the rule that a manuscript was not simply copied from another manuscript, but it was written down from a recited text'. He points out that this practice may account for some errors in the transmission of the text that are derived from hearing (rather than reading) incorrectly. Our text presents a more complex picture. We are told that the disciple listens to the scripture uttered by the teacher (30/116, cf. 30/206). If he is in the right state, he will experience a great penetration of power, just as may happen by the utterance of a Vidyā (especially the Samayā) or by the deity's or teacher's powerful gaze. Again, the teacher should also explain, not just recite. The oral transmission (mukhāgama) that accompanies the text is the basis of the latter. It is considered to be so fundamental that the Kubjikā Tantras are said to be this oral transmission (30/174). Nonetheless, the teacher not only dictates the scripture to his disciple, he may also give it to him to copy. Thus the text repeatedly admonishes that it should not be shown to the uninitiated (30/111ab), but only to those who are worthy (30/238cd-239ab). Again, the scripture is hard to acquire (30/92), implying that it was also physically given in written form. Just as hearing it is a grace, those who see it are liberated while still alive (30/204cd-205ab).

16. The term gūḍhajñāna can also be translated as 'secret knowledge'. This is the knowledge that is transmitted through the esoteric Kaula traditions. Thus the DP, a Kālīkrama text, declares that: 'the secret (gūḍha) is in the oral scripture' (gūḍhaṁ vaktrāgame sthitam) (DP 2/45a). It is the knowledge of the true nature of ultimate principles – of Kula, Akula and Kaula. The goddess says in the DP:

I have heard that in which the Yoginīs believe, free of thought contructs, tranquil, terrible (for the worldly) and profound (gūḍha) Śāmbhava, Śākta and Āṇava.

yoginīnāṁ ca viśvāsaṁ [g: viśyāsaṁ] nirvikalpaṁ mayā śrutam ||

śāntaṁ [g: śānta] ghoraṁ tathā gūḍhaṁ śāmbhavaṁ [g: śāṁḍavaṁ] śāktam āṇavam | DP 1/15cd-16ab

Again: O god, the most excellent Kula is present everywhere in what is kept well hidden (sugūḍha) like the scent present in a flower, or oil in a sesame seed, or the like.

sarvatra saṁsthitaṁ deva sugūḍhe [g: sugūḍhai] kulam uttamam |
puṣpe [g: puṣpai] gandha ivāsaktas [kh g: -śaktas] tailaṁ [k: melaṁ; g: tairaṁ] yadvat tilādiṣu || Ibid. 2/36

17. This important sūtra, also called the First Sūtra (and the Sūtra of Action (KuKh 42/2), appears above 26/3-5 and again below in 38/2 ff. and 42/2-5.

18. These lines approximate to 30/234cd-235ab below. There instead of the 'convention' we read the 'Current of the Teachers' (gurvogha), which may be taken to be equivalent. Similarly, instead of 'the teaching (pāramparya) of the transmission of the masters (gurukrama)', the text there reads 'the oral scripture' (mukhāgama), which we may also take to be equivalent.

19. The sacred days (parvan) are not listed in the KuKh. In the following reference, the KMT (25/196) enjoins that the scripture should be worshipped regularly on the eighth and fourteenth day of each lunar fortnight:

If the worship is performed according to the prescribed method on the eighth and the fourteenth and one worships the supreme tradition (āmnāya), the one (who does so) is (himself) worshipped by the rays (of the deity's radiance).

Further ahead, virtually at the end of the KMT (25/215-219), the following eight days are listed:

(Bhairava says:) One must practice and keep secret your doctrine (mata). This is the Command of the Supreme Goddess. O fair lady, one must worship it particularly on the third day of the bright fortnight of Vaiśākha and on the thirteenth of the dark fortnight, on the ninth of Nabhasya (i.e. Bhadra) and that of the bright fortnight of Āśvin, the full moon of Phālguna, Āṣāḍha and Śrāvaṇa as well as the fourteenth of the bright fortnight of Bhādrapadī. On these days one should fashion the sacred thread (pavitraka) (and offer it and perform the rituals) which, according to one's material means, are lower, middling or best. O mother of Kula, (each of these days) is dedicated to the teacher (guruparvan) and should be observed.

The sacred days are listed in the first chapter of what has survived of the KuKauM. The first four sets are those dedicated to the teachers and their wives (guruparvan). They are the teachers' birthdays. By worshipping them on these days, the adept is promised the liberated state of flight (khecaratva). The first group of eighteen days are those of the teachers who belong to the Divine Current (divyaugha) (see below chapter 57). They are:

1) The bright sixth of Bhādrapada. 2) The dark fourteenth and 3) eighth of Āśvin. 4) Bright ninth of Kārttika. 5) The dark fifth of Mārga. 6) The full moon of Pauṣa. 7) The bright fourteenth in Māgha. 8) The bright twelfth of Phālguna. 9) The bright eighth of Caitra. 10) The thirteenth of Madana. 11) The bright and 12) dark twelfth of Vaiśākha. 13) The bright third of Jyeṣṭha. 14) The second fourteenth of Āṣāḍha.15) The bright fifth of Śrāvaṇa. 16) The third, 17) full moon and 18) dark eighth of Caitra. (KuKauM 1/194cd-198)

The following are the four days dedicated to the Lords of the Ages (yuganātha) from Khagendra to Matysendra and the Siddhas of the four sacred seats:

1) Khagendranātha – Oḍḍīśanātha: the third of Vaiśākha. 2) Kūrmanātha – Jālandharanātha: The bright ninth of Kārtika. 3) – Meṣanātha – Ṣaṣthanātha: The dark thirteenth of Nabha. 4) Matsyendra – Mitranātha: the fifteenth of Māgha. (Ibid. 1/200-201)

The days sacred (parvan) to the Nine Siddhas are: 1) The bright fifth of Āṣāḍha. 2-3) The bright thirteenth and fourteenth of Vaiśākha. 4) The bright fourteenth of Śrāvaṇa. 5) The fourteenth and 6) dark eighth of Bhādrapada. 7) The bright seventh of Bhādrapada. 8) The bright tenth of Jyeṣṭha. 9) The dark thirteenth of Āśvin. (Ibid. 1/203-205ab)

The sacred days of the Sixteen Siddhas with their wives are: 1) The dark fourteenth of Phālguna. 2) The (dark?) fifth of Vaiśākha. 3) The full moon of Māgha. 4) The full moon of Pauṣa. 5) The bright thirteenth of Caitra. 6) The dark eighth of Vaiśākha. 7) The bright ninth of Jyeṣṭha. 8) The bright first of Āṣāḍha. 9) The dark eleventh of Śravaṇa. 10) The dark (or bright?) eighth of Bhādrapada. 11) The bright ninth of Aśvin. 12) The bright ninth of Kārttika. 13) The bright eighth of Māgha. 14) The dark eighth of Vaiśākha. 15) The dark eighth of Śrāvaṇa. 16) The dark eighth of Kārttika. (Ibid. 1/202cd-210)

The following are nine sacred days for union between Siddhas and Yoginīs (melāpa). Two more are added for the yearly ritual Offering of the Garland (damanārohaṇa) and the Sacred Thread (pavitrārohaṇa) to the deity: 1) The new moon and 2) the bright fourteenth of Phālguna. 3) The bright eighth and 4) fourteenth of Caitra. 5) The dark eighth and 6) fourteenth of Āṣāḍha. 7) The bright eighth and 8) fourteenth of Śrāvaṇa, 9) Bhādrapada and 10) Āśvin. 11) Śivarātri. (Ibid. 1/211-214ab)

The following are the great sacred days (mahāparvan) declared in the Kula Tantras (kulatantraka). These may be the sixteen sacred days to which our text refers: 1) The bright fourth and 2) fifth of Āṣāḍha. 3) The fourteenth and 4) full moon of Bhādrapada. 5) The bright eighth and 6) ninth of Āśvin. 7) The full moon and 8) first day of Kārttika. 9 -10) The dark thirteenth and fourteenth night of Pauṣa. 11) The bright fourteenth and 12) fifth of Māgha. 13) The new moon and 14) dark thirteenth of Phālguna along with the 15) fourteenth and 16) fifteenth. (Ibid. 1/215cd-219)

Cf. above 27/25-26ab and also TĀ 28/10-60ab.

20. The following passage up to verse 73 appears to be an interpolation. The main subject of this chapter – the copying and worship of the Kula scripture – is resumed from there. Echoing 30/46cd-47ab where the Tantra enjoins that a knowledge of the 'convention' is essential to gain access to the scripture, the insertion of the following passage is justified by asserting that this is the convention that should be known. It concerns the Vajra body (vajrapiṇḍa). Both the maṇḍala and the body of the adept, it is pierced by the energy of the Vidyā. Kuṇḍalinī should be awake and active in both the maṇḍala and the body. Purified by the inner flow of the energy of the Command, the disciple is capable of understanding the meaning of the scripture.

The Wick of the Navel is the Wick of the Command (ājñāvarti), which is the goddess who is the Transmental energy in the centre of the maṇḍala (see above, note to 7/42cd-43ab). The two Door Panels are the inhaled and exhaled breath (30/71-72ab) represented by the upward – and downward-facing triangles of the Hexogram in the centre of the maṇḍala. Thus it is called the Hexogram of the Two Door Panels (39/90cd-91) and the Body of the Thunderbolt (vajrapiṇḍa) (30/67). The Conjuction of the Thunderbolt is the Thirty-two syllable Vidyā in the centre – the sonic form of Kuṇḍalinī – the Wick of the Navel. The two 'Door Panels' are united and fuse in the dynamics of the movement of the energies of the Vidyā along the central axis, upwards and downwards. How this process takes place within the body has been described in chapter 13 (13/110 ff., cf. 39/85ab).

21. KuKh 30/51cd-52 = KuKh 39/85; see there further ahead for more explanations.

22. See 39/90cd for a similar line.

23. The Navel is the Thunderbolt (see 3/98 and notes), that is, Kuṇḍalinī. This is the Transmission of Meru (merukrama) in the deepest sense. Those in whom it is active possess true inner, spiritual fame (kīrti) – not just worldly renown. It is this 'fame' that spreads as and through the Transmission. This, the Command, thus manifests most concretely in and as the Krama. From the Point comes the Wick of the Navel, that is, from the Point comes the triangular syllable AIṀ. This is the goddess Triangle – Triṣkoṇā, to which verse 59 refers. This emanates into Meru, the Triangle as the energies of the letters. From these energies emerge the mantras of the Krama which is spontaneously deployed in the six corners of the Hexagon. The Triangle that 'utters' the Krama in this way is the Mouth of the Teacher (guruvaktra), that is, the Mouth of the Yoginī (yoginīvaktra). Thus the Krama that emerges from it is the 'oral scripture' (mukhāgama).

The Command of this division – bhedājñā – is the Command of the Division beginning with KĀ, that is, the Paścimāmnāya – the 'western' or 'last' or 'bottom' tradition because it comes from the bottom or last part of the downward-facing Triangle, where Kāmarūpa – KĀ for short – is located.

24. The six gestures associated here with the six parts of the Krama may be those linked to the six limbs of the Samayā Vidyā (see above 10/34-35). Here the Krama appears to be divided in groups of 4-4-5-6-5-4 mantras.

25. The Krama is projected into the Hexogram as Kuṇḍalinī travels down through the Six Wheels of the Six Parts of the Krama, passing through the corners of the Hexagram in a clockwise direction as she does so. This is the emergence of the Transmission, which is maintained by the 'repose of persistence' of the supreme plane of being in the Centre where the goddess abides. Then, in the third phase, she withdraws, moving anticlockwise through the Hexogram and upwards into the Centre. The adept who can follow her movement here experiences the most immediate and intense form of possession.

There the Circle of the Wind, which encompasses the whole inner breathing of this movement, established in the 'fourth state' beyond these three, is Kuṇḍalinī. She is wrapped in the Ball of the Nectar of Moonlight of the lunar Point in the centre. There she 'melts' releasing the nectar that immerses the Yoginīs of the energies of the letters and mantras in the Triangle and the Hexogram in the contemplation of the Supreme State the goddess experiences. Here the goddess presents herself initially as Vaiṣṇavīśakti and is contemplated as such at the end. Thus this is the 'Vaiṣṇava knowledge of the Western Tradition' (30/51cd-52).

26. This is the goddess's Samayā Vidyā. See note to 7/51cd-52ab.

27. Mālinī who sits next to Kucandra is the Full Moon (7/51cd-52ab).

28. In other words the Vidyā is encapsulated by the Five Praṇavas, at the beginning and end of it.

29. See 28/100ff.. Moonlight (jyotsnā or candrikā) paradoxically characterises the New Moon. But above in chapter seven Mahantāryā (= Mahāntārikā) appears to be the 42-syllable Vidyā of the Full Moon. See note to 7/36cd-37ab.

30. The Body of the Thunderbolt (vajrapiṇḍa) is the Body of Kula (kulapiṇḍa) made of the energy of all the letters.

31. The two doors are the upward-and downward-facing triangles of the Hexagon. The superimposition of the two triangles creates six smaller triangles at each of the corners. These six triangles are also Yonis in which the energy of the goddess is present and from which it flows. The corners of the downward facing triangle contain the first three Wheels beginning with the Wheel of the Foundation (ādhāracakra) up through to the Self-supported (svādhiṣṭhāna) and then the City of Gems (maṇipura) in the navel. The upward facing triangle contains the remaining three Wheels – Unstruck Sound, Purity and the Command, successively. Thus the Wheel of the Foundation, which is the lowest, is represented by the downward-facing triangle at the bottom and the highest Wheel, that of the Command, is represented by the upward-facing triangle at the top. The former Wheel is called the Stone of Birth (janmaśilā) because, like the triangle in the centre of the Saṁvartāmaṇḍala, which is called the Stone, it is within a triangle that faces downwards. The Thunderbolt that connects the two halves is here called the Wick of the Navel and the female Snake, that is, Kuṇḍalinī who resides in the navel, which is the centre of the body. As the energy of the vital breath, Kuṇḍalinī travels down to the navel in course of exhalation and up from it when inhaling. These are the two door panels that Kuṇḍalanī keeps closed together, as it were, when she is in between the two in the navel.

Again, the Hexogram is the Island (30/55) in the centre of which is the Triangle called the Stone. In the centre of that is the Point which is the goddess's Liṅga of Space. Here this is called the Circle of the Wind. It is the male Serpent Tārkṣya, who is Navātman Bhairava, the goddess's consort and the First Teacher. Here the goddess is called Mahantaryā and Śivānanā, 'who sits next to the teacher' – now in the complete form of the Vidyā, not just the seed-syllable as she is in the initial 'descent', when stimulating the emission of the Krama as the Wick of the Command.

Apart from the Six Wheels, many equivalent realities are in six parts. Amongst them are the maṇḍala and, above all, the goddess herself, of which they are all ultimately an emanation. Concerning the goddess, her 'six parts' and the Hexagram, see intro. vol. 1, p. 319 ff..

32. 'vimalaṁ pārameśvaram' is possibly an allusion to the Ājñāpārameśvara mentioned in the colophons, just as 'pure' (vimala) may allude to the Vimalaṣaṭka mentioned there.

33. The knowledge relates to the sixfold Kula Body, that is, to the Hexagram representing the six inner Wheels. Along with Śiva and Śakti, the two breaths, it is eightfold.

34. See note to 5/59cd-61ab.

35. The Yoginīhṛdaya (2/15-16ab) similarly refers to six meanings of the Kaula scripture, which it defines as follows:

1) The literal meaning (bhāvārtha): O Supreme Goddess, the literal meaning is just the meaning of the words.
akṣarārtho hi bhāvārthaḥ kevalaḥ parameśvari || Ibid. 2/16cd
2) The traditional teaching (sampradāya): The traditional teaching is said to be that which is received through the line of teachers (gurukrama).
gurukrameṇa saṁprāptaḥ saṁpradayārtha īritaḥ | Ibid. 2/48ab
3) The implicit sense (nigarbhārtha): O Great Goddess, the field of the implicit sense is Śiva, the teacher and the Self.
nigarbho 'pi mahādevi śivagurvātmagocaraḥ | Ibid. 2/48cd
4) Kaulika meaning: I will tell (you) the Kaulika (meaning) that pertains to the Wheel and the deity. . . . It is the oneness of the Vidyā, teacher and the Self.
kaulikaṁ kathayiṣyāmi cakradevatayor api | vidyāgurvātmānām aikyaṁ Ibid. 2/51cd-52a
5) The most secret of all (sarvarahasyārtha): This meaning is Kuṇḍalinī. It is explained as follows:

> O sinless one, I will explain the most secret meaning of all to you. The Vidyā, in the shape of the fifty letters and conjoined with the thirty-eight energies, is in the form of Kuṇḍalinī who pierces the three Circles (of Moon, Sun and Fire). (She is) in the (Wheel of) the Root Support (mūlādhāra) whose nature, (powerful and brilliant as a) lightning flash, has assumed the form of Vāgbhava (AIṀ).
>
> (Kuṇḍalinī) is as brilliant as tens of millions of lightning flashes and her form (is subtle) like a lotus fibre. She is a stream of nectar, (and) she is attached (āsaktā) to the lunar orb in the (inner) sky. Her nature perpetual bliss, she is always pervaded by the entire universe and realises that: 'this (energy) is my own nature!' O Great Goddess, this is the secret meaning. Ibid. 2/69-72

6) The sixth meaning is the great ultimate sense (mahātattvārtha), which the YHṛ does not define.

36a. If I have understood these lines correctly, they record a series of three corresponding groups of five that are placed in five directions, as tabulated in the following chart:

15. Table of Five Goddesses of the Maṇḍala

Directions	Parts of the Maṇḍala	Power-holders	Energies
East	Ājñāvarti	Para	Kumārī
West	Śivapantha	Paramahaṁsa	Kartarī
Middle	Vṛkṣachāyā	Kuvera	Bhāṣā
North	Soma	Pītha	Mātrātmā
South	Ravi	Āvalī	Mātarī

The Wick of the Command (ājñāvarti) is represented by the Half Moon (see 7/43). The Tree is the Point and the seed-syllable in the centre of the maṇḍala. The shade of this Tree is the maṇḍala that surrounds it and so it is identified with all of it. The Sun and Moon are the letters Ha and KṢa on the two sides of the Triangle that represent the two breaths. The Supreme Gander is Unstruck Sound, the Lord of the Transmental energy in the centre of the maṇḍala.

36b. KuKh 30/85cd-87ab, 88cd-91 = KuKh 45/54cd–59. KuKh 45/54cd: It consists of the Northern (vāma) and Southern (dakṣiṇa) Kaulika (Transmissions) along with (those of) the East (pūrva) and the West (paścima).

36c. KuKh 45/55c: He who knows this.

37a. Cf. above, 27/62 where the adept is admonished to never 'cross over Meru', that is, the main bead of a rosary.

37b. Concerning the (Śrīmata-) Sārasaṁgraha see intro. vol. 3, p. 382 ff..

38. Concerning the Five Currents of the Śaiva Āgamas, see Dyczkowski 1986: 31 ff. The Mouth of the Unborn, also called the Lower Mouth, the Mouth of the teacher, and the Mouth the Yoginī. When called Picu it is the source of the Kaula current of scriptures, which is the sixth (See ibid. p, 66).

39. The descent into the world of the scripture is discussed in the intro. vol. 2, p. 42 ff..

40. Instead of 'jñānaṁ' all MSs and other sources agree on the reading dravyaṁ, which makes no sense. Concerning this emendation see notes of the edition.

41. This form of the Gurumaṇḍala is described in chapter 271-17 above. Cf. 30/203-4, 216-7ab. The Five Teachers are the Five Nāthas, Śrīkaṇṭha and the rest. The common symbolism of groups of five (a paradigm derived from the Five Elements) found in Śaiva and Buddhist Tantras leads to a parallelism between these Five Teachers and the Five Buddhas – Vairocana, Amitabha, Amoghasiddhi, Ratnasambhava and Akṣobhya.

42. The text of this quarter verse is too corrupt to emend.

43. A 'dīpana', which literally means an 'illuminator', may also be a mantra or seed-syllable that illumines the mind of the disciple and prepares him to receive the empowerment that comes through listening to the meaning of the scripture.

44. These lines are corrupt and look incomplete; nonetheless, the meaning is clear. Before copying the scripture the teacher and disciple should worship a Kumārī who embodies the goddess. She is propitiated and then questioned as to the most aupicious time and place to undertake this important task. The scripture should not be simply copied mechanically. It is essential that the disciple understand clearly and deeply what is written. For this he requires the illuminating penetration of the energy of the teacher's grace that comes by listening to his explanation of its meaning.

45. Below in 30/177d-178ab this scripture is said to be that of the Siddhakula. See intro. vol. 2, p. 278 ff..

46. Cf. the Buddhist Hevajratantra (2/7/2-4): O listen, goddess, greatly blessed, and I will speak on the subject of books. The book should be written by one of our tradition on leaves of birch-bark twelve aṅgula [fingers] long, with collyrium for ink and with a human bone as a pen. But if someone unworthy should see either book or painting, one will fail to gain perfection either in this world or the next. To one of our tradition it may be shown at any time. Then, on a journey, the book should be hidden in the hair or under the arm.

47. Yakṣakardama is an ointment made with camphor, musk, sandalwood and Kakkola. Monier-Williams, p. 838.

48. See above, note to 4/8.

49. Similarly, YKh (1) admonishes:

The king of Matas (matarājaka) should not be shown to greedy Tāntrikas, Buddhists, devotees of the Sun, Vaiṣṇavas, Śaivas, logicians who have no (spiritual) teacher or to those who do not participate in ritual, are ignorant and have no faith (śraddhā) or devotion. (It should not be shown) to clerks (kāyastha), quacks, Somasiddhānta Lākulas, Jains or sorcerers. Keeping their company, eating or sleeping with them is not auspicious.

Or if one who is deluded were to give the Śrīmata for some (selfish) gain, the teacher who knows the rites purifies (that) fettered soul by maintaining celibacy and repeating (the appropriate mantra) 300,000 times for the three sections (khaṇḍa) (of the Śrīmata).

One should allow those who are devoted to the teacher and the god and observe the conventions and pledges and who are not greedy or deceitful to touch (it). One should allow those who know everything that has be taught about their own (true) nature and are beloved of the Yoginīs and teachers to see (it) and it should be dictated to them (lekhyaṁ tu ca vācayet). Otherwise one should not give it, if one desires the best accomplishment (siddhi).

tāntrikān lolupān [k, gh: lālupān] bauddhān [ṅ: voddhāṁ] saurabhaktān [ṅ:

sārabhakṣāṁ] ca vaiṣṇavān [ṅ: -vaṁ] । śaivānāṁ hetuvādināṁ [k, kh, gh: hetukādīnāṁ; ṅ: -kādīnā] tārkikān [k, kh: nārkikāṁ; gh: nākiṁkāṁ] guruvarjitān ।। kriyāhīnāvettānāṁ [k, kh, gh: -hīnāṁmavettānāṁ; ṅ: -macettānāṁ] śraddhābhaktivivarjitān [kh:- varjitāṁ]* । *kāyasthān cumbakān [k, kh, gh: vuṁvakāṁ; ṅ: cu * kāṁ] vaidyān saumasiddhāntalākulān [ṅ: somasiddhānulākulāṁ]* ।। *jinān ca [ṅ: car] yātudhānān [k, kh, gh: yādharāṇāṁ; ṅ: yāvarāṇāṁ] ca na [ṅ: ] darśen matarājakam [ṅ: darśemetat tadrājakaṁ] । na teṣāṁ saha saṁparkaṁ [k, gh, ṅ: saṁparkka] bhojanaṁ [ṅ: bhā-] śayanaṁ śubham [k, kh, gh, ṅ: sabhā] ।। athavā mohitaḥ kaścil lobhād [ṅ: kaścitalokemvi] vā [ṅ: missing] śrīmataṁ [ṅ: missing] dadet [ṅ: missing] । *tribhir lakṣais trikhaṇḍāyāṁ [k, gh: tribhilakṣaustri-; kh: trabhilakṣaustri-; ṅ: * * * * khaṇḍāyā] brahmacaryeṇa saṁsthitaḥ [ṅ: -tāḥ]* ।। śuddhyati [k, kh, gh, ṅ: -te] paśum ācāryaḥ kriyākāṇḍasamanvitaḥ [kh: -śama-] । gurudevaratānāṁ ca saṁjñāsamayapālakāḥ [k, kh, gh: -sammayapālakāṁ; ṅ: -kāṁ] ।। *[ṅ: + tri * nādi svapaṁktisthā saṁdhyātraya prapālakām* ।] alaulyā [k, kh, gh, ṅ: alaulyam] aśaṭhānāṁ ca teṣāṁ sparśaṁ [gh: sparśa] pradāpayet [k, gh, ṅ: na dāpayet; kh: naṁ dāpayet] । sarvasvātmānivedajñā yoginyācāryavatsalāḥ [k, kh, gh: yominyā- -lā; ṅ: -lāṁ] ।। *teṣāṁ vai [gh: caiva] darśanaṁ [k, kh, gh, ṅ: darśanā] deyaṁ [k, kh, gh, ṅ: deva] ca [k, kh, gh: na; ṅ: *] lekhyaṁ [k, kh, gh: lekhya; ṅ: lekhyā] tu [k, kh, gh, ṅ: na] ca [ṅ: ] vācayet [ṅ: vācane] । anyathā naiva dātavyaṁ yadīcchet [k, kh, gh: yadichet] siddhim uttamāṁ [k, kh, gh: siddhirattamā; ṅ: -maṁ] ।। YKh (1) 20/15-21

50. See intro. vol. 2, p. 344 ff..

51. See note to 31/6-7ab.

52. The division of the teachings into currents is an echo of a common system of classification, found in the Śaivasiddhānta Āgamas, according to which Āgamic Śaivism is divided into five major currents (srotas) of teachings that flow in the form of scriptures from Sadāśiva's five mouths arranged in five directions. Each mouth presides over five forms of Śiva amongst which is Sadyojāta to whom is asigned the western one (see Dyczkowski 1989: 30ff.). This division into five is here implicitly juxtaposed, somewhat clumsily with the analogous classification of the schools of Kaula Tantra found in the YKh, the CMSS and other Kubjikā texts, according to which there are four traditions (āmnāya) taught successively in the four Ages and arranged symbolically in the four directions (see intro. vol. 2, p. 340 ff.). This division into the four Ages is significant because, as the next verse tells us, it is essential to belong to the tradition of the Age to which one belongs. Consequently, the Western (paścima which also means 'Last') Current is not just the best, it is the only one fit for this Age, especially because we are close to the end of it.

53. ‘Pūrṇa’ is short for Pūrṇagiri, which according to our text, at least, is located in the Deccan (dakṣiṇāpatha). See above, 6/72 ff. and and note to 13/107cd-8ab; see also Dyczkowski 2004: 105.

54. For the references to Muslim invasion and establishment of Muslim rule, see above 6/174cd-176 and note; also Dyczkowski 1989: 11-12.

55. See note 54 of 38/30 below.

56. Karavīra is normally associated with Oḍḍiyāṇa, the first seat both in the Kubjikā Tantras and in the Kālīkrama.

57. Cf. above, 3/25.

58. These four are modalities of the Initiation of Knowledge that takes place at the individual (āṇava) level. See below, 33/31cd-37. Cf. KMT (4/70-74):

Touch (sparśana) takes place in the Heart, the Look (āvalokana) in the throat, Conversation (saṁbhaṣa) in the palate. The Vision of the Self (ātmadarśana) in the middle of the Point (between the eyebrows) and, Spontaneous penetration (svayamāveśana) takes place, without a doubt, in the Cavity of Kubjī.

One should know that trembling (kampana) takes place in the course of touch (sparśana). Shaking (dhunana) when the look (āvalokana) takes place. In the course of Conversation (saṁbhaṣa), paralysis (stobha) takes place and one understands the meaning of the scripture. By the Vision of the Self (ātmadarśana) one attains (yogic) qualities, namely, the eight including the power to make oneself small at will and the rest. O goddess, when spontaneous penetration (svayamāveśana) occurs, (the adept) certainly flies upwards. Once one knows the modality of mantra in this way, one is certainly successful.

59. Cf. 30/235cd-236ab

60. The Gurumaṇḍala can be drawn in front of the teacher's sandals or visualized on them. See above, 27/1-17.

61. One gets the impression by this statement that copies of the scripture were not so easily available (cf. 30/207cd-208ab). Those who have received initiation but have not even seen, yet alone studied, the scripture are admonished in strong terms to remedy this omission. The closure of esoteric traditions such as this one, at a time when these forms of religious practice were flourishing, was one of the reasons for the development of so many of them. At the same time, however, the danger grew that their scriptural base could be lost if the texts were not carefully studied and copied.

62. Cf. Above 30/163–164ab.

63. The common six-syllabled mantra of Lord Śiva is OṀ NAMAḤ ŚIVĀYA. Presumably this is the mantra meant here.

64. Note similar preliminaries are observed to worship the Krama. Written with the same substances as the Kramamaṇḍala (30/121, 226cd-7ab), the scripture is no less the repository of the Krama and the deity.

65. The goddess, as we have noted already, is both the god's mother and his consort (see 26/79). If the teacher is like his divine exemplar of whom he is considered to be an embodiment his consort is also is his mother.

66. See above 6/3-4ab and note concerning the Conduct at Night and 15/39cd-50 for a brief explanation.

67. Cf. above 30/121. These substances are also used to draw the maṇḍala.

68. A part of the text is missing here. If the remaining part is not corrupt, it presumably referred to something the disciple is given to drink by his teacher. The disciple's ingestion of this substance marks the culmination of what is essentially an inititation, which allows him access to the scripture and the teaching. Then, as usually happens at the conclusion of an initiation, the disciple is told the Rules he should observe.

69. Concerning these Rules, see below, chapter 37.

70. These lines approximate to 30/46cd-47ab. See the notes to the text there.

Appendix I

The Forty-seven Depositions of the Siddhakhaṇḍa

The Nyāsasūtra

The Siddhakhaṇḍa of the MBT is called 'the Accomplished Section' because it presents the mantras and Vidyās required for the Kubjikā rites directly in their full 'accomplished' form. The structure of the text is loosely modelled on that of the rite, which it outlines as it proceeds. Accordingly, as one of the first things the worshipper must do is to purify himself by depositing mantras on his body, this is the first major subject of the SKh. The long passage in which the depositions are presented begins with the Nyāsasūtra[1] which lists their names. Following the sūtra, the SKh presents most of these depositions in full. Their names and serial order are listed below.

The SKh presents a series of Kramas, each of which is treated as a separate rite. Accordingly, the preliminary depositions must be repeated each time and differ for each Krama.[2] The depositions are divided into three groups, one for each of the Kramas, beginning with that of the Aged (mahāvṛddhakrama). The SKh declares in one place that there are twenty-seven depositions. This statement is repeated in a passage in which the three forms of the goddess, one for each of the three lineages, are described. In that context we are told that this is the number of depositions required for the worship of each one of them. Accordingly, each of the three forms of goddess[3] is covered with twenty-seven depositions. The same number also appears in a description of the constituents of the Western Transmission in YKh (1).[4] However, the SKh presents 47 depositions, not 27 or 81. This is probably because a number of depositions are common to more than one Krama.

These depositions are as follows:

1) The Deposition of Mālinī[5]
2) The Deposition of the Assembly of Sounds.[6]
3) The Deposition of the Three Vidyās.[7]
4) The Eight Aghoryās (Aghoryāṣṭakanyāsa).[1]

---

[1] SKh MS G fl. 9a-9b.
[2] See below, 27/33cd-41ab where the depositions for each of the three lineages are listed.
[3] See chapter five of the intro. for the visualized forms of the goddess.
[4] Quoted in a note to 30/16.
[5] See chapter 18.
[6] See chapter 19.
[7] vidyādhikāratrayaṁ. These are the three principles - Śivatattva, Vidyatattva and Ātmatattva.

5) Deposition of the Sixteen Knots (Ṣoḍaśagranthinyāsa).[2]
6) The Deposition of the Verse (Ślokanyāsa)[3]
7) The Deposition of the Mothers of the Six Peaks (Ṣaṭkūṭamātarīnyāsa).[4]
8) The Deposition of Tadgraha.[5]
9) The Deposition of Ṣoḍhā.[6]
10) The Deposition of the Sixteen Energies (Ṣoḍaśakalānyāsa).
11) The Sixfold Deposition of the single syllable Vidyā (Ekākṣaraṣoḍhānyāsa).[7]
12) The Deposition of the Heroes (Vīranyāsa)
11) The Deposition of the Principles (Tattvanyāsa)
12) The Deposition of the Samayā Vidyā and Tadgraha.[8]
13) The Deposition of the Series of Heroes (Vīrāvalīnyāsa).[9]
14) The Deposition of the Syllables (piṇḍa) and Tadgraha.[10]
15) The Deposition of (Kuṇḍalinī) the Crooked One (Kuṭilānyāsa)
16) The Deposition of the Samayā Vidyā (Vidyānyāsa)
17) The Deposition of the Ciñcinī Vidyā (Ciñcinīnyāsa)
18) The Deposition of the Sixteen Energies (Ṣoḍaśakalā)
19) The Deposition of the Worlds (Bhuvananyāsa)
20) The Deposition of the Five Jewels (Ratnapañcakanyāsa)[11]
21) The Deposition of the Mothers of the Rule (Samayamātṛnyāsa)
22) The Deposition of the Sonic Form of the Goddess (Mūrtinyāsa)
23) The Deposition of the Kālikā Vidyā.
24) The Deposition of the Twelve Limbs (Dvādaśāṅganyāsa).[12]
25) The Deposition of the Nine Limbs (Navāṅganyāsa)

---

[1] See chapter 21.
[2] See note to 48/49.
[3] One would expect this to consist of sixteen syllables. However, only fifteen are mentioned.
[4] These are the Yoginīs in the six Wheels.
[5] See KuKh chapter 23.
[6] See ibid. chapter 22.
[7] See ibid. chapter 22.
[8] The Rudras of the Śabdarāśi alphabet are coupled with the energies of the corresponding letters of the Mālinī alphabet. The two are placed at the beginning and end of a syllable of the Samayā Vidyā which is thus energized by them. Appropriately, this is then projected onto the part of the body where the corresponding letter of the Mālinī alphabet is located.
[9] The Heroes are the letters.
[10] This deposition, like the previous one, consists of the series of letters of the Assembly of Sounds. In this case each letter is linked to a Rudra and the energy of the coresponding letter of the Mālinī alphabet. The units are in groups of five. The first group is marked with the Five Praṇavas each of which is linked to a unit in the forward serial order. The next group is marked by the Five Praṇavas in the reverse order. The unit is projected onto the part of the body where the correponding letter of the Aggregate of Sound is located.
[11] See KuKh chapter 62.
[12] See ibid. chapter 24.

26) The Deposition of the Six Limbs of the Goddess (Ṣaḍaṅganyāsa).[1]
27) The Deposition of the Stone of Brahmā (Brahmaśilānyāsa).
28) The Deposition of the Five Seeds (Bījapañcakanyāsa).
29) The Deposition of the Group of Eight (Puryaṣṭakanyāsa).
30) The Deposition of the Ninefold Thunderbolt (Navadhāvajranyāsa).
31) The Deposition of the Mothers of the Kālikā Vidyā (Kālikāmātṛnyāsa).
32) The Deposition of Tadgraha with the sequence of the Assembly of Sounds.[2] 33) The Deposition of the Assembly of Letters (Varṇarāśinyāsa).
34) The Deposition of the Sequence of the Assembly of Sounds (Śabdarāśikramanyāsa).
35) The Five Faces (Vaktrapañcaka).
36) The Twelve Verses (Dvādaśaśloka).[3]
37) The Deposition of the Teachers (Gurunyāsa).[4]
38) The Deposition of the Five Praṇavas.
39) The Deposition of the Three Principles (Tattvatritayanyāsa).[5]
40) The Deposition of the Doomsday Fire (Vāḍavanyāsa)
41) The Deposition of the Five Great Syllables (Mahābījapañcakanyāsa).
42) The Thread of Brahmā (Brahmāsūtra).[6]

---

[1] See KuKh chapter 10.

[2] śabdarāśikrameṇa tadgrahanyāsaḥ In this deposition the Triple Vidyā is imbedded in Tadgraha (see KMT 18/56). The form of the Triple Vidyā noted here is as follows (cf. KuKh chapter 20):

AGHORE HRĪṀ PARAMAGHORE HŪṀ GHORARŪPE HSAUṀ GHORAMUKHI BHĪMABHĪṢAṆE VAMA VAMA PIBA PIBA HA HE RURU RURU RARA RARA HŪṀ PHREṀ KHPHREṀ HRĪṀ HŪṀ HŪṀ HSRAUṀ

[3] See KuKh chapter 1, note 44.

[4] This deposition is formed from the letters of Navātman (SAHAKṢAMALAVARAYŪṀ). Each unit starts with the Five Praṇavas recited in the forward order and ends with them in the reverse order. The seed-syllable of each unit is formed from a letter of Navātman and one from the following mantra to which anusvāra is added.

SA KṢA HA BHAIRAVĀNANDA BHAIRAVAVĪRĀDHIPATAYE ||

[5] See KuKh chapter 1, note 171.

[6] The units of this deposition are those of Tadgraha. Each unit consists of a letter of the alphabet in the normal serial order followed by its equivalent in the Mālinī series of letters. These two are then followed by a syllable of the Triple Vidyā. The form of the Vidyā according to Manuscripts K of the SKh is:

AIṀ GHORE HRĪṀ HRĪṀ PARAMAGHORE HŪṀ * HSAUṀ GHORAMUKHI BHĪMABHĪṢAṆE VAMA VAMA PIBA PIBA HRŪḤ RU PI RU HRĀṀ RU RU HRĪṀ RA RA HRŪAUṀ RE RPHAṬ RPHAṬ AIṀ

The version in MS Kh is:

43) The Deposition of the Thunderbolt for the Practice at Night.[1]
44) The Deposition of the Triple Vidyā (Vidyātrayanyāsa).[2]
45) The Deposition of the Nasals (Anunāsikanyāsa).[3]
46) The Deposition of the Nine Principles (of Navātman) (Navatattvanyāsa)
47) The Deposition of Gāyatrī.[4]

The purpose of the depositions is to purify the officiant of the rite. This is brought about by the activity of Kuṇḍalinī. Accordingly, the SKh describes how the vital centres are pierced by the rise of Kuṇḍalinī and impurity (dahana) is burnt away. The subtle body is then nourished (apyāyana) by the nectar that falls when Kuṇḍalinī returns.[5]

AIṀ GHORARŪPE HSRAUṀ GHORAMUKHI BHĪMABHĪṢAṆE HSRŪAUṀ VAMA VAMA HSRAUṀ PIBA PIBA HŪṀ RURU HRĪṀ RARA KRĪṀ RARA KRAUṀ PHREṀ PHREṀ * PHAṬ AIṀ

[1] niśācāre vajranyāsaḥ

[2] See KuK chapter 20.

[3] The 'dentals' are the series ṄA ÑA ṆA NA ME of the Samayā Vidyā.

[4] The first 46 depositions are presented just after the Nyāsasūtra. They precede the Krama ritual. The Gāyatrīnyāsa is presented separately as it is done in the course of the the daily ablutions (snāna). It is a Kaula version of the Vedic Gāyatrī called Kulagāyatrī or Kuladīpa.

[5] SKh MS G fl. 28a-28b) See note to 13/111 where the passage is quoted and translated in full.

Appendix II

The Deposition of the Mālinī Alphabet according to Chapter Five of the Ambāmatasaṁhitā

Chapter eighteen and nineteen of our text are dedicated to two alphabets used to extract the mantras of the Kubjikā Tantras, namely, Mālinī and Śabdarāśi ('Assembly of Sounds'). Mālinī is treated in this and the following two appendices and the Assembly of Sounds in the following three. The manner of presentation in both cases is the same. Chapter five of the Ambāmatasaṁhitā is dedicated to the deposition of these two alphabets onto the body. The part of this chapter dedicated to Mālinī is presented in this appendix. The part dealing with the Assembly of Sounds is presented in appendix VI. Appendix III contains a description of the fifty Yoginīs who govern the lettters of the Mālinī alphabet drawn from chapter seven of the Śrīmatottara. The Bhairavas who govern the letters of the Śabdarāśi alphabet described in chapter twenty-four of the Śrīmatottara are presented in appendix VI. Appendix IV contains a comparative table of the Yoginīs of the Mālinī alphabet and their location in the body according to some selected sources. A corresponding comparative table of the Bhairavas governing the letters of Śabdarāśi is presented in appendix VII.

The sonic energies contained in the letters and embodied in the Yoginīs who preside over them are transferred from the body of the goddess Mālinī onto the body of the adept. In order to do this he draws the goddess in two forms and invokes her presence into them. One is her abstract, geometric form as the Meruprastāra, which in the following passage is called her Liṅga or 'City', that is, the maṇḍala. The other is the goddess's 'concrete', visualized form represented by a small standing anthropomorphic figure. Both procedures are common. A Tantra may describe the figure of the deity, listing the locations of the letters that constitute its body and then denote the letters with reference to these locations. Another way of naming the letters is with reference to their location in the grid. In this case the two representations are identified.

Both representations are oriented east to west. The feet of the figure are in the west as is the front corner of the downward facing triangular grid. This orientation is in keeping with the common procedure of the rites of the Kubjikā Tantras that belong to the 'western tradition' (paścimāmnāya) and so, naturally, privilege that spatial orientation.

The goddess's presence is established by transferring the letters from the grid onto the anthropomorphic form. As this takes place externally the same takes place in the body of the adept. In this way he is gradually transformed into the image of the goddess and is purified as he is filled with her energies. Let us turn now to the text of the Ambāsaṁhitā:

> That is the Liṅga, the City and Meru. One should extract Mālinī from that. One should extract the letters from Na to Pha from the tip of the topknot up to the tip of the (toe) nails. Looking content, one should draw it twelve finger spans (in size) in a solitary, pleasing place which is smeared with cow dung and strewn with flowers. Extract the auspicious Mālinī (who is) in the Meru (drawn) in the western quarter.[1]
>
> Mālinī has one face, three eyes, and wears white clothes. She is white like the moon and jasmine. Her waist is slim and she holds a spear. In the left hand she holds a skull bowl (from which) she drinks the supreme nectar. Her thighs are big and the feet should be fashioned in the west.[2]

In order to establish `the sequence of the deities in the body' (śārirdevatākrama) of the goddess Mālinī, the AS goes on to 'extract' the letters that form her body from the grid. They are denoted by the names of the sacred sites to which they correspond. The AS then goes on to list the names of the goddesses coresponding to each letter.[3] We have seen that Mālinī and Śabdrāśī are linked to the triadic Vidyā of the Trika goddesses Parā, Parāparā and Aparā. Mālinī, who is the basic Trika goddess of which they are aspects is thus appropriately referred to as the undifferentiated triple Vidyā (vidyātritayaniṣakalā). This, one could say, is Kubjikā's fundamental Trika identity. This is also her fundamental condition as pure energy – Śakti – the god's Kuṇḍalinī who empowers the teachings and all who receive it, including the deity itself. This is Kubjikā's universal, 'abstract' aspect – her 'Liṅga'. Her unique, specific identity emerges by identifying her with her Vidyā. As such she is not just 'another name' or variant form of the Trika goddess. The AS continues:

> All these deities with divine forms (mūrti) have arisen within the body (vigraha) of Śakti beginning from the top of (her) topknot

---

[1] liṅgam etat puraṁ meru mālinīṁ [mālinī] ca tatoddharet ||
śikhāgrādinakhāgrāntān [sikhāyādinakhāgretu] uddharen nādiphāntagān [-phantagāḥ] |
ekānte vijane ramye gomayenopalepite ||
puṣpaprakarasaṁkīrṇe gandhadhūpādhivāsite |
prasannavadano bhūtvā dvādaśāṅgulam ālikhet ||
merupaścimadigbhāge uddharen mālinīṁ [-nī] śubhām [śubhā] | AS 5/16cd-19ab.

[2] ekavaktrāṁ trinetrāṁ ca mālinīṁ śvetavāsasām ||
sitāṁ kundendudhvalāṁ śūlahastāṁ tanūdarām |
vāmahaste kapālaṁ tu pibantīṁ paramāmṛtam ||
viśālakṛtajaṅghau [-jaṁghā] ca pādau kuryād vai [vi] paścimau | Ibid. 5/19cd-21ab.

[3] AS 5/61-69.

down to the tips of the (her) toenails. All this grid (prastāra) is the great Kuṇḍalikākrama that has arisen in accord with the Great Tradition (mahāmnāya) in the Western House in order to (empower and) bestow authority. The deposition of supreme yogis, that is, the body of Mālinī, has been declared. It is the Liṅga of (the goddess Kubjikā who is the Vidyā) of thirty-two syllables. It has emerged out of Oḍḍiyāṇa, from the secret place (guhya) and faces downwards. The yogi who deposits (her) regularly (on his body) on the sacred days (parvan) in accord with the teacher's Command (propitiates) the goddess who is in (his) body and she gives him (many) boons.[1]

Along with the wealth (he acquires) and great growth in (his) good luck, (he is blessed by) the intensely (powerful) Command that operates (within him). The divine sequence (krama) is, in brief, the one beginning with Na and ending with Pha, in due order. Without a doubt I am all (the energies) gathered together in one place, that venerable and joyous Mālinī, the Supreme goddess (Parā devī) 'with energy' (sakalā) whose face is tranquil (saumya) and is beautiful.

Having formed the (first) three seed-syllables (of the Five Praṇavas) in the beginning, the fourth one should be placed in the middle and the fifth at the end.[2] Once this is done (Mālinī) becomes Bhairavī. One should perform the deposition in conjunction with the Five Praṇavas within the maṇḍala. In this way, Bhairavī's iconic form, which is that of the Self, is active and then Bhairavī is inwardly present and (one attains) Bhairava's plane by means of (this) just this deposition alone.[3]

---

[1] ity etā devatāḥ sarvāḥ saṁjātāḥ śaktivigrahe ||
śikhāgrādinakhāgrāntā [-ntaṁ] divyamūrttiparigrahāḥ |
mahāmnāyena sakalaṁ mahākuṇḍalikākramam ||
prastāram adhikārāya uditaṁ paścime gṛhe |
kathitaṁ mālinīdehaṁ nyāsaṁ paramayoginām [-nā] ||
dvātriṁśākṣarikāliṅgaṁ prakaṭaṁ samudāyakaṁ [-yikaṁ] |
oḍḍiyāṇād [-ṇed] viniṣkrāntaṁ [viniḥkrāntaṁ] guhyasthānād adhomukham || yo nyaset satataṁ yogī parvakāle gurvājñayā [gurūjñayā] |
tasya sā varadā devī śarīrasthā tu kārayet || Ibid. 5/69cd-73.

[2] I suppose that this simply means that the first three Praṇavas are uttered before the letter and the last two after. Thus, adding the nasalization to the letter as usual, the first unit is: AIṀ HRĪṀ ŚRĪṀ NAṀ KHPHREṀ HSAUḤ

[3] dhanadhānyasamṛddhaiś ca tīvrājñā ca pravartate |
divyakramaṁ [-ma] samāsena nādiphāntam anukramāt ||
yā sā śrīmālinī nandā saumyavaktrā ca [-vaktraśca] rūpiṇī |
aham ekatra sakalā [sakala] parā devī na saṁśayaḥ ||
ādau bījatrayaṁ [vījaṁ-] kṛtvā caturthaṁ madhyam āśrayet |

If she is not known in (her proper) sequence, (the ignorant adept) has fallen in this tradition and does not attain (the supreme) plane here. One who does not possess the Mālinīkrama worries every step (he takes). How can he achieve success in the (teachings of the) tradition? What use is the Kramamaṇḍala to him? Where does he reside (blissful) in his own body? Therefore one should practice (Mālinī's) deposition. Having established (Mālinī who is) the form of the Vidyā (in one's own body) on each sacred day and each age, one should form the (maṇḍala that contains) the Krama teaching on the mirror (on which the maṇḍala is drawn) and (within the maṇḍala) of one's own essential nature. Mālinī is said to be the differentiated (sakalā) (form of the deity) with (her) energies (active) in (the letters) beginning with Na and ending with Pha, in due order. Having (thus) purified the body that should be purified (saṁskāradeha), the worship (of the deity has, in a way, already) clearly taken place.[1] [. . . .]

She whose form is the Liṅga (consisting of the letters) beginning with Na sleeps within body of the Vīras (who govern the letters). They are not made manifest within the Triad (trikabheda) without the teacher (who is one with the empowering goddess). The letters devoid of the Triad are not successful (siddha) in the Age of Strife. They are said to be mere (powerless) letters. How is success possible through (those) solitary (unempowerd letters)? Where (do we find) a flower (growing) in the sky?

---

pañcamaṁ cāvasāne tu kṛtvā sā bhairavī bhavet ||
pañcapraṇavayogena nyāsaṁ kuryāc ca maṇḍale |
tenāsau bhairavīmūrtir ātmanaḥ [-mūrttirnātmanaḥ] saṁpravartate ||
tadāsau bhairavyantasthā [bhairavīvasthāṁ] tadā tad bhairavaṁ padam |
labhate nyāsamātreṇa . . . . || AS 5/74-78abc.

[1] . . . . avijñātā anukramāt ||
anvaye 'smin paribhraṣṭā na cātra labhate padam |
mālinīkramanirmuktaḥ [-kta] socanīyaḥ [stocanīya] pade pade ||
kiṁ tasya anvaye siddhiḥ [siddhi] kiṁ tasya kramamaṇḍalam |
svadehe vartate kutra [kotra] tasmān [tasmā] nyāsaṁ samabhyaste ||
vidyāmūrtisamāsthāya parve parve yuge yuge |
tataḥ kramānvayaṁ [kramānuṇaṁ] kuryād darpaṇasthaṁ svabhāvikam ||
anyathā na prakartavyaṁ na vinā mālinīkramam |
sakalā mālinī proktā nādiphānte anukramāt [manukramāt] ||
saṁskāradehasaṁśuddhiṁ [-śuddhi] kṛtvā pūjā sphutaṁ kṛtā [pūjāṁ kṛtasphuṭam] | Ibid. 5/78d-83ab.

After explaining the importance of adding the Five Praṇavas to the letters, the AS focuses on the first three placed in front of each letter. Collectively called the 'Triad', they are AIṀ HRĪṀ and ŚRĪṀ. These are the seed-syllables of the three Principles of the Self (ātmatattva), Vidyā (vidyātattva) and Śiva (śivatattva). They span the entire range of Principles from Earth to Śiva.[1] Charged with the goddess's energy (kalā) that operates in all the principles of existence, the addition of these syllables empowers the letters. Thus, like the mirror on which they and the Krama are drawn, they reflect within themselves the expanse of their cosmic counterparts. The impurity of their finite nature as just phonemic sounds thus removed, the letters are 'complete' and 'with seed', are productive. The solitary letters, alone without the seed-syllables are powerless.

> Therefore just as is done when depositing (the letters) according to the Kulāgama, by means of the grid (of letters) (prastāra), the venerable mother Kujā says (one should apply the syllables of) the principles of the Self (AIṀ), the Vidyā (HRĪṀ) and Śiva (ŚRĪṀ) that are (the one reality that is both) supreme (transcendent) and inferior (immanent). This triad of syllables (trikūṭaka) is the root that completes the Vidyā (nirvāṇadāyaka) of the aggregate of letters that extends from the top of the topknot down to the tips of the (toe) nails.[2]
>
> Then the impurity (mala) of these letters is destroyed in their location in the Hermitage (of the maṇḍala). That is the formation of the Principles (tattvakaraṇa). Once that has been done, one should perform the deposition. The goddess of the garland of letters (varṇamālinī) who was not been purified previously becomes energy (kalā) `with seed' (sabījā) by the power (dharma) of the purification (saṁskāra) (brought about by the seed-syllables of the Three Principles).

---

[1] See KuKh chapter 1, note 171.

[2] nakārādi [ekārādi] ca yal liṅgā suṣuptā vīravigrahe |
na teṣāṁ bhavate vyaktis trikabhede vinā gurum [guruḥ] ||
trikabhedavinirmuktā [-bhede-] ye yathā varṇarūpakāḥ [-rūpakaḥ] |
na te kaliyuge siddhās te [siddhā ye] varṇāḥ [varṇā] kevalāḥ [-lā] smṛtāḥ ||
kevaleṣu kathaṁ siddhir ākāśe kusumaṁ kutaḥ |
tasmāt yadvat [tadvat] kṛtaṁ kuryāt nyāsakāle kulāgame ||
prastāreṇa prakurvīta ity āha śrīkujāmbikā |
ātmatattvaṁ ca vidyā ca śivatattvaṁ parāparam ||
etat trikūṭakaṁ [trikaṭūkaṁ] mūlaṁ vidyānirvāṇadāyakam |
śikhāgrādinakhāgrāntavarṇagrāmātmakasya [-grāntaṁvarṇagrāsā-] ca || Ibid. 5/85-89.

> (Mālinī’s energy) in the form of Letter (varṇarūpā) was first revealed in the Mālinīvijaya and the other (related scriptures). There can be no doubt that when she is fixed (kīlita), she does not give (any) fruits to the disciple. (But when she is unlocked by conjoining her with these syllables) she who is the bliss that is the essential nature (of every) seed-syllable gives endless bliss. She gives success to (her) disciples by means of the power (prabhāva) of the divine nectar (that flows from her).[1]
>
> Having gathered together (malayitvā) (all the letters into herself, subtle) as the measure of a grain of wheat (yavamātrā), that energy (mātrā), moving laterally (and so penetrating the supreme being) pierces through (every) mental state by roasting (them and hence destroying) impurities (mala). Thus she is (called) Mālinī in the Kula.[2]

These lines refer to two common didactic etymologies of the name Mālinī. One relates her name to the act of ‘gathering together’ (malayitvā). Mālinī literally means ‘the (goddess who wears) a garland’ – mālā. This garland is made of the letters of the alphabet arranged in the Mālinī order of the alphabet. The other etymology derives Mālinī’s name from the word ‘mala-’. This is the impurity of ignorance that is removed by the ‘cooking’ or ‘roasting’ that takes place by means of the knowledge of the deity imparted by initiation.[3]

The goddess goes on to describe the six limbs of Mālinī’s body. The sacred seat in the middle of the Circle of Meru is the supreme leader of the seats. It is located within the city of the oblation (homapura) and is like a white lotus. It is the Heart of the goddess Mālinī who satisfies the three worlds. The luminosity of the seed-syllables is stressed repeatedly in various ways and their power to destroy sin. The seed-syllables are centres of tremendous energy. The energy of the letters is condensed and focused through them. They radiate in the limbs of the body – in the heart, which the centre of man's being; on top of the head, his uppermost part. One functions like armour to protect the whole of his body; another is his third eye. The final one, which completes the limbs of the body, is his weapon. These are all lit up by the energy of the seed-syllables that radiates from the three principles, Ātmā, Vidyā and Śiva. Accordingly, the text enjoins that the seed-syllables of the limbs should be deposited with care in conjunction with those of the Three Principles (trika). The chapter concludes by explaining that Śabdarāśi and Mālinī, who are forms of Śiva and Śakti, are invariably found together. Just as they generate and withdraw the universe, respectively, they work together in the adept who has deposited them on his body and is thereby empowered to worship the deity.[1]

---

[1] tadā malakṣayaṁ teṣāṁ varṇānāṁ sthānamāśrame ǀ etad dhi tattvakaraṇaṁ kṛtvā nyāsaṁ samācaret ǁ varṇamālinī yā pūrvaṁ saṁskāreṇa vinā yadā ǀ tadā saṁskāradharmeṇa sabījā sā bhavet kalā ǁ mālinīvijayādyādau varṇarūpā prakāśitā ǀ kīlitā sā [sa] na saṁdeho [-dehe] na hi śiṣye phalapradā ǁ bījarūpātmikānandā [-naṁda] anantānandadāyikā ǀ divyāmṛtaprabhāveṇa śiṣyāṇāṁ siddhidā [-do] bhavet ǁ Ibid. 5/90-93.

[2] malayatvā [-tve] sthitā cādau [nādau] yavamātrāntare tu yā ǀ yā mātrā tiryagā śāntā [sāntā] manobhāvavibhedinī ǁ malānāṁ jñānapākena tena [tenā] sā mālinī kule ǀ Ibid. 5/94-95ab.

[3] Concerning Mālinī and the didactic etymologies of her name, see Somadeva Vasudeva 2004: XLVI ff..

These three syllables is an addition prescribed by the AS. The ŚM, for example, requires that only the Five Praṇavas should be placed at the beginning and end of each letter along with the name of the Yoginī who governs it. The procedure is analogous for the letters of the Śabdarāśi alphabet.

---

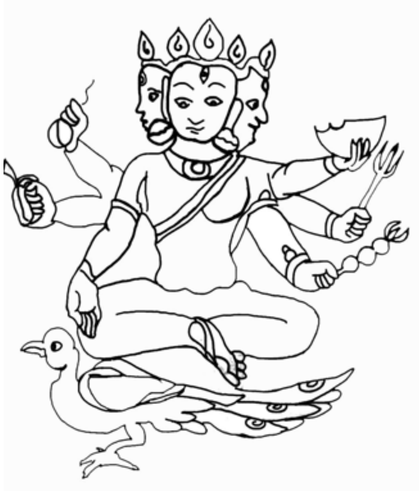
[1] AS 5/112cd-116, quoted above in note to 19/55.

Appendix III

The Fifty Yoginīs of the Mālinī Alphabet

The Śrīmatottara often supplies additional details not found in the other sources. Thus, it not only prescribes the order of the letters of Mālinī alphabet and their location (lakṣa, sthāna) in the body, it also links them to a series of ritual gestures (mudrā). However, the Śrīmatottara contributes most substantially to the Kubjikā tradition by providing descriptions of iconic forms of the deities not found elsewhere. This appendix contains a translation of a long passage in chapter seven of the ŚM where the visualized forms of the Yoginīs who govern the letters of the Mālinī alphabet are described.

1) Nādinī (Na) – Nādinī has three faces and burns with nine eyes. (Her) face content, (she is) tranquil and is adorned with earrings and a beautiful diadem made of many jewels. She has six arms and is adorned with many ornaments. (She holds) a skull (kādya), trident, and an ascetic's staff in the left hands and makes a wish-bestowing gesture with the right and holds a rosary and citrus fruit. (Slender, she has) three wrinkles in the middle (of her belly) and fat upraised breasts. (Dark) blue like a storm cloud, one should visualize her sitting on a peacock (śikhi). She has beautiful ornaments and is marked with all the (auspicious) signs. That Śakti who is supreme and divine, residing in the Skyfarer (khaga) and has the form of a Skyfarer (khaga) is the primordial (ādyā) energy of the Great Lord. She is Mālinī who resides in a divine body. Her topknot (śikhā) (flame) has arisen with the name Nādinī.[1]



---

[1] nādinī ca trivaktrā ca [g: trivaktrasthā] tritrikanayanojjvalā [kh: tritrikaraparājvalā; g: tritrikaṁ-] |
prasannavadanā saumyā karṇakuṇḍalabhūṣitā [kh: -bhuṣitā] |
mukuṭena vicitreṇa nānāratnamayena tu |
ṣaḍbhujā ca vicitrā ca nānālaṁkārabhūṣitā [kh, g: cāṁgadabhūṣitā] |
kādyaṁ triśūlakhatvāṅgaṁ vāmasthāś [kh g: -sthā] ca virājitāḥ [kh: virājate; g: -tā] |
varadaṁ cākṣasūtraṁ ca bījapūrakaṁ [kh g: -ka] dakṣiṇe |
trivalītaraṅgamadhyasthā [g: -sthāṁ] pīnonnatapayodharā [g: pīnā-] |
nīlajīmūtasaṁkāśā [kh g: -sā] dhyātavyā śikhivāhinī [kh: si-; g: -nā] |
divyābharaṇasaṁyuktā divyavastravibhūṣitā |
madirānandacetaskā [g: -cetasthā] sarvalakṣaṇalakṣitā |

2) Grasanī (Tha) – Grasanī is very fierce. She has three eyes and her face is turned upwards. She has four arms and is adorned with very beautiful earrings, necklace and diadem. Her arms are adorned with bangles. O fair lady, she holds a bow and club in the left (hands) and sword and arrow in the right. She is white, with a slim divine body. She is adorned with all the ornaments and, possessing her own radiant energy, she has equal and large breasts. The great goddess sits on an owl and, her face averted upwards, she moves upwards. She is called Grasinī and is as if devouring (grasantī) the moving and immobile (universe).[1]

3) Nivṛtti (Ṛ) – Nivṛtti's face is tranquil (saumya) and is as if full of the moon (soma). The great goddess (has one face) with three light red eyes. Beautiful earrings (adorn her) ears and (she has) a diadem (that shines) with divine radiant energy. She has four arms and great power. Her auspicious face is light brown (kapila). In the left hands she holds a skull and a snake, with the right she makes a boon-bestowing gesture and holds a noose. The opening in (her) bodice (reveals a charming) line between her breasts (hṛllekhā) and she wears a long, beautiful necklace. She has a deep

---

yā sā [kh: taṁ] śaktiḥ [g: śakti] parā divyā khagasthā khagarūpiṇī | ādyāśaktir maheśasya [g: ā āśakti-] mālinī divyadehagā |
tasyāḥ [g: tasyā] śikhā samudbhūtā nādinī nāmanāmataḥ | ŚM 7/132-138ab.

[1] grasanī ca mahā ugrā trinetrā ūrdhavaktragā [kh: -vaktratā] |
caturbhujā mahādivyā hārakuṅḍalabhūṣitā [kh: -bhuṣitā] |
mukuṭena vicitreṇa bhujāḥ [kh: bhujau; g: bhujā] kaṅkaṇamaṇḍitāḥ [kh: -tau; g: -tā] |
vāmamārge varārohe dhanukheṭakasaṁyutāḥ [kh g: -tā] |
khaḍgabāṇadharā [kh: -dharāṁ] devī dakṣiṇena virājate |
śvetābhā [kh: śvetātmā] divyadehā ca sarvābharaṇabhūṣitā |
madhyakṣāmā svatejāḍhyā samapīnapayodharā |
ulūkasthā [g: -stha] mahādevī ūrdhavaktrordhvagāminī |
grasanīti [g: ugranīti] samākhyātā grasantīva [kh: grasantiva] carācaram | Ibid. 7/138cd-142.

navel and is adorned with beautiful clothes. The goddess sits on a swan and views divine knowledge. I have (thus) described Nivṛtti.[1]

4) Pratiṣṭhā (Ṝ) – I will tell (you about) Pratiṣṭhā. She is white (gaura) and (emits) a white light. Her face is tranquil and she has a long nose. She has a beautiful round face with three eyes. (She wears) a beautiful earring and (her) diadem is adorned with jewels. O fair lady, she has four arms and a divine attractive form. She makes a gesture of fearlessness and holds a conch with the left hands and a rosary and lotus in the right. Complete with every ornament and adorned with beautiful clothes she sits on a crane (sārasa), her thighs and shanks firmly placed (supratiṣṭha). (This is) Pratiṣṭhā, the supreme goddess.[2]

---

[1] nivṛttiḥ [kh: nivṛrtti; g: nirvṛtti] saumyavaktrā [g: vaktra] ca somapūrṇā [kh g: -pūrṇa] samānanā |
trinetrā ca mahādevī [kh: śubhā trinayanā devī] kiṁcidraktāyatekṣaṇā [g: -kṣaṇāt] |
divyakuṇḍalakarṇasthā mukuṭaṁ divyaṁ tejasam |
caturbhujā mahātejā kapilā ca śubhānanā |
kādyaṁ bhujaṅgaṁ [kh g: bhujaṁga] vāmena [g: vāme ca] varadaṁ pāśaṁ [kh g: pāśa] dakṣiṇe |
bhinnakañcukahṛllekhā [kh: cuṁccukahṛllagnā; g: cuccukahṛllekhā] divyahārāvalambinī |
madhyasthūlā [kh: madhye sthalā] sudīptā ca kiṁciccodaralambinī |
gambhīranābhiprodbhinnā sarvalakṣaṇalakṣitā [g: śobhitāḥ] |
divyābharaṇaśobhāḍhyā divyavastropaśobhitā [kh: -vastrāpa-; g: -sobhitā] |
haṁsāsanasthitā devī [g: devi] divyajñānāvalokinī [kh: divyā[; g: divyaṁ-] |
nivṛttiś [g: nivṛtti] ca mayākhyātā . . . . | Ibid. 7/143-148a.

[2] . . . . . pratiṣṭhāṁ [kh g: pratiṣṭhā] ca vadāmy aham |
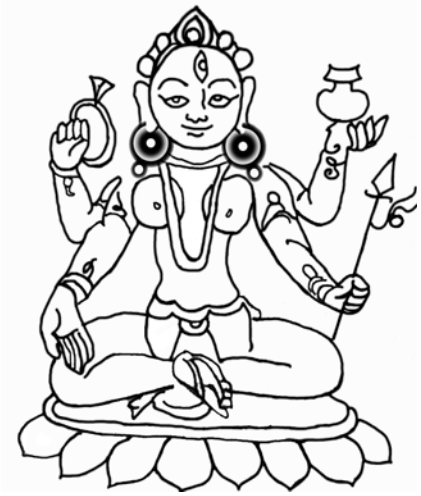
gauravarṇā ca gaurābhā saumyāsyā dīrghanāsikā |
ekavaktrā [k: vakrā; g: vaktra] surūpā [g: svarūpā] ca trinetrā vartulānanā [g: -rānanā] |
divyakuṇḍalasaṁpūrṇā mukuṭaṁ ratnabhūṣitam |
caturbhujā varārohe divyarūpā manoharā |
abhayakambusaṁyuktā [g: abhayaṁ- -yuktāṁ] vāmamārge virājate |
*akṣasūtrābjasaṁyuktā [k: sūtrā * saṁ-] dakṣiṇena virājate [kh: kare sthitā]* |
sarvālaṁkārasaṁpūrṇā [g: saṁyuktāṁ] divyavastropaśobhitā |
supratiṣṭhitajaṅghoruḥ [kh: supratisthita-; g: -ru] sārasasyāsane [g: sārasamyāsane] sthitā |
pratiṣṭhā paramā devī [g: devi] . . . . | Ibid. 7/148b-152c.

5) Vidyā (Ḷ) – I will tell (you) the form of Vidyā. She is red, has a red glow and long, red eyes. She has one head, three eyes and is adorned with a diadem and earrings. She makes gestures of wish-bestowing and fearlessness (with her two hands). She is adorned with many ornaments and sits on a cakravāka bird. She has a garland round her head and wears a necklace of letters. The form of (the goddess) Vidyā has (thus) been described.[1]



6) Śānti (Ý) – I will tell (you) Śānti's form. She is white and (her) light is brilliant (white like) jasmine and the moon. Her face is like the full moon. She has three eyes and her creeper–like, eyebrows are curved and brilliant with divine radiance. She is adorned with divine earrings and is aflame with many jewels. She has four arms and, possessing great radiant energy, is adorned with many ornaments. In the left (hands she holds) a jar and javelin and with the right (hands) she makes a wish-bestowing gesture and holds a divine rosary made of all knowledge. Complete with all the (auspicious) charateristics, she is adorned in all her limbs. She sits in the lotus posture on a lotus. Her radiant energy divine, she is very powerful. (Thus) Śānti's form has been described.[2]

---

[1] . . . . . vidyāmūrtiṁ [kh g: -mūrti] vadāmy aham raktābhā raktadīptā ca raktāntāyatalocanā [g: raktānnā-] |
ekavaktrā trinetrā [k: trinetraṁ] ca mukuṭakuṇḍalabhūṣitā [kh: makuṭa- -bhuṣitā] |
varadābhayasaṁyuktā nānābharaṇamaṇḍitā [g: maṁḍitaṁ] |
cakravākāsanasthā ca divyābharaṇaśobhitā [g: sobhitā] |
vaḍamālā śire [g: śiro] tasyā varṇahārāvalambinī |
vidyāmūrtiḥ [g: -mūrtti] samākhyātā . . . . | Ibid. 7/152d-155c.

[2] . . . . . śāntyā mūrtiṁ [kh g: mūrtti] vadāmy aham |
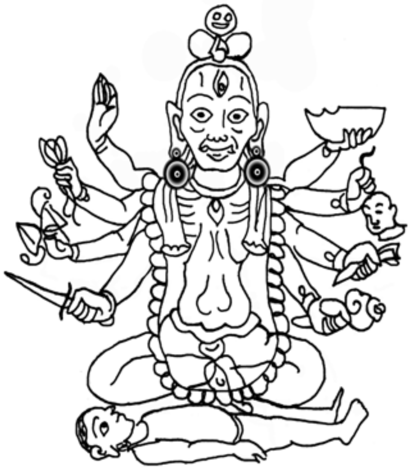
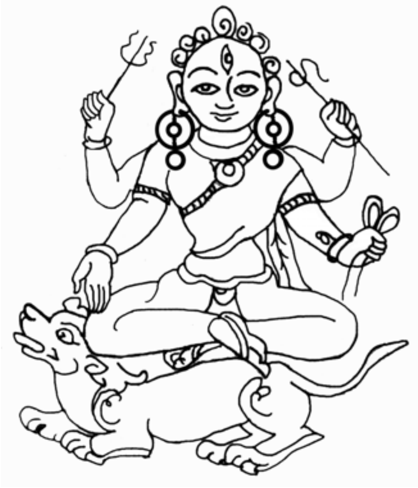
śvetā [kh: svetā; g: śveta] kundendudīptābhā saṁpūrṇendunibhānanā |
trinetrā vartulā dīptā bhrūlatā [k: bhūnnatā; g: bhru-] divyatejasā [kh: lālasā; g: lolasā] |
divyakuṇḍalaśobhāḍhyā nānāratnasamujjvalā [kh g: -samujvalā] |



7) Cāmuṇḍā (Ca) – I will (now) describe Cāmuṇḍā. She is dark coloured and very beautiful. She is very thin (lit. `has no flesh') and the tendons of her body are clearly visible. She has stern eyes and is very fierce. She has a skull as a crest-jewel and seals as earrings. The goddess is adorned above with matted hair. She has eight arms and is adorned with snakes. In the left (hands) are a skull, severed head, spear, and conch. In the right (hands) are a dagger, a double-headed drum and a noose and (she makes) a boon-bestowing gesture. Very fierce and with a frightening face she sits on a funeral bier (śavayāna). A garland of severed heads hangs (from her neck) and she has a shawl of elephant hide. This is the form of Cāmuṇḍā.[1]



8) Priyadarśanī (Dha) – (Now) Priyadarśanī is described. She is yellow and (radiates) yellow light and is radiant with yellow ornaments. She has three large, red eyes and is adorned with earrings. She is smiling and, divine, is radiant with a golden diadem. She makes a boon-bestowing gesture and a trident is on the right. In the left (hands) is a goad and great noose. She is beautiful with necklace and anklets and is adorned with divine clothes. The great goddess is mounted on a lion and is endowed with all (auspicious) marks. Priyadarśanī has (thus been)

---

mukuṭena tu divyena [g: divyeṇa] sarvaratnamayena [k: -jñānamayena; kh: -mayaṁna] ca |
caturbhujā mahātejā nānābharaṇabhūṣitā [kh: -maṇḍitā] | [k: missing]
kalaśaṁ [g: kalasaṁ] śaktirvāmasthā [kh g: śakti-] dakṣiṇe varadā priye | [k: missing]
akṣasūtreṇa divyena [g: divyeṇa] sarvajñānamayena ca |
sarvalakṣaṇasaṁpūrṇā sarvāvayavaśobhitā [g: -sobhitā] |
padmāsanā ca padmasthā divyatejā mahābalā |
śāntyā mūrtiḥ samākhyātā . . . . | Ibid. 7/155d-160c.

[1] . . . . . cāmuṇḍāṁ [g: cāmuṁḍā] kathayāmy aham |
kṛṣṇābhātīvaśobhāḍhyā [g: kṛṣṇacātīva-] nirmāṁsā snāyudīpitā [kh: dīpikā] |
koṭarākṣī mahābhīmā kapālakṛtaśekharā [g: -śeṣarā] |
mudrākarṇakṛtā [g: -karṇe] devī jaṭājūṭordhvamaṇḍitā [kh: -jūṭendu-] |
bhujāṣṭakasamopetā bhujaṅgābharaṇānvitā |
kādyaṁ muṇḍaṁ tathā śūlaṁ kambu [g: kaṁvuṁ] vāme virājate | described.[1]

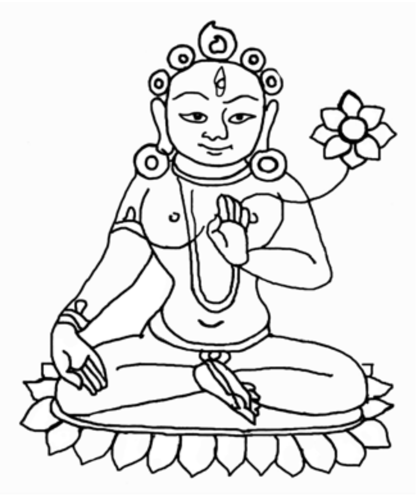
9) Guhyaśakti (Ī) – (Now) I will tell (you about) Guhyaśakti. She resides in a secret place (guhya) and her form is secret. She is red and is adorned with red ornaments. She is radiant like a red lotus. She has three eyes and her laugh is charming. O goddess, she has large eyes and is adorned with a crown and earrings. In the left hand she holds a Mudrā flower and with the right see makes a boon-bestowing gesture. She is slender and smiles. She has big breasts and hips and arouses the (entire) moving and immobile (universe). She is replete with all the (auspicious) marks and adorned with all the ornaments. Her form divine, she sits on a lotus and illumines all knowledge.[2]



---

kartikā [k: kartṛkāṁ; g: karttikāṁ] ḍamaru [kh g: -rukaṁ] pāśaṁ varadaṁ caiva dakṣiṇe |
śavayānoparisthā ca mahāraudrā bhayānanā |
muṇḍamālā pralambā ca gajacarmaparicchadā [kh g: -dāṁ] |
cāmuṇḍāyās tv iyaṁ [k g: imā] mūrtiḥ [g: mūrtti] . . . . | Ibid. 7/160d-165a.

[1] . . . . priyadarśinī [k: -darśini; kh: priyanāmā ca] kathyate |
pītābhā pītavarṇā ca pītābharaṇadīpitā [k kh: pītāruṇasudīpitā] |
tryakṣā [k: akṣa; kh: akṣā; g: trikṣā] raktā viśālākṣī karṇakuṇḍalabhūṣitā |
īṣad dhāsyadharā [kh g: īṣaddhāsyā] divyā [k: devī] kāñcanamukuṭojjvalā [k g: kāṁcanaṁ-; kh: -mukuṭājvalā; g: -mukuṭojvalā] |
varadaṁ ca triśūlaṁ ca dakṣiṇe 'syā [kh g: dakṣiṇasthā] virājate |
aṁkuśaṁ ca mahāpāśaṁ vāmamārge virājate |
hāranūpūraśobhāḍhyā divyavastrair alaṁkṛtā [kh: divyavastrara-] |
siṁhārūḍhā mahādevī [g: -devi] sarvalakṣaṇasaṁyutā |
*priyadarśanī [k: priya * * ; g: -darśi] samākhyātā . . . . | Ibid. 7/165cd-169a.

[2] . . . . guhyaśaktiṁ [kh: guhyaśaktyā; g: nārāyiṇyā] vadāmy aham | guhyasthā [missing from here to the end of this passage in MS G] guhyarūpā ca raktābhā
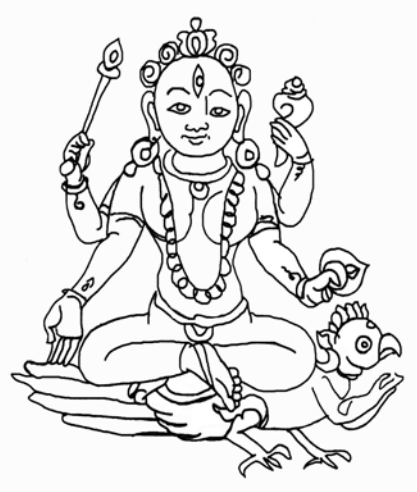
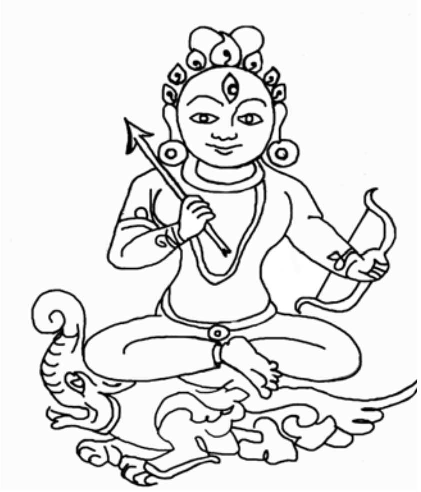
raktābharaṇabhūṣitā [kh: raktasannibhā] |
raktotpalanibhā dīptā trinetrā cāruhāsinī |
viśālanayanā devi mukuṭakuṇḍalabhūṣitā [kh: -bhuṣitāḥ] |
mudrāpuṣpadharā vāme varadā dakṣiṇena tu |
vajrāyudhadharā [kh: -varā] divyā tanvaṅgī hasitānanā |
kucabhāranitambāḍhyā kṣobhayantī carācaram |
sarvalakṣaṇasaṁpūrṇā sarvābharaṇabhūṣitā [kh: -tāṁ] |
padmasthā divyarūpā ca sarvajñānaprakāśinī [kh: -prakāsinī] | Ibid. 7/169b-173ab.

10) Nārāyaṇī (Ṇa) – Nārāyaṇī's supreme form is (light blue) like a hemp flower (atasī). She has three eyes and four arms. She is radiant with (her) earrings and diadem. She wears a garland of forest (flowers) and divine, she sits on Garuḍa. In the left (hands she) holds a conch and a wheel, with the right she makes a boon-bestowing gesture and holds a mace. Beautiful, she is radiant and brilliant like gold. The goddess is bent with the weight of (her) breasts and bestows boons on the adept.[1]





11) Mohanī (U) – Mohanī deludes all the triple world along with the moving and immobile (universe). She is a pleasing dark blue (śyāmā) colour. She has one face with three eyes and holds a bow and arrow. The goddess deludes the moving and immobile (universe). She is beautiful and has a long necklace that hangs (from her neck) and she has fat upraised breasts. The goddess has divine dreadlocks and (her) ears are adorned with earrings. She sits on a crab (makara). Beautiful, every limb enhaces (her) beauty. The goddess Mohinī has (thus been) described.[2]

---

[1] nārāyaṇyāḥ [g: nārāyiṇyā] parāmūrtir atasīpuṣpasannibhā [kh g: -mūrtti atasī-] |
caturbhujā trinetrā ca kuṇḍalair mukuṭojjvalā [kh: mukuṭakuṇḍalojvalā; g: kuṇḍalaimukuṭojvalā] |
vanamālādharā [kh g: vaḍa-] divyā vainateyāsanasthitā [kh: vainateyoparisthitā] |
śaṁkhacakraṁ [k: śaṅkhe-; kh: cakra] dhṛtaṁ [kh: dhṛtā] vāme varadā [k: varadaṁ] dakṣiṇe kare |
apare [g: aparā] ca gadā divyā sudīptā kanakojjvalā [kh: -kojvalā; g: -kojvarā] |
kucabhāronnatā devī sādhakasya varapradā | Ibid. 7/173cd-176ab.

[2] mohanī mohayet sarvaṁ trailokyaṁ sacarācaram |
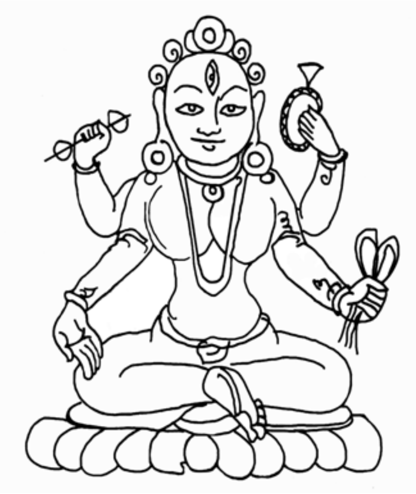
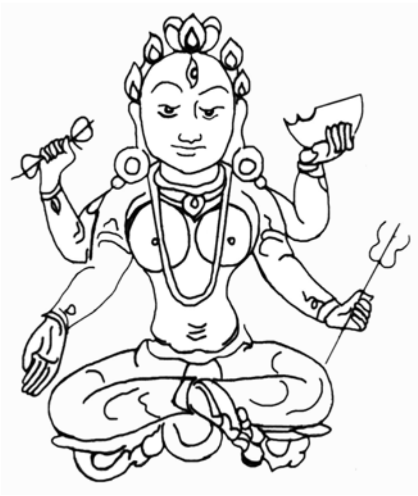
śyāmā [kh: syāmā] susnigdhavarṇā ca ekavaktrā [g: -varṇā] trilocanā |
dhanurbāṇadharā devī mohayantī carācaram |
hārapralambaśobhāḍhyā pīnonnatapayodharā [kh: -rau] |
divyajūṭadharā [g: -vṛtā] devī karṇau kuṇḍalabhūṣitau [kh: -bhūṣinī] |
makarasthā surūpā [kh: svarūpā] ca sarvāvayavaśobhitā |
mohanī kathitā devī . . . . | Ibid. 7/176cd-179c.



12) Prajñā (Ū) – I will (now) tell you the form of Prajñā. She is (red) like vermillion and beautifully radiant, her face, round and with three eyes, is like the full moon. She is radiant with (her) earrings and diadem. She wears a crown and other ornaments. She has four arms, and very brilliant, she is adorned with many ornaments. Her two breasts are round. A necklace hangs from her throat. One right hand makes a boon-bestowing gesture and the other holds a thunderbolt. In the left (hands are) a rosary and a noose. She is replete with all the (auspicious) marks and beautiful in all her limbs. She sits in the lotus posture and very beautiful she is adorned with many gems. The goddess Prajñā, who causes the intellect to develop, has been described.[1]



13) Vajriṇī (Ba) – Vajriṇī has the form of a thunderbolt and, auspicious, she shines brilliantly like a thunderbolt or like a fireball in the sky and is like the rising sun. She has three, slightly open eyes and an illumined face. She is beautiful with earrings and a crown adorned with jewels. Very beautiful, she is adorned with many ornaments. She has four arms. In the right (hand) the goddess (holds) a thunderbolt and makes a boon-bestowing gesture. She is adorned on the left with a skull (kādya) and trident. (Slender, she has) three wrinkles in the middle (round her belly) and tranquil (saumyā), she has (large) upraised breasts. Established in a thunderbolt, she sits on a thunderbolt and is on top of a thunderbolt lotus. Replete with all the (auspicious) marks, she is beautiful in all (her) limbs. The form of Vajriṇī has been described.[1]

---

[1] . . . . prajñāmūrtiṁ [kh g: -mūrtti] vadāmy aham | *kuṅkumābhā [g: kuṁkumā ] sudīptā ca pūrṇacandranibhānanā |
trinetrā vartulākārā [g: catulākārā] kuṇḍalair mukuṭojjvalā [kh g: -mukuṭojvalā] |
caturbhujā mahādīptā nānālaṅkāramaṇḍitā |
vṛtākārau stanau [g: stanaus] tasyāḥ [kh g: tasyā] kaṇṭhe [kh: kaṁṭha] hārāvalambinī |
varadā vajrahastā ca dakṣiṇena virājitā [g: virājate] |
akṣasūtraṁ ca pāśaṁ ca vāme [kh: vāmeś] caiva [k: vāmenaiva] virājate [k: varānane] |
sarvalakṣaṇasaṁpūrṇā sarvāvayavaśobhitā [g: -tāḥ] |
padmāsanā [kh: padmāsana; g: mahāsanā] mahādivyā nānāratnavibhūṣitā [kh: nānābharaṇabhūṣitā] |
prajñā ca kathitā devī [g: mūrtti] prajñābuddhivivardhinī [kh: -vivarddhanī] | Ibid. 7/179d-184ab.

14) Kaṅkaṭā[2] (Ka) – Listen now (to a description of) Kaṅkaṭā. Kaṅkaṭā is (grey), the colour of smoke. She has three eyes and a round face. Divine, she has large eyes and her ears are adorned with earrings and she has a diadem made of many jewels. The great goddess has four arms and is adorned with many ornaments. On the left (she holds) a trident and a double-headed drum. On the right (she holds) a skull and makes a boon-bestowing gesture. She sits on a crow, looks the colour of a crow and is greedy for meat and liquor. She has a thin waist and upraised breasts. Possessing many ornaments, she is beautiful and pleasing to see. The form of Kaṅkaṭā has been described.[3]

---

[1] varjriṇī [g: vajrinī] vajrarūpā ca varjadīptidharā [g: vajrarūpādharā] śubhā |
ākāśolkaprabhā [k: ākāśolkā-] dīptā [k kh divyā] udayādityasannibhā |
trinetrā dīptavaktrā ca kiñcidunmīlitekṣaṇā |
karṇakuṇḍalaśobhāḍhyā mukuṭaṁ ratnamaṇḍitaṁ [kh: -bhūṣitaṁ] |
caturbhujā mahādivyā [g: mahādīptā] nānābharaṇaśobhitā [kh: -maṇḍitā] |
vajraṁ [g: cakraṁ] ca varadaṁ devī [g: devi] dakṣiṇena virājate |
kādyaṁ caiva triśūlaṁ ca vāmenaiva [kh: vāmavāhau] suśobhitā [k: -tam; kh: ca śobhane] |
trivalītaraṅgamadhyasthā saumyonnatapayodharā |
vajrasthā vajram ārūḍhā vajrapadmoparisthitā |
sarvalakṣaṇasaṁpūrṇā sarvāvayavaśobhitā |
vajriṇyāḥ [g: vajriṇyā] kathitā mūrtiḥ [g: mūrtti] . . . . | Ibid. 7/184cd-189c.

[2] Schoterman: Karālinyā.

[3] . . . . kaṅkaṭāṁ [kh g: kaṁkaṭā] śṛṇu sāṁpratam | kaṅkaṭā dhūmravarṇābhā trinetrā vartulānanā |
viśālanayanā divyā karṇau [kh: karṇa] kuṇḍalamaṇḍitau [kh: -maṇḍitā] |
mukuṭena vicitreṇa nānāratnamayena tu |
caturbhujā mahādevī nānābharaṇabhūṣitā |
*triśūlaṁ ḍamaruṁ [kh g: ḍamarukaṁ] vāme kādyaṁ varadā [k: vara ; kh g: -da] dakṣiṇe |
kākasthā kākavarṇābhā piśitāsavalampaṭā [kh g: pisitā-] |
madhyakṣāmā [k: madhyasthāmā; kh: madhye kṣyāmā] sutanvaṅgī [k: tu-] samunnatapayodharā [kh: samapīnapayodharau] |
nānābharaṇasaṁyuktā surūpā priyadarśanī [k: -darśinī] |
kaṅkaṭā kathitā mūrtiḥ [kh g: mūrtti] . . . . | [k: missing] Ibid. 7/189d-194a.

15) Kapālinī / Kālikā (Kha) – I will tell (you about) Kapālī. She is black like a dark storm cloud or blue collyrium. She has one face with three long red eyes. She has large sharp teeth and is adorned with earrings.[1] Her form is fierce and, adorned with snakes, she has six arms. In her left (hands she holds) a skull, trident, and stick; in the right a dagger, ascetic's staff and fishing net (mīnabhakṣa). She wears a garland of skulls and she plays on a corpse. Her breasts are long and she has a big belly. She is adorned with black clothes. The goddess Kālī has been described.[2] 16) Śivā (Ga) – I will tell (you about) Śivā's form. Supreme Śivā is (black) like collyrium and, very brilliant, she has one face and three eyes. She is good looking and, frightening, makes the sound of a female jackal (śivā). The goddess's matted hair is tied up and seals hang from her ears. She has four arms and is very terrible. She is adorned with many ornaments. (Her) left hands are adorned with a skull and an ascetic's staff;[3] in the right (she holds) a trident and makes a boon-bestowing gesture. The goddess wears a garland of flowers and has a big stomach. She is pleasingly disturbed (with passion). She has long breasts and, very fierce, sits on a jackal. The form of Śivā has been described.[1]

---

[1] Note that the fierce forms do not generally wear crowns.

[2] . . . . kapālīṁ [kh: -lī, g: -li] kathayāmy aham | [k: missing]
kṛṣṇajīmūtavarṇābhā [g: -jītamūta-] nīlāñjanasamaprabhā |
ekavaktrā trinetrā ca raktāntāyatalocanā |
daṁṣṭrā karālavadanā karṇakuṇḍalamaṇḍitā [k: karṇakuṇḍalabhūṣitā; kh: karṇaukuṇḍalabhūṣinī] |
ṣaḍbhujā bhīmarūpā ca sarpābharaṇamaṇḍitā [g: sarvvā-] |
kādyaṁ triśūladaṇḍaṁ [k g: -śūlaṁ-] ca vāme 'syāś [kh g: vāmasthā] ca virājate |
kartrikā [k: kartṛkāṁ; kh g: karttikā] caiva khaṭvāṅgaṁ mīnabhakṣaṁ [k: -makṣaṁ] ca dakṣiṇe |
kapālamālābharaṇā krīḍantī śavasaṁsthitā |
lambastanī bṛhatkukṣī [k: -kukṣiḥ] kṛṣṇavāsasuśobhitā [k: kṛṣṇavāsaḥsusaṁvṛtā; g: kṛṣṇavāsāsusaṣṭanā] |
kālikā kathitā devī [kh: mūrttiḥ] . . . . | Ibid. 7/194b-198c.

[3] MS K reads: piśitakhaṇḍaṁ – a piece of meat.

17) Ghorā[2] (Gha) – I will tell (you about) Ghorā. Ghorā has a fierce (ghora) form and is (dark) like a blue (storm) cloud. She is mad with intoxication and sways around. She has one face, which is beautiful and fierce. She has four arms, three eyes, and is adorned with dreadlocks and a crown. She has earrings and a necklace hangs from her neck. Her breasts are upraised and waist adorned with three wrinkles. In the left (hands) there is a skull and a swaying severed head; in the right, O beloved, there is a trident and an upraised dagger. She has many ornaments and wears blue clothes. She is replete with all the (auspicious) marks and sits on Time (kāla). She is said to be Ghorā.[3]

---

[1] . . . . . śivāmūrtiṁ [kh g: -mūrtti] vadāmy aham |
rocanābha [g: locanābhā] sudīptā ca trinetrā ca śivā parā |
ekavaktrā surūpā [g: svarūpā] ca [k: nāsti] śivārāvā [kh: -rāva; g: -nāda] bhayaṅkarī [k: bhaṅkarī] |
ūrdhvajūṭadharā devī karṇau [g: karṇa] mudrāpralambitau [kh: mūdrāpralaṁvinau; g: -pralaṁvitā] |
caturbhujā mahābhīmā nānālaṅkāramaṇḍitā |
kādyaṁ piśitakhaṇḍaṁ ca [kh: khaṭvāṅga; g: khaṭvāṅgaṁ] vāmasthau karaśobhitau [kh: -sthā ca suśobhitā] |
triśūlaṁ [kh: + ca] varadaṁ caiva dakṣiṇena virājate |
puṣpamālādharā devī lambodarī [k: lambodara; kh: laṁvodarā] suvihvalā [k: suviklavā] |
lambastanī mahābhīmā jambukāsanasaṁsthitā |
śivā ca kathitā mūrtiḥ [g: mūrtti] . . . . | [k kh: missing] Ibid. 7/199-202a.

[2] Schoterman: Ghoraghoṣā

[3] . . . . . ghorāṁ [g: ghorā] ca kathayāmy aham | [k, kh: missing]
ghorā [k: ghoṣā] ca ghorarūpā ca nīlameghasamaprabhā [kh: nīlāñjanasama-] |
ghūrṇantī [k: ghūmmaṁntī; kh g: ghūrmmantī] ca madonmattā ekavaktrā subhīṣaṇā |
caturbhujā trinetrā ca jaṭāmukuṭamaṇḍitā |
karṇakuṇḍalasaṁyuktā kaṇṭhe [kh: kaṇṭha] hārāvalambinī [g: hārapralaṁvinī] |
unnatau ca kucau tasyās trivalīmadhyabhūṣitā [g: tayā-] |
kādyaṁ [kh: kādya] lalanamuṇḍaṁ [k: caiva tu muṇḍaṁ] ca vāmamārge virājate |
triśūlaṁ kartarī [g: karttinī] caiva dakṣiṇe connatā [k: contā; g: cānnatā] priye |
nānālaṅkārasaṁyuktā nīlavastraparicchadā |
sarvalakṣaṇasaṁpūrṇā kālasthā [k: lokasthā] ca virājate |
ghorā ca kathitā hy eṣā . . . . | [k kh: missing] Ibid. 7/202cd-208a.

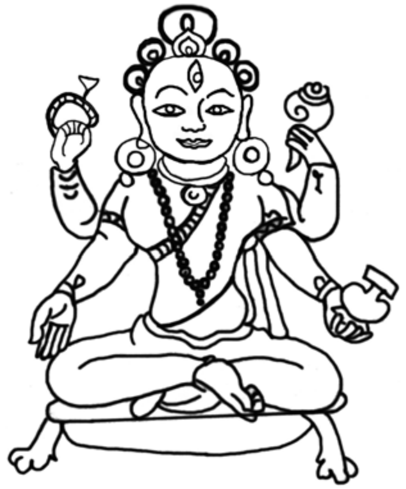
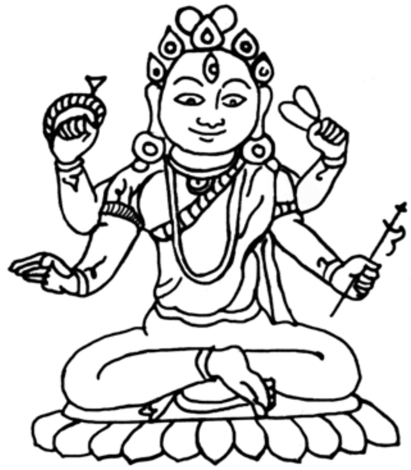
18) Cchirvarā[1] (Ṅa) – I will tell (you about) Cchirvarā. She is red and yellow and, very brilliant, has the face of a chirvarā (?). She has four arms and three eyes. She is radiant with (her) earrings and diadem. A jewel necklace is on her head. Replete with many ornaments, she is beautiful in all her limbs. In the left (hands she holds) a conch and jar, (with the right) she makes a boon-bestowing gesture and (holds) a rosary. She wears yellow clothes and sits on a cot. The form of Cchirvarā has been described.[2]





19) Vāgeśī (A) – Now listen (as I tell you about) Vāgeśī. She is brilliant white like milk and very brilliant. She has a round face and three eyes. She has a necklace of pearls around her head and (her) ears are adorned with earrings. (Slender, she has) three wrinkles in the middle (around her belly) and upraised breasts. Very tranquil (mahāsaumya), she is adorned with many ornaments and has four arms. In the left (hands) she holds a noose and goad and on the right she makes a gesture of fearlessness and in the other she holds a rosary. She wears white clothes, sits on a lotus and, (beautiful) like a lotus, is marked by all the (auspicious) signs. The form of Vāgīśī has been explained.[3]

---

[1] ŚM MS G: Chicarā; Schoterman: Khirvarā.

[2] . . . . chirvarāṁ [g: chicarā] kathayāmy aham | [k, kh: missing]
raktapītāruṇacchāyā sudīptā [k: sudīptiś] chirvarānanā |
caturbhujā trinetrā ca kuṇḍalair mukuṭojjvalā [kh g: -mukuṭojvalā] |
maṇiratnakṛtā mālā śiraḥsthā [kh g: śira-] ca virājate |
nānābharaṇasaṁpūrṇā sarvāvayavaśobhitā |
śaṁkhaṁ ca kalaśaṁ [kh g: kalasaṁ] vāme varadaṁ cākṣasūtrakam |
pītavastrāvṛtā [g: -strādhṛtā] devī paryaṅkasthā virājate |
kathitā chirvarāmūrtir [kh: chirvarā kathitā mūrtti; g: chirvarā kathitā devī] . . . . |
Ibid. 7/208cd-211c.

[3] . . . . vāgeśīṁ [kh g: vāgeśī] śṛṇu sāṁpratam |
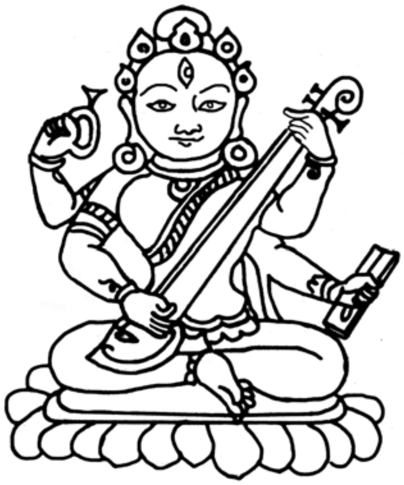
gokṣīrābhā sudīptā ca trinetrā vartulānanā |

20) Sarasvatī (I)[1] – I will tell (you about) Sarasvatī. She shines like the moon and, illumined by moon rays, (her) face is (like) the moon and gaze auspicious. Her waist is thin, hips (large) and breasts round. She has four arms and three eyes and is adorned with all the ornaments. In the right (hands she holds) a vīṇā and in the left a book. (Again) on the right is a rosary and (on the left) a sparkling crystal. The goddess sits on a lotus and wears white clothes. She is replete with all the (auspicious) marks and is beautiful in all her limbs. (Thus) Sarasvatī has been described.[2]



---

muktāmālā [k: mauti-; kh: maukta-; g: maukti-] śire tasyāḥ [kh g: tasyā] karṇau [k g: karṇa] kuṇḍalabhūṣitau [k g: maṁḍitā] |
trivalītaraṅgamadhyasthā samunnatapayodharā |
caturbhujā mahāsaumyā nānālaṅkāramaṇḍitā |
pāśāṅkuśadharā vāme abhayaṁ dakṣiṇe priye |
apare cākṣasūtraṁ ca śvetavastraparicchadā |
padmāsanā padmanibhā sarvalakṣaṇalakṣitā [g: -lakṣiṇa-] |
vāgīśī kathitā mūrtiḥ [g: mūrtti] . . . . | [k kh: missing] Ibid. 7/211d-215.

[1] The letter I follows Ṅa and precedes A in the ṢSS and the Ṭīkā where the presiding goddess is Māyā or Māyā Devī. The same is the case in the KuKh where the goddess is called Ajayā. Here this entry is missing. Instead we find Sarasvatī, who is not mentioned in the other sources. Presumably, she stands for the letter I.

[2] . . . . sarasvatīṁ [g: sarasvatī] vadāmy aham | [k, kh: missing] candrābhā candrikair dīptā [kh: candrikā-; g: candrakai-] candrānanaśubhekṣaṇā |
madhyakṣāmā nitambāḍhyā vṛttākārau payodharau [g: payaudharau] |
caturbhujā trinetrā ca sarvābharaṇamaṇḍitā |
dakṣiṇe tu sthitā vīṇā vāme [g: vāma] pustakadhāriṇī [g: puṣṭakadhāriṇe] |
dakṣiṇe cākṣamālā [k: svakṣamālāṁ] ca sphāṭikā ca [k: -kāṁ ca; g: kāṁ va] suvarcasā [k: suvarcasam; g: suvarcasāṁ] |
padmāsanasthitā [kh: padmāsane-] devī śuklavastraparicchadā [k: rakta-] |
sarvalakṣaṇasaṁpūrṇā sarvāvayavaśobhitā |
sarasvatīyaṁ kathitā . . . . | [k kh: missing] Ibid. 7/215d-218c.

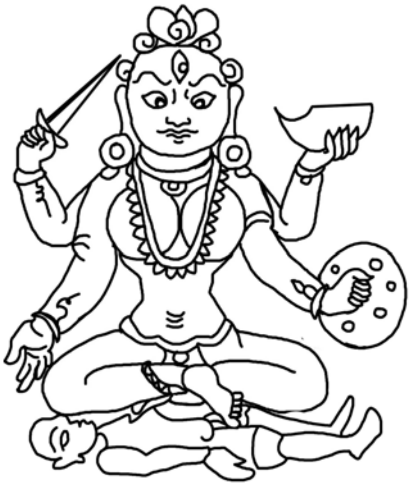
21) Śikhivāhī (Va) – I will tell (you about) Śikhivāhī. She shines (diversely) like a peacock's tail and, beautifully radiant, she burns with rays (of light). O beloved, she has six faces with eighteen eyes and twelve arms. She wears a beautiful crown and earrings of snakes. The great goddess sits on a peacock and is adorned with snakes as ornaments. In her left (hands she holds) a skull, an ascetic's staff, noose, goad, javelin and malet (tomara). O fair lady, listen (to what she holds) in her right (hands) – a trident, double-headed drum, noose, makes a boon-bestowing gesture, serpent and thread. She has many ornaments and is dressed in a snakeskin.[1]



22) Bhīmā (Bha) – O beloved, I will tell (you about) Bhīmā. Listen attentively. Bhīmā is (brown) like copper and has a long face with three eyes. She has a necklace made of wishgranting gems wrapped round her head. She has divine earrings and crown ornaments made of human bone. She has four arms and is very powerful. She has a long belly and frightening face. (She holds) a skull (kādya) and club (kheṭaka) with the left (hands) and with the right a sword and makes a boon-bestowing gesture. She sits on an attendent (kiṁkara) and disturbs the moving and immobile (universe). The goddess Bhīmā has (thus) been described.[2]

---

[1] . . . . śikhivāhīṁ [g: -hī] kathāmy aham | [k, kh: missing]
mayūracandrikābhāsā sudīptā [kh g: sudīpta] kiraṇojjvalā [kh g: kiraṇojvalā] |
ṣaḍvaktrā dvādaśabhujā netrair aṣṭādaśaiḥ [kh: -daśeḥ] priye [kh: priyā] |
mukuṭena ca vicitreṇa ghonāsakarṇakuṇḍalau [kh: ghoṇāsā-; g: ghonāsā-; k: -lā] |
mayūrasthā mahādevī sarpābharaṇamaṇḍitā |
kādyaṁ khaṭvāṁgapāśaṁ ca aṅkuśaṁ śaktitomaram |
vāme 'syāś ca [kh g: vāmasthā ca] varārohe dakṣe 'syāḥ [kh g: dakṣasthā] śṛṇu sāṁpratam |
triśūlaṁ ḍamaruṁ [kh g: ḍamarukaṁ] pāśaṁ varadaṁ sarpasūtrakam [k: -akṣakam] |
nānālaṅkārasaṁyuktā sarpakañcukavāsasā [kh: -vāsasī; g: kaṁcūkavāsasī] | Ibid. 7/219d-223.

[2] bhīmāṁ [g: bhīmā] ca kathayiṣyāmi śṛṇuṣvaikamanā [k kh: -ṣvekamanāḥ] priye |

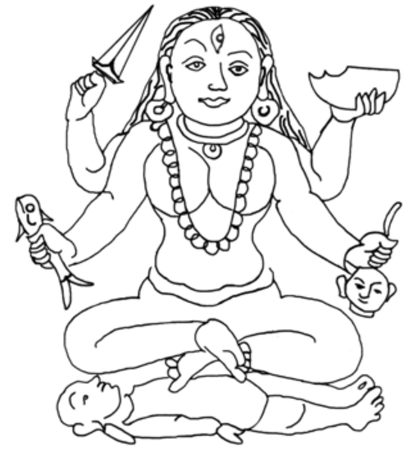
23) Vāyuvegā[1] (Ya) – I will tell (you now about) Vāyuvegā. She is very fierce (mahācaṇḍā) and has the (grey) colour and lustre of smoke. She has three eyes, a long nose, hair tied up on top of the head and a frightening face. She has earrings and a golden cloth wrapped around her forehead. A crystal necklace hangs from her neck. She has a big stomach, long (hanging) breasts and four long arms. She holds a skull and flag in the right hands and in the left a noose and makes a gesture of fearlessness. She sits on the back of a deer and is adorned with many ornaments. The goddess wears divine clothes and (her) feet are adorned with anklets.[2]



24) Lāmā (Ḍha) – Lāmā is the (white) colour of a campaka flower and looks like heated gold. Her hair is dishevelled and her face crooked with three eyes, she is frightening. She has four arms and sits on a ghost. She holds a skull and a severed head in the left hands and a dagger and fish in the right. A pearl necklace hangs from her neck and she wears red clothes. She is beautiful in all her limbs and is marked with all the (auspicious) marks.

---

bhīmā ca tāmravarṇābhā trinetrā dīrghamānanā ǀ cintāmaṇikṛtā [k, g: nīlā-; kh: cīntāmaṇi-] mālā śiraḥsthā [g: śirasthā] ca virājate ǀ kuṇḍalair mukuṭair divyair narāsthikṛtabhūṣaṇā [kh: bhūṣaṇau] ǀ caturbhujā mahātejā lambodarabhayānanā [g: saṁvādari] ǀ kādyaṁ [kh: kādya] kheṭakaṁ [kh g: khetaka] vāmena khaḍgaṁ varadā [k: varadaṁ + ca; kh g: -da ca] dakṣiṇe ǀ kiṁkarasthā [g: kikara-] varārohe kṣobhayantī [g: kṣobhayaṁti] carācaram ǀ bhīmā ca kathitā devī . . . . ǀ Ibid. 7/224-227c.

[1] Lāmā precedes Vāyuvegā in MS K of the ŚM.

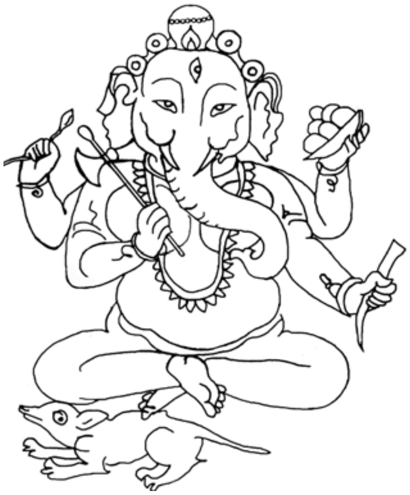
[2] . . . . vāyuvegāṁ [k: rāmāmūrtiṁ; kh: vāyūvegā; g: -gā] vadāmy aham [kh: mataḥ śṛṇū] ǀ vāyuvegā mahācaṇḍā [g: -vegā] dhūmrābhā [g: dhūṁmrābhā] dhūmravarcasā [g: dhūṁmra-] ǀ [k: + verses 232-234*]* trinetrā dīrghanāsā ca ūrdhvakeśā [kh: -keśo] bhayānanā ǀ karṇakuṇḍalasaṁlagnā [kh: -saṁttaptā] lalāṭe hemapaṭṭikā [g: haima-] ǀ

She is called Lāmā.[1]

25) Vināyakī (Ḍa) – I will tell (you about) Vināyakī. She is blue, red and brown and her light is blue. She has an elephant's face with three eyes and a big body. She shines brilliantly with (her) crown. She has a large belly and, (both) gross and subtle, (her) four arms are (her) weapons. In the left hands she holds a sweetmeat (modaka) and a tooth and in the right, an axe and a thread. She wears a garland of flowers on her head and a necklace of letters. She is mounted on the back of a rat (ākhu) and is adorned with all the ornaments. The great goddess Vināyakī wears an elephant skin.[2]



---

sphaṭikena [k g: sphāṭikena] kṛtā mālā kaṇṭhe tasyāḥ [k: tasya; g: tasyā] pralambitā [k: virājate] |
lambodarī lambastanī [kh: lambo-] lambabāhuś caturbhujā [kh g: -vāhu-; kh: -jāṁ] |
kādyaṁ dhvajaṁ [kh: vajraṁ (dhvajaṁ)] kṛtaṁ [kh: kṛtā] vāme dakṣiṇe pāśakābhayam [kh: pāśābhayaṁ tathā; g: pāśa cābhayaṁ] |
mṛgapṛṣṭhasamārūḍhā nānālaṅkāramaṇḍitā |
divyavastrāvṛtā [g: -vastraivṛtā] devī pādau nūpuramaṇḍitau | Ibid. 7/227d-231.

[1] lāmā campakavarṇābhā [g: capaṁ-] taptakāñcanasannibhā | [This passage is missing in MS K]
muktakeśā [g: śukla-] trinetrā ca vakrānanabhayaṅkarī [kh: vajrānanabhayaṁkarā; g: vaktrā-] |
caturbhujā ca pretasthā cañcukarṇavibhūṣitā [g: caṁcuvarṇa-] |
kādyaṁ muṇḍaṁ [kh: muṇḍa] kṛtaṁ [kh: kṛtā; g: kṛtau] vāme mīnaṁ kartṛkaṁ [kh: karttṛ] ca dakṣiṇe |
mauktimālā [kh: maukta-] gale tasyā raktavastraparicchadā [g: parichada] | sarvāvayavaśobhāḍhyā [kh: -saṁpūrṇā] sarvalakṣaṇalakṣitā [kh: sarvvā-] |
lāmā caiva samākhyātā . . . . | [kh: missing] Ibid. 7/232-235a.

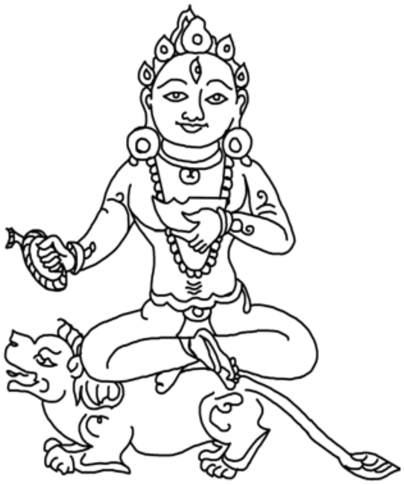
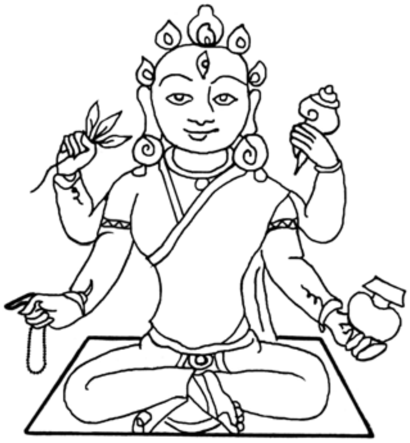
[2] . . . . . vināyakīṁ [g: vināyi] vadāmy [g: kathayāmy] ahaṁ | nīlābhā nīlavarṇā ca nīlalohitapiṅgalā |
gajavaktrā mahākāyā trinetrā mukuṭojjvalā [kh: makuṭojvalā; g: mukuṭojvalā] |
lambodarā sthūlahrasvā caturbhujakṛtāyudhā |
modakaṁ daśanaṁ vāme paraśu [kh: paraśū; g: paśuḥ] sūtraṁ [kh: sutraṁ] ca dakṣiṇe | [This and the next two lines are missing in MS G.]
vaḍamālā śire tasyā varṇahārāvalambinī |
ākhupṛṣṭhasamārūḍhā [kh: ākhusthāsanamārūḍhā] sarvābharaṇamaṇḍitā |
vināyakī [kh: vināryakī; g: vināyikī] mahādevī gajacarmaparicchadā [kh: -dāḥ] || Ibid. 7/235b-238.

26) Pūrṇimā (Ṭha) – Pūrṇimā has the light of the full moon and a round face with three eyes. She is brilliant with (her) jewel earrings and beautiful with (her) flaming diadem. (She has) a necklace of great jewels. In (her) left (hand) the goddess holds a skull and in (her) right (hand), a rosary. (Slender, she has) three wrinkles (around her belly) and has fat upraised breasts. She sits on the back of a lion and is adorned with all the ornaments.[1]





27) Jhaṅkārī (Jha) – The great goddess Jhaṅkārī is (subtle) like space (suśira), the water (ambha) of a cloud or like the filament (of a lotus stem) and is beautifully radiant. She has three eyes and four arms and is adorned with a necklace and bangles. (Slender, she has) three wrinkles in the middle (around her belly) and equal fat breasts. In (her) left (hands she holds) a conch and jar, (in the right) a young shoot and rosary. She sits on a square, adorned with many jewels, has all the ornaments and wears white clothes.[2]

---

[1] pūrṇimā pūrṇacandrābhā trinetrā vartulānanā [g: vatulā-] ǀ ratnakuṇḍalasaṁdīptā mukuṭojjvalaśobhitā [kh g: mukuṭojvala-] ǀ mahāratnakṛtā mālā kaṇṭhasaṁsthā virājate ǀ vāme kādyadharā [kh: ddhṛtā] devī dakṣiṇe cākṣasūtrakam ǀ trivalītaraṅgaśobhāḍhyā [g: -sobhā-] pīnonnatapayodharā [kh: -payodharau] ǀ siṁhapṛṣṭhasamārūḍhā sarvālaṅkāramaṇḍitā ǀ Ibid. 7/239-241.

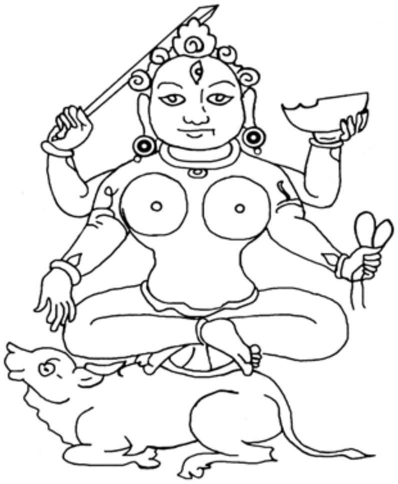
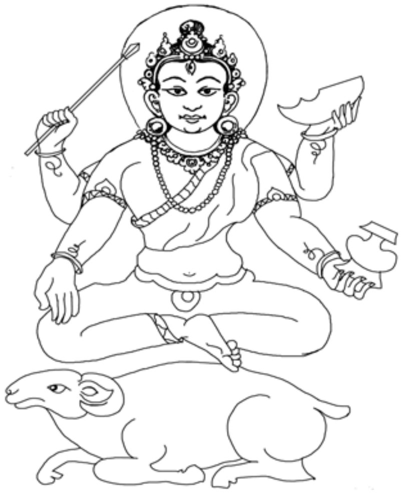
[2] jhaṁkāriṇī [k: ḍaṁkāriṇī] mahādevī suṣirābhā [g: suthirābhā] suvarcasā ǀ meghābhasannibhākārā [kh: meghāmbhaḥ-; k: medayābha-] mṛṇālatantusannibhā [kh: -tantū-; g: -saṁnnibhā] ǀ caturbhujā trinetrā ca hārakeyūramaṇḍitā ǀ trivalītaraṅgamadhyasthā samau [kh: sama] pīnau [k kh: pīna] payodharau ǀ śaṅkhaṁ ca kalaśaṁ [g: kalasaṁ] vāme pallavaṁ cākṣasūtrakam ǀ caturasrasamārūḍhā nānāratnavibhūṣitā ǀ sarvālaṅkārasaṁyuktā śvetavastraparicchadā [kh: sveta-] ǀ Ibid. 7/242-245ab.

28) Kurdanī (Ña) – Kurdanī looks (red) like vermillion. She shine brilliantly, yellow and red. She has one face with three eyes and burns radiantly with her earrings and diadem. She has a large body with four arms and is adorned with great snakes. In the left (hands she holds) a skull and noose and in the right a sword and makes a gesture of fearlessness. Beautiful in all her limbs and very powerful, she sits on a bull.[1]





29) Dīpinī[2] (Ra) – Dīpinī's light is the form of fire and shines like a flame of fire. She has one face with three eyes and is adorned with jewel earrings. She has brown eyebrows and hair and a pearl necklace hangs (from her neck). She has four arms and, very powerful, is adorned with many ornaments. (She holds) a skull and jar in (her) left (hands) and makes a boon-bestowing gesture (and holds) a spear with the right. She sits on a ram and wears yellow clothes. She is replete with all the limbs and marked with all the (auspicious) marks. Born from the letter Ra, she possesses great energy (tejas) and is very powerful.[3]

---

[1] kurdanī [k: kuddhanī; g: karddanī] kuṅkumābhā ca pītāruṇasudīpitā ǀ ekavaktrā trinetrā ca kuṇḍalair mukuṭojjvalā [g: kuṇḍalekaṭakojvalā; kh: -ṭojvalā] ǀ caturbhujā mahākāyā mahāghoṇāsamaṇḍitā [k: mahāgolāṁsa-; kh: -goṇāsamanvitā] ǀ kādyapāśadharā [kh: -ddhṛtā] vāme khaḍgaṁ cābhayaṁ [kh g: cābhaya] dakṣiṇe ǀ vṛṣabhasthā mahādīptā sarvāvayavaśobhitā ǀ Ibid. 7/245cd-247.

[2] Dīpanī follows Jayantī in MS K. In Schoterman's version Sañjīvanī (Ḥ) and Kapālinyā (Ṭ) precede this goddess. Dīpanī is R in both those sources.

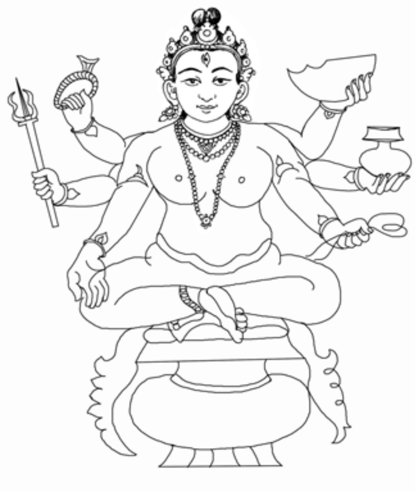
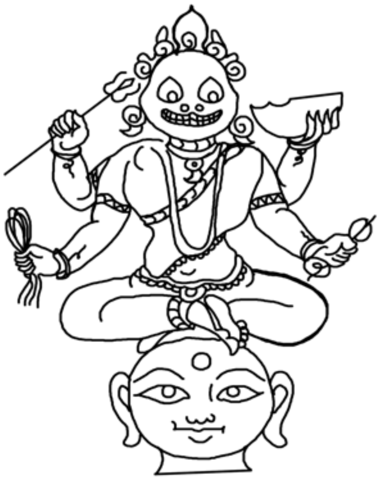
[3] dīpanī vahnirūpābhā vahnijvālā samaprabhā ǀ ekavaktrā trinetrā ca ratnakuṇḍalabhūṣitā [kh: -bhuṣitā] ǀ piṅgabhrūḥ [kh: piṅgabhru; g: piṁgabhū] piṅgakeśā ca muktamālāpralambitā [kh: muktā-] ǀ caturbhujā mahādīptā nānālaṅkāramaṇḍitā ǀ kādyakumbhadharā [kh: -dhṛtā; g: kādyaṁkuṁbhaṁdharā] vāme varadaṁ śūlaṁ [kh g: śūla] dakṣiṇe ǀ meṣāsanasamārūḍhā pītavastraparicchadā ǀ sarvāvayavasaṁpūrṇā sarvalakṣaṇalakṣitā ǀ



30) Jayantī (Ja) – Jayantī is the supreme goddess. Her lustre is blue and red. She has a tranquil face with three eyes and and is adorned with jewel earrings. She has a jewel crown and a necklace hangs from (her) neck. She has a large body and belly and burns with the radiant energy of a lightning flash. She has six arms. She makes a boon-bestowing gesture, (holds) a trident and rosary (in the right hands) and a skull, jar, and noose in her left. She sits on a jar and wears yellow clothes.[1]



31) Kapālinī (Ṭa) – Kapālinī looks like a skull and is adorned with skulls. She has four arms, three eyes and fat upraised breasts. In (her) left (hands she) holds a skull and thunderbolt and a trident and fetter in the right. A skull is her seat and she wears black clothes. She is beautiful in all her limbs and is adorned with all the ornaments.[2]

---

rakāravarṇasaṁbhūtā [g: raktāra-] mahātejā [kh: mahātejo; g: mahāvara] mahābalā [g: parākramāḥ] | Ibid. 7/248-251.

[1] jayantī paramā devī nīlalohitavarcasā |
trinetrā saumyavaktrā ca ratnakuṇḍalabhūṣitā [k kh: -maṇḍitā] |
ratnamarkaṭasaṁyuktā [k: -marakata-; g: -marakaṭa-] kaṇṭhe [g: kaṇṭha] mālā pralambitā |
mahodarā mahākāyā vidyujjvalitatejasā [kh: vidyūjjvalita; g: vidyujvalita] |
ṣaḍbhujā varadā devī triśūlaṁ cākṣasūtrakam |
kādyaṁ kumbhaṁ tathā vāme pāśaṁ [k: pātraṁ] tasyā [g: tasyāṁ] virājate |
kumbhāsanasamārūḍhā pītavastraparicchadā | Ibid. 7/252-255ab.

[2] kapālinī kapālābhā kapālābharaṇānvitā |
caturbhujā trinetrā [kh: trinetrāṁ] ca pīnonnatapayodharā |
kādyavajradharā [g: kādyaṁ-; kh: -dhṛtā] vāme triśūlaṁ pāśaṁ [k: pātraṁ; kh g: pāśa] dakṣiṇe |
kapālaṁ cāsanaṁ tasyāḥ [kh g: tasyā] kṛṣṇavastraparicchadā [kh: -vastraṁ-] |
sarvāvayavaśobhāḍhyā [kh: -saṁyuktā; g: -śoḍhyā] sarvālaṅkāramaṇḍitā | [k: missing]
Ibid. 7/255cd-257.

32) Pāvanī (Pa) – Pāvanī resides in the force of the wind. She looks like a lotus and has its lustre. She has four arms and three eyes and is adorned with many jewels. In (her) left (hands) are a club (gadā) and skull and in the right a wheel and makes a gesture of fearlessness. She wears garlands of flowers that hang down to her feet. She is mounted on a donkey and wears (grey) smoke - coloured clothes.[1]

33) Icchāśakti[2] (Ḥ) – (Icchāśakti) is (blue), the colour of sliced sapphire (vaidurya) and she has the lustre of pearls. She has a beautiful face with three eyes and is adorned with divine earrings. She shines with pearl ornaments and, very powerful, has four arms. In (the upper) left and right hands are beautiful lotuses. O beloved, in the other (left hand she holds) a rosary and makes a boon-bestowing gesture with the right. She sits in the lotus posture on a lotus and wears white clothes. She is replete with all the limbs and beautiful with all the (auspicious) marks. Icchāśakti has been described.[3]

---

[1] *pāvanī pavanavegasthā padmābhā [g: padmā ] padmavarcasā |
caturbāhus [k: caturbhujā; kh: caturbāhū] trinetrā ca nānāratnavibhūṣitā |
gadā kādyaṁ sthitau [k: sthitaṁ; kh: sthitā; g: sthiti] vāme cakram abhayaṁ [k: cakraṁ cābhayaṁ] dakṣiṇe |
puṣpamālyaiḥ [kh g: -mālaiḥ] pralambābhir āpādatalalambinī [g: pralaṁvābhiḥ-] |
kharāsanāsamārūḍhā dhūmravastraparicchadā | Ibid. 7/258-260ab.

[2] Paramātmā precedes Ambikā in the ṢSS and the Ṭīkā. But this appears to be the entry after Ambikā here. Icchāśakti commonly denotes visarga, which is governed by Sañjīvanī in the ṢSS and is missing here.

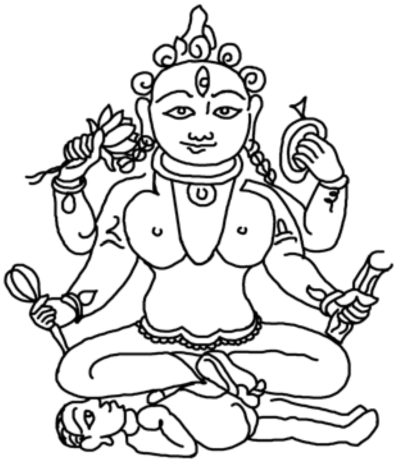
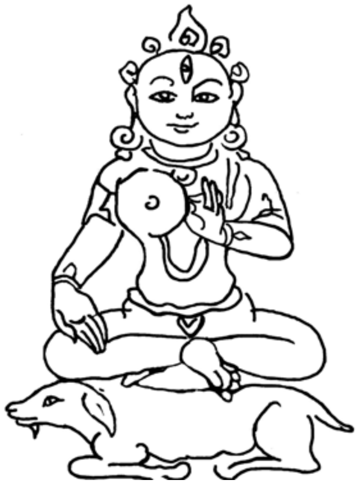
[3] bhinnavaiḍūryavarṇābhā [k: -vaidūryya-; g: -vaiḍuryya-] mauktādīptidharā [k: maukta-; kh g: maukti-] priye [kh: priya] | cāruvaktrā trinetrā ca divyakuṇḍalamaṇḍitā |
caturbhujā mahādīptā mauktikābharaṇojjvalā [kh g: -bharaṇojvalā] |
vāmadakṣakarābhyāṁ [kh: vāme-] ca kamalau ca suśobhanau |
apare [g: aparaṁ] cākṣasūtraṁ [kh: -śūtraṁ] ca varadā [kh: varadaṁ] dakṣiṇe priye |

34) Ambikā (Ha) – I will (now) tell (you about) Ambikā. Ambikā's face is averted downwards. She has three eyes and sways with intoxication. Her face is tranquil. The goddess sits on a swan and has four arms. In her left hand is a necklace of jewels and she holds a book. In the right (she holds) a lotus and a noose. She resides in the vital breath and transports the vital breath. She wears a beautiful diadem made of jewels and is adorned with lightning flashes for earrings. Ambikā's form bestows success.[1]





35) (Paramātmā)[2] (Sa) – She shines like pure crystal and illumines supreme bliss. She has three eyes and one face. Completely free, she smiles beautifully. One hand makes a boon-bestowing gesture, the other that of fearlessness. She is adorned with all the ornaments and is replete with all the (auspicious) marks. Beautiful in all her limbs, she is the supreme goddess in the supreme sky and (there) she illumines (her) supreme *padmāsanā [kh: padmāsano] padmasaṁsthā śuklavastraparicchadā [kh: śūkla-; g: śukla * * parichadā]* ǀ sarvāvayavasaṁpūrṇā sarvalakṣaṇaśobhitā [k: -lakṣitā] ǀ icchāśaktiḥ [kh g: śakti] samākhyātā . . . . ǀ Ibid. 7/260cd-264a.

---

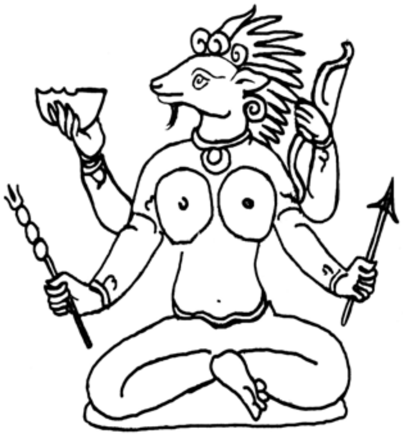
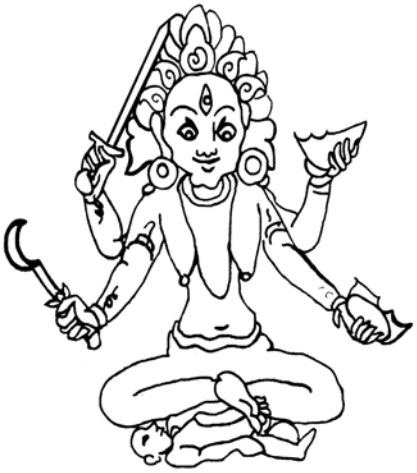
[1] . . . . . ambikāṁ [kh g: amvikā; g: aṁvikā] ca vadāmy aham ǀ ambikā cāpyadhovaktrā [kh: caika-; g: cādho-] trinetrā madyaghūrṇitā [k: mada-; g: -tāḥ] ǀ prasannavadanā devī haṁsasthā ca caturbhujā ǀ ratnamālā kare [kh: gale] divyā vāme [g: vāma] pustakadhāriṇī [g: puṣṭaka-] ǀ padmaṁ ca dakṣiṇe pāśaṁ prāṇasthā prāṇavāhinī [k: -vāsinī] ǀ sarvalakṣaṇasaṁpannā sarvāvayavaśobhitā ǀ mukuṭena [kh: makuṭena] vicitreṇa sarvaratnamayena tu ǀ vajrakuṇḍalaśobhāḍhyā ambikāmūrtiḥ [kh g: -mūrtti] siddhidā ǀ Ibid. 7/264b-267.

[2] The names of this and the following goddess are missing in the MSs of the ŚM. The entries in the lists of the Yoginīs of the Mālinī alphabet suggest that one of the two is Chāgalī – the She-Goat. The iconic form of the following one fits with this name. This one may be Paramātmā who, with respect to Schoterman's list, has been replaced above by Icchāśakti.

iconic form.[1]

36) (Chagalī) (Cha) – She sits on a goat. She is black and wears black clothes. She has the face of a goat and three eyes. Her hair is dishevelled and she is naked. She is very fierce and powerful. She has long ears and likes (to eat) meat. She has four arms and, very powerful, is beautiful with (her) long nipples (cūcuka). The goddess holds a bow and arrow, skull and ascetic's staff. She possesses great radiant energy and is adorned in all (her) limbs.[2]





37) Pūtanā (La) – Pūtanā is deformed and fierce. She is emaciated and is (red) like blood. She has three red eyes, dishevelled hair and is naked. The goddess has long (protruding) teeth and wears a garland of bones. She wears earrings and is beautiful in all her limbs. She has four arms and possesses great radiant energy. She is radiant with the sword and cleaver (kaṭṭārika) (she holds in her right hands) and the skull (kādya) and piece of meat in the left. The goddess Pūtanā sits on a child and is frightening.[3]

---

[1] śuddhasphaṭikavarṇābhā parānandaprakāśinī |
trinetrā caikavaktrā ca nirmuktā [kh: nṛmukuṭā] cāruhāsinī |
varadā cābhayahastā [kh: + ca] sarvālaṅkārabhūṣitā |
sarvalakṣaṇasaṁpūrṇā sarvāvayavaśobhitā |
parākāśe parā devyā parāmūrtiprakāśinī | Ibid. | 7/268-270ab.

The description of this goddess is missing in MS K.

[2] *chāgasthā kṛṣṇavarṇābhā [g: -varṇā ] kṛṣṇavarṇaparicchadā [kh: kṛṣṇacarmmaparisthitā] ajavaktrā trinetrā [g: ninetrā] ca muktakeśā [k: nāsti] digambarā [k: nāsti] |
mahāraudrā [k: nāsti] mahātejā [k: nāsti] lambakarṇāmiṣapriyā |
caturbhujā mahāvīryā [g: -viryyā] lambacūcukaśobhitā [g: laṁvaṁ-; kh g: -cuṁcuka-; g: -sobhitā] |
dhanurbāṇadharā devī kādyakhaṭvāṅgādhāriṇī [g: padmakhaḍgāṁga-] |
mahādīptidharā [kh: -dīptī-] devī sarvāvayavabhūṣitā [kh: -śobhitā] | Ibid. 7/270cd-273ab.

[3] pūtanā vikṛtā raudrā śuṣkāṅgā raktasannibhā [g: -saṁnnibhā] | raktanetrā trinetrā ca muktakeśā digambarā |
pralambadaśanā [g: pralaṁvavadanā] devī asthimālāpralambitā |

38) Amoṭī (Ā) – (Amoṭī) has the lustre and colour of milk. Her limbs are small and she has a big belly. She has four arms and three eyes. (With the right hands) she makes a boon-bestowing gesture and (holds) a rosary. In the left, she holds a skull and snake. She is adorned with all the ornaments and sits on a woman's back and wears beautiful (divya) clothes. She is adorned with pearl earrings and all the ornaments. (Thus) Āmoṭī, who protects from all misfortune, has been described.[1]

39) Lambikā[2] (Ṣa) – I will tell (you about) Lambikā. Now listen carefully. She is very tall (atidīrghā) and very fierce. She has one, tranquil face with three blood – red eyes and four arms. Her form is like that of a yellow flower. She shines with (her) well inflammed energy. She has divine earrings and burns with (her) crown and diadem. In the left (hands are) a skull and ascetic’s staff; in the right a trident and noose. Replete with all the (auspicious) signs, (she) sits on a crocodille (makara) and is adorned with (her) beautiful radiant energy and blue and yellow clothes. The goddess Lambikā has (thus) been described.[3]

---

karṇamudrādharā [kh: -dhṛtā; g: karṇe mudrāvṛtā] devī sarvāvayavaśobhitā |
caturbhujā mahādīptā [k: mahādivyā] asikaṭṭārikojjvalā [kh: -kojvalā; g: -kodyatā] |
kādyaṁ piśitakhaṇḍaṁ [k: kādyapiśitakhaṇḍena; kh: -pisita-; g: -khaḍgaṁ] ca [k: nāsti] vāmapārśve [k: sthā; g: -sthāne] virājate |
bālāsanagatā devī [kh: vālapretāsanāsīnā] pūtanā ca bhayāvahā | Ibid. 7/273cd-276.

[1] kṣīrābhā kṣīravarṇā ca hrasvāṅgī [kh: hrasvāṅgā] ca mahodarā |
caturbhujā [kh: -bāhū; g: -bāhu] trinetrā ca varadaṁ cākṣasūtrakam |
kādyasarpakarā [g: kādyaṁ-] vāme sarvābharaṇamaṇḍitā |
striyāḥ [kh: strīyaḥ; g: striya] skandhe [k kh: skaṁdha] samārūḍhā divyavastraparicchadā |
hārakuṇḍalaśobhāḍhyā [k: bhāra-] sarvālaṅkāramaṇḍitā |
āmoṭī [g: -ḍī] ca samākhyātā sarvāpadānivāriṇī [g: sarvāpāpanivāraṇam] | [k kh: missing]
Ibid. 7/277-279.

[2] Schoterman: Lambodaryā.

[3] lambikāṁ [g: laṁvikā] kathayiṣyāmi śṛṇuṣvaikamanādhunā |

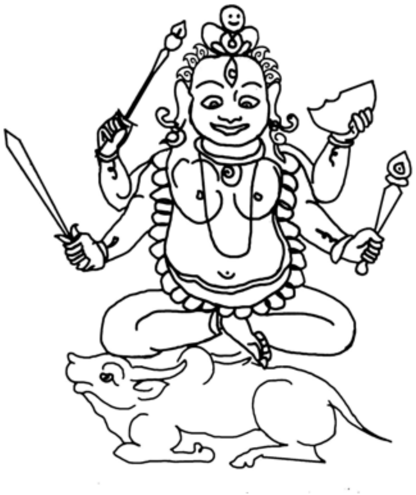
40) Saṁhārī[1] (KṢa) – O mother, listen to (a description of) Saṁhārī. She is black and possesses beautiful, radiant energy. She has one face and a large belly. She has three red eyes that roll slightly, brown hair and four arms. She has large fierce teeth and her lustre is beautiful. She is adorned with yellow earrings. Her matted hair is tied up with a snake and her sacred thread is a snake. In the right (hands she holds) a stick and a noose and a skull and spear in the others. A garland of red flowers (hangs from her) neck. The goddess wears yellows clothes and she sits on a Rākṣas. (Thus) the form of Saṁhārī has been described.[2]



41) Mahākālī (Ma) – Now listen to (the form of) Mahākālī. Mahākālī has a big body and (is dark blue) like lapis lazuli (rājāvartaka). She is (light blue) like a hemp flower (atasī), has three eyes and a large stomach. Her eyes are copper coloured and illumined (dīptā). She is greedy for the bliss of wine. Very powerful, she has four arms and is adorned with earrings made of snakes. The goddess has matted hair and a skull as a crest jewel. She is adorned with a garland of skulls and holds a skull and a club (kheṭaka) (in the left hands) and a stick and sword in the atidīrghā pracaṇḍā ca trinetrā ca caturbhujā ǀ ekavaktrā prasannāsyā raktāruṇanibhekṣaṇā ǀ pītapuṣpanibhākārā [g: -nirākārā] sudīptatejabhāsurā [kh: sudīptātejabhāsurā; g: dīptatejasurāśubhā] ǀ divyakuṇḍalasaṁyuktā kirīṭamukuṭojjvalā [kh g: -mukuṭojvalā] ǀ kādyaṁ [kh: kādya] khaṭvāṅgaṁ [kh g: khaṭvāṁga] vāme ca [k: nāsti; kh: na] triśūlaṁ pāśaṁ [k: pātrā ca] dakṣiṇe ǀ sarvalakṣaṇasampūrṇā makarasthā [kh: nakrasthā ca; g: -stho] virājate ǀ nīlapītena vastreṇa śobhitā [g: sobhitā] ca sutejasā ǀ lambikā kathitā devī [kh: mūrttiḥ] . . . . ǀ Ibid. 7/280-284a.

---

[1] Schoterman: Saṁhāryā.

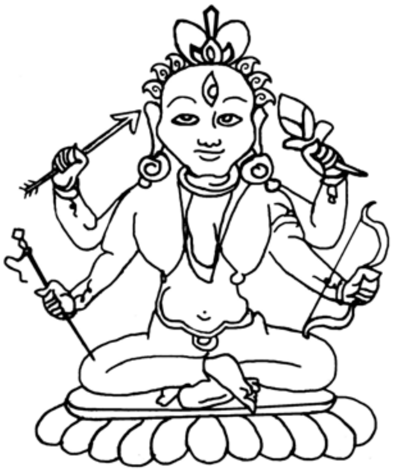
[2] . . . . . saṁhārīṁ [kh g: saṁhārī] śṛṇu [kh: śṛṇū] cāmbike [kh: sāṁpratā] ǀ right. She wears yellow clothes and, replete with all the (auspicious) qualities, she sits on a bull. I have (thus) described the goddess Mahākālī who gives good accomplishment.[1]

42) Kusumā[2] (Śa) – Kusumā looks like saffron (kusumbha) and saffron water. She has a divine form with three eyes and is adorned with beautiful earrings. The goddess has dreadlocks and the Half Moon as a crest jewel. (Slender, she has) three wrinkles in the middle (around her belly) and fat, upraised breasts. She has four arms and one face. She is adorned with necklace and anklets. In the left (hands she) holds a flower and a bow and in the right an arrow and a goad. The goddess wears red clothes and sits on a lotus. (Thus) the form of Kusumā has been described.[3]



---

kṛṣṇavarṇasutejāḍhyā [kh: sutejādyā] ekavaktrā mahodarā |
caturbāhu [k: caturbhujā] trinetrā ca piṅgakeśā suvarcasā [kh: sū-] |
raktanetrā mahāraudrā īṣadghūrṇitalocanā [kh g: īṣat-; kh: ghurmmita-; g: ghurṇita-] |
daṁṣṭrā karālavadanā pītakuṇḍalamaṇḍitā |
ūrdhvajūṭaṁ [g: -jūṭā] phaṇibaddhaṁ [g: -baddha] nāgayajñopavītinī |
daṇḍapāśadharā [kh: -dhṛtā] dakṣe kādyaśūladharāpare [g: kādyaṁ-; k: -priye] |
raktapuṣpakṛtā mālā kaṇṭhasthā ca virājate |
pītavastrāvṛtā [g: -vastra-] devī rākṣasasyāsane sthitā [kh: sthite] |
saṁhārīmūrtir ākhyātā . . . . | Ibid. 7/284b-287c.

[1] . . . . . mahākālyām ataḥ [k: -kālīmataḥ] śṛṇu [g: śṛṇuḥ] |
mahākālī mahākāyā rājāvartakasannibhā [k: lājāvartaka-; g: rājavarttakasaṁnnibhā] |
atasīpuṣpasaṁkāśā [kh: -saṁkāsā; g: -saṁkāśaṁ] trinetrā ca mahodarā |
ātāmranayanā dīptā madirānandalālasā |
caturbhujā mahātejā sarpakuṇḍalamaṇḍitā |
jaṭājūṭadharā devī kapālakṛtaśekharā [g: -śeṣarā] |
kapālamālābharaṇā kādyakheṭakadhāriṇī |
daṇḍakhaḍgadharā dakṣe [kh g: devī] pītavastropaśobhitā [k: -sevitā] |
sarvalakṣasaṁpūrṇā vṛṣārūḍhā virājate |
kathitā ca mayā devī mahākālī [kh: + sarvakarma] susiddhidā | Ibid. 7/287d-293ab.

[2] Schoterman : Kusumāyudhā.

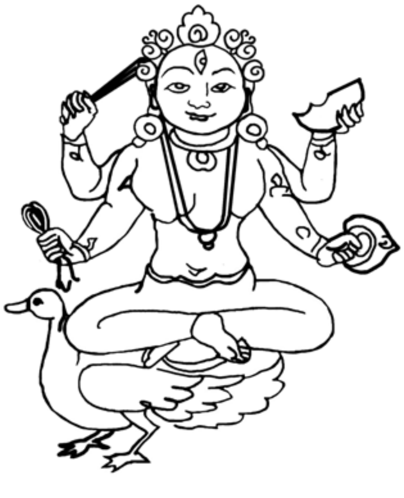
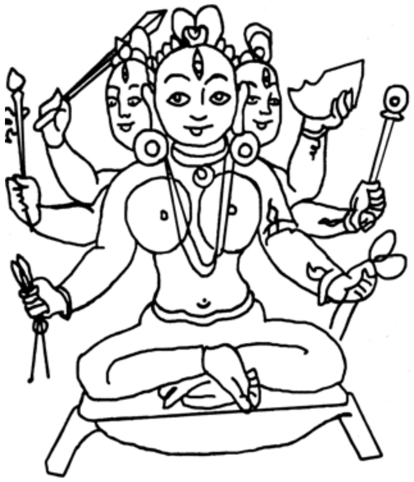
[3] kusumā ca kusumbhābhā kusumbhodakasannibhā [k: kusumodaka-; g: kusubhodaka-] | trinetrā divyarūpā ca divyakuṇḍalamaṇḍitā |
jaṭājūṭadharā [kh: -vṛtā] devī ardhendukṛtaśekharā [kh: arddhendū-; g: kapālakṛtaśeṣarā] | [g: + 7/291cd- 294]
trivalītaraṅgamadhyasthā pīnonnatapayodharā |
caturbhujaikavadanā [kh g: -vṛttavadanā] hāranūpuramaṇḍitā |

43) Śukrā Devī[1] (Ṁ) – I will (now) tell (you about) the goddess Śukrā. The goddess is (white) like the moon and jasmine. (Her) face is the full moon and she has three eyes. She is adorned with red earrings and burns with crown and diadem. A red garland is around her head and she is adorned with a necklace and bangles. She has four arms and, intensely illumined, she is adorned with many ornaments. In the left (hands she) holds a skull and wheel and a sword and noose in the right. She is beautiful with the three wrinkles (around her belly) and has fat, round breasts. She sits on a swan and wears white clothes. (Thus) the goddess Śukrā has been described.[2]





44) Tārā (Ta) – Now listen (to a description of) Tārā. Tārā looks like a star and possesses the light and lustre of a star. She has three eyes and three faces adorned with divine earrings. She has a garland made of white flowers on her head. She wears a crown of jewels and a necklace of pearls hangs (from her neck). She has a divine body with six arms and is adorned with many jewels. O Mistress of the Heroes (vīranāyikā), on the left side (she holds) a skull, club and noose, on the right a sword, stick and

---

puṣpacāpadharā [g: puṣpaṁ-] vāme bāṇaṁ [k: bāṇaś] cāṁkuśaṁ [kh: aṁkuśa; g: -śa] dakṣiṇe |
raktavastrāvṛtā devī padmasthā ca virājate |
kathitā kusumāmūrtiḥ [g: -mūrtti] . . . . | ŚM 7/293cd-297a.

[1] Schoterman : Krūrā Devī.

[2] . . . . śukrādevīṁ [kh: -devī; g: śuklādevī] vadāmy aham |
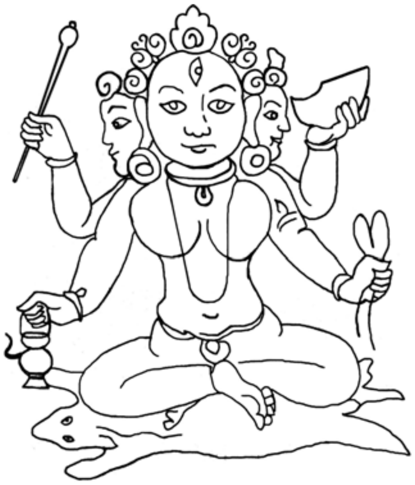
śaśikundanibhā [g: -kuṇḍa-] devī [k kh: dīptā] trinetrā pūrṇimānanā |
raktakuṇḍalaśobhāḍhyā [kh: -sobhāḍhyā] kirīṭamukuṭojjvalā [kh: kirīṭi-; g: kirīṭo-; kh g: -mukuṭojvalā] |
raktamālā śire tasyā [kh: devyā] hārakeyūramaṇḍitā |
caturbhujā mahādīptā nānālaṅkārabhūṣitā [kh: -maṇḍitā] |
kādyacakradharā [kh g: kādyaṁ; g: -cacakra-] vāme khaḍgaṁ pāśaṁ ca dakṣiṇe |
trivalītaraṅgaśobhāḍhyā pīnavṛttapayodharā |
haṁsāsanasamārūḍhā śuklavastraparicchadā |
śukrādevī [kh g: śuklā-] samākhyātā . . . . | Ibid. 7/297b-301a.

thread. The goddess wears blue clothes and sits on a cot. The goddess Tārā has been described.[1]

45) Jñānī[2] (E) – Listen now (to a description of the goddess) Jñānī. She is (red) like a Bandhuka and pomegranate flower. She has three eyes and one face. She burns radiantly with (her) crown and earrings. A necklace of jewels, gems and coral hangs (from her neck). She is beautiful with the three wrinkles (around her belly) and has fat round breasts. She has four arms and, very powerful, she is adorned with many ornaments. Her right and left hands rest on her thighs. There is a skull in the (remaining) left hand and rosary in the right. Auspicious, she sits in a lotus in the lotus posture. (Thus) the goddess Jñānī has been described.[3]



46) Kriyā (AI) – (Now) I will tell (you about) Kriyā. She has one face with three eyes, dreadlocks and wears a crown. She has four arms and is very powerful. Her colour and lustre is black. She is adorned with earrings, bracelets and anklets. In the left (hands she) holds a skull and a noose and in the right a stick and ascetic's pot. She sits in the lotus posture on a black antelope's skin. Kriyā's form has been described. Visualized it bestows the fruit of liberation.[1]

---

[1] . . . . tārāṁ [g: tārā] ca śṛṇu sāṁpratam |
tārā tārānibhā [k kh: tāra-] dīptā [kh: devī] tārābhā tāravarcasā |
trinetrā ca trivaktrā ca divyakuṇḍalamaṇḍitā |
śuklapuṣpakṛtā mālā śirasthā [k: śiraḥsthā] ca virājate |
kirīṭaratnasaṁdīptā [k: kirīṭi-; kh: kirīti-] mauktamālāpralambinī [kh: -pralaṁvitā] |
ṣaḍbhujā divyadehā ca nānābharaṇabhūṣitā [g: -tāṁ] |
kādyaṁ kheṭakapāśaṁ [k: kheṭakaṁ-] ca vāmamārge [k: -mārge (bhāge)] virājate |
khaḍgaṁ daṇḍaṁ tathā sūtraṁ dakṣiṇe vīranāyike |
nīlavastrāvṛtā devī paryaṅkāsanasaṁsthitā |
tārā ca kathitā devī . . . . | Ibid. 7/301b-304c.

[2] Schoterman: Jñānaśakti.

[3] . . . . jñānīṁ [kh g: jñānī] ca śṛṇu sāṁpratam |
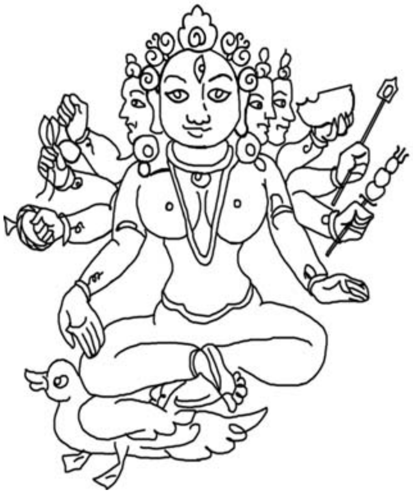
bandhukapuṣpasaṁkāśā [kh: -saṁkāsāṁ; k: bandhūka-] dāḍimīkusumaprabhā [g: dāḍinīkusumopamā] |



47) Gāyatrī (O) – I will (now) tell (you) Gāyatrī's form as it is. She has four faces and three eyes and burns brilliantly with her crown and earrings. She has eight arms and is white and wears white clothes. She is thin with large equal breasts and thighs. In the left (hands) are a skull, ladle, ascetic's staff and she bestows fearlessness. O mistress of the gods, with the right (hands) she makes a boon-bestowing gesture[2] (and holds) a rosary, noose, and ascetic's pot. She has a divine form and is very powerful. She is mounted on the back of a swan and is endowed with all the (auspicious) qualities. (Thus) the form of Gāyatrī has been described.[3]

---

trinetrā caikavaktrā ca kirīṭakuṇḍalojjvalā [kh g: kirīṭi-; kh: -lojvalā; g: -lojvalāḥ] | maṇiratnapravālāḍhyā [k: -dye; kh: -ḍhyai; g: -dyai] ratnamālāpralambitā |
trivalītaraṅgaśobhāḍhyā [kh: -sobhā-] pīnavṛttapayodharā |
caturbhujā mahātejā nānālaṅkāramaṇḍitā |
vāmadakṣau [kh: -dakṣe] karau devyāḥ [kh g: devyā] saṁsthitau ūrukopari [kh: uruko-] |
vāmahaste sthitaṁ kādyaṁ dakṣiṇe cākṣasūtrakam |
padmasthā padmamadhyasthā padmāsanagatā śubhā |
jñānī ca kathitā devī [kh: mūrttiḥ] . . . . | Ibid. 7/305d-310a.

[1] . . . . . kriyāṁ [g: kriyā] ca kathayāmy ahaṁ [kh: śṛṇu sāṁprataṁ] |
ekavaktrā [k kh: -vaktrā] trinetrā ca jaṭāmukuṭadhāriṇī |
caturbhujā mahātejā kṛṣṇābhā [g: -kṣā] kṛṣṇavarcasā |
kuṇḍalābharaṇopetā hārakeyūramaṇḍitā [g: mahākeyūra-] |
kādyapāśadharā [kh: -dhṛtā] vāme dakṣe daṇḍakamaṇḍalu [kh g: -luṁ] |
kṛṣṇājinasthitā [kh: kṛṣṇāṁ-] devī padmāsanavyavasthitā |
kriyāmūrtiś [kh: -mūttiś] ca kathitā dhyātā mokṣaphalapradā | Ibid. 7/310b-313ab.

[2] The hand that makes a boon-bestowing gesture is very rarely the upper one. Usually, it is the last at the bottom. It appears, therefore, that the sequence in which the attributes are ennumerated has been reversed.

[3] gāyatrīṁ [kh g: -trī] kathayiṣyāmi mūrtirūpāṁ [k g: -rūpā] yathā sthitām [k g: -tā] ||
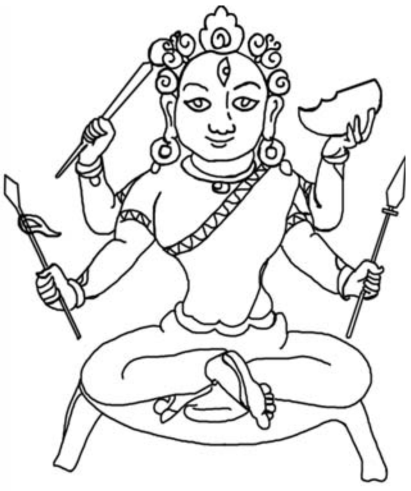
caturvaktrā trinetrā ca kirīṭakuṇḍalojjvalā [kh: kirīṭikuṇḍalo-; g: kirīṭomukuṭojvalā] |
bhujāṣṭakasamopetā [g: -samāyuktā] śvetābhā [kh: sve-] śvetavāsasā [kh: sve-] ||
madhyakṣāmā nitambāḍhyā samapīnapayodharā [kh: -rau] |
kādyaṁ [k: kādya] śruvaṁ [k: śruvarca; g: cakraṁ] ca khaṭvāṅgaṁ [k: khatvāṅga] vāmasthāś cābhayapradā [k g: -sthā cā-; kh: -sthā ca-] ||
varadaṁ cākṣasūtraṁ ca pāśaṁ [g: pāśa] caiva kamaṁḍalu [k kh g: -luṁ] |
dakṣiṇenaiva deveśi divyarūpā mahābalā [k: mahāvalāḥ] ||



48) Sāvitrī (AU) – (Now) I will tell (you about) Sāvitrī, She is dark blue (śyāmā), and her eyes are blood red. She has one face and three eyes. She is radiant with (her) crown and earrings. She has a jewel necklace wrapped around her head and a long necklace hangs (from her neck). (Slender, she has) three wrinkles in the middle (around her belly) and fat round breasts. O beloved, she has four arms and, very powerful, she holds a skull and spear (in the left hands) and a stick and javelin in the right. She has many ornaments, wears yellow clothes and sits on a cot adorned with all the ornaments. The (form of) the goddess Sāvitrī has been described.[1]

49) Dahanī[2] (Da) – (Now) I will tell (you about) Dahanī. Dahanī is very powerful. She shines like a flame of fire. She has three eyes, three faces and six arms. She is very powerful. She has brown eyes and hair and is adorned with jewel earrings. She wears a garland of wild flowers on her head and a necklace of letters. In the left (hands she holds) a skull, ascetic's staff and noose; in the right, a snake, trident and stick. O beloved, possessing a beautiful radiant lustre she is slim and has somewhat long (sagging) breasts. She is replete with all the (auspicious) marks and is beautiful in all her haṁsapṛṣṭhasamārūḍhā sarvalakṣaṇasaṁyutā |

---

gāyatryāḥ [g: gāyatryā] kathitā mūrtiḥ [g: mūrtti] . . . . || Ibid. 7/313cd-317c.

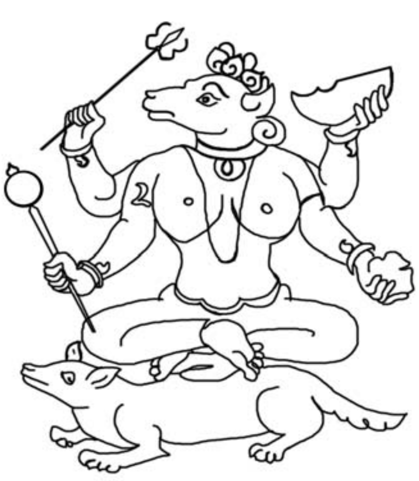
[1] . . . . sāvitrīṁ [g: -trī] ca vadāmy aham || śyāmā ca śyāmavarṇābhā raktāruṇanibhekṣaṇā |
ekavaktrā trinetrā ca kirīṭakuṇḍalojjvalā [kh: -kuṇḍalojvalā; g: kirīṭīmukuṭojvalā] ||
ratnamālā śire tasyā [kh: tasyāṁ] divyahārapralambinī [k kh: -pralambitā] |
trivalītaraṅgamadhyasthā vṛttapīnapayodharā [kh: pīnavṛtta-] ||
caturbhujā mahādīptā [k kh: mahātejā] kādyaśūladharā priye |
daṇḍaśaktidharā [kh: -dhṛtā] devī dakṣiṇena virājate ||
nānālaṅkārasaṁyuktā [g: -raṁkārasahitā] pītavastrasamāvṛtā [kh: -paricchadā] |
paryaṅkāsanamārūḍhā sarvālaṅkārabhūṣitā ||
sāvitrī kathitā devī . . . . | Ibid. 7/317d-322a.

[2] Schoterman: Dahanyā.

limbs. She sits on a skeleton and burns up the moving and immobile (universe). Dahanī's form has (thus) been described.[1]



50) Phetkārī (Pha) – Listen now (to a description of) Phetkārī. She has the face of a female jackal, three eyes and, frightening, she makes the sound of a jackal. She is smoke coloured and is adorned with crown and earrings. She has four arms and, very radiant, is adorned with many ornaments. O mistress of the heroes, in the left (hands she holds) a skull and a piece of meat and in the right there is a trident and a stick. She has a big belly and wears a necklace of jewels. She has long breasts and hair. Her form is fierce and is very powerful. She sits on a jackal (jambuka) and is adorned with divine ornaments. Phetkārī's form, which gives the fruit of all accomplishments, has been described.[2]

---

[1] . . . . dahanīṁ [kh: -nī] kathayāmy aham |
dahanī ca mahātejā vahnijvālāsamaprabhā [kh: -prabhāṁ] ||
trinetrā ca trivaktrā ca ṣaḍbhujā ca mahābalā |
piṅgākṣī piṅgakeśā ca ratnakuṇḍalabhūṣitā [g: pīta-] ||
vaḍamālā [k: varṇa-] śire tasyā varṇahārāvalambinī [g: -hālā-] |
kādyaṁ khaṭvāṁga [k: khaḍgaṁ gadā] pāśaṁ ca vāmenaiva [kh: caiva] virājate ||
nāgaṁ triśūladaṇḍaṁ [k kh: triśūlaṁ-] ca dakṣamārge [g: dakṣi-] virājate |
madhyakṣāmā sutejāḍhyā kiñcillambastanī [g: -stunā] priye [g: vṛtā] ||
sarvalakṣaṇasaṁpūrṇā sarvāvayavaśobhitā |
kaṅkālāsanasaṁsthā [kh: kaṁkālāsanamārūḍhā; g: kaṁkālamāsanasthā] ca dahate sacarācaram ||
dahanyā mūrtir [k g: mūrttim] ākhyātā . . . . | Ibid. 7/322b-327a.

[2] . . . . phetkārīṁ [kh g: -rī] śṛṇu sāṁpratam |
śivāmukhī trinetrā ca śivārāvā [kh g: -rāva] bhayaṅkarī |
dhūmrābhā dhūmravarṇā ca mukuṭakuṇḍalamaṇḍitā |
caturbhujā mahādīptā nānālaṅkāramaṇḍitā |
kādyaṁ piśitakhaṇḍaṁ [kh g: pisita-] ca vāmasthau [k: -stha; kh g: -sthā] vīranāyike |
triśūlaṁ ca tathā daṇḍaṁ dakṣiṇena virājate |
lambodarā bṛhatkukṣī ratnamālāvalambinī [k kh: -pralambinī] |
lambastanī lambakeśī [kh g: laṁvakeśā] raudrarūpā mahābalā [g: -ravā] |
jambuke tu [g: ca] samārūḍhā divyābharaṇamaṇḍitā |
phetkāryā mūrtir ākhyātā [g: rūpamākhyātā] sarvasiddhiphalapradā [g: -siddhyabhayapradā] |
Ibid. 7/327b-331.

Appendix IV

Comparative Chart of the Mālinī Order of the Alphabet

This table has been prepared on the basis of the following sources. 1) KuKh 18/25 ff. 2) ṢSS chapter 7. The data from this source has been tabulated by Schoterman (1982: 216-217). 3) Ṭikā (fl. 142b) 4) MVT (3/37-41a). The latter is Abhinavagupta's source for his presentation in the Tantrāloka (15/121-125a). This deposition is very common in the Kubjikā Tantras. In the ṢSS and KMT alone, it occurs eight times. The Mālinī letters and their corresponding Yoginīs and parts of the body are listed in KRU 5/82-98. The sequential order of this series differs substantially from the others, although the content is largely the same. The last two columns on the right of the following table record the names of the goddesses of the Mālinī letters according to the ŚM. The names listed in the penultimate column are drawn from chapter seven of the ŚM where the goddesses are described as recorded in the previous appendix. The last column contains the names of the goddesses linked to the Bhairavas of the letters of the Assembly of Sounds described in chapter twenty-four recorded in appendix VI below.

16. Comparative Chart of the Mālinī Alphabet

KuKh ṢSS Ṭīkā	Goddess KuKh ṢSS Ṭīkā	Location KuKh. ṢSS and Ṭ	MVT	Goddess MVT	Location MVT	ŚM 7	ŚM 24
Na	Nādinī	Crest	Na	Nādinī	Crest	Nādinī	Nādinī
Tha	Grāsinī	Head	Ṛ	Nivṛtti	Head-band	Grāsinī	Nivṛtti
Ṛ	Nivṛtti	Head-band	Ṝ	Pratiṣṭhā	Head-band	Nivṛtti	Pratiṣṭhā
Ṝ	Pratiṣṭhikā	Head-band	ḷ	Vidyā	Head-band	Pratiṣṭhikā	Vidyāśakti
ḷ	Vidyā	Head-band	Ḷ	Śāntā	Head-band	Vidyā	Śāntiśakti
Ḷ	Śānti	Head-band	Tha	Satī (Umā)	Head	Śānti	Grasanīśakti
Ca	Cāmuṇḍā Ṭ: Caṇḍā	Third Eye	Ca	Priya-darśanī	Eye	Cāmuṇḍā	Cāmuṇḍā
Dha	Priyadarśanī	Eyes	Dha	Guhyaśakti	Eye	Priyadarśanī	Priyadarśanī

KuKh ṢSS Ṭīkā	Goddess KuKh ṢSS Ṭīkā	Location KuKh. ṢSS and Ṭ	MVT	Goddess MVT	Location MVT	ŚM 7	ŚM 24
Ṇ ṢSS: Ī Ṭ: ?	Nārāyaṇī ṢSS: Guhyaśakti KRU Ṭ: ?	Ears ṢSS: Nose Ṭ: ?	Ī	Cāmuṇḍā	Nose	Guhyaśakti	Nārāyaṇī
U ṢSS and Ṭ: Ṇa	Mohanyā ṢSS and Ṭ: Nārāyaṇī	Earring ṢSS: ears	Ṇa	Vajriṇī	Ears	Nārāyaṇī	Mohanīśakti
Ū ṢSS and Ṭ: U	Prajñā ṢSS: Mohanī	Earring ṢSS and Ṭ: Right earring	U	Kaṅkaṭā	Earring	Mohanī	Prajñāśakti
Ī[1] ṢSS and Ṭ: Ū	Gandhaśakti ṢSS and Ṭ: Prajñā	Nose ṢSS and Ṭ: Left earring	Ū	Kālikā	Earring	Prajñā	Guhyaśakti
Ba	Vajriṇyā	Mouth	Ba	Śivā	Mouth	Vajriṇī	Vajriṇīśakti
Ka	Kaṅkaṭā ṢSS and Ṭ: Karālinyā	Teeth ṢSS: Lower right teeth	Ka	Ghoraghoṣā	Teeth	Kaṅkaṭā	Karālīśakti
Kha	Kālikā ṢSS and Ṭ: Kapālinyā	Teeth ṢSS: Lower left teeth	Kha	Śivirā	Teeth	Kālikā	Kapālīśakti
Ga	Śivā	Teeth ṢSS: Upper right teeth	Ga	Māyādevī	Teeth	Śivā	?
Gha	Ghoraghoṣā	Teeth ṢSS: Upper left teeth	Gha	Vāgīśvarī	Teeth	Ghorā	Ghoraghoṣā

---

[1] The texts also often link the letter Ī with Sarasvatī.

KuKh ṢSS Ṭīkā	Goddess KuKh ṢSS Ṭīkā	Location KuKh. ṢSS and Ṭ	MVT	Goddess MVT	Location MVT	ŚM 7	ŚM 24
Ṅa	Vicitrā ṢSS: Khirvarā Ṭ: Vīrā	Teeth ṢSS: Front teeth	Ṅa	Nārāyaṇī	Teeth	Cchirvarā	Cirvarāśakti
I	Ajayā ṢSS and Ṭ: Māyā	Tongue	I	Mohanī	Tongue	Vāgīśīśakti	Vāgīśīśakti
A	Vāgeśvarī	Speech	A	Prajñā	Speech	Sarasvatī	Ghoraghoṣā
Va	Śikhivāhī	Throat	Va	Śikhivāhinī	Throat	Śikhivāhī	Vīraśakti
Bha	Bhīṣaṇā ṢSS: Bhīmā Ṭ: Bhīṣaṇī	Shoulder ṢSS and Ṭ: Right shoulder	Bha	Lāmā	Right shoulder	Bhīmā	Bhīṣaṇīśakti
Ya	Vāyuvegikā	Shoulder ṢSS and Ṭ: left shoulder	Ya	Vināyakī	Left shoulder	Vāyuvegā	Vāyuvegā
Ḍha	Sulāmā ṢSS and Ṭ: Lāmā	Arm ṢSS and Ṭ: right arm	Ḍa	Pūrṇimā	Arm	Lāmā	Lāmāśakti
Ḍa	Vināyakī	Arm ṢSS and Ṭ Left arm	Ḍha	Jhaṅkārī	Arm	Vināyakī	Vināyakīśakti
Ṭha	Pūrṇimā	Palms Ṭ: Two hands	Ṭha	Kundanā	Two hands	Pūrṇimā	Pūrṇāśakti
Ḥ ṢSS and Ṭ: Jha	Icchāśakti ṢSS and Ṭ: Jhañkārī	Back of the hands ṢSS: Fingers of the right hand Ṭ: Nails of the right hand	Jha	Kāpālinī	Nails	Jhañkārī	Jhañkārī

KuKh ṢSS Ṭīkā	Goddess KuKh ṢSS Ṭīkā	Location KuKh. ṢSS and Ṭ	MVT	Goddess MVT	Location MVT	ŚM 7	ŚM 24
JH ṢSS and Ṭ: Ña	Sakāyā ṢSS and Ṭ : Kurdanī	Tips of the nails of the hand ṢSS: Fingers of the left hand T: Nails of the left hand	Ña	Dīpanī	Nails	Kurdanī	Kurdanī
Ñ ṢSS: Ḥ Ṭ: ?	Raktā ṢSS and Ṭ: Saṁjīvanī	Tips of the nails of the hand ṢSS and Ṭ: Back of the hand	Ja	Jayantī	Trident	Dīpanī	Icchāśakti
Ṭa Ṭ: ?	Kāpalinī Ṭ: ?	Skull ṢSS: skull in left hand Ṭ: ?	Ra	Bhīṣaṇī	Trident	Jayantī	Kapālīśaśakti
Ra	Nandinī ṢSS and Ṭ: Dīpanyā	Bottom of Shaft of the Trident in the right hand	Ṭa	Vāyuvegā	Skull	Kapālinī	?
Ja	Jayantī ṢSS and Ṭ: Jayantyā	Upper part of the Trident ṢSS: Points of the Trident	Pa	Pāvanī	Heart	Pāvanī	Jayantī
Pa	Padminī ṢSS: Pāvanyā	Heart	Cha	Lambikā	Breast	Icchāśakti .	Pāvanī .

KuKh ṢSS Ṭīkā	Goddess KuKh ṢSS Ṭīkā	Location KuKh. ṢSS and Ṭ	MVT	Goddess MVT	Location MVT	ŚM 7	ŚM 24
Sa Ṭ: Ha	Parajā ṢSS and Ṭ: Ambikā	Self Ṭ: Breath	La	Saṁhārikā	Breast	Ambikā	Parāśakti
Ha Ṭ: Ḥ	Ambikā Ṭ: Icchā	Breath Ṭ: Intellect	Ṇa	Chagalī	Milk	(Paramātmā)	Ambikā
Cha[1]	Chagalā Ṭ: Cchagalaṇḍī	Right breast	Sa	Pūtanā	Jīva	(Chagalī)	Chagalī
La	Pūtanā	Left breast	Ḥ	Moṭarī	Jīva[2]	Pūtanā	Pūtanā
Ṇa	Amoṭī	Milk	Ha	Paramātmā	Prāṇa	Amoṭī	Amoṭī
Ṣa	Lambakodarī	Belly	Ṣa	Ambikā	Belly	Lambikā	Lambikā
KṢa	Saṁhārī	Navel	KṢa	Icchāśakti	Navel	Saṁhārī	Saṁhārī
Ma	Mahākālī	Buttocks	Ma	Mahākālī	Buttocks	Mahākālī	Mahākālī
Śa	Kusumāyudhā	Genitals	Śa	Kusumāyudhā	Genitals	Kusumā	Kusumāyudhā
Ṁ	Guhyaśakti ṢSS: Krūrā Ṭ: Śukrā	Sexual fluid	Ṁ	Śukrā	Thighs	Śukrā Devī	Śukrāśakti
Ta	Tārākṣī ṢSS and Ṭ: Tārā	Thighs	Ta	Tārā	Thigh	Tārā	Tārāśakti
E	Jñānaśakti Ṭ: Jñānī	Knee ṢSS and Ṭ: Right knee	E	Jñāna	Knee	Jñānī	Jñānīśakti
AI	Kriyāśakti	Knee ṢSS and Ṭ: Left knee	AI	Kriyā	Knee	Kriyāśakti	Kriyāśakti

---

[1] The letter CH is also commonly associated with Chikkarī or Chivarā.

[2] The letter SA is the jīva conjoined with visarga. After that it is said (comes) the vital breath.

sa jīvo visargayuk tatparaḥ kathitaḥ prāṇaḥ | MVT 3/39d-40a

KuKh ṢSS Ṭīkā	Goddess KuKh ṢSS Ṭīkā	Location KuKh. ṢSS and Ṭ	MVT	Goddess MVT	Location MVT	ŚM 7	ŚM 24
O	Gāyatrī	Right shank	O	Gāyatrī	Shank	Gāyatrī	Gāyatrī
AU	Sāvitrī	Left shank	AU	Sāvitrī	Shank	Sāvitrī	Sāvitrī
Da	Dahanī	Foot ṢSS and Ṭ: Right foot	Da	Dahanī	Foot	Dahanī	Dahanī
Pha	Phetkārikā	Foot ṢSS and Ṭ: Left foot	Pha	Phetkārikā	Foot	Phetkārī	Phetkārikā

Appendix V

The Assembly of Sounds

The Production of the Assembly of Sounds from the Meruprastāra

The following passage concerning the Assemby of Sounds is drawn from chapter five of the Ambāmatasaṁhitā. It follows directly after the one concerning Mālinī translated in appendix II. It begins by explaining how the Assembly of Sounds is generated. The first thing to do is to 'lay out',[1] that is, draw the grid (prastāra) in a solitary place on clean, level ground, smeared with liquor and sandalwood. He also draws the standing figure of the 'best of men' thirty-six finger spans in length. He has three eyes, long ears and his hands hang freely. This is Śrīkaṇṭha, the Rudra who presides over the first letter and is the leader of the others. The officiant should offer a libation of liquor (vīradravya) to the image (bimba) as he utters the Five Praṇavas (pañcārṇa). Then he should worship the chalk (khaṭikā) with which he drew it and utters the letters serially one by one along with the names of the sacred sites in which they are located. Then he marks his forehead with a tilaka and puts betel in his mouth. His eyes are coloured with collyrium and he places his consort (śakti) on his left. Adorned in this way, the teacher imparts the teaching at one with Śiva and Śakti.

The fifty letters are then extracted from the Meruprastāra and projected into the image of the body of Śrīkaṇṭha. Extracting the fifty letters again from the Meruprastāra, they officiant should project them in serial order onto his own body. In this way, the text says, the letters that constitute Śrīkaṇṭha's Kula are placed in the field of Akula. The AS continues:

> These fifty (letters) have (thus) come forth from the front of the venerable seat (śrīpīṭha) (of the Meruprastāra). By means of them the body (piṇḍa) is made into a single organic unit (piṁḍīkṛta) and it is that which develops (vikāsaka) the body (of sonic energies).[2] The Person (puruṣa) who is the vessel (that contains them) is established beyond Nature. His form is the unbroken circle (of the Point) by which (the universe) is pervaded without a break. He is a certain (inscrutable) one who, terrible (raudra), is radiant energy (tejas) and is adorned with the light of Śakti. He is the circle of the

---

[1] The verb here is 'prastāryate', which literally means 'is spread out'. The grid – prastāra – from which the letters are extracted is thus something that has been 'extended', 'spread out' or 'laid out'.

[2] Cf. KuKh 2/34cd-35ab.

> Full Moon pervaded by the sixteen energies (kalā) (of the lunar vowels). One should know that he is the Person who abides (equally without change in both) bondage and liberation. In this way, (O god) your Assembly of Sounds (śabdarāśi) abides with (these) sixteen divisions. The one word (śabda) has been explained. Imperishable Śiva is beyond words. Thus the division of the letters is (present) there within the divisions and subdivisions.[1]

Each letter is uttered along with each of the sixteen vowels and so each of the letters of the Assembly of Sounds has 'sixteen divisions'. In this way the letters participate in the liberated, energized condition of the Self, that is, 'Imperishable Śiva' who is 'beyond words'. As is done with the letters of the Mālinī alphabet, the seed-syllables of the Three Principles are added to the aggregate of each letter. The AS goes on to describe how the energies of the letters conjoined to the syllables and vowels are progressively elevated into the Śiva. The mind of the adept, united with the first syllable that goes on to develop into the second and that into the third and so on, is thus elevated and transformed along with the energies of the letters. In this way he participates in the union of Śiva – the 'imperishable' (akṣara) 'letter' (akṣara) – and Śakti who is the totality of all the energies and the ultimate nature of each one. This takes place in two stages. First all the energies of the letters are united in the Void of the 'City of Śiva'. This is located in the glottis – lambaka – of the subtle body. All articulated sounds originate from the glottis of the physical body, which thus contains them in a potential form. Analogously, the Void of the glottis of the subtle body contains the pleroma of the energies of the Assembly of Sounds. Once all the energies of the letters have been replaced, one by one, into this original Emptiness they are merged into the universal energy of the goddess in her original most basic form as the cosmogonic will. Flowing downwards from the uppermost Void of pure transcendence it differentiates into the energies of the letters through which the World of Speech (vāṅmayajagat) is created. Flowing back up it merges into the Emptiness from which it emerged. Thus the AS continues:

---

[1] śrīpīṭhasya tadagre hi [vacāgresī] pañcāśat te vinirgatāḥ |
ebhiḥ piṇḍīkṛtaṁ piṇḍaṁ ādau [pādau] piṇḍavikāsakam ||
yo 'sau puruṣa tatpātraṁ prakṛtyante vyavasthitam |
akhaṇḍamaṇḍalākāraṁ vyāptaṁ yena nirantaram ||
kiñcit tejomayaṁ raudraṁ śaktibhāsamalaṁkṛtam |
kalāṣoḍaśabhir vyāptaṁ saṁpūrṇacandramaṇḍalam [apūrṇaṁ-] ||
puruṣaḥ sa [sā] tu vijñeyaḥ [-yā] saṁsthito bandhamokṣayoḥ |
evaṁ te ṣoḍaśair bhedaiḥ saṁsthitaṁ [-tā] śabdarāśikam [-śivaṁ] ||
śabdam ekaṁ samākhyātaṁ śabdātītaḥ [-te] śivo 'vyayaḥ |
bhedopabhedayos tatra varṇānāṁ bhedanaṁ tataḥ || AS 5/154-158.

Having placed the mind (manas) within the Principle of the Self and what is born of the mind within the body (deha) of the Vidyā (Principle), the Vidyā (Principle) of Śiva arises there within the City of Śiva. This knowledge is beyond the letters. It is above, in the sphere (maṇḍala) of Lambaka (the glottis). Once one has penetrated through the sequence of the Assembly of Sounds, one should move up again above that with the fifty (letters) and (their) eight classes into the uppermost Void (vyomamaṇḍala) along with the (absolute) will (icchā), which is the energy Mālinī who resides within the triple world.[1]

That is Śiva, the Assembly of Sounds whose beautiful form (is made of the) letters beginning with A. O Lord, Śakti deploys (saṁstārayet) each individual letter (compounding them) until the letters in the garland of letters number fifty billion. In this way the letters begin with Śrīkaṇṭha (A) and end with Saṁvarta (KṢ). They are said to be fifty within the Krama and they pervade the entire universe. O most excellent of the gods! All of them reside in the middle of Śakti and should be known.[2]

The reciter of mantra, who accomplishes both visible and invisible (works), is not without them. Each letter, beginning with Śrīkaṇṭha (A) should be uttered separately and then (the utterance) should be completed with the principles of the sixteen energies (of the vowels by reciting each letter with each one of them). Those letters attain complete (pūrṇa) (perfection) to the degree in which (they are in an) imperishable (akṣara) (state of) union (saṁyoga) (with the supreme principle). One should contemplate everything, that is, the divine sacred seats and the rest, by means of Śakti in every way. Thus all other mantras (vācaka) are (also) energized (pradīpta). Their energizer (saṁdīpana), extracted in each part (of a

---

[1] ātmatattve [-tatva] manaṁ kṛtvā vidyādehe manodbhavam |
vidyā śivapure [-pūre] tatra utpatyate [utpatyante] śivasya ca ||
varṇātītam idaṁ jñānam ūrdhve [ūrddha] lambakamaṇḍale |
śabdarāśikramaṁ bhitvā tata ūrdhvaṁ vrajet punaḥ ||
pañcāśais tu ca vargāṣṭair [citaṣṭaistu] ūrdhvordhvavyomamaṇḍale [rurdhvordhva-] |
icchayā mālinīśaktiḥ saṁsthitā yā jagattraye || Ibid. 5/159-161.

[2] sa śivaḥ [śiva] śabdarāśis tu [-rāsistu] akārādisuvigrahaḥ [-havigrahaḥ] |
ekaikaṁ tu yathā varṇaṁ śaktiḥ [śakti] saṁstārayet [sas-] prabho ||
svaramālāgatā varṇā yāvat pañcāśakoṭayaḥ |
śrīkaṇṭhādi tathā varṇāḥ saṁvartāntāvasānagāḥ [sacaṁrttāntā-] ||
pañcāśac ca [-śaś ca] krame proktā yair vyāptam akhilaṁ [ye-] jagat |
sarve te śaktimadhyasthā jñātavyās tu surottama [-maḥ] || AS 5/162-164.

> mantra), is the Command.[1]
>
> One who is established in his own nature (svabhāvastha) is not conscious of (the lower) state of meditation (dhāraṇā) (based on) words. He is not established in letter (varṇastha), or in mantra nor does he possess (any of the) limbs of ritual. Residing between the Wind (of the vital breath) and the Fire (of Śakti), he abides as does the Unnameable (Absolute). One should contemplate (the plane of being) where the Self, Śakti and Śiva is all this (manifest reality) in a state of vibrant union (lolībhūta) and form radiant energy that has dissolved away into the abode of Śakti. It shines with its radiant (sphurat) rays and is brilliant like ten million lightning bolts. (Thus) one whose purpose is (to attain) liberation wonder (freely in the domains of) Dharma, Artha, Kāma and liberation.
>
> All that has emerged from within the fifty (letters) beginning with the letter A are said to be the Rudras, the sacred seats and the deities in the Mālinīkula. Said to be the Heroes and Bhairavas, they are, undoubtly, Siddhas. It is due to this that (one achieves) success (siddhi) and realisation on the sacred days of accomplishment (siddhaparva). The pure deposition (of the Assembly of Sounds) established in the Krama is considered to be the essential nature (svarūpa) (of all things).[2]

The AS goes on to explain how the letters are deposited in the eight phonetic groups (varga) into which the alphabet is normally divided. Each of these classes of letters is the domain of one of the Eight Mothers who are projected into the body along with the letters. In union with their Bhairavas, they are the immediate sources of the letters that are thus differentiated into eight groups. As such they are the major aspects of the one energy and serve as intermediaries between it and the individual energies of the letters that emanate from them and are deployed in the body and the universe of Speech in association with them. Thus the AS continues:

---

[1] na tair vinā ca vai [tair] mantrī dṛṣṭādṛṣṭasya [-astu] sādhakaḥ |
ekaikaṁ varṇam uccāryaṁ [-rya] śrīkaṇṭhādi [śrīkhaṁḍādi-] vibhāgaśaḥ ||
kalāṣoḍaśatattvaiś [-tatve] ca vinivartyaṁ [-vartya] ataḥ param |
te [ye] varṇāḥ [varṇāt] pūrṇāḥ [pūrṇa] siddhyante yāvat saṁyogam akṣaram || bhāvayet [-ye] śaktinā sarvaṁ divyapīṭhādi sarvaśaḥ |
tasmāt pradīptā [-dīptaṁ] bhavanti [bhavati] śeṣānye vācakāś ca ye ||
teṣāṁ saṁdīpanam [saṁdiptam ity] ājñā uddhṛtaṁ tu pade pade | Ibid. 5/165-168ab.

[2] na śabdadhāraṇāvasthaṁ [śabdaṁ-] svabhāvasthena buddhyate || na varṇastho na mantrastho na kriyāṅgasamanvitaḥ |
anilānalamadhyastha [anilānila-] ity anākhyam [urākhyam] iva sthitaḥ ||
ātmaśaktiśivaṁ [-vo] yatra tejorūpaṁ vicintayet |
lolībhūtam idaṁ sarvaṁ śaktisthāne layaṁ gatam ||
sphuratkiraṇasaṁkāśaṁ taḍitkoṭisamaprabham |
vicaren mokṣahetuś ca dharmārthakāmamokṣeṣu [-rthaṁ kāmamokṣayayoḥ] ||
akārādiṣu yat sarvaṁ pañcāśeṣu [-seṣu] vinirgatam |
te rudrās te smṛtāḥ [-tā] pīṭhā devās te mālinīkule ||
bhairavās te smṛtā vīrās te siddhā nātra saṁśayaḥ |
*tenāpi * * * siddhiḥ [siddhi] siddhaparveṣu niścayam* ||
svarūpaṁ śuddhavinyāsaṁ [-yaṁ] mataṁ [matā] ca kramasaṁsthitam | Ibid. 5/168cd-174ab.

> There are eight classes (of letters). The source (yoni) of the classes (of letters) is always present in one's own body. Beginning with the feet up to the entirety (of the letters), it is present in (all) living beings. The source of the class (of letters), that begin with Ananta and end with Śiva, has been brought down (into the world and the body). That is said to be the sequence of the aggregate (of letters) that, eightfold, is present in the body. On the forehead, the throat, the triangular maṇḍala, along with the right and left eyes, the right and left ears, in the same way in the two nostrils, navel, right and left cheeks, and in the calyx (of the lotus) within the cavity of the mouth. The (first) lord of the class of letters, as brilliant as millions of moons, is in the root of that (lotus). He is called Vidyārāja and is present within the billions (of mantras). Endowed with the sixteen vowels, he is the great king Bhairava. Accompanied by Mahālakṣmī he is the first Lord of the classes of letters.[1]
>
> Another is on the back of the shoulder and on the elbow of the arms, the wrist, hands, middle and back of the hands, the fingers – one should place the class of gutturals there up to the end of the nails. (It is) on the right. It is called the class of Agni and one should think its form to be radiant energy. Placing it under the authority of Brahmaṇī, it

---

[1] varga – aṣṭau vargayoniḥ [-ni] svadehe nityasaṁsthitā ||
pādādārabhya sakalaṁ yāvan martyeṣu saṁsthitam [-tā] |
anantādiśivāntaṁ tu vargayonyavatāritam [vargayogyāvatāritaṁ] ||
sa ca rāśikramaḥ śastaḥ [sastor] aṣṭadhā dehamāśritaḥ [-taṁ] |
lalāṭe kaṇṭhadeśe ca maṇḍale ca trikoṇake ||
dakṣiṇottaranetrābhyāṁ dakṣiṇottarakarṇayoḥ |
evaṁ nāsāpuṭe nābhau dakṣiṇottaragaṇḍayoḥ ||
vaktrarandhre karṇikāyāṁ tanmūle varganāyakam |
prathamaṁ tu samākhyātaṁ candrakoṭisamaprabham ||
vidyārāja iti khyātaṁ lakṣakoṭyantanihitam [-koṭyāntaniścayam] |
ṣoḍaśasvarasaṁyuktaṁ (-nirmuktaṁ) mahābhairavarājakam ||
mahālakṣmīsamāyuktaṁ prathamaṁ varganāyakam | AS 5/174cd-180ab.

should be known to be the second one. In the same way, the third lord of the classes of letters is that of the cerebrals and is on the left. He is said to be the face of Kāla and one should think that he is black. He is the third Lord of the classess of letters and is presided over by Maheśvarī.[1]

The right ankle, the thighs, the shanks and knees, the soles of the feet, the back (of the feet) and the nails of the toes – the class of cerebrals, that brings fear to the demons, is said (to be in these places). It is associated with Kaumārī. Placing it fivefold above that and on the left, in due order, the fifth lord of the classes of letters (is formed).

(The Lord of the next class of letters) is said to be yellow and, supreme, he is accompanied by Vaiṣṇavī.

One should know that the sixth is the group of labials and its lustre is blue. It is in the skin, in the midst of all the limbs and in the blood in all the limbs.[2]

Deposit the god (of the next group) along with Vārāhī in the sinews of all the body. (This is) the group of semi-vowels, which is said to be the seventh. Here it is said to be the face of the Moon. It is said to be white and is adorned with Indrāṇī. O pervasive Lord, deposit it in the bones of all the limbs collectively.

The excellent Point is pure, stainless (white like) snow, jasmine and the moon. During a battle and child birth one should deposit it in this way within Suṣumṇā in the breath, in the the sixteen letters, and in the joints.

---

[1] aparaḥ skandhapṛṣṭhe tu tathaiva bāhukūrpare ||
maṇibandhe karau madhye karapṛṣṭhe karāṅgulī |
nakhāntaṁ yāvad [yāva] dātavyaṁ kavargaṁ dakṣiṇe sthitam ||
agnivargaṁ samākhyātaṁ tejorūpaṁ vicintayet |
brahmaṇyādhiṣṭhitaṁ kṛtvā jñātavyaṁ tu dvitīyakam ||
evaṁ vāme cavargaṁ tu tṛtīyaṁ varganāyakam |
kālavaktram idaṁ śastaṁ [sasto] kṛṣṇavarṇaṁ vicintayet ||
adhiṣṭhitaṁ maheśvaryā tṛtīyaṁ varganāyakam | Ibid. 5/180cd-184ab.

[2] *sphije dakṣiṇe ūru ca ū * re jānujaṅghayoḥ* ||
tathā pādatale pṛṣṭhe pādāṅgulinakheṣu ca |
ṭavargaṁ nāma [nāmam] ity uktam asurāṇāṁ bhayaṅkaram ||
kaumārīsahitaṁ cātra tadordhve [navarddhā?] cottare [cettare] tathā |
krameṇa pañcadhā sthāpya pañcamaṁ varganāyakam [varamānanaṁ] ||
pītavarṇaṁ samākhyātaṁ vaiṣṇavyā sahitaṁ param |
ṣaṣṭhaṁ pavargaṁ [--varga] vijñeyaṁ nīlavarṇaṁ tathā prabham ||
tvaci sarvāṅgamadhye tu tathā sarvāṅgaśoṇite | Ibid. 5/184cd-188ab.

One should deposit (the groups of letters), beginning from the lower door up to the end of the Topknot. In this way, one delights within the Wind in the body of the vital breath. The group of sibillants, stainless like pure crystal, is said to be the eighth. Very full and conjoined with emanation (it is present) in the same way in the middle of the Liṅga.

It is called Īśāna's mouth and is attended by gods and Gandharvas. His (consort), the goddess Īśvarī, is the mistress of Kula. Bhairava's Yoni made of the eight classes (of letters) is very special, as is his group of eight that is extracted by the Path of Kula. In the same way, the secret group of eight faces is this eightfold field (kṣetra).[1]

---

[1] vārāhīsahitaṁ devaṁ [deva] nyaset sarvāṅgasnāyuṣu ||
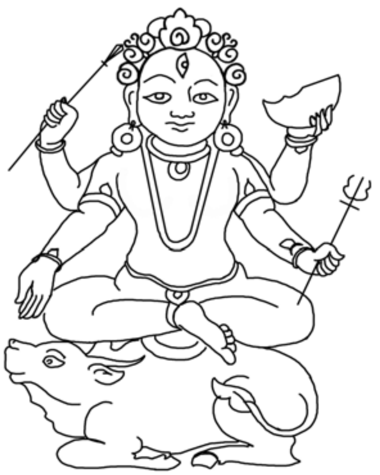
yavargaṁ saptamaṁ proktaṁ somānanam ihocyate |
śvetarūpaṁ samākhyātaṁ indrāṇyā samalaṁkṛtam ||
asthiṣu sarva – aṅgeṣu nyaset sarvātmanā vibho |
binduvaraṁ [-varṇaṁ] bhavec chuddhaṁ himakundendunirmalam ||
evaṁ taṁ ca suṣumnāyāṁ [suṣumnāni] saṁgrāmasūtikālayoḥ [saṁgrāme tu kālayoḥ] |
prāṇe ṣoḍaśavarṇeṣu sandhisthāneṣu vinyaset ||
adhodvārāt samārabhya śikhāntaṁ yāvad [yāva] vinyaset |
tāvat prāṇātmake dehe vāyunā saha modate ||
tathaiva liṅgamadhye tu supūrṇaṁ [kūpūrṇaṁ] sṛṣṭisaṁyutam |
savargam aṣṭamaṁ proktaṁ śuddhasphaṭikanirmalam ||
īśānavaktram ākhyātaṁ devagandharvasevitam |
tasya sā īśvarī devī vargasya kulanāyikā ||
aṣṭavargātmikā yonir (yoni) bhairavasya viśiṣyate |
tathā ca sāṣṭakaṁ tasya kulamārgeṇa uddhṛtam ||
tathā vaktrāṣṭakaṁ guhyaṁ kṣetram idaṁ [kṣatedaṁ] tu aṣṭadhā | Ibid. 5/188cd-196ab.

Appendix VI

The Fifty Bhairavas of the Assembly of Sound

The following visualized forms of the fifty Rudras (rudrapañcāśaka) (also called Bhairavas and Siddhas) who govern the letters that constitute the body of Śabdarāśibhairava are drawn from chapter twenty-four of the Śrīmatottara. They are listed in the normal forward order. Each of them is coupled with a corresponding goddess of the Mālinī alphabet. They are coupled in serial order, not according to the letters. Thus, for example, the first Rudra – A – is coupled with the first Śakti of the Mālinī series who governs the letter Na.

Note that while the goddess of the letters of the Mālinī alphabet are alone, the Bhaiarvas are not just in the company of their consorts, they are intensely engaged in intercourse with them. The bliss one Bhairava experiences makes him powerful (krīḍānandabalotkata).[1] Another is pleasingly distraught by it (suvihvala).[2] Another's eyes are disturbed with bliss.[3]



1) Śrīkaṇṭha (A) – (Śrīkaṇṭha) is white like jasmine and the moon. He has three eyes and four arms. He has matted hair and, divine, is adorned with divine earrings. With the left (hands he holds) a skull and trident, with the right (hands) he makes a boon-bestowing gesture and (holds) a spear. He is adorned with many ornaments. He is complete in all (his) limbs and marked with all the (auspicious) marks. Nādinīśakti (Na) is on his left and her eyes are full of the bliss of (love) sport. Very powerful he sits radiant on a bull. The form of Śrīkaṇṭha bestows boons to the adept.[4]

---

[1] ŚM 24/97.

[2] Ibid. 24/101.

[3] Ibid. 24/109.

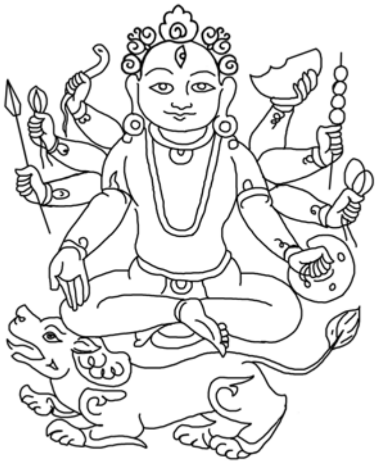
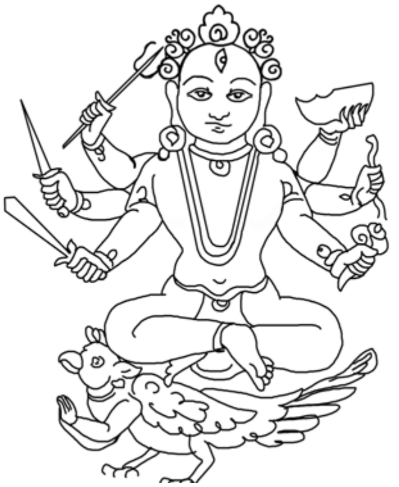
[4] sitaṁ kundendusaṁkāśaṁ [kh: śita-; g: -kuṁdedu-] trinetraṁ ca caturbhujam || jaṭājūṭadharaṁ divyaṁ divyakuṇḍalamaṇḍitam |
kādyaṁ triśūlaṁ [g: triśūla] vāmena varadaṁ śūlaṁ [kh: śūla; g: sūtra] dakṣiṇe ||
nānālaṁkārasaṁyuktaṁ [g: -saṁyuktā] nānābharaṇamaṇḍitam [g: -tāṁ] |
sarvāvayavasaṁpūrṇaṁ [g: saṁpūrṇā] sarvalakṣaṇalakṣitam [g: -tāṁ] ||
nādinīśaktir vāmasthā krīḍānandākulekṣaṇā [kh: -nandakuleśā] |
vṛṣabhāsanam ārūḍhaṁ dīpyamānaṁ [kh: dīvyamānaṁ] mahaujasam ||
mūrtiḥ [kh: mūrtti; g: sūttiḥ] śrīkaṇṭhanāthasya sādhakāya varapradā | ŚM 24/6cd-10ab.



2) Ananta (Ā) – (Ananta) is (red) like the colour of a bandhūka flower and is radiant (like) the dawning sun. The god has three eyes, eight arms and is illumined by (his) divine earrings. He is adorned with a beautiful diadem and many ornaments. In the left (hands are) a skull, ascetic's staff, noose and shield (kheṭaka). On the right he makes a boon-bestowing gesture (and holds) a spear, thread and the king of snakes. He is illumined by many ornaments and is beautiful in all (his) limbs. He wears a snake as a necklace and smiles slightly. He is in the company of Nivṛtti (Ṛ)[1] who sits on his left (thigh). He is mounted on the back of a lion. He shines with beautiful radiant energy. This is the form (mūrti) of Ananta, which is in the circle of the face.[2]



3) Sūkṣmīśa (I) – (Sūkṣmīśa) is the red colour of musk and has the lustre of heated gold. He has three eyes and six arms and, divine, is adorned with pearl earrings. (His) crown shines with gems and a garland hangs from his neck. (His) left hands are adorned with a skull, thread and conch. A trident, knife and sword are on the right. He has many ornaments and is adorned with a necklace of gems. His chest is wide and has red anklets. (His) left hands are adorned with a skull, thread and conch. A trident, knife and sword are in the right. He has many` ornaments and is adorned with a necklace of gems. His chest is broad and he wears red anklets. The goddess is on his left and her form is mad with (the passion of) youth. She is the goddess called Pratiṣṭhā (Ṝ) and she sits next to him. Sūkṣmīśabhairava is full of the bliss of (love) sport. He is mounted on Vinata and is brilliant like a cage of lightning.[1]

---

[1] Grasanī, who governs the letter Tha, normally follows Nādinī. Here she appears as further ahead as the consort of Arhgīśa, the sixth Bhairava.

[2] bandhūkapuṣpavarṇabhaṁ [g: -varṇabha] udayādityavarcasam ||
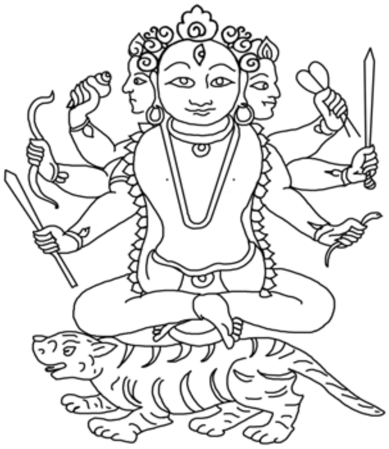
tryakṣaṁ [g: trikṣaṁ] cāṣṭabhujaṁ devaṁ divyakuṇḍaladīpitam |
mukuṭena vicitreṇa [g: vicitrena] nānābharaṇamaṇḍitam ||
kādyaṁ khaṭvāṅgapāśaṁ ca kheṭakaṁ vāmamāśritam |
varadaṁ śūlasūtraṁ [g: sūtraśūlaṁ] ca nāgarājā [k: -rājaṁ] ca dakṣiṇe ||
nānālaṅkārasaṁdīptaṁ sarvāvayavaśobhitam |
nāgahārakṛtāṭopam īṣatprahasitānanam ||
nivṛttyā [g: nivṛtyā] saha saṁyuktaṁ vāmāṅgotsaṁgagāminī |
siṁhapṛṣṭhāsanārūḍhaṁ [g: -vṛṣṭasanārūḍhaṁ] dīpyamānaṁ sutejasam ||
anantasya iyaṁ [kh g: imā] mūrtiḥ [kh: mūrttim; g: mūrtti] mukhamaṇḍalasaṁsthitā [k: -tam] |
Ibid. 24/10cd-15ab.



4) Trimūrti (Ī) – (Trimūrti) has three faces and six arms. He is fierce and brilliant like the Fire of Time. He is illumined by the beautiful diadem of the Half Moon. He is adorned with a necklace of skulls and (his) ears are adorned with seals. (His) weapons shine – a noose, sword, thread, conch, bow and pestle – hard to bear, they are like licking tongues (of the flames of the fire of universal) destruction (lelihāna). He is replete with every (auspicious) mark and is beautiful in all (his) limbs. He sports united with Vidyāśakti (Ḷ) and his radiant energy is beautiful. Trimūrti Bhairava gives every accomplishment. He is mounted on a tiger, as if devouring the moving and immobile (universe).[2]

---

[1] rocanāruṇavarṇābhaṁ taptacāmīkaraprabham [g: -prabhāṁ] ||
trinetraṁ ṣaḍbhujaṁ [k: khaḍgajaṁ] divyaṁ hārakuṇḍalamaṇḍitam |
kirīṭiratnakhacitaṁ [k: kirīṭa- -khacitā] kaṇṭhe [g: kaṇṭha] mālā pralambitā ||
kādyaṁ sūtraṁ tathā kambu [k kh g: kaṁvuṁ] vāmasthāḥ [kh g: -sthā] karadīpitāḥ [k: dīpitam; g: -tā] |
triśūlaṁ kartarī khaḍgaṁ dakṣiṇe ca [k kh g: na] virājante [k kh g: -jate] ||
nānālaṅkārasaṁyuktaṁ ratnamālāvibhūṣitam |
bṛhadvakṣasthalābhogaṁ [g: -sthalāṁ-] nūpurāruṇadarpitam [kh: ranannūpura-; g: -vigrahaṁ] ||
vāmabhāge [k: -bhāga] sthitā devī yauvanomattavigrahā [k kh: -nmatta-] |
pratiṣṭhā [k kh g: pratiṣṭā] nāma sā devī tiṣṭhaty utsaṅgagāminī [g: -stvaphaṁdagāminī] ||
sūkṣmīśaṁ [kh: śūkṣmīśaṁ] bhairavaṁ nāma krīḍānandaikanirbharam |
vinatāsanam ārūḍhaṁ [g: ārūḍhāṁ] vidyutpuñjasamaprabham || Ibid. 24/15cd-20.

[2] trivaktraṁ ṣaḍbhujaṁ [g: + vaktraṁ] raudraṁ kālānalasamaprabham | mukuṭena vicitreṇa ardhacandreṇa dīpitam ||
kapālamālābharaṇaṁ karṇau [kh: karṇo] mudrāvibhūṣitau | pāśaṁ khaḍgaṁ tathā sūtraṁ [kh: sutraṁ] kambu cāpaṁ samudgaram || *dīpyamānāni [kh g: -mānā ] cāstrāṇi [kh: mahāstrāṇi; g: mahāsthāne] lelihānāḥ [k g: -nā] suduḥsahāḥ [kh: dussahā; g: dāruṇāḥ] |
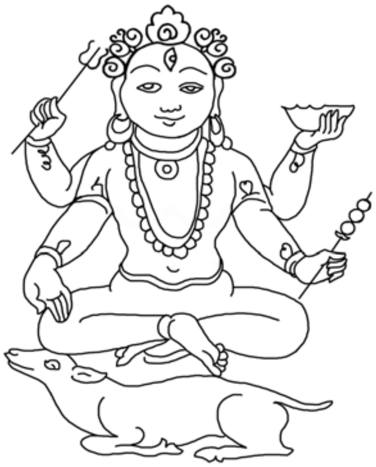
sarvalakṣaṇasaṁpūrṇaṁ [g: -saṁpūrṇā] sarvāvayavaśobhitam ||
vidyāśaktisamāyuktaṁ [kh: -śaktiḥ-; k kh: samoyaṁtaṁ] krīḍamānaṁ [g: kriḍa-] sutejasam [g: suvisvalaṁ] |

5) Balīśa[1] (U) – (Balīśa is) blue like a (storm) cloud and sapphire. He has three eyes and eight arms and his head is adorned with dreadlocks and the moon. He is replete with divine earrings and adorned with a divine crown. In the right (hands he holds) a dagger, double-headed drum, noose, and a spear. In the left (hands he holds) a skull, conch, thread and is adorned with an ascetic's staff. He possesses all the ornaments and is beautiful in all (his) limbs. A divine garland made of gems is on (his) neck. The Bhairava called Balīśa possesses Śāntiśakti (Ḷ) and, delighted, he plays full of divine bliss. Mounted on a swan he shines with beautiful radiant energy.[2]



6) Arghīśa (Ū) – (Arghīśa), red as vermillion, shines brilliantly. His mouth is slightly (open) like a lotus. He has three eyes (and wears a) flaming diadem. A necklace made of radiant pearls hangs from (his) neck. He has four arms and, possessing all the (auspicious) marks, he is very fierce. In the right (hands he holds) a trident and makes a wish-bestowing gesture and in the left (hands he holds) a skull and ascetic's staff. (His) great weapons shine like the light of millions of suns. He is beautiful with many ornaments and resounds with the sound

---

trimūrtibhairavaṁ devaṁ sarvasiddhipradāyakam ||
vyāghrāsanasamārūḍhaṁ grasan iva carācaram | Ibid. 24/21-25ab.

[1] This Rudra is called Amarin in the ṢSS.

[2] nīlameghapratīkāśaṁ nīlavaidūryasannibham [g::vaiduryyasaṁnnibhaṁ] ||
tryakṣaṁ cāṣṭabhujaṁ bhīmaṁ [k kh: dīptaṁ] mūrdhajūṭendubhūṣitam |
divyakuṇḍalasaṁpūrṇaṁ divyakirīṭabhūṣitam [g: -kirīṭidivya] ||
kartṛkā [kh g: karttikā] ḍamarukaṁ pāśaṁ śūlaṁ dakṣiṇataḥ [g: -ta] sthitāḥ [g: sthitaṁ] |
kādyaṁ śaṅkhaṁ [g: śaṁkha] tathā sūtraṁ [kh: sutraṁ] vāme khaṭvāṁgaśobhitam [k, kh: -te] ||
sarvālaṅkārasaṁyuktaṁ [g: sarvalakṣaṇa-] sarvāvayavaśobhitam [k kh: bhūṣitam] |
divyaratnakṛtā mālā kaṇṭhasthā ca virājate ||
balīśo [kh: varīśo; g: śramarī] bhairavo nāma śāntyā śaktyā samanvitaḥ [kh: samanvitāḥ; g: samaṁnvitāḥ] |
krīḍamāno [k: krīḍamānā; kh g: krīḍamānaṁ] saṁhṛṣṭātmā [kh: hṛṣṭātmānaṁ; g: saṁhṛṣṭhātmā] divyānandaikanirbharaḥ [k kh: -ram] ||
haṁsapṛṣṭhasamārūḍhaṁ [k: haṁsayāna-] dīpyamānaṁ sutejasam | Ibid. 24/25cd-30ab.

of (his) anklets. He is in the company of Grasanīśakti (Tha), sporting and blissful. Mounted on a bear,[1] he goes by the name of Arghīśa.[2]

